We now need about two thousand dollars to complete the fund, when all the pledges have been redeemed, with what we have in cash on hand; we can count on about eight thousand, therefore two thousand more will complete the fund, and Spiritualism will then have a National Home, and a treasury of ten thousand dollars for its work. We hope to hear from all true Spiritualists who have not contributed to this fund, in the very near future, with donations of what they can give, be it large or small—all will be gladly accepted.

With fraternal greetings to all,
Cordially,
MARY T. LONGLEY,
Secretary N. S. A.
600 Penna Ave. S. E., Washington, D. C.

Ferdinand Fox Jencken.

I feel it my duty to let Spiritualists and all that it may or should concern, know the condition of Ferdinand Fox Jencken, the only surviving member of the mediumistic branch of the celebrated family of John D. Fox.

May 31 the rupture of a nasal artery resulted in hemorrhage; all home efforts and near-by physicians were unavailing in stopping the rapid flow of blood; he went to the nearest hospital (the Norwegian) and was refused admission; but the persistent effort of an estimable lady in that section of our city, Mrs. Marie Robinson, who originated a model aid society without capital (a more detailed account of which will be given in the near future), did succeed in getting Ferdinand in the Seney Hospital, Sixth street near Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, a Methodist institution. By mal-treatment of doctors and ambulance attendants before reaching the hospital, for several days he was upon the verge of a collapse; to-day there is a little improvement, but through the worry about his family the case is still critical, and whether he survives or not there is great need of immediate assistance. Catharine Fox Jencken, mother of Ferdinand, his aunt Leah and Margaret have expressed through reliable mediums their sincere thankfulness to those who have contributed. Total amount received up to date, $51.50; $19 of this received outside of this city. Total expenditures, $51.20, mostly used to pay rent and food when unable to work. When the hemorrhage commenced I had a little in reserve, with this and a little that Mrs. Robinson had in hand from the Aid Society known as "the Band of Willing Workers," we shall be able to maintain his family consisting of a daughter of 2 years, another of 2 months, for a few days. This appeal is not for those who have contributed, but to those abundantly able that have not mailed their mite.

TITUS MERRITT.
Mills Hotel, Bleecker street, New York City.

YOU, as a progressive mind, should know something of the phenomena of that magnificent change called Death. On that subject you will find valuable information in the three volumes of The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World Those three volumes contain more valuable information on that subject than all the libraries of the world. They are furnished to the subscribers of The Progressive Thinker at a nominal cost. Read carefully our premium list.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOK

Vaccination a Curse, and a Menace to Personal Liberty.

Dr. J. M. Peebles has in press and is now reading the revised page proofs of a most sterling book (to be neatly bound and well illustrated) containing between 300 and 400 pages, entitled "Vaccination a Curse, and a Menace to Personal Liberty."

This book will treat exhaustively of inoculation, cow-pox and calf-lymph vaccination, from Jenner's time to the present. It tells how the cow-pox pus poison is obtained from the running ulcers on inoculated heifers, how it has utterly failed to prevent small-pox, how the armies of Prussia, France, Germany and our own Philippine soldiers, vaccinated and re-vaccinated, have died of small-pox, how the vaccine virus, while causing hundreds of deaths, sows the seeds of eczema, pimpled faces, cancers, tumors, ulcers, and leprosy. It gives a history of the several years' battle against vaccination in England, and the victory of the anti-vaccinationists, making it "optional" instead of compulsory, it gives a history of the struggle in San Diego, Cal., and the victory of the anti-vaccinationists, compelling the stupid school-board and health board to open the public school door to all unvaccinated children, it shows the unconstitutionality of the compulsory vaccination law, and the decision of Supreme courts, it shows and gives the reason why so many doctors, especially second-class scrub doctors, so insist upon thrusting pus poison into children's arms, it tabulates the number that have been killed by this vaccinating virus—and how by sanitation, etc., to not only treat, but to prevent the spread of small-pox. This book should be in every doctor's library, school-library, and family in the country. Price, $1.25.

Orders should be sent to Dr. J. M. Peebles & Co., Battle Creek, Mich. First come, first served.

Lily Dale Items.

Receptions were given to the Rev. Moses and Mattie Hull on the evening of Tuesday, May 29, at Lily Dale; Mr. Thos. Grimshaw, of St. Louis, Mo., Tuesday evening, June 5, and Mr. J. Clegg Wright, on Tuesday, June 12, at the home of the Campbell Brothers.

At each reception there has been a great variety of talent; addresses were delivered by Rev. Moses and Mattie Hull, Mr. J. Clegg Wright, Mr. Thomas Grimshaw, of St. Louis, F. Corden White, W. H. Bach, Pundit Lallan, Mr. A. J. Weaver, Mr. Thompson, Mrs. Ellis, Mrs. Cowan and others. Original poems by Mrs. Keen, Mrs. Hull and Mrs. Seymour; banjo solo and songs by Mr. Niver; Recitations by Mrs. Alfarata Jahnke, Mrs. Byrnes and others; vocal selections by Mrs. Addie Gage, Mrs. Byrnes, Mrs. J. Clegg Wright and friend, and last but not least, Miss Phelps. Instrumental music on piano and pianola, and many other pleasing numbers were rendered; in fact these meetings have been a great success, fully attended and enjoyed by everyone.

Never has there been such an array of talent at any time at this season of the year as at the present; this is owing to the fact of the two spiritual training schools being in session, Moses and Mattie Hull assisted by A. J. Weaver and Mrs. Jahnke in one school, and J. Clegg Wright and wife in the other. Both schools teach what is needed in our ranks, namely, to prepare platform and other workers to fill in an acceptable manner their positions. Both schools are highly appreciated, well attended and great interest manifested; in fact a great and good work is being done here. X.

Letter from Rev. T. W. Woodrow.

To the Editor:—On the 3rd inst. I visited Harveyville, Kansas, where I conducted occasional meetings from 1881 to 1890, during which time I took part in four theological discussions with orthodox endless-hell-fire-preachers—those preachers of the most authentic creed in which the doctrine of eternal suffering of the greater portion of mankind is most precious to selfish souls; and on this occasion I had the pleasure of delivering the larger message of Spiritualism, which not only announces the universal salvation of mankind by endless progression, but also the glad tidings of the ministry of the angel friends to those of earth who are waiting to be delivered from the "bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God," We had a basket meeting in a beautiful grove near the village, such as we used to have in years gone by. I left an appointment for the fourth Sunday of this month, and arrangements are made to have a professional psychic at the meeting that the audience may have an opportunity of witnessing an illustration of what millions believe to be messages from the spirits. In one discourse on the 3rd inst., I explained the respective missions of Universalism and Spiritualism, and showed that both have much the same mission, both claiming the credit of having knocked the bottom out of hell, hence the bottomless pit. Universalism came to save men from sectarian fear. Spiritualism came to save men from skeptical doubts. Universalism proved itself by quoting texts of Scripture. Spiritualism proved itself by citing the facts of experience. Both appealed to reason.

On my way home I stopped at Burlingame and visited the family of C. E. Wood. Mrs. Wood's mother is in her 99th year and it was a treat to talk with her. She told me she suffered the torments of orthodox fear until her 80th year, and then when she came to live with her daughter, Mrs. Freedom Wood, she was enabled to see the error of her creed by the kindly ministry of angel friends through the mediumship of her daughter. She is one of the best-hearted and most conscientious women, and therefore suffered most by the doctrine of her early teaching. Any doctrine that makes the best suffer most can't be true; any creed that tortures the mind of the honest believer is incompatible with the human mind and is therefore false.

In conclusion allow me to say that incidental to my travels and public work I represent the private sanitarium in this city, under the management of Mrs. Emma J. Woodrow, M. D.

Friends in any vicinity desiring lectures upon liberal and progressive thought will kindly address me.

T. W. WOODROW.
1115 Garfield Ave., Kansas City. Kans.

No soul is desolate as long as there is a human being for whom it can feel trust and reverence.—George Eliot.

Much of the religion to-day is only respect for the religion of the past.—Investigator.

Genius always gives its best at first; prudence at last.—Lavater.

Aggression which is flagitious when committed by one is not sanctified when committed by a host.—Herbert Spencer.

CHESTERFIELD CAMP.

Its Policy Is Fully Outlined.

To avoid any misunderstanding and to remove any wrong impression which might result, a few words of explanation regarding the new policy inaugurated at Chesterfield Camp this season relative to phenomenal mediums, are probably in order.

At the spring meeting of our executive board it was decided that it would be for the best interests of our camp, the public and the cause of Spiritualism generally, that some kind of discrimination and selection be exercised as regards the mediums who should present the phenomena of Spiritualism on our grounds. The result was that the following rule was adopted and inserted in our annual program: "All mediums, both mental and physical, for the camp-meeting of 1900 will be selected and their presence solicited by the executive board; no others will be premitted to do business."

This rule puts the phenomenal medium and the speaker upon the same basis, and accords to each the same treatment. We exercise our judgment as regards the selection of the proper number of competent persons to present the philosophy upon our rostrums, why should we not use the same discretion in selecting the proper number of competent and worthy mediums to present the phenomena upon our grounds? Is not one as important as the other?

The policy we have adopted has to our minds several advantageous features:

First to the mediums. By limiting the number of mediums to what our past experience has taught is sufficient to properly supply the demand, we make each medium invited more certain of having sufficient employment during his or her attendance.

Secondly to the public. The mediums being chosen by the Association, the public is protected from frauds and charlatans and much more confidence is felt in the genuineness of the phenomena than if no discrimination were used as to what mediums be allowed to do business on the ground. None but competent mediums being chosen the results to sitters are universally favorable and thereby the cause of Spiritualism is elevated and advanced.

By having none but those deemed worthy we avoid the danger of having our camp and the cause generally brought into disrepute by the acts of unworthy characters, mediums though they be.

We believe that this policy, if it should be universally adopted by our camp meeting associations throughout the nation will have a tendency to put mediumship upon a higher plane by furnishing an incentive to mediums to perfect their gifts and so guard their reputation for elevated living as will cause them to be selected to exercise their mediumship upon our camp grounds.

In their selection we take into consideration the medium's past reputation, or if a new medium the recommendations of trustworthy persons.

We believe that sufficient favorable testimony of competent and reliable persons who have attended their seances as a general thing is sufficient guarantee of genuineness.

In making our selection for this season some mediums who have heretofore attended our meetings were omitted; this is not to be construed in any way to the detriment of these mediums. Some speakers who were selected in the past do not appear on our program this season. This is not because we do not deem them competent and worthy, but rather because in our judgment a change of talent is conducive to the success of our association, and because their names do not appear this year is no evidence they will not be seen again in future years.

Also in making our selections, no doubt many perfectly reliable mediums have been overlooked. It is impossible to employ all the speakers in one season, able though they be, and it is likewise impossible for too large a number of mediums to find patronage on our camp grounds no matter how excellent.

We trust and believe that our plan will prove beneficial to all concerned and add to the advancement of Spiritualism generally.

F. J. MACOMBER,
of the Executive Board Indiana Association of Spiritualists.

A Seance in Cleveland, O.

To the Editor:—On Sunday, May 13, through a pre-arrangement a jolly party of Spiritualists from Canton, Navarre and Elyria met in Cleveland for the purpose of attending a materializing seance that was held that afternoon at the home of Mrs. M. Kemp, 527 Scovil avenue. That Mrs. Kemp is one of the strongest materializing mediums to be found within our ranks there is no question, and upon this occasion the manifestations were unusually strong. During this seance, which lasted over two hours; fully fifty spirit friends materialized in full form, greeted and conversed with their friends of earth, and often two, three and four were visible at the same time. Not only were they seen and conversed with at the cabinet, but many of them came out of the cabinet into the room where conversations were held with dear ones of earth. The writer was specially favored in that respect, since three of his arisen dear ones, an aunt, sister and nephew, materialized at the same time, came out of the cabinet under a good light and then called for the writer. After going to and conversing with those loved ones a few moments on the outside of the cabinet, they led him into the cabinet where the medium was seated, to get strength before coming out again. In a few minutes, however, the writer came out of the cabinet with a dear sister holding to his right arm, a nephew on his left and an aunt immediately behind him and while in plain view of all in the room his aunt placed a large materialized veil over the writer's head and shoulders and in that position we stood for several minutes, after which we returned to the cabinet where my loved ones, after a short conversation, bid me a hearty goodbye and then dematerialized to make room for other denizens of the spirit world. Taking this seance as a whole it was one of the grandest the writer has ever attended, and in fact, such strength of manifestation is seldom witnessed in any seance room. After this delightful visit with our arisen loved ones our party separated, some to visit with Cleveland friends, while others visited the parks in the East End, but unfortunately some of the Canton friends tarried too long and when they arrived at the Wheeling and Lake Erie depot to take their train home it had gone and they were compelled to remain in the city over night; they however returned home next day, with a vow that the next seance they attend in Cleveland they will stay away from the East End parks. E. R. KIDD.
Canton, Ohio.

is the intangible power that controls human destiny. It is the key to all business and social success. If you come in contact with people, you cannot afford to be without this knowledge.

By our new system you can learn in a few days at your own home. Our beautiful illustrated free treatise tells you all about it. All classes of people including distinguished public men all over the country are studying this wonderful science.

We have thousands of letters of highest commendation, many of which are published in our free book. Do not send money, the book is free. A postal card will bring it. Address

NEW YORK INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE,
DEPT. NB16 ROCHESTER, N. Y.

FREE ASTHMA REMEDY.

Free Trial Bottle to Everyone Who Suffers from Asthma.

A physician who suffered many years from violent attacks of asthma, has discovered a sure cure for the disease, and is now entirely recovered. He has written letters to the leading newspapers of the country requesting that their readers be informed of this new remedy, and that he will mail, free, a trial bottle to anyone who writes for it. It has cured quite a number of people who obtained the free trial: is an absolute cure, perfectly safe and harmless, and so fortifies the system that the cure is permanent. Write to W. E. Walrath, Box 618, Adams, N. Y., and he will forward at once by mail, prepaid, a trial bottle, so that you can test it and see what it will do in your case. An offer like this ought to be taken advantage of by every reader. Write to-day without fail. Don't wait.

PUBLICATIONS
— OF —
HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.
This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.
Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.
In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.
The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1,

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.
English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.
Containing the latest investigations and discoveries, and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.
This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.
A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 50 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?
How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.
By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.
For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents, Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.
For humane Education, with plan of the Angel Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address
HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

NEW EDITION.
THE LYCEUM GUIDE

Do you want to organize a society, for the social, intellectual and spiritual advancement of the children and adults?

THE PROGRESSIVE LYCEUM

furnishes all you desire.

Do you want a self-sustaining society, founded on the basic principles of the spiritual philosophy? You have it in THE PROGRESSIVE LYCEUM. It furnishes a system of evolution or internal growth; not the old cramped pitcher Sunday-school. It has something to interest and advance every member, and those who are most active in teaching are the ones who learn most.

NO SPECIAL INSTRUCTOR REQUIRED.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE gives every detail needed for effective organization, and for conducting the society when established.

It has Golden Chain Recitations; the prettiest songs and music; choral responses; a service for a Band of Mercy; calisthenics; how to make the badges, flags and banners; marching exercises; full instructions in conducting the exercises, with parliamentary rules, etc.

Many Spiritualists living in isolation, have formed lyceums in their own families; others have banded, two or three families together, while large societies have organized on the lyceum platform, and found great interest in this self-instructive method.

Do not wait for a "missionary" to come to your assistance, but take hold of the matter yourself, procure copies of the GUIDE, and commence with the few or many you find interested.

Mrs. Emma Rood Tuttle (address, Berlin Heights, Ohio) will answer all questions pertaining to lyceum work.

The price of THE LYCEUM GUIDE is 50 cents, postpaid, or by the dozen, 40 cents

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin, Heights, Ohio.

NOTE.—The Questions and Answers have called forth such a host of respondents, that to give all equal hearing compels the answers to be made in the most condensed form, and often clearness is perhaps sacrificed to this forced brevity. Proofs have to be omitted, and the style becomes thereby assertive, which of all things is to be deprecated. Correspondents often weary with waiting for the appearance of their questions and write letters of inquiry. The supply of matter is always several weeks ahead of the space given, and hence there is unavoidable delay. Every one has to wait his time and place, and all are treated with equal favor.

NOTICE—No attention will be given anonymous letters. Full name and address must be given, or the letters will not be read. If the request be made, the name will not be published. The correspondence of this department has become excessively large, especially letters of inquiry requesting private answers, and while I freely give whatever information I am able, the ordinary courtesy of correspondents is expected. HUDSON TUTTLE.

N. B. Young: Q. At a circle the spirit of Robert Burns purported to be present and one of his admirers asked the question: "Has Robert Burns ever married his Highland Mary?" The medium was illiterate, and yet a beautiful poem was given. Cannot this poem be reproduced in The Progressive Thinker?

A. The poem to which this correspondent alludes is probably the one given through Mrs. Hyzer, although it is scarcely correct to characterize her as illiterate. She was not, however, capable, unaided, of giving the poem. Some of our readers have undoubtedly preserved this poem which years ago was widely published. They would confer a favor by sending it for re-publication.

The following poem answering the query, was given to me by a spirit claiming to be that of Burns:

MY DEATH.

A brilliant sunlight round me played
Like dazzling lightning gleaming,
And many angel forms displayed
With heavenly beauty beaming.

There, cauld in death, my body lay;
I could nae tell the meaning;
O, sure enough, I thought, I'm dead,
Or else I maun be dreaming.

"My Robert!" whispered I' my ear;
I looked for her departed,
For whom I near dissolved in tears,
And died e'en broken-hearted.

I looked again, it was so light
I could nae see her clearly,
But soon I bore the blinding sight
An' lo! my long-lost dearie!

"My Mary!" burst in wild exclaim
Frae lips pale with emotion,
"Thou art to be my bride in bonds,
Changeless as our devotion."

She flung herself upon my breast;
I clasped her to my bosom,
While tears were falling thick an' fast,
As dew frae simmer blossom.

Love bound the chains around our hearts
Nae power in heaven can siver;
Nae more can death divide us twa,
For we are oned together.

Nae mummery of priest was said,
Nae marriage license taken,
Nae ritual was drawling read—
Yet Mary's nae forsaken!

Our earthly griefs are all passed o'er,
An' we in love are smiling;
A heaven of joy around us plays,
Fleetly the hours beguiling.

My Mary loves with angel love,
An' shall be ever courted;
For marriage chains are galling tight,
Unless by Love supported.

N. C. K.: Q. I am "between the Devil and the deep sea;" I am a member of the Baptist church, but I have been studying Spiritualism, and doing a good deal of thinking, and am convinced that the whole creed is based on fraud and delusion. I have explained this to a Baptist minister and asked him if I should withdraw. He told me to stay and follow the light that I had. Now I cannot keep my light under a bushel and talk, and people think I am not honest in remaining in the church. My wife is a church member firm in the old rut, and I do not want to offend her. Now I believe there are a great many situated as I am, and what do you advise?

This correspondent is right in his conclusion that there are a great many people who are on the ragged edge of unbelief, who are held in bodage by their previous associations, their friends, their families, and are at a loss what to do. To remain is to act the hypocrite, to leave the church is to break from the associations of a life time, and go out into a strange land with a scarcely trusted guide. On one side is the supporting helpfulness of the old organization, on the other side is the contempt, the pity, the scorn of men; ostracism, the beginning of life anew, with no staff of support.

The course which each should pursue, remain, or go out, must be decided by the individual. Where such momentous consequences are involved, so far-reaching, and imperative, and no returning after the Rubicon is once crossed, it would be unwarrantable to advise either course. In general terms it may be said that adhesion to the highest convictions of truth in the end always proves the most satisfactory. To trim and hedge before a creed one at heart abhors, is the mark of weakness, and is condemned even by fellow worshipers.

To remain and follow the light is conflicting advice, for if one follows the light, he will go out of the church as soon as the door can be opened for him to do so. If he remain, he must put his light under a bushel, for if he lets it shine, he will be assailed. If he remain, he must remain silent, and tacitly consent to the "cruel creed." A wife brought up in the church, and fully accepting its doctrines, has the power to make the life of her husband who doubts, full of misery. She can even instruct his children to hold him in contempt.

Is the truth worth this sacrifice? Did Servetus and Bruno at the stake pay too much for the truth? Did Galileo in the dungeon suffer too much for it? Did the millions who have perished by the torturer's hands pay more than the value of the truths they believed and repeated? Nay, for one single ray of truth is of more value than a universe of error. If you hesitate in weakness stop, if you feel strong to bear, to suffer, go out into the highlands of free-thought, and grow stronger by the buffeting, the seething conflict of ideas. If the pastor and members of most churches would honestly speak out, and confess in a way good for their souls, the church would go to pieces like a rope of sand, for no one believes as the creed to which they subscribe. The preacher preaches it because he thinks the laity believe it, the laity receive it in silence because they think the preacher believes as their fathers. It is all a make believe—a delusion and a sham. When a man attempts to carry the corpse of dead ideas with him, to support a system which he is convinced is a fraud, then truly he is "between the devil and the deep sea," and his only escape is to perfect freedom from the bondage of any and every creed, and the assertion of the power of reason, which is the final authority.

Wm. B. O'Neil: Q. Will you inform me through the columns of The Progressive Thinker, if Spiritualism through any medium, ever stated a fact or advanced a theory which was not at the time accepted by science, and yet afterward accepted?

A. The Theory of Life, advocated in the Arcana of Nature, with many other important statements, have been admitted to have preceded their formularization by science, and they have since been accepted.

The theory of thought being vibrations in a spirit ether, was first presented in the second volume of the Arcana (now published under the title of Philosophy of Spirit), and this ether given a name "zoether"—life ether, and the basis for the generalization of all telepathic communications, and spirit inspiration thereby firmly defined. These books were first published in 1860, and written some time previously. A. J. Davis, in his Divine Revelations, speaks of a planet, not then discovered, and his interpretation of motion, has become with later scientists acceptable under new names. He also suggests the process of making rain, which was followed many years after, and with proper care will undoubtedly be successful.

Q: Who invented the guillotine? Was it Dr. Guillotine, as we find often stated?

A. Up to the time Dr. Guillotine took his place in the National Assembly of France, decapitation was only used for the nobles. He proposed that it should be the only method of inflicting the death penalty, and that the machine then in use in Italy and Scotland, take the place of the headsman's ax. Barbarous as this method is, and revolting to refined feeling, it is doubtless as painless as any that can be devised. The severance of the spinal cord produces instant insensibility to pain, and the electric shock cannot practically take less time or be more complete in its work.

Dr. Guillotine was not executed by this instrument, as has been reported, probably because the people like to have a rude compensation meted out, and transposed the story of Haman hung on his own gallows. He lived to a good old age. The name of the inventor of the terrible machine is not recorded.

THE SPIRIT REALM.

The spirit realm is where God lives,
And angels wing their flight,
From every quarter merrily
On streams of living light,
Pervading all the universe,
Where sovereign will extends
Intent, and plan, and potency,
And over all impends,
Throughout the shoreless depths so vast;
And rules—the one Great Mind,
As swings creation into line,
And procreates in kind.

The spirit realm is everywhere,
Where Infinite Spirit dwells;
As broad and deep as human thought,
Or inspiration tells;
And boundless as intelligence,
That numbers all the stars
And rules the planets, everyone,
Our earth the same as Mars;
And finds God's children worshipful
On worlds that roll in space
Around the many suns that warm,
Each one, a thinking race.

The spirit realm must ever be,
Where love and justice reign
And make a paradisean sphere
Above the earthy plain,
For such as build their hopes upon
The wealth that cannot fade,
When once 'tis gathered fairly in,
And one's possession made
Of truth and righteousness and light,
As claim the highest goal,
And happy make the future state
Of every knowing soul.

The spirit home's a boundless realm,
With pearly gates ajar
And glorious light that never dims,
So that no night is there;
And fountains clear as crystal feed
The tree of life that grows
And bears, forever, fruit for all,
Who, laying down their oars
And going from the world of dust,
In spirit form, into
The heaven-sphere, may feast and grow,
And live as angels do.

So, then, weep not when I am gone
From pain and death to life,
Into the kingdom answering hopes,
And ending selfish strife
With victory the grandest known,
That opens on my eyes
The hoped-for heaven's radiant zone,
Where suns forever rise
And send their vitalizing sheen
Along the grand upline,
There lighting mansions 'long the way—
Among them, yours and mine.

WILLIAM J. HILL, M. D.
Petoskey, Mich.

Emma Rood Tuttle—Her New Volume of Poems.

Since the publication of "From Soul to Soul," by Emma Rood Tuttle, there has been constant inquiry for another volume of her poems which was promised. When the prospectus of that volume was issued, requesting the names of those who wished to subscribe, nearly 1,000 were at once received and three editions have been called for. This plan proved so satisfactory that this new volume will be issued in the same manner. By it the cost of publication is guaranteed, and at the same time to those desiring the book it is furnished at much less cost.

The new volume will be in the same style as "From Soul to Soul," will contain over 300 pages, beautifully bound, with embossed cover, will contain engraved portrait of the author, and subscribers copies will have her autograph.

Emma Rood Tuttle is well known to the readers of The Progressive Thinker and the spiritual press by the many poems she has contributed, and her spiritual songs. The present volume will contain the best of these, and many not before published. The price will be $1; to subscribers, 75 cents. It will be published as soon as the number of subscribers warrant.

Please send names at once—money not desired. HUDSON TUTTLE.
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

THE CAMP-MEETINGS.

Ashley Camp, O.

This camp begins July 29, and ends August 19, 1900. For programmes address H. Baxter, Ashley, Ohio.

Bankson Lake, Mich.

Bankson Lake (Mich.) Camp-meeting commences June 3 and closes June 13. Nearest railroad station is Lawton. For full particulars address S. T. Beam, Lawton, Mich.

Maple Dell Camp, O.

The National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association will hold its twelfth annual session, commencing July 22, ending September. For full particulars and programme, enclose stamp and address Lucy King, corresponding secretary, Mantua, Ohio.

Arkansas Valley Camp.

The Arkansas Valley Spiritual Association will hold its 7th annual camp-meeting in Island Park, at Winfield, Kansas, commencing July 7, and ending July 17, 1900. For full particulars address Chas. O. Bethel, Winfield, Kans.

Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass.

This camp opens July 29. The circulars are now ready and can be had upon application. In writing for them please enclose stamp for return postage. Address Albert P. Blinn, Clerk, 603 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Camp, O.

This camp will open July 1, and close August 27. Send for programmes to Dr. W. D. Noyes, secretary, 189, N. Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich.

Spiritualist camp-meeting will be held at Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich., commencing June 15 and closing July 9. For full particulars address N. M. Kellam, manager, Oden, Mich.

Chesterfield Camp, Ind.

The camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will open at Chesterfield, Ind., July 19, and close August 26, 1900. For programmes and further information address Flora Hardin, secretary, Anderson, Indiana.

New Era Camp, Oregon.

Its next annual gathering will be held beginning June 23 and ending July 16, thus including four Sundays. Full particulars may be had by addressing E. W. Penman, secretary, Canby, Oregon, or Mrs. Kate Obrock, vice-president, 309 Shaver street, Portland, Oregon.

Delphos Camp.

The twenty-second annual camp-meeting of the First Society of State Spiritualists and Liberals will be held at Delphos, Kans., from August 10 to August 26 inclusive. For further particulars or information write to President J. N. Blanchard, Delphos, Kansas; M. J. Main, vice-president, Simpson, Kansas, or E. S. Bishop, secretary, Glasco, Kansas.

Cassadaga Camp, N. Y.

This favorite place of resort offers an attractive programme the coming season. The camp opens July 13 and closes August 26. Write to the secretary, A. E. Gaston, Meadville, Pa., for programmes.

Onset Camp-Meeting.

Commences July 15, and closes August 26, 1900. For further particulars address Secretary, Onset, Mass.

Vicksburg Camp.

The seventeenth annual camp-meeting of Vicksburg, Mich., will be held in Fraser's Grove, commencing August 3, and closing August 26, 1900. For further information address Jeannette Fraser, Manager, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo county, Mich.

Lake Brady.

The camp grounds will be open for picnics June 1, extending through the summer. The camp-meeting opens July 1, closing September 1. Anyone wishing a Lake Brady program will please write Geo. N. Abbott, Lake Brady, via Kent, Ohio, or E. R. Kidd, Canton, Ohio.

Mount Pleasant Park, Ia.

The eighteenth annual camp-meeting of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists' Association will be held at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, from July 29 to August 26, 1900. All wishing circulars should write to the secretary, Stella A. Fisk, 18 N. 11th street, Keokuk, Iowa. Those wishing to rent tents, etc., should write to John Nelson, Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa.

The Ottawa Camp.

The Ottawa, Kansas, Spiritualist camp-meeting, from August 8 to August 13 inclusive. H. W. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kans.; Ezra Carpenter, secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

Freeville Camp. N. Y.

Opens July 29 and closes August 12. Speakers: J. C. F. Grumbine and Dr. J. M. Peebles. Dr. Nellie C. Mosier, platform test medium. Mr. Grumbine will conduct a class July 30, 31 and Aug. 1. B. L. Robinson, president, Freeville, N. Y.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

Grand Ledge Spiritualist Camp-Meeting commences July 29 and closes August 26. For further particulars and full programmes, write to M. F. Phares or Geo. H. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opens July 1 and closes August 19, 1900, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Program cheerfully mailed to any address received on postal card to Thos J. Haynes, secretary, 389 Western avenue, Muskegon, Mich.

Camp-Meeting at Deep Lake.

The Illinois State Spiritualist Camp-meeting opens its second season at Deep Lake, 1½ miles from Lake Villa, Ill., on Wisconsin Central railroad, commencing July 10 and closing September 1. Those who intend to camp with us please let us know in time so that we can make preparations for you. Address G. V. Cordingley, President, 3300 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Island Lake, Mich.

Island Lake Camp, Island Lake, Michigan, commences Thursday, July 19, and closes September 3. Nellie S. Baade will be presiding officer during camp session. Other speakers and workers are Mrs. A. E. Sheets, Dr. J. M. Peebles, Rev. B. F. Austin, Lyman C. Howe, D. P. Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kates, Carrie E. S. Twing, M. St. Omer Briggs, Dr. J. W. Briggs, Sadie E. Cronk, Frances Ruddick, R. Ferris, J. D. Boyle (the greatest prophesier of the age), Madame Jullenne de Leamont. Mrs. Agnes Tuttle, of Berlin Heights, Ohio., will have charge of entertainments. P. O. Hudson, musical director. For further information address the secretary, Ella B. Brown, 266 Twenty-first street, Detroit, Mich.

Lake Helen, Fla.

The Southern Cassadaga Camp, Lake Helen, Florida, will open the first Sunday, in February, 1901. Emma J. Huff, corresponding secretary.

Niantic Camp.

The Connecticut Spiritualist Camp-Meeting Association, at Niantic campgrounds, Niantic, Conn; season of 1900, commencing June 25 and continuing until September 8, inclusive. For programmes address Mary A. Hatch, secretary, South Windham, Conn.

Franklin (Neb.) Camp.

The Northwest Kansas and Southwest Nebraska Spiritualist Association will hold their fifth annual camp-meeting at Franklin, Neb., from July 20 to August 6 inclusive. No pains will be spared to make it a success. For announcement, circulars and other information, address the secretary, C. H. Simpson, Franklin, Neb.

Verona Park Camp.

Opens June 15 and closes August 26. For programmes address Albert F. Smith, president, Bangor, Maine.

Colorado Camp.

Canyon Camp, opens in South Boulder Canyon, July 1, and continues through July, August, and possibly September. Any information desired in regard to this new and interesting movement may be obtained by writing May Taylor, Box 780, Denver, Colo.

Camp Cassadaga.

The success of former years has been equaled if not surpassed in the meetings just closed, which made up the program of the picnic for June, 1900. Harmony reigned, good order prevailed, and all in all it was one of the most enjoyable picnics ever held at Lily Dale. The talent engaged was from the best on the Spiritual rostrum, and every lecture scintillated with gems of rarest thought. Moses Hull, Mr. Grimshaw and Mr. Sprague were the speakers for Friday and Saturday. Sunday morning Lyman C. Howe occupied the platform and gave one of his masterly lectures. J. Clegg Wright followed in the afternoon. At the close of his address the general verdict was magnificent.

There are many attractions to draw people to Camp Cassadaga for the summer of 1900. The Training School is well under way, with many favorable reports from those in attendance. The classes under J. Clegg Wright's instructions promise much in the way of intellectual development and psychical unfoldment. These classes commence June 12 and continue until August 1, and to all who contemplate visiting this camp this season we would say come early that you may profit by the instructions which Mr. Wright is so ably endowed to give.

President Gaston, supported by his staff of trustees, seems untiring in his efforts to promote the welfare of the cause in his efforts to make Cassadaga Camp an educational center, as well as a Spiritual center where the two worlds may meet in the interchange of actual experiences.

Every year the influence of the work done at Camp Cassadaga extends further and further away, and every year we are adding new treasures to the storehouse of knowledge and taking advanced steps in the way of spiritual enlightenment.

MARY WEBB BAKER.
Lily Dale, N. Y.

Railroad Rates to the M. V. S. A. Camp-Meeting.

The camp-meeting at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, opens July 29 and closes August 26.

We are pleased to announce that we have secured from the Western Passenger Association, a railroad rate of a fare and one-third, on the certificate plan, from all points in Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and the northern peninsula of Michigan, which is practically the same as the rate obtained last year. Tickets may be purchased July 26, 27 and 28 and thereafter on each Tuesday and Friday during the meeting, certificates to be honored if presented not later than August 29. Be sure to take a certificate from the agent when you buy your ticket and deposit it with the secretary as soon as you reach the camp.

The Diamond Jo line of steamers has granted a rate of one fare for the round trip from all points between St. Paul and St. Louis.

The very attractive array of talent employed for the platform, with the improved condition of the park, will make it worth while to take advantage of these favorable rates. For programs and general information address

STELLA A. FISK, Sec'y.
Keokuk, Iowa.

"Religion as Revealed by the Material and Spiritual Universe." By. E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A compact and comprehensive view of the subject; philosophic, historic, analytical and critical; facts and data needed by every student and especially by every Spiritualist. One of the very best books on the subject. Price, reduced to $1, cloth; paper 50 cents. For sale at this office.

Rending the Vail. This volume is a compilation by J. W. Nixon, of psychic literature, most given by spirits through and by means of full form visible materializations, at seances of a certain Psychic Research Society, known as the Aber Intellectual Circle, the medium being William W. Aber. 507 pp. octavo. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker. Price $2.

"After Her Death. The Story of a Summer." By Lilian Whiting. No mind that loves spiritual thought can fail to be fed and delighted with this book. Beautiful spiritual thought, combining advanced ideas on the finer and ethereal phases of Spiritualism, leading the mind onward into the purer atmosphere of exalted spiritual truth. A book for the higher life. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.

"The Infidelity of Ecclesiasticism, A Menace to American Civilization." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood, lecturer upon physical, physiological and psychic science. Demonstrator of the molecular or spiritual hypothesis of nature. Scholarly, masterly, trenchant. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

SOLVING A PROBLEM.

Future of the Colored Race in the United States.

To the Editor:—Much is being said of late in the press, amongst politicians, and in religious convocations, in reference to negro outrages by negroes, and upon negroes, and in advocacy of, and opposition to, the Fifteenth Amendment, conferring citizenship on the negro; but as yet no plan of a general nature has been attained.

For some time past there has been revolving in my old octogenarian Abolition head a scheme looking to their betterment, and knowing your humanitarian ideas will induce you to regard with favor every endeavor looking to the well being of all branches of the human family, I will very briefly lay the leading thought before you.

The territories of New Mexico and Arizona jointly contain about 150,000,000 acres. Suppose this, and more adjoining territory, if necessary, were offered by the government of the United States to the negroes of this country provided they would occupy it, after a free discussion and majority vote among themselves to do so—with the understanding that they should have representation in both branches of the Congress of the United States—where would be the harm, either to the whites or blacks?

It would manifestly be unjust, in view of the long years of enforced servitude the race has endured at our hands, to compel them to leave the country against their will, and I cannot but think the great majority of them would regard such an offer with great favor, and thus a peaceful and happy solution be attained, of what otherwise threatens interminable trouble and ultimating in a race war.

Until through a residence of several years in the South, I had thought the Sumner bill, enfranchising the negroes, was the right thing to do. After a residence of ten years, however, I am convinced that, however well it may have worked then, it should now be repealed, and the right and conditions of citizenship be restored again to the now loyal States.

No people who tenaciously persist in crowding into the cities—preferring menial positions—as is the case with by far the greater number, will ever attain that independence, and nobility of character, to which all should aspire. The transition or change I propose (with their consent) will bring about that development and independence.

As illustration of the slavish servility daily and hourly witnessed in this and every other Southern city (and that nothing but isolation from and non-intercourse with the dominant race is likely to stop) will afford a better insight into the evil I am trying to point out, than can be done in a volume. I will cite two cases that occurred but yesterday. A lady came out of a bakery with a black boy following with a single loaf of bread in his hand. Not only must he go with her to carry the loaf, although she had nothing in her hands, but to make him feel "his place," he must not be allowed to walk beside her, but be compelled to keep just so far behind.

A minute later a lady ascends the stairs on which I was standing, followed by a colored servant girl, having in her arms the lady's child. The servant was kept waiting several minutes, when if she had only been white, she need not have waited a moment. Of course the worst feature in both cases was, that from habit, both servants had got accustomed to such ignominious treatment, and thought it was all right.

Can the negro evolve under such conditions? Not much. Better give him the advice Greeley gave all striving to get up the ladder: "Go west and grow up with the country. V. FELL.
Washington, D. C.

BOOK REVIEWS.

Enoch Willoughby. A Novel. By James A. Wickersham. Charles Scribner's Sons, publishers, New York. $1.50. 356 pp. 12mo. cloth.

This is a work of decided merit, Spiritualistic and full of interest. One of the best of its class, and affording fine studies of human nature among Spiritualists, Quakers and others.

"We're Passing But Once This Way," is the title of a beautiful song and refrain of which the words and music, arranged for piano, are by the well-known and talented composer, Mr. P. O. Hudson, of Bay City, Mich., of whom it may be obtained. Price 25 cents.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library. One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

A CARD.

The principals of Belvidere Seminary would respectfully inform their friends and the public generally that this institution will be open during the summer and early autumn for the accommodation of children and adults who seek freedom from business cares or the excitement of social and fashionable life. Its location is healthy and beautiful, its grounds ample and well shaded, drainage and water excellent.

Belvidere, as its name indicates, is a beautiful inland town, in Northern New Jersey, 700 feet above the sea, and surrounded on all sides by forest-covered hills, at the base of which flow the Pequest and Delaware rivers, along whose banks are many places of special interest to artists and all lovers of the picturesque in nature.

Its streets are well shaded and lighted with electricity. In its near vicinity are well cultivated farms, from which a fresh supply of milk, eggs, butter, fresh fruits and vegetables can be had daily. It is only twelve miles from Easton, Pa., and ten miles from the Delaware Water Gap. It is easy of access from New York and Philadelphia by the Pennsylvania and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroads, with six trains running daily each way. Its walks and drives are exceptionally fine, presenting an ever pleasing variety of river and mountain scenery. Here is just the place for the weary to find repose and the recreation that invigorates without fatiguing. For further particulars, address A. C. BUSH,
Belvidere, Warren Co., N. J.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Nature Cure." By Drs. M. E. and Rosa C. Conger. Excellent for every family. Cloth, $1.50 and $2.

Great Work by a Great Author.

"THE UNKNOWN"

—BY—

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

"The Unknown" created a marked sensation in France when first published and can scarcely fail to arouse the greatest interest in this country. It is an eminent scientist's study of the phenomena of the spirit world. In touching upon the various physical manifestations the author cites many absolutely authenticated instances, and chapters of his book are as weirdly fascinating as the most fantastic of Poe's tales. It treats on incredulity, credulity, hallucinations, psychic action of one mind upon another, transmission of thought, suggestion, the world of dreams, cerebral physiology, psychic dreams, distinct sight in dreams, actual facts, premonitory dreams and divination of the future, etc. 487 pages, cloth bound. Price $2.00.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

DEATH DEFEATED,

—OR—

The Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young,

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D., M. A., Ph. D.

It certainly is just what is needed as a book of good suggestions and instructions along the line of health. He treats the subject in his own matter-of-fact style. The book comprises a practical subject handled in a practical manner by a practical man. Even if people do not wish or expect to live here always, they should know how to live right and enjoy the life that belongs to them. This is undoubtedly the most useful book for the masses the Doctor has ever published, for it strikes at the root or cause of disease, and tells how to avoid it. 212 pages, cloth bound. Price, $1. For sale at this office.

Three Remarkable Books!

"The Divine Pedigree of Man."
"The Law of Psychic Phenomena."
"A Scientific Demonstration of the Future."

The Divine Pedigree of Man, or the Testimony of Evolution and Psychology to the Fatherhood of God. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL. D. This is a most remarkable work, demonstrating the existence of the Soul and Future Life. It is scientific throughout. Price $1.50. Dr. Hudson's work on "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," is also valuable. Price, $1.50. His "Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life" should be read by all. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Being a Review of

The World's Beliefs on the Subject, a Consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling,

Leading to the Question as to Whether It Can Be Demonstrated as a Fact,—To Which Is Added an Appendix Containing Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

BY MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D.

8vo, Cloth, 342 Pages.

After a review of the beliefs held in the past concerning life beyond death, Dr. Savage takes up the present conditions of belief and considers the agnostic reaction from the extreme "other-worldliness" which it replaced, which was in turn followed by the Spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism. He points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon the people. He then considers the probabilities of a future life, probabilities which, as he admits, fall short of demonstration. The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr. Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well authenticated communications from persons in the other life. The chief contents of the volume are as follows:

Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

For Sale at this Office. Price $1.50. Postage 10c.

OUR BIBLE:

WHO WROTE IT? WHEN? WHERE? HOW?

Is It Infallible?

A Voice from the Higher Criticism.

A Few Thoughts on Other Bibles.

BY MOSES HULL.

Excellent as an exposition of the Higher Criticism and an analysis of the Bible from that standpoint. Of special value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.00.

ORMSBY'S SIMPLE SYSTEM

OF THE

PLANETS and the ZODIAC.

A New Book with the Places of the Planets—the Chart that Makes It Easy to Study the Stars—5th Edition—Just Out—Greatly Improved—Price, $2.00

ASTROLOGY SIMPLIFIED—SPECIAL OFFER.

Any person having one of these charts of any former edition may exchange the same for one of the latest with new book, on payment of $1.00.

This is by far the best system for new beginners to take up, as hundreds of persons have become proficient in the science of the planets in a short time by starting with this Simple System. The new books give the corrections covering one hundred years, all of the 19th century.

Corrections for the 20th century, 100 years in advance, are now ready, which makes the chart good for 200 years. Price for the 20th century tables, $2.00. For sale at this office.

Bible and Church Degrade Woman
By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three essays on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

FORCE AND MATTER.
By Ludwig Buechner. A celebrated book. Cloth.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,
Or The Three-fold Power of Sex. By Lois Waisbrooker. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

MYTH AND MIRACLE.
One of Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll's best lectures. Price 5c. For sale at this office.

The Law of Correspondence Applied to Healing.
A course of seven practical lessons. By W. J. Colville. Limp cloth, 50c.

Zelma the Mystic, or White Magic Versus Black.
By Alwyn M. Thurber. Occult philosophy clothed in story form; aims to give a better understanding of magic, black and white. 330 large pages. Cloth, $1.25.

PROGRESSION,
Or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-Life. The evolution of man. By Michael Faraday. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

Special Prepared Remedies Made According to Dr. Watkins' Psychical Prescription.

THESE PRICES FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY.

FOR LADIES.

No. 1. Tablets for Consumption.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 2. Tablets for Dyspepsia.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 3. Tablets for Liver.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 4. Tablets for Female Weakness, 50c. now only 25c.
No. 5. Tablets for Stomach, acidity, flatulency, gas, and distress after eating, old.....price 50c. now only 25c.
No. 6. Catarrh.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 8. Headache.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 13. Nervous Debility.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 14. Painful Menses.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 15. Suppressed Menses.....50c. now only 25c.
Woman's Friend cures Leucorrhea, usually called Whites, $1.00.

FOR MEN.

No. 1. Constipation.....25c.
No. 2. Dyspepsia.....25c.
No. 3. Liver.....25c.
No. 5. Stomach, acidity, gas, etc.....25c.
No. 16. Pile Ointment.....25c.
No. 19. Nervous Debility.....25c.
No. 33. Invigorator.....25c.
No. 44. Vital Tablets.....25c.
No. 55. Vigor Tablets.....25c.
No. 66. Tablet of Youth.....25c.

Our Rheumatic Liniment

CONCENTRATED.

Nothing better to take out soreness and relieve pain. $1.00 a bottle for 50c.

La Grippe Tablets.

A sure cure and preventative. 50c. Trial Box, 25c.

Don't Forget.

You will never regret ordering these Remedies.

All of the above Remedies sent for $4, or any Ten for $2. Express Prepaid.

KINDLY REMEMBER

That we are very anxious to place these remedies in every house in the United States. We believe is our duty that we owe to humanity to try to let all know of the great value of these prescriptions, and we therefore will, till further notice, sell at above prices. Don't put off ordering these remedies but order to-day. We will diagnose disease free. Send sex, age and leading symptoms.

Ayer, Mass. DR. C. E. WATKINS.

TRUTH

The only way to find out who is the "Greatest Psychic Physician living" is to read what their patients say.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

never claims that he is the greatest physician living, or that he is the

GREATEST PSYCHIC.

He believes that there are hundreds of healers who are just as successful as he is, and he never yet has claimed that he is or was the best psychic, although twenty years before the public as the independent slate-writer with the record of not one person who ever accused him of fraud, ought to make the public THINK when they compare his claims to other so-called psychics.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

only desires those who are sick to remember that for over twenty years he has been before the public as a psychic, and over twelve years as a physician, and he never claims greater powers than others; but we believe he has a right to think he has as great gifts as those who claim so much.

Kindly read the following

TESTIMONIALS:

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—Inclosed find the amount for another month's medicine, which please send along as soon as you can. I feel stronger now, and my stomach feels very much improved. I am no longer sick at my stomach in the mornings as I was before taking your medicine. Yours,

W. B. WORMER.

Mansfield, Mass.

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I will write you that I am still gaining right along; my appetite is splendid lately, and I can eat of things that used to distress me so that I did not dare attempt to touch them at all. Thanking you for all you have done for me, I remain,

Yours truly,

Dover, N. H. MISS L. E. DORE.

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—It is now about four months since I took your treatment, and will say that I have felt real well all that time. You have a lady patient here, who knowing how much I was benefited, thought she would try you. Wishing you success in your good work, I remain, yours respectfully,

MRS. M. A. FLANDERS.

Coldwater, Mich.

Dear Doctor:—In regard to the Psychic Circle, I should like very much to join it. I think it is a grand thing. I am glad to be called a friend by those so fortunate as yourself, but you are the first one so gifted, that it has been my chance to know, so far; but I feel very thankful for the benefits I have received from you. Trustfully yours,

NELLIE WEBSTER.

Laconia, N. H.

Dear Doctor:—Inclosed find money for another month's medicine. My bowels and kidneys are improving, and I have not been troubled with dizziness since I took your medicine, and that is a great relief. Thanking you for all you have done for me, I remain, yours respectfully, MRS. R. L. WOOD.

Herkimer, N. Y.

Dr. C. E. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I am feeling much better than when I wrote you last; my rheumatism does not trouble me very much now, and I am feeling better every way. I am very much interested in your Psychic Circle, and would like to join it, for I have great faith in the power of the psychic forces. Hoping the angels will assist you, I remain, yours gratefully,

MRS. S. D. FOWLER.

Wolcott, N. Y.

Dear Doctor:—I have nothing special to report this week. I am feeling unusually well. The asthma is very light and my general health is good, and altogether I feel much encouraged. Yours, sincerely, J. P. NEILY.

Jefferson, Mass.

VOLUMES 1, 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic, Ghost Land, The Next World Interviewed, and the Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate) constitute our premium list. Those seven books have been on sale, costing the buyer in the aggregate, $10.75. We, after paying the postage and expense of mailing, realize only $1.50 for the seven—far less than cost to us. We desire to form the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home, hence this remarkable offer. By subscribing for The Progressive Thinker, you then have the privilege of purchasing these books at the premium prices. See terms on another page.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Fourteen beautiful, soul-inspiring songs, with music, by C. Payson Longley. Price by mail, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

ROBERT OWEN.

"Book of the New Moral World."

(Continued from No. 549.)

"The misery of the human race has been increased to an incalculable extent by the laws, institutions, and arrangements of society having been based on principles opposed to the laws of human nature.

"They have all arisen from errors which have been introduced falsehood and insincerity through all the intercourse of society. Man now knows not what man is, by reason of the universal system of deception which has been generated by laws, institutions, and arrangements, directly opposed to man's nature.

"Where can we find a code of laws, ancient or modern, not based on the supposition that man is a totally different being from that which facts now demonstrate him to be?

"In what part of the world can we find institutions based on a knowledge of what humanity is now proved to be?

"In what country, at any period, have national arrangements been formed, except on the belief that man forms his own convictions and feelings and his own character, so as to make it right and just that he should be praised or blamed, rewarded or punished, have merit or demerit, for what he thinks and feels, and for what he is, physically, mentally, morally and practically?

"Had it been known to our early ancestors that the universe is governed by instinct—that man, as well as all that have life, is governed by instinct—that he believes and feels, of necessity, by the instinct of his nature—and that his whole character is formed through the operation of these instincts, we should long since have had a state of society the reverse of that which has been alone known up to the present moment. We should now have a language of simplicity and truth—a spirit of charity—a conduct of kindness—and a cordial union throughout the family of man.

"There would have been no religious differences—no party politics—no rancorous divisions—no wars or contests—no poverty or the fear of it—no jealousy or revenge—no one desirous to take from others; but all would have been anxious to contribute to the general well-being and prosperity of society, without knowing limits of kindred, country or clime.

"Instead of our ideas and feelings and knowledge being individualized, and regularly trained to become ignorantly selfish, universal ideas, feelings and knowledge, would have been created, and man would have made a unit of the family of man, each cordially united to the others, through the whole extent of its members. The poverty, divisions, vices and crimes now so prevalent through society, would have been unknown; and the past history of man, instead of being a regular narrative of opposing parties, murdering, plundering, and making each other as miserable as nature would admit, would have been the history of rational being, whose sole object would have been to produce the most happiness and the least misery to each other, through the whole extent of the population of the earth.

"Until men shall understand how to make the laws, institutions and arrangements by which the future generations shall have their characters well formed, physically, mentally, morally and practically, and shall be enabled to understand human nature, its instincts and its powers, and how to acquire the spirit of charity and kindness, the human race cannot be made to enjoy happiness; it will be deficient of one of the most important ingredients requisite to insure its happiness; and until the laws, institutions, and arrangements of man shall be made in accordance with the now ascertained laws of human nature, it will be a vain hope to expect that man can be made happy.

"Such being the case, we have to consider what are the laws, institutions, and arrangements, which men can make for their government, that will be in accordance with the laws of their nature.

"These laws will be few, simple, and easy to be understood, and of a general character, yet sufficient for all practical purposes. The following may comprise all that is necessary for a rational code of laws:

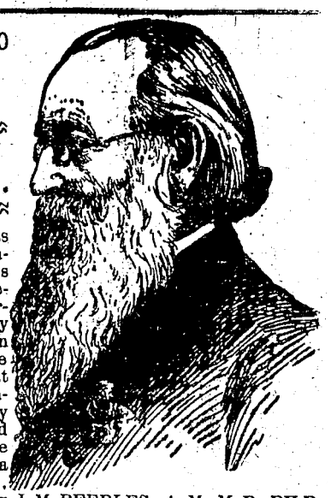
"1st. That, seeing that each child is born ignorant and without experience, every human being, male and female, shall be as well trained and educated from birth, physically, mentally, morally, and practically as the knowledge of well-forming the human character possessed at the time will admit.

"2d. That all shall be actively well-employed, physically and mentally, according to age and capacity, through life; idleness being injurious to the individual and unjust to society.

"3d. That all shall be well lodged, fed, clothed and surrounded from birth to death by superior circumstances only, so far as society unitedly can create superior circumstances.

"4th. That in addition to the language of its parents, every child shall be well instructed in one general language, that this may become the language of truth and of the world."

(To be continued.)



C. H. MATHEWS.

New Philadelphia, Ohio.

A TRUE HEALER

He Brings Health and Strength to Thousands Who Have Been Pronounced Incurable.

SCIENCE TRIUMPHS OVER DISEASE.

DR. PEEBLES, noted the world over as a physician and scientist, is performing some of the most remarkable cures the world has ever seen. His fame has become world-wide on account of these marvelous cures. He has patients in every state in the Union and in many foreign lands who stand ready to testify to the wonderful cures he has made of cases that had been treated by many of the most eminent physicians without success. Many of the Doctor's patients are those who had traveled all over the world, visiting all the great health resorts and sanitariums in a Futile Search for Health and strength. They returned home in despair, thinking there was no hope for them, when they were persuaded to write to Dr. Peebles for a diagnosis. This was so clear and complete, showing a thorough understanding of the case that it inspired enough hope to induce them to try, as a last resort, a course of his treatment. Many such cases show wonderful improvement from the start. A very few months is sufficient in almost all cases to complete a perfect cure. Mrs. L. A. Humbel, of Long Pine, Neb., who was given up with dropsy and kidney disease by the best physicians in the country says: "I am very grateful for what you have done for me, as I am in better health than I have been for five years. I have gained fifteen pounds, and I am getting stronger every day. Last month I visited my aged mother in Iowa. She was greatly rejoiced for she never expected to see me alive again. For five years I travelled and doctored with the best physicians, finally gave up in despair, and went home to my sister, as I thought to die. I can never express how thankful I am for what you have done for me."

Remember that Dr. Peebles does not cure by Christian Science, Mesmerism, or any other "ism," but employs mild but potent remedies in connection with his wonderful Psychic Treatment. These Psychic Treatments, say his patients, "seem as a breath of higher life." If you do not fully understand the Psychic Science and these Psychic Treatments which are such a wonderful aid in the treatment of chronic and obscure cases, the Doctor will send you his essay, "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease," which will explain to you fully Psychic Diagnosing and Psychic Treatment with other valuable information for the sick. There is no one so capable of writing on this subject as Dr. Peebles, for he has investigated it for over a half century, and is a recognized authority on the various occult sciences in Europe as well as in this country.

All of Dr. Peebles' diagnosing is done by the aid of his psychic gifts. He can read the diseased conditions of the body as accurately as if each organ and tissue were open to his view. Out of many thousands of cases he has diagnosed during the past few years, nine hundred and ninety-nine out of each thousand are willing to testify to the marvelous accuracy of the diagnosis. Do you know your exact condition? Have you suffered for years without getting permanent help? Did the physician who treated you fully understand your case? Why will you be experimented upon by those who do not really understand your case when Dr. Peebles can diagnose your case perfectly and thus administer treatment upon a scientific basis? Why will you take patent medicines which are prepared for a "text-book" case, and which at best give only Temporary Relief, when you can secure treatment from this EMINENT HEALER that is Especially Prescribed and Suited to your case, at a very little more cost? These are the questions that interest all those suffering from chronic and obscure troubles. Think them over carefully. If you are sick and discouraged don't delay one moment in writing the Doctor for a diagnosis of your case. There is nothing of more importance to you than the condition of your health, and it will cost you nothing to learn this. The Doctor will send FREE OF COST a complete diagnosis of your case and also his essay "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease" and valuable literature on chronic diseases and testimonials from some of his cured patients, showing the long list of so-called incurable cases which he has cured. No disease is really incurable if perfectly understood. Every effect or diseased condition has its cause and if these are understood they can in almost every case be removed. When this is done permanent recovery is the result. DO NOT DESPAIR if you have failed to get permanent help, but write at once. Remember that DR. PEEBLES HAS CURED HUNDREDS WHERE ALL OTHERS HAD FAILED. Write him an honest letter, giving full name, age, sex and leading symptom in your own handwriting and he will give you a complete and full diagnosis and will also send the literature as mentioned above. Write today.

Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Battle Creek, Mich.

PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free. All in excess of ten lines will be charged at the rate of fifteen cents per line. About seven words constitute one line.]

Passed to spirit life, at Ottumwa Ia., on June 1, in the 46th year of his age, Philip H. Biddison, after a lingering and painful illness of about five months.

Mr. Biddison was a man of whom Spiritualism may well be proud; a man of spotless character and unblemished reputation in all his relations, business and social, truly may it be said of him, "none knew him but to love him;"

A large concourse composed of citizens in carriages and various benevolent orders escorted his body to the cemetery. The services at the residence were conducted by the writer, while the A. O. U. W., of which the deceased was a prominent member, did a like service at the grave.

A widow and one child are left to mourn his absence in visible form, but they have the sweet consolation which only Spiritualism can bring to bereaved and sorrowing hearts.

W. F. PECK.

Mrs. Mary A. Glass, passed to the higher life from the home of her daughter, Mrs. L. Koehne, at Dolores, Colo., of pneumonia, aged 77 years. She was a beautiful character, kind, gentle, ever ready to help those in trouble. She was laid away as befitted one of her character. K. W.

Passed to spirit life, June 3, 1900, from San Jose, Cal., D. A. Pease, M. D. He was a native of Conway, Mass, and was aged 94 years. He was an earnest Spiritualist; for him there was no death, only change. He left one son and three daughters, with whom the memory of his honorable life and peaceful transition will ever remain. Services were conducted by Mrs. E. B. Marceen and Mr. A. Macey.

MRS. N. PEASE FOX.

Passed to spirit life, at Lincoln, Vt., June 5, Mrs. Mary M. Elliott, wife of Zira Elliott, aged 78 years. The funeral was June 7. She selected this text: "I have finished my course." She was married to Zira Elliott, of Starksboro, January 1, 1843. They have lived in Lincoln since the war of '61. E.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole:—

43 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.:

Your melted pebble spectacles are wonderful. I can see to thread a fine needle and can read with comfort, and my eyes are getting stronger. Your clairvoyant system of fitting is perfection. I am, your friend,

MRS. L. E. MARTIN.

Blairsville, Pa.

For ten cents we will send by mail, a 4-oz package of my Magnetized Compound, for sore or weak eyes. Once used you will not be without it. Address B. F. POOLE & CO.,

43 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Sunday Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins' spiritual meetings, 40 E. Randolph street, Handel Hall, Fourth floor, Sunday evening, 7:45. Wednesday evening, 675 Larrabee street, corner Garfield avenue.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, G. V. Cordingley, pastor, room 409 Handel Hall, 40 Randolph street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Band of Harmony, auxiliary to the Church of the Soul, meets at Room 608 Handel Hall Building, 40 Randolph St., every first and third Thursday of the month, beginning afternoons at three o'clock. The ladies bring refreshments; supper served at six o'clock. Evening session commences at a quarter to eight. Questions invited from the audience, and answered by the guides of Mrs. Richmond. Always an interesting programme. All are welcome.

Church of the Spirit Communion will hold meetings in Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, each Sunday. 3 p. m., conference and tests; 8 p. m., lecture by J. K. Hallowell; tests by H. F. Coates and others. All are invited. Good music and seats free.

There will be a Spiritual meeting at 2:30 each Sunday, at Smith Hall, Wisconsin and Larrabee streets. German and English speaking by Mrs. W. Hilbert and Mr. Bernhart.

Spiritualistic services will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m., 1453 N. Springfield avenue. Tests at 4 o'clock prompt. Wm. Fitch Ruffle, medium.

Garden City Spiritual Alliance holds regular meetings at 2 Mackinaw Hall, No. 204 and 206 East 43d street, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Spirit messages, Tests in telepathy or thought transference, good music. Seats free. May Goodrich, pastor.

The Gross Park Spiritual Society meets at 1785 N. Hoyne avenue, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society meets every Sunday evening at 7:30 at 8927 Exchange avenue, instead of Eigenman's Hall.

The Christian Spiritual Society hold meetings in Hygeia Hall, 404 Ogden avenue, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. Miss Sarah Thomas conducts.

The Englewood Spiritual Union Society meets every Sunday at Forbes' Hall, 420 W. 63d street. Competent leaders of spiritual thought and mediums of note in charge.

Church of the Star of Truth, Wicker Park hall, No. 501 West North avenue. Services at 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey.

Truth Seekers meet at the Teutonia Hall, corner of 53rd and Ashland avenue, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Church holds meetings at Elegeman's Hall, corner of 93rd street and Commercial avenue, every Sunday at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

The Chicago Liberal Society is a non-sectarian association for the encouragement of morality, the promotion of education, the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, and the inculcation of truth in the place and stead of error and superstition. The Temple services of the society are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, 17th floor, and are in charge of Thomas B. Gregory. You are cordially invited to attend the same.

Send in notice of meetings held on Sunday at public halls.

Bear in mind that only meetings held in public halls will be announced under the above head. We have not space to keep standing notices of meetings held at private residences.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical and their psychical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the spirit world. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here gathered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Mansill's Almanac of Planetary Meteorology," almanac makers' and weather forecasters' guide and new system of science for 1900 is now for sale at this office; price 25 cents. This is the 25th annual almanac issued by R. Mansill, Rock Island, Ill. It is one of the most interesting and instructive annual publications along the line of the planetary science now published, and is far more explicit in relation to the movements of the heavenly bodies and the effect produced upon our earth. You need this book.

OUR MOTTO

To Do All the Good We Can.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Who is so widely known as one of the many

SPIRITUAL HEALERS,

SHE HAS

Successfully Treated And Cured Thousands of Patients.

Will Diagnose Your Case

FREE

REQUIREMENTS:

Lock of hair, age, sex, one leading symptom, full name, three 2-cent stamps and plain full address.

SEND TO

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Box 132. SAN JOSE, CAL.

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

Psychometrist and Healer. Readings by hand-writing or photo $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered for 25 cts. Address 54 N. 52nd ave., Chicago, Ill.

NEW DREAM BOOK.

By DR. R. GREER, 52 Dearborn st., Chicago, Ill. 25 cents 519tf

CHART FREE.

By a Bohemian Gypsy Astrologer and Clairvoyant. Send age, color of eyes and hair, in own handwriting. Address GEO. WELLES, Box 180, Newark, N. J. 554

YOUR FUTURE accurately calculated by Astrologer WALROND, 37 Opera House Block, Denver, Col. From $1.00.

WM. W. ABER.

Readings by mail, $1.06. Advice on all affairs of life. Spring Hill, Kans. 555

Geo. F. Perkins, Emaline Perkins,

Platform and Private Test Mediums, 3533 Cottage Grove ave., flat 14, Chicago. Circles Friday. Readings daily. 539tf

Life Readings by the Stars.

J. L. PIERSON, 218 E. 42nd pl., Chicago. 553

MRS. E. J. HANSON, TRANCE MEDIUM, 76 Bingham St., near Milwaukee av. car barns. 555

A YOUNG MAN WHO HAS SEEN MUCH OF the dark side of life, but has some practical experience, desires to meet a well-to-do elderly lady or gentleman. Address C. S. Call Box 104, Victoria, Tex.

FOCO-MAGNET The Key to the OCCULT.

Focalization and Concentration necessary to development. This new invention makes this possible in light or dark sittings. Sent with full instructions for 50 cents, in stamps, postal order or other suitable way. Address DR. T. WILKINS, 54 N. 52nd av., Chicago, Ill.

FRED P. EVANS,

The Well-Known Psychic

For Slate-Writing, Etc.,

Gives seances daily at his office The Occult Book Store, 108 W. 42nd st., N. Y. City. Send stamp for circular on mediumship, and catalogue of books.

$2—TRUMPETS—$2

ALUMINUM TRUMPETS in two and three sections 36 in. high—magnetized when desired—$2 on receipt of price. Address WM. A. MURRAY, 508 E. 2nd St., Newport, Ky. 584

Myself cured, I will gladly inform any one addicted to

Morphine, Opium, Laudanum,

or Cocaine, of a never-failing harmless Home Cure. MRS. M. E. BALDWIN. P. O. Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

MRS. MAGGIE WAITE

Reading by mail, $1.06. Business advice a specialty. 304 S. Crouse ave., Syracuse, N. Y. 556

MRS. J. J. CLARKSON,

Magnetic Physician, 204 LaSalle ave., Chicago, has treated hundreds of chronic diseases during several years past, in Waukegan, Ill., and vicinity. She now offers her services in a wider field of usefulness. Refers to patrons and many certificates written by reliable beneficiaries. No drugs. Diagnosis free. 552

DON'T READ THIS.

Frances L. Loucks, the only psychic wonder living, that uses the spiritual X-ray without any leading symptom to direct, and locates all internal diseases A trial will convince you. Nervous exhaustion and lost vigor of both sexes successfully treated, as hundreds can testify. Send name, age, sex, complexion and ten cents in stamps, and receive a correct diagnosis of your case free, worth dollars to you. Address,

FRANCES L. LOUCKS,

Lock Box 7. Stoneham, Mass.

TALMAGEAN INANITIES.

Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies.

A review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

An institute of refined Therapeutics, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 58 N. 3rd st., San Jose, Cal. Diplomas of unsurpassed beauty granted. Send stamp for catalogue to E. D. BABBIT, M. D., LL. D., Dean. 441tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS

For thirty years has treated and cured the sick in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thousands have been cured after being given up to die. His psychic powers are unequaled, as his cures prove. Talk doesn't prove anything. Facts are proof. He also cures diseases of men, such as loss of manhood, debilitating losses causing nervous exhaustion. Send name, age, sex, lock of hair, 6 cts in stamps, for a diagnosis. Address,

DR. J. S. LOUCKS, M. D.,

85 Warren st., Stoneham, Mass.

Card from Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Dear friends, you can greatly help me care for my blind sister, Jennie Le Webb, one of the earliest mediums now in the form, by writing a letter to a spirit friend. Send it to me with $1, and I will try and get reply by independent writing or whispers. Address Annie Lord Chamberlain, Milford, Mass. 531tf

TRUTH AND DESTINY

Deals with the hidden forces of mind and the influence of environment upon human life. Gives a contrast of the destiny of one who cried out in the darkness for the light he vainly sought, and the destiny of another who found the radiance within. It reveals the laws and conditions which create happiness and indicates the path which leads to the attainment of Self-Mastery and Power. Price 25 cents.

URIEL BUCHANAN,

Dept. P. T., Box 210, Chicago, Ill. 544tf

THE GOD IDEA OF THE ANCIENTS,

Or Sex in Religion. By Eliza Burt Gamble. "It is a sensible, quiet, logical statement of opinion, deduced at times curiously from statistics which might be open to doubt; and never for a moment sensational or revolutionary.—Chicago Herald. 329 pages, large type, cloth bound. Price $2.25. For sale at this office

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

TALLEYRAND'S LETTER TO THE POPE.

This work will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts stated, and the keen scathing review of Roman Morals and practices should be read by all. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL

SERIES ONE TWO AND THREE.

BY LILIAN WHITING.

Three choice volumes, each complete in itself, in which spirituality is related to everyday life in such a way as to make the world beautiful. Price $1 each. For sale at this office.

Cultivation of Personal Magnetism

A Treatise on

HUMAN CULTURE.

By Leroy Berrier, Anthropologist and Author. A very suggestive and instructive book. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This is a very interesting little book, and will be appreciated from start to finish by all who wish to gain spiritual information. Price 25 cts. For sale at this office.

OUTSIDE THE GATES

and other tales and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA

According to Old Records.

By Dr. Paul Carus. A translation made from Japanese, under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyer, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was published in Japan. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 60 cents. For sale at this office.

TWO IN ONE

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a candid comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

MAN THE MICROCOSM.

His Infinite and Divine Relations. Intuition—The Light Within. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

KAREZZA.

ETHICS OF MARRIAGE.

By Alice B. Stockham, M. D.

Karezza makes a plea for a better birthright for children, and aims to lead individuals to seek a higher development of themselves through most sacred relations. It is pure in tone and aim, and should be widely circulated. Price, cloth, $1.

ASTRAL WORSHIP.

By J. H. Hill, M. D. A valuable contribution to the current discussion of religious problems. The author by illustrations and a planisphere (a representation of the celestial sphere upon a plane with adjustable circles), traces most of the myths which lie at the base of Christianity to their origin in sun and star worship. The astronomical facts given possess great value, the illustrations rare and curious. The book is bound in only one style—heavy boards. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 339 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Messlier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton

EVOLUTIONISM.

A Series of Illustrated Lectures Upon the

EVOLUTION OF ALL THINGS IN THE UNIVERSE.

BY OLNEY H. RICHMOND,

Price, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS

And How We Ascend Them.

How to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. By Moses Hull. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper 25 cts. For sale at this office.

Apocryphal New Testament

Being all the Gospels, Epistles, and other pieces now extant, attributed in the first four centuries to Jesus Christ, his apostles and their companions, and not included in the New Testament by its compilers. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES,

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though it escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 83 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD,

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve,

By Lois Waisbrooker. This is a novel written with a purpose to improve the human race; to mold the future offspring with reason, health and inspiration. No one need be ignorant of this book. Price $1, postpaid. For sale at this office.

G. WALTER LYNN

THE EMINENT

Mental Physician AND Gifted Psychic.

Obsession Cured.

Special Attention Given to

Nervous Ailments.

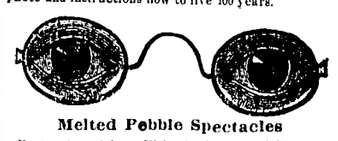
Astonishing Cures of Disease, Physical and Mental, Through

Magnetized Remedies and Psychic Science.

Readings and business advice, by mail, $1.00 and two stamps.

For correct diagnosis of disease send five two-cent stamps, age, name, sex and own handwriting.

☞ I have never known a more competent, reliable and truthful medium for the Spirit-world than Chas. Walter Lynn. JOS. RODES BUCHANAN.



Address, 1017 Castro st., Oakland, Cal.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarima's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles

Restore lost vision. Write for illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarima, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE & CO. 43 Evanston av., Chicago, Ill.

Reed City Sanitarium and Private Hospital, A. B. Spinney, M. D., Prop.

Staff of eight consulting physicians and surgeons; professional nurses, steam heat, electric light. Cheapest sanitarium for the accommodations in the world. Board, medical attendance, nursing, baths, massage electrical treatment all for $10 A WEEK. Cases diagnosed free and treated at a distance by correspondence. Prices reasonable. Send your name and address with stamp to REED CITY SANITARIUM, Reed City, Michigan.

Longley's Beautiful Songs

For Public Meetings and the Home.

VOLUME ONE

Contains the following songs with music:

I'm thinking, dear mother, of you. We miss our boys at home. The land of the bye and bye. The good times yet to be. The land beyond the stars. They are waiting at the portal. When the dear ones gather at home. Resting under the daisies. The grand jubilee. My mother's tender eyes. Dear heart come home. Come in some beautiful dream. Where the roses never fade. In heaven we'll know our own.

VOLUME TWO

Contains 15 new and beautiful songs, suited to the home circle, seances, local meetings, mass-meetings, conventions, anniversaries and jubilees. They comprise an excellent variety of poems set to easy harmony and ought to sell readily. These books are 15cts. each; the two for 30cts. For sale at this office.

Discovery of a Lost Trail

BY CHARLES B. NEWCOMB,

Author of "All's Right with the World." Cloth 270 pages. Mr. Newcomb made a distinct success with "All's Right with the World," which continues in the front rank of the Metaphysical books that are now so popular. The great number who have been cheered and strengthened by him will welcome another book by this wise teacher whose words of help are doing so much to make the world better by making men and women better able to understand and enjoy it.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail"

is a simple study of that strange and beautiful thing called life, but grand in its scholarly simplicity. It will be in demand by many who have not previously read metaphysical writings. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Soul of Things;

Or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries. By Wm. and Elizabeth M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text book it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make geology plain as day, and throw light on all subjects now obscured by time. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

In three volumes, cloth bound, $1.50 each.

WOMAN: FOUR CENTURIES OF PROGRESS.

A Lecture delivered at the Freethinker's International Congress, Chicago, Ill., October, 1893. By Susan H. Wixon. Price, 10c.

The Christ Question Settled

JESUS, MAN, Medium, Martyr.

A Symposium by W. E. Coleman, J. S. Loveland, Hudson Tuttle, Moses Hull,

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

SPIRITUALISM—Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.—SPIRITUALISM

VOL. 22 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1900. NO. 553

THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION

Further Consideration of the Subject.

It is a frequent occurrence to see some representative of a religious sect rise up to remark that true religion consists in visiting the fatherless and widows and keeping oneself unspotted from the world; but I do not recall from memory any church creed resting on these remarks of James—by the way who was James?—neither do I know of any not organized and held together by a creed that begins: "I believe." Religion is a belief and a system of worship, for none exists without prayers, and all must have something to pray to. The interest which religious organizations feel in the welfare of orphans and widows is not the impelling force that erects sky-piercing spires over magnificent works of art to be used one day in seven; and the $60,000 religious edifice with its $3,000 organ, just completed in this city, was not dedicated for that purpose. If that large sum of money had been devoted to their welfare it would have been expended in some other manner. That building was erected to expound the Methodist creed in, and to glorify the name of Jesus; to convince all men they are sinners and to proclaim the only way by which they can be saved from the eternal wrath of God, whose name is Love. There is not a religious sect that builds churches for any other purpose, though Universalists and Unitarians are partial exceptions because the punishments of God have a time limit with them.

There is not a religious sect in Christendom but what talks about the "heathen," and few but what send missionaries abroad to convert them. What is meant by conversion, and what is the object of their efforts? Is it to lead them to provide for their orphans and widows and accept a new code of morals? Not much; it is to bring about a change in belief, and to get them to accept the childish fable of Adam and Eve and all the theological absurdities that follow it, including the miraculous appearance and disappearance of Jesus in this world, and the preposterous mission for which Christianity asserts he came. When one can believe this nonsense he ceases to be a heathen. If he doesn't believe, though he should devote his whole life to the service of widows and orphans, and live under the highest standard of morality, he could never be accepted by any church organization as a Christian, nor in their estimation be secure from the wrath to come. Hence I repeat, as repetition seems necessary to insure entrance of the idea into some people's sensoriums, that nowhere is the Christian religion considered in its paramount sense as the duty of providing for the fatherless and the widows. Were this the fundamental fact in Christianity, a four years' course of biblical instruction in a theological seminary would hardly be considered necessary to produce a priest or an ordained minister of the gospel.

It does not require a person long in this world to learn that we are interdependent on each other, and a plain duty therefore exists to help one another when we can, as we journey on to the grave. But these facts are bedded in morality and have nothing to do with religion, which professes to make clear our duties and relation to God, whose existence has never yet been demonstrated.

It would be an easy matter for people of every race and nationality to unite on a code of morals, for every living person sustains the same relation to life and happiness, as both are primarily dependent on ability to feed, clothe, and shelter the body. But when it comes to religious questions, then never-ending discord begins, for the realms of reason are forsaken, the presence of knowledge is departed from, and the mind is compelled to deal with visionary nonsense utterly powerless to show connection with a single fact. Creeds being nothing but a matter of belief, they are entirely dependent on faith for their reception, and faith has no more connection with knowledge than the sin of Adam with one of Job's boils. Faith is blinder than a bat, and all religions are dependent on faith, for they have nothing to present but words. Theology is not and never was anything but a theory, and having no more relation to science than an orthodox sermon to common sense, we see without effort why religious sects are endless and always at war with each other.

Religious questions have created more discord and hatred between men than all other kinds united, but never in one single instance did two sects indulge in a wordy war over the path of duty in connection with orphans and widows in distress. Their discords have all been over the meaning of obscure, ambiguous, and senseless passages of scripture; in man-made creeds and their effect on passion and prejudice.

Mathematics open no field for violent discussion or the play of fanaticism, for scientific demonstration is always at hand and nothing but reason finds inducement to enter and explore. How different with religion; there reason finds no welcome and absolutely nothing with which it can deal. Reason has no more to do with religion than religion has to do with established facts, and yet it is man's highest faculty and the only one that can guide and direct him along the pathway of life. But to be religious you must surrender it and trust with child-like credulity to what a class of men tell you who peddle religious ideas to obtain their bread and butter.

Forms and ceremonies, words destitute of ideas, and a constant effort to reach the emotions, are methods of priestcraft; but to thinking men they present no attraction, and upon them create no impression. The Christian clergy profess very little regard for the reasoning faculties in man, and one Dixon, in New York City, recently expressed himself very strongly on that point. Society in general, however, is not in accord with the preachers, for when a man loses his reason, the doors of the insane asylum are opened for his reception. He is no longer considered a safe person to run at large, and by most people he is regarded as being in the same category as a wild beast.

Take away a man's reason and you have deprived him of all power to think and act in a sensible and rational manner, and no one but a preacher would ever place a limited value on a faculty of such supreme importance. They have but one excuse for doing so; reason is a detriment to their business, and never yet, when exercised, failed to explode all their myths and humbugs. Why should they admire their greatest enemy and the implacable foe of all superstitions? It is expecting too much to see the advocates of any religion in love with reason, for they cannot work the dear people for dollars and autocratic power when it is abroad in the land; so they denounce it as a carnal faculty of no importance and seek to substitute in its place their especial favorite, blind and unquestioning faith.

The preacher's ideal man is the one who believes all he tells him and never gives reception to such a thing as doubt. Out of no other material is it possible to make a good Christian, therefore all denominations hate an independent thinker and denounce him as being in the power of the devil, who, in spite of all assertions to the contrary, and frequent reports of his death, is still a most important and active factor in religious circles.

You cannot be religious and rational at the same time, and as Christianity has so clearly demonstrated this fact it may seem almost unnecessary to mention it, but memory requires nudging once in a while and that is my excuse for calling attention to it.

We hear of so much good that Christianity has done in this world; but stuffing men's minds with falsehoods and fables, fear and gloom, is not my idea of goodness, and that it the principal business in which it has always been engaged. It has rested like a pall on every spot and place where it has found a foothold on this earth, and hell has been used to terrorize credulous minds for nineteen long centuries.

There is no genuine Christianity without a hell, and any preacher who does not make that his chief stock in trade is sacrificing a Bible doctrine to the intelligence of his congregation. Where refined intelligence revolts against the fires of hell, policy preachers wisely omit it; but go anywhere to-day where ignorance is dense, and hell is still a factor in this religion which rests as solidly upon it as a house on its foundation. The Catholic Church, which numerically exceeds all other sects and denominations, does not pretend to do business without both hell and purgatory; yet with millions of minds terrorized with these brutal dogmas, and millions of children being stuffed with them right now, we are told that the doctrine of hell is a back number. I deny it, and I further deny the power of any Protestant sect to get up a successful revival without hell. It never was done and never will be, and where Christianity is most on the wane, you will find the least allusion to that place.

The very essence of Christianity is how to avoid hell and get into heaven, therefore when hell is rejected Christianity begins to lose power and influence and dry rot sets in that nothing can stay. Its effective power over the minds of untold millions in the past nineteen centuries, has been located in the terrors of hell and not the love of Jesus. We hear much of that these days, but the institution cannot be run on that alone, as struggling Universalists and Unitarians have become well aware. Remove the idea of hell and its torments from the average man's mind, and by so doing abolish the need of a savior, and the love of Jesus is soon found to be something that presents no great attraction. It is the working of the old law, supply and demand, for without a demand supply is needless. If no occasion exist for a savior, what do you want of one? This conundrum is now open and presented for solution. If any person thinks he must hold onto Christianity because of some morals he finds connected with it, I will disabuse his mind at once by revealing the fact that every person whose reason is in good working order, carries within himself an infallible standard of right and wrong, and no inspired or uninspired writings are needed for his guidance if he will only use it honestly and conscientiously. When about to do an act that concerns another, simply pause and ask yourself: Would I wish him to do to me what I am about to do to him. It is the practical working of the rule laid down by Confucius, and it covers all our relations with each other and makes unnecessary any lengthy code or commandments. It is not expected that selfish and passion-blinded men will use and be restrained by this rule, for the terrors of Christianity have never been effective with such, but I repeat, no other rule is needed and no other can do any more.

CHANNING SEVERANCE.
Los Angeles, Cal.

Thanks the Ohio Sage.

I feel it my duty to thank the Ohio sage, Hudson Tuttle, and his spirit authors for the books written by him, and dictated by them. In truth, those books are the best that I have read. They are an inspiration of genius. They are the jewels of the 19th century. Some short time ago, I received "The Arcana of Spiritualism, and a more instructive book cannot be purchased. It sparkles with wisdom from beginning to end. Thanks to the great and noble man in Ohio, and to his Celestial authors!

V. G. LUNDQUIST, P. Ph. D.
Denver, Colo.

"Never-Ending Life Assured by Science." By Daniel Kent Tenney. A strong and conclusive argument from the basis of science. For sale at this office. Price 6 cents.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail." By Chas. B. Newcomb. Excellent in spiritual suggestiveness. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Love—Sex—Immortality." By Dr. W. P. Phelon. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

A PARABLE,

Which Hath a Deep Signification.

A certain great man called unto him his servant Ecclesiasticus and said, "I am sick nigh unto death; go ye therefore and telephone unto the physician. Bid him make haste for I, even I, am in sore distress."

Now Ecclesiasticus had a great fear of the telephone because all the professors at the college said at first it was a delusion, afterwards that it was a device of the evil one. Nevertheless being afraid that his bread and butter might be shut off he feigned obedience. So he sanctimoniously went to the upper chamber and not daring to come near the diabolical invention he stood away off and made loud supplications.

Now Ecclesiasticus was exceeding cute and as if really in communication with the physician extolled the virtues of his master and explained what an honor the physician would confer upon himself by waiting on so great a man. As he well knew, the master heard and said, "verily, he is a trusty servant; I will raise his salary." And Ecclesiasticus said "amen" as soon as he heard this—for his ear was at the keyhole.

After this he descended to the basement and compounded various concoctions, and returning to the sick chamber said, "Behold thy servant ran to meet the physician and received of him these. Verily they are the true medicines for thy complaint. Observe how muddy and bitter the liquids and how nauseous smelling the pills. These signs indicate worth. The elixir vitae is the muddiest of all liquids, according to the law of contraries. If anything is clear, you may be sure it is a decoction of the ungodly."

Now the great man groaned in spirit and said: "I perceive that thou art the best of servants. Thy words must be full of wisdom, even according to the great law of contraries, for they are mysterious; and thy logic irrefutable because no one can understand the drift thereof. I will raise thy salary another notch." Now Ecclesiasticus as was his wont upon hearing these words piously said, "amen."

But there happened to be on an humble errand to the castle an old woman who, being compelled by poverty into strange conditions, had learned how to telephone and had no fear. She observed how Ecclesiasticus had bamboozled the invalid. She resolved to outwit him. She went to the telephone and in a low voice really called up the doctor and described the great man's symptoms, saying she would meet the messenger sent with the medicines, because he would not be admitted into the castle, as Ecclesiasticus was exceeding cute. So she did, and when the invalid was asleep and Ecclesiasticus flirting with the chambermaid, she partially emptied the vials, for she said, if I leave only the pure cordials he will not take them, and filled them up with the physician's concoctions, so that something of the color and taste of the bogus remained. After the first drink the patient revived wonderfully. So she told him what she had done. And he said "I have lost my pride and don't care a fig if they only cure me. Blessed art thou among women." So he got well again.

Now this woman, sometimes called a witch and vulgar medium, made bold to say, "I am poor and the bairns are in need of many comforts. Out of your abundance will you assist me with some money?"

But the great man was also a very good man, and when he heard this he groaned in spirit over the baseness of human nature to associate the idea of filthy lucre with that of such services as the old woman rendered, and he said, "Get thee behind me, old woman, you are only a low fortune-teller;" and throwing a dime in imitation of the widow and her mite, he said, "My servant Ecclesiasticus, although he did pull the wool over my eyes about the medicine, is too dignified to ever act so, and because he is crafty like myself and gives an air of respectability to the establishment, I raise his salary another notch. And Ecclesiasticus said "Amen." J. T. MACDONALD.
Vancouver, B. C.

Questions for the Bible Experts.

If the church is the conservator of morals as well as religion, kindly state which of the patriarchs from Noah to Solomon would you have us take for a guide?

Where is your Bible authority for preachers to marry people? and exact a big fee for it? Or have you learned that a man will bear having his "leg pulled" better then than any other time?

Of what did those awful sins consist that caused the flood?

These were neither laws of Moses, nor the gospel of Christ.

They neither had to get circumcised, nor "Take no thought for the morrow."

Is it not evident that the real God of Nature never stops work on Sunday; for I have watched the pumpkin vines, and found He made them grow several inches while He should have been helping to "pass the hat?"

Kindly tell us how many of his commands he kept himself?

Is it not more than probable that ancient writings of the Jews were lost in the destruction of Jerusalem, and the Babylonian captivity?

And if Ezra rewrote them from memory and guesswork, under a contract with the King of Babylon, as recorded in the Apocrypha, might he not have left out some of the snake and whale stories?

If the priests of the 4th century compiled the Bible by ballot, then may not balloting be inspired as much as writing? J. S. HARRINGTON.

"Our Bible: Who Wrote It? When? Where? How? Is It Infallible? A Voice from The Higher Criticism. A few thoughts on other Bibles." By Moses Hull. Of especial value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.

WHICH BIBLE?

The Bible of Science, or the Bible of Myth?

How much longer shall Mother Goose boss the world? What is man that he should fear shadows and distrust reason? Is man a lion or a mouse? Would he be something or nothing? What is man anyway? Science will tell him, and he will never know till it does.

The time is approaching when men must decide whether they will sail into dry dock on a myth Bible, or roam the broad ocean on the science Bible. Times have changed. Once man could be great on belief. Not so now. Life has a new meaning. The world has moved on. It has already gotten nearly to where everything is done by machinery. Infidelity has come to mean truth; love of truth. It is popular and respected. It means progressiveness, evolution, improving on the past, another step up the mountain side, growth. The infidelity of yesterday is the truth of today. There are many forms of it, such as religious, political, educational, industrial, social, etc., but only the religious will be considered here.

The only offense of Jesus was his infidelity, now Christendom's truth. Luther's infidelity is now lauded in song and story. Beecher's infidelity redeemed the Protestant church of a horned monster and a seething caldron. The infidelity of both his successors, Abbott and Hillis, will be a proud monument to them. The infidelity of the very talented President Harper, of the Chicago University, was too strong a dose. He diluted it. It will not stay diluted. He was only a little ahead of the place. The infidelity of Dr. Thomas and Prof. Swing covered the church with a calcium light. Rev. De Witt Talmage is a first-class infidel. When he finds his parish making it too hot for him, because of his too intimate knowledge of spirit life, he produces an oft-repeated fillip against Spiritualism. This satisfies, and he proceeds with his infidelity. At the Madison, Wisconsin, Assembly, I heard him say, "God bows to nothing but law." In other words, if there is a God he is the inferior of law. In the same discourse he said, "the end of two thousand years will witness the close of Christianity, when a new Dispensation will follow." The great arisen Ingersoll would have asked for no stronger words. The discerning see Talmage's prophecy already in movement. The "Higher Criticism" of the Bible is infidelity pure and simple. All of the greatest lights of the Protestant pulpit at least are infidels. The theological seminaries will come along. Then the lesser lights too will come up higher.

Shall the world longer be guided by the ancient Bible of myth, or the modern Bible of science—the only one that ever reflected perfect Nature? Is the world grown far enough from the old to accept the new? The great mass of mankind never moves altogether. It is passing the portals of science, one by one, and none turn back. The "Higher Criticism" demonstrates that Bibles are no exception to the law of evolution.

As it is impossible to know whether there was or was not a lawgiver, isn't it nobler, with the scientist, to admit that we don't know? Since all mundane and super-mundane theories harmonize perfectly with the one that makes the universe itself causeless, isn't it better to accept this as a working hypothesis? Isn't it better to accept the Bible of Science, out of which it is impossible to make but one creed—if creed you will—and which has never yet caused a war, and never can, than the mythological Bible that is a stream of wars?

Science measures, tests, analyzes, proves. It ignores neither reason nor sense. It has foundation knowledge in eternal law. It is, in the highest sense, metaphysical. It cannot be imposed on. Its principles are unvarying. It is characterized by an ennobling principle of humanity, adds fresh wings to hope, and aspiration grows apace. It is unselfish beyond precedent. It stamps the laws of nature solidly trustworthy. It learns that nowhere can mind be found separate from matter. It corrects the world's mistakes. It is perfecting the system of education, of which schools, colleges, and universities are the machinery. It is establishing health laws on a permanent basis. It will perfect governments, industries, and society. It will empty the jails, insane hospitals, and alms-houses. It will save Spiritualism.

Science is yet in its childhood. Social science is in its infancy.

When the people understand the Bible of science as well as they do that of myth, they will no longer hesitate between the choice. Their devotion and worship will take on a new lustre, a new strength, and a new beauty. They will experience a stability of intelligence before unknown, an unshaken confidence, a security, and a glory of the universe outrivaling the wildest dreams of the ancient masters. They will have a Bible that will tell but one story.

It is not claimed that science makes no mistakes. It is, however, contended that it has an adamantine basis, and that it includes all there is of theology, religion, worship, song, society, education, industry, love, home, harmony.

Some assert there is involution as well as evolution. This is unnecessary. There could not be a growth of the body without the involution of food; thus so-called involution is one of the processes of evolution. If they beg the question and say there is an involution of the soul or spirit into the body, it would not help them, for no mortal or spirit knows whether soul or matter was first, or if both were not always coexistent. We don't know all the sources of human growth. We do know that both mundane and super-mundane science calls it all evolution.

Science teaches that the attraction of one atom for another, is a form of mind, and that the increase of mind is proportioned to the nature and character of the organization. It is the character of nerve to have feeling. It is the character of muscles to have no feeling. A knowledge of the character of mind will be an open book.

Speculative science reaches on, like an army picket, and while still reasoning from the known to the unknown, it finds occasion at times to retreat. This it does honestly, fearlessly, frankly. This branch of science will always thus continue to work. The more rapid progress demands it. Meanwhile the steadily increasing exact science is extending the permanent highway.

There are many true and beautiful things in the myth Bible. These will all be conserved. No new Bible is ever made without availing all the good and true of former Bibles. In all of the past Bibles there have been expressions of wisdom adapted to one age, and not another. There have been other expressions so profound as to fit all ages.

Science admits that intuition is a source of knowledge, but it demands that such knowledge shall be tested and proven, because intuition is so variable. One person, by reason of his nature, disposition, education and development, will have intuitive knowledge the opposite of another person. Science finds most knowledge derived from observation and experiment. Illustration: Ships are built in conformity to the form of fishes. Navigation of the air is studied on bird flying principles. Observing the apple fall, and reflecting on it, gave the world its knowledge of gravitation and attraction. And the watching of a boiling teakettle was the source of the enormous value of steam. Some observation is ever leading on. The seven sciences of the ancients: grammar, logic, rhetoric, arithmetic, geometry, astronomy, and music, presumably had their origin in observation.

Science works for truth for its own sake, for the love of it.

That all the world, from its most primitive estate, has said, "there is a God," only proves the naturalness of the universal feeling of an Almighty power. It was natural to give it a name. It has been called by many names. It is said the Bible gives it over fifty different names. No one more than the scientist acknowledges the presence of this Almighty power, and no one understands it so well.

The new Bible will not be contained in one volume, nor yet in a hundred. Each separate subject will have its separate volume.

The Reign of Law is the coming World's Guide. E. W. BALDWIN.
Verona, Wis.

OUR FRIENDS IN HEAVEN.

Since it is known that angels come
At pleasure o'er death's silent seas;
Since it is known they are not dumb,
But counsel us, at will, with ease,
And love us, love us as of yore,
When sun and shadow round us played,
Why shakes your heart from rim to core
And whispers, "Oh, I am afraid!"

You wist not of the yearning loves
You shut off by a shield of snow;
Why not take in the heavenly doves
Who fly, for love of you, so low?
Why look upon the burial sod,
To see them sitting by the stones?
What care they for the senseless clod
Which veils with green their crumbling bones.

They wait not by their monument
To daze you when you go that way;
The low grave-grasses are not bent
By sweeping of their robes of gray.
They live not idly with the dead;
They love not cold, secluded rooms;
Why go you in with halting tread,
Trembling and pale as lily blooms?

They are not there! they are not there
To startle you with moon-like eyes,
But in the parlors, still and fair,
And redolent of Paradise;
Touching your brow like waving wings,
Dropping a bright thought in your mind,
Uplifting you from groveling things
To thoughts and feelings more refined.

When you have crossed the silent sea,
Leaving most tender eyes in tears,
And fain an angel's ministry
Would do, but cannot, for their fears;
When those you love draw back aghast
In passing where your form is laid,
And each red globule hurries fast
For fear of ghosts in ambuscade;

When you awake in heaven yourself,
And see your image pictured out
Unreal as a lace-winged elf,
Stalking or skulking dumb about
In darksome places, you will cry,
"O Faith! where art thou? Love is dead!
It was not half so hard to die
As turn to phantoms in Love's head."

Most beautiful it is indeed
To meet the angels friend as friend;
To feel in hours of greatest need
Their holy benizons descend.
Reach up your hands, oh mortals, here,
With all your confidence of yore!
Have grave-clothes made your friends less dear
And must you fear them evermore?

No! bid them float about your masts
However roughly roll the seas;
God speeds them, and their power is vast,
So welcome them and breathe at ease.
Come out, angels that are to be,
And meet them in their white arrayed,
Come out! what cause is there to flee?
They are not ghosts in ambuscade.
EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Donation Day for the Liberal University.

The Liberal University is in great need of funds, and as a "day of prayer" would be behind the times, we have concluded to appoint July 20, 1900, as a Day of Donation.

We earnestly request every Liberal in America to send us a remittance on that day, if it is no more than twenty-five cents. The name and address of each donor, with the amount given, will be published in the Torch of Reason. "In union there is strength." Address J. E. Hoemer, President L. U. O., Silverton, Oregon.

CHRISTIANIZING CHINA.

A Methodist Bishop's View of the Matter.

To the Editor:—I send you a clipping taken from the Chicago Tribune, as follows:

Denver, Colo., June 17. Bishop Earl Cranston, who recently returned from China, declared from the pulpit to-day that civilized nations must rule China.

"It is worth any cost in money," he said. "It is worth any cost in bloodshed if we can make the millions of Chinese true and intelligent Christians."

He said that the missionaries' compound was under the guns of Peking, and that from the inner wall of the city the native troops could blow this foreign quarter to pieces. He said that the dogs, Peking's only scavengers, devouring babies left in the street to die, sometimes dropped skulls near the missionary quarters, and gave the Chinese opportunity to say the missionaries were murdering Celestials.

The United States, he said, had but a paltry company of marines to protect its missionaries and its citizens.

"I would cut all of the red tape in the world, he asserted, "and break all the treaties ever made to place the armies of the United States in the fore next to Great Britain. We must not be the tail end of everything.

"The open door must be maintained for Christianity as well as commerce, and the bigotry of Russia, which now shows so strongly in the events taking place in China, must not be allowed to interfere with the progress of humanity, civilization, and religion."

Think of a Christian minister to make such a statement from his pulpit. It reminds us very much of the saying of Christ, "I came not to send peace, but a sword." But is there really such a crying necessity of making the Chinese believers in a Christian deity? Is the necessity really so absolute as to be worth "any cost in money, and any cost in bloodshed to make the millions of Chinese true and intelligent Christians?" Does the history of religious power incline any sensible man to such a belief? What toleration would China show under Christian rule, better than she does now? The only toleration the church of Christ has ever shown when in power, has been persecution, the thumbscrew, the rack, the stake, fire, and the sword. Only as the softening influence of education, and conscientious intelligence placed its hand in gentle restraint upon the church, has it desisted from its course of horror and misery. It seems to us China would be benefited but little were she to be Christianized. What that benighted country needs, is the light of modern education, modern intelligence. She ought to put herself in touch with the rest of the modern world. She has no right to seclude herself with all her resources, her powers and possibilities from the rest of the world; and she seems to be on the high road at present of so provoking the other nations that she will be compelled to admit modern civilization within her borders, on a much broader basis than she has done heretofore. And if this result is obtained it will be the dawning of a better day for this large territory in Asia. We do fail to see any urgent necessity existing in any sense whatever, to require China to become Christianized. Naturally the church has had her eye on that country for a great many years, without succeeding very much in converting its people. She has found the Chinese too wide awake to believe every wind of doctrine that has been wafted to her from every denomination that has tried to bring her to Christ. Somehow the Chinese doubted the reality of the Christian religion, when every missionary came with a different doctrine, the last one always condemning in toto every one that had been before him, and urging faith in his particular little two-by-four system as the only sure road to everlasting salvation. Chinese intelligence was too much for this sort of humbug, and it has had the effect of infuriating the natives against the missionaries, and thus against all the foreigners, until we have this latest outbreak and the crowning calamity. Now our Christian friend and minister of the "meek and lowly Jesus," declares from his pulpit that it "is worth any cost in money, and any cost in bloodshed," to Christianize the Chinese.

The church seems to realize that something is going to happen in China, and she wants the glory as usual, and she wants the credit of having brought that country to a better condition. But whose blood is to be shed to obtain this delectable result? That of this reverend? By no means. Why the blood of the soldiers of the nations who are to go in and chastise China. The military through the political departments, are to open the door of China, so that the missionaries may ply their trade without let or hindrance; and when the blood of our brave soldier boys has been shed, then the church will say: "We did it. Christianity has lifted China from darkness to light, and from bondage into liberty." That is but the old story of "Betsey, we killed the bear."

But how demure, how loving the suggestion, "it is worth any cost in bloodshed." This is the vaunted gospel of peace which the churches herald to the world. "Bring them into the fold, by peaceful means if possible, but by all means bring them in," that seems to be the sentiment of the followers of the Nazarene. Of course they excuse themselves with the consoling dictum, "the end justifies the means." What a spectacle, a Christian minister in the 20th century publicly advocating the shedding of blood to convert a nation to Christ. We ask, is the world going backward? Has the dial been turned back once again several degrees to favor one of the royal preachers? Is Christianity so weak in its principles, has the Bible so lost its boasted power to save, that the sword becomes necessary in this day and age of the world to compel men to believe in the Savior? Methinks the church should hide her head in shame at such outspoken cruelty. But possibly the Old Testament God, the God of Joshua has awoke from his slumbers and is at the helm again.
EMIL T. VAAS.

STARTLING WORDS.

An Earnest Appeal for Honesty.

I would like to say of the article in The Progressive Thinker, clipped from the Brooklyn Eagle, headed, "Startling Words for the Spiritualists to Act Upon," the question is, will the Spiritualists act, or will they say, as they too often have said in the past, "Oh, we can't say or do anything to unmask the pretenders, without injuring the cause of Spiritualism; it is better to keep still about these things."

Seven years ago I heard one of the eastern lecturers and book writers on Spiritualism say he had attended the seances of many mediums, and he did not know one that did not at times resort to trickery of some kind. I was shocked and grieved to hear this statement, for I looked upon Spiritualism as a sacred truth and that it should so be held by all, its teachers at least. I asked the person if he exposed the fraud he perceived in these so-called mediums. He said, "No, no; that would injure the cause." My reply was, "Well, cause or no cause, I will never to my knowledge aid any fraud by my silence."

Shall we Spiritualists close our ears and eyes to the voice and demands of Justice? Are we cowards, or are we honest, law-abiding citizens? Are we holding Spiritualism before the world as a religion? Do we claim to be in advance scientifically (if not morally) of orthodoxy? We lay strong claims for Spiritualism, and many Spiritualists have strongly denounced the skeptical orthodox because they have not fell in line and marched with Spiritualism inscribed on their banners. Spiritualist co-workers, let's call a halt on our denunciations of any religious forms or creeds, let's cease trying to urge them to investigate our sacred truths, until we have investigated our ranks and tested the metal of our mediums. We must bear in mind that the eyes of the world are upon us, watching intently, thus it behooves the Spiritualists to look well to their footsteps and the advancement of our glorious cause of religious liberty. Let us be more careful how we recommend and sustain the fakers. When once they have been thoroughly unmasked, as many of them many times have been, it is our duty to keep an eye on their future whereabouts and movements; if we do not they will continue doing as they have in the past, drop out of one vicinity and into another, redoubling, if possible, their trickery, deception and imposition. When the Spiritualists themselves cease recommending and patronizing the dark-room seances, and the various dark productions of the pretenders, then there will appear at least one ray of hope for their banishment from the ranks of Spiritualism. No honest medium will object to honest test conditions, or explain and teach as best they can what they know of their mediumship, to an honest investigator. To question the genuineness of a medium's mediumship never injures genuine mediums, for they have the gift wherewith to vindicate their honesty. Spiritualism is founded upon facts, not fiction or deception, and no impostors can add to the luster of its immortal truth. Spiritualism does not need deceivers to uphold it. It has a scientific basis of divinity which ever will sustain it. Then why fear an honest investigation of our ranks of workers? A thorough renovating will only stimulate all honest workers into practical activity, and will sift out the deceiver. The greatest error Spiritualists have made, and should cease to make, is the wholesale ordination; too many unscrupulous people have been ordained and now write "reverend" to their names. Shall we continue in sin, that the name of Spiritualism abound? Let the voice of justice forbid. MRS. HOOKER M'EVOY.
Fame, Kansas.

Non-Medical Healers in Ohio.

The Suggestive Therapeutists, Magnetic Healers, and other non-medical healers of Ohio have organized under the name "The Psychopathic and Non-Medical Liberal Association," for the purpose of advancing the science of non-medical healing, and of protecting the members of the association from unjust prosecution under the law known as the Love Medical Law.

All non-medical healers, and others who are in sympathy with the movement are respectfully requested to write to the secretary for further information. Enclose stamp and receive in return a copy of the constitution and membership application blanks. Your co-operation is desired and solicited.
LILLIAN EICHHORN, Sec.
1463 North High St., Columbus, Ohio.

WE call special attention to The Next World Interviewed, one of our special premiums. We are enabled to furnish it to our readers at the price announced in our premium list, from the simple fact that Mr. Horn donated the plates of the book to us. We have sent out thousands of copies of this book, and it has been well received everywhere. It should be circulated by the millions among all classes of Spiritualists. The seven books that we are offering to Spiritualists as premiums contain a large storehouse of useful knowledge on Spiritual and Occult subjects. You should have them on the shelves of your library where you can have access to them at any time. Read carefully our premium announcement.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

LIFE AND EXPERIENCE IN SPIRIT LAND

A Series of Letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea to His Son, Carlyle Petersilea.

LETTER NUMBER TWENTY-SEVEN—Continued.

And now you might like to know about the scenery of this lower sphere. It is not much removed from the scenery of earth, for here all that is hideous and squalid halts for a while until it can gather a little order and beauty, for order and beauty gravitate to the second sphere, together with the souls that are fitted for that sphere. The following is what usually remains in the first sphere for a while: Jungles, thickets, and all disorderly things; barren plains and deserts; bare and jagged mountains, muddy, turbulent streams, and, if you can believe me, for I am telling the truth, old monasteries, together with their monks and priests, those who cannot and will not listen to reason or let the light of truth penetrate their souls.

You will find more convents and monasteries in the first sphere than on the earth, and it is more difficult to gain or enlighten those, who persist in inhabiting them, than any others. Here in the first sphere are the coarsest of weeds and wild flowers, the odor of which is very obnoxious, coarse, unsightly grasses, cactus, prairie dogs and rattlesnakes.

Let me tell you, my friends, that the drunkard who has delirium tremens, actually sees the spirits of reptiles and snakes. It is not his imagination, but the intoxicant, in a measure, sets his spirit free and he beholds that which actually exists.

A soul perceives that which is in correspondence with itself. An orderly and beautiful soul gravitates to an orderly and beautiful sphere—a low and degraded one to the lowest sphere and even then must find that which corresponds to it.

And now, friends, allow me to tell you that a low, degraded spirit takes on a form which corresponds to itself. In the story, published in The Progressive Thinker, entitled Juno, inspired by Charles Dickens, the great truth is well shown up. All manner of horrors are perpetrated within the first sphere. Life, of course, cannot be taken, but think for a moment of all the dreadful things and awful souls that leave your earth. How can one expect it to be otherwise? These spirits generate filth, rags and squalor. Their habitations correspond to themselves if they have any. Many have none at all, not having constructiveness enough to even build a spiritual shanty, and no one loves them enough to construct one for them. They are, as yet, too vile to enter the habitation of a good or wise spirit; yet, gradually, all are raised one by one. None are so low that time does not retrieve them.

LETTER NUMBER TWENTY-EIGHT.

We return to earth at a stated time to dictate these letters, two evenings in a week, commencing precisely at seven o'clock. This is well understood both by ourselves and the sensitive. If this were not the case very little could be accomplished.

There are those who seem to think that spirits have no other employment than to stand by the side of an earthly medium at all times and seasons, ever ready to answer the most foolish and trivial questions. If there are spirits who spend their time in this way we are not of them. Any spirit who would do this could not possibly make any progress whatever within the celestial life and consequently could teach nothing of importance. We do not spend over four hours in a week for the purpose of giving that which we have found to be true to the earthly sphere. About one-half of the remaining time we spend in obtaining knowledge for ourselves, and the other half in teaching and aiding the spirits who are below us in wisdom; for be it ever borne in mind that our wives are always with us and they have as much to do with these letters as the personalities whose names are signed. The language of earth does not always permit us to make this clear and we must often use the personal pronoun, which is misleading.

Now when we put ourselves en rapport with the one who writes for us, we often find within the mind something which antagonizes the truth. Oftener than otherwise some article has been read that does not agree with that which we have already told the medium or written to to the world at large, and we find it to be the case this evening. The article which has been read is from the pen of an eminent medium, relative to the homes within the spiritual realm.

That medium says to the effect that a spirit who might greatly desire a home in spirit life must be earth-bound.

According to this medium a wise and progressed spirit does not desire or need a home, as it does not meet with heat, or cold, or rain or snow; also, that a soul very far on toward wisdom does not need clothing, and as the medium who said, or wrote this, is considered to be exceedingly wise, my poor medium recoils like one of those sensitive plants that folds its leaves at the touch of a finger.

My medium, personally, would not dare to write anything in contradistinction to this eminent lady medium, for it was spoken or written by a lady, but of course we being already within the realm of the spiritual do not feel so, for we write only of that which we know.

We have said in a former letter that we had visited all the spheres, even to the great zone, outside of the earth's orbit, which is true, and the only sphere that we have found where there are those who are homeless is the first sphere above the earth. Here, there are some so low in the scale of being that they are without homes, and wander about like tramps and vagabonds of earth. The only souls that go unclothed are those who are so low in the scale of being that the emanations of the mind are not sufficient to wrap them about, and none love, or are attracted to them, enough to do it for them, and these are few, very few indeed. Even the tiniest infants are appropriately clothed by those who love, or those who care for them.

Dear friends, your earth is a type of the celestial life, and you are safe in believing that as it is with you of earth, so it is with the celestial world on a grander, higher scale. That we are not clothed in the same manner that those of earth are is true. Our women and girls do not wear corsets, they do not wear tight, pointed shoes, they do not wear enormous hats covered with tall ostrich plumes, they do not bang their hair nor roll it over enormous rats—rats is the word used, we think, for the large rolls, or cushions, over which the hair is combed. Our ladies do not wear dresses low in the neck, with short sleeves, for no lady here desires to attract the gaze of any man except her husband or other self, and modesty before him enwraps her about like a garment of violets. She is like a sweet, modest violet, or like a regal rose, or like a fair, sweet lily; her clothing corresponds to her soul, for it emanates from her soul and wraps her about like a garment of light.

We have never yet met a soul unclothed except in the lowest sphere. The higher and more exalted the angel the more beautiful the clothing, for it is from the emanations of their love, truth and wisdom that they are clothed. Well, you ask, what is their general appearance, or rather, how are the women in the celestial world clothed?

Their garments are soft and flowing, floating about them in exquisite grace, and we have never yet seen two of the same color; the style and color correspond to the soul, and as no two souls are alike, so no two garments are exactly alike, yet all are flowing.

How do they wear their hair? This is an all-important question with many women of earth. I will tell you, my pretty girls.

The angels wear their hair as nature intended all women should, flowing about their shoulders in beauty. There are those who braid it slightly and tie a ribbon about it, but such have not been long in spirit life and still retain some of the earthly habits. We are well aware when spiritual beings present themselves before the clairvoyant sight of mediums, they appear clothed as they were wont to be clothed on earth; but they merely assume the garb that they may be recognized, and throw it off immediately thereafter.

We shall not speak of many of the miserable, misguided creatures of the lower sphere or of the earthly sphere, for we do not like to allow the mind to dwell on impure subjects.

Do the angels wear shoes? They wear something that corresponds to soft sandals, which is usually of a rose color, and soft bands of rose-colored ribbons that confine them to the feet; yet this is not invariably the rule. Sometimes a soul is so engrossed, or enwrapped about, that nothing is visible but a figure of light, and when startled a beautiful angelic face peeps forth at the beholding intruder.

The garments of those who dwell in the grand zone are so dazzling in splendor that a man of earth could not behold them and yet remain within the fleshly form.

And now about the homes in spirit life. To be without a home is to be a spiritual vagabond, and these are only in the lowest sphere.

Well, won't you tell us about these homes? Yes, we will tell you, and tell you the truth, but we forgot to tell you how the men are clothed. We will do this first and afterward describe the homes.

The clothing of the men differs but little from that of the women. Their garments also flow about them, but more in a belted style, not as long or flowing as those of the women, of graver hue, usually not quite as beautiful. They do not cut their hair or beard, but wear it as nature intended, full and flowing. No two are exactly alike, for all things and creatures in nature differ.

Now we have said and reiterated again and again that all souls are united in oneness to their eternal counterparts, and we are telling you of the greatest and grandest truths in nature. It seems strange to us that the people of earth are so loth to accept such a great and eternal verity.

"Oh!" we hear someone say, "that might smack of free love or affinity," but none are ever united to their soulmates until they are above and beyond all such foolish thoughts.

Does an eternal counterpart, soul-mate, or other-self—the actual other half of that which is only a half, not a whole—smack of free love? Then all the angels in the celestial world are free-lovers, for there is not one that is incomplete or without the other half of itself. If that were the case it would simply be an undeveloped spirit yet seeking the other half of itself.

Now in the present state of the earthly world marriage, if possible, should be kept inviolate, and all those who are reasonably happy in each other should remain together. Soul-mating is not so much for earth as it is for heaven, and people on earth do not, as yet, understand the law. They marry when quite ignorant and youthful—they marry after the flesh and beget children after the flesh, but they pass on and leave their fleshly bodies behind—they are no more of the flesh but of the spirit—and now commences a higher and better education; but, thousands on earth are, through natural attraction, really, although ignorantly, united to their own true other self. These will always remain together as one, for they are one; but thousands more are not, and these will be released on leaving the body, to be properly united to the true counterpart. If by free love is meant promiscuity, nothing can be more abhorrent to a pure angel. Anything of the kind would be utterly impossible in the angelic world, and it is that nature abhors this horror that the great law of eternal counterparts exists. Promiscuity exists only in the lowest sphere and on the earth; but it seems to us here that free-love is a misnomer. All men and angels should love one another, and all angels do. Wisdom, love and truth may be called God, for want of a better name—but we are coming to the homes, presently.

Now when the male and female here are rightly conjoined together their first thought is to create a home for themselves, a home wherein they can abide, a home wherein they can receive other angels, a home wherein they can retire from the gaze of innumerable hosts, a home wherein they may rest and recuperate, a home wherein they may cultivate the beautiful; they want a home precisely as men of earth do but on a higher, grander scale. Homes of earth are types of heavenly homes—small types. The sparkling light and glare of the celestial heavens is often as wearisome to an angel as the outdoors of mankind, and the light and glory are veiled by homes, as on earth. We need homes on all accounts and could not, and do not, exist without them.

The medium before mentioned says that we have neither cold, heat, nor storms of anykind. Now we beg to differ, for we are here and know about it. That we do not have the coarser earthly storm, we admit; that the elements do not war so violently as on earth, we also admit; but it is not one eternal, everlasting day of intense light here, no more than there. We have a soft dew and many light clouds; we also have gentle rain, and sometimes there is quite a breeze, for we have a spiritual atmosphere. Of course it is very refined and rare, but it is as real to us as the earth's atmosphere is to earth. We also have heat and cold. In fact, heat and cold do not really originate on earth at all; then why suppose that we are not to a certain degree, subject to them both? But such is the case, whether accepted by man or not, he will soon find it out when he gets here. Moreover, we must have homes wherein to educate and care for children, youths and maidens. They are coming here at all times and seasons.

Now we find in the mind of the medium something else that requires an answer. Another writer goes on to tell how a spirit lady takes the spirit of a dying child into her bosom and smiles into its eyes, and one would be led to suppose from what was written that she held the child in her bosom until it was grown. Don't you think she would get a little weary and want to lay the child down occasionally? But whether she would weary of it or not the child would soon become restless and want a change and we don't think the lady could lay it down on ambient ether any more than she could on the ambient air of earth.

Oh, no, friends; that lady and that child must have a home just as you of earth have homes, and that child must be educated and taught just as children of earth are educated and taught; it must be carried to the home of that lady—if very small it must be laid on a couch and cared for almost exactly as infants of earth are cared for—its mind must grow gradually as the minds of earthly children do; it must be surrounded by objects; it must, after awhile, have its playthings—its little pet animals. Children here are surrounded by little pet animals, singing birds, flowers—and boys and girls have their dogs and ponies—they also have play-houses and boats, and a thousand and one things similar to earth. That which is not good for them is invariably left out.

How else do you think we could possibly get along and teach the millions and millions of babes and little children that are coming here all the time? They cannot reach the altitude of abstruse philosophy or great scientific attainments for many, many years after coming here; yet in our schools we teach both philosophy and science, moreover we can't have our schools and classes all out in the ambient ether without any objects whatever wherewith to teach them.

(To be continued.)

Theology is a course in ignorance. Its purpose is to teach that which is positively known to be false.—E. W. Howe.

It is a right reflection that if a man is full of the present moment to glorify it, he is with eternity and infinity; for he has all there is.—Blake.

IMPORTANT MATTER FROM OUR FOREIGN EXCHANGES

THE DAWN, CALCUTTA, INDIA

LAW OF KARMA.

On pages 61-63 of his "Evolution and Ethics," Huxley's last Romanes Lectures, we read the following on the Law of Karma and of Rebirths of the ancient philosophers of India. "Every day," says the late scientist, "experience familiarizes us with the facts which are grouped under the name of heredity. Every one of us bears upon him obvious marks of his parentage, perhaps remote relationships. More particularly the sum of tendencies to act in a certain way, which we call 'character,' is often to be traced through a long series of progenitors and collaterals. So we may justly say that this 'character'—this moral and intellectual essence of a man—does veritably pass over from one fleshly tabernacle to another, and does really transmigrate from generation to generation. In the newborn infant the character of the stock lies latent, and the Ego a little more than a bundle of potentialities. But very early, these become actualities; from childhood to age, they manifest themselves, in dullness or brightness, weakness or strength, viciousness or uprightness; and with each feature modified by confluence with another, if by nothing else, the character passes on to its incarnation in new bodies."

"The Indian philosophers called character as thus defined, 'Karma.' It is this Karma which passed from life to life and linked them in the chain of transmigrations; and they held that it is modified in each life, not merely by confluence of parentage, but by its own acts. They were, in fact, strong believers in the theory, so much disputed just at present, of the hereditary transmission of acquired characters. That the manifestation of the tendencies of a character may be greatly facilitated, or impeded by conditions, of which self-discipline, or the absence of it, are among the most important, is indubitable; but that the character itself is modified in this way, is by no means so certain; it is not so sure that the transmitted character of an evil-doer is worse, or that of a righteous man better, than that which he received. Indian philosophy, however, does not admit of any doubt on the subject; the belief in the influence of conditions, notably self-discipline, on the Karmas was not merely a necessary postulate of its theory of retribution, but it presented the only way of escape from the endless round of transmigrations."

Mr. Huxley's presentation of the Law of Karma and of Rebirths of the Indian philosopher does not seem to be wholly correct. Two points require to be specially remembered in this connection. First, we have to distinguish between the man and his conditions. The man may in Hindu philosophy be roughly represented by the sum of the moral, spiritual and intellectual faculties, energies or essences which Huxley sums up by the word 'character.' The man is not different from character as understood in the above sense. Then there are the physiological conditions, or the body which this man takes on. And there is always a sort of secret affinity, a law, of attraction which draws the man to particular body wherein to take birth.

Secondly—The reincarnating man passes on from body to body; and the man or the 'character' progresses or retrogresses, according as he or it undergoes self-discipline or the reverse. The man or character (which is the same thing, as above explained), always and necessarily possesses his or its self-acquired characteristics. But the self-acquired characters of one man are not necessarily transmitted to another by any law of physiological, hereditary transmission. So far as and when there is such transmission, it is only because the reincarnating man or 'character' has a secret, unerring attraction for its own appropriate or equivalent physiological and moral conditions, i. e., conditions of an embodied character, those governing the parent wherein the reincarnating character may find a fit soil for development or manifestation of itself.

THE TWO WORLDS, MANCHESTER, ENG.

SPIRITUALISM TEACHES

that a man does not cease to be himself when the earth-life is ended. The sincere and truth-loving soul now shines forth with its natural radiance. On the other hand, the man of schemes and stratagems will still desire to pursue his evil courses, which have become, as yet, a part of his nature. He is still the same, except that he has far more freedom than he had before.

And now what do we find? That Spiritualists are ready to make friends with the most degraded types—beings from whom, did they meet them on earth, they would shirk with fear and cross over to the other side of the road! They may be the greatest hypocrites, yet they will credit their professed rapid change of character. Abnormally rapid indeed! They will even invite them to their homes, and allow them to come into most intimate contact with their wives and daughters. Our inquirers have seen tables moved—they know a little of what spirits can do—yet they will voluntarily expose their own organisms (which the more developed they are, the more vulnerable they will be) to attacks from those against whom they cannot bar the doors, nor summon the aid of the police. But have they not wise and loving guides who will protect them? Yes. But it is for the guides to decide if the circumstances warrant an attempt to reclaim any such characters, and whether they themselves will be able to carry the attempt to a successful issue. In such a world as this even the events of daily life may make it our duty to run many risks, but to run directly and wilfully into their way, is a manner of conduct most unfair to our guides.

It is true that high spirits have power and authority to deal effectively with the earth-bound, but there are limitations to the life beyond as well as here, and if we knowingly draw about us numbers of evil spirits we simply cut ourselves off from the possibility of intercourse with those who seek our welfare.

Mr. Stansfield quotes me as saying that we should "leave these devils to the care of those on the other side of life." I used the word "devil," as I had been quoting from the gospels, but under ordinary circumstances I should say "evil spirits" (the other word is perfectly just). I also added, "whose duty and desire it is ever to help them, but whose services they scorn, and do things which are not permitted to those who have left this earth. Even many Spiritualists seem to have but a hazy notion of the interests and activities of life on the other side, and of the laws under which spirits live, and the infraction of which may entail the most terrible consequences.

To raise those who are beneath them is part of the work of progressing spirits, just as it is part of our work to assist those relatively beneath us here. To upset this relation of things stultifies the very object for which spirits are permitted to have communication with us at all.

At the first seance I ever took part in, I was told by the chief guide of a well-known public medium, that "spirits lower than yourself can never injure you." This idea is often heard from the platform, and the public are instructed that the spirits about us will be just such as we attract by our thoughts.

From personal experience, I can only say that I have not found either of these statements to cover the entire truth. Our guides are of necessity in sympathy with us. Sympathy is the keystone of mediumship. All the same, if we expose ourselves to what are euphemistically termed "bad conditions"—even though it be from the best of motives—we may have to suffer for it ourselves, or bring suffering upon those we may subsequently meet. If a man enter a public house to rescue some tempted brother, he must risk a blow from the brawling crew within. Should he be a medium he may suffer in addition from the unseen visitants who, in all probability, frequented the same public house when in their earth-life, and of his sufferings the world will know nothing.

Whatever solutions Spiritualism may offer for the problems of life, it enlarges that of the innocent suffering with, and for, the guilty. It enforces the solidarity of the human race, and proves in a way which nothing else can that "no man liveth unto himself." It is a fact that many a man who boasts that he is able to reclaim one of these "undeveloped spirits," and set him on the high road of progress, has been known, though unconscious of it himself, to carry such companions upon his shoulders and deposit them in the house of a friend whom he has been visiting. To carry an evil spirit in this way from one house to another it is not necessary that he should be a medium.

MYSTERIOUS LIGHTS.

A woman, far above the average in mental ability, who, before her marriage was a teacher of mathematics, had two children, both boys. One died when seven or eight years old; the younger survived. They had been extremely attached to each other. Yet after the death of the elder the younger child never seemed to miss him or sorrow for him, and when alone in the room they used to occupy together, the mother often heard the child laughing, as if in playful glee. When questioned, he invariably answered that his brother was there playing with him. As he grew older this thing continued. Once, in passing, the mother went to throw some heavy parcel on the bed when the boy screamed aloud: "Don't, don't! You'll hurt Bert. Don't you see him lying on the bed?" This mother declares that she has often seen the room brilliantly illuminated when no light was in it, and her husband corroborates the statement. The lad who sees and talks with his brother is mentally all right, and has a talent, amounting almost to genius, for music.

HARBINGER OF LIGHT, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

PHENOMENA HUNTING.

And the more Spiritualism is spiritualized—the further we get away from mere phenomena hunting and from all attempts to extract material advantages from our intercourse with our friends and teachers in the Unseen; the higher we lift our aspirations; the more carefully we guard our daily conduct; and the loftier our ideal of human life; the more elevated will be the intelligences we shall succeed in attracting to our sides. I have heard it asserted that the inhabitants of the seventh sphere cannot come near the earth. Believe me this is a most erroneous assumption. Give them the necessary conditions and they will come, and come gladly; not, necessarily, to men and women of great intellectual attainments; far less to people occupying eminent positions in the world; but to the poor and lowly, to the humble minded, and to those who are living lives of self-sacrifice for the good of others.

You may be filled with wonder at what you may be apt to consider an astounding act of condescension on the part of your interlocutor, but reading your thoughts, such a visitant will admonish you that, "in the kingdom of heaven, the greatest is the servant of the least;" and that the only true eminence in the after life is that which is acquired by superior spirituality.

Of course, as Mr. Morgan truly remarked the other evening, great names are being constantly assumed by very ignoble spirits, and the silliest twaddle is often accepted by credulous sitters as the utterances of men and women who have been famous on earth. But I have found the best safeguard against impersonations of this kind, next to the exercise of a critical judgment and discrimination with regard to such messages, and their concordance with what one knows of the life and writings, or other works, of the person professing to be the speaker, is the presence of an experienced and trustworthy clairvoyant, from whom I have frequently obtained minutely accurate descriptions of controls, of whom such clairvoyant had never seen so much as a portrait.

But in order to attain the very best results, and to attract to ourselves the highest teachers, whose privilege it is to become the instructors of humanity—a work in which they take the greatest delight—it is absolutely essential that we should spiritualize our Spiritualism. If we seek for intercourse with the departed from motives of curiosity, or as a pastime, or from a desire for gain, or in obedience to any selfish impulse whatsoever, we must be prepared for disappointment and deception; because there is no escaping the universal law that "like attracts like;" and if our thoughts and wishes are of the earth, earthy, we draw to our side earth-bound spirits who will fool and delude us to the top of their bent.

But if we enter upon our investigations and inquiries in a serious and reverential spirit, just as we might approach a religious service; if we are animated by an earnest desire to reach out towards the truth; if we make our lives as pure as it is in our power to do; if all our aspirations are elevated and disinterested; if we seek for spiritual enlightenment in order that we may be instrumental in diffusing it among our fellow creatures, then we need not fear imposture, or impersonations, on the part of those who speak to us through any right-thinking and right-living medium; and all others should be scrupulously avoided, as social pests and as enemies of the truth.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Vol. 2. Sweet songs and music for home and social meetings. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

KEEP YOUR  ON OUR MAIN PREMIUMS.

The Progressive Thinker one year and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, an intensely interesting, instructive and fascinating work, $1.25. The twenty-five cents only pays a little more than the postage and the expense of mailing. The price of this work to the trade is $1.50. This book will constitute our main premium for the remainder of 1900, and up to May 30, 1901. It is very valuable. It will hold your attention throughout, and will teach you a much needed lesson. The postage on the above book, which we prepay, is ten cents, hence it is almost a gift to our subscribers. It is furnished at considerable less than actual cost to us.

Offer Number Two.

Vol. 1, Vol. 2 and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, will be sent out when accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker, for $1.10. The paper one year, and the three volumes, $2.10. You can add to this order any of the other books, at 40 cents each. You can make only one order for three books for $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Three.

Any three of the books in our premium list that you may select will be sent to you for $1.10. You are at liberty to select any other books in the list that you desire in connection with this order, at 40 cents each. You can only make one order for three books at $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Four.

Our regular premium, The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, is only 25 cents. If you wish to add thereto one of the other premium books only, the same will cost you 50 cents. If you wish two additional books, the cost of the three will be $1.10. You can add thereto any other books you desire at 40 cents each.

Offer Number Five.

If you wish to order only one book in connection with a year's subscription, and that one not our regular yearly premium, the price will be 50 cents.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

OFFER NUMBER SIX.

SEVEN REMARKABLE BOOKS FOR $2.35.

Offered at Far Less Than Actual Cost.

The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol 1, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 2, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, Price	$ 1.50
Art Magic, or Mundane, Sub-Mundane and Super-Mundane Spiritism. Price	$ 1.50
Ghost Land, Spiritualism, Occultism. Price	$ 1.50
The Next World Interviewed. Price	$ 1.25
The Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate). Price	$ 2.00
Total price to the trade	$10.75
Total price to our subscribers	$ 2.35

The Progressive Thinker one year and the seven premium books. $ 3.35

These seven books, substantially and elegantly bound, and printed in the neatest style of the printer's art will be furnished to our subscribers alone for $2.35. But bear in mind that in order to secure these SEVEN valuable premium books for $2.35, the order must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. The paper one year, $1.00; the seven books, $2.35. Total, $3.35.

The aggregate price of these seven books to the trade is $10.75. In order to assist in forming a Spiritual and Occult Library in every Spiritualist's home, these seven valuable books are furnished to our subscribers for $2.35, which is less by far than their actual cost. The authors make no charge for the vast amount of labor bestowed on these works, and which extended over many years. The publisher receives not a single cent for the great expense he was to, hundreds of dollars being paid out in putting them in type and electrotyping the pages, and making them ready for the printer. That is why you are getting these intensely interesting books for almost nothing. We are only carrying out the Divine Plan, inaugurated only by The Progressive Thinker. There are thousands of Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper, and this inducement is offered, in order that they may commence forming at once a Spiritual and Occult Library, and thus keep in line with the advancing procession. The postage on the above books and expense of mailing is about 85 cents, hence you are almost receiving them as an absolute gift.

By taking 85 cents from $2.35, you will find that all we have left us for those seven books is only $1.50.

"The World Beautiful." By Lilian Whiting. Most excellent in their high and elevating spirituality of thought. Series 1, 2, and 3, each complete in itself. Price, cloth, $1 per volume. For sale at this office.

"Buddhism and Its Christian Critics." By Dr. Paul Carus. An excellent study of Buddhism; compact yet comprehensive. Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 430 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE.

IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 192 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual ailment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

Philosophy of Phenomena.

BY GEO. M. RAMSEY, M. D.,

Author of "Cosmology."

IN TWO PARTS.

I. METAPHYSICAL PHENOMENA.
II. PHYSICAL PHENOMENA.

CONTENTS.

PART I.—METAPHYSICAL PHENOMENA.

Chap. 1, Philosophy of Phenomena; 2, Metaphysical Philosophy; 3, Heat; 4, Functional Phenomena; 5, Man; 6, Objective and Subjective Phenomena; 7, "Who by searching can find God?" 8, Hyperbole Metaphysical; 9, "To the Unknown God, Whom ye Ignorantly Worship;" 10, "The Father is greater than I," 11, True and Spurious Gods; 12, "I am the Resurrection and the Life;" 13, An Imaginary God and some of His Exploits; 14, "He is Free whom the Truth hath made free;" 15, All Animates Originate from Eggs; 16, Trance Phenomenon; 17, Philosophy of Healing; 18, Worship of Deity; 19, Sense and Nonsense Intermixed; 20, Plurality and Tri-unity of God; 21, Vagaries; 22, Misapprehension; 23, What is Sin? 24, Suns, Planets and Satellites of the Universe; 25, Beginning without Ending; 26, Design or Accident, Which? 27, Chance versus Law; 28, Summary.

PART II.—PHYSICAL PHENOMENA.

Chap. 29, Nebulæ; 30, Air Pressure and Air Motion as a Motor; 31, Air and Orbital Motions; 32, Water Made to Run up Hill; 33 Philosophy of Canyons, When and How Formed; 34, Glacial Phenomena; 35, Moons and their Motions; 36, Ethnological Phenomena; 37, The Colored Man.

APPENDIX.—Problems; Physical and Metaphysical Phenomena, ad infinitum.

The topics treated receive a handling that is distinctly terse, yet popular. The style of the author throughout is epigrammatic—compact with clear thought. The book is a remarkable one in every aspect. Being compact with thought itself, it will not fail to compel thought in others.

With a steel plate portrait of the author. Cloth, 12mo, pp. 208. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE

PART I. THE PENTATEUCH.

Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy, by

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lillie Devereux Blake, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara Bewick Colby, Ellen Battelle Dietrick, Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Ursula N. Gestefeld, and Frances E. Barr.

"In every soul there is bound up some truth and some error, and each gives to the world of thought what no other one possesses."—Cousin.

The bright and scholarly comments of this galaxy of bright minds are of deep interest, and throw a strong and new light on the Bible teachings relating to woman. All should read it.

Price 50c. For sale at this Office.

Contrasts in Spirit Life;

And Recent Experiences of Samuel Bowles in the First Five Spheres, Etc. Written through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing. Paper, 50c.

Old Testament Stories Comically Illustrated.

By Watson Heston. Price, boards, $1; cloth, $1.50. Heston is inimitable.

The Other World and This.

A Compendium of Spiritual Laws, No. 1, New White Cross Literature.

BY AUGUSTA W. FLETCHER, M. D

In this volume the author, in the thirty-nine chapters, discusses a wide variety of subjects pertaining to Spiritualism, from a spiritualistic standpoint. She evinces the powers of a trained thinker, both in matter of thought and fine literary style, and capability of thought expression. The subjects are well-handled with conciseness and yet with clearness. It will prove a rich addition to any Spiritualist's library, and a most excellent book for any one seeking information concerning Spiritualism and its teachings.

For Sale at this Office. Price, $1.50

"The Watseka Wonder."

To the student of psychic phenomena this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely, Mary Lurancy Vennum, of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds, of Venango county, Pa. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

Why I Am a Vegetarian

An address delivered before the Chicago Vegetarian Society. By J. Howard Moore. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

Why She Became a Spiritualist.

Twelve Lectures by Abby A. Judson. This book should be read by every Spiritualist. Price $1.00; postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE RELIGION OF SCIENCE.

By Dr. Paul Carus. Very thoughtful and interesting. Paper, 25c.

THE DESCENT OF MAN.

By Charles Darwin. Cloth, gilt top, 75c. On its appearance it aroused at once a storm of mingled wrath, wonder and admiration. In elegance of style, charm of manner and deep knowledge of natural history, it stands almost without a rival among scientific works. For sale at this office.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN —AND— THE CONFESSIONAL.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

This is a most valuable book. It comes from an Ex-Priest, whose character is above reproach, and who knows what he is talking about. Everybody should read it. Price, $1.00. It contains the following chapters:

CHAPTER I.
The Struggle before the Surrender of Womanly Self-respect in the Confessional.

CHAPTER II.
Auricular Confession a Deep Pit of Perdition for the Priest.

CHAPTER III.
The Confessional is the Modern Sodom.

CHAPTER IV.
How the Vow of Celibacy of the Priests is made easy by Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER V.
The highly-educated and refined Woman in the Confessional—What becomes of her after unconditional surrender—Her irreparable Ruin.

CHAPTER VI.
Auricular Confession destroys all the Sacred Ties of Marriage and Human Society.

CHAPTER VII.
Should Auricular Confession be tolerated among Civilized Nations?

CHAPTER VIII.
Does Auricular Confession bring Peace to the Soul?

CHAPTER IX.
The Dogma of Auricular Confession a Sacrilegious Imposture.

CHAPTER X.
God compels the Church of Rome to confess the Abominations of Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER XI.
Auricular Confession in Australia, America, and France.

CHAPTER XII.
A Chapter for the Consideration of Legislators, Husbands and Fathers—Some of the matters on which the Priest of Rome must Question his Penitent.

Sent Post-paid, Price, $1.00.

INGERSOLL'S ADDRESS

Before the New York Unitarian Club. The first time in the history of the world that a Christian Association ever invited a noted infidel to lecture before them. The lecture is a grand one, and was received by the Club with continuous applause from beginning to end. The pamphlet contains 12 pages, beautifully printed. Price 6 cents; ten copies, 50 cents.

Glimpses of Heaven.

Through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing automatically By Gilbert Haven, late Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This is the second book from this eminent divine since he passed to Spirit-life. Price 50c. For sale at this office.

The Influence of Christianity,

In the First Three Centuries.

By J. S. Loveland, Summerland, Cal.

NUMBER TWO.

In the quotation made in my former article, the influence of Christianity in the first three centuries was specialized in a most emphatic manner. Volumes could be filled from church authors glorifying the wonderfully moral and spiritual character of the primitive Christians; and some of our Spiritualists join in the eulogy. I propose to show, on the contrary, that this primitive church was in every respect far below the church of to-day. For the first 150 years of those three centuries, there is nothing whatever except the New Testament to give us any insight into the character or influence of the Christian Church. Justin Martyr, whose writings are placed from 140 to 166 A. D., is the first author who is entitled to any serious notice. Indeed, he is the only one whose reputed writings are not suspected of being forged; or, if not forged, grossly interpolated. Many have heard the phrase "Apostolic Fathers" repeated from the pulpit in such a manner as to convey the idea that they were men of extraordinary sanctity, and that their writings were peculiarly holy, approaching those of the Apostles themselves. And some have wondered why the churches did not have them translated and placed in the Sunday School libraries. The reason will appear in the sequel.

The names of these Fathers are Clement, Ignatius, Polycarp, Barnabas and Hermas. Clement is supposed to have been the Clement mentioned by St. Paul. There are still extant two epistles to the Corinthians, bearing his name, written in Greek; of these, it is generally supposed that the first is genuine, and that the second is falsely palmed upon the holy man by some deceiver. Yet even the first epistle seems to have been corrupted by some indiscreet person, who was sorry to see no more marks of erudition and genius in a production of so great a man. Four other works are ascribed to him, but are conceded forgeries. And of the only one not utterly condemned, his first epistle, the best that high church authority can say for it is this, "it is generally supposed that the first is genuine." Supposition—guess work, is the strong fort of Christian evidence.

The next Father is Ignatius, who is said to have suffered martyrdom 107 or 116 A. D. He was Bishop of Antioch, and on his way from there to Rome, it is claimed, he wrote seven epistles. There are two sets of these epistles in existence, one longer than the other. Which is genuine, or whether either is so, nobody knows. The translator of Mosheim's Church History says: "Moderate men of various sects, and especially Lutherans, are disposed to admit the genuineness of the epistles in their shorter form; but to regard them as interpolated and altered." The trouble with the Ignatian epistles, with most Protestants, is that they are out and out Catholic in doctrine.

Polycarp has one epistle ascribed to him. It "is by some accounted genuine, and by others spurious." Guess work again. Who Barnabas was, nobody knows. Supposed to have been a Jewish Christian of the first or second century. Hermas is claimed to have been the brother of Pius the Bishop of Rome in the second century. Why he and the Barnabas above mentioned should be termed Apostolic Fathers passes my comprehension. Of the book, written by Hermas, Dr. Mosheim says: "The writer, if he was indeed sane, deemed it proper to forge dialogues held with God and angels, in order to insinuate what he regarded as salutary truths, more effectually into the minds of his readers. But his celestial spirits talk more insipidly than our scavengers and porters." These are the Apostolic Fathers! And these driblets of assumed epistles constitute the entire Christian literature outside the New Testament for more than a hundred years from the reputed death of Jesus Christ. And in none of these writings is the Testament or even the gospels mentioned! And, except Clement, they all lived and wrote in the second century. And his epistle is said to have been called out by a broil in the church at Corinth.

Mosheim also says, "that, not long after the Savior's ascension, various histories of his life and doctrines, full of impositions and fables, were composed by persons of no bad intentions perhaps, but who were superstitious, simple and piously fraudulent; and afterwards, various other spurious writings were palmed upon the world, falsely inscribed with the names of the holy apostles." It is worthy of notice, that a Bishop of the Manichean sect affirms that to be the method by which our present gospels were palmed upon the world.

Bear in mind, we are searching for the influence of Christianity in the first three centuries, and we find that all the literature, save the New Testament, for 150 years, is either forged or interpolated, or both; and this, too, by the best of Christian authority. And by equally conclusive authority, it can be shown that the New Testament was itself made up in the same manner. The special point in this testimony is, that forgery of documents, and interpolations, which is the same thing in a different form, was a marked characteristic of the primitive church. And as this forging and interpolating documents was for no other purpose than manufacturing evidence, it shows the absence, in the earliest period of church history, of any satisfactory proof of the main allegations of the Christian apologists.

What I have written thus far applies entirely to the first century, and the question occurs, did the second show any change for the better? Mosheim, in his chapter upon theology and religion in this century, remarks: "In this century there was admitted, with good intentions no doubt, * * a great error in regard to morals, and pernicious to Christianity." This was a "twofold rule of holiness and virtue." * * "To this great error of the Christians may be added another, not indeed of equal extent, but a pernicious one and productive of many evils. The Platonists and Pythagoreans deemed it not only lawful but commendable to deceive and lie, for the sake of truth and piety. The Jews living in Egypt, learned from them this sentiment before the Christian Era, as appears from many proofs. And from both, this vice early spread among the Christians. Of this no one will doubt, who calls to mind the numerous forgeries of books under the names of eminent men, the Sibylline verses, and other similar trash, a large mass of which appeared in this and the following centuries." And don't forget that this was the century when, and these the men by whom the New Testament was compiled.

Mosheim, discussing the clergy of the third century, informs us that they "considered it of no importance, whether an antagonist were confounded by base artifices, or by solid arguments. * * This vicious inclination to circumvent and confound an adversary, rather than confute him with sound argument, produced also a multitude of books falsely bearing on their front the names of certain distinguished men." * * "Thus they who wished to surpass all others in piety, deemed it a pious act to employ deception and fraud in support of piety."

Here we have the same story of forgery of books, in order to support the claims of the Christian clergy, and the telling fact that the influence of Christianity was the practice of deception, fraud, forgery and lying on the part of the most pious and holy of its members. The religions of the world have always been in harmony with all forms of immoralism and wrong.

I will here make a quotation from Mosheim respecting the fourth century, as it specially refers to the three first, which we are considering: "To these defects in the moral system of the age, must be added two principal errors now well nigh publicly adopted, and from which afterwards immense evils resulted. The first was that to lie and deceive is a virtue, when religion can be promoted by it. The other was, that errors in religion, when maintained and adhered to after proper admonition, ought to be visited with penalties and punishments. The first of these principles" (to deceive and lie) "had been approved in the preceding centuries; and it is almost incredible, what a mass of the most insipid fables, and what a host of pious falsehoods have, through all the centuries, grown out of it, to the great detriment of true religion." Here, reader, on the highest church authority, you have set before you the stream of "insipid fables and pious falsehoods," starting from the prolific fountain of the first three centuries, and flowing as a blighting influence through all the centuries till now; for the major portion of Christianity is to-day cherishing those fables and repeating those very falsehoods. And it is one of the remarkable facts, in confirmation of this position, that Dr. Mosheim himself should feel compelled to tacitly admit that "pious fraud" could promote the cause of religion. He says: "If, what I would not pertinaciously deny, pious frauds and impositions deserve a place among the causes of the extension of Christianity, they doubtless hold the lowest place, and were employed only by a few."

Writing of the first century, Mosheim says: "Most authors represent the lives and morals of Christians in this age, as patterns of purity and holiness, worthy of the imitation of all subsequent ages. But whoever supposes the primitive churches were perfectly free from all vices and sins, and estimates the lives of all the Christians by the conduct of some of them, and by the precepts and exhortations of their teachers, as most of those writers have done whose books and tracts concerning the innocence and holiness of the early Christians are extant, may be confuted by the clearest evidence of both testimony and facts."

From what I have written, it is clear, that Church History is very vague in reference to the moral character and influence of Christianity upon society except in those particulars mentioned. We are, therefore, compelled to consult the New Testament for a view of the apostolic church. What was its moral character? What influence was it able to exert? What influence did it exert upon human progress? These questions I will endeavor to answer. To comprehend the character of the primitive church, we must first look at the men who are alleged as its founders—the apostles. So far as the twelve are concerned, we have no clue for judgment except in the case of John, James, Peter and Judas. James and John were brothers, and they revealed their character on two occasions according to the story. In one instance, they wanted power to bring fire from heaven to destroy an inhospitable village of Samaritans, and in the next they tried to extort the promise from Christ that they two should sit at his right and left hand in his kingdom. They were very good lobbyists, for they employed their mother to aid them in their effort. This tendency to seek the chief seats of power has survived in the church "unto this day."

Peter, the rock, is the next. He was a coward and a hypocrite, if not worse. He was full of bravado when danger was at a distance, but when confronting it he "thrice" denied his Master and enforced his denial by indulging in the vulgar habit of cursing and swearing. That betrayed his real character.

But, it is said, Peter was converted after that and received the Holy Ghost. To be sure, but it did not cure him of his hypocrisy. He went down to Antioch on a visit, and freely associated with the Gentile Christians till some Jews came from Jerusalem, when he at once withdrew from his Gentile brethren and would not eat with them. Paul was so indignant at his dissimulation that he publicly rebuked him. But the blackest feature of his life is the murder of Ananias and Sapphira. They were simply guilty of false pretenses. They had neither robbed, stolen, nor wronged any one. They had pretended to give all their property when they had only delivered a part. And for this they were killed. The claim that the Holy Ghost killed them is too thin; it is bosh. They were murdered by Peter, or the entire story is a fable—a forgery, gotten up to distinguish Peter as the rock on which the church is built. He is a fit foundation for the Catholic Church, and that church, in its historical hypocrisy, persecution and ruthless murder, is a fit exponent of Peter.

As to Judas not much needs to be said. He was evidently considered honest and of good business capacity, as he was the treasurer of the apostolical company. But he is pronounced a traitor. He betrayed his master, and his earnest repentance has failed to extenuate his act, notwithstanding it was the influence of Satan, who entered into him, that caused him to perform the heinous crime.

The Jerusalem church is pointed to as the most wonderful illustration of the influence of Christianity, and the piety of the primitive church. It shows the "divine power" of Christianity. They "had all things in common." They sold their "houses and lands, possessions and goods," and brought the price and "laid it down at the apostles' feet." And we are told that they all continued together daily in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, and praising God." This is termed communism. It is pauperism. It is religion, the Christian religion in its purest and most perfect state. But it is neither moralism nor common sense. It is fanaticism, insanity. We had a little touch of it in the Advent excitement under Wm. Miller. True communism does not mean selling all you have, putting it into the hands of a priest and spending your time in idleness. No wonder the Jerusalem church had to be supported afterwards by contributions from the Gentile churches of Asia Minor and Europe. But note another thing. So far as any reliable history goes, the apostles staid at Jerusalem. Peter made a few hasty excursions to other places. Hence, it is easy to surmise what was done with some of the money laid at the apostles' feet. The priests have almost invariably had houses, whether the people had or not. But the real founder of Christianity was favored with especial revelations. Barnabas "was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost," and yet they had such a violent quarrel that they separated and apparently never made up. And that there was continuous strife between the Gentile and Jewish Christians is too apparent to need any argument.

But what was the moral character of members of the apostolic churches? Among the Corinthians, in celebrating the Last Supper, some were hungry and others drunken. And because of eating and drinking unworthily, Paul said many of them were "weak and sickly." They also went to law with each other "before the unbelievers." And there was fornication among them "such as was not so much as named among the Gentiles."

And instead of mourning over it they were "puffed up." Paul was fearful, "lest there be debates, annoyings, wraths, strifes, backbitings, whisperings, swellings, tumults, * * and that I shall bewail many which have sinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanness and fornication and lasciviousness which they have committed." That is a pretty dark picture of a primitive church.

The Galatians were "bewitched" and "turned to another gospel." And among the Thessalonians some were "disorderly, busybodies, working not at all." Peter, also describing the condition of the churches, speaks of those who were "spots and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings while they feast with you; having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease from sin, beguiling unstable souls; cursed children." This is a blacker picture, if possible, than that drawn by Paul. John also declares there were "many antichrists," and "many deceivers are entered into the world;" and he speaks of one Diotrephes who loved pre-eminence in the church, and who prated against John "with malicious words," and cast out of the church those who adhered to him. Not a very rosy view of an apostolic church. John was in about as sad a plight as Paul when all in Asia had turned away from him.

Jude presents a view equally black. He says, "there are certain men crept in unawares, ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into lasciviousness. * * These are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own lusts." But read the whole epistle to get the full portrait of the primitive churches.

But to conclude the New Testament estimate of the apostolic churches, let us briefly glance at the condition of the seven churches of Asia in the Revelation, supposed to have been written before the destruction of Jerusalem.

Of these seven only two escape condemnation from the spirit.

Against the church at Ephesus, it is alleged "thou hast left thy first love." They were backsliders. The church of Pergamos had those who held "the doctrine of Balaam who taught Balak to cast a stumbling block before the children of Israel, to eat things sacrificed to idols, and to commit fornication. So also hast thou them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which thing I hate. The church of Thyatira allowed "that woman Jezebel, to teach and seduce my servants to commit fornication, and to eat things sacrificed unto idols."

The church at Sardis had a name that it lived, but it was dead. The Laodiceans were neither cold nor hot; and because of that he declared "I will spue thee out of my mouth."

Now, when to all this mass of positive proof of the wide-spread immoralism of the very churches, founded by, and presided over, by the apostles themselves, we add the incidental evidence furnished by the constant references to various immoralisms in the epistles, and the ceaseless repetitions of commands and exhortations to a moral life, it is impossible to resist the conclusion that the primitive church was anything but a body of people worthy of imitation. We cannot resist the opinion that much of the gross pollution, charged by its enemies, was actual fact.

J. S. LOVELAND.

It is only by the unremitting performance of individual duty that any public evil will be remedied or any public good accomplished.—A. W. Tourgee.

BLINDNESS

PREVENTED AND CURED.

THE BLIND SEE... THE DEAF HEAR.

BY THE GREAT EYE RESTORER AND ONLY CATARRH CURE

ACTINA is a marvel of the nineteenth century, for by its use the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and Catarrh is impossible. Actina is an absolute certainty in the cure of Cataracts, Pterygiums, Granulated Lids, Glaucoma, Amaurosis, Myopia, Presbyopia, Common Sore Eyes or Weakened Vision from any cause. No animal except man wears spectacles. There need not be a spectacle used on the streets of the world and rarely to read with. Street glasses abandoned. Actina also cures Neuralgia, Headache, Colds, Sore Throat, Brochitis and Weak Lungs. Actina is not a snuff or lotion, but a Perfect Electric Pocket Battery, usable at all times and in all places by young or old. The one instrument will cure a whole family of any of the above forms of disease.

PROF. WILSON'S MAGNETO-CONSERVATIVE .....APPLIANCES.....

Cure Paralysis, Rheumatism and all Chronic Forms of Disease. These appliances are as puzzling to the physicians as is the wonder working Actina.

A Valuable Book Free on application. Contains treatise on the human system, its diseases and cure and hundreds of references and testimonials.

AGENTS WANTED. WRITE FOR TERMS.

New York and London Electric Ass'n,

"I" 929 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

AFTER HER DEATH.

THE STORY OF A SUMMER.

BY LILIAN WHITING.

Pervaded with pure and beautiful spirituality of thought. Instructive and helpful to all who love and seek the higher and finer ways of spiritual experience. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

The New and the Old,

Or the World's Progress in Thought. By Moses Hull. An excellent work by this veteran writer and thinker. Price 10 cents.

MAHOMET,

His Birth, Character and Doctrine.

BY EDWARD GIBBON.

This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. This work will be found intensely interesting. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

Origin, Development and Destiny of Man.

A Scientific and Philosophical Treatise, by Thos. P. Fletcher.

CONTENTS: The Beginnings; Fundamental Principles; Formation of Constellations, Systems, Suns Planets and Satellites. The Origin of Meteors and Comets; The Organic Kingdom; The Origin of Man; Man—His Attributes and Powers; The Soul—How It Receives and Imparts Knowledge; How the Soul Receives Its Highest Impressions; The Record Book, or The Heavenly Ether; How to Cultivate the Sixth Sense; The Finer or Spiritual Body; Growth and Degeneration; Morally, Spiritualism Proved by the Bible; The Bible and Christ; The Summary: "What Must We Do to Be Saved." For sale at this office.

Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper 50c.

MOLLIE FANCHER,

The Brooklyn Enigma.

An Authentic Statement of Facts in the Life of Mary J. Fancher,

The Psychological Marvel of the Nineteenth Century.

Unimpeachable testimony of many witnesses.

BY ABRAM H. DAILEY.

With illustrations. Price, cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

A Conspiracy Against the Republic

By Charles B. Waite, A. M., author of "History of the Christian Religion to the Year 200," etc. A condensed statement of the facts concerning the efforts of the church leaders to get control of the government. An important work. Price, paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and his subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By Moses Hull. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

ANCIENT INDIA:

Its Language and Religions. By Prof. H. Oldenberg. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

APOLLONIUS OF TYANA.

Identified as the Christian Jesus.

A wonderful communication, explaining how his life and teachings were utilized to formulate Christianity. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

IMMORTALITY,

...OR...

FUTURE HOMES AND DWELLING PLACES.

BY DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

AN INVALUABLE WORK!

This admirable work contains what a hundred spirits, good and evil, say of their dwelling-places. Give us details—details and accurate delineations of life in the Spirit-world!—is the constant appeal of thoughtful minds. Death is approaching. Whither—oh, whither! Shall I know my friends beyond the tomb? Will they know me? What is their present condition, and what their occupations? In this volume the spirits, differing as they may, are allowed to speak for themselves. No man is better qualified than Dr. Peebles to place a work of this kind before the people. He treats of the Mysteries of Life; Doubts and Hopes; The Bridging of the River; Foregleams of the Future; Testimony of Saints; The Growth and Perfection of the Spiritual Body; Is it the Soul or Body that Sins?; Clothing in the Spirit-world; Our Little Ones in Heaven; The Personal Experiences of Aaron Knight; The Red Man's Testimony; Evil Spirits; Testimony of Physicians in Spirit-Life; The Homes of Apostles and Divines; The Friends and Shakers in Spirit-Life; Spirit Homes of Bruno and Others; Many Voices from the Spirit-Land. Many other matters are treated, too numerous to mention. Price, cloth, $1; paper 50 cents. Postage 12 cents. For sale at this office.

In Tune with the Infinite

By Ralph Waldo Trine.

Within yourself lies the cause of whatever enters into your life. To come into the full realization of your own awakened interior powers, is to be able to condition your life in exact accord with what you would have it.—From Title-Page.

CONTENTS—I. Prelude; II. The Supreme Fact of the Universe; III. The Supreme Fact of Human Life; IV. Fullness of Life—Bodily Health and Vigor; V. The Secret, Power and Effect of Love; VI. Wisdom and Interior Illumination; VII. The Realization of Perfect Peace; VIII. Coming into fullness of power; IX. Plenty of All Things—The Law of Prosperity; X. How Men Have Become Prophets, Seers, Sages, and Saviors; XI. The Basic Principle of All Religions—The Universal Religion; XII. Entering Now into the Realization of the Highest Riches. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $1.25.

What All the World's a-Seeking.

RALPH WALDO TRINE.

Each is building his world from within; thought is the builder; for thoughts are forces,—subtle, vital, irresistible, omnipotent,—and according as need do they bring power or impotence, peace or pain, success or failure.—From Title-page.

The above books are beautifully bound in gray green raised cloth, stamped in deep old-green and gold, with gilt top. Price, $1.25. For sale at this office.

WAYSIDE JOTTINGS.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

THE FILIPINOS.

A View of Their Superstition.

As set forth by the Manila American, in Cavite Viejo and vicinity a lot of natives, who are insurgents at heart, but who have "no stomach for fighting," have been muttering against the Americans. The ostensible cause of their complaint is that Lieut. Paul A. Barry of the Fourth Infantry, has been living in a house which is alleged to belong to Aguinaldo.

The house in question is one of the largest buildings in Cavite Viejo, and when it became necessary to use the residence for military purposes, Senora Famy (Aguinaldo's mother), who occupied the dwelling, was politely asked to move out. She complied with the request made of her by the military authorities and went to live in Bincayan. The men of Company I of the Fourth Infantry were quartered in one wing of the building, and Lieut. Barry occupied the big front room.

This room was formerly Aguinaldo's favorite place of abode. The walls are beautifully frescoed and the ceiling has painted on it a picture representing the ocean. In the background of the picture there are three mountains. In the space between the center and left one the sun appears in magnificent splendor. In the foreground of the picture is a set of steps leading from the ocean upward. On the topmost step sits a native girl in national costume, holding a Filipino flag, the upper end of the flagstaff capped by a bow and arrow. To the left of her and at her feet is the Spanish flag, lying in the dust, with the staff broken, and near this are pieces of the chains symbolizing the harshness of Spanish tyranny and the breaking of it.

This room seems to have been a sort of audience room. Against the far wall is an altar, to the right and left of which are figures of the Virgin Mary and Jesus, in half life-size. On top of the altar is a group of figures, eighteen inches in height, representing Mary, Joseph and the child Jesus. Under a curtain of gaudy material one may see a life-size figure of Jesus, representing him dead and ready for the tomb.

The holy of holies in this room, according to Filipino ideals, is the recumbent image of Jesus. With this statue of the Savior, Aguinaldo claimed to have held many long conversations, and his ignorant and deluded followers believed that the image of Jesus often gave the self-constituted dictator advice as to the management of the insurrection. When Aguinaldo left Cavite Viejo, by his orders a light was kept constantly burning on a pedestal in front of the image, and when Senora Famy moved away she pleaded as an excuse for wanting to stay that it was the command of the saints that she should always keep a lighted candle in that particular place.

Lieut Barry had lived in the Aguinaldo mansion but a short time when the insurrectos attempted to foment discord by saying that a "great sacrilege" was being committed.

The images and sacred pictures were not molested, but the refractory natives were angered because an American officer used Aguinaldo's audience chamber for a sleeping apartment. As time went on this talk increased, and, in Bincayan especially, threats were made that Lieutenant Barry would be killed if he did not vacate the premises.

But the Lieutenant is a brave man and was not in the least intimidated by the reports of what the insurrectos had said. Mistaking leniency for fear, the insurgent sympathizers in Bincayan went so far as to say that Lieutenant Barry was afraid to come to their barrio because he would surely be put to death if he did. When the assertions came to the ears of the officer whose life had been threatened he at once proceeded to show the natives how little he cared for their blustering. Going immediately to Bincayan, he collected a number of braggarts and admonished them to do less talking or they would get into trouble.

The malcontents were thoroughly cowed by Lieutenant Barry's unexpected action and since then the propriety of his living in Aguinaldo's "casa" has not been questioned in Bincayan.

That the Filipinos are thoroughly steeped in superstition, combined with ignorance, is now an acknowledged fact. Only by gradual growth can they escape the manacles which the Catholic church has woven around them.

New York. CRITIC.

VOLUME 1 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World treats of the "Mythical Origin of Death;" "A Magdalen's Passage to Spirit Life;" "Impressive Communications from the Spirit Side of Life;" "Death Considered by the Spirit Lucretius;" "Oddities in Reference to the Dead;" "Death from a Vibratory Force;" "The Day After Death Beautifully Illustrated;" "Sensations of the Dying;" "A Birth Out of Dark Conditions;" "After Death Experiences of an Avaricious Man;" "A Special Visit to the Spirit World;" "Fragrance at a Child's Death Bed;" "The Varied Experiences of a Humanitarian Spirit;" "The Impressive Testimony of an Exalted Spirit;" "Indications of the Process of Dying;" "The Idiosyncrasies of Death;" "Life and Death Thoughtfully Analyzed;" "Signs in the Process of Dying," etc., etc. In fact this volume is a mine of valuable information, and every person should have access to it. It should be in every home. Read the premium terms carefully, and then send for the Three Volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death.

INDIA'S SAD APPEAL.

Multitudes Dying of Starvation,

I read with deepest interest "India's Appeal" in The Progressive Thinker of June 16. I have felt for some time that Spiritualists as a body should not ignore the appeal of our starving kindred in the far East. I say kindred for they are really of our own Aryan blood. The distance seemed so great and the certainty of reaching them so indefinite, that I have felt powerless to move.

At the time the letter appeared in your paper Pundit F. K. Lalan, of Bombay, formerly of the Merchants' Caste in India, but now a Sunyasi and teacher of Oriental thought in America, was visiting Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Hyde, of this place. I learned from this gentle, unselfish soul that he had for some time been sending nearly everything he could earn to his afflicted countrymen, and that he had reliable friends in the famine-stricken districts who will take charge of food and funds that might be sent, and see that it is wisely and properly distributed. Accordingly I have set to work to see what might be done in Lily Dale, and have to report that as far as I have gone with my appeal only one person has refused to help. The funds will go to Pundit F. K. Lalan and I am sure that no person who has ever met him would have a doubt about the money being appropriated as intended.

While soliciting, after stating my purpose, I am often answered, "Oh, if we only knew the money would get there, how glad we would be to give something." I have only to state, "Lalan will take charge of the money," when confidence is felt and the result is as I have stated.

When we learn that the value of two cents a day will keep a soul from leaving the body by starvation, who will not respond. All that is needed is for some person to take the matter in hand and gather the fund together.

Why cannot committees be formed among Spiritualists in the different towns and societies of this country, and do this work, so that the Spiritualists of America may have the privilege of doing their part toward alleviating the great woe that is desolating India?

The money gathered in this way may be safely sent to Pundit F. K. Lalan, Lily Dale, N. Y., care of Dr. E. C. Hyde, and the givers may be assured that the means supplied will go direct to the famine districts. There is no time to lose. Who will take hold of this work?

EMMA J. HUFF,
Vice-Pres. Southern Cassadaga Camp.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Spiritualism as Dispensed by the Rev. Mr. Henthorne.

After hearing Mr. Henthorne's sermon last evening, the Spiritualists have another word to say to the public. We had given Mr. H. credit for at least desiring to be fair, honest and truthful. Those who have read the reply to his first sermon, and then listened to his last one, will know how he ascribed to them things which they plainly and distinctly disclaimed, and those who know anything about the lives and teachings of Spiritualists generally, know that Mr. Henthorne grossly misrepresented them.

His attempted reply to the four questions was a curiosity. It certainly added confounding to confusion. God did surely "put a lying spirit in the mouth of his prophet," says Mr. H., but why he did so was a stunner to the ordinary orthodox preacher. The Bible is not absolutely infallible. Another revolutionary confession from the pulpit.

After chastising the church for being "cowardly" in not freely and fairly investigating all questions, the Spiritualists tested his sincerity by asking him if he would use his influence to give a representative public lecturer the use of the church, to the end that we might have a fair hearing. What was the answer? "No indeed. It would be inviting the Devil into the house of God." And yet, strange to relate, the Spiritualists have a letter from him extending a special invitation to the "Devil" to come and hear his sermons. The 'Devil" accepted in good faith; and after hearing him feels charitable enough to accept the theory that the Jehovah of Genesis and First Kings, did in this instance "put a lying spirit in the mouth of his prophet."

It did seem refreshing, however, even to the children of the Devil," after the close of Mr. Henthorne's sermon, to go to the Opera House and for a few minutes hear St. John discourse about a God that never put a lying spirit in the mouth of anybody; much less in the mouth of one of his chosen prophets.

Our leaflet is a reply to the second sermon, as well as the first. If our Methodist friends and all others, who heard the Reverend, will read it, they will be deeply impressed with the marvelous degree to which Bro. Henthorne has evoluted (?) from the old dispensation (when put to the test) and how consistently he practices the teachings and example of the meek, lowly and truthful Jesus Christ.

PRESS COMMITTEE,
Salem Association of Spiritualists.
—Herald, Salem, Oregon.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

WHATEVER IS IS RIGHT,

Viewed from a Poet's Standpoint.

There is a certain class of theorists that declares there is no evil, no disease, but what we see is only an effect produced by unreal causes, and has no reality only in the mind and imagination. I trust I may speak plainly on this subject without offending the fastidious pseudo-leaders of transcendentalism. Good and evil, health and disease, seem to be parallel lines running through society and converge only in the supposed state of comparative perfection in another more spiritual sphere where purer life and atmosphere make attractions heavenward more easy and natural.

Ingersoll once said in one of his lectures that if he had had the making of the universe he would have made health catching instead of disease. We are learning that the finer laws of the mind and spirit can govern the forces of the body and subordinate evil or disease to the will of the mind or good. To deny the existence of evil or disease in this sin-sick, ungrown state of humanity seems the wildest delusion and unreasoning vagary that can possess the mind, and soul-debasing.

I am far from agreeing with the dictum of Pope that whatever is is right. Had the world ever proceeded on that principle we would still be honoring liars, thieves and polygamists. The equality of the sexes is to-day the vantage ground over dogmatic imperialism and the slavery of woman. The wider license accorded man harmonizes neither with divine law, decency nor common sense. We should adopt a loftier standard of morality, nobler ideals for man. Because man is more earthy than woman, it does not follow that he should be made altogether of mud. The moral standard for man is somewhat improved from the days of King David and Solomon, as he to-day repudiates polygamy and no longer consorts with courtesans on the public highway, nor pens up half a hundred wives in a harem. He has learned there is such a thing as shame. We are reaching that moral plane where the male sinner will be considered a moral outcast as much as his more sinned against companion woman. Life as it has been given us is as crude as an unfinished temple. Through the rafters and beams and shavings we discern faintly the delicate traceries of white pinnacles and minarets of carved scroll and sculptured myths. But we stumble among the rubbish and debris and find the sublime in life only after infinite pains and trouble.

Nature embodies what the human race should be and is not. She is tender, sublime, musical with birds, and infinitely lovely in her ever-changing mysteries; grand in her wrath, superb in her storms, and great with a dignity sweet or austere but ever present. She is the dream of unwritten poems and the despair of the painter's brush, and the voice of spirits in the air and winds. But in all her thousand varying capricious moods, she is gracious and great, and never under any circumstances is she vulgar. Nature is divine and worthy our conception of a God. Humanity is divine in littles, and grovels ashamed and base beneath the calm purity of the stars. There are moments when we almost touch the heights, but there is always a something lacking. And this something we try to replace by religion, or philosophy, or science, but neither fanatic, nor philosopher, nor scientist has yet succeeded in the quest for the perfect state of spirit and mind. Poets see it sometimes with their visionary eyes afar off. And those whose lives resent their own imperfections and life's grossness see it sometimes in their dreams.

Touched with a living fire
Our souls are led thro' devious ways;
With hopeful fond desire
We see the use of all our earthly days.
And strive anew to gain
The conquest over sin and wrong.
Though grievous the pain,
The echoes of a heavenly song,
Sweet tender refrain,
Makes the heart brave and strong.

BISHOP A. BEALS.

BOOK REVIEWS.

"Theism" is the distinguishing title of a 19-page pamphlet written and published by the veteran author and Spiritualist, Giles B. Stebbins, Detroit, Mich. His view is that the God-idea is the central life and light of spirituality and therefore of Modern Spiritualism and all spiritual faith and knowledge. He gives extracts from the sayings of sages and teachers from Vedic days and Old Egypt, to Theodore Parker and Selden J. Finney. Price ten cents.

Auras and Colors. An Esoteric System of Teaching Concerning Halos, Aureolas and the Nimbus. By J. C. F. Grumbine, Syracuse, N. Y. Paper, 72 pages. 50 cents.

Christianity versus Orthodox Theology, or The Deception Unmasked. By A. B. Levisee, M. A. Akron, Ohio. Cloth, 215 pages. 75 cents.

Aims to show that the New Testament sets forth two plans of salvation: Christ's, as given in the four gospels, and Paul's, as given in his epistles. The author claims that Christ's plan of salvation has been ignored by the church, and Paul's plan adopted; that our so-called Christianity is Paulism and not the Christianity of Christ. The book is well written, and the subject handled with ability.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year	$1.00
Six months	50c
Thirteen weeks	25cts
Single copy	5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Progressive Thinker is furnished in the United States at $1.00 per year, the postage thereon being but nominal, but when it is sent to foreign countries we are compelled to charge 50 cents extra, making the yearly subscription $1.50. Please bear that in mind.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30, 1900.

"Is Your Soul Saved?"

A leaflet mailed the writer from Belvidere, Ill., bears the above title and question. It goes on to tell of some person about dying whose soul was not saved, and was about going to hell; while a neighbor across the street was also dying, but whose soul was sure of heaven. The party about going to hell, the leaflet tells us, complained of his neighbor for not warning him of his danger so he could have escaped the fiery furnace. He even cursed the redeemed, and held him responsible for his own lost soul. The author of this interesting leaflet quotes John 1:20—"Behold the Lamb of God who beareth away the sins of the world;" and begs the sinner who desires to "escape from the wrath to come," to "Come with all your conscious guilt and helplessness to the living Son of God, Jesus, who on Calvary's cross bore the sinner's sin, and is able to save all who come to him."

May we suggest to the stranger, whoever he is, so anxious for our soul's salvation, that the God we adore is not so much a cruel tyrant as to accept the sufferings of an innocent person for another's guilt. He doesn't do it that way. On the contrary, being a just God, he punishes the real offender, and proportions the penalty to the wrong done. No prayer, no grief, no tears move him in the least; neither does he allow an intercessor to act in the premises; but requires the extreme penalty for violated law. In some cases he seems to require compound interest. These are cases where the law is frequently broken.

It may have been a good thing when Moses and his wandering rabble were lost in the wilds of Arabia, to load a goat with imprecations and send him away into the wilderness, charged with the sins of the multitude; but God tired of that method, as he did of feasting only on the aroma of doves, and rams, and bullocks, and of first born children, while the priests feasted on the roasted flesh, so he switched off and accepted his own son as a final sacrifice. That God was the God of a barbarian people, closely related to the god savages worshiped. We have no laudations for him.

The little God who reigned over Jerusalem, before whom David danced in unseemly glee, was a tribal god, unknown and unheard of outside of the few Jews who dwelt in the fastnesses of the Lebanon mountains; while ours holds the boundless universe in equal poise, wheels suns and planets in their mazy dance, infuses life in the minutest animalcule, and endows it with loves, and hates, and aspirations, as perfect in their kind as

"In vile man who mourns,
Or the rapt seraph who adores and burns."

No Doubt of a Personal Devil.

The assertion which was made recently in England, by a military expert, says the London Daily News, that among the Boers there is a common belief that the Bible was written originally in Dutch, has called out the following anecdote:

"A Dutch minister, lately arrived in the Transvaal from Holland, was rebuked by an old farmer for having expressed doubts of the reality of a personal devil. 'I can show you his portrait,' said the Boer; and, taking down his family Bible, which was adorned with wood cuts of an antique type, he turned to a presentment of the conventional evil one, with horns and tail. 'There!' exclaimed the Boer triumphantly, 'you have doubts about the existence of the devil. There is a picture of him, and that is the Word of God.' The Boer fully believed the artist as well as the writers to have been inspired."

Stolen from Christianity.

On confirmation of a person into the church by the Bishop, a new name, usually that of a saint, is given the postulant. The same custom prevails among the Buddhists, and was practiced by them at least 250 years before the Christian era. How much longer we have not the means of knowing.

Kesson, in his "The Cross and the Dragon," says:

"So numerous are the resemblances between the customs of the Buddhists and the Romish Church, the first Catholic missionaries who encountered the priests of Buddha, were confounded, and thought Satan had been mocking their sacred rites." Quoted by the late Rev. J. Freeman Clarke in his Ten Great Religions.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

Water from Jordan.

The news journals tell of an "impressive baptismal ceremony" that lately occurred at the Congregational Church of New Haven, Conn. Six children were sprinkled—baptized, says the report—and "hundreds gathered to witness the imposing ceremony." The water was conveyed to the church in a sealed canteen in which it was brought from the home of the Savior." It continues: "Pouring the water into a silver salver Dr. McLane repeated impressively the story of Jesus and St. John the Baptist."

It is difficult to repress a smile over that "canteen," against which the whole church has been making war, invoking the aid of Congress to suppress them, because soldiers carried them on the battle-field, with the implied consent of President McKinley, who almost lost his standing with the Methodists on their account. Had those canteens contained water distilled by Nature's alembic in Palestine, and flowing in the Jordan valley, instead of some American river, canteen and water would have been sacred in their estimation.

The waters of the Ganges, the Jordan, and the Nile, like those of our own Hudson, or the Mississippi, originally rose from the earth in vapor. That vapor formed clouds in the sky. When the clouds were over-charged the vapor fell back to the earth in the form of rain, hail or snow. Falling on mountain or plain, and obeying the law of gravitation, it formed flyers and flowed on towards the great ocean, from whence it will rise again and again and make the circuit of cloud, and rain, and rill, and river, and thus on forever, each drop in all its movements alike pure and sacred, whether it washes a God, or a peasant, and falls in Judea or elsewhere.

If John was a real character, and not a priestly fabrication, and if he baptized Jesus in the Jordan as represented, he did no more than his Essenian brothers had been doing for at least 250 years, and no more than had been practiced by Jews and Pagans.

Without protracting this article to great length, we beg leave to quote from "The Prophet of Nazareth," a prize essay, partly "Against Infidelity," p. 497:

"Spencer, in his work on the Rites and Institutions of the Hebrews, says: 'Baptism was not only practiced among the Jews prior to the time of John, but they borrowed it from Pagan nations. Among Egyptians, Persians, Greeks, Romans, and other nations, it was customary to purify those who were to be initiated into the mysteries of the sacred rites, by dipping their whole body in water. The Jewish cup of blessing [the wine in the Lord's Supper], added to the paschal supper, was of heathen origin. Jesus, in the institution of his sacraments, paid peculiar regard to the heathen, in introducing into his religion baptism and the sacred cup, which had been borrowed from them.'"

With these facts it does not matter from whence comes the water used in baptism, it is only a borrowed, or shall we say a stolen custom, filched from the heathen, and does not add one particle to the virtue of the party subjected to it; but it does deceive the initiate, by making him feel that he is better than his neighbor because he has submitted to this rite under the impression it was first required by a God.

"Better Look a Leetle Out."

We are told, Acts 13:2, 4, that Barnabas was set apart with Saul by the Holy Ghost, to do the work of an Apostle. Thus commissioned Barney's statement ought to be received everywhere as good authority. In Acts 11:24 he is represented as "a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith." Now Barney had a Gospel of his own, which is not labeled canonical, but it is just as truthful as those which are thus designated. Well, this apostle tells us the world will last 6,000 years, "because it was made in six days." He doubtless knew what he was telling, hence they who have been intent on the destruction of all things for the last 2,000 years, have been, literally, "barking up the wrong tree." As Jesus was born in the year 4,004, so Gabriel will not swoop down on us with his fire-brand and toot his big horn, until the year of Grace, 1996, when the end will surely come, else Barnabas will take his place with Jesus, who fixed the time of the event by saying, Mat. 16:28—"There be some standing here, which shall not taste death till they see the son of man coming in his kingdom." Again, to make the time more definite, in answer to the question, "When shall these things be, * * and the end of the world?" as given Mat. 24:3, Jesus said, verse 34—

"Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass till all these things be fulfilled."

As sixty-two generations have gone by since Jesus made his prediction, and the end is not yet; and as two generations have lived and died since Miller fixed the time of the end for 1843; now the world must wait another 96 years to see whether Barnabas is to be classed with the other false prophets. In the meantime those who frighten easily should continue with the Dutchman to "Look a leetle out."

Brave Words and True.

Prof. Frederick Starr, head of the department of anthropology in the University of Chicago, takes a common sense view of the Chinese situation, and declares the empress is justified in her antagonism to Christian missionaries, and in taking steps to drive them from the country. The Journal reports the Professor as saying to his class:

"The introduction of Christianity into China is a measure of hostility to the existing government. The empress is justified entirely in expelling the missionaries as a measure of self-preservation. Her party eventually will succeed, because any scheme to deter her by a coalition of the powers such as is now proposed would be absolutely impossible.

"If the power passes out of China's hands it will pass into Russia's, because China and Russia are the only two nations to be reckoned with in the Orient in the future.

"There are four possibilities of the outcome of affairs in China: First, The dowager empress will come out victorious; Second, The so-called emperor may be restored under a coalition of the foreign powers; Third, China may be divided among the nations; Fourth, Russia may seize China. The only probabilities are the first and fourth. The partition of China among the nations would lead to the development of a warlike spirit in the Chinese themselves, which would unite China and give her a strong sway as a world power."

Confirmation of Holy Writ.

Outside of the New Testament our whole knowledge of the beginnings of Christianity, as claimed by its devotees, down to the year 325, are given by what are known as the "Fathers of the Church." The pretended writings of these "Fathers," reputed to have been written in Greek, were picked up in old cloisters and monasteries where skeptics claim they were manufactured at a much later date than generally supposed, by monks. Save a very few of them they were difficult to obtain until some thirty years ago, when Rev. A. Roberts, and his assistants, collected them, and with English renderings, gave them to the public, under the name of "The Ante-Nicene Library," in some 24 volumes.

This Library embraces the alleged writings of Polycarp, Barnabas, Ignatius, Paplas, Arnobius, Clement, Cyprian, Minucius Felix, Gregory Thaumaturgus, Dionysius, Hyppolytus, Ireneus, Lactantius, Liturgies, Justin Martyr, Athenagoras, Methodius Origen, Tatian, Theophilus, Tertullian, Victorinus and Commodius.

The slightly educated clergy delight in referring to these writings of the "Fathers" as corroborative of the Gospels. There is not one in a thousand of the Protestant ministry who has any knowledge of these books in their originals; and outside of Origen, and possibly Tertullian, there are very few who have even examined the English translations; hence they are almost wholly ignorant of the contents of these pseudo-sacred books.

These preachers know all about Jonah's marine trip in the whale's belly; of the adventures of Daniel in the lion's den; they have rejoiced in prayer and song over the escape of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, unharmed from the furnace heated seven times beyond its wont; they have delighted to tell of Elijah's flight to heaven in a chariot of fire; and have made science blush at the ax floating on water; a woman changing into a statue of salt; and astronomers have been dumfounded at the sun's standing still in the heavens that Joshua might have more time to slaughter his enemies. And then these preachers tell of the various acts of "Our Lord" in feeding the multitude, 5,000 was it? with five loaves and two fishes; of his tete-a-tete with the Devil in that exceeding high mountain; of his wonderful transformation of water into wine; of his using a fish as purser, and drowning those hogs filled with little Devils. They never fail to tell of the immaculate conception, and its confirmation by the dream of, Joseph—sainted, we believe—to justify the act, and shift the responsibility onto God; but they never cite Ireneus Against Heresies, book V, chap. xxxiii, sec. 3 and 4, p. 146, Vol. IX, Ante-Nicene Library.

The good "Father," doubtless inspired, as all saints should be, had been telling of the rewards which are to come in the flesh to those good Christians who are faithful in their belief that Jesus is the Christ. He says:

"Elders who saw John, the disciple of the Lord, related that they had heard from him how the Lord used to teach in regard to these times and say: 'The days will come in which vines shall grow, each having ten thousand branches, and in each branch ten thousand twigs, and in each true twig ten thousand shoots, and in each one of the shoots ten thousand clusters, and on every one of the clusters ten thousand garpes, and every grape when pressed will give five and twenty metrites of wine. And when any one of the saints shall lay hold of a cluster, another will cry out, 'I am a better cluster, take me; bless the Lord through me.'"

A metrite, according to Smith's unabridged Dictionary of the Bible, article Weights and Measures, contains about eight and two-thirds gallons. An English scholar, of good mathematical ability, took occasion to see what would be the product of that one grand grape vine. He says:

"It will make a quantity of wine equal in bulk to the planet Mercury, and allow to the thousand million of earth's inhabitants enough to keep them constantly intoxicated, say two gallons of wine a day to each person, and keep them all dead drunk for the space of thirty thousand million years."

How is that for high? good reader. No wonder of the impatience of the saints because of the long delay of the millenial morning when temperance pledges will be obsolete, and wine aboundeth everywhere. Remember, however, that the product given above is only that of one vine. It is probable there will be ten thousand equally productive vines. And, best of all, the good Irenius says, John heard "our Lord" tell this monstrous story, so we all believe it.

But the pious Christian Father Ireneus, as told by Papias, did not cease his narration of what the dear Savior told the evangel John. He mentions a grain of wheat which will produce ten thousand ears; that every ear will produce ten thousand grains; and that every grain will produce ten pounds of clear, pure, fine flour; that all fruit-bearing trees, and all seeds and grass will produce in the same proportion. Then the veracious Father climaxes his statement with the assurance: "Now these things are credible to believers." Of course they are. After swallowing the whale and Jonah, God's interview with Satan over Job, and the thousand and one additional Munchausens of holy writ, they are in a fit condition to swallow the highway through the Red Sea, with walls of water on either hand, over which God's favorites passed on dry land, to the discomfiture of the Egyptians who followed in the rear. When a person is psychologized he will believe anything the master-mind tells him; even believing the Creator of this mighty and limitless universe has his throne just above the clouds, where he and Son reign in royal pomp, and require their creature man to ceaselessly sing their praises, and tell them how good and great and glorious they are.

But these brief narrations, reported by the marvelous historian Papias, are only specimens of sacred literature confirmatory of the divine character of the "Holy Scriptures."

Why Not?

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat tells of a woman who presented herself to the Morman elders of a baptismal party and begged immediate immersion. She was clad in a bathing suit, with abbreviated skirt and bare arms. In answer to questions of her fitness for the rewards the church promises, she proposed to be immersed, become a full-fledged member of the church, and learn its teachings after.

With a knowledge of the ancient costume worn by early Christians on baptismal occasions, as recently shown in these columns, and the adaptation of a bathing suit to exposure in water, why was there any hesitation in fitting the candidate for immortal glory? That is what we want to know.

MISSIONARIES CAUSE THE TROUBLE IN CHINA.

One would think, says the New York Journal, there had never before been an "acute situation" at Pekin—that the Christian military arm had never before had to support the demands of European diplomacy. It is a rather old story, this thunder of the Christian captains and the shouting; it all sounds like an echo. The situation in China is always "acute" and always will be while Christian missionaries and Christian concessionaries are permitted to make it so in their zeal to promote the interests respectively of God and Mammon.

Of the two classes the missionaries are far and away the more mischievous. It is only where they have made themselves hated that there is any molestation of Europeans engaged in the affairs of this world. Chinese antipathy to Caucasians in China is neither a racial animosity nor a religious; it is an instinctive and natural dislike of persons who will not mind their own business.

Europeans and Americans who go to China for legitimate purposes of trade do mind their own business. They have a business to mind. Outside the "spheres of influence" of the missionaries, they have nothing to fear. It is only where they are "identified," erroneously or otherwise, with the gentlemen of God, who are not content with the Chinaman as his Maker has seen fit to make him, that the sensitive person so made enters an objection to them as a part of the machine by which he is to be made over. They are safe enough when they keep out of bad company.

In religious matters the Chinese are more tolerant than we are. They let the religions of others alone, but naturally and rightly demand that others shall let theirs alone. In China, as in other Oriental countries—where the color line is not drawn and where slavery itself is a light affliction—the mental attitude of the zealot who finds gratification in "spreading the light," of which he deems himself the custodian, is not understood. Like most things not understood, it is felt to be bad, and is indubitably offensive. The making of "converts" is an impertinence to which Christians only are systematically addicted. The Jew not only does not bid for converts, but discourages them by imposition of hard conditions, and the Moslem True Believer's simple, forthright method of reducing error is to cut off the head that holds it. I don't say that this is right; I only say that, being practical and comprehensible, it commands a certain respect from the impartial observer not conversant with scriptural justification of the other practice.

That the zeal of the missionaries has made all the present trouble in China is as nearly obvious as anything (in China) can be. There is a disposition in this country, in Great Britain and apparently in Japan, to attribute it all to Russian intrigue, but no evidence of that appears to have transpired, and the notion is probably without other basis than jealousy of that power's superior advantages if the game of partition were actually to be played. That the game is to be played otherwise than in the orderly, peaceful way that it has for some time been proceeding events seem to me to have supplied as yet inadequate evidence. However, in such a crisis and in such a country almost anything may occur, and possibly we are on the eve of stupendous changes in Asiatic political geopraphy. That the partition of China among the Christian powers as a punishment would be a great moral wrong goes without saying, whatever that may count for, but that it would imperil or injuriously affect any material interests but her own is by no means clear. There is enough of her to go round, and the European concert has shown that it can act with moderation and honest forbearance with regard to the interests of its members. The chief elements of uncertainty would be the United States and Japan, neither of them accustomed to working in harmony with anybody and both a trifle "cocky" from recent victory.

Even if were to our immediate interest to preserve the integrity of the Chinese Empire a long look ahead might disclose a greater one that would be best subserved by partition. In a single generation Japan has performed the astonishing feat of changing civilizations. It has been for her a retrogression, for the civilization that she has discarded was superior to that which she has adopted; but in one important particular she has been the gainer by the exchange; in the matter, namely, of military power, and therefore political consequence. As by a leap, she has advanced from nothing to the position of a second-rate power. What she has done China may do, with this difference. China's advance would be to a position that would dominate the world and reduce the foremost nations of today to second place. Trained by European officers to European methods of warfare, such an army as she could raise and equip from her 400,000,000 of population would be invincible. It might overrun Europe and extinguish civilization on that continent, which would not be a very good thing for it on this. It was only yesterday—a little more than 200 years ago—that Europe came within a single battle-hazard of being an Asiatic dependency. If John Sobieski had been defeated under the walls of Vienna, that city, Berlin, Paris and London would to-day be Mohammedan capitals. History has not exhausted its reserve of astounding events nor have civilizations learned the secret of stability.

It is easy to affirm, in the case of China, the impossibility of any such racial transformation as the one supposed, but fifty years ago it would have been much easier to point out its impossibility in the case of Japan—if any human being had had the imagination and hardihood to suggest it. Japan has made the impossible possible, the possible a thing to be feared. As a measure of precaution the partition of China merits the profoundest consideration, and in bringing that consummation measurably nearer the Western powers are perhaps building better than they know. It may be that they are consciously safeguarding larger interests than those of missionaries and traders.

The actual forces at the back of a great movement are seldom apparent to those engaged in directing it. Statesmanship is mostly a matter of temporary expedients for accomplishment of small purposes, but if there is to-day a really great statesman of the Caucasian race he is considering the partition of China among European as an alternative to the partition of Europe among the Chinese.

AMBROSE BIERCE.

CLUBS!

We want ten thousand clubs formed in every part of the United States, for which we present inducements never before offered by any Spiritualist paper. These clubs must consist of ten subscribers, and each one will get Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death; or if they would prefer it, they can have the Next World Interviewed. They can have their choice of the two. Each subscriber in order to avail himself of this offer must pay $1.15. The fifteen cents is to pay expense of postage and mailing, and the books sent out are practically a gift. They are not cheap affairs; they are nicely and substantially bound in cloth, neatly printed in clear type and are ornaments to any center table. The contents are indeed valuable, such as every Spiritualist family should have. The aggregate price of these two books to the trade is $2.75. To each of our club subscribers one of these books is a gift, and when they receive the one of their choice they will be delighted with it, and will wonder how we can afford to do so much for them. The one who gets up the club will be entitled to The Progressive Thinker for one year, and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit Spirit World, and also the Next World Interviewed. He will not only get The Progressive Thinker for one year, but both books. He gets what is equivalent to $3.75 for his trouble. There should be no difficulty whatever in getting up hundreds of clubs.

Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World will not only interest Spiritualists, but church members will be attracted to it. The Rev. M. J. Savage, a leading liberal divine of New York, leads off with several of his masterly productions, treating Death from an advanced standpoint. He is followed by leading Spiritualists who treat of Death in a philosophical and fascinating manner.

The Next World Interviewed is also a very excellent work. The plates of this book were donated to the office of The Progressive Thinker by Henry J. Horn. It consists of communications from the spirit side of life from leading minds there. Fifty-five communications are given, by prominent personages, among them Prince Albert, Harriet Martineau, Judge Edmonds, Horace Greeley, Lord Lytton, Fanny Fern, Dr. Livingstone and the Czar of Russia.

Now is the time to get up

CLUBS.

Never Satisfied.

An exchange sizes it up this way: "Many people in the country want to move to town; many people in town would like to live in the country. As a rule, a man's a fool; when it is hot he wants it cool; when it is cool he wants it hot; always wanting what is not; never pleased with what he's got; as a rule, a man's a fool."

The Church of Rome.

The impudence, ignorance, and egotism of the average Romanist priest is well illustrated in the following dispatch, taken from the Boston Record:

"Northfield, Vt.—Quite a little excitement and some sectarian feeling was aroused at the graduation exercises of the Northfield high school last evening, when Rev. J. G. O'Neil, a priest connected with the church of St. John the Evangelist, interrupted the exercises, taking exceptions to the remarks of one of the pupils.

"The action was greeted with loud hisses and other demonstrations of disapproval.

"E. R. Brook, in delivering an oration on 'The Island of Porto Rico,' among other things said:

"'The people are such as you might expect them to be after a domination of 400 years of Spanish misrule; upon the back of industry has been the whip, and upon the brain has been the fetters of superstition.'

"At the close of this oration Father O'Neill advanced to the platform and asked permission to speak, which was granted.

"He said he was going to take a 'header' and come right to the point. 'Mr. Brook made the statement that the people of Porto Rico are superstitious. We all know that Porto Rico is a colony of Spain, and that the religion of Spain is Catholic. It means that Porto Ricans, being Catholics, are superstitious. I cannot agree with such a reference. There are two young men in this class of the Catholic faith, and they have feelings as well as others.'

"Immediately there were cries and loud hisses from men and women alike, and Father O'Niell retired, saying: 'Hiss if you want to. It takes a man to get upon a stage and defend his rights. You cannot make these nasty references when I am around.'

"The exercises were then allowed to proceed, but considerable indignation was expressed at the attitude of the clergyman. The oration had been delivered previously at rehearsals when the two young men of his religious faith were present, and they took no exceptions to it."

Such object lessons as the above may help to enlighten the dull-heads who, in Vermont—as in Massachusetts and every other state—refuse to read or learn anything concerning Rome and her bitter hostility to enlightenment.

WE are trying our best to establish libraries in every Spiritualist family of the United States, hence we are offering Seven valuable books as a premium. Those seven books have been sold for $10.75. A single one has sold as high as $25. The first edition of Art Magic sold for $5 per copy. As high as $15 has been paid for a single copy of Ghost Land; yet we furnish these seven books to our subscribers for $2.35, when ordered in connection with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. Read our premium announcement carefully.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Death Defeated; or the Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young." By J. M. Peebles, M. D., M. A., Ph. D. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Historical, Logical and Philosophical Objections to the Dogmas of Reincarnation and Re-Embodiment." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A keen and masterly treatise. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

TO CAMP-MEETING GOERS

And Spiritualists Generally Who Take no Spiritualist Papers, Greeting:

If you are a Spiritualist and read no Spiritualist paper, then, of course, you cannot know what is going on in our movement. To you it is midnight darkness in that one respect, however wise you may be in other directions. The Progressive Thinker, being the largest Spiritualist paper published, combining cheapness and excellence, it will be a splendid agent to keep you apprised of what is transpiring in the great Spiritualistic Cause. Thousands of Spiritualists who attend our camp meetings, take no Spiritualist paper. They will go there to have a spiritual feast, and then return home to remain in utter darkness and ignorance as to what is going on in our ranks throughout the world. We ask this class particularly to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker, and thus have their homes illuminated throughout the year.

We don't believe that more than one Spiritualist in ten who visits the camp-meetings takes a Spiritualist paper. We greatly desire to reach this class. We are sure The Progressive Thinker will be a benefit to them while they will be a benefit to us. The benefit derived will be reciprocal.

STURGIS, MICHIGAN.

The Forty-third Annual June Meeting.

The June meeting of the Free or Spiritual Church of Sturgis, Mich., terminated Sunday evening, June 17. It was the forty-third convention which met in that house to commemorate the erection and dedication of the first Spiritual church of the world. But it would be unjust to suppose that the Spiritualists alone deserve the credit for its existence and preservation. The freedom-loving people of all denominations and those who did not claim membership of any church or distinctive religious or other fraternity, aided in the work of erecting and dedicating to religious liberty and freedom of speech the Free Church of Sturgis. Now, it is well known through, not only the English-speaking world, but in every civilized country on the globe, that such a building exists here, and consequently Sturgis, St. Joseph county, Michigan, United States of America, has become a celebrated city the world over.

It would indeed be deplorable should anyone who signed the roll of this fraternity forget the principles which the house represents and entertain feelings of harshness or enmity against anyone who differs in opinion from him or her or who permits himself to breathe an atmosphere of injustice or prejudice. That house stands a perpetual monument to Freedom and Justice—to Self-denial and Love, and to the kindly feelings of Spiritualists, and independent thinkers everywhere, and to all mankind. It was not hatred for the bigot, nor a desire for reprisals, nor a spirit of vengeance which suggested the erection of this Free Platform, but, that spirit of liberty, moral and material, which dwells (though often clouded over) in every true American bosom.

The meetings were largely attended, as those June meetings always are, and many wended their way hither from their homes in other counties, and distant states, to hear the words of wisdom which are supposed to emanate from a higher sphere than that of earth; and it is believed that they did not return disappointed, but were aroused to greater earnestness in well-doing and to a more noble zeal in the performance of every spiritual and mundane duty.

The principal speakers were Dr. J. M. Peebles, of Battle Creek, and Mrs. Sheets, of Grand Ledge. There were also many good speeches made in the body of the hall, during conference, and curious and remarkable experiences were related. The meeting lasted two days, of three sessions each, and each was well sustained by speakers, orchestra and people, the visitors from distant points having been particularly animated in their addresses and manifested a zeal which showed that their hearts, heads and hands were all enlisted in the work of seconding the efforts of friends invisible to bring about the conviction of mankind. They told how at their homes, or in their fields and workshops their skepticisms and fears had been scattered to the winds by occurrences unaccountable except on the hypothesis of spirit return.

The president of the Harmonial Society of Sturgis, Thomas Collar, presided at all the sessions except that of the conference of Saturday, when Thos. Harding occupied the chair.

Your reporter could not do justice to the eloquent addresses which were made on each day by the regular speakers without occupying too much space; suffice it they were highly moral, religious and instructive. Mrs. Sheets is supposed to be inspired by an elevated band of decarnate spirits who employ her physical organism as their agent to teach her audiences spiritual wisdom and exhort them to well doing and correct thinking. Dr. Peebles, it is not claimed is inspired in this sense, but is a man of large experience, extended travel and earnest thought in occult fields. He is an old acquaintance of the people of Sturgis; he it was who preached the dedication sermon in that house 43 years ago and (with the single exception of Hon. Giles B. Stebbins, of Detroit) is the only man now living who stood on that platform on that occasion. Previous to the Doctor's lecture on Saturday evening, and introductory thereto, Thos. Harding read a poem from the desk, entitled "Anticipations." It is considered by some persons who were present, to have been quite appropriate and your reporter gives it in full at the request of some who heard it (part of whom are non-Spiritualists), as well as Dr. Peebles himself. It was applauded.

ANTICIPATIONS.

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
And the night of strife is going,
While the sunbeams and the moonbeams in one long procession move;
And our dreams of pain and sorrow
Will be swept away to-morrow,
When our dullness is succeeded by the endless light of love.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
And the pride of life is going,
And the passions we war against shall soon be overcome;
And we'll comprehend the reason
Why our prayers seemed out of season,
When heaven was as brass above and our oracles were dumb.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
And enviousness is going,
Soon the lava of our characters shall cease to overflow;
And while bliss shall be completing,
And still newer joys creating,
We shall help to pour God's sunshine on a multitude below.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
The uncertainty is going,
And the waywardness of circumstance no longer shall annoy;
And each one shall be himself,
(Not a ghost or spook or elf),
When no seeming contradictions shall our restfulness destroy.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
And our discontent is going,
Soon sincerity and sympathy shall wear the crowns of Truth;
And every malformation
Shall receive its compensation,
And the aged and dependent know the ecstasy of youth.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
Misunderstanding's going,
We shall know as we are known in that beautiful "To come,"
Where language is unspoken,
And the flow of love unbroken,
And the tongue of loud contention is at length forever dumb.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Oh, the day of peace is coming,
While the unbelief is going,
When we'll cherish underlying truth without revising creeds;
Then each shall prize his brother,
And all shall wrap each other
In the mantle of divinity—the garment of good deeds.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

Yes, the day of peace is coming,
And disease and death are going.
Nevermore we'll have to part from those whom we almost adore;
And the furrows of distress
Shall not mar their loveliness,
For the atmosphere of heaven giveth beauty evermore.
Oh, the day of peace is coming!

There is one circumstance which ought not to be omitted in a report of those meetings. The people applauded the speakers loud and long on Saturday, everything of which they approved, but on Sunday no clapping of hands or noisy demonstrations of any kind were indulged in, the audience thus showed its respect for the feelings of those of their fellow-citizens who regard the first day of the week as being more sacred than any of the other six. This self-denial, in consideration of the opinions and sensibilities of others, was most pleasing and manifested a degree of delicacy and refinement seldom met with in popular conventions.

Toward the close on Sunday evening, Mrs. Sheets gave some clairvoyant readings of an occult and allegorical character; she also prophesied the continued prosperity of the Harmonial Society of Sturgis, and the principles advocated within the walls of the Spiritual Church.

Mrs. Sheets is quite well liked in Sturgis and there is talk of engaging her to officiate in the church indefinitely.

Dr. Peebles closed the anniversary meeting. He said that he had attended many of these gatherings during the past 43 years and none of them was more harmonious and profitable than the present—he hoped we would all return to our homes spiritually refreshed and thankful to God for having conducted us hither. No vocal prayers were uttered, but the people "sat in solemn silence," Quaker fashion, and finally with the utterance of a simple, common sense sort of benediction, the meeting broke up and the June meeting of 1900 was non est inventus.

As both president and secretary of the Harmonial Society of Sturgis will be absent from the city, probably for the remainder of the present year, all communications in relation to the society or Free Church had better be addressed to me, until further notice.

THOS. HARDING,
Secretary pro tem.
P. O. Box 301, Sturgis, Mich.

"Some Experiences of Ego."

By Charles Dawbarn,
San Leandro, Cal.

When we pictured Ego posing as "God Junior" in several manifestations at the same time, it really seemed as if we had justified our claim that "The Size of Man" is far greater than the customary measurements. It is pleasant to think of a giant Ego as our other self. But really, and as a matter of fact, Ego, like his ancestral First Cause, knows nothing and cares nothing for size. He is as much Ego in the speck moneron, which scientists call the beginning of Homo, as he ever can be if playing the part of an archangel. And in both alike he will display powers worthy of his sonship to the Infinite. The proof that Ego possesses this inherent divinity under the humblest conditions and circumstances is the object of the present article.

We are told that "Thoughts are Things." We have seen that they wield creative power, but there are two very distinct classes of thought. One works through reason; comparing, judging and selecting. Wisdom is the perfected product of this faculty, which, so far as we know, finds its organ and outlet in what is called the brain. Ego having stored experiences in the cells of which his brain is composed, proceeds to utilize them as memories. He arranges, classifies, and at last comes to a decision that determines his action. This is reason, and, so far as we know, cannot be exercised until Ego has become possessed of a brain. It is "thought power" as manifested through a material organ.

The other class of thought works in its own channel with even greater precision, and has, apparently, neither use for nor need of a brain. We find its clearest illustration in cell life, where living Egos have minds which enable them to do the right thing at the right time, in the right way, although they have no brain, and therefore no capacity for reason. What is called instinct or intuition is exhibited by these monera in a perfection unknown to reason. This is no mark of inferiority, for, most clearly, the Infinite All in All, being omniscient, omnipotent and all-wise, can have neither need nor use for a brain. So we discover two very distinct classes of thought as possessed by Ego, which fact compels us to once more turn back to him, and make a further study of his powers and limitations. It does not follow that he has two minds, one for inside work, and the other for everyday use outside, since we may discover that he has but one mind, which works according to the conditions in which it finds itself. Sometimes we may discern Ego's mind when working amid what we call "crude matter," posing as reason, with a brain organ for its own private and particular use. And again, under other conditions Ego's mind may exhibit a comprehensive brilliancy that Knows without either study or reflection.

We have depicted "God Junior" as a flash from the Infinite Intelligence, and therefore personified. But we have not attempted to sketch him for an illustrated magazine. Nature knows nothing, and cares nothing for feet, inches and pounds. A mighty civilization might be exhibited on a microscopic slide, with God Junior as its crowned head. And we all know that Genus Homo would not be large enough to be even microscopic to an instrument that measured Cosmos. Man mortal is large only in his own estimation, and by comparison with something larger than himself. So God Junior can be but a microscopic speck of the Infinite All in All, and may pose as an Ego with just as much glory in the monad as in the man. I have pointed out that he has a certain vibratory expression, with both fullness and limitation, but whether the "birth flash" puts him in full possession is quite another matter. And as mortals we like to group our facts when we explore, although it is equally true we often distort and abuse them when captured. It is much safer and easier to study a laboratory spark than to harness a full grown flash of lightning.

We recognize Ego as a personification of matter, energy and intelligence. We can conceive of no atom unblended, but discover every atom to be alive, and manifesting its life as conditions permit. Molecules, whether of gas, crystal or primeval slime, attract and repel, thus exhibiting love, hate, and a power of selection and choice. Ego is there, and posing as a child of the Infinite, but as a child not yet old enough to take full possession of his inheritance, although having by birthright all he can express of the family power. He is God Junior, born into a family where no child is ever spoiled by having too much of his own way. Having thus determined that Ego can know no great and no small, and perceiving that his bigness is necessarily beyond our mental grasp, we will try to comprehend something of his littleness by studying it with a borrowed microscope. That of the learned Haeckel is all ready for our use, and offering its story of Ego in cell life. That is as small a study as we can compass to-day. Our grandchildren will do better, and go much further back into Ego history.

We perceive just a speck of First Cause, but soon recognize it as a wee Second Cause which knows just what is about every time. It hasn't any feet or limbs, but when it wants to travel it manufactures them (pseudopodia). They are new every time, so never get worn out. The child is born hungry. It knows just what it wants, and it won't have anything else. It isn't bothered with a stomach. But when it finds something to eat it becomes all stomach, selecting and rejecting as carefully as its descendent the Lord Mayor of London. If there is any danger, it shows you that its instinct of self-preservation is already fully developed. Just as soon as it is old enough and large enough it thinks of posterity, and breaking a piece off from its own form it becomes father and mother of a ready-made child. Having already mastered the law of heredity, that child becomes a chip of the old block. So our little monad has a mind of its own, with an excellent memory, for Professor Elmer Gates has proved that when it discovers a good feeding-place it finds its way back to the same spot. It has not a single organ; not even the vestige of one, but it thinks and acts on exactly the same principle as a scientist hunting for his dinner. It won't do to call its faculty "reason," for that is an attribute of "brain," of which it has not even a trace. It is Ego, making himself as much at home as circumstances will permit, and doing it just as well as if his name were Haeckel or Darwin. And as a remarkable fact, our monad can start off in life with as calm an assurance of living as long as he has a mind to as if he had studied "mental science" under Helen Wilmans herself. But after a time, perhaps a few millions of years, he exhibits a creative power that is a "lost art" to his descendents of to-day. He makes a little combination with his fellows, and forms a sort of Amoeba Trust Company, whereby a new species makes its appearance. Our scientists would give their ears and whiskers to know just how it is done, but, alas, Ego is silent.

I have no intention of writing a treatise upon "lost arts," or of posing as an expert in natural history. I am simply keeping an eye on Ego, with filial reverence and unbounded respect. And instead of roaming all over creation, I keep as near as I can to the path along which the monad we call "human" has traveled. I do not have to go back a few million years and carefully search the records, for every child brings the history with him, and the scientist with a microscope has the story all ready for me. It is true it may not have occurred to him that he has been writing the biography of Ego, but he has done it all the same, and has done it well.

I believe the first glimpse of the veritable human Ego of to-day is called "monerula," but Ego is not at all particular as to names. He is now a speck, who has started in with the clear determination to become in due time a man, and perhaps a scientist, so he proceeds to gather a large crop of experiences. The one thing that troubles him is that he has nowhere to put them. He is as destitute of pockets as the average woman. It has become necessary for him to specialize. I believe it takes forty-two men to make a pair of fashionable shoes, and quite likely it may take forty-two millions of Egos to manufacture the unfashionable brain of to-day. But it is done. I suppose a very few Egos first started the idea, and put it into practice, whereupon the lancelot remarked, with a tinge of justifiable pride, that he was the first vertebrate. Judging from what Elmer Gates tells us, the object of the brain was to furnish Ego with those very necessary pockets in which to keep his experiences. The more experiences, the more pockets were needed. But Speck Ego had from the beginning exhibited a divine possession of all the powers he needed; and we have seen that when he deemed it necessary he was quite able to set his offspring up in housekeeping, with a fair chance of making a living. And all this time he had himself been living and working in and upon the raw material inherited from his father First Cause. And one by one, he had thought-created for himself various organs, the realized necessity always producing the active thought, which at once took the contract and completed its task.

Trades Unions were not invented in those days, so Ego had all the time he wanted, and never struck for an eight hours day. At every point he learned his lesson, if it took a million years, and he never forgot it. Whenever a Trust Company of Egos started a new species the same old bookkeeping system was followed. There was always a repetition of the old, with one more creation to top it off. That brings us back to the "monerula" composed of Egos knowing all the past, but with a new idea in their heads. They must have got heads and toes, and every other organ pretty well developed before "monerula" started Man Ego. And as we look back to this particular incident it almost seems as if a smile or two from First Cause had stimulated their ambition, and expanded their creative designs until they looked upward and exclaimed "Our Father."

Every human child has a "monerula" as a way station on a journey that reaches from First Cause outward and back again. And every point scored by Ego's creative ability is recorded in Homo's mental organism.

This brief glance at the material side of life has been both interesting and instructive but the student reader can find it recorded in a thousand text books of the dying century. We must now turn back and read between the lines if we would listen to the inner voice of Nature.

These are very remarkable powers that Ego has been exhibiting all along his history before he gets a brain. He just knows what to do, and does it. That is what we call "god-like." He never reasons about anything, because he has not any brain until he has evolved one out of his own matter, intelligence and energy. He did not have anything else out of which to make it. And at this point we mark what seems to be the apparent object of his entire history. First Cause is his Creative Ancestor. His appearance as a speck is no disgrace to his royal birth, for First Cause, being Infinite, is just as close to him when he is only a child speck as he could be to the mightiest archangel of poetic fantasy. The trouble is that Ego cannot inherit from First Cause anything of the nature of reason, which implies experience and judgment. The First Cause, if he is The All in All "in whom we live, and move and have our being," knows everything that has been and will be, consequently he never reasons, never exercises judgment, because such an act would be an expression of limitation. In a word, and we say it with all reverence, First Cause hasn't any brain, and does not need any. But Second Cause, after getting along for untold eons without any brain, discovered that the conditions of his earth life were changing, and he must change too. At first his instinct had been all-sufficient. Now he needed something more. He must exercise judgment or make serious mistakes. His very first attempt to reason, that is to determine the better of two possible acts would, if Elmer Gates is right, evolve a cell of the coming brain, and thus shape his future. The point for us to mark here is that Ego sacrifices nothing. He continues to exercise every power and faculty which we have seen inhere to monad life, and now adds thereto a process of calm, cool, deliberate judgment which we call "reason," and which uses the brain as its organ. And in earth life the brain is undoubtedly a step upward to a higher selfhood. But Ego was Ego without a brain, and, so far as we can see, will remain Ego should brain prove unnecessary to him in another life.

Ego as moneron had all the affections and emotions; he had a mind of his own, with sufficient will power, and was able to endow his child with the entire catalogue of potencies. These potencies included Creative Power, so when the time came, and conditions demanded, the amoeba, the polyp, and race after race of the industrious little beings, without brains, who dug and builded upon the geological foundations of our planets, evolved one by one into existence. And when the same creative power induced brain, it was only another cell added to the old life. The entire history is both recorded and repeated as the growing child lies hatching in the nest womb of its mother.

But reason was from the first rigidly limited. It must not interfere with the working organs. The heart, the lungs, the liver, the kidneys and all the rest, including the brain itself, were to remain under the old control. Reason might inspect them with a microscope, cut them with a knife, or soak them in drugs, but, even then, it was only attempting a sort of external control, limited, dangerous and very often fatal. We don't undervalue the efforts of reason which is using brain as a tallow candle with which to hunt for causes. At every discovery reason is glorified. "It puts in its thumb. It pulls out a plum, and says, 'what a good boy am I.'" But the student-reader will notice that Science, which is crowned reason, has done nothing, and can do nothing for Ego within the realm of the qualities which he inherited from First Cause. They are perforce left untouched, and Science has recently labeled them "subconscious mind." Science works upon and within Ego's self-created reason, which, like everything created, is several sizes smaller than its creator. Science is itself also a creator, but of yet smaller size. It can make rock, but it uses up another rock in the process. It can manufacture a gas, but it robs the atmosphere. It combines and blends, and transforms, and in its own sphere is a wonderful fellow, and a useful workman for Ego, but the godly faculties which Know by divine inheritance, are outside its capacity. So it happens in the dying struggles of the 19th Century we behold Genus Homo harking back to the days of his childhood. He is trying to get along without reason, and calls his effort "New Thought."

It really is wonderful to see Subconsciousness doing so many things that reason has claimed as belonging to his department, but all the same he is making a mess of it. Homo forgets that reason was evoluted as a needed improvement to subconsciousness, and that a return to first principles is simply saying that reason was all a mistake, and Homo is better off without it. Homo can't go prowling around in the dark closet of Nature's past without smashing lots of valuable crockery which has become the pride of the family. In old time if Ego wanted a child he cut himself in two. Subconsciousness has lost that art. He could in those days of yore turn himself inside out. Reason can only cut him up, take out his appendix, and sew him together again. Ego could once make fingers and toes as he needed them. That is another lost art. But Subconsciousness can still make things "hum" when he sets to work scrubbing and dusting among the organs which Ego created one by one as he needed them. But the very moment he gets outside he discovers that Ego knew what he was about when he invented reason, for Subconsciousness, under the new conditions, becomes the right man in the wrong place. Ego of to-day is a compound of what he inherited from First Cause, and of what he has created for himself. One is just as important as the other. He who writes that "reason is all in all" marks his ignorance and goes round with ink on his brain. But he—and particularly "she" now-a-days—who declares that "mind is all in all" is invoking Ego to destroy his own creations, and go on working with one hand tied behind him. And thereon hangs a tale.

We have now gathered in our exploration three clear and distinct thoughts as the foundation for a true philosophy of manhood. In our "Size of Man" we discovered that Ego, as son of the Infinite, has necessarily powers of expression within his utmost limits; and can have no vibratory gap unsubmissive to his manhood. And since his earth limitation actually exists he must have different personalities manifesting his powers all at the same time, because each is using but portions of the vast scale subject to his sense manifestation. In "God Junior" we discovered that as the child of the Infinite Ego inherited creative power, and is wielding it in many directions, including even the creation of a manhood inferior to his own. And in the present article we discover that by virtue of this creative power he has moulded for himself a brain, and evolved reason, both necessarily unknown to Creative First Cause.

The student reader and I will continue our explorations, but meantime have we not the right to expect that our inspired teachers and writers shall aid in this earnest search for truth. For over half a century our platform has been serving the same hash of Rochester Raps, with nothing new but the dish, till the public has so far lost its interest that it can hardly be persuaded to buy a home for the exhausted medium, or headquarters for the N. S. A.

It is true that coming reforms are sparkling in the sky like fire-flies on a summer's night, but each has its own platform and willing workers. The Spiritualist platform is for the demonstration that there is more to man than the pounds and ounces of earth life. The question is "how much more?" That is the question the student reader and I are trying to answer; and inspired orators will once again find eager audiences if they will not merely proclaim "spirit return," but will tell the world just what it means, and how it is done.

VEDANTA PHILOSOPHY.

Lectures by the Swami Vivekananda, on Raja Yoga; or Conquering the Internal Nature, and other subjects; also, Patanjali's Yoga Aphorisms, with commentaries and a copious Glossary of Sanskrit terms. Revised and enlarged, 12mo., Cloth, $1.50. Raja Yoga is an ancient system of Indian Philosophy, and one of the four chief methods that the Vedanta Philosophy offers to obtain freedom and perfection. Swami Vivekananda became a familiar figure in several American cities during the three years following the Parliament of Religions at Chicago; he was cordially received in America, where the breadth and depth of his teachings were soon recognized. His teachings are universal in their application. The book is cheap at $1.50. For sale at this office.

Woman, Church and State.

A Historical Account of the Status of Woman Through the Christian Ages, with Reminiscences of the Matriarchate.

BY MATILDA JOSLYN GAGE.

THE AMOUNT OF VALUABLE INformation succinctly and clearly stated in this volume of 554 pages is amazing. The title, as above given, fails to convey an idea of the fulness and completeness with which the subjects are treated. The Matriarchate, or Mother-rule, is the theme of the first chapter, in which much lore, quaint, queer and curious, is brought to view in elucidation of the subject. This is followed by chapters on Celibacy, Canon Law, Marquette, Witchcraft, Wives, Polygamy, Woman and Work, The Church of To-day, Past, Present, Future; and there is not a chapter in the book that is not handled in a masterly manner, and that for quantity and quality of information, is not worth the full price of the volume. It is packed with knowledge well-arranged, and intensely interesting from beginning to end. No one can possibly regret buying it; it is a valuable addition to the library of any free and truth-loving mind.

Price, $2.00. For sale at this office.

AUTOMATIC WRITING

[SO-CALLED] WITH OTHER

PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

—BY—

SARA A. UNDERWOOD,

With Half-tone Portrait and Specimen Pages of the Writing.

Handsomely bound in cloth. Price $1. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH,

OR DEATH AND ITS TO-MORROW.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE REAL ISSUE.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have. For sale at this office.

God in the Constitution.

By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of the author. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ORIGIN OF LIFE

and How the Spirit Body Grows. By M. Faraday. Price, 10c. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By M. Faraday. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Spiritual Body Real.

Views of Paul, Wesley and others. Valuable testimonies of modern clairvoyants, Witnesses of the separation of the spiritual body from the dying physical form. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

Real Life in the Spirit-Land.

Given inspirationally by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

CHURCH AND STATE

The Bible in the Public Schools; the New "American" Party. By "Jefferson." Third edition. 28 pages. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Science of Spirit Return.

By Charles Dawbarn. A scientific rehearsal that is truly interesting. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Seers of the Ages,

EMBRACING

Spiritualism, Past and Present.

DOCTRINES STATED AND MORAL TENDENCIES DEFINED.

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D.

An exceedingly interesting and instructive book. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

Your Ruling Planet Discovered by Astrology.

By Prof. G. W. Cunningham. Devoted to the study of Astrology and its laws. Price, 25c.

Appeals to Methodists.

A short discourse by spirit Bishop Haven, given automatically through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing. Price 20c. For sale at this office.

RIGHT LIVING

— BY —

SUSAN H. WIXON,

Author of "Apples of Gold," "All in a Lifetime," "The Story Hour," "Summer Days at Onset," "Sunday Observance," etc., etc.

"Living is an art, a method of expressing great conceptions; in fact, the highest method, the noblest of the arts."—THOMAS STARR KING.

This book gives an admirable course of study in ethics, and supplies a long-felt want of an ethical text-book especially adapted to the comprehension of children, as well as older persons whom it is wisely and appropriately designed to interest while teaching them valuable ethical lessons.

The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principles of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in children's lyceums. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. It is a most excellent book and should be widely circulated.

CONTENTS:

Right Living. What Is Morality? What is Ignorance? Knowledge the Great Treasure. Concerning Education. Conduct; or Right Doing. Virtue, the Illuminator of Life. Prudence, an Economy of Life. What Know Ye of Justice? Fortitude a Noble Possession. Temperance and Intemperance. Is the Use of Tobacco Dangerous? Cultivation of Individuality. Character, a Jewel of Great Price. Idleness, Another Name for Loss. Industry, the Staff of Life. Value of a Trade. Recreation a Necessity. Games of Chance. Truth and Falsehood. What is an Oath? or the Worth of a Promise. Fraud a Crime. The Poison of Slander. What Is Hypocrisy? Conscience, or Moral Sense. Selfishness, the Menace of Society. Gratitude, a Fragrant Flower of Life. Is Reverence a Duty? Self-Reliance. Self-Control. Self-Respect. Foolish Pride and Silly Prejudice. Anger, the Distorter. The Angel of Forgiveness. Observation a Great Faculty. Perseverance, the Friend of Man. Punctuality, a Promoter of Success. The Difficulties of Life. Temptation, the Demon on the Highway. Habit, Second Nature. Power of Will. Courage, a Necessity to Right Living. In Regard to Concealed Vice. Beautiful Charity. Fidelity, the Giver of Strength and Honor. Value of Wealth. Avarice, Not a Means to Life's Best End. Good Nature, One of Life's Best Blossoms. Reason and Free Inquiry. Free Speech. A Free Press. Rights of Animals. Rights of Children. Human Rights; or the Equality of Man. Moral Cleanliness. Politeness—The Gentleman. Politeness—Continued—The Gentlewoman. Best Society. Progress; or Enlightenment. Wisdom.

Price, Cloth, $1. Sold at this Office.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. - - - Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede moral confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

CAMP-MEETINGS:

Their Origin and Their Object.

The first regular camp-meetings of which we have much record, in the United States, were organized by the Methodists. Later on some other religious sects resorted to camps to hold their meetings, and even to-day, the Adventists, and occasionally some other sects, resort to the open field for their annual meetings, beside the Spiritualists.

The Methodists assembled in camps for two reasons, one was they were too much scattered to meet in towns and cities for worship, another was they wanted to make converts (I wonder if Spiritualists have ever attempted to do that?), and they made them, too, by the thousand.

As soon as they had accumulated in sufficient numbers, they began to build small churches in towns, and at cross roads in the country. Then followed small churches in cities, and soon those as large and as fine as those of any denomination succeeded.

Some thirty or forty years ago they began to abandon the camps, and now a Methodist camp-meeting is seldom seen in the United States.

About that time the Spiritualists began to organize camps in different parts of the country, and to-day there are fifty, or about that number, that hold regularly a camping season every year. The object of these meetings would hardly be safe to attempt to enumerate, judging from the classes of people that usually attend them, and the character of the entertainments. Nominally of course they are supposed to be for the advancement of the great cause of Spiritualism. But some sincere Spiritualists have been so skeptical as to express doubts of the value of these meetings to the cause, from the fact that it costs the proprietors of the camps a good deal of money to sustain them, and provide the necessary attractions, which must be paid for by the visitors, which, added to the other expenses of time and transportation, aggregate more than many are able to pay, for the value they receive, and claim far greater good would result if the money was expended at home in their local societies, where they do not have to contribute for entertainments in which they feel no interest, and in many cases are anything but Spiritualistic in their character.

But there are many pleasant and valuable things to be enjoyed at camp-meetings, which cannot be easily secured at home. Among them are relief from the care and toil of domestic life, the advantage of open air exercises, the pleasure of renewing old acquaintances and making new ones, of hearing many of the best speakers on the Spiritual platform, of comparing notes and interchange of views upon important and interesting subjects.

The National Spiritualist Association has sometimes derived valuable financial assistance at camp-meetings, and where special care has been taken to have that important organization represented by earnest, active workers, much benefit has resulted, and in fact it seems one of the most reliable sources of revenue that association has. And if for no other reason it may be claimed that camp-meetings should be continued, and patronized for the benefit of the National Organization—as that seems to be a kind of orphan asylum, with no recognized means of support.

In passing, I may be permitted to say, that unless a change comes over the spirit of our people soon, and they recognize that neither the National Organization, nor the local associations, can be supported without the use of money, and a good deal more of it, than has ever yet been contributed, we have no reason to suppose that either of them can long be continued. But as I did not propose to discuss our financial embarrassments at this time, I will resume the subject of camp-meetings.

I proposed to speak of their origin and their object. As their origin is of but little importance, I have already said all that is necessary on that point.

Their object is more difficult to determine. But as I before said, it is generally supposed the object is the promotion of the cause of Spiritualism. But as I have shown, there are so many other objects subserved at these meetings, of a social character, it is hardly fair to claim that they are strictly devoted to spiritual purposes, but to general objects, not antagonistic to spiritual theories. The fact that the trustees of the National Organization have successfully appealed to the managers of the different camp associations, to set apart some one day during their sessions, to be devoted to the interests of that association, suggests the propriety of asking all the camp-meeting associations in America to devote one day exclusively to the consideration and relief of all the indigent local societies that are unable to support themselves. It is well known to all sincere thinking Spiritualists that our hope of success lies in the local societies. It is also well known that many, very many of them are languishing for the want of the means to keep them alive, and some are even being abandoned for the want of support.

It is believed there are thousands who attend camp-meetings every year, that are not members of any local society, but if appealed to would contribute liberally to the support of the society near which they reside, if they cannot be induced to become members.

One day in each of the camp-meetings devoted to this object every year, where the subject could be discussed—its value, and its wants and necessities explained, by competent well-informed speakers—would undoubtedly produce a wonderful change in Spiritual circles, if it did not succeed in raising large sums of money.

Local societies should be supported by themselves, and if Spiritualists could be convinced of their duty and the great benefit a well conducted and a well attended local society would be to the cause, and to their own families, and to their neighbors, no appeals would be necessary of this kind. But this is a general missionary field, in which all visitors at camp-meetings could be made interested, and is a legitimate subject for discussion.

Shall it be discussed at the approaching camp-meetings? That question must be decided by the president and board of directors of each camp-meeting association. And as all of them are supposed to be interested in sustaining our local societies, it is fair to conclude that wherever it is at all consistent, arrangements can be made whereby the subject of local societies may be given one day in all the camps.

Then it will simply devolve upon those present interested in local societies and such speakers as are disposed to contribute their services for the one day, to step to the front and make it a Local Society Day.

If the proposition is favorably accepted, before another camping season, a proper system of management, collecting and distributing whatever may be collected, can be provided. Perhaps the National Association would be the proper party to refer this matter to.

The very interesting reports found in our Spiritual papers, of the recent convention held at Columbus, Ohio, in May last, in which a "pentecostal feast" was said to be in evidence during the whole session of forty-eight hours, and from which a "Spiritual revival was sent out sweeping the whole country."

Such was the enthusiasm, the harmony and brotherly love that prevailed in the convention, that all present felt that indeed there was an "outpouring of the spirit," and that from that time forward, all apathy, coldness and indifference in Spiritual circles would disappear. This is indeed encouraging, and I trust not deceptive nor misleading. But as we read of no plan being proposed whereby money could be raised for the support of local societies, or even for the National Organization, it still seems necessary that all legitimate means should be resorted to to accomplish that end. Hence an appeal to the managers of the camp-meeting associations is timely, and I trust will be kindly considered.

With all the enthusiasm and zeal manifested by our leaders at the convention referred to, and to their prediction of what is sure to follow, I must insist that without money to provide for the promulgation of a great cause, involving so many interests as Spiritualism does, that even decarnate spirits from the other side of life will not respond, however much they may desire to do so. Let us see.

Where are the churches to accommodate the thousands of converts already made? Where is the money to pay for the services of the many missionaries that are urgently sought in the destitute portions of our country? Where are the hospitals to which we can send our invalids, our broken-down mediums, that are exhausted from long services in our cause? Where are the institutions of learning to which those in pursuit of an education that will fit them for teachers and pastors of local societies? How can we expect to make and retain converts without some of the many advantages provided by all other sects and denominations that surround us?

And where is the evidence that our thinkers, our teachers, our leaders are giving this subject of ways and means much thought, much effort? They sometimes lead me to think that possibly some of them are in sympathy with a good old sanguine Spiritual brother, who from the platform at Onset, during a discussion upon the subject of organization, in which there were differences of opinion, said: "What is the use of discussing this subject? The spirits know what we need, and when they think we need organization they will organize us."

I do not charge that all are indifferent to this great necessity. On the contrary, I know all feel its importance. But only a few public speakers, teachers and leaders attend these great mass meetings and conventions, and it is only through them and the public press that the masses can be reached, and the real condition of our cause made known.

It has long seemed to me that if a combined effort was made by all thinkers and teachers, and persevered in, on all proper occasions, that a financial revival, similar to the one Brother Barrett refers to, could be successfully sent throughout the country which would result in another Pentecostal feast of fat things, of which we are in great need.

E. W. GOULD.

Oakland, Cal.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments)." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Spiritual Songs for the Use of Circles, Camp-meetings and Other Spiritualistic Gatherings." By Mattie E. Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"Mind and Body: Suggestions and Hypnotism Applied in Medicine and Education." By A. C. Halphide. President Chicago Society of Anthropology. For sale at this office. Price $1.

J. C. Bell's Letter to Earl Cranston.

Earl Cranston, Esq., Denver, Col.—Dear Sir:—I have no apology to offer for addressing you, and have not the "courage" to prefix or affix any of the various titles to which you may lay claim, except the address on the envelope, for fear that it might not otherwise reach you, and I do this under protest, if the following from the Cleveland Press of this date correctly reports you: "It is worth any cost in money; it is worth any cost in bloodshed, if we can make the millions of Chinese true and intelligent Christians." Such an utterance could only emanate from an idiotic, murderous fanatic, but never from a humane being interested in either the welfare or civilization of mankind.

In your insane, fanatical fury, you would violate every principle of love and humanity. You would trample under your bigoted and hypocritical "pious" heel the natural right of justice and liberty. You would deprive others from enjoying in peace the comfort of their own hope, their religious rights and customs. To accomplish your hellish design, you would, if necessary, involve the entire world in endless war and bloodshed; you would bring suffering and misery upon millions of innocent and harmless human beings.

When you succeed in restoring reason to the thousands in the asylums for the insane, a large portion of whom lost their sanity because of a fanaticism born from a religion whose curse hangs like a pall over a semi-civilized nation; when you empty the prisons which have been filled largely because of the idiotic doctrine of atonement, which is the greatest evil that has ever afflicted mankind, then, and not until then, will it be time to improve the religious systems of other countries, whose moral philosophy is equal, if not superior to our own. You need your missionaries at home, worse than China needs them.

Had I the money and could I purchase a microscope of sufficient power for you to discover your poor miserable shriveled soul, if there is any left, I would send it to you so you might view it.

In your profession, you profess to live according to the Mosaic law: "Thou shalt not kill," and to follow that meek and lowly Nazarene who tried to teach mankind to love one another. At this distance you appear to be a traitor to humanity, a disgrace to God, and ought to bring the blush of shame to the parents who gave you birth. I would advise you to take the whole matter to the Lord in prayer and remain on your knees until you get better sense. Respectfully,

J. C. BELL.

Glenville, Ohio, June 16, 1900.

"A Few Words About the Devil, and Other Essays." By Charles Bradlaugh. Paper, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

FOR a moment stop and consider. The Progressive Thinker is the one original dollar Spiritualist paper. It introduced a new era in the ranks of Spiritualism. Its success financially has been all that could be desired. Notwithstanding the rise in the price of print paper, it has still maintained its status as the only one dollar Spiritualist paper. Not only that, but it introduced the Divine Plan in its business with its subscribers—a portion of the profits of the office returning to them. Just think of the Seven Premium Books being sent out to our subscribers for $2.35. After paying the postage of these seven books, and the expense of mailing them, all that we have left is $1.50. You can readily see that we are furnishing them for less, by far, than the actual cost to us. We do this work in accordance with The Divine Plan, in order to assist in forming the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home. Read carefully our premium list, and you will certainly want to become a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker, if not so already, and obtain the books we announce.

"Talmagean Inanities, Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies; a Review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism." By Moses Hull For sale at this office. Price ten cents.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

"Wedding Chimes." By Delpha Pearl Hughes. A tasty, beautiful and appropriate wedding souvenir. Contains marriage ceremony, marriage certificate, etc., with choice matter in poetry and prose. Specially designed for the use of the Spiritualist and Liberal ministry. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango county, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

"The Mysteries of the Formation of the Earth, the Rising and Sinking of Continents, the Introduction of Man and His Destiny Revealed in God's Own Way and Time." A work of deep interest, given through the mediumship of Mrs. M. T. Longley, by an advanced band of ancient spirits. Price $1. For sale at this office.

The Commandments Analyzed, price 25 cents. Big Bible Stories, cloth 50 cents.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

CONTRIBUTORS.—Each contributor is alone responsible for any assertions or statements he may make. The editor allows this freedom of expression, believing that the cause of truth can be best subserved thereby. Many of the sentiments uttered in an article may be diametrically opposed to his belief, yet that is no reason why they should be suppressed; yet we wish it distinctly understood that our space is inadequate to publish everything that comes to hand, however much we might desire to do so. That must account for the non-appearance of YOUR article.

WRITE PLAINLY.—We would like to impress upon the minds of our correspondents that The Progressive Thinker is set up on a Linotype machine that must make speed equal to about four compositors. That means rapid work, and it is essential that all copy, to insure insertion in the paper, all other requirements being favorable, should be written plainly with ink on white paper, or with a typewriter, and only on one side of the paper.

ITEMS.—Bear in mind that items for the General Survey will all cases be adjusted to the space we have to occupy, and in order to do that they will generally have to be abridged more or less; otherwise many items would be crowded out. Sometimes a thirty-line item is cut down to ten lines, and ten lines to two lines, as occasion may require. Every item sent to us for publication, should contain the full name and address of the writer. We desire to know the source of every item that appears. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

Dr. P. S. George writes from Lincoln, Neb.: "I wrote you last week of being confined in the Pawnee City (Neb.) county jail. The authorities only kept me one night. The court fined me $50 and then remitted the fine and allowed me to return home."

Dr. C. W. Hidden, of Newburyport, Mass., closed a great temperance revival in Haverhill, on June 17. During his labors, covering a period of two weeks, one hundred and twenty-five adults, mostly drinking men, signed the pledge, and over one hundred boys pledged themselves to life-long total abstinence. Three services were held the last day. The Doctor received many floral tributes, and the hearty endorsement of the people, press and clergy of Haverhill.

The Washington (D. C.) Post has the following: "Pierre L. O. Keeler, the Spiritualist, who was arrested by Detectives Parhan and Gallaher, Wednesday night, after the latter had attended a seance in his parlor, at 918 H street northwest, on a charge of conducting an unlicensed entertainment, forfeited $20 collateral in the police court yesterday morning. He appeared in the police court building, but was not arraigned."

Fred Johnson writes from South Chicago, Ill.: "The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society will hold its first annual picnic at 119th street and Portland avenue, West Pullman, July 4, 1900. Take Calumet electric cars to grounds. Everybody welcome. Admission free."

Mrs. James L. Cornelius writs from St. Louis, Mo.: "In this new and beautiful truth that is now opening up to the hungry souls, we find our wants supplied, after long years of narrow-minded church creeds. We are a family of five, all believers, and living in love and harmony."

The Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald has the following: "Prof. Mack, Spiritualist, who was tried for appropriating a ring from Miss Lizzie Luders, was sentenced to-day to the Detroit House of Correction for ninety days. The first jury disagreed and he was tried a second time."

Geo. F. Perkins writes: "I have lectured twice in Milwaukee, Wis., with good success. Most of the meetings have closed for the season. Many desire them continued, but it is yet an open question as to who is willing to run the risk alone, as that is what it practically means in all cities in the summer. Legitimate work is poorly paid everywhere."

F. L. Bowen writes: "It seems to me I would not know how to pass off the time without The Progressive Thinker. It was my only companion last winter in Florida, after my dear wife went to the higher life. She did, when seeming to be asleep, talk with her father and mother for a number of days before she died, and about one or two days before she went, I was sitting by her bedside, and she smiled and looked pleased. I thought she was sleeping. Then she opened her eyes and looked at me and said: 'Oh! how beautiful. They are coming for me in the morning.' I asked her: 'Are you going?' She bowed. I said: 'My dear precious one, I can't let you go. I can't live without you.' Then she said: 'They are pulling me hard both ways.' Then she said: 'You can keep me until the morning,' and in the morning about 3 o'clock of December 11, 1899, she passed to the spirit world. She was a firm believer in Spiritualism, and a pure hearted woman. She used to say while here in life that if she died first she would come back and help me all she could, and she is with me in spirit a great part of the time."

Wm. Niess writes: "Our season of lectures is over for the hall in the city, but now we will try and enjoy a little recreation by attending to camp, excursions and general entertainments until the cool weather shall remind us that the time for outdoor exercises is past. At this time I wish to mention our Children's Progressive Lyceum excursion to Lake Brady on the 17th inst., which was a perfect success in every possible manner. The day was perfect; the woods in its best. The lake was a perfect fascination for the excursionists and all was merriment and happy good-will. The children of the Lyseum were under the direction of Conductor French, who had the children recite selections for the benefit of all present. Short addresses were made by Mr. Nicum, Mr. Gould and Mrs. Bacon, and messages were given from the spirit world by Mrs. Waterman and Mr. French. Mr. Barker, president of the First Association of Spiritualists, and his wife, guardian of the Lyceum, were also with us, assisted by members of the different committees, in their various departments to make all a perfect success. Mrs. Gray and Mrs. Barker are our Star ticket sellers, and they just made things hustle in that direction. We must not forget to mention Mr. Lyall and Mr. Kerr, for we could not well have gotten along without their assistance and presence, for they are such hustlers, especially when they know that they are appreciated. All who had anything to do with the excursion did well and nobly, and we wish to have them know that it is appreciated."

Take due notice, that all items for this page must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer. It will not do to say that Secretary or Correspondent writes so and so, without giving the full name and address of the writer. The items of those who do not comply with this request will be cast into the waste basket.

Moses Hull can be engaged for camp or grove meetings for the last Sunday in August and the first Sunday in September. Write him until July 15 at Lily Dale, N. Y.

W. D. Noyes writes: "I have just received word that the Independent Spiritual Association of Toledo, Ohio, will run an excursion train to the opening of the Columbus, Ohio, Camp, July 1."

Mrs. Henrietta Straub writes: "Many thanks for speedy dispatch of Encyclopedia of Death. The few glimpses I caught of its contents by a hasty survey, are to me a guarantee of the intrinsic worth of the book."

The Times, of Marshalltown, Iowa, says: "For some little time it has been a question whether or not the 1900 camp-meeting of the Central Iowa Spiritualists' Association would be held in this city, as have the meetings for the past several years. The officers and members of the executive committee in this city, however, have decided to begin the preliminary arrangements, as heretofore, and to hold the meeting here. The association has been quite prosperous in the past few years and Marshalltown's central location has brought in a large number of outside Spiritualists, from as far south as Oskaloosa and Ottumwa, west to Ames and Boone and east to Tama and Toledo and Belle Plaine. Those from the northern districts come from even a farther distance, owing to the fact that there is no other camp-meeting close to Marshalltown north. The meeting this year will be three weeks in length and will begin the last week in August. A great many of the mediums in attendance last year will be present again this year, as well as a number of others, including one or two from New York. The officers of the association residing in Marshalltown are Mr. John D. Vail, president; Mr. I. F. Andrews, vice-president; and Mr. Walter Wilson and Mrs. Eva McCoy, members of the executive committee. Mr. Louis W. Fox, of Albion, is also an executive committee member."

G. F. Lewis writes from Corry, Pa.: "The intelligent article of Dr. T. Wilkins, in The Progressive Thinker of June 16, on Hypnotism, is wise. Hypnotism has done much less damage among Spiritualists than among sectarians. Peter the Hermit hypnotized thousands—yea, millions, to join the Crusades, where they miserably perished. A. B. Simson, of Nyack, N. Y., hypnotizes hundreds of poor sick women. He so thoroughly overpowers them that they strip off their jewelry and cast it into his contribution box, while he lives in high feather, said to have amassed over a million. John A. Dowie beats them all."

The Hindoo idea of the Evil One is as follows, as set forth by the Westminster Review: Siva is typical both of destruction and of reproduction. But the latter attribute was doubtless a later addition to the sum of his qualities. The original conception of this deity was that of a power delighting in destruction, in the achievement of physical evil and wrong, and in hurling death and destruction upon the people and their land. He is represented in the sacred books of the Hindoos as "the terrible destroyer"—"the one who delights in the destruction of men." But in all this there is no whisper as yet of any moral qualities of evil. The conception is entirely one of physical power, used with the utmost malevolence and injustice against men. Along with his principal wife, who is variously called Devi, Durga, Uma and Kali, he is portrayed as the incarnation of physical evil, wrong, injustice or misfortune. In the "Puranas" Siva is described as wandering about surrounded by ghosts and goblins, inebriated, naked and with disheveled hair, covered with the ashes of a funeral pile, ornamented with human skulls and bones, sometimes laughing and sometimes crying. Devi, his consort, is represented with a hideous and a terrible countenance, streaming with blood, encircled with snakes, hung round with skulls and human heads, and in all respects resembling a "fury" rather than a goddess. The only pleasure which Siva and Devi feel is when their altars are drenched with blood, which, of course, could not be shed without the destruction of some form of life.

John S. Jackson writes from Lowell, Mass.: "The First Spiritualist Society of Lowell is drawing to a close its metings for the season. Since last October we have had some of the best speakers on the Spiritualistic platform. During this season we have had Mrs. Nettie H. Harding, Mrs. Ida P. A. Whitlock, Mrs. Annie Laura Jones, Mrs. A. J. Pettingill (wife of Judge Pettingill), Mrs. Prentice, Mrs. Hattie Mason, Mrs. Annie E. Cunningham, Mr. A. P. Blynn, Mr. J. S. Scarlett, and others. Mrs. Whitlock, of Providence, R. I., occupied our platform eleven Sundays since Christmas. She is one of the most refined and advanced speakers in our ranks. During the months of July and August we meet at the Earnscliff Grove, about three miles out (the property of the Misses Harris, two of our veteran Spiritualists). Our music has been given special attention. We have as soloist Mr. W. J. Hervey, one of Signor Potoli of Boston's pupils, a fine contralto."

Will C. Hodge has been lecturing at Brodhead, Wis., where he had a splendid audience.

Mrs. M. J. Carter writes from Jonesboro, Ind.: "The Spiritualists of Jonesboro and adjoining cities and towns will hold a Fourth of July celebration under Carter's maple trees, corner of Maine and Seventh streets, Jonesboro, Ind. Dr. H. C. Andrews, the inspirational lecturer, will address the people on that occasion. A large crowd is expected. Come one, come all, with well filled baskets and a spiritual feast."

G. W. Kates will speak in Hendrum, Minn., June 26 and 27; in Grand Forks, N. D., June 28, 29 and July 1; in Wheaton, Minn., July 4 to 9, when they dedicate the local Spiritual Temple. Address them 560 Seventh avenue North, Minneapolis, Minn.

W. H. Selvoy writes from Wheeling, W. Va.: "Mrs. Alice Baker, trance and inspirational lecturer, of Cleveland, O., has been with us during the month of June doing missionary work. Although we have no organization here we have many that understand the beautiful philosophy of Spiritualism. Mrs. Baker has been untiring in her efforts with us. She is a good worker, and a lady of culture and refinement."

Mrs. C. H. Mullins writes: "Dr. A. B. Spinney spoke to a large and appreciative audience Sunday evening, June 17, at 404 Ogden avenue. Subject, 'What Spiritualism has done for the world.'"

The Topeka (Kansas) Capital says: "According to the statement of Mrs. S. V. Searing, a Spiritualistic test medium of this city, ex-Senator W. A. Peffer has a great future as a leader in the mystic circles of Spiritualism. She says that if the ex-Senator will devote a little more time to the study of the psychic sciences, he will be one of the most able platform speakers of the day. The occasion of this remarkable prediction was an address made by Senator Peffer in the Spiritualist hall, 422 Kansas avenue, Sunday night. He characterized the fruits of the spirits as being love, patience, faith, kindness, and others of the virtues, and thought that it was an indication of the onward march of the times that men were becoming more liberal and tolerant in their beliefs. He said he was an Episcopalian, and that notwithstanding the exclusive character of that church he could affiliate with the Spiritualists at any time, and wished it was possible for the members of all denominations to be able to go to each other's meetings, and be so liberal that they could 'tell the good and keep back the bad' in all instances."

For the first time in the history of any court a ghost was to-day introduced as evidence in a divorce proceeding at St. Louis, Mo. There were other grounds of complaint, but the most attractive feature to the big crowd present was the testimony in reference to the spook. As the result of the proceedings Charles L. Bates, diamond expert of a large retail house here, was granted a legal separation from his wife, who is now in New York, and the custody of their boy. In one of the depositions Mrs. Louise C. Patterson, a daughter from San Francisco, testified that her mother had stated that she was in love with the ghost of Actor Billy Florence and was engaged to marry him in the next world. Another was to the effect that Mrs. Bates kept a picture of the dead actor in her room and that she said he came to her in material form."

O. W. Apperson writes from Kokomo, Ind.: "Dr. E. E. Parker, the trumpet medium of Richmond, has just concluded a six weeks' engagement with the Spiritualists of this city. This is the sixth engagement of Dr. Parker with the society here, and his seances have steadily grown in interest and attendance. At the conclusion of his engagement here Dr. Parker had an urgent call from the society in Tipton, Ind., where he held a week's joint seances with Mrs. Julia Thomas, the materializing medium, holding a trumpet seance one night and a materializing seance the next, and with wonderful results. Their success in Tipton was most phenomenal, being largely attended. The last seance given there was a materializing seance, and to get room for the large crowd of people who desired to attend, one of the leading lawyers of Tipton placed his large office at their disposal, and it was filled with lawyers, doctors and the leading people of Tipton. At this seance twenty full forms materialized."

Mrs. E. S. Parker writes from Owosso, Mich.: "We have been blessed again in the ministry of that gifted woman, Mrs. A. E. Sheets, of Grand Ledge, Mich. She was with us three weeks, leaving us to attend the annual convention of the society at Sturgis, Mich. She is a great favorite with the Owosso society. The 12th of June we had the pleasure of making the acquaintance of Mr. Ernest Lincoln, who had been filling an engagement with the Lansing society. He is a trance speaker of unusual ability for one so young, teaching Spiritualism from a practical standpoint as well as scientific."

Cora Fuller writes: "Sunday, June 17, dawned bright and clear. All nature seemed at her best on this the opening day of Pon-she wa-ing camp-meeting, and at 10:30 a. m. a fair-sized audience had assembled under the canopy of leaves and branches to listen to the words of welcome which were given by Mr. R. L. Myers, of Pon-she-wa-ing, and responded to by Mr. O. A. Edgerly, of Lynn, Mass. After the noon hour people began to come by boat and carriage, and at 2:30 a good audience was waiting to listen to the eloquence of Mr. A. E. Tisdale. The spiritual songs rendered by Mr. Tisdale and the reading by Miss Cora Fuller were well received. Mr. Joseph King, of Pipestone, Mich., will be in camp this week."

Scribe writes: "G. W. Kates and wife held a series of daily grove meetings on the lake front at Bemidji, Minn., June 17 to 24. In a beautiful little grove overlooking the lake, seats and platform had been erected. There the people came and listened, going away reflecting and discussing. The meetings, the lectures and tests have done great good here to inform our people of Spiritualism. A counter meeting nearby was started by the Methodists, but our audiences increased each day. We have a good working society in Bemidji, organized by Mr. and Mrs. Kates. The interest is growing. Our home meetings are interesting and we have purchased an organ, and will soon have a temple, as the lot is already secured."

Nellie S. Baade writes: "The First Spiritualist Philosophical Society of Detroit, Mich., closed its meetings the last Sunday of May, and last Monday evening held a reception in our parlors, which was well attended. Speeches, recitations, music and refreshments made the time pass very pleasantly. One of the surprises was the presentation of a beautiful diamond ring to myself from from the Philosophical Society, also a banner and badge of honor and a diamond brooch from a lady who has become greatly interested in Spiritualism through our guides, and several other valuable presents, amounting to a considerable sum. We speak of this reception as we greatly appreciate all that has been done for us by the dear friends. Eight years of steady work for one society has greatly endeared them to me, and an earnest call to remain their pastor another year, makes me feel that my spirit guides are being appreciated as never before. I have been so overworked that illness was the result, and I have been obliged to cancel many engagements for the season. I shall attend only one camp where, we will be chairwoman, at beautiful Island Lake, where everything is conducive to health and happiness. Great improvements have been and are being made in the hotel and grounds; in fact, the very best accommodations for man and beast, and with some of the best talent possible to procure, we anticipate a grand and glorious time. Detroit has at last awakened to the fact that Island Lake is one of the finest summer resorts in Michigan, and many are going to attend and enjoy the meetings for the first time. I hope all camps may prosper and good bee the result."

The Fort Wayne News of June 14 says: "At the last meeting of the Ministerial Association that body passed a resolution which declares in effect that the association does not believe that notices of the meetings of any Spiritualistic, Theosophical or Christian Science bodies should be published with other religious notices under the head of 'church notices.' Rev. J. W. Lake, secretary of the association, was instructed to convey the sense of the resolution to the heads of the newspapers of the city. Mr. Lake, when seen by a News representative to-day said: 'The action of the association ought not to be misunderstood. We do not object to the publication of these meetings, but do not believe that they should be denominated churches, when they are not organized as such. They are not churches in the eye of the law and have no power to solemnize marriages. We do not attempt to dictate to the newspapers what they should publish nor how it should be done, but simply desire to call attention to the matter and the views of the association upon it.'" How jealously is the pulpit guarding its rights. The fact that it fears the announcements of free-thought meetings is significant of the loss of its power over the masses.

A special to the Chicago Times-Herald says: "Rev. A. Pieper has set the Lutheran Synod of the Wisconsin district agog by a series of theses in which he maintains that Spiritualism is nothing more nor less than witchcraft, and so far from being modern dates back to Bible times. Mr. Pieper in his paper held that while many of the manifestations shown by Spiritualists are the result of natural conditions, some are unusual and unaccountable. But they are all on the same plane as the witchcraft of Bible and later times. Many members of the synod took exception to Mr. Pieper's views and in discussion maintained that the phenomena mentioned by him were the result of willful or self-deception on the part of the individuals who made the investigations. The facts, they held, were not well-authenticated."

A special "benefit" will be given the Band of Harmony at the home of Mrs. Hattie F. R. Peet, No. 48 Ashland boulevard, on Thursday afternoon and evening, June 28, from 3 to 10 p. m. Ladies will bring lunch as usual, and coffee will be served at 6 p. m. The pastor, Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond will be present, and a fine program will be provided. All members and friends are cordially invited to be present.

Jacob Bullion writes from Mesick, Mich.: "W. O. Knowles, of Grand Rapids, has been among us again for a few days and stirred up the people in this locality by his logical and fine tests. He lectured at the Carpenter schoolhouse and gave many tests to full houses. He also spoke twice at our schoolhouse to appreciative audiences. His parlor seances caused much wonderment; one in particular held in the writer's parlor, where independent writing was produced on paper tablets. A mouth-organ owned by our son while on earth having been placed on the table, was played upon by its former owner during the seance. Trumpet speaking was also a feature of the evening's entertainment, but the most noteworthy and enjoyable occasion was a grove meeting and picnic held near Sperman on the 17th. The morning's gathering was comprised of Spiritualists mostly, who enjoyed a short address from the Doctor, followed by tests. After filling our haversacks with the good things, we were prepared to hold the fort, and by 2 o'clock we were surrounded on all sides, and should have surrendered but for the timely mounting of our big gun, which was well loaded with shot and shell, and after a few shots were fired we saw plainly that the day was ours, and so it proved, for Mr. Knowles was met on all sides with congratulations and requests to come again when the meeting adjourned."

Quincy Spiritualist Hall, 301 Maine street, Quincy, Ill. Services there every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Mediums and friends will meet with a happy welcome at these headquarters.

Frank T. Ripley has closed a two months engagement at Fort Wayne, Ind. Address all letters to him in care of 40 Loomis street, Chicago, Ill.

A. B. Gates writes from Cortland, N. Y.: "Last Sunday night an audience of about one hundred gathered together to listen to the inspiring messages from their loved ones through Maggie Waite. Capt. John W. Strawbridge came with a message to his wife, bringing unmistakable evidence of his spirit presence. Mrs. Jennie Conant came with a message for her son. A spirit calling himself Joel Rouse manifested and wished to send a message to his two sons who resided in Upper Isle, La Vousies and LeRoy. The spirit was anxious to reach them. He requested this message be sent to his sons: 'I want you to attend to your business and come to a settlement between yourselves, dividing the property while you are in earth life, and not leaving it for some one else to settle. I beg of you, my boys, to attend to this at once, and by so doing, do justice to the dead as well as the living.' Many other communications were given."

Mrs. Summers has just returned to Chicago from a ten days' sojourn in 'Egypt' (Southern Illinois), a region unfrequented by the apostles of our movement, where she has been doing work as a missionary; one Sunday at Greenup and one at Vevay Park, in Universalist churches, occupying the principal hours of worship. Under the auspices of the "Students of Nature," of Chicago, she organized at Greenup a society under the local name of "The Students of Truth," with Editor Ratcliff as the president and Mrs. Vanover as the secretary."

Joseph Carn writes from Boston, Mass.: "We have closed a most successful season of lectures in Boston, through the mediumship of Mrs. N. J. Willis, of Cambridge. Her services were secured by M. S. Ayer, at the First Spiritual Temple. Mr. Ayer's wonderful success is due to his indomitable will and push. Thousands of dollars are spent by him annually to upbuild the cause of Spiritualism, which is so dear to his soul."

Isaac S. Lee, for 40 years a Spiritualist, inspirational lecturer and psychometric test medium, has returned to Quincy, Ill., his home since boyhood. Those desiring his services in Illinois, Missouri or Iowa address him at 301 Maine street, Quincy, Ill.

of music in the house. She plays under severe test conditions, blindfolded and flannel thrown over the keys. Selections from the old masters are played with an ease that puts to flight any doubt that might arise in the mind in regard to her inspiration. The music that is given through her hands could not be acquired by practice. I wish that all lovers of soul music could hear her play. She plays several selections before the opening of the services at Arlington Hall every Sunday evening, and also graciously consents to play for those who call at her parlors, 611 East 8th street. She and her mother, Mrs. Carrie L. Bean, are conducting the only Spiritual meeting here this summer, at Arlington, Hall, and large crowds are in attendance every Sunday evening."

Carrie F. Weatherford writes: "During the coming season my eldest daughter, Essie, aged 16, will positively assist me with all engagements, giving tests and helping with her fine elocution at entertainments for the benefit of the associations; also aiding in lyceum organization. This daughter has a very remarkable phase of mediumship, as she improvises with me, singing alto. Our friends will remember that we accept subjects for our songs from prominent skeptics only, thus furnishing ample proof of spirit help. We hope to go south for the winter months, but wish to hear from northern societies for the fall months. Address me at Alaska, Michigan."

Isaac S. Lee writes from Quincy, Ill.: "A determined effort is now being made to revive the work in Quincy. Dr. Bacher with others have put their shoulders to the wheel, rented a hall, furnished it for services and invite all good spirits to come here and learn to be happy. This hall and rooms adjoining have been dedicated as Spiritualist headquarters here in Quincy. Last Sunday, though it was raining, quite a number of people was present, and also a large number of youth in this locality. Interest is awakening here, for several persons came to me this week to learn when we would have our next meeting. We have public free seances every Wednesday evening."

Mrs. Josie Walker Brubaker writes from Kansas City, Mo.: "One evening last week, I listened to the inspired music of Miss Edith Edwards. It was the sweetest, grandest, and most soul stirring I have ever heard; music that filled the soul with rapture. She has never studied music; there is not a sheet

The Sturgis Annual Meeting.

It gave me great pleasure last week to attend the annual anniversary meeting, held in Sturgis, Mich., the 16th and 17th of the month. Forty-two years ago I delivered the dedicatory address at the opening of this magnificent church edifice. That occasion was one long to be remembered. There were present such distinguished men as Judge Coffinberry, Joel Tiffany, jurist, Selden J. Finney, Frank L. Wadsworth, Giles B. Stebbins, a most valiant defender of the truth now residing in Detroit, and other speakers.

Among the many anniversaries that I have attended in this Southern Michigan city, never was I present at a more earnest, enthusiastic and harmonious meeting than the one just held. The church edifice was packed and Mrs. Sheets was at her best. Her trance addresses, under the controlling influence of Ormond, the ancient giver of flowers, were simply magnificent. The singing was very fine and the conference meetings were enthusiastic. The Baptist preacher of the city being present, I made the occasion one of giving the facts, proofs, and the doctrines of Spiritualists. The platform was beautifully decorated with flowers and palms. It was an occasion long to be remembered.

A most excellent letter was read from Brother R. Spalding, of Chicago, who was for many years a resident of Sturgis and a singer in the choir. His soul is still afire with the glories of Spiritualism—and with the living reforms of this present time. Here is a quotation from his letter:

"It is about fifty years since Dr. J. M. Peebles, Giles Stebbins, Warren Chase, and Joel Tiffany first stepped one by one, on to the Spiritualist platform in Sturgis. Tiffany was logical, Finney was eloquent, Chase was sarcastic, Stebbins good and true, but Dr. Peebles was theological, loving and pathetic, and how we used to linger after an address for a hand-shake. I doubt if other speakers could be found who have done so much for the cause as these workers. Some of them long ago garnered their sheaves, but Dr. Peebles still remains and we understand, speaks in your convention. Long may this venerable worker be spared to reap the harvest of his toil. Truly he has journeyed a long and dusty road, and many years ago earned the title of 'Pilgrim.' We propose to add another prefix and call him the 'White Pilgrim.' He has seen the result of his early labors, in honest sturdy Spiritualism all over the world, so rapid has been its growth. It has woven its tendrils around every church except perhaps the Catholic, and changed the complexion of their creeds. And even the moss-grown old Roman, venerable with age, must crumble before this all-consuming electric fire kindled the hearts of earth's dwellers. If we are faithful to the sacred trust given us by the spirit world, for they cannot work alone, we on earth's plane have our part to perform. We have something more to do than to fold our hands and sing 'The Sweet Bye and Bye.' We must work now and now. Long ago Spiritualists gave to the world the message of 'Reform,' and the world has been watching for some of the results of their profession, and asks, 'Where are your churches, schools and charitable institutions?' We must confess there is a lack in our ranks in this direction. Spiritualists ought to be doing something to aid in establishing a spiritual republic on earth, as it is in the realms beyond. It rests with us to evolve some plan for the amelioration of the toiling masses, and render charity unnecessary by releasing for the people those natural opportunities given to man by Almighty God, by which to procure the necessities and comforts of life."

J. M. PEEBLES, M. D.

Battle Creek, Mich.

Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich.

The subscriber and wife reached this, the Pon-she-wa-ing camp on the 15th, the opening day, and as usual there were many minor details to adjust and put in order. As camp missionaries we are able to suggest and assist in the material as well as the spiritual work so necessary in the infancy of every camp. A description of the locality of the Pon-she-wa-ing camp grounds and the surroundings would occupy too much of your valuable space. Your readers and the scribe must be content with the simple statement that N. M. Kellam's selection of grounds and surroundings is beautiful; an attractive, convenient resort hotel, with Mr. Kellam, his efficient wife, genial daughter just budding into womanhood, and Miss Cora Fuller, the calm, clear-headed, experienced camp counselor, niece and cousin of the Kellam family, at the head of this new camp, it bids fair to rank second to none in the state. From a brief acquaintance with the Kellams we have come to believe in them, that they will stand the test, which all camp leaders, owners and managers of camps must stand, when the tests are made.

At this time "tests" are the watchword, Spiritualists ought to be able to face every material, moral and spiritual test; can they do so? Where do we stand, and "where are we at?"

Spiritualists ought to know that they cannot hide their real condition, or position, do they perceive this? Do our ambitious leaders ever stop to consider that their efforts, lives and acts are transparent? Do they realize that thousands are ashamed of their unjust schemes?

Brothers Edgerly and Tisdale are engaged as spiritual teachers during the entire three weeks of this northern Michigan camp, which is dedicated to spiritual freedom, yes, to "Spiritual freedom," without compromise.

The writer and wife are teaching the laws of health and right living, and find the people here as everywhere, anxious for a change, and receptive to the practical common sense health lessons we are giving.

A good work will be begun at the camp this year, the foundation is laid, the work will go on; there is a deep spiritual sentiment that pervades all of the expressions of this camp, this will attract and inspire visitors.

Oden, Mich. DR. M. E. CONGER.

A $12 Bath Cabinet for only $5.00

Our new 1900 style Square Quaker guaranteed best of all cabinets at any price. Has real door on hinges, steel frame, best materials, rubber lined folds flat, lasts 20 years. Turkish and Vapor baths at home 5c each. Open the millions of pores, sweats poisons out of the blood, keeps you clean and healthy, beautifies complexion. Physicians recommend it for Colds, LaGrippe, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Obesity, Female Ills, all Blood, Skin, Nerve or Kidney troubles. Money refunded after 30 days use, if not as represented. Price with heater, directions, formulas, $5.00. Face Steamer $1.00 extra. Order today. Write us. Valuable Book FREE. Big Wages. Splendid Seller. Agents Wanted. World Mfg. Co., 37 World Bl'd'g, Cincinnati, O.

We recommend above firm as reliable.—Editor.

EYESIGHT RESTORED

Failing Eyesight, Cataracts or Blindness Cured without the use of the knife.

W. O. COFFEE, M. D.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted eye specialist of Des Moines, Iowa, has perfected a mild treatment by which anyone suffering from failing eyesight, cataracts, blindness or any disease of the eyes can cure themselves at home. 18,000 sufferers in all parts of the country were cured last year by his wonderful absorption method. Judge George Edmunds, a leading attorney of Carthage, Ills., 70 years old, was cured of cataracts on both eyes. Mrs. Lucinda Hammond, Aurora, Neb., 77 years old, had cataracts on both eyes and Dr. Coffee's remedies restored her to perfect eyesight. If you are afflicted with any eye trouble write to Dr. Coffee and tell him all about it. He will then tell you just what he can do. He will also send you Free of charge his 80 page book, "The New System of Treating Diseases of the Eye." It is full of interesting and valuable information. All cures are permanent. Write to-day for yourself or friend to W. O. COFFEE, M. D., 812 Good Block, Des Moines, Ia.

Daniel K. Tenney's BOOKS

The Earth Not Created.
Fallacy of All Cosmic Theories....Price, 15 cts.
An able argument to show that the world has always existed.

Never-Ending Life,
Assured by Science.....Price, 6 cts.
The best scientific argument in favor of a future life that has ever before been made.

Jehovah Interviewed,
Or Orthodoxy from Headquarters...Price, 6 cts.
A newspaper reporter goes up to heaven and interviews Jehovah.

Theology,
Its, Origin, Career and Destiny....Price, 10 cts.
One of the best and most comprehensive summing up of the absurdities of the Christian Theology that has ever before appeared.

Holy Smoke in the Holy Land.
Price, 10 cts.
Susan H. Wixon says: "I have read, first and last, many accounts of Palestine, or 'the Holy Land,' but have never seen anything in that line that pleased me so well as this description by Daniel K. Tenney."

The Plan of Salvation. Price, 10 cts.
In this pamphlet Mr. Tenney shows the absurdity of the Christian "Plan of Salvation" in so clear and plain a manner that any Christian who has a spark of reason left cannot fail to see it.

"Owed" to the Clergy. Price, 6 cts.
An address read before the Free Thought Congress held in Paine Hall, Boston, Nov. 17th, 1899.

The Master's Masterpiece,
Or the Sermon on the Mount.....Price, 10 cts.
This is the most thorough exposition of the fallacies of this noted "sermon" that was ever before published.

Modern Theology and Its Ideal Jesus
Price, 10 cts.
The absurdities of the reputed teachings of Jesus are here shown up as no other writer has ever presented them before, which will convince any honest reader that the most of them are consummate nonsense.

The Hon. Daniel K. Tenney, the author of these books, has been for many years the leading lawyer in one of the most distinguished law firms in Chicago, and there is not a more able writer in the Liberal ranks.

Harmonics of Evolution.
The Philosophy of Individual Life, Based Upon Natural Science
As taught by modern masters of law. By Florence Huntley. An exceedingly interesting and distinctly valuable contribution to the literature of evolution, unfolding its laws from the deepest and clearer spiritual aspect, and indicating the defects of the Darwinian theory. Spiritualists and Materialists alike can gain much from its perusal. Price, finely bound in cloth, $2. For sale at this office.

Woman: A Lecture Delivered to Ladies Only.
By Mrs. Dr. Hulburt. On the present status of woman, physically, mentally, morally and spiritually. The divine law of true harmonial marriage, etc. Price, 10c.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE. PART II.
Judges, Kings, Prophets and Apostles. Comments on the Old and New Testaments, from Joshua to Revelation. The comments are keen, bright, spicy, full of wit, the work of radical thinkers, who are not ignorant of the higher criticism. There is not a dull page. Paper, 50c.

MISS JUDSON'S BOOKS.
WHY SHE BECAME A SPIRITUALIST.
264 pages. One copy, $1; six copies, $5.

FROM NIGHT TO MORN;
Or, An Appeal to the Baptist Church.
32 pages. One copy, 15 cents; ten copies, $1.

THE BRIDGE BETWEEN TWO WORLDS.
209 pages. One copy, bound in cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents.

For Sale at this Office, 40 Loomis Street.

ENCYCLOPEDIA ... OF ... BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM ... OR ... A CONCORDANCE
To the principal passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism;
Together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible.
BY MOSES HULL.

Much that is in this book appeared in an abridged form in a series of nine full pages of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER. These articles were prepared at the call of hundreds of Spiritualists who felt the need of some kind of document for ready reference. They only seemed to whet the appetite for more; hence the publication of this work.

The author, Moses Hull, has written many volumes on Spiritualistic and other themes and each one is full of careful study on the subject chosen. Mr. Hull, in his introduction of this work says:

"Hoping that this book will serve to lead the people out of the wilderness of doubt and despair; and that when Spiritualism shall have wrested the Bible from its 'sanctified' enemies, it will not 'spike' it, but will use it to batter down the walls of Christian superstition and ignorance, I send it out on its errand of enlightenment with the humble prayer that it will prove a divine benediction to every reader."

THE ENCYCLOPEDIA OF BIBLICAL SPIRITUALISM contains 585 pages, beautifully printed on good paper, contains a full-page portrait of the author and is handsomely bound in cloth. Every Spiritualist should have this work.

PRICE $1, FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE

THE PSYCHOGRAPH
—OR—
DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means of developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Orient, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose gravestones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

E. D. BABBITT'S WORKS.

Human Culture and Cure.
Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. Paper cover, 50 cents.

Human Culture and Cure.
Part Second. Marriage, Sexual Development and Social Upbuilding. Cloth, 75 cents.

Social Upbuilding,
Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennobling of Humanity. Paper cover, 15 cents.

Health and Power.
A Handbook of Cure, Etc. Cloth, 25 cents; Leather, 35 cents.

Religion.
Most thoughtful, spiritual and excellent. Cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

Principles of Light and Color.
One of the greatest books of the age, $5; by mail 32 cents extra.

Studies in the Outlying Fields of Psychic Science.
To which is added Spiritual Phenomena; How to investigate their various phases; how to form circles and develop mediumship; an absolute test of genuine mediumship. By Hudson Tuttle.
A most excellent work. Every Spiritualist should have it. Price, cloth, 75c.

Three Journeys Around the World,
Or Travels in the Pacific Islands, New Zealand, Australia, Ceylon, India,
And other Oriental countries. By J. M. Peebles, A. M., M. D., Ph. D. In this splendid large book Dr. Peebles has concentrated a vast amount of valuable information. It is exceedingly entertaining and readable, and Spiritualism as he found it everywhere in his travels receives due attention, making the book of special value and interest to Spiritualists. 454 large pages, finely bound, at the low price of $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Bridge Between Two Worlds.
BY ABBY A. JUDSON.
With portrait of the author. Deeply spiritual and instructive. An excellent work. Price, cloth, $1.00; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin, Heights, Ohio.

NOTE.—The Questions and Answers have called forth such a host of respondents, that to give all equal hearing compels the answers to be made in the most condensed form, and often clearness is perhaps sacrificed to this forced brevity. Proofs have to be omitted, and the style becomes thereby assertive, which of all things is to be deprecated. Correspondents often weary with waiting for the appearance of their questions and write letters of inquiry. The supply of matter is always several weeks ahead of the space given, and hence there is unavoidable delay. Every one has to wait his time and place, and all are treated with equal favor.

NOTICE—No attention will be given anonymous letters. Full name and address must be given, or the letters will not be read. If the request be made, the name will not be published. The correspondence of this department has become excessively large, especially letters of inquiry requesting private answers, and while I freely give whatever information I am able, the ordinary courtesy of correspondents is expected. HUDSON TUTTLE.

Mrs. O. Potter: Q. Christians claim that according to statistics there are more adherents to Christianity to-day, in all the so-called Christian nations, than ever before, even in proportion to number of inhabitants. Is this correct?

A. According to a statement made Jan. 18, 1900, in the New York World, the assertion that church membership is increasing is answered in a most conclusive manner. Although without the least support by facts, and false in intention, it has been published and republished by the religious press, until it passes without contradiction. The census reports are unreliable, for the membership is always overstated because all those who incline to the church are counted in full membership. It is presumable that New York City, as the foremost city of the United States, fairly represents the religious strength as compared with the opposite, yet with every attempt to make the church showing as great as possible, there are 1,300,000 persons in Greater New York, without any church connection. In one ward in Brooklyn of 25,000 there is not a single Protestant church, or mission. In the Dakotas the church membership is only 18 per cent of the population; in Texas, 29 per cent, and in South Carolina 43 per cent—the highest of any state.

There is a wide difference between actual and nominal church members. The census soon to be made will report two-thirds of the population as belonging to the various churches. What is the actual number that attend church, and are in full communion? The average townships in the most populous sections, contain from two to five thousand inhabitants. There are usually two church buildings at some central place, with seating capacity of from two to three hundred each. The average attendance may be placed at one-half their seating capacity. It is only on rare occasions that in a country township one-fifth of the population attend church—or that there is seating capacity for more than that proportion.

S. J. Peel: Q. What is meant by spiritual death, as used by Swedenborg and some spiritual writers? Can the spirit be annihilated?

A. The Bible texts from which the conclusion that certain spirits would be annihilated at some time do not warrant that theory. Among the strongest, perhaps, is this from Ephesians I. 4:18: "Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them because of their blindness of heart," and from Col. 2:18: "And you being dead in your sin." There are many others, but all have the same thought. Spiritual death is to yield to the lower nature, or in Bible language, being absorbed in "sin." The sense of all these passages is so clear it would appear impossible to misunderstand them. In the lurid visions of Revelations, the final plunge into hell is the "eternal death," the "second death," or "spiritual death."

With that peculiar elasticity which makes the Bible capable of supporting any and every theory, even if in direct antagonism with each other, by an inner spiritual significance, spiritual death is asserted to mean the annihilation of the spirit by a process similar to the death of the physical body.

It does not follow, that if man exists after death as a spirit, he will exist forever. It is only evidence that his life continues into a new plane of existence. But the processes by which a spiritual being is evolved strongly support the idea that that existence is continuous and without end to those who have attained a certain degree of perfection. There are aborted spiritual forms, as there are physical. As all the lower races of animals, and the lowest of mankind, but once fully endowed with a completed spiritual organization, then immortality is assured. This is not dependent on belief, on goodness or sinfulness, but on organic and spiritual development.

"Correspondent": Q. The following query in The Progressive Thinker has puzzled me also, and I call attention to it in the Question and Answer Department: "And now I wish to say that the fact so far as I know, that no spirit ever gave warning to prevent a premature burial, was something that ever puzzled me when holding a belief in Spiritualism, for 'guardian angels' who could not do that much in some cases, must be very helpless or non-existent, and the latter is now my belief."

A. The same thoughts have been expressed in regard to premonition of danger. They are received by some persons, perhaps only once in their life time, and by them they are saved from some great misfortune. Countless others rush directly to the brink of precipices over which they fall, and no warning comes to them. If they have guardian spirits, why do they not tell them of the danger? If one can be warned, why cannot another? Because they cannot we are by no means warranted in rushing to the conclusion that these spirits are "very helpless or non-existent." Where the way is opened by the recipient being sensitive to their thoughts, the guidance can be given, otherwise it cannot be. A medium may be readily controlled by one spirit and unresponsive to another.

If we would send a telephone message, we would have to use a transmitting instrument. We would not expect to send one by means of a chair, table, book, or other article. If we were disappointed when we found that we could not do so, we might say with this correspondent we are "helpless or non-existent" for really there is scarcely anything that will receive our thoughts! Instead of complaining of the guardian angels, would it not be wiser to attempt to conform to the conditions which makes control possible? If the shutters are closed and the curtains drawn of our dwelling, can we expect the sunlight to stream in? If we want the light, we must open wide the windows!

J. H. Viser: Q. (1) Has the earth-life for its object the preparation for the life to come? This is widely taught and that the experience gained on earth is necessary to round out and complete the existence which is to follow.

(2) The temperature of space is said to be 400 degrees below zero; is it not a frigid place for the spirit world?

A. According to spiritual science the object attained by the earth-life is the evolution of a spiritual being. In the normal order of events that spirit has a half-century more or less of experience in the physical body. But this is not necessary, once evolved, whether it departs in infancy or in maturest age, the spirit goes right on in its development. The life in the spirit-world is a continuance of this, and there is no necessity of returning to receive its experiences. That it is a "probationary school" and for "preparation" for the life to come, is a conception, shown by its phraseology, to be divined from mistaken theological fancies. The vast majority of people are less prepared for spirit life at seventy-five than in infancy. If they have had experience, it has been that which has dragged them down into the mire of selfishness and and materiality, and blighted their spiritual perceptions. If the fact was forcefully imprinted on the mind that we are spirits now, as distinctly as we shall ever be in the future; flesh-clad, yet spirits, and that we have begun right here and now on our endless journey, then this earth life might become a training-school for eternity. Then our every thought and action might seem to have a two-fold relation; one to this life and one to the life beyond. We should begin the task here, which almost as a rule is now deferred until life is resumed over the borders of this existence.

Inquirer, Boston, Mass.: Q. What is Spiritualism?

A. As a science Spiritualism is a knowledge of the psychical or spiritual nature of man; and as spirit is the moving force of the universe, the study is that of creation, and is not complete until the unknown becomes known. In a narrower sense, as applied to the communion between spirits and man, it embraces the facts, conditions and laws of that intercourse. It unites the psychical phenomena of all ages, and races of mankind by proving that they are governed by the same underlying laws.

Modern Spiritualism is distinguished from that of the past by the acceptance of the doctrine of law. That the spiritual realm is governed by laws as fixed and determinable as those which rule physical matter. It unitizes all conflicting manifestations by reference to common fundamental principles and laws, thereby eliminating miracles, and furnishing data by which right judgment may be formed. It reduces a realm of conjecture, fancy, and whimsical credulity to the rule of law, and makes spirit the highest product of evolution, in fact the resultant of interminable line of living beings from the protoplasmic cells of the primitive ages.

One who believes in spirit manifestation is called a Spiritualist, but to be a Spiritualist in the full meaning of the word, requires a knowledge commensurate with the physical and spiritual worlds. It is not belief, or faith, or adhesion to creed that makes the Spiritualist; it is knowledge, and hence the most complete definition of Spiritualism is, the science of life, here and hereafter.

Catholic Parochial Schools.

On one occasion Bishop Chatard, of Indiana, preached upon Education in the cathedral of this city, and referring to the public and parochial schools, he not only claimed that the latter were entitled to a share of the public moneys, but said, "We have a right to that money of the state; it belongs to us, and we should have it! It costs us nine millions a year to support our schools."

Never before did I hear such absurd and arrogant statements made, and would expect a better argument from a man calling himself a bishop. In the first place the parochial school, a sectarian school, cannot expect support from the state; neither can any other denomination expect it; and secondly, when the Bishop says it costs them nine million dollars a year, he shows that they have the means to support them themselves. Who furnishes the money? A large proportion is contributed by hard-working people, widows and servant girls. Can that money be better expended, if it is so highly necessary to have private Catholic schools? While freedom of religion is guaranteed by the contribution, the state cannot allow church and state to be united; the people will never allow one sect to rule this country, never!

If the bishops, however, wish to economize, let the Catholic children visit the public schools during the daytime, and throw open their churches in the evening; they could give them all the Catholic education they want, and keep both boys and girls out of mischief.

The Bishop will please pardon me for this criticism, but they must expect this when making such public statements.

H. C. KLOPPENBURG.

Norwich, Conn.

Emma Rood Tuttle—Her New Volume of Poems.

Since the publication of "From Soul to Soul," by Emma Rood Tuttle, there has been constant inquiry for another volume of her poems which was promised. When the prospectus of that volume was issued, requesting the names of those who wished to subscribe, nearly 1,000 were at once received and three editions have been called for. This plan proved so satisfactory that this new volume will be issued in the same manner. By it the cost of publication is guaranteed, and at the same time to those desiring the book it is furnished at much less cost.

The new volume will be in the same style as "From Soul to Soul," will contain over 300 pages, beautifully bound, with embossed cover, will contain engraved portrait of the author, and subscribers copies will have her autograph.

Emma Rood Tuttle is well known to the readers of The Progressive Thinker and the spiritual press by the many poems she has contributed, and her spiritual songs. The present volume will contain the best of these, and many not before published. The price will be $1; to subscribers, 75 cents. It will be published as soon as the number of subscribers warrant.

Please send names at once—money not desired. HUDSON TUTTLE.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

THE CAMP-MEETINGS.

Ashley Camp, O.

This camp begins July 29, and ends August 19, 1900. For programmes address H. Baxter, Ashley, Ohio.

Maple Dell Camp, O.

The National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association will hold its twelfth annual session, commencing July 22, ending September. For full particulars and programme, enclose stamp and address Lucy King, corresponding secretary, Mantua, Ohio.

Arkansas Valley Camp.

The Arkansas Valley Spiritual Association will hold its 7th annual camp-meeting in Island Park, at Winfield, Kansas, commencing July 7, and ending July 17, 1900. For full particulars address Chas. O. Bethel, Winfield, Kans.

Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass.

This camp opens July 29. The circulars are now ready and can be had upon application. In writing for them please enclose stamp for return postage. Address Albert P. Blinn, Clerk, 603 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Camp, O.

This camp will open July 1, and close August 27. Send for programmes to Dr. W. D. Noyes, secretary, 189, N. Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich.

Spiritualist camp-meeting will be held at Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich., commencing June 15 and closing July 9. For full particulars address N. M. Kellam, manager, Oden, Mich.

Chesterfield Camp, Ind.

The camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will open at Chesterfield, Ind., July 19, and close August 26, 1900. For programmes and further information address Flora Hardin, secretary, Anderson, Indiana.

New Era Camp, Oregon.

Its next annual gathering will be held beginning June 23 and ending July 16, thus including four Sundays. Full particulars may be had by addressing E. W. Penman, secretary, Canby, Oregon, or Mrs. Kate Obrock, vice-president, 309 Shaver street, Portland, Oregon.

Delphos Camp.

The twenty-second annual camp-meeting of the First Society of State Spiritualists and Liberals will be held at Delphos, Kans., from August 10 to August 26 inclusive. For further particulars or information write to President J. N. Blanchard, Delphos, Kansas; M. J. Main, vice-president, Simpson, Kansas, or E. S. Bishop, secretary, Glasco, Kansas.

Cassadaga Camp, N. Y.

This favorite place of resort offers an attractive programme the coming season. The camp opens July 13 and closes August 26. Write to the secretary, A. E. Gaston, Meadville, Pa., for programmes.

Onset Camp-Meeting.

Commences July 15, and closes August 26, 1900. For further particulars address Secretary, Onset, Mass.

Vicksburg Camp.

The seventeenth annual camp-meeting of Vicksburg, Mich., will be held in Fraser's Grove, commencing August 3, and closing August 26, 1900. For further information address Jeannette Fraser, Manager, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo county, Mich.

Lake Brady.

The camp grounds will be open for picnics June 1, extending through the summer. The camp-meeting opens July 1, closing September 1. Anyone wishing a Lake Brady program will please write Geo. N. Abbott, Lake Brady, via Kent, Ohio, or E. R. Kidd, Canton, Ohio.

Mount Pleasant Park, Ia.

The eighteenth annual camp-meeting of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists' Association will be held at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, from July 29 to August 26, 1900. All wishing circulars should write to the secretary, Stella A. Fisk, 18 N. 11th street, Keokuk, Iowa. Those wishing to rent tents, etc., should write to John Nelson, Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa.

The Ottawa Camp.

The Ottawa, Kansas, Spiritualist camp-meeting, from August 8 to August 13 inclusive. H. W. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kans.; Ezra Carpenter, secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

Freeville Camp, N. Y.

Opens July 29 and closes August 12. B. L. Robinson, president, Freeville, N. Y.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

Grand Ledge Spiritualist Camp-Meeting commences July 29 and closes August 26. For further particulars and full programmes, write to M. F. Phares or Geo. H. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opens July 1 and closes August 19, 1900, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Program cheerfully mailed to any address received on postal card to Thos J. Haynes, secretary, 389 Western avenue, Muskegon, Mich.

Camp-Meeting at Deep Lake.

The Illinois State Spiritualist Camp-meeting opens its second season at Deep Lake, 1½ miles from Lake Villa, Ill., on Wisconsin Central railroad, commencing July 10 and closing September 1. Those who intend to camp with us please let us know in time so that we can make preparations for you. Address G. V. Cordingley, President, 3300 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Island Lake, Mich.

Island Lake Camp, Island Lake, Michigan, commences Thursday, July 19, and closes September 3. For further information address the secretary, Ella B. Brown, 266 Twenty-first street, Detroit, Mich.

Verona Park Camp.

Opens June 15 and closes August 26. For programmes address Albert F. Smith, president, Bangor, Maine.

Lake Helen, Fla.

The Southern Cassadaga Camp, Lake Helen, Florida, will open the first Sunday, in February, 1901. Emma J. Huff, corresponding secretary.

Niantic Camp.

The Connecticut Spiritualist Camp-Meeting Association, at Niantic camp-grounds, Niantic, Conn; season of 1900, commencing June 25 and continuing until September 8, inclusive. For programmes address Mary A. Hatch, secretary, South Windham, Conn.

Franklin (Neb.) Camp.

The Northwest Kansas and Southwest Nebraska Spiritualist Association will hold their fifth annual camp-meeting at Franklin, Neb., from July 20 to August 6 inclusive. No pains will be spared to make it a success. For announcement, circulars and other information, address the secretary, C. H. Simpson, Franklin, Neb.

Colorado Camp.

Canyon Camp, opens in South Boulder Canyon, July 1, and continues through July, August, and possibly September. Any information desired in regard to this new and interesting movement may be obtained by writing May Taylor, Box 780, Denver, Colo.

Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The twenty-third annual Lake Sunapee Spiritualist Camp-meeting will be held at Blodgett's Landing, N. H., for four weeks, commencing Sunday, July 29, and closing Sunday, August 26, 1900. For programmes address the secretary, W. H. Wilkins, Claremont, N. H.

Ottawa, Kansas.

We wish to call attention to the fact that all arrangements have been completed by the Kaw Valley Association of Spiritualists for their camp-meeting, which will be held in Ottawa, Franklin County, Kansas from August 8 to 13 inclusive. We expect to make this one of the best meetings ever held in Ottawa, as the management have secured a number of good speakers among whom are Mrs. Lull and Ben F. Hayden. They have also secured the services of Mrs. Ben F. Hayden as test medium. She not only describes friends but gives their names. She will give tests after each lecture.

This association claims the finest park west of the Mississippi for their meeting. Our accommodations are unsurpassed, as beautiful Forest Park is within two blocks of the Santa Fe depot. Admission to the park and to all lectures is free. Good board will be furnished on the grounds for 15 cents per meal; also a cot, pillow, sheet and comfort for 15 cents per night. And while we expect and cordially invite all phases of mediumship, this society will not be held responsible for the character or conduct of any not under their control.

For any further information, address H. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kansas, or Ezra A. Carpenter, corresponding secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

E. A. CARPENTER.

Cassadaga, N. Y.

If "coming events cast their shadows before," the coming assembly at Camp Cassadaga will surpass any other held here for years. Already the attendance would make quite a respectable camp and every train is adding to our numbers.

The special attractions at this time may be found in the classes being conducted by J. Clegg Wright and the Moses Hull training school, as well as other schools or circles of advance thought. All of these schools are instructive, and give the student of psychical research a wide field to choose from.

From personal experience I can only speak of Mr. Wright's classes. These lectures seem to cover the ground of all else and his inspired teachings seem to be drawn from the very fountain of wisdom.

The management of Camp Cassadaga have added much to the attractiveness of this place by instituting these schools, and it is safe to predict that this season is only the beginning of much more in the same line. Mediumship of the highest order can here be developed; and the God in man divinely unfolded.

No one need longer stand with foot on the bottom round of the ladder, with such means of climbing as are here presented.

June is behaving very prettily, and gives lavishly of her charms to make everyone who comes feel glad they came this way. Among the new arrivals of mediums we note, Effie Moss, T. Wilcox and Maggie Waite. There are many others already here—Miss Danforth, palmist, of the number; and there are still others, who, while doing their work in a quiet way, are demonstrating the truth of Spiritualism quite as effectually.

The restfulness which makes the camp so charming now will last but a few weeks longer; and it seems almost like sacrilege to have the flaming advertisements and signs deforming the beauty which seems so suggestive of true spiritual life. But these signs may be "signs" of progress; let us hope so, and bide the time when "signs" will be no longer needed to bring man into communion with the spirit.

MARY WEBB BAKER.

Railroad Rates to the M. V. S. A. Camp-Meeting.

The camp-meeting at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, opens July 29 and closes August 26.

We are pleased to announce that we have secured from the Western Passenger Association, a railroad rate of a fare and one-third, on the certificate plan, from all points in Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin and the northern peninsula of Michigan, which is practically the same as the rate obtained last year. Tickets may be purchased July 26, 27 and 28 and thereafter on each Tuesday and Friday during the meeting, certificates to be honored if presented not later than August 29. Be sure to take a certificate from the agent when you buy your ticket and deposit it with the secretary as soon as you reach the camp.

The Diamond Jo line of steamers has granted a rate of one fare for the round trip from all points between St. Paul and St. Louis.

The very attractive array of talent employed for the platform, with the improved condition of the park, will make it worth while to take advantage of these favorable rates. For programs and general information address

STELLA A. FISK, Sec'y.

Keokuk, Iowa.

Rending the Vail: This volume is a compilation by J. W. Nixon, of psychic literature, most given by spirits through and by means of full form visible materializations, at seances of a certain Psychic Research Society, known as the Aber Intellectual Circle, the medium being William W. Aber. 507 pp. octavo. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker. Price $2.

"Nature Cure." By Drs. M. E. and Rosa C. Conger. Excellent for every family. Cloth, $1.50 and $2.

ABOUT ANIMALS.

Do They Continue to Exist in the Spirit World?

Why is it there is such conflicting beliefs in regard to this question? Why cannot there be positive proof and the matter settled in the minds of so many that are weighing this subject?

I want to ask the Spiritualists who are scientific and versed in zoology, those that know the habits, customs, of animals in their wild state as well as those trained and educated by man for domestic purposes and exhibitions, is it possible to find the limits or boundary lines between man and beast, if there be any such demarkation. Many animals show the strongest reasoning properties, with memory of locality and recognition of people. I have seen the most intense jealousy exhibited when a favorite animal was petted by the hand. Other beasts witnessing such fondling would strike and bite the favored one with strong combativeness. I have seen the animal in man shown in the same manner. The delivery horse will find his way to every number and house that he has stopped at heretofore, and that at a uniform gait on schedule time. The one that calls where I live every morning at 6 o'clock sharp, city time, never varies a minute. Please note the exact time of the crowing of the roosters. Certainly you will agree with me that they are nature's time-pieces.

Animals have in many instances when advanced in years, been known to commit suicide. A favorite dog of mine drowned himself in the river. We were talking of killing him. He overheard us, and saved us the trouble. The same dog has been named and described as near me by a very noted clairvoyant. I never was successful in reducing the number of the feline species in their abode on the farm; although tied in bags and taken many miles away and dropped, they would soon find their way back. An example of memory of locality that would outstrip the result of man if he was placed in a strange place, and benighted likewise. The horse has been so successfully taught that he is the wonder of the age. Pigs and dogs are trained to play cards. I might give examples almost ad infinitum, but will not trespass on your space allotted.

As far as I can learn, all animal life has a continued state of existence. If not, will some Spiritualist or scientist prove otherwise? J. N. YAKES.

Harvard's "Divine Healer."

To the Editor:—The press stated that a man called a "divine healer" was invited to the great Cambridge University lately to be examined by a few of the professors as to the secret of his peculiar power of healing the sick by laying on of hands, etc. The result was that they concluded "he had a surplus of physical magnetism," but there was no admittance that God, angels, devils or spirits had anything to do with it, as in Christ's time. Just to "phaze" the professors, I would like to ask if they deny the miraculous cures made by the apostles, saints and holy mediums of the past, or do they imagine the public will accept their idea of "surplus magnetism?" Did Christ have a "surplus?" Another phase of this case which baffles the doctors is the evidence derived from scores of Psychical Research sources, which proves the truth of statements made by the spirit controls of Boston's artist-medium, Mrs. Adelaide C. Littlefield, of 218 Columbus avenue, claiming that these "cures" are made by spirit doctors in the next world, who draw the magnetism, strength, aura, vitality or life-essences from these mediums, or "healers," and give it to the sick. Many people are reservoirs of this influence who do not know it. They get tired and exhausted if in crowds, or when near certain people who draw from them. Some married people kill each other by this process; one is fat, the other thin; one strong, one weak; the old draw from the young, the sick from the well. In Oriental lands old men have forced buxom, healthy young girls to sleep one on each side of them to sap their magnetism and thus prolong life. Most people should sleep alone; especially is this so of babies and children. Marriages where one draws too powerfully from the other are cases of slow murder and should be good grounds for a divorce. School teachers live long because they inhale the healthy emanations from the young. All spirits are materialized from these human atoms of flesh, and materializing mediums are such because of their peculiar chemical propeties which are not yet classified by material scientists. Call it "surplus magnetism," or aura, the quality of the material is the same. Spirits use these forces to cure the sick because they know more about them than man. Is there anything funny about that?

Boston, Mass. G. E. LOTHROP.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 8 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library. One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

A CARD.

The principals of Belvidere Seminary would respectfully inform their friends and the public generally that this institution will be open during the summer and early autumn for the accommodation of children and adults who seek freedom from business cares or the excitement of social and fashionable life. Its location is healthy and beautiful, its grounds ample and well shaded, drainage and water excellent.

Belvidere, as its name indicates, is a beautiful inland town, in Northern New Jersey, 700 feet above the sea, and surrounded on all sides by forest-covered hills, at the base of which flow the Pequest and Delaware rivers, along whose banks are many places of special interest to artists and all lovers of the picturesque in nature.

Its streets are well shaded and lighted with electricity. In its near vicinity are well cultivated farms, from which a fresh supply of milk, eggs, butter, fresh fruits and vegetables can be had daily. It is only twelve miles from Easton, Pa., and ten miles from the Delaware Water Gap. It is easy of access from New York and Philadelphia by the Pennsylvania and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroads, with six trains running daily each way. Its walks and drives are exceptionally fine, presenting an ever pleasing variety of river and mountain scenery. Here is just the place for the weary to find repose and the recreation that invigorates without fatiguing. For further particulars, address A. C. BUSH,

Belvidere, Warren Co., N. J.

Great Work by a Great Author.

"THE UNKNOWN"

—BY—

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

"The Unknown" created a marked sensation in France when first published and can scarcely fail to arouse the greatest interest in this country. It is an eminent scientist's study of the phenomena of the spirit world. In touching upon the various physical manifestations the author cites many absolutely authenticated instances, and chapters of his book are as weirdly fascinating as the most fantastic of Poe's tales. It treats on incredulity, credulity, hallucinations, psychic action of one mind upon another, transmission of thought, suggestion, the world of dreams, cerebral physiology, psychic dreams, distinct sight in dreams, actual facts, premonitory dreams and divination of the future, etc. 487 pages, cloth bound. Price $2.00.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

DEATH DEFEATED,

—OR—

The Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young,

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D., M. A., Ph. D.

It certainly is just what is needed as a book of good suggestions and instructions along the line of health. He treats the subject in his own matter-of-fact style. The book comprises a practical subject handled in a practical manner by a practical man. Even if people do not wish or expect to live here always, they should know how to live right and enjoy the life that belongs to them. This is undoubtedly the most useful book for the masses the Doctor has ever published, for it strikes at the root or cause of disease, and tells how to avoid it. 212 pages, cloth bound. Price, $1. For sale at this office.

Three Remarkable Books!

"The Divine Pedigree of Man."
"The Law of Psychic Phenomena."
"A Scientific Demonstration of the Future."

The Divine Pedigree of Man, or the Testimony of Evolution and Psychology to the Fatherhood of God. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL. D. This is a most remarkable work, demonstrating the existence of the Soul and Future Life. It is scientific throughout. Price $1.50. Dr. Hudson's work on "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," is also valuable. Price, $1.50. His "Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life" should be read by all. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Being a Review of

The World's Beliefs on the Subject, a Consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling,

Leading to the Question as to Whether It Can Be Demonstrated as a Fact.—To Which Is Added an Appendix Containing Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

BY MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D.

8vo, Cloth, 342 Pages.

After a review of the beliefs held in the past concerning life beyond death, Dr. Savage takes up the present conditions of belief and considers the agnostic reaction from the extreme "other-worldliness" which it replaced, which was in turn followed by the Spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism. He points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon the people. He then considers the probabilities of a future life, probabilities which, as he admits, fall short of demonstration. The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr. Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well authenticated communications from persons in the other life. The chief contents of the volume are as follows:

Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

For Sale at this Office. Price $1.50. Postage 10c.

OUR BIBLE:

WHO WROTE IT? WHEN? WHERE? HOW?

Is It Infallible?

A Voice from the Higher Criticism.

A Few Thoughts on Other Bibles.

BY MOSES HULL.

Excellent as an exposition of the Higher Criticism and an analysis of the Bible from that standpoint. Of special value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.00.

ORMSBY'S SIMPLE SYSTEM

OF THE

PLANETS and the ZODIAC.

A New Book with the Places of the Planets—the Chart that Makes It Easy to Study the Stars—5th Edition—Just Out—Greatly Improved—Price, $2.00

ASTROLOGY SIMPLIFIED—SPECIAL OFFER.

Any person having one of these charts of any former edition may exchange the same for one of the latest with new book, on payment of $1.00.

This is by far the best system for new beginners to take up, as hundreds of persons have become proficient in the science of the planets in a short time by starting with this Simple System. The new books give the corrections covering one hundred years, all of the 19th century.

Corrections for the 20th century, 100 years in advance, are now ready, which makes the chart good for 200 years. Price for the 20th century tables, $2.00. For sale at this office.

Bible and Church Degrade Woman

By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three essays on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

FORCE AND MATTER.

By Ludwig Buechner. A celebrated book. Cloth, $.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,

Or The Three-fold Power of Sex. By Lois Waisbrooker. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

MYTH AND MIRACLE.

One of Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll's best lectures. Price 5c. For sale at this office.

The Law of Correspondence Applied to Healing.

A course of seven practical lessons. By W. J. Colville. Limp cloth, 50c.

Zelma the Mystic, or White Magic Versus Black.

By Alwyn M. Thurber. Occult philosophy clothed in story form; aims to give a better understanding of magic, black and white. 380 large pages. Cloth, $1.25.

PROGRESSION,

Or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-Life. The evolution of man. By Michael Faraday. Price 10c. For sale at this office.

Special Prepared Remedies Made According to Dr. Watkins' Psychical Prescription.

THESE PRICES FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY.

FOR LADIES.

No. 1. Tablets for Consumption,....50c, now only 25c.
No. 2. Tablets for Dyspepsia,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 3. Tablets for Liver,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 4. Tablets for Female Weakness, 50c, now only 25c.
No. 5. Tablets for Stomach, acidity, flatulency, gas, and distress after eating, old,.....price 50c, now only 25c.
No. 6. Catarrh.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 8. Headache.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 13. Nervous Debility,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 14. Painful Menses,.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 15. Suppressed Menses,.....50c, now only 25c.
Woman's Friend cures Leucorrhea, usually called Whites, $1.00.

FOR MEN.

No. 1. Constipation,.....25c.
No. 2. Dyspepsia,.....25c.
No. 3. Liver,.....25c.
No. 5. Stomach, acidity, gas, etc,.....25c.
No. 16. Pile Ointment,.....25c.
No. 18. Nervous Debility,.....25c.
No. 33. Invigorator,.....25c.
No. 44. Vital Tablets,.....25c.
No. 55. Vigor Tablets,.....25c.
No. 66. Tablet of Youth,.....25c.

All of the above Remedies sent for $4, or any Ten for $2. Express Prepaid.

Our Rheumatic Liniment

CONCENTRATED.

Nothing better to take out soreness and relieve pain. $1.00 a bottle for 50c.

La Grippe Tablets.

A sure cure and preventative. 50c. Trial Box, 25c.

Don't Forget.

You will never regret ordering these Remedies.

KINDLY REMEMBER

That we are very anxious to place these remedies in every house in the United States. We believe is our duty that we owe to humanity to try to let all know of the great value of these prescriptions, and we therefore will; till further notice, sell at above prices. Don't put off ordering these remedies but order to-day. We will diagnose disease free. Send sex, age and leading symptoms.

Ayer, Mass. DR. C. E. WATKINS.

TRUTH

The only way to find out who is the "Greatest Psychic Physician living" is to read what their patients say.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

never claims that he is the greatest physician living, or that he is the

GREATEST PSYCHIC.

He believes that there are hundreds of healers who are just as successful as he is, and he never yet has claimed that he is or was the best psychic, although twenty years before the public as the independent slate-writer with the record of not one person who ever accused him of fraud, ought to make the public THINK when they compare his claims to other so-called psychics.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

only desires those who are sick to remember that for over twenty years he has been before the public as a psychic, and over twelve years as a physician, and he never claims greater powers than others; but we believe he has a right to think he has as great gifts as those who claim so much.

Kindly read the following

TESTIMONIALS:

Dear Sir:—I will enclose money for the next month's treatment. I am still feeling better, and every one is saying how much better I look. Yours truly,
MRS. H. M. HATCH.
Brookline St., Cambridgeport, Mass.

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I think I must admit you have improved my condition, for my husband (who had not seen me for three months) said he never saw me look as well as I do now. I just began taking the third month's medicine this morning. I am yours truly, KATE B. ACER.
West Center St., Medina, N. Y.

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—Wrote you some time ago that I was feeling so well did not think it necessary to continue treatment; you thought best for me to do so, and now I see much difference; have been ailing so many years did not realize how it seemed to feel well, but now I am positive I do; I am surprised to find myself doing my work so quickly and so easily. Yours respectfully,
MRS. EVERETT COUSINS.
576 N. 4th Ave., Phoenix, Ariz.

Kind Friend:—With pleasure I write you a few lines to let you know that I am still improving and am much stronger, and feel better in every way, since I last wrote. I believe I have felt better this week than I ever have in my life, at least since I can remember. I remain, yours kindly,
MRS. BATCHOLTS.
425 Hamilton St., Schenectady, N. Y.

Good morning, Doctor. This is a fine morning, and I am still improving. I feel better every day. I had a fine night's rest last night. It is the first night I have slept all night for three months without pain, so you see I am gaining slowly; that's good. I know it will take some time to get entirely cured. Received your kind letter. Will do the best I can to help get well. Good-bye. Very truly yours,
MRS. M. A. JOSLYN.
Millington, Mass.

Dr. C. E. Watkins:—Please do not send any more medicine to me, as I am so much better I do not need any more. Thanking you for your kind attention, and wishing you much prosperity in life, I remain, yours,
MRS. KATE MEAD.
Chatsworth Park, Cal.

Dear Doctor:—I have gained so much, dear Doctor, that I feel like a new man. I have not felt so good as I do now for seven years, and I have no one to thank for it, only you. The Lord may bless you. I will write again before long. Yours truly, WM. D. HARRIS.
Silverton, Colo.

VOLUMES 1, 2 and 3 of the Encypedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic, Ghost Land, The Next World Interviewed, and the Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate) constitute our premium list. Those seven books have been on sale, costing the buyer in the aggregate, $10.75. We, after paying the postage and expense of mailing, realize only $1.50 for the seven—far less than cost to us. We desire to form the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home, hence this remarkable offer. By subscribing for The Progressive Thinker, you then have the privilege of purchasing these books at the premium prices. See terms on another page.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Fourteen beautiful, soul-inspiring songs, with music, by C. Payson Longley. Price by mail, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

ON TRIAL.

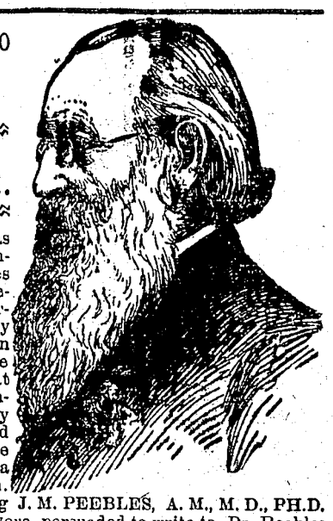
How Shall We Further Our Cause?

The Progressive Thinker (rightly named) is an ever welcome visitor to us. I am afraid we don't half appreciate its worth, nor the grand privileges we enjoy over those in years agone when one dared not think and much less speak of thoughts that would intrude themselves into their mental vision. We are free in a measure and greater freedom is just in view. The time was, in the memory of most old Spiritualists, when it was said by those who had direct communion with God, that it was all the work of the Devil. Of course they knew. Now that they can no longer attribute it to his Satanic Majesty, they say it is electricity, etc. It proves that electricity is intelligent and can bring messages to us from those who have gone to that bourne whence travelers do return, as can be proven more effectually than can be proven by the orthodox teachings of a future life. The advanced thought of the day and religious liberty have placed us where we dare to investigate and the result of the progressive thought of to-day is what is stirring the religious world to its lowest depths; all the mire and filth are being brought forth to the full view of all who wish to be enlightened with regard to the blind teachings of a tyrannical and cruel God. The thinkers of to-day are improving the opportunity to call the attention of all who dare to hear and see, to the facts that the cruelties in the past that have been practiced on mortals because they could not believe in this most revolting theory, are done with, and that we are at liberty to take a more rational view of God and a future life. Proof it is that the bigotry of the past has had its day, and a long one too; and what have they accomplished in all these years of the reign of terror history has recorded.

The orthodox religion is not alone on trial, the beautiful philosophy of Spiritualism is before the bar of thinkers as well, and we haven't the cloak of the ignorant past to cover us. Spiritualism was born in the full light of intelligent progress, when people dared to think and sift out the objectionable, and the sifting must go on and severely, too; there are the fraudulent mediums that must be routed, then we must put ourselves through a severe catechising to see if we don't care more for the money we can make in one way or another out of our connection with the cause, to see that we are willing to do all in our power to further the cause in the right direction. The day is here when we as Spiritualists can make our beloved philosophy thrive and flourish as no philosophy has ever done, for it brings the two worlds together, for a certainty sure consolation for the bereaved, encouragement for the despondent, last but not least a certainty of life after the dissolution of this physical form, and furthermore, we are sure of the cooperation of the spirit world; they are our invisible workers, let the enemies strike where they will, they have no power to hinder their work for the uplifting of the inhabitants of this sphere.

We as good honest Spiritualists must examine ourselves, consider, we cannot take a dollar of our wealth with us when we leave this troublesome world nor aught of our grandeur, only the grandeur of spiritual worth, the grand development of the highest and noblest within us, that will be the currency of the realm to which we migrate, and it will give us standing, weave us an apparel that we will not be ashamed to appear in. There is no reason why we cannot better organize our little societies in every hamlet and make a success too, if all will do their part. Then the state organization can be sustained, and not without. We must be united and not let little differences come up to spoil our otherwise harmony, we should have no scheming, be frank, let every one have a say, let every one understand the plans and all feel they are expected to have an interest in the organization. This is the only plan for success. MRS. C. C. BACON.
Lake Brady, Ohio.

PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.



[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free. All in excess of ten lines will be charged at the rate of fifteen cents per line. About seven words constitute one line.]

George Bayliss, of New Bedford, Mass., passed to spirit life, Friday, June 15, aged 66 years. He was an enthusiastic Spiritualist, an adherent to the belief for many years. He served in the navy in the Civil war under Admiral Farragut, and was honorably discharged, his health having been impaired at that time. He was born in Dighton, Mass, and followed the sea for many years. The funeral services were conducted at the home of his son, under the auspices of the R. A. Pierce Post G. A. R., of which he was a member. It was the desire of the deceased that at his death the American flag should announce his death at the home. This was carried out, and the draped effect with green wreath was quite pleasing and patriotic, attracting numbers who pronounced the idea a very good one.
M. E. B.

"Gleanings from the Rostrum." By A. B. French. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

A TRUE HEALER

He Brings Health and Strength to Thousands Who Have Been Pronounced Incurable.

SCIENCE TRIUMPHS OVER DISEASE.

DR. PEEBLES, noted the world over as a physician and scientist, is performing some of the most remarkable cures the world has ever seen. His fame has become world-wide on account of these marvelous cures. He has patients in every state in the Union and in many foreign lands who stand ready to testify to the wonderful cures he has made of cases that had been treated by many of the most eminent physicians without success. Many of the Doctor's patients are those who had traveled all over the world, visiting all the great health resorts and sanitariums in a Futile Search for Health and strength. They returned home in despair, thinking there was no hope for them, when they were persuaded to write to Dr. Peebles for a diagnosis. This was so clear and complete, showing a thorough understanding of the case that it inspired enough hope to induce them to try, as a last resort, a course of his treatment. Many such cases show wonderful improvement from the start. A very few months is sufficient in almost all cases to complete a perfect cure. Mrs. L. A. Humbel, of Long Pine, Neb., who was given up with dropsy and kidney disease by the best physicians in the country says: "I am very grateful for what you have done for me, as I am in better health than I have been for five years. I have gained fifteen pounds, and I am getting stronger every day. Last month I visited my aged mother in Iowa. She was greatly rejoiced for she never expected to see me alive again. For five years I travelled and doctored with the best physicians, finally gave up in despair, and went home to my sister, as I thought to die. I can never express how thankful I am for what you have done for me."

Remember that Dr. Peebles does not cure by Christian Science, Mesmerism, or any other "ism," but employs mild but potent remedies in connection with his wonderful Psychic Treatment. These Psychic Treatments, say his patients, "seem as a breath of higher life." If you do not fully understand the Psychic Science and these Psychic Treatments which are such a wonderful aid in the treatment of chronic and obscure cases, the Doctor will send you his essay, "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease," which will explain to you fully Psychic Diagnosing and Psychic Treatment with other valuable information for the sick. There is no one so capable of writing on this subject as Dr. Peebles, for he has investigated it for over a half century, and is a recognized authority on the various occult sciences in Europe as well as in this country.

All of Dr. Peebles' diagnosing is done by the aid of his psychic gifts. He can read the diseased conditions of the body as accurately as if each organ and tissue were open to his view. Out of many thousands of cases he has diagnosed during the past few years, nine hundred and ninety-nine out of each thousand are willing to testify to the marvelous accuracy of the diagnosis. Do you know your exact condition? Have you suffered for years without getting permanent help? Did the physician who treated you fully understand your case? Why will you be experimented upon by those who do not really understand your case when Dr. Peebles can diagnose your case perfectly and thus administer treatment upon a scientific basis? Why will you take patent medicines which are prepared for a "text-book" case, and which at best give only Temporary Relief, when you can secure treatment from this EMINENT HEALER that is Especially Prescribed and Suited to your case, at a very little more cost? These are the questions that interest all those suffering from chronic and obscure troubles. Think them over carefully. If you are sick and discouraged don't delay one moment in writing the Doctor for a diagnosis of your case. There is nothing of more importance to you than the condition of your health. It will cost you nothing to learn this. The Doctor will send FREE OF COST a complete diagnosis of your case and also his essay "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease" and valuable literature on chronic diseases and testimonials from some of his cured patients, showing the long list of so-called incurable cases which he has cured. No disease is really incurable if perfectly understood. Every effect or diseased condition has its cause and if these are understood they can in almost every case be removed. When this is done permanent recovery is the result. DO NOT DESPAIR if you have failed to get permanent help, but write at once. Remember that DR. PEEBLES HAS CURED HUNDREDS WHERE ALL OTHERS HAD FAILED. Write him an honest letter, giving full name, age, sex and leading symptom in your own handwriting and he will give you a complete and full diagnosis and will also send the literature as mentioned above. Write today.

Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Battle Creek, Mich.

Sunday Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins' spiritual meetings, 40 E. Randolph street, Handel Hall, Fourth floor, Sunday evening, 7:45. Wednesday evening, 675 Larrabee street, corner Garfield avenue.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, G. V. Cordingley, pastor, room 409 Handel Hall, 40 Randolph street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Band of Harmony, auxiliary to the Church of the Soul, meets at Room 608 Handel Hall Building, 40 Randolph St., every first and third Thursday of the month, beginning afternoons at three o'clock. The ladies bring refreshments; supper served at six o'clock. Evening session commences at a quarter to eight. Questions invited from the audience, and answered by the guides of Mrs. S. J. Ashton. Always an interesting programme. All are welcome.

Church of the Spirit Communion will hold meetings in Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, each Sunday. 3 p. m., conference and tests; 8 p. m., lecture by J. K. Hallowell; tests by H. F. Coates and others. All are invited. Good music and seats free.

There will be a Spiritual meeting at 2:30 each Sunday, at Smith Hall, Wisconsin and Larrabee streets. German and English speaking by Mrs. W. Hilbert and Mr. Bernhart.

Spiritualistic services will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m., 1453 N. Springfield avenue. Tests at 4 o'clock prompt. Wm. Fitch Ruffle, medium.

Garden City Spiritual Alliance holds regular meetings at Mackinaw Hall, No. 294 and 296 East 43d street, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Spirit messages, Tests in telepathy or thought transference, good music. Seats free. May Goodrich, pastor.

The Gross Park Spiritual Society meets at 1785 N. Hoyne avenue, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society meets every Sunday evening at 7:30 at 8027 Exchange avenue, instead of Eigenman's Hall.

The Christian Spiritual Society hold meetings in Hygeia Hall, 404 Ogden avenue, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. Miss Sarah Thomas conducts.

The Englewood Spiritual Union Society meets every Sunday at Forbes' Hall, 420 W. 63d street. Competent leaders of spiritual thought and mediums of note in charge.

Church of the Star of Truth, Wicker Park hall, No. 501 West North avenue. Services at 7:45 p. m, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey.

Truth Seekers meet at the Teutonia Hall, corner of 53rd and Ashland avenue, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Church holds meetings at Elegeman's Hall, corner of 93rd street and Commercial avenue, every Sunday at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

The Chicago Liberal Society is a nonsectarian association for the encouragement of morality, the promotion of education, the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, and the inculcation of truth in the place and stead of error and superstition. The Temple services of the society are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, 17th floor, and are in charge of Thomas B. Gregory. You are cordially invited to attend the same.

Send in notice of meetings held on Sunday at public halls.

Bear in mind that only meetings held in public halls will be announced under the above head. We have not space to keep standing notices of meetings held at private residences.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical and their psychical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the spirit world. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole:—
43 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.:
Your melted pebble spectacles are wonderful. I can see to thread a fine needle and can read with comfort, and my eyes are getting stronger. Your clairvoyant system of fitting is perfection. I am, your friend,
MRS. L. E. MARTIN.
Blairsville, Pa.

For ten cents we will send by mail, a 4-oz. package of my Magnetized Compound, for sore or weak eyes. Once used you will not be without it. Address B. F. POOLE & CO.,
43 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here gathered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Mansill's Almanac of Planetary Meteorology," almanac makers' and weather forcasters' guide and new system of science for 1900 is now for sale at this office; price 25 cents. This is the 25th annual almanac issued by R. Mansill, Rock Island, Ill. It is one of the most interesting and instructive annual publications along the line of the planetary science now published, and is far more explicit in relation to the movements of the heavenly bodies and the effect produced upon our earth. You need this book.

RELIGION OF THE STARS

By O. H. RICHMOND,

G. M. of the Order of the Magi, Chicago.

BOUND IN CLOTH WITH GOLD side, and containing 320 pages. This splendid book, just issued, contains nineteen full Temple lectures upon occult subjects, together with other articles from various newspapers, relating to the great work. It contains all the old Temple lectures issued in 1892, and three others on the HUMAN SOUL, which are alone worth the price of the book. This wonderful book is unique as an Evangelist of Science and Truth. Price $1.25, postpaid, to any address. For sale at this office.

MAN

—IN THE—

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

A POPULAR ACCOUNT OF

Results of recent scientific research regarding the origin, position and prospects of mankind.

From the German of

DR. LUDWIG BÜCHNER,

Author of "Force and Matter," Essays on Nature and Science," "Physiological Pictures," "Six Lectures on Darwin," Etc.

"The great mystery of existence consists in perpetual and uninterrupted change. Everything is immortal and indestructible—the smallest worm as well as the most enormous of the celestial bodies,—the sand grain or the water drop as well as the highest being in creation, man and his thoughts. Only the forms in which being manifests itself are changing; but Being itself remains eternally the same and imperishable. When we die we do not lose ourselves, but only our personal consciousness. We live on in nature, in our race, in our children in our deeds, in our thoughts—in short, in the entire material and physical contribution which, during our short personal existence, we have furnished to the subsistence of mankind and of nature in general."—Buechner.

One vol., post 8vo., about 350 pages, vellum cloth, $1.

THE

World's Sixteen Saviors,

—OR—

CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST.

BY KERSEY GRAVES.

New and startling revelations in religious history which disclose the Oriental origin of all the doctrines, principles precepts and miracles of the Christian New Testament, and furnishing a key for unlocking many of its sacred mysteries, besides comprising the History of Sixteen Oriental Crucified Gods. This wonderful and exhaustive volume will, we are certain, take high rank as a book of reference in the field which the author has chosen for it. The amount of mental labor necessary to collate and compile the varied information contained in it must have been severe and arduous indeed, and now that it is in such convenient shape, the student of free thought will not willingly allow it to go out of print. But the book is by no means a mere collation of views or statistics; throughout its entire course the author—as will be seen by his title-page and chapter-heads—follows a definite line of research and argument to the close, and his conclusions go, like sure arrows to the mark. Printed on fine white paper, 380 pages. New edition, revised and corrected, with portrait of author.

Price $1.50. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

OUR MOTTO

To Do All the Good We Can.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Who is so widely known as one of the many

SPIRITUAL HEALERS,

SHE HAS

Successfully Treated

And Cured

Thousands of Patients.

Will Diagnose Your Case

FREE

REQUIREMENTS:

Lock of hair, age, sex, one leading symptom, full name, three 2-cent stamps and plain full address.

SEND TO

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Box 132. SAN JOSE, CAL.

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

Psychometrist and Healer. Readings by hand-writing or photo $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered for 25 cts. Address 54 N. 52nd ave., Chicago, Ill.

NEW DREAM BOOK.

By DR. R. GREER, 52 Dearborn st., Chicago, Ill. 25 cents 519tf

CHART FREE.

By a Bohemian Gypsy Astrologer and Clairvoyant. Send age, color of eyes and hair, in own handwriting. Address GEO. WELLES, Box 130, Newark, N. J. 551

YOUR FUTURE accurately calculated by Astrologer WALROND, 87 Opera House Block, Denver, Col. From $1.00.

WM. W. ABER.

Readings by mail, $1.06. Advice on all affairs of life. Spring Hill, Kans. 555

Geo. F. Perkins, Emaline Perkins,

Platform and Private Test Mediums, 3558 Cottage Grove ave., flat 14, Chicago. Circles Friday. Readings daily. 559tf

Life Readings by the Stars.

J. L. PIERSON, 218 E. 42nd pl., Chicago. 553

MRS. E. J. HANSON, TRANCE MEDIUM, 76 Bingham St., near Milwaukee av. car barns. 555

FOCO-MAGNET The Key to the OCCULT.

Focalization and Concentration necessary to development. This new invention makes this possible in light or dark sittings. Sent with full instructions for 50 cents, in stamps, postal order or other suitable way. Address DR. T. WILKINS, 54 N. 52nd av., Chicago, Ill.

FRED P. EVANS,

The Well-Known Psychic

For Slate-Writing, Etc.,

Gives seances daily at his office. The Occult Book Store, 103 W. 42nd st., N. Y. City. Send stamp for circular on mediumship, and catalogue of books.

$2—TRUMPETS—$2

ALUMINUM TRUMPETS in two and three sections 36 in. high—magnetized when desired—$2 on receipt of price. Address WM. A. MURRAY, 508 E. 2nd St., Newport, Ky. 584

Myself cured, I will gladly inform any one addicted to

Morphine, Opium, Laudanum, or Cocaine, of a never-failing harmless Home Cure.

MRS. M. E. BALDWIN, P. O. Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

MRS. MAGGIE WAITE

Reading by mail, $1.06. Business advice a specialty. 504 S. Crouse ave., Syracuse, N. Y. 556

DON'T READ THIS.

Frances L. Loucks, the only psychic wonder living, that uses the spiritual X-ray without any leading symptom to direct, and locates all internal diseases. A trial will convince you. Nervous exhaustion and lost vigor of both sexes successfully treated, as hundreds can testify. Send name, age, sex, complexion and ten cents in stamps, and receive a correct diagnosis of your case free, worth dollars to you. Address,

FRANCES L. LOUCKS,
Lock Box 7, Stoneham, Mass.

TALMAGEAN INANITIES.

Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies.

A review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

An institute of refined Therapeutics, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 58 N. 3rd st., San Jose, Cal. Diplomas of unsurpassed beauty granted. Send stamp for catalogue to E. D. BABBIT, M. D., LL. D., Dean. 441tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS

For thirty years has treated and cured the sick in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thousands have been cured after being given up to die. His psychic powers are unequaled, as his cures prove. Talk doesn't prove anything. Facts are proof. He also cures diseases of men, such as loss of manhood, debilitating losses causing nervous exhaustion. Send name, age, sex, lock of hair, 6 cts in stamps, for a diagnosis. Address,

DR. J. S. LOUCKS, M. D.,
85 Warren st., Stoneham, Mass.

Card from Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Dear friends, you can greatly help me care for my blind sister, Jennie L. Webb, one of the earliest mediums now in the form, by writing a letter to a spirit friend. Send it to me with $1, and I will try and get reply by independent writing, or whispers. Address Annie Lord Chamberlain, Milford, Mass. 531tf

TRUTH AND DESTINY

Deals with the hidden forces of mind and the influence of environment upon human life. Gives a contrast of the destiny of one who cried out in the darkness for the light he vainly sought, and the destiny of another who found the radiance within. It reveals the laws and conditions which create happiness and indicates the path which leads to the attainment of Self-Mastery and Power. Price 25 cents,

URIEL BUCHANAN,
Dept. P. T., Box 210, Chicago, Ill. 544tf

THE RELATION

Of the Spiritual to the Material Universe; and the Law of Control. New edition, enlarged and revised, by M. Faraday. Price 15 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

JESUS CHRIST A FICTION.

Founded upon the life of Apollonius of Tyana. The Pagan priests of Rome originated Christianity. New and startling disclosures by its founders, and full explanations by ancient spirits. Price, paper, 50c.

A Few Words About the Devil, And Other Essays.

By Charles Bradlaugh. With the story of his life as told by himself, and the history of his parliamentary struggle. With portrait. Paper, 50c.

WOMAN: FOUR CENTURIES OF PROGRESS.

A Lecture delivered at the Freethinker's International Congress, Chicago, Ill., October, 1893. By Susan H. Wixon. Price, 10c.

THE GOD IDEA OF THE ANCIENTS,

Or Sex in Religion. By Eliza Burt Gamble. "It is a sensible, quiet, logical statement of opinion, deduced at times curiously from statistics which might be open to doubt; and never for a moment sensationalor revolutionary.—Chicago Herald. 329 pages, large type, cloth bound. Price $2.25. For sale at this office

THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL

SERIES ONE TWO AND THREE,
BY LILIAN WHITING,

Three choice volumes, each complete in itself, in which spirituality is related to everyday life in such a way as to make the world beautiful. Price $1 each. For sale at this office.

Cultivation of Personal Magnetism

A Treatise on

HUMAN CULTURE.

By Leroy Berrier, Anthropologist and Author. A very suggestive and instructive book. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This is a very interesting little book, and will be appreciated from start to finish by all who wish to gain spiritual information. Price 25 cts. For sale at this office.

OUTSIDE THE GATES

and other tales and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA

According to Old Records.

By Dr. Paul Carus. A translation made from Japanese, under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was published in Japan. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 60 cents. For sale at this office.

TWO IN ONE

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 469 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a candid comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

MAN THE MICROCOSM.

His Infinite and Divine Relations. Intuition—The Light Within. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

KAREZZA.

ETHICS OF MARRIAGE.

By Alice B. Stockham, M. D.

Karezza makes a plea for a better birthright for children, and aims to lead individuals to seek a higher development of themselves through most sacred relations. It is pure in tone and aim, and should be widely circulated. Price, cloth, $1.

ASTRAL WORSHIP.

By J. H. Hill, M. D. A valuable contribution to the current discussion of religious problems. The author by illustrations and a planisphere (a representation of the celestial sphere upon a plane with adjustable circles), traces most of the myths which lie at the base of Christianity to their origin in sun and star worship. The astronomical facts given possess great value, the illustrations rare and curious. The book is bound in only one style—heavy boards. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 339 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton.

EVOLUTIONISM.

A Series of Illustrated Lectures Upon the

EVOLUTION OF ALL THINGS IN THE UNIVERSE.

BY OLNEY H. RICHMOND,

Price, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS

And How We Ascend Them.

How to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. By Moses Hull. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper 25 cts. For sale at this office.

Apocryphal New Testament

Being all the Gospels, Epistles, and other pieces now extant, attributed in the first four centuries to Jesus Christ, his apostles and their companions, and not included in the New Testament by its compilers. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

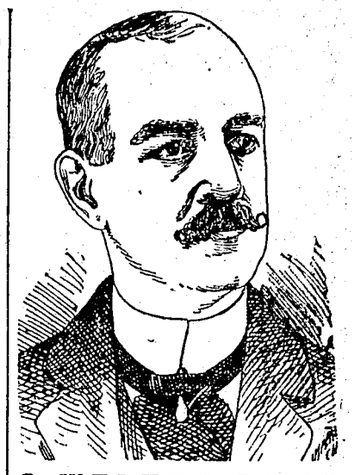
VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though to escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance, "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scamentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 490 pages, with portrait and 32 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.



"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD,

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve,

By Lois Waisbrooker. This is a novel written with a purpose to improve the human race; to mold the future offspring with reason, health and inspiration. No one need be afraid of this book. Price $1, postpaid. For sale at this office.

G. WALTER LYNN

THE EMINENT

Mental Physician AND Gifted Psychic.

Obsession Cured.

Special Attention Given to

Nervous Ailments.

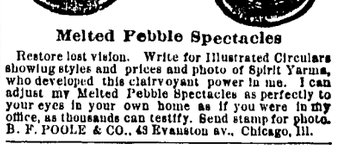
Astonishing Cures of Disease, Physical and Mental, Through

Magnetized Remedies and Psychic Science.

Readings and business advice, by mail, $1.00 and two stamps.

For correct diagnosis of disease send five two-cent stamps, age, name, sex and own handwriting.

☞ I have never known a more competent, reliable and truthful medium for the Spirit-world than Chas. Walter Lynn. Jos. RODES BUCHANAN.



Address, 1017 Castro st., Oakland, Cal.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 50 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE & CO., 43 Evanston av., Chicago, Ill.

Reed City Sanitarium and Private Hospital, A. B. Spinney, M. D., Prop.

Staff of eight consulting physicians and surgeons; professional nurses, steam heat, electric light. Cheapest sanitarium for the accommodations in the world. Board, medical attendance, nursing, baths, massage electrical treatment all for $10 A WEEK. Cases diagnosed free and treated at a distance by correspondence. Prices reasonable. Send name and address with stamp to REED CITY SANITARIUM, Reed City, Michigan.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Free Diagnosis by Psychic Power.

We cure diseases that are called incurable, by our new and original Method, of personal and absent treatment. Write for our ten-day special offer. Free diagnosis in every case. Our faculty consists of the best healers in the country. Our cures are quick and permanent. Agents wanted to represent our school of Science, for our practical mail courses on Hypnotism, Clairvoyance, Magnetic Healing, etc. These are easy lesson courses and will develope you.

Special Offer—To introduce our easy lesson courses, we will by way of advertisement, send our regular ten dollar ($10.00) Course for two dollars ($2.00) embracing any one of the above branches of science. Courses beautifully typewritten, and a diploma will be granted to all who pass our examination after taking our lessons. We guarantee satisfaction. Remember the $2 price is limited to a short time only. We want agents everywhere. Write for terms.

REV. CHARLES L. AINSWORTH, Pres.
CHARLES A. MITCHELL, Sec'y.
Central School of Science, 34, 35, 36 Talbott Blk., Indianapolis, Ind. 534

CONVENT CRUELTIES

Is the title of a 32 page pamphlet by Henry A. Sullivan, ex-monk, which is a sort of prospectus, or advance portion of a larger work to be published under the same title as soon as the sale of the smaller work provides the funds

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

SPIRITUALISM—Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.—SPIRITUALISM

VOL. 22 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1900. NO. 554

DISPENSATION OF SPIRITUAL FORCES.

A Lecture Delivered by Lena Ingraham Gifford, at Seattle, Washington.

Mr. President and Friends of Progress:

It is written "Freely have ye received, freely give."

We refer now to the dispensation of spiritual gifts, of opulence of mind and heart, of intellectual attainments which accompany moral and spiritual qualifications.

Continually pass on to others what you have received and make room for something new for yourself. Every psychic knows that this increases his working power.

It is one thing to have abundance of gold, another thing to have a cultivated intellect alive to every recorded event of the past and present, and quite another thing to have an abundance of spiritual gifts—those larger attainments which go to make up the infinite man. You may have one or all of these combined.

The man of gold may have but little or no spirituality and a modicum of intellectual superiority; the intellectual gourmand scarcely ever attains to material opulence, and may be just as deficient in spiritual wealth, for intellect is cool and calculating sometimes, and ignores the warmer, kindlier impulses of the soul; so, a man who is a beggar inthe common acceptation of the term, and unlettered and unlearned in the curriculum of college or university, may be a king, a master in every kindly impulse of the heart, in every divine prompting of the soul, and worthy to be a counselor, a leader in the imperial, divine institution of universal fraternity.

The well rounded out, the well-balanced man has all these in fair proportion. There is really nothing new in the universe of thought, the universe of spirit power; it is only new to us as we take it up individually. But having acquired the divine knowledge, it is not ours to keep; we must pass it on, give it out into the great ocean of activity, endowing others who may be weaker than ourselves, that they may take it up and benefit and be benefited by it as we have been. We read of the dispensations of Providence, the Mosaic and Christian dispensations; and one writer says, "Neither are God's methods or intentions different in his dispensations to each private man." We are glad to endorse that sentiment. We believe in it fully.

When the world of humanity makes no difference in dispensing its favors by method or intention, and measures out to every man alike, there will be no need for political reform, for party differences; and there will be no disappointed constituency bewailing a false representation. But some are not as able to receive as others, you say; some have not the capacity to hold human or divine favors.

Does God withhold his gifts then, his support without limitation, passing final judgment prematurely? It does not seem so to me. He makes no man a multi-millionaire, no man a slave. These are man-made effects and belong to the denser, lower grade of moral and spiritual development. It is the one-sided propositions that cause this. The universal and fixed laws never lose their equilibrium.

He never tires of opening the doors of his spiritual granary and offering the privilege alike to great and small to come and take enough and to spare. It is a generous man who takes not only enough for his own daily need, but some to spare as a sort of sample to others of what is in that great granary of spiritual gifts or forces waiting for their acceptance or recognition. As we, in the morning, turn our faces to the rising sun seeking oneness with the Infinite and pray, "Give us this day our daily bread," let us ask for an extra loaf for some who do not yet know the way; or if they know of it do not walk in it; and by to-morrow morning we will have heard of another and another needy one, so we can ask for two or three extra loaves; and by the third morning we will see the needy ones coming up to God's granary themselves, and so we will become an endless chain of seekers after the spiritual bread of life and transmitters to others. This is what it is to be universal. And so, by and by we will all become opulent, and happiness and peace will become universal, for that storehouse of grain and fruit meet for the spirit is limitless, and strength and power of spirit gives us strength and power over externals, and we become independent citizens, whereas we are now slaves.

Did you ever see a prosperous man who was a discouraged man? Now do not take the cause for the effect and say, "Of course, a man can be happy and cheerful, and all that, if he has plenty of money, and everything he needs." Friends, it is his cheerfulness and faith in himself, and the Providence whose methods and intentions are just as good for him as for any other man, that brings him external prosperity; and he need not be a church member either to attain it. He needs to be a man, to feel himself a man, to think himself a man, and to recognize and respect the same manly qualities and desires for independence in all other men. This is the key to the best religion in the world; but it is too large to fit any creed-bound door to eternal happiness.

Spiritual prosperity has nothing to do with a creed-limited religion, any more than the beauty and fragrance of the rose or the spotless purity of the lily has to do with it. The religion of Nature, her faith and trust in the power of all Good, and her own renovation and progression is theirs, and should be ours.

Here is thought work for true, noble women. Because one sits in an humble cottage and plys the ruder avocations of life; it does not follow that she shall send forth no influence of spiritual and moral strength and beauty to help garnish the great universe of God. He who painted the lily's scented cup and fashioned its delicate petals white and spotless as the robe of a seraph, must have known that the lily's home was in the dark and miry depths of the mirror surfaced lake.

There is no possible position in life where we cannot dispense some good; there is no road that we may travel whereon we will not meet or overtake some weary and worn traveler to whom we can give a lift; do not let us "pass by on the other side" because we being younger and more able-bodied, and may I say, more coarsely constituted than we should be, have no feeling for one who needs our assistance.

Bear in mind that as ye do unto one of the least of these, so shall be your reward.

In all the experiences of life we find the sum of human power, the height of human control, is to be able amid contending and unfavorable conditions to maintain uprightness, dignity and composure, so that we can see through the ruffled surface the truth that lies beneath and dispense proper judgment. Here is your philosopher—the man of concentration—the man of wisdom.

We have a good many surface workers in this world who are disturbed by every criticising word and every adverse, passing thought, when if they immediately went to the bottom of the well they would find the truth and be calm and serene.

However, let us dispense our spiritual thought and our spiritual work as widely as possible; there is no fear of attenuation of ideas; there is no fear of over-production or under-consumption, to use a political term, for as long as man lives he will be enquiring as to the future of his own soul. We can tell him many truths.

True, we have had only fifty-two years to gather the wisdom of the upper spheres, and that wisdom, too, coming through a mentality that had been taught for eighteen hundred years that there was no way of communication between the inhabitants of the two worlds. We do not claim to be infallible—we do not claim to be omniscient. And you must remember that the vast majority who passed over previous to that time did not believe they could return, and when they come now and in response to some of your numerous questions tell you that they "do not know," respect that answer, for it is a wise one; they do not know all things just as soon as they have crossed the border line, or ever after, any more than the learned Professor here knows all things on all lines; or any more than the half-crazed murderer can pass from the gallows to perfect happiness in a moment's time.

Wisdom, and happiness, too, are a matter of growth over there as well as here; this is one of the truths we have learned from the spirit world; another is that our spirit life is already begun here; that while we are living right in this world, engaged in our multiplicity of cares, we are building the spiritual man—the man for eternity—and that is just how we build for the spirit, by our multiplicity of cares, by what we call our hard experiences, by those sorrowful days and nights when we ask in agony "What have I done that this should be brought upon me?" Every man has his Gethsemane. Every woman goes sometime to weep at the tomb of her lost hopes. Was there ever a birth without its painful throes?

These sufferings, dear friends, are the means of producing something new; and it rests with yourselves if it shall be a wonderful child of spiritual birth; and day by day, and year by year, through travail and pain we add to the growth of the spiritual man within us; and it rests with ourselves what he shall become for the years of eternity—a spiritual dwarf or a Buddha, a Mohammed, a Christ.

Another thing we have learned in our course of psychic unfoldment. As the intellect is the government of the physical man, so is the spirit the government of the spiritual man, and the soul which is universal is the motor power of both. God is the Over-Soul of all souls, and his expression is through all matter; therefore no individual, as is sometimes asserted, or class of individuals or race of people can be the whole expression of God, the eternal Truth. One little plant does not receive the whole of his care, his mighty influence, but millions of suns and millions of solar systems with their inhabitants are also the expression of this great I Am.

There is no diminution of God's power. You can have just as much as you can use—none to store up for idleness, for the divine Over-soul never slumbers nor sleeps. He is a common every-day laborer.

Here is a lesson to the idlers in the world who with ample wealth fritter away the years with their glorious promises in inglorious ease.

He who hath fashioned with almighty hand
Both blazing suns and tiny grains of sand
With care alike, and given to each a place
In nature's ceaseless law its life to trace,
To man this lesson gives—The Architect divine
Has labor dignified from dust that clods to stars that shine.

We are component parts of one composite Soul and every form is in part that Soul's expression, from the atom to the angel. As the individual soul can work up, manipulate physical matter, human clay and human intelligence through the advantages of our universal relations, into clearer, finer conditions, so do we have signal representatives of marvelous psychic power and prophetic wisdom at times in the world—as Confucius, Buddha, Jesus, Mohammed and Swedenborg.

But the human intellect in general does not yet know what true justice is, as we hear the cry going forth continually of man's injustice to man; we have not yet conceived what marvelous beauty, peace and joy there is in a life that is willing to give unto others just as good a chance as it has itself—to be grandly, nobly universal. We like to regulate other people's affairs, to pass judgment upon them, from the sovereignty of a nation to the meanest subject in its realm, whether we are sure we are right or not; but do not want our own toes trodden upon to admonish us that we may be a little amiss ourselves. We are very generous in giving our opinions of others. Are we as generous in receiving other's opinion of us? The question answers itself; if we were, there would be a universal reformation right away. Dispensation is a Law that must become universal before universal justice can be done.

James G. Clark, the talented prophet-poet and Spiritualist, wrote:

There yet shall rise beneath the sky,
Unvexed by narrow greed for pelf,
A race whose practice shall deny
The heartless creed "Each for himself."

Justice should not be a question of reward or punishment with us, but we should dispense daily the best we know, the best we have, unreservedly—not our growlings and complainings—but doing right for right's sake, and let the desired results follow in natural sequence.

A clairvoyant vision came to me. It was a beautiful lady who, by her aura, I judged to be a psychic. She was enveloped in a large cloak which nearly concealed her person, and passed along before me ascending an inclined plane—not a stairway—and paused before a venerable-looking man who was sitting outside a gate which was the entrance to a beautiful home, an extensive park and all the accessories of refinement and comfort. As the lady stopped before the man, whose garb reminded me of the days of Jesus and the Apostles, she made the request to enter, at the same time holding out her hands, which were full of what seemed to be gold coin; on second sight it looked more like buttons made of some tinsel stuff, or perhaps I should say dross. The patriarch looked at her earnestly and turned away his head; she laid her offering down at his feet, and from beneath her capacious cloak, from pockets on one side, she produced many more and laid them at his feet—still no response but a compassionate look.

Then from the other side pockets she brought out many more, which looked very suspiciously like pure gold coin, and laid them all in a pile at his feet.

The patriarch again turned away, and I noticed hanging on the gate post, which was of pure white crystal, a large golden key; and also beside him a balance or scales, and I read in big letters over his head on the gateway's arch the word "Justice." The lady looked at him entreatingly, still proffering her gifts, which seemed to me to represent her work here. With a look of pain he at last uttered, "Woman, will you never understand?"

She stepped back bewildered; and I saw a ragged, pale-faced boy coming up the middle of the street; his shoes had holes in them and he walked as if footsore or injured. The gate-keeper pointed to the boy and said: "Bring me the pebble from that child's shoe which is tormenting him, so."

The lady went down into the dusty street, took off one shoe, secured the pebble, then took off the other and shook the dust from it, and returned to the Master, as we may call him, and presented the pebble. He took it and said: "Woman, this is worth more than all else you have brought me. Do you now understand?"

The lady replied, "I begin to."

I turned my face down the street again and saw, as if produced by some wonderful magic, a pair of new shoes on the boy's feet, and his face lighted with a happy smile. As I turned to the Master, I saw him draw the lady's attention again to the street with a look of command which she could not resist. Then I observed an elderly man coming slowly up the street; he walked with difficulty as though he had serious trouble in his back; but as he came along I saw one and another come out to the roadside and accost him, when he stopped, took their hands and gave them words of encouragement and cheer as I knew by their faces, for some were radiant with glad surprise and some were drenched with silent, joyful tears; and little children came, and for them all he seemed to drop some rich and beautiful gem of thought—then I knew he too was a psychic.

The lady looked a moment at him, then started to go down to meet him, but suddenly stopped, and, as if by the same magic, I saw her trailing dust-bestrown garments transfigured to a beautiful pure white gown of misses' length. Then she went to meet the other psychic; she took one of his hands and rested it upon her white shoulder; then she laid one of hers upon his back. I saw him give her a grateful, happy smile, and they came up to the gate together.

Cheerfully the Master opened it, and reverently bowing the feeble man in said, "Brother, enter into thy well-earned rest."

The lady stood looking down at her treasures, then thoughtfully threw them one by one into the street. Again she faced the Master, who repeated with a kind smile: "Woman, do you now understand?"

She bowed her beautiful head and answered: "I understand that the least of these who do thy work unselfishly is greatest in the kingdom of heaven—let me go back and try again."

And the Master laid his hand upon her head and blessed her, and with his encouraging smile to light her way she started in anew.

I have said here before that the true psychic who does the work of the angel world wears a martyr's crown every day of his life. The inclined plane that was shown me at the beginning of this vision revealed the easy road that many seek, for a stairway shows well-defined upward steps of spiritual progress and also work and self-sacrifice in ascending. The cloak indicated that all her work was not open and above-board; the offering she made at first appearing gold and then dross, represented that her work had not always been done with a pure and right motive; the magic of the new shoes proved that every little kindness we do is two-fold, and we do not know how much benefit may accrue from one kind deed; the elderly man came to the Master empty-handed—no placard to emblazon his work, no claim to offer. What need? Nothing can be hid or unknown to the eye of inexorable Justice.

Shakspeare says:

"This even-handed Justice
Commends the ingredients of our poisoned chalice
To our own lips."

The metamorphose of the dark, soiled garments of the lady to pure white, gives us the blessed assurance that the Master is willing to give us unasked the symbol and badge of our good deeds, and our good intentions even.

We cannot afford to be unkind; we cannot afford to carry malice in our hearts; it is too costly for us in the end. One night of angry passion, one hour even of surging hatred in the brain makes us pay a heavy penalty in the loss of harmonious conditions, and in a temporary blindness to what is actually the truth, and, moreover, in attracting to us contentious influences. Let us not accuse others, in the body or out of the body, of bringing us into such undesirable conditions, when it is always plain on the surface that the boiling lava is within ourselves. Let us see to it that even-handed Justice in returning to us the measure of our dispensing cup brings it not filled with bitterness.

Half a century ago witnessed the advent of a new Divine Dispensation to the world. We have our individual callings, our individual labors public and private, our heroes, our priests. But God at times marshals his prophets, his leaders, and sends them forth with a new song in their mouths—a grander pean on their lips. A long needed and much demanded reform creeps in and colors life and character; immanent upheavals find vent in moral and social advancement, and then we realize that a dispensation from God is spreading throughout the world. Such is the Harmonial Philosophy, the universal fraternity as taught by philosophers, prophets and seers on both sides of the borders of the River of Life.

O ye mediumistic evangels! who dispense this gospel of love from the secular rostrum, the theological pulpit, the spiritual platform, or from the household hearth or the public curbstone, I would that ye had a thousand tongues and ten thousand hearts, and all were filled with the songs of man's humanity to man.

I would that ye gather the golden grain in each life's harvests, and sift for wheat and not for chaff; that your dispensations may be as the Divine Dispensations—full of the light of Truth.

The world is growing wiser, the world is growing better, and God's laborers in the rank and file of its industrial army are advancing right on to victory.

UNCLE EPH'S SERMON.

Snuff dat candle, dar, you sinnah,
Doan' you see hit's burnin low?
De Debbil he will be a winnah
Ef you doan', he will, for sho'.

Ole Satan lak de darkness best;
De Mastah he lak light,
You kaint expect de Mastah lest
Yo' candle's burnin' bright.

De good book tells you keep it trim,
An' dat you should obey,
Or Satan cotch you in de dim
An' swipe you right away.

Dat mean de good dar is in you
Should shine out ob yo' eye,
An' light de worl' whar it am blue
An' dark, before you die.

Dat mean you shake yo' brudder's han'
An' gib him yo' las' dime;
Hit means you sabe yo' fellow-man
Frum fallin' down in crime.

Hit mean you walk a hun'red mile
An' den you walk one mo'
To make a wicked sinnah smile,
An' let his sinnin' go.

Hit mean you mus'n't say a word
Dat bring yo' brudder pain,
An' nebber 'peat jes' all you heard
About his blot or stain.

Hit means to clothe de naked one
An' feed him good an' strong,
No matter whut he say and done;
Neglected, he'll go wrong.

Hit means dat you must' mind yo' fairs,
An' keep yo' lip to home
Ef you expect to hab yo' prayers
Reach up to heaben's dome.

Hit means yo' sperit am de light
An' you's de candle stick,
An' you should keep it burnin' bright
For fear ob dat Ole Nick.

Ole Nick be lak de chicken meat,
An' dey doan' roost at day,
So he jes' show his cloven feet
When darkness comes yo' way.

Den snuff yo' candle, dar, an' keep Yo' Mastah posted so
When you lay down for yo' last' sleep,
He'll know jes' whar to go.

DR. T. WILKINS.

WE call special attention to The Next World Interviewed, one of our special premiums. We are enabled to furnish it to our readers at the price announced in our premium list, from the simple fact that Mr. Horn donated the plates of the book to us. We have sent out thousands of copies of this book, and it has been well received everywhere. It should be circulated by the millions among all classes of Spiritualists. The seven books that we are offering to Spiritualists as premiums contain a large storehouse of useful knowledge on Spiritual and Occult subjects. You should have them on the shelves of your library where you can have access to them at any time. Read carefully our premium announcement.

A THRILLING SCENE

In the Life of the Martyr President, Abraham Lincoln.

The Citizen, of Boston, Mass., has the following: In 1801 there was published in New York a novel—well-written and holding the interest of the reader to the end. The book was published by "The Minerva Publishing Co.," and is entitled "Not to the Swift." The name of the author is not given in the copy before us (a second-hand copy which we picked up in 1893 in a New York bookstall). We understand that the work has been totally suppressed, and the publishers have gone out of business. Can any reader of the Citizen give further particulars? Much of the story relates to the assassination of Lincoln, and the following passages are extracted from it:

With his long legs crossed and his heavy head resting in his hand, the President himself looked absently at the blazing grate fire; while Secretaries Stanton and Seward conversed in low tones at the table on the other side of the room.

"Seward," suddenly exclaimed the President, "did I tell you I received a letter from Prof. Morse to-day, warning me against the Jesuits, and complaining that I sent Archbishop Hughes with Thurlow Weed to Europe to represent American affairs to our European cousins? He tells me the archbishop is also an arch-Jesuit, and while there, consulted frequently and independently with prominent Jesuits. He says he knows absolutely that Davis is in correspondence with Pius IX., and there is no question of the complicity of the order in our present civil war; and that they are continuously working in their secret way to handicap us in every move we make. What do you think of it? I myself have had some experience with these 'gentlemen in black.' I defended a Jesuit priest some years ago, in Illinois, and I saw enough of their deviltry then. He warned me against them; even declaring they would have my life, but I am tolerably healthy yet."

"You may not be through with them yet, Mr. President, and I am inclined to think Morse is more than half right. In fact, I am watching some of the gentry now, and I have every evidence necessary that there has been a constant communication between well-known Catholics in New York and the Southern leaders," said Mr. Stanton. Prophetic remark; had only sufficient heed been paid to it!

"I think you are altogether too severe, gentlemen, upon these poor religionists," broke in Secretary Seward. "Is it not a fact, now, that it is customary to ascribe everything we cannot see through to the influence of the Jesuits? 'Give a dog a bad name and hang him.' Some of the most amiable, polished, cultivated men I know are Catholic gentlemen. There is Mr. Corcoran"—

"A Southern sympathizer," burst out Stanton.

"There is Bishop Purcell"—

"A Jesuit," again broke in Secretary Stanton.

"And Dr. Maginn, of New York, is a man any country might be proud of."

"Maginn is nothing more nor less than a Southern spy, Seward, and at the present moment he is being watched," cried the now irate Secretary of War.

"Try again, Seward," laughed the President, "Stanton has you on every side."

"He may have me, as you say, Mr. President, in these individual cases, but I believe altogether too much stress is laid upon the actions of this Catholic order. Ever since Eugene Sue wrote his celebrated novel, 'The Wandering Jew,' it has been the fashion to see the hand of a Jesuit in every mysterious act. I have no doubt the order has its bad men, so have all organizations; but why condemn the order as a whole? Look at the educational work they are doing! Where will you find a more modest, studious, well-deported class of young men and young women than their schools turn out?"

"Oh, you mole!" cried the impetuous Stanton. "Look beneath the surface, Mr. Secretary of State; these children are not Jesuits. A Jesuit's training is not a thing of a year or two of tuition; but every one of them has instilled into his mind certain principles which render them fit subjects to be used in after life, if needed. Scratch a Russian's back and you will find a Tartar underneath. Go beneath the surface of male or female Catholic, educated in a Jesuit institution, and you find a ready tool to be used in social or political life hereafter. Just now I am about to cause the arrest of a beautiful young girl; under the guise of patriotism, the Jesuits have wrought upon her, until her entire life is devoted to the Southern cause. She is intelligent, clear-headed, and has made a large fortune unaided, when her father failed. She has great influence with Southern leaders, and uses her wealth without stint, besides being trusted with large sums from rebel sources. She was educated, I am told, at a Jesuit convent, and is now hiding in one. Archbishop Hughes ought to be in a military prison."

"Come, come, Stanton, you are altogether too severe upon the Jesuits," replied Mr. Seward, somewhat vexed. "Where will you find nobler men or women than among the Jesuit priesthood and their nuns? More self-sacrificing, more unselfish, more patient and gentle people I have never known. I even think I recollect when, at a great plague in Marseilles, their co-religionists fled, these men and women Jesuits stepped in from the neighboring towns and died at their posts. Is there anything in religion more noble, or grander than this self-sacrifice?"

Mr. Lincoln clapped his hands in great glee. "Good! Seward, good! It's a great thing to have an historical memory." But the great war Secretary was not to be conquered so easily. When aroused he was a terrible antagonist. With his left hand thrust under the tail of his coat and his long right forefinger extended, he said:

"An historical memory, indeed! I, too, am somewhat gifted that way, gentlemen. Great and good men there are in this 'Company of Jesus,' I admit, men of steadfast purpose and pure lives, but these men are not their leaders. In the height of argument I will not advert to the terrible crimes committed under the instructions of their leaders in mediaeval times; it is a matter of history. They are no longer what Loyola designed them to be, the 'soldiers of the church,' they are the politicians, the Machiavelli, the Talleyrands of the church. Born in Spain, reared in France, and developed in Italy, they are now spreading over our own beautiful land. Every civilized country in which they have obtained a foothold, has been compelled to expel them. Even one Pope himself felt the necessity of suppressing them, but they were called into life by another. Jesuitism! It is now the Catholic Church! Have you ever thought, gentlemen, of the millions upon millions of money controlled by their bishops in America? And all to be used at the will of the Pope! Archbishop Hughes controls the sum of thirty millions; what will he or his successor control twenty-five years from now? Gentlemen, we are simply seated upon a volcano. I tremble for the future of this country, for I am not sure the Pope, when driven from Italy, as he is sure to be, will not take up his abode in America. Even now he is coquetting with Jefferson Davis, and we all know that through the Empress he holds Napoleon under his thumb."

Mr. Stanton resumed his seat, and for a few moments no one spoke. The Secretary's invective had aroused too painful thoughts in the minds of both Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Seward. Finally a long sigh escaped the President and he said:

"You seem to have some spite against these poor Jesuits, Stanton. I have no doubt they have been guilty of many murders, but you overrate their power for mischief, I think."

Seward said nothing, but the conversation was not forgotten, and when, shortly after that, the riots occurred in New York, Mr. Lincoln wrote Archbishop Hughes that if the matter did not cease he should hold him personally responsible. An announcement was made that the archbishop would address the rioters, which he did, and quiet was restored. * *

Inauguration day, with all its glorious pageantry, came and went. Again Abraham Lincoln was sworn in President of the United States. The thunder of the cannon had ceased, the long procession had dispersed. The wires were now conveying the glad news to all parts of the continent. Again there was a roaring of cannon, this time in the valley around Richmond, in the West and in the South. While all this was going on, a miserable, bent, forlorn man was sneaking along the avenue toward the National Hotel. Again thwarted and almost dejected, he crept to his room, and there ate out his heart in vain regrets and moanings. It is our last look at Wilkes Booth. In a little over a month from this date he was a hideous, blackened corpse, a foul assassin, and fills an unknown grave. How much of his guilt rests upon others and how much was the result of his own wayward nature, only history can tell. But when the search does come, probably long years from now, and the archives of state are permitted to be explored, it will be found that the "trail of the serpent is over it all," and history will record another instance of the detestable meddling in political affairs of that secret, subtle order, which will never cease while governmental toleration permits its snake-like head to lift itself unpunished and unrebuked.

The time has come when notice must be taken of the Jesuits in America. When attention is called to them, they humbly bow their heads and disclaim any intention of interfering in social, political, or educational affairs; and yet, before the breath of denial has faded away, comes their demand for a division of school funds. Hundreds of millions of dollars are held in trust by the Order of Jesus in America. Shall we deny the vast power these millions represent? Is it not a fact that the free press of this country to-day handles very tenderly all topics relating to Catholic affairs? Is it not a common thing to hear it said: "Do not antagonize the Catholic element, or you will lose their votes?" Suppose for one moment the edict goes forth that a certain set of men are to be elected to office, and the full power of the church through its priesthood is exerted in that direction. With nine million communicants and their friends, who would rule America? The Vatican. This very question presented itself, at the time of the trial, to the government officers, and despite the excitement and tremendous pressure brought to bear upon them, one thing was hushed up—the fact that the conspirators, or most of them, were Catholics. When Mrs. Surratt ascended the scaffold she was supported by two Jesuit priests. When almost in the agony of dissolution she uttered these words:

"Holy father, can I not tell these people I am innocent of this crime with which I am charged?" one responded:

"No, my child, the world and all in it has now receded from you; it will do no good."

"Never-Ending Life Assured by Science." By Daniel Kent Tenney. A strong and conclusive argument from the basis of science. For sale at this office. Price 6 cents.

ROBERT OWEN.

"Book of the New Moral World."

(Continued from No. 552.)

To the Editor:—The extracts from this interesting and valuable book having been received and read with apparent interest, I am encouraged to continue them:

"5. That if it should ever occur among beings so trained, educated, employed, and placed, that differences of opinion or feeling could arise to require interference of others to adjust such differences—which are deemed almost impossible to occur after one generation shall be thus formed and placed to become rational in their thoughts, feelings and conduct—shall be adjusted by arbitrators previously chosen, who will render all magistrates, lawyers, and courts of law wholly unnecessary.

6th. That any parties thus trained, educated, employed and placed, who should act in opposition to the happiness of society, individually or generally, could do so only by being afflicted with mental disease; individuals so acting shall be placed within a house of recovery, treated as mildly as the case will permit, and kept no longer within the house and its immediate external inclosures than is necessary to reproduce a sound state of health.

These are the only laws that will ever be required in a rational state of society.

The institutions will all be in accordance with these laws, and emanate from them, as the arrangements of society will emanate from the institutions.

"The institutions will be to well educate and employ one and all, according to their physical and mental powers, so as temperately to exercise both, to keep body and mind in the best state of health and cheerful good spirits; in order that life may be extended and happiness enjoyed to the latest period that humanity will admit.

"The arrangements will comprise the means to produce the greatest amount of the most valuable wealth, in the shortest period, consistent with the health and rational enjoyment of the producers; to distribute this wealth most beneficially for all; to assist, in connection with the previous institutions, to form the best character, physical, mental, moral, and practical, for each individual, from birth; to well govern all, locally and generally, without force or fraud, and solely by reason and kindness, based on an accurate knowledge of human nature and of the science of society.

"These are the only institutions and arrangements which the world will require, to be formed into a terrestrial paradise, and its inhabitants into rational and superior beings.

"And these institutions and arrangements may be formed and conducted so as to insure an incalculable increase of happiness to the human race, at a greatly reduced cost of material and labor, compared with the random waste, misapplication of means and misdirection of the most valuable and erroneous powers, under the present most immoral, chaotic, and miserable system.

The laws, institutions and arrangements, will all be in accordance with the laws of human nature and of nature generally. They will always aid nature, while the present system always opposes nature.

"Under this change those who, for the time, govern, and those who are governed, will be the same in knowledge, in feeling, in interest, and in the objects to be obtained. There will be no open or secret opposition or contests of any description; there will be but one will between the governed and those who govern for the time being. Neither will anything be hidden by the one party from the other; for secrecy will be unknown throughout the whole transactions of beings thus united by knowledge, interest, and the desire to increase the happiness of all. The human race, in this respect, will become as little children, whose thoughts and feelings are freely and simply and innocently expressed to all who ask, or indeed, are unbidden to all who see them.

"The happiness to be experienced by society when it shall be governed by laws well administered, will produce a state of existence upon earth, of which few, if any, are competent to form a true conception. When these shall be united in practice, everything will proceed from a solid foundation, so systematically, regularly and easily, that all will, after a time, believe that these proceedings are so natural that they never could have been otherwise. But experience has convinced the present race of man that all first discoveries are rude, complicated, expensive and imperfect; while subsequent experience improves by simplifying the operations, reducing the expense, and making results more perfect.

"This is the process now in progress from the crude, complex, extravagant, and miserable system in which the world has been hitherto involved, to the more simple, economical, effective, and happiness-producing system, about to supersede the former.

"When the two systems can be contrasted, the difference will be so striking—indeed so far beyond all comparison between the old and the new—that all must gradually abandon the old, while the great majority will be most eager to obtain and secure all the advantages of the new.

"And assuredly man can not be placed in a position to enjoy all the happiness of which human nature is susceptible, until he shall be enabled to reside in a society whose laws, institutions, and arrangements, well organized and well governed, shall be all in unison with the laws of human nature."

O. H. MATHEWS.

New Philadelphia, Ohio.

(To be continued.)

"Love—Sex—Immortality." By Dr. W. P. Phelon. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

LIFE AND EXPERIENCE IN SPIRIT LAND

A Series of Letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea to His Son, Carlyle Petersilea.

LETTER NUMBER TWENTY-EIGHT—Continued.

We must have halls, temples and beautiful public buildings of all kinds, just as you do on earth, only higher up the scale, refined and spiritualized; and sometime we shall describe many of these homes and halls, temples and elegant structures. We have already done so in the two books—Mary Ann Carew and The Discovered Country—but we intend also to do something of the kind in these letters. It is precisely what the world most needs at the present time—a correct understanding of the things which are spiritual. The young do not, as yet, understand these things. They look upon the spirit world—if they think of one at all—as a kind of not understandable nothingness, made up of ambient ether and floating angels, neither men nor women. One young lady told the medium that she thought the spirit world was like the Fourth of July—minus the fire-crackers—great crowds of people or rather, angels, just floating aimlessly about with nothing to do except to sing and shake hands and be glad to see each other.

Oh, friends, this is almost as bad as the orthodox heaven and hell. They, at least, have a little something more tangible. And now allow us to say right here, that the spiritual world, together with all its spheres, is a vast deal more tangible than the coarser earth. What do you of earth have in your hand when the spirit has left? Crumble a dried leaf and see. Simply ashes. Cremate the body of a man and what have you? Ashes. The real, the substantial, the enduring has left and gone up higher. The ashes are left behind; the real and tangible has arisen; the form has gone up, the color has gone up, the ego, spirit and soul have gone up, all that was real and tangible has departed and finds a spiritual world containing all the living entities that he had known on earth, or those like them, that had preceded him.

Dr. Babbitt says that the first spiritual sphere is about fifty miles above the earth, extending each side of the equator about sixty degrees. This is as true as truth can be. We had told our medium the same thing long before this had been read by the medium, and was read in the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World with a start of joyful surprise that the same thing had been told to others or another as well, it being the first time the medium had ever read it in any book or paper. But we had said this years ago, for it is the truth.

Now, if your astronomers can see, with the aid of the telescope, nebula, millions of miles from the earthly sphere, why should it not be accepted that we here in the celestial life have fleecy clouds and gentle rain? exceedingly rarefied to be sure, to suit the rare condition of our ethereal atmosphere. Our atmosphere is, after all, something more than ether—it is ethereal but more dense, or different from the fundamental ether. What we are now saying, of course, pertains to the spiritual spheres around the earth which go with it in its revolutions, held to it by the law of attraction. Now if there were nothing but ether to attract, there would be no spiritual spheres at all, as anyone can readily see, for ether extends through all space and holds no more attraction for one globe or planet than for another, consequently there would be nothing to be attracted. The spiritual spheres must consist of something tangible or the earth could not hold them around it. There must be, as there is, tangible matter that can be attracted and held by the great law of attraction. The merest schoolboy can well understand this, and when all the world comprehends that all space whatsoever is filled by matter, spirit, and germinal points, and that all space whatsoever is ether, that there is no such thing as void or nothing, then this which we have told them will be clearly understood. You must in earth life either give up the idea of spiritual spheres, or admit that they are composed of sublimated or attenuated matter, which is nevertheless solid enough to attract and be attracted, else spirits must simply roam through ether, intangible and consequently without form—roam without aim or object forevermore. But natural law never works by or through this method. Natural law is forever striving to bring forth forms of beauty, intelligence and use, and the higher the spheres the more pronounced and unmistakable is this law.

When matter becomes too ethereal to be attracted by the earth, it is thrown off into the great zone of the earth's orbit, that we spoke of in our last letter.

We do not intend to write anything but that if one will stop to consider, it will be seen at once that it must be so in the very nature of its being at all. But we have promised to describe some of our homes, temples, halls, and palaces of learning, which we will proceed to do in our forthcoming letter.

LETTER NUMBER TWENTY-NINE.

We will not try to describe anything outside of the sphere in which we now reside, for fear that it might be inaccurate, as we have not yet wisdom enough to thoroughly understand all that we have seen that is above us.

Much of our architecture is like the old Grecian style, yet we have every kind that can be conceived by the soul of man; but the one we are now about to describe is somewhat like the Grecian style, yet not altogether: A long, wide building, square, like many buildings of earth, sustained throughout by great arches and massive pillars, crowned by an immense circular dome. The facade is very grand and beautiful, the roof here being supported by twenty-four majestic pillars, a large arched entrance in the centre, and a somewhat smaller one on either side of the central one; these are also arched. There are twenty-four large windows on each side of the building, but none at the back; there are three steps extending the entire length of the front, leading on to a very wide porch which also extends the entire length of the frontage. You are now looking with me on the exterior of the edifice, and you will observe that there are in all, forty-eight windows and twenty-four pillars; three arches, three steps and an immense central dome. From the center of the dome we observe a flag-staff, and waving gracefully from it is a large flag. The dome being circular and the body of the building square, there is quite a space at each corner of the roof, and each corner is filled by a group of statuary. In the center of each side of the roof, stands an immense statue, making, of course, four in all. This, as you will perceive, is a general outline of the building, and everything within and without bears a deep significant meaning. Now, together with us, study this structure, that we may discover the story it is designed to tell. The flag appears somewhat as a large, white, satin flag of earth, and the letters upon it are shining and golden; the flag-staff is also of shining gold, that is to say, it appears like that; the words upon the flag are, "Temple of Wisdom."

Now, of course, the temple we are showing you is but one. There are millions of others, even in this sphere.

The dome appears like shining gold, the statues and groups of statuary are almost lifelike in their appearance. The one directly in front is a majestic male figure, apparently crowned with the sun, which appears to shoot forth rays of scintillating light that are almost blinding in their beauty. In one extended hand a large volume appears, the index finger of the other is pointing upward and the meaning is: Man, know thyself and all that about thee lies; also, study that which is above thee.

As we face the building, on the left side, which is at the right of the statue, is a beautiful female form—exquisitely beautiful in all its proportions. She is crowned with flowers and on one extended finger is perched a dove bearing an olive branch, with the other she is pointing downward—her eyes are also modestly cast downward toward the earth. The meaning is: The woman represents love, the dove peace, hope, and progress to all below. The statue at the back of the edifice is that of a male crowned with thorns, in fact, almost an exact representation of Christ on the cross. The meaning is: Error shall be crucified or conquered. The remaining figure at the side, is that of a female crowned with pale stars and pointing toword the horizon. The meaning is: The morning breaks.

On each corner of the roof is a group of statuary—a family group of the four distinct races of men on the earth—the white, the black, the red and the copper-colored; the father, mother, and two children of each. The Indian stands aiming with bow and arrow, while his squaw sits working at a beaded moccasin; the little maiden leaning upon the shoulder of her mother, whilst the boy eagerly and intently watches the point of the arrow. The black man is kneeling in chains, whilst a huge bloodhound has seized the terrified wife. The little boy and girl cling to each other with starting eyeballs. The copper-colored man kneels before a huge idol, fashioned by his own skillful hands, while his wife weaves straws and rushes into beautiful designs. The little girl is painting china cups and glasses; the boy is laden with cakes and fruit, which he is presenting to the idol—and, lastly, the white group. The white man stands with an open book in his hand, the index finger of the other hand marking a passage or line, but his eyes are turned upward. His brow is noble, his head massive, his limbs strong, well proportioned and supple. His beautiful wife caresses the golden curls of a fair boy; the little girl watches with large, sweet brown eyes, a singing canary perched upon her extended finger. The meaning conveyed by each group is easily deciphered. The black man still wears the chains of ignorance and superstition, and, on account of this his wife is hunted by the emissaries of those who desire her subordination, and her children are also appropriated. The red man sends an arrow into the heart of his enemy in order to protect his wife and children as well as his own freedom and his hunting grounds.

The copper-colored man is so creative and industrious that he actually turns and worships the art created by his own handicraft; and his wife works out her beautiful and dainty fancies with rushes and straw, being filled with domestic virtues. The white man seeks to perpetuate his wisdom in books and legends, and still his eyes seek the realms of space for more. His wife desires that her boy shall be like his father, or, greater still, while the girl wishes to be like a beautiful, soaring, singing bird, with swift wing cleaving the unknown.

The dome, which is a half sphere resting upon a square, signifies that wherever this form is found wisdom is not complete or perfect, but is striving toward it. The flagstaff reaching upward toward heaven signifies that wisdom descends from above as lightning from the clouds. The dome being golden—gold is less precious than diamonds, yet very precious.

The body of this temple appears like veined marble, the windows of stained glass of every existing color. If the marble was without veining it would signify firm, unalloyed wisdom, white and shining; but in the sphere where the veining appears it is somewhat adulterated by error—not yet perfect. The stained windows, in all their various colors, indicate that each soul as yet perceives the same thing in a little different light.

The twenty-four pillars are of polished granite, indicating that wisdom is strong, enduring and beautiful, and that which upholds the universe together with all contained therein being twenty-four in number, indicates that there are twenty-four primary elements of wisdom underlying all things in nature—and the forty-eight windows, that these primary elements can be combined to bring forth forty-eight different results—we mean chemically combined.

The three steps leading into the temple signify body, spirit and soul germs; the three arches have their names written over them—upon their key-stones—the central one, Wisdom; the one at the right, Love; the one at the left, Truth. Matter, Spirit and Soul lead upward to Wisdom, Love and Truth. When these are once attained, happiness or heaven, is the result.

The reader will see at once that this temple is exceedingly large. The interior is supported by pillars and arches. There are twenty-four arches on either side, supported by forty-eight pillars, making forty-eight arches and ninety-six pillars. At the far end, opposite the entrance, is a raised platform or dais, and a pulpit or desk on which rests an exceedingly large book, together with a number of smaller books. There are very many beautiful chairs upon the platform, and a great scenic painting on the wall at the back.

The immense dome is filled by what might be called an electric clock, as nearly all these temples dedicated to wisdom and the arts and sciences are. The great clock represents some particular system of worlds, oftener the system belonging to your own sun, for within the spheres of earth the spirits and angels desire to teach of the system of worlds to which they belonged, before branching into others that they do not know so much about—and this dome is filled by representations of your own sun's system of worlds.

When I first came to spirit life these vast electric clocks interested me more than I can express.

There are the two bodies of the sun; the moon; your earth; all the various planets, together with their moons; and all in motion—worked by electricity—precisely as they roll in space in their various orbits.

Oh, it is most astonishing and wonderful! By this clock the science of astronomy is taught by the various professors of astronomy, many whose names are well known to earth.

About one-half of the floor, beneath the dome and in front of the platform, is filled by rows of seats for listeners, visitors and students. The spaces nearer the windows, inside the vast arches, are given up to various branches of science, chemistry and so forth, and on the key-stone of each arch is written the name of the particular branch within that particular arch, and within these arches are all the different instruments and paraphernalia needed for demonstrations, and within each arch an eminent Professor presides.

The great painting at the back of the Temple, filling the entire wall at that end, represents the four great nations of earth, together with the country of each, its different animals, flowers and trees, and many other details too numerous to mention. This great Temple is free to all, and everyone who cares to visit it. It was erected by a large band of wise angels, wherein to instruct all who desire wisdom; and all angels who do not inculcate error, can give instruction here if they choose; but, first, they must pass an examination, conducted by a large concourse of very wise angels, in order that false teaching and erroneous opinions may not creep in. Helena and myself belong to this Temple and often teach within its revered precincts. We visit it nearly every day in order to instruct and be instructed.

This Temple appears precisely as we have described it; but, of course, it must be borne in mind that this is not a material temple, built with heavy, cumbersome marble, and so forth, such as it represents; but is a spiritual temple, not made by hands, but by the constructive faculties, or minds, of the angels working with spiritualized matter or substance—their thoughts are tangible things, and take on tangible clothing, and are arranged by the will power of each, intently fixed on the one purpose—and it is precisely so in earth life. A company of men in earth life build a church or college, all agreeing in mind just what they desire, and then it is clothed with material substance, such as wood, granite or marble, and these are but small types of the greater, grander colleges and temples of wisdom within the spheres.

Do not say that what we have herein related is a work of the imagination until you understand the full meaning of the word imagination. A man, or company of men, must first image or imagine a house, hall or church, on earth, before it can be clothed with material substance, and it is precisely the same here. We must first image or imagine what we want and then clothe it with spiritual substance. Yours are real and tangible to you, there. Ours are real and tangible to us, here.

(To be continued.)

IMPORTANT MATTER FROM OUR FOREIGN EXCHANGES

HARBINGER OF LIGHT, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

A PHYSICAL PHENOMENON.

The Revue Scientifique et Morale du Spiritisme quotes from Les Annales Psychiques (Paris), the particulars of some investigations made by two Russian scientists, Dr. Pogorowsky, and Dr. Tischer, vice-president of the Russian Society of Experimental Psychology, in connection with a medium named Sambov. His arm was firmly bound to that of an assistant by means of a canvas ligature three inches wide and thirty feet long; and his hands were then tightly clasped together in the same way and the ends of the band were sealed, so that no movement of the fingers was possible. In this position, the medium's arm was passed through the arm of a chair; showing, as the experimentalists remark, that the intelligences producing these phenomena can, by some process, altogether unknown to human beings, disintegrate and recompose matter. Meanwhile, official science elevates its eyebrows, shrugs its shoulders, and refuses to credit well attested phenomena which it is unable to explain.

THE HUMAN AURA.

In an article entitled "Theory of the Universal Fluid," from the pen of Dr. Audollent, the writer thus relates how he was convinced of the existence of the human aura upon two occasions, in the year 1897: "The first time was in a garden, when I saw it around the head and back of a young man who was giving an animated recitation of a pathetic poem. This bluish aureole appeared to vary in intensity and density from time to time. In spite of all my efforts to persuade myself that it was the sport of an optical illusion, the phenomenon was prolonged before my vision for about five minutes. You must observe that these emanations appeared altogether spontaneously, without my seeking for them, without my mind being predisposed in the matter, and upon a young man previously unknown to me, and upon him only out of a dozen other persons who had met together for conversation.

"Again, upon another occasion, I chanced to see this aura. It was a luminous zone of a very pale blue enveloping an anaemic young lady who was consulting me in my study.

"I have permitted myself to insist upon these observations, the better to explain why and how my conviction has been fixed, immovable, definitive.

"Besides, many other persons of late years have furnished the particulars of these same phenomena, which were already known to Paracelsus, who was the first to give them the name of Magnetic Aura. Experiments still more conclusive have been recorded; and the facts have proved peremptorily the existence of a human and animal fluid, of emanations, and of fluidic interchanges taking place between man and the animate or inanimate objects by which he is surrounded. It is useless, I fancy, to recapitulate the labors of Reichenbach in 1850, those of Col. de Rochas, and those of the Russian Professor Narckiewiczlodko, and so many other savants."

But pure spirits can only stand in the aura of human beings who lead pure lives; for this attracts them; whereas they are repelled by that of men and women of evil habits. In the former case, this personal atmosphere, as described by clairvoyants, is bright in color, and more or less transparent; whereas, in the case of persons leading vicious lives, it varies in color from a dark grey to a deep black, and is more or less opaque. This is the "outer darkness" spoken of in the New Testament; while, on the other hand, the bright and shining aura, which surrounds a truly good man or woman, is declared to be synonymous with "the whole armor of righteousness," referred to by Paul, for it actually does envelope such a person as with a coat of mail.

ROBINSON CRUSOE.

Le Progres Spirite has alighted upon a passage in "Robinson Crusoe," which is extremely interesting as showing what were its famous author's views on Spiritualism. He writes: "Let no one disdain the secret suggestions and the warnings of danger which are sometimes given to him, although he may think that there is no possibility of their being real. That such allusions and warnings are given to us, I believe very few of those who have been observant of things can deny. That there may be certain discoveries of an invisible world and an intercourse with spirits, we cannot doubt; and if their object seems to be to forewarn us of a danger, why should we not suppose that they come from some loved agent (whether supreme or inferior, is not the question), and that they are given us for our good."

On turning to the book itself, we find a much more explicit confession of faith than even the foregoing, at p.p. 224 and 225, of the first volume of the Chiswick Press edition of 1812; where he says: "How wonderfully are we delivered when we know nothing of it; how, when we are in a quandary (as we call it), a doubt or hesitation whether to go this way, or that way, a secret hint shall direct us this way, when we intended to go that way. Nay, when sense, our own inclination and perhaps business, has called us to go the other way, yet a strange impression upon the mind, from we know not what springs, and by we know not what power, shall overrule us to go this way; and it shall afterwards appear, that had we gone that way which we should have gone, and even to our imagination ought to have gone, we should have been ruined and lost."

Here, as far back as the year 1719, is one of the greatest writers in the English language, stating in singularly lucid terms, the whole doctrine of spiritual impression by our guides and guardians in the Unseen; and he thence proceeds to describe the influence which a knowledge of these impressions and their impressors has had upon his own life and conduct:

"I afterwards made it a certain rule with me, that whenever I found these secret hints or pressings of mind, to doing or not doing anything that presented, or going this way or that way, I never failed to obey the secret dictate; though I knew no other reason for it than that such a pressure, or such a hint hung upon my mind. * * I cannot but advise all considering men, whose lives are attended with such extraordinary incidents as mine, or though even not so extraordinary, not to slight such secret intimations of Providence, let them come from what invisible intelligence they will. That I shall not discuss, and perhaps cannot account for; but certainly they are a proof of the converse of spirits, and a secret communication between those embodied and those unembodied, and such a proof as can never be withstood."

It is true that Defoe puts these words into the mouth of Robinson Crusoe, but that they are also his own sentiments is clearly proved by his emphatic reiteration of them, in his well-known "Treatise on Apparitions and Spirits," where he expresses his personal opinions on the subject, and tells us that he has had "such convincing testimonies" of spirit intercourse that he says, "I must be a confirmed atheist if I do not believe that there is a converse of spirits, I mean those unembodied and those encased in flesh." But the views of a man of transcendent genius, or in other words, of a highly developed medium like Daniel Defoe, on so important a question as this, must necessarily carry such very great weight with them to all unprejudiced minds, that we have made them the theme of another article, which appears elsewhere.

LIGHT, LONDON, ENG.

PRAYERS FOR THE DEPARTED.

What is a prayer for the dead but an expression of an earnest wish and a loving thought for those who have passed on before us? We know that in physical life such wishes and such thoughts are very real and objective things—storage batteries of spiritual force which will discharge themselves only when they reach the person towards whom they are directed; why should it be supposed that there is any difference in their action when the person thought of has no longer a physical body? The prayer or the strong loving wish for a particular dead person always reaches him and helps him, nor can it fail to do so while the great law of cause and effect remains part of the constitution of the universe. Even the earnest general prayer or wish for the good of the dead as a whole, though it is apt to be a vaguer and therefore a less efficient force, has as yet in the aggregate produced an effect whose importance it would be difficult to exaggerate. Europe little knows what it owes to those great religious orders who devote themselves night and day to ceaseless prayers for the faithful departed.

If it should be asked what it is that we ought to wish for our dear ones who have passed away—we who in many cases know so little of their condition that we might well fear to set in motion a force which might be ill-directed for want of more exact knowledge of their need—we cannot do better than turn to the formulas of the Catholic Church, and use that beautiful antiphon which appears so often in the services for the dead: "Eternal rest grant unto him, O Lord, and let light perpetual shine upon him." Unless we are dealing with a case in which we know of some special requirement towards which we can direct our thought-force, what better wish could we formulate than that expressed in those words of long ago, words which for many centuries have been the channel through which yearning affection has voiced its holiest feelings—by which so much suffering has been eased, so much benefit given?

If we observe how exactly it meets the needs of the man who has recently passed away, we shall realize that whoever may have composed that antiphon must have known very well what he was about, or perhaps been guided from above to write even better than he knew. For its two clauses express exactly the conditions which are most desirable for the dead; first, perfect rest from all earthly thought and care, so that his progress towards the heaven-world may be undisturbed; and secondly the perpetual light of the divine love shining clearly upon him through the higher and more spiritual part of his own nature, drawing him ever upward toward itself, so that his progress may be rapid. Truly earth has little more of assistance to give to a man for whom such a prayer as that is being earnestly and constantly offered.

THE TWO WORLDS, MANCHESTER, ENG.

MODERN SPIRITUALISM.

Read in the light of modern Spiritualism, the Bible becomes particularly useful and highly interesting; because it contains, to borrow a happy phrase from one of your contributors, the "fossils of the very phenomena" with which we are to-day acquainted. The older records concerning miracles, the mystery of seership, trances, the hearing of voices, the discerning of spirits, the writing on the wall, the visions of Ezekiel, of Peter, and Paul, and John, and all the rest—these, together with many other so-called signs and wonders which saturate those contrasted with the facts and analogous phenomena of to-day. Spiritualism would, therefore, re-establish all that is bright and beautiful in the Bible on the solid rock of infallible facts without doing any violence whatever to our reason. Spiritualism throws a flood of light upon the origin of the more ancient phenomena recorded in the Bible, and the latter reflects some light on the phenomena of to-day; and thus is the past and the present brought into touch and mutual relationship, and thus also are we treading the old and familiar paths so dear to our forefathers.

Read in the light of modern Spiritualism, the Bible becomes a valuable "theological museum," wherein is indicated the growth, or evolution, of religious ideas in the minds of the ancients. When regarded in this light calmly, and without prejudice, and when it is placed alongside of the higher ethics and evolution of religious ideas which have found expression in the books of to-day, then does the Bible become a treasure in the world's "theological museum."

In so far, therefore, as the thoughts contained in any book, whether ancient or modern, represent or reflect the perfect thoughts of God, by all means let us admire the thoughts and the thinkers of those thoughts; but we should always bear in mind the injunction of the returning spirit, or angel, which appeared to John. When the apostle was about to fall down and worship the angel, the latter exclaimed: "See that thou do it not, for I am thy servant, and of thy brethren the prophets." Let us remember that however bright and beautiful the thoughts of men expressed in books may appear, they are only but feeble and often spurious imitations of the perfect thoughts of the Supreme Mind as revealed in the only real and genuine revelation, namely, the universal nature that surrounds us, and of which we form a part. May the brief prayer of Kepler's, therefore, be ever ours: "Oh, God, I strive to think thy living, immortal, and perfect thoughts after thee." By thinking thy perfect thoughts, I shall think no evil thoughts; but shall clothe my soul in the meridian light and splendor of thy glory, and then shall I be able to reflect that light to those around.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Vol. 2. Sweet songs and music for home and social meetings. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

KEEP YOUR

ON OUR MAIN PREMIUMS.

The Progressive Thinker one year and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, an intensely interesting, instructive and fascinating work, $1.25. The twenty-five cents only pays a little more than the postage and the expense of mailing. The price of this work to the trade is $1.50. This book will constitute our main premium for the remainder of 1900, and up to May 30, 1901. It is very valuable. It will hold your attention throughout, and will teach you a much needed lesson. The postage on the above book, which we prepay, is ten cents, hence it is almost a gift to our subscribers. It is furnished at considerable less than actual cost to us.

Offer Number Two.

Vol. 1, Vol. 2 and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, will be sent out when accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker, for $1.10. The paper one year, and the three volumes, $2.10. You can add to this order any of the other books, at 40 cents each. You can make only one order for three books for $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Three.

Any three of the books in our premium list that you may select will be sent to you for $1.10. You are at liberty to select any other books in the list that you desire in connection with this order, at 40 cents each. You can only make one order for three books at $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Four.

Our regular premium, The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, is only 25 cents. If you wish to add thereto one of the other premium books only, the same will cost you 50 cents. If you wish two additional books, the cost of the three will be $1.10. You can add thereto any other books you desire at 40 cents each.

Offer Number Five.

If you wish to order only one book in connection with a year's subscription, and that one not our regular yearly premium, the price will be 50 cents.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

OFFER NUMBER SIX.

SEVEN REMARKABLE BOOKS FOR $2.35.

Offered at Far Less Than Actual Cost.

The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol 1, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 2, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, Price	$ 1.50
Art Magic, or Mundane, Sub-Mundane and Super-Mundane Spiritism. Price	$ 1.50
Ghost Land, Spiritualism, Occultism. Price	$ 1.50
The Next World Interviewed. Price	$ 1.25
The Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate). Price	$ 2.00
Total price to the trade	$10.75
Total price to our subscribers.	$ 2.35
The Progressive Thinker one year and the seven premium books.	$ 3.35

These seven books, substantially and elegantly bound, and printed in the neatest style of the printer's art will be furnished to our subscribers alone for $2.35. But bear in mind that in order to secure these SEVEN valuable premium books for $2.35, the order must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. The paper one year, $1.00; the seven books, $2.35. Total, $3.35.

The aggregate price of these seven books to the trade is $10.75. In order to assist in forming a Spiritual and Occult Library in every Spiritualist's home, these seven valuable books are furnished to our subscribers for $2.35, which is less by far than their actual cost. The authors make no charge for the vast amount of labor bestowed on these works, and which extended over many years. The publisher receives not a single cent for the great expense he was to, hundreds of dollars being paid out in putting them in type, and electrotyping the pages, and making them ready for the printer. That is why you are getting these intensely interesting books for almost nothing. We are only carrying out the Divine Plan, inaugurated only by The Progressive Thinker. There are thousands of Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper, and this inducement is offered, in order that they may commence forming at once a Spiritual and Occult Library, and thus keep in line with the advancing procession. The postage on the above books and expense of mailing is about 85 cents, hence you are almost receiving them as an absolute gift.

By taking 85 cents from $2.35, you will find that all we have left us for those seven books is only $1.50.

"The World Beautiful." By Lilian Whiting. Most excellent in their high and elevating spirituality of thought. Series 1, 2, and 3, each complete in itself. Price, cloth, $1 per volume. For sale at this office.

"Buddhism and Its Christian Critics." By Dr. Paul Carus. An excellent study of Buddhism; compact yet comprehensive. Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 480 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Dr. Peebles' Most Important Books.

Reduced Prices.

Three Journeys Around the World

A large handsomely bound octavo volume, 500 pages, finely illustrated, describing the Pacific Islands, New Zealand and Australia, India and her magic, Egypt and her pyramids, Persia, Ceylon, Palestine, etc., with the religious manners, customs, laws and habits of all foreign countries. Price, $1.50.

Immortality.

And the employments of spirits good and evil in the spirit-world. What a hundred spirits say about their dwelling-places, their locomotion, their social relations, infants, idiots, suicides, etc. Price reduced from $1.50 to $1. Postage 12 cents. Paper, 50 cents.

Seers of the Ages.

This large volume of 400 pages (9th edition), treats exhaustively of the seers, sages, prophets and inspired men of the past, with records of their visions, trances and intercourse with the spirit world. This is considered a standard work, treating of God, heaven, hell, faith, repentance, prayer, baptism, judgment, demoniac spirits, etc. Price reduced from $2 to $1.25. Postage 15 c.

Spiritual Harp.

A book of 300 pages, containing songs, hymns and anthems for Spiritualist societies and circles. The words are afire with progress. It contains the choicest songs and music by James G. Clark and other reformers. Reduced from $2 to $1.25.

India and Her Magic.

A lecture delivered by Dr. Peebles before the medical students of the College of Science in San Francisco, January, 1895. Astounding wonders that he witnessed during his journeys around the world. Price 10 cents.

Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?

This pamphlet of over 40 pages proves that the greatest and brainest men in the world to-day, such as, Sir Wm. Crookes and hundreds of others are Spiritualists. Price 15 cents.

Did Jesus Christ Exist?

A pamphlet of 65 pages. Did Jesus Christ exist? What the spirits say about it. What the Jews say about it. What Thomas Paine said about it. What Renan said about it. What Franklin said about it. What Emerson said about it. What Rabbi Wise, A. J. Davis, W. E. Coleman and others say about it. Price 15 cents.

Dr. Peebles' Three Jubilee Lectures.

A most elegantly bound pamphlet of 122 pages, giving Dr. Peebles' lectures delivered in Hydesville, March 31, 1898, in Rochester, and later in London at the International Congress of Spiritualists. These lectures, illustrated, are racy, meaty and scholarly. Price 35 cents.

The Christ Question Settled.

A symposium by Hudson Tuttle, W. E. Coleman, Rabbi Wise, Col. Ingersoll, J. S. Loveland, B. B. Hill, J. R. Buchanan and Dr. Peebles. This is a handsome volume of nearly 400 pages, and treats of Jesus, Mahomet and the gnostics. What the Talmud says about Jesus. Antiquity unveiled. Child marriage in India. Col. Ingersoll's agnosticism. What the spirits through W. J. Colville, J. J. Morse, Mrs. Longley, Mrs. Everitt, Mrs. Hagan-Jackson and other mediums say about Jesus, etc. Price $1.25.

A Critical and Crushing Review.

By Dr. Peebles of the Rev. Dr. Kipp's five lectures against Spiritualism. This crisp and critical reply of the Doctor, while repudiating spiritism, and all frauds connected with the subject, sustains Spiritualism, considering it the complement of primitive Christianity. Price 25 cents.

Hell Revised, Modernized.

And made more comfortable. A scathing review of the Rev. Dr. Kipp's sermon delivered in the Presbyterian church, upon "What Is Hell?" By Dr. J. M. Peebles. A pamphlet of 25 pages. Price 10 cents.

The Soul—Did It Pre-exist?

Did it begin to exist with the body? Is it evolved from the body? Did it descend up through all the lower orders of creation, or is it a potentialized portion of God? Has it been re-incarnated, or re-embodied? Price 15 cents.

Pro and Con of Spiritualism.

This pamphlet is a re-print of the essays in "The Arena" on Spiritualism in which Rev. H. A. Hart endeavored to prove Spiritualism dangerous and allied to witchcraft. The reply printed in "The Arena" written by Dr. Peebles excited extensive comment, and is absolutely crushing. Price reduced to 5 cents.

Fiftieth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism.

An elegant pamphlet containing an account of the exercises at Rochester and Hydesville, N. Y., at the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism. It contains the addresses of some of the most noted speakers present. It contains the picture of the Hydesville cottage, wreath, etc., Price 15 cents.

DR. PEEBLES' Pamphlets and Books

FOR SALE BY

The Progressive Thinker.

BOOKS by Carlyle Petersilea.

Given by automatic writing through the author's mediumship.

The Discovered Country—$1.

A narrative of the personal experiences in spirit-life of the author's father, who had been a natural philosopher and a materialist.

Mary Anne Carew—Cloth, $1.

Experiences of the author's mother-in spirit-life.

Philip Carlisle—Cloth, $1.

A deep philosophical romance by the band of guides, the subject of the title being a scientific young philosopher, who is a medium; his chief opponents being a clergyman and a materialist.

Oceanides—Paper Cover, 50 cts.

A scientific novel based on the philosophy of life, as seen from the spirit side. For sale at office of The Progressive Thinker.

The Influence of the Zodiac UPON HUMAN LIFE.

BY ELEANOR KIRK.

This is the only book which states the simple principles of the Zodiac in simple terms, making the entire matter clear to the average understanding.

This volume indicates the location, characteristics and influence of each sign of the Zodiac, giving the days of each sign governs, and the gems and stars always associated with each.

The diseases of the body, how to cure them, and the faults of character incidental to the different domains.

The methods of growth for each human being.

The domains from which companions, husbands and wives be selected.

The characteristics of children born in different domains, and the conditions to be observed in their care and education.

The personal ability and talent of the individual with reference to domestic, social and business success.

This work is the result of profound research, and in its preparation the author has been largely assisted by J. C. Street, A. B., N.

Bound in Special Cloth, - - Price, $1.

For Sale at This Office.

VIBRATIONS, AND SOME OTHER THINGS

Interestingly Presented for the Delectation and Instruction of Progressive Thinkers.

"It is a condition, not a theory, that confronts us."—Grover Cleveland.

A new discovery sometimes afflicts us with a sort of snow-blindness, and we follow theories in contempt of fact, chasing them one after another as if they were Jack-o'-lanterns until we drop exhausted and lament "all is vanity and vexation of spirit." Even when a theory stands upon a pedestal of most scholarly logic there is ever the danger of gazing at it until we lose the power of action. It is logically certain that a pebble a child drops into Vancouver harbor affects the tides on Australian shores. Would he be wise that refused to go sailing until he had mathematical demonstration of the extent of that disturbance, or consider it in balancing cargo on his ship. In correspondence to that is the spiritual truth that each thought must have an effect upon the remotest wave of the illimitable ocean of thought.

The theorist long ago seized upon that alluring idea, and from this starter evolved many and wonderful philosophies, even so far as to declare each thought a living entity in eternal action, so that when a kitten scratches a baby the infant wail indicates a thought that disturbs the repose of a guardian spirit and goes on and on affecting the life of angel after angel throughout eternal ages.

Through long days of labor and nights devoid of ease, I elaborate a system of philosophy or invent a metaphysical puzzle using new terms to suggest a new combination of ideas or hide an imperfect comprehension of old ideas, and go forth proselyting. That aggravating common man stares as wisely as any owl and politely tries to conceal his amusement or pity. The unruly tongue trying to conceal thought with careful inflection says, "Is that so?" But in the volapuk comprehensible to the bright and dull alike, he says I am a fool; and "the most unkindest cut of all" is that after he has gone to his reward a low medium declares he is among the blest, although he denied my infallibility. Bye and bye after I have taken a course in humility and considered a few more facts I admit that my cyclopean forging was of something essential to no one's salvation except my own, because of my egotism.

In my youthful days I met a wise man. He gave me a pamphlet which, according to a process of reasoning I could not refute, proved I did not exist, or at least that it was impossible for me to find out whether I existed or not. A wasp came into sufficient rapport with me to present another argument which convinced me there was a flaw somewhere in that theory, although the wasp, like myself, was not well enough educated to expose it by abstract reasoning.

In due time I ran against another wise man. He held me with his skinny hand and with his glittering eye the while he was demonstrating that I was nothing but a lump of mud agitated by a vagrant electric current. "Mother Nature" was not so angry this time, and ordered a pretty girl to trip gayly by humming "Sweet Marie." I awoke and bid good-bye to the philosopher.

Not long ago I pushed my way into a crowded hall where enthusiasts welcomed the arrival of certain pilgrims who were supposed to possess the key to ancient mysteries. 'One of the twelve" assured us that none of us could tell if we were awake or in a dream state. Directly I had a sitting with C. V. Miller, of San Francisco. Among other spirits appeared one claiming to be Blavatsky. To make a long story short while the memory of that seance was fresh, I had little stomach for wind pudding. (Many say Miller's spirits were bogus. That is one of the many things I don't know. This I do know, that they were not all bogus).

Underneath each of these theories is a human soul striving to break its fetters—an infant crying for the light. There is a more or less distorted reflection of truth in every one. They are top-heavy castles resting on too narrow a base of fact. They cannot endure. It requires no mighty rushing wind of Pentecost, only a breath from one of these undignified rapping spirits to topple them. You may squander your talent trying to destroy the faith, hope and love that make life worth living. Your dear ones will follow you to the edge of the pit and like cowboys heading off a stampeded herd, will try to deflect your mind making the demoralized imagination describe a narrowing circle until you become sensible and seize upon the humblest fact that sustains aspiration.

Because the Spiritualism of the common man recognizes a possible natural relationship with sympathetic spirits, it is not, I think, in great danger; but the chief impediment to satisfactory progress comes from the theorist within the camp who diverts attention from actualities, and making this, that, and the other theory shibboleths to indicate scientific or respectable Spiritualism prevents the harmonious thought environment requisite for satisfactory results. We concede that spirits have always been able to sway a little by suggestion, but this is not enough. The mother may write, telegraph or even telephone to the erring child and influence to some extent; but it is a different thing altogether for the wandering boy or the anxious mother to come into personal contact. To render much assistance or gain a thorough understanding of the varied influences that enthrall us, it is necessary that they approach closer than allows merely for telepathic suggestion or hypnotic control. If permitted they will always in obedience to the demands of human nature awake conscious sensation and a natural response by means of physical contact. Can one that really loves you, whom you mourned as dead, be content to stand a long way off and shout or telephone, "I am all right; now go on about your business and have no fear of death?" No, that dear one yearns to clasp you, kiss you and wipe the sweat of slavery from your wrinkled brow. Nor until the mortal consciousness is quickened to the degree that permits this can we uproot the real cause of suffering, and the prophecy be realized when in ancient phraseology "God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

It is not a lack of understanding this, that, or the other theory, so much as the pertinacious insistence of every theorist that we spend our life following him in his metaphysical labyrinth, that dulls our apprehension of facts; and dwelling so long in subterranean caves it is no wonder that having eyes we see not and having ears we hear not.

Let us admit the rap as the elementary form of independent spirit manifestation. It marks a boundary line. While the one who does not pay much attention to the raps may be either above or below the line; if in his deliberate moments he expresses contempt for a rap you may be sure he is below. On that day when any spirit manifestation in which love is acknowledged is rendered contemptible, hang your harp on the willows, for you are a captive on the way to Babylon. Any theory that usurps attention so as to make one despise the actual experiences essential to happiness is an obsessing demon, even if logically unassailable from the standpoint of the inventor.

A man whom I know to be the extreme type of a sophistical theologian asks me: "Do you believe in God?" If I say no, he announces that I repudiate the virtues attributed to his god. If I say yes, he declares I am committed to a defense of the vices embodied in his concept of the Deity.

A man whom I know to proclaim evolution as working along unrelated, unmethodical lines asks: "Do you accept the hypothesis of evolution?" If in view of his unacceptable exposition I hesitate, he says I deny evolution. If I say yes, he declares I accept his exposition of it.

Another asks: "Do you believe in the salvation by Christ?' If I say no, he declares I repudiate the gentle and noble qualities of Jesus. If I say yes, he announces that I defend the practice of appealing to all that is vindictive and tyrannical in the name of Jesus.

Really I have no quarrel with God, Jesus or evolution, only I make a feeble protest against swallowing nauseous and indigestible spiritual food in the name of either. Similarly I have no prejudice against the vibratory hypothesis (being such beyond the point of some limited experimental demonstrations) and believe it capable in ables hands of explaining the various phenomena of an infinite universe. Withal I am not what the Westerner would call a vibration fiend and when I find my theorizing to conflict with sensible experience I admit my pet is dead and bow to the inevitable even if it cost my crown.

The Arkansas Traveler tells of a native who, proud of his recently acquired "book larnin'," said: "Any man who knows a thing about mathematics can tell you twice six is twelve, but no man living can figure out three times seven." In every field we find the leonine and strong-lunged instead of using what they know to be a step to knowing more, pervert it in trying to prove that no one else can figure three times seven, or be conscious of experiences unfamiliar to themselves. It would be unique if this theory of vibrations was not seized upon by the non-sensitive to prove the illusory nature of experiences not yet personally given to them. "It is therefore beyond any other" and 'contrary to the laws of nature." Oh! Mother Nature, what crimes against truth, what sins against the light are committed in thy name.

Mrs. Maloney, whose son had emigrated years before, heard that there was a strange man in the next village who claimed to have visited America. She trudged over the bogs to his lodging. "They tell me you're a majium, that you were in Ameriky and saw the O'Rourkes and the rest av our boys."

"Yes, I have been across the ocean."

"Will, thin, I'll prove ye. Tell me all about my son Pat Maloney."

"Oh! I don't know."

"That'll do, that'll do now; you're nothin' but a lying majium—a loonytic. If ye were iver in Ameriky ye would know all about Pat, for that's where he wint."

This is the simplest type of those who prove the delusive nature of Spiritualism. Between that one and the great speculative theorist there are many, but all of the same family and the real ground of their objections is a lack of personal experience.

A little explanation: I write under no control, nor do I claim to be a competent amanuensis, but am always conscious, after a little concentration, of companionship, and more or less clear suggestion. I sat down to briefly state my ideas on Vibration in response to a reminder that I once wrote in a way to suggest, "I could an' if I would." I intended to preface my remarks with the brief Chinese preamble, "You no likee no takee," but have drifted with the tide. I am now thoroughly impressed that the wisest saying I can utter about vibrations (raps and extra mental pressure) is that it is infinitely more important to remember that you can develop high sensitiveness or mediumship without considering the subject just now than to possess all the knowledge of vibrations yet acquired by any mortal, if you are led to regard mediumship limited by such imperfect knowledge or induced to undervalue it because it fails to harmonize with any theory.

Long before it was suspected that our earth revolved around the sun, that glorious orb of day warmed the unscientific clod-hopper as generously as he does the wisest astronomer. So have vibrations affected those who never heard the word, nor did they need to inquire about the rate in harmonious or inharmonious conditions any more than they needed to consult a thermometer to find if their feet were warm or cold.

After all we do not need so much to know what is true, as what truth is applicable to our needs. The pervading idea of this effort is to show that facts not theories are the stubborn things, and that phenomenal mediumship subject to the law of love is the safe-guard from sophistry and superstition of our mental liberty. If spirits are denied opportunity of appealing to your organs of conscious sensation and through them to the emotions, you cannot maintain a state of spiritual inaction, and having lost the reality you must pursue phantoms. If the mighty works which are done in thee had been done in the days of your more humble fathers the world would never have been afflicted with the theology of Calvin, the "metapheesics" of John Knox, or the ravings of Jonathan Edwards. Selah.

After all I really assail no other's nor surrender my own right to theorize, only I want to be sure my feet are on safe spiritual ground, and in no danger of getting entangled in the ropes of a speculative balloon, and after a rest will try to expose a little of what I don't know about these pesky vibrations.

J. T. MACDONALD.

Vancouver, B. C.

"Religion as Revealed by the Material and Spiritual Universe." By. H. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A compact and comprehensive view of the subject; philosophic, historic, analytical and critical; facts and data needed by every student and especially by every Spiritualist. One of the very best books on the subject. Price, reduced to $1, cloth; paper 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Infidelity of Ecclesiasticism, A Menace to American Civilization." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood, lecturer upon physical, physiological and psychic science. Demonstrator of the molecular or spiritual hypothesis of nature. Scholarly, masterly, trenchant. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"Gleanings from the Rostrum." By A. B. French. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

OUR REDEEMER.

Address by Dr. A. Antrim Davis, at Hayesville, Ia.

Friends, we come now in the sweetness of this music to dwell in the ecstasies of the sweet bye and bye. The melody of all soulful music must bring human souls into the great harmonies of the universe, in one grand human brotherhood, with malice toward none, but universal love for all.

I want to tell you, friends, it is good for us to be here where we can come so closely in touch with our dear loved ones who have passed on in advance of us, leaving many of us pressing hard toward the margin of the river, almost in hailing distance of the boatman who is only waiting to bear us to the other shore.

We have and acknowledge the grandest redeemer ever known to earth's inhabitants, and he was neither born of a virgin nor cradled in a manger.

He came to the Christian world, and it knew him not. He visited the churches and was given a low stool behind the door, thinking no one would observe the tramp in passing out, for he was very plainly clad, but had a sweet countenance and soulful eyes, which could penetrate the shadow of superstition that hung so heavily about them and made their ways so devious.

This redeemer, our redeemer, was born of Mother Nature, of natural conception, son of the eternal verities, and cradled in the heart of all humanity. His mission is to redeem mankind from a belief in a priestly plan of salvation through vicarious atonement, and to teach that each individual is alone responsible for every deed committed, whether good or ill, and that there is no power on earth or in the spheres beyond through which anyone can escape this reasonable responsibility for his or her own doings.

Now, dear friends, allow me to acquaint you with the name of this redeemer, at the mention of which your every heart and soul will yearn to possess him, and he can be yours in very truth through effort. His name is Knowledge. He comes to the Spiritualists and will abide with them, while all arisen souls join with us in singing his praise as we travel onward and upward to the golden sunlit summit of a grand and perfected humanity.

And why do Spiritualists above all others welcome this redeemer? Simply because our friends whom we had been taught were dead and "gone to that bourn from whence no traveler ever returned," have returned and assured us of the error of our former teaching. They continue to return and manifest themselves in so complete and comprehensive a manner we cannot doubt.

A case was related to me a few days since by an unbeliever, wherein he states he at one time had occasion to go to the timber for a log. He observed two nice straight trees with seeming little choice, but made a choice and was about to commence chopping when something seemed to say, "You better take the other tree;" but he could not see why he should change his plan, and commenced to chop again. A voice seemed to say, "Take the other tree," and he did so, scarcely knowing why, but before he had fallen his tree, another had fallen right where he would have been standing had he disobeyed the warning.

Another case of loving watchful care was related to me by a cousin of mine while on the Pacific Coast some three years ago. This young man, Ora Copeland, had spent two seasons on the Pacific Ocean seal hunting. On the return of the second season the captain of the sealing vessel sickened and died. Some two years thereafter, Ora concluded to make another trip for seal hunting, taking a younger brother with him for boat puller while he would do the shooting. These seal-hunters leave the ship at anchor and take their little boats with provision, ammunition and compass, going miles away from the ship. On this occasion the boys were caught in a fearful storm, which overturned their boat, losing everything but boat and oars, leaving them to drift two days and nights without sleep, food or drink; their reckonings and compass lost in the deep. On the third day, when despair was about to overcome them, Ora says, "I saw my old captain standing on the bow of the boat pointing." Taking the suggestion, they took to their oars, pulled with might and main, reaching the ship just as another storm was breaking upon them.

Ora says: "I never saw my old captain plainer in my life."

Thus, my hearers, is shown the vigilance of our friends whose bodies, like John Brown's, lie mouldering in the grave.

Thus you see our friends never forsake us, but ever draw more near as love and duty is registered in our pathway, and in the extremity of helplessness, when least expected, come to our relief and comfort.

Then should we not be ever grateful for the knowledge of this spiritual philosophy taught us by spirits just over the way, which enables us to hold sweet communion with the dear ones whom otherwise we must mourn as forever gone beyond the reach of this conquering love which possesses every soul in great bereavement and calls to us the spirit of the dear one gone from us, and in the quiet of a more passive moment whispers to our consciousness, "I am not dead—I have not gone from you. Weep no more, dear mother, father, sister, brother; your sorrows and weeping only bring shadows into my life. Only think of me as well and happy in spirit life, and I will be a light and help unto you when you come to this home of the soul."

A. ANTRIM DAVIS.

Sigourney, Iowa.

SPECULATIONS.

If you could dabble in a creek,
And let your feet hang idly down
Until your toes were soaking wet,
What greater pleasure could you seek
And hope to find in any town,
Where all you do is toil and fret?

If you could live among the bees
And pluck red berries from a vine
And watch the corn and peaches grow,
Could anything your spirit please
So very much, or seem so fine,
Or give you such a ruddy glow?

If you could watch the lambs at play
And see the chickens go to roost
And hear the birds at morning sing,
Would these not bring you back a day
Long dead, and give your heart a boost
Like that it used to feel in spring?

If you could lie around at noon
And have somebody fan the flies
From off your intellectual dome,
Would you desert that haven soon,
And seek for joy 'neath other skies,
Or would you call it home, sweet home?

—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"A Plea for the New Woman." By May Collins. An address delivered before the Ohio Liberal Society. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

TELEKINESY.

Strange Actions of Spirits in Boston.

To the Editor:—In replying to writer who inquired for similar phenomenal evidence to which he gave the name of "Telekinesy," or "Soul Force," in your valuable Progressive Thinker, I would say that it is doubtful if the articles he saw move so mysteriously were moved by the soul forces of the young girl's living mother. Rather was it done by some spirit who did not want the girl separated from her mother. This spirit may have been as bad or immoral as the mother, and thus showed its sympathy, despite the fact that most people think a spirit is infallible and always to be devoutly obeyed.

It is also probable that the man in whose presence these startling and occult manifestations occurred is one who has undeveloped and unknown powers for spirit physical phenomena. If he were to sit in a cabinet, doubtless the spirits could perform on musical instruments, etc., perhaps even materialize. A somewhat similar case, which may throw some valuable light upon these fascinating experiences with the spirit forces, occurred some years ago in the art studio of the accomplished medium, Mrs. Adelaide C. Littlefield, of 218 Columbus avenue, Boston, Mass.

At that time it was not known that this artist and society lady had any of these grand spiritual or psychical powers, to distinguish her from thousands of other Boston women. In fact, the suggestion that she would ever become a spirit medium would have been treated with contempt or scorn; but there are many dramatic romances in Spiritualism, equalling the idolized and adored records of Holy Writ as happening in the days of antiquity, and this was one of them. In the parlors of the artist were hanging many beautiful oil paintings, water colors, crayons, bric-a-brac, etc., which had been manufactured and arranged for sale to her many customers. There had been no evidence of spirits around the residence and in fact the spirit world was practically unknown and unrecognized by the thousands of people who daily passed the door. One day a wealthy business man called from the leading dry goods house in the city to select some paintings for his aristocratic and sumptuous residence in one of the quiet suburbs. He joked about getting married and said he didn't know whether he would get married or not. The woman wanted him to marry her, she loved him, she was stylish, rich, good-looking, healthy, plump and in the full bloom of life, but he could not honestly say that he loved her as a man ought to a wife. He saw so many beautiful women in his store that they had not the attraction for him which they might have for most men. As he talked and looked at the paintings, he suddenly said, "Well, that's strange. Did you see that picture move up there, just as if some one caught hold of it?"

The artist said: "Why, no; my paintings never move like that; perhaps the cars going by may have jarred them a little.' As she spoke, a beautiful large gilt frame with a valuable painting, was suddenly thrown from the wall and crashed down on the floor beside the man's feet. The painting was a wreck. He jumped aside startled at the phenomena and remarked "that the painting had not dropped but had been violently thrown evidently for his head, and he guessed he had better go, and call again some other day." Before he left one or two other frames were torn from the wall and dropped on the floor. Of course the artist was amazed and dumfounded, beside regretting that she had probably lost a valuable order. The cords, hooks, etc., were carefully examined and found to be in in a perfectly strong condition, There could be no question but that these painting had been violently torn from the walls by some unseen agency, but as spirits were not then known to have such a power, the incident remained a mystery for some days.

Finally the merchant called again and said that it was a funny thing, but the day those frames had been smashed up, his "wife-to-be" had died when about 50 miles from Boston, and up to the last minute she was moaning because her marriage had not taken place, as she had been promised it would be some months before.

The artist asked him "if he did not suppose it was his dead love's spirit who had torn down the paintings in rage and revenge, because he had failed to keep his promise to marry her?" He laughed at the idea and said he did not believe in spirits. Soon another frame was wrenched from the wall, as had been the first one; and and when still other ones began to move, the artist quickly jumped upon the chairs and removed them from the walls before they should be smashed up.

In later life the artist was told that she possessed great mediumistic talent and could have physical manifestations if she ate a vegetable diet and would sit regularly in a cabinet for development. She doubted the prophecy, but just to test her powers, went to a well-known developer of mediums in Boston, and after seating herself in his cabinet, soon heard the spirits ringing some loose bells on the floor, playing on a musical instrument and performing similar feats against all the laws of nature.

After such conclusive evidence of spirit power, she devoted herself to the most rigid conditions of diet, habits, conditions, etc.; and since which time she has developed trance speaking, playing of piano and spirit painting, table-tipping, raps, etherealization, materialization, curing pains, diseases and many complaints, diagnosing disease by spirit power, psychometry, etc.

Some people claim that these phenomena are all hypnotism, but this radical opinion is not held by any hypnotists the writer is aware of, and some of the best have been studied. The fact is well proven by reliable testimony and winesses that "Telekinesy" or Soul Force is an actual scientific reality which to-day is baffling the greatest scientists of the age. Not to be familiar with these spiritual powers is to confess one's self ignorant and uncultured. It is no longer stylish or smart to ignore the spirit world. The Psychical Research Society has admitted all our claims and the best thing the public can do is to subscribe for the Spiritualistic papers and get their eyes and ears open for those miraculous discoveries.

GEO. E. LOTHROP, JR.

Boston, Mass.

"Cultivation of Personal Magnetism. A Treatise on Human Culture." By Leroy Berrier. For sale at this office. Price $1.

"The Heresy Trial of Rev. B. F. Austin, M. A., D. D. Giving a sketch of Dr. Austin's life, story of the heresy trial, copy of the charges, the heresy sermon, the scene at conference, and Dr. Austin's full address defending his views on Spiritualism at the London Annual Conference at Windsor, Can.," etc. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

WALTON'S GROVE, KAN.

Notes of a Successful Spiritual Meeting.

To the Editor:—Our meeting at Waltons Grove, Sunday, June 24, was a success in attendance, and the services were rendered more attractive by the assistance of two good workers, Mrs. Laura B. Payne and Mrs. Inez Wagner, of Topeka, Kans. Mrs. Payne contributed much to the interest of the services by her own inspirational songs, which she rendered in an attractive manner. Mrs. Wagner followed by tests from the platform in which capacity she is an excellent medium. Both of these ladies are a credit to Spiritualism and should be employed by camps throughout the country. Mrs. Wagner's private readings are always fine, and some of her private tests are a marvel in the records of Spiritual phenomena. Example: A man's daughter was abducted, not knowing where she was he was induced to go to Mrs. Wagner for a private reading, the spirit through her told him his daughter was at a certain hotel in Chicago, gave the number of the room, and said he would find her there in a dying condition. The man took the first train for Chicago and found his daughter at the place and in condition described.

Mrs. Payne is woman of logical and practical mind, and as a speaker makes a wholesome impression on all that hear her, and she is destined to come to the front.

In my discourse I called attention to the commonness of spiritual phenomena and that the beginnings of all great religious movements—the inception of Christianity the starting of the various church movements such as the Methodist, the Universalist, the Shakers, the Quakers, the Swedenborgians, were attended with the interposition of the spirits. The story of John Murray and Potter is familiar to Universalists; the account of the spirit phenomena in the life of John Wesley given in Wesley's Journal is familiar to many Methodists acquainted with the life of the great Methodist founder. In the works and writings of Swedenborg the evidence of spirit control is beyond question. When John Wesley was in the prime of his manhood and busily engaged organizing the Methodist church, Swedenborg was old and his earthly race was about run. A little while before he passed hence he wrote to John Wesley the following significant letter, viz.:

"Great Bath Street,
Cold Bath Fields,
February 1772.

John Wesley, Esq:—

Sir:—I have been informed in the world of spirits that you have a strong desire to converse with me. I shall be happy to see you, if you will favor me with a visit. I am sir, your obedient servant,

EMANUEL SWEDENBORG."

This letter was delivered to Wesley by messenger in the presence of a company of ministers who were arranging their circuits. Mr. Wesleyy frankly admitted that he had been strongly actuated by a desire to meet Swedenborg, but had revealed his wish to no one. He wrote in reply that he was then occupied in preparing for a six months' journey, but would wait upon Swedenborg on his return to London.

Swedenborg in reply stated that the proposed visit would be too late, as he should go into the world of spirits, nevermore to return, on the 29th day of the next month (March). Swedenborg died on the day mentioned. This is a veritable account in the life of Swedenborg. Such facts as these are common in history. I used to say when addressing agnostics and infidels that I can put any one of them on the witness stand under pledge of honor and any one can testify to facts in his experience that are not compatible with his own hypothesis. In the ample range of each man's individual experience there are known facts that are not to be accounted for from the hypothesis of materialism; facts which point to the invisible world, straws which show which way the wind blows although we cannot see the wind. Our brows are fanned by breezes from the other shore.

The only escape for the skeptic is to ignore the facts and refuse to acquaint himself with them.

Some time in the future I will take pleasure in setting forth the historic facts incident to the life of John Murray, and the founding of the Universalist church in America, which I will place before the many readers of The Progressive Thinker by the permission of its editor.

What is called "God" is behind all the great movements in history.

All the forces of nature are invisible and all the manifestations in the material world are effects of invisible forces which belong to the invisible world. Hence this is a world of effects—that of causes. Tracing this subject back to its ultimate analysis we cannot divorce any force from intelligence. The only force that I positively know is the force which I exert. The existence of force outside of myself—or force not of my exertion, I infer from phenomena which I observe. Reasoning from the known to unknown, I must conclude if I am logical, that the force the existence of which I infer from phenomena, is intelligent.

If the only force which I positively know is intelligent it would not be logical for me to say that the force which I infer from phenomena, is a non-intelligent force.

But this metaphysics may not be relished; for metaphysical things are metaphysically discerned.

The county superintendent of schools made the following reference to the discourse in his paper, the Eskridge Star:

"Rev. T. W. Woodrow preached an excellent sermon last Sunday at the grove. He is a deep and well read scholar, a fine and pleasing elocutionist, a deep thinker and seems to be a lover of his fellow-men."

T. W. WOODROW.

Kansas City, Kans.

VOLUME 1 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World treats of the "Mythical Origin of Death;" "A Magdalen's Passage to Spirit Life;" "Impressive Communications from the Spirit Side of Life;" "Death Considered by the Spirit Lucretius;" "Oddities in Reference to the Dead;" "Death from a Vibratory Force;" "The Day After Death Beautifully Illustrated;" "Sensations of the Dying;" "An Birth Out of Dark Conditions;" "After Death Experiences of an Avaricious Man;" "A Special Visit to the Spirit World;" "Fragrance at a Child's Death Bed;" "The Varied Experiences of a Humanitarian Spirit;" "The Impressive Testimony of an Exalted Spirit;" "Indications of the Process of Dying;" "The Idiosyncrasies of Death;" "Life and Death Thoughtfully Analyzed;" "Signs in the Process of Dying," etc., etc. In fact this volume is a mine of valuable information, and every person should have access to it. It should be in every home. Read the premium terms carefully, and then send for the Three Volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death.

Christian Science Healing

Has Cured Nearly 2,000,000 People that Were Given up to Die by the Physicians.

It is an honest, studious, persistent effort to reduce our Savior's teachings and maxims to everyday life. Ruskin says: "It is the strength of Divinity we have to recognize in all mighty things." It comes like all good and perfect gifts, simply because our best citizens the advanced thinkers are forced to recognize the wonderful cures made daily and before our eyes by our successful Christian Science Healers.

There is now obtainable so much positive evidence of cures without medicine or other material means, "covering the whole range of ills that flesh is heir to" that no one is justified in refusing investigation. Thousands of happy men, women and children to-day are living in health and usefulness, who, a few years since, were physical or moral wrecks, pronounced incurable by doctors. If others are cured you can be.

One will say: "I have no faith;" or "I am too bad;" or "The day of Miracles is past." All these "ifs" and doubts are met by the fact that as many as truly desire are healed. If doctors and medicine have failed to cure you write to me at once, state your condition plainly. Remember you do not have to become a Christian Scientist to be cured, nor does it make any difference what your religion is or whether you are one or thousands of miles away from me. I have so many marvelous cures in the past 14 years that I am recognized today as the greatest Christian Science healer. My many and wonderful cures have startled the world. Write for my little book called "A Message of Health and healing." It is full of interesting facts and convincing testimonials. Enclose 2 cents for postage and address S. A. Jefferson, C. S. B., 414 Fort Dearborn Building, Chicago, Illinois.

THE GOSPEL OF NATURE.

IT IS A MOST EXCELLENT WORK.

This work is by DR. M. L. SHERMAN, assisted by PROF. W. F. LYON. Heretofore it has been sold for $2, but the price now has been reduced to $1. It is a book that will interest and instruct. It contains 480 pages, and is full of suggestive thoughts. Dr. Sherman was a medium of rare qualities, and his work is a reflection from the celestial spheres. It treats of the Soul of Things; Intelligence in Substance; Animal Intellects; Purity; Salvation; Discords; Good and Evil; Unnatural Ideas; Church History; Progression; Inherent in Substance; The Nebulous Theory; Particles are Entities; Justice; Impregnation of the Virgin; The Science of Death; Spiritual Death; Immortality; Mourning; The Confounding of Language; The Spirit Abodes; Matter and Spirit; Size and Distance; Spiritual Organisms; Born Again; The Key; Spirit Biography; Goes to Heaven; A Slave Master; etc., etc.

The author says: "Each individual partakes of both physical and mental or spiritual aliment for himself. Each one must digest their various kinds of food for themselves, and that is all they can possibly do whether they be priest or layman, teacher or pupil. My physical expands by virtue of that food and nourishment of which I individually partake and digest. My soul must expand by virtue of the soul essence which I individually gather and comprehend or digest." For sale at this office.

Philosophy of Phenomena.

BY GEO. M. RAMSEY, M. D.,

Author of "Cosmology."

IN TWO PARTS.

I. METAPHYSICAL PHENOMENA.
II. PHYSICAL PHENOMENA.

CONTENTS.

PART I.—METAPHYSICAL PHENOMENA.

Chap. 1, Philosophy of Phenomena; 2, Metaphysical Philosophy; 3, Heat; 4, Functional Phenomena; 5, Man; 6, Objective and Subjective Phenomena; 7, "Who by searching can find God?" 8, Hyperbole Metaphysical; 9, "To the Unknown God, Whom ye Ignorantly Worship;" 10, "The Father is greater than I," 11, True and Spurious Gods; 12, "I am the Resurrection and the Life;" 13, An Imaginary God and some of His Exploits; 14, "He is Free whom the Truth hath made free;" 15, All Animates Originate from Eggs; 16, Trance Phenomenon; 17, Philosophy of Healing; 18, Worship of Deity; 19, Sense and Nonsense Intermixed; 20, Plurality and Tri-unity of God; 21, Vagaries; 22, Misapprehension; 23, What is Sin? 24, Suns, Planets and Satellites of the Universe; 25, Beginning without Ending; 24, Design or Accident, Which? 27, Chance versus Law; 28, Summary.

PART II.—PHYSICAL PHENOMENA.

Chap. 29, Nebulæ; 30, Air Pressure and Air Motion as a Motor; 31, Air and Orbital Motions; 32, Water Made to Run up Hill; 33 Philosophy of Canyons, When and How Formed; 34, Glacial Phenomena; 35, Moons and their Motions; 36, Ethnological Phenomena; 37, The Colored Man.

APPENDIX.—Problems; Physical and Metaphysical Phenomena, ad infinitum.

The topics treated receive a handling that is distinctly terse, yet popular. The style of the author throughout is epigrammatic—compact with clear thought. The book is a remarkable one in every aspect. Being compact with thought itself, it will not fail to compel thought in others.

With a steel plate portrait of the author. Cloth 12mo, pp. 208. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE

PART I. THE PENTATEUCH.

Comments on Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy, by

Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Lillie Devereux Blake, Rev. Phebe Hanaford, Clara Bewick Colby, Ellen Battelle Dietrick, Mrs. Louisa Southworth, Ursula N. Gestefeld, and Frances E. Barr.

"In every soul there is bound up some truth and some error, and each gives to the world of thought what no other one possesses."—Cousin.

The bright and scholarly comments of this galaxy of bright minds are of deep interest, and throw a strong and new light on the Bible teachings relating to woman. All should read it.

Price 50c. For sale at this Office.

Contrasts in Spirit Life;

And Recent Experiences of Samuel Bowles in the First Five Spheres, Etc. Written through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing. Paper, 30c.

Old Testament Stories Comically Illustrated.

By Watson Heston. Price, boards, $1; cloth, $1.50. Heston is inimitable.

The Other World and This.

A Compendium of Spiritual Laws. No. 1, New White Cross Literature.

BY AUGUSTA W. FLETCHER, M. D.

In this volume the author, in the thirty-nine chapters, discusses a wide variety of subjects pertaining to Spiritualism, from a spiritualistic standpoint. She evinces the powers of a trained thinker, both in matter of thought and fine literary style, and capability of thought expression. The subjects are well-handled with conciseness and yet with clearness. It will prove a rich addition to any Spiritualist's library, and a most excellent book for any one seeking information concerning Spiritualism and its teachings.

For Sale at this Office. Price, $1.50

"The Watseka Wonder."

To the student of psychic phenomena this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely, Mary Lurancy Vennum, of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds, of Venango county, Pa. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

Why I Am a Vegetarian

An address delivered before the Chicago Vegetarian Society. By J. Howard Moore. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

Why She Became a Spiritualist.

Twelve Lectures by Abby A. Judson. This book should be read by every Spiritualist. Price $1.00; postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE RELIGION OF SCIENCE.

By Dr. Paul Carus. Very thoughtful and interesting. Paper, 25c.

THE DESCENT OF MAN.

By Charles Darwin. Cloth, gilt top, 75c. On its appearance it aroused at once a storm of mingled wrath, wonder and admiration. In elegance of style, charm of manner and deep knowledge of natural history, it stands almost without a rival among scientific works. For sale at this office.

Glimpses of Heaven.

Through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing automatically By Gilbert Haven, late Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church. This is the second book from this eminent divine since he passed to Spirit-life. Price 20c. For sale at this office.

INGERSOLL'S ADDRESS

Before the New York Unitarian Club. The first time in the history of the world that a Christian Association ever invited a noted infidel to lecture before them. The lecture is a grand one, and was received by the Club with continuous applause from beginning to end. The pamphlet contains 19 pages beautifully printed. Price 5 cents; ten copies, 40 cents.

WORKS OF THOS. PAINE

THOMAS PAINE'S ...ination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cts. For sale at this office.

Paine's Political Works Complete

Two volumes. Theological Works; Poetical and Miscellaneous Works; Life. This set of five volumes all boxed ready for shipping, $5.00 This is the best and cheapest edition and should be on the shelves of every student of liberal thought. For sale at this office

THE AGE OF REASON.

By Thomas Paine. Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 186 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

LIFE OF THOMAS PAINE.

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler, Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brisot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

COMMON SENSE.

By Thomas Paine. A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

Paine's Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 493 pages. Cloth, $1.00

A Study of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

By Lilian Whiting,

Author of "The World Beautiful," "Kate Field," "After Her Death," "From Dreamland Sent," etc. With portrait. 16mo. Cloth, gilt. Price $1.25. The writer of this "Study of Elizabeth Barrett Browning" has thrown the book into five chapters, with sub-titles as follows:

LIVING WITH VISIONS. "Summer Snow of Apple Blossoms;" Music-Flow of Pindar; Friends in the Unseen.

LOVES OF THE POETS. The Prefigured Friend; Vita Nuova; "One Day, My Sirrah;"

IN THAT NEW WORLD. Plus and Poetry; In Casa Guidi; Florentine Days; Walter Savage Landor.

ART AND ITALY. Individuality of Character; The Clasped Hands; Kate Field's Records; Mrs. Browning's Death.

LILIES OF FLORENCE. Poetic Rank; Spiritual Law; Modern Scientific Thought; The Consideration of Genius.

For Sale at this office.

SOCIAL UPBUILDING,

Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Enuoblement of Humanity. By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15c. For sale at this office.

The To-Morrow of Death.

...OR THE...

Future Life According to Science.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH

BY S. R. CROCKER.

A VERY FASCINATING WORK.

This fine volume might well have been entitled Spiritualism Demonstrated by Science. It is written in that peculiar interesting style in which French writers excel when they would popularize scientific subjects in adaptation to the needs of the general reader. The author is not a Spiritualist—he even mentions Spiritualists as "devotees of a new superstition," etc., etc., in which he manifests the usual animus of the "scientific class," yet he says again: "There is a true and respectable side to Spiritualism," and regards as proved "the fact of communication between superhumans and the inhabitants of Earth," and he goes on to relate instances of fact in evidence. There is, to a Spiritualist, a manifest discrepancy in the authore's ideas, but the well-read mind will readily select and arrange the pros and cons, and out of the whole will find not only good mental culture, but much valuable information. The author holds the theory of reincarnation. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

Joys Beyond the Threshold

A SEQUEL TO

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH was writen to develop the idea of the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its reincarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of etherial space. "BEYOND THE THRESHOLD" continues on the same lines, enlarging and expanding the idea by reasons and considerations drawn from science and philosophy; claiming that the certainty of a new birth beyond our earthly end is the best means of arming ourselves against all weakness in the presence of death, and that the help offered by science and philosophy to this end is

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year	$1.00
Six months	50c
Thirteen weeks	25 cts
Single copy	5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS: IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire a change of address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Progressive Thinker is furnished in the United States at $1.00 per year, the postage thereon being but nominal, but when it is sent to foreign countries we are compelled to charge 50 cents extra, making the yearly subscription $1.50. Please bear that in mind.

SATURDAY, JULY 7, 1900.

Dr. T. Wilkins.

This gentleman who has for a number of years been a co-laborer in the office of The Progressive Thinker, and whose articles published over his name in this journal have made him widely and favorably known to our readers as a poetic genius as well as a writer of terse prose, is about to withdraw from this office for a season of relaxation, or perhaps permanently, by engaging in some other field of labor. Wherever he goes, or whatever may be his future lot, he carries with him the cordial good will and best wishes of The Progressive Thinker for his success and prosperity. Notwithstanding his physical absence, he will often be with us in spirit, and his communications in prose and verse will continue to grace and enrich our columns.

The Corner Stone of the Church.

Christianity has been made the great power it is by preaching the doctrine of an endless hell. Belief in a fiery prison for immortal souls was the corner stone of Catholicism, and nearly all the Protestant sects until within a few years. As faith in that damnable teaching waned, so waned the church.

Under the head of "Glad Tidings" the Truth Seeker compiles a few choice extracts from the expressions of leading orthodox clergymen, which should be kept prominently before the people.

"Lest they forget, lest they forget."

We quote:

"Husbands shall see their wives, parents shall see their children tormented before their very eyes.—Jeremy Taylor.

"The view of the misery of the damned will double the ardor of the love and gratitude of the saints in heaven. The sight of hell torments will exalt the happiness of the saints forever.—Jonathan Edwards.

"The happiness of the elect in heaven will in part consist in witnessing the torments of the damned in hell; and among these it may be their own children, parents, husbands, wives and friends on earth.—Nathaniel Emmons, D. D.

"In fire exactly like that we have on earth thy body will lie forever unconsumed, all thy veins roads for the feet of pain to travel on, every nerve a string on which the Devil shall forever play his diabolical tune of 'Hell's Lament.'—Charles Spurgeon.

"Is it really a kettle boiling? No. Then what is it? Hear what it is: The blood is boiling in the scalded veins of that boy; the brain is boiling and bubbling in his head; the marrow is boiling in his bones. The fifth dungeon is a hed-hot oven, in which is a little child. Hear how it screams to come out! See how it turns and twists, etc.—Rev. J. Furniss, Roman Catholic."

Such damnable teaching forced upon a barbarous people, then instilled into the minds of their youth and extended on from generation to generation through say 1500 years, the people all the time kept in grossest ignorance, while priests lose no opportunity to rehearse their wicked creed, is it not a wonder we have so far escaped from these brutal horrors as is plainly visible to all who think and observe?

Now They Want China.

A lately returned missionary from China, who was located for seven years among the Boxers, has published in the New York Journal an account of his adventures among them. He says their hatred was first directed against the Catholic missionaries, but it soon extended to all foreigners. A boat flying the Catholic flag—that is, a flag with a cross on it—was seen on the river just outside the city. In a few days it disappeared, giving rise to the rumor that the Catholics had fled. Then came the story that the Catholics were in the Cathedral, all armed to the teeth. * * The action against the Catholic missionaries became general. After a time it included all Christians; the native Christians were blackmailed and threatened with torture.

After detailing his own adventures Rev. Royall concludes: "All foreigners would be glad to see China dismembered, as it can never be properly governed by Chinese." That is what the missionaries said in Hawaii, so they usurped the government, and transferred the islands to a foreign power. And so they will do in China if permitted to dictate the policy to foreign powers.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail." By Chas. B. Newcomb. Excellent in spiritual suggestiveness. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Quest of Mr. East.

Even the novelist is coming to the aid of common sense in exposing the falsehoods of the church. We find on our table a handsome volume of upwards of 300 pages, published by Archibald & Co., London, entitled "The Quest of Mr. East," by John Soane, a new name in the literary world. The author is clearly an able scholar, and he shows great zeal in his earnest search for his lost friend. One of his characters, a Catholic Father, nearing the close of a long life, learned, honest, and conscientious, greatly interested us. He was fully aware of the arts employed by which that now known as Christianity was established and gained its power. He was fully conscious of the intrigues of centuries to usurp governments and sway the destiny of nations, doing all in the name of a crucified God. In familiar conversation he revealed much the world has long desired to know. Space will not allow lengthy quotations, so the reader must be content with a very brief abridgment of Father Optate's ideas, fully elaborated in the book, which must be read to gain details. He says:

"The Gospels were written by the servants of the Church, in compliance with Creeds, in illustration of central Dogma. The origin of that Church and its true nature will never be understood, so long as its literature is treated according to rules which apply to common books. The source of all is Dogma—is Revelation—is what philosophers call 'dreams of the theological imagination.' Science plods its way from facts to truths, from observation of the particular to theories of the universal; quite opposite to Church methods. She descends from the revelation of the universal to the knowledge of the particular. The method is disclosed in the first history of the Church and through all the Chronicles and Annals of the monasteries in the Middle Age.

"The Church from the first stood opposed to the world—to its politics, its art, its literature. The enemies of the Church do not seem to recognize the fact that the intelligence of the Church and the intelligence of the world are irreconcilable."

These detached and broken extracts, reunited, are very suggestive, but they are followed by what seems to us a key which possibly will unlock the secrets of all church history if thoughtfully and learnedly used. We have never met it before. Father Optate says:

"History is for us the view of what the course of events must have been in accordance with the designs of Providence. To give an example: In the first Ecclesiastical History the Roman emperor Philip was the first Christian emperor. There are old Roman monuments which refer to Philip. Inscriptions give him the designation "Theos"—god. They know nothing of his Christianity. But another Church historian explains the discrepancy by pointing out that Philip reigned in the thousandth year of the city of Rome. He was a Christian in order that that year might be dedicated to the Church and not to 'idols.' Facts must bend to the theories of the Church, and to the 'a priori's [from cause to effect] of Providence."

Without further extracts we will merely add: This key Father Optate furnishes, accurately fits all the wards of the lock which conceals the secret history of the beginnings of Christianity. There are many keys that fit the same opening, and slide the same bolt which points to about the year A. D. 243 or 247, when Roman Paganism began to reform its system of worship, and merge its multitude of gods into the Father, Son and Holy Ghost, changing the lesser gods into saints, all of whom survive, with amended names, in the new system. The system was not fully perfected until nearly a hundred years later under Constantine. Protestants have insisted for centuries that the Roman Catholics engrafted on Christianity Roman Paganism. They attempted to prove this by showing that almost every feature of the mother church was identical with the old Pagan worship. It is the scholarship of these wiser times which finds the rise of Christianity commencing much later than was formerly supposed, and that what was supposed to be early history is nothing but simulated fabrications, gotten up by monks to delude and deceive later generations.

A Feathered Snake.

A farmer in Venango county, Pa., is reported to have found a snake three feet in length, and one and one-half inches in diameter, while tearing down an old stone fence. Says the Evening News, published at Franklin:

"The head of the snake is exactly the same as a chicken. When crawling along the ground it holds its head about three inches from the earth, while its entire body is covered with a fine coat of feathers. One of the feathers pulled from the reptile measured two inches in length, and was of very fine quality. They are evenly placed all over except the part on which the reptile crawls, where they are somewhat worn off. When aggravated the snake ruffles its feathers like a chicken, and makes a noise something like that of a bluejay, but more sharp and piercing. It will not bite, but strikes wickedly at anything placed in its reach with its strong beak, over an inch in length and very pointed. It eats nothing but grain, and drinks an abundance of water."

The flying serpents, in Bible story, the commentators tell us, were wingless, but darting and throwing themselves from limb to limb of trees gave them their name.

Naturalists tell us the bird is a higher development of the serpent.

To date only those suffering with delirium tremens and sacred historians have come in contact with talking serpents. The kind that used to walk on their tails in the Garden of Eden have become extinct. It is not probable any of their fossils will be found. This is the lament of the scientists.

Good.

At the Philadelphia nominating convention, just in session, Rev. Boswell, the officiating chaplain, was so exuberant in laudation of the party in whose interest he prayed at the opening of the second day's session, the report says "the delegates applauded the divine invocation with hand and voice." That act showed appreciation on the part of those who listened, whose ears the nicely chosen words were specially designed to tickle. We apprehend God played no important part in the affair, no more than he does when army chaplains ask him to aid in slaughtering enemies. True, we have an account that he held up the sun on one occasion at the instance of one of his pets, but no fellow has sufficient influence to bring about such a result since.

The Church Militant.

Under the above caption the Journal, one of the oldest an least sentimental of the Chicago Republican dailies, discourses in a leading editorial on the shameful utterances of Bishop Cranston at Denver, on June 17, in regard to Chinese matters. The editor of The Progressive Thinker urgently requests each reader to give the article special consideration. While it was only a Methodist Bishop who would "cut all the red tape in the world, and break all the treaties ever made," to advance the interests of his church, he voices very generally the position of the great Christian sect he so prominently represents. Read and ponder:

"Quite the most surprising deliverance upon the Chinese question comes from Bishop Earl Cranston, who declared, in a sermon at Denver, on Sunday, that it is worth any cost in money or bloodshed if we can make the millions of Chinese true and intelligent Christians. 'I would,' he continued, 'cut all the red tape in the world, and break all the treaties ever made, to place the armies of the United States in the fore next to Great Britain. We must not be the tail end of everything.'

"Bishop Cranston was, we believe, elected to his present position at the Cleveland [Methodist] Conference of '96, and is now stationed at Portland, Ore. During the past three or four years he has traveled abroad, and travel seems to have enlarged—or perhaps 'expanded' is the better word—his views.

"The moral obloquy discovered by many men of many minds in discussing the Chinese is one of the most astonishing phenomena of a turbulent and strenuous age. Commerce, imperialism, and the followers of Christ, widely apart on many other questions, have been singularly unanimous in denying to the Chinese the common attributes of humanity, white, black, or yellow. Hath not a Chinaman eyes? Hath not a Chinaman hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? Evidently not. Commerce would force trade upon him, even though the trade be opium; imperialism would cut up his empire, upon this or that pretext; and the followers of Christ—the Christ that stands for peace on earth, good will toward men—would make the Asiatic empire run red with blood, transform its rice fields into shambles, ensanguine every river and tributary, if thereby, as Bishop Cranston says, 'we can make the millions of Chinese true and intelligent Christians.' For the Denver exponent of the church militant does not stand alone in his views. He perhaps stands alone in audacity and bloodthirstiness; but others secretly believe what he has the shamelessness to avow.

"The missionary question is a question upon which we hesitate to pronounce opinion. Much may be, much has been, said upon all its sides. It is not a question upon which an opinion can be passed at once sweeping, intelligent, and final. Yet one can, with a clear conscience and a conviction of right, protest against any such monstrous, immoral declaration as that credited to Bishop Cranston. It is unspeakably odious.

"Nor is it necessary that one should have any genuine sympathy with the Chinese to appreciate the shameful bullyragging that that peaceful people has put up with for more than half a century. The powers, one and all, but England in especial—the England that Bishop Cranston would like to see, with drawn sword, marching side by side with the United States—have outraged, abused, and robbed China systematically. Every concession of importance obtained from China has been such a concession as the victim of a highwayman yields at the point of a pistol. When Europe has advanced another foot on Chinese soil the foot has been set down in blood.

"And we, the lovers of Liberty, the writers about Liberty, the orators on the subject of Liberty, and her sister, Justice—what have we done to help the cause along? We have denied the Chinese entrance to this country, and demanded entrance to theirs. At the same time we have opened our gates to the riff-raff of Europe, and for fear that this might be contaminated by contact with the Chinese population already inside the country, we have, in one way or another, done our best to kill off the 'pigtails.' We have been as unjust and cruel to China as almost any other power has been, but we have done it in another way, and have been a shade more gentlemanly in the doing.

"It has been bad enough to watch commerce and imperialism holding up and slashing at the Chinaman; but now that Religion frets for the highway, the mask, and the blunderbuss, it is rather time to call a halt. What has come over the church lately? Sword and fire flash and curl around half the pulpits in the land. Here's the New York Independent, which has long been suspected of religious leanings, clamoring for another Egypt under a joint protectorate of seven powers, including your Uncle Sam, of no-entangling-alliance fame. Verily, brethren, as the rural editor loves to inquire, 'Whither are we drifting?'"

The Dog Knew His Business.

It was doubtless in the interest of the church, and at its suggestion, that an enumeration of the churches, preachers and communicants were omitted in taking the recent census. Public statistics, officially taken, could not be exaggerated without exposure and prejudice. But it seems an unofficial count has been going on, in some localities, at least, by the Bible Society and in its interest.

At Derby, Del., on the 20th ult., Rev. H. L. Hutchins set out to learn what proportion of the population attends church. On reaching Walnut Tree Hill, roll under his arm, he attempted to enter the dooryard of Mrs. Hurd. Says the news dispatch:

"I know you! You can't question me! You're a public nuisance," came a voice from a window. There was a rattling of chains behind the house and a large bulldog dashed out at him. Rev. Mr. Hutchins, though 67 years old, was on the fence in a bound. Perched on the top, with his feet jammed between pickets, he beseeched the woman to call off her dog. The latter was leaping up against the fence to reach the clergyman's trousers.

Mrs. Hurd's daughter, Miss Lydia, appeared. She seized the dog's chain and tried to lead the animal away, but it refused to budge. Then Rev. Mr. Hutchins calmly drew forth his portfolio and plied Miss Lydia with his list of questions, which she willingly answered, the dog all the while tugging at its chain.

The questions completed, the clergyman suggested that the chain be fastened to the fence. The dog was thus held, and Rev. Mr. Hutchins lost no time in entering his carriage and driving off.

Bulldogs would be mighty convenient animals to have around on such occasions. For the first time we have learned their use.

Feast of Blood.

Under the head of "The Church Militant," is given in another column the comments of the Chicago Journal on the bloody utterances of the Methodist Bishops. The church Bishop Cranston represented, seems the most fanatical of all Christian sects, and the most ready to-day to shed blood in the propagation of its faith. Rev. Dr. Wm. J. Libberton, of the Ingleside Avenue Methodist church, of this city, is reported as saying in his Sunday discourse of June 17:

"For a nation that we know to be 5,000 years old—according to its own traditions, 20,000—and which has advanced no farther in civilization than China, no measures are too strenuous. I believe in its forcible seizure and dismemberment among the civilized nations. Civilization first; Christianity will follow."

That is the kind of feast we are invited to in the year 1900. The oldest nation on the globe, and many times the most populous, a nation which adopted the instruction of Confucius 500 years before the Christian era, and which has observed it: "Do not to others what you would not have others do to you," must be wiped from the map of the world, and be divided among Christian nations. Missionaries have gone to China in advance of armies, acted the part of spies, learned the country and its vulnerable points, and now they are ready to strike their crushing blows. Father Frin, of the Catholic mission at Kiang-Nau, tells how the missionaries protect themselves:

"In the center of the village stands the residence of the commander, who is none other than the missionary. This residence is a regular citadel, surrounded by high walls and flanked at its corners by four towers, well fortified also. There are no doors. The going in and out is effected by means of ladders, which are each time drawn back within. At the first cry of alarm the men are up in arms and the father directs the defense."

This is the statement from a missionary to the Chinese, and shows these peaceful emissaries of the cross are building in the very heart of China fortresses, to defend themselves against the people they would Christianize.

China may be bombarded and dragooned into submission to the demands of the Christian powers; they may be compelled, as were some of the natives of Europe, to accept the conqueror's religion; but will the world, or the people in it be bettered because of such submission? We think not.

CLUBS!

We want ten thousand clubs formed in every part of the United States, for which we present inducements never before offered by any Spiritualist paper. These clubs must consist of ten subscribers, and each one will get Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death; or if they would prefer it, they can have the Next World Interviewed. They can have their choice of the two. Each subscriber in order to avail himself of this offer must pay $1.15. The fifteen cents is to pay expense of postage and mailing, and the books sent out are practically a gift. They are not cheap affairs; they are nicely and substantially bound in cloth, neatly printed in clear type and are ornaments to any center table. The contents are indeed valuable, such as every Spiritualist family should have. The aggregate price of these two books to the trade is $2.75. To each of our club subscribers one of these books is a gift, and when they receive the one of their choice they will be delighted with it, and will wonder how we can afford to do so much for them. The one who gets up the club will be entitled to The Progressive Thinker for one year, and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit Spirit World, and also the Next World Interviewed. He will not only get The Progressive Thinker for one year, but both books. He gets what is equivalent to $3.75 for his trouble. There should be no difficulty whatever in getting up hundreds of clubs.

Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World will not only interest Spiritualists, but church members will be attracted to it. The Rev. M. J. Savage, a leading liberal divine of New York, leads off with several of his masterly productions, treating Death from an advanced standpoint. He is followed by leading Spiritualists who treat of Death in a philosophical and fascinating manner.

The Next World Interviewed is also a very excellent work. The plates of this book were donated to the office of The Progressive Thinker by Henry J. Horn. It consists of communications from the spirit side of life from leading minds there. Fifty-five communications are given by prominent personages, among them Prince Albert, Harriet Martineau, Judge Edmonds, Horace Greeley, Lord Lytton, Fanny Fern, Dr. Livingstone and the Czar of Russia.

Now is the time to get up

CLUBS.

WE are trying our best to establish libraries in every Spiritualist family of the United States, hence we are offering Seven valuable books as a premium. Those seven books have been sold for $10.75. A single one has sold as high as $25. The first edition of Art Magic sold for $5 per copy. As high as $15 has been paid for a single copy of Ghost Land; yet we furnish these seven books to our subscribers for $2.35, when ordered in connection with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. Read our premium announcement carefully.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Poems of Progress." By Lizzie Doten. In this volume, this peerless poet of Spiritualism may be read in her varied moods, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." It is a book to be treasured and richly enjoyed by all who love genuine poetry, and especially by Spiritualists. The volume is tastily printed and bound. Price $1. For sale at this office.

BE CHARITABLE.

By the Editor of the New York Herald.

Let all your things be done with charity.—I. Corinthians, xvi., 14.

We ought to exercise a larger hospitality toward those who differ with us in religious opinion. The rivalry of sects is an injury to true religion. Whatever prevents us from co-operation with others for the reformation of mankind should be classed as heresy, and must be eliminated before we can become genuine Christians. The sectarian spirit puts us at odds with each other, and is an injury to every one concerned. We are to love our neighbor even though his convictions are not in sympathy with ours. If the Almighty tolerates all sorts of opinions, provided they are honestly held, the least we can do is to follow the example.

When a man believes he has a monopoly of the truth he is mentally deformed. The absolute truth has not yet been discovered, and until it is we must occupy different standpoints and see things in different ways. It is pure arrogance to assume that you are right and those who disagree with you are in the wrong.

If the truths of religion were like the facts of science, and you could prove your faith as you can prove a problem of algebra, or as you can prove that two and two make four, you might be excused for your intolerance, but where we are all seekers, using equal intellects, working with equal desire, it is worse than folly for one man or body of men to denounce another because your conclusions are not accepted as final.

While there are so many wrongs to be righted it is a pity to insist on theological uniformity as a matter of prime importance. The man who spends his life in doing simple acts of goodness is worth more on earth and in heaven than he who thinks we cannot be saved unless we believe just as he does. There is very little variety of opinion as to what we ought to do, but a large variety as to what we ought to think. No one can fail to receive the approval of the Lord who does what is right because it is right and hates the wrong because it is wrong. He must needs go to heaven at last, since there is no other place in the universe for him.

An orchestra is composed of various instruments all tuned to the same pitch. It would be absurd to declare that one set of these instruments is more important than another, for they are all component parts of a perfect whole. If you were to introduce into an orchestra the same spirit of rivalry which exists in the religious world, and the instruments, instead of occupying their proper places and contributing to the general effect, should each claim the right of way for itself, there would be such dire confusion that the purpose of the author would be defeated. Harmony of action is the only condition of success.

If sects would lay aside their differences of theological opinion and shoulder to shoulder make a good day's work their sole aim the religion of Christ would become simply irresistible. Their trouble is that they are an orchestra in which the instruments are so self-conceited that they want themselves alone to be heard, and so redeeming music is impossible. There is no more room for discord in the church of Christ than there is in symphony. If the church could get rid of the foolish idea of its own importance and fall back on the importance of universal brotherhood and helpfulness it would reduce the prevalence of evil to a minimum. One-half of the infidelity which exists has its origin in the uncharity which is misnamed religion.

Go to what church you please. Your decision is the result of temperament, of education, of climate, of surroundings. Let your neighbor exercise the same privilege. There is no reason why you should not both be Christians, though one is a devout Catholic and the other is a Quaker. You will never be saved if you count on forms and ceremonies alone, neither can you be saved by the absence of form and ceremony. These things are the merest incidents of worship. They are matters of personal preference and convenience. All churches are yours, for God is in all, and you are a poor sort of Christian if you cannot find your Master and Lord in any church whose doors are open to you.

I have no interest whatever in your belief, but great interest in your life. The only creed I care for is the creed of the Good Samaritan. He was on his way to Jericho, and he discovered that it was the way to heaven. He found God when he found the wounded man to whom he could render a service. He did Christ's work in Christ's way. He had more inward satisfaction than all the dogmas ever formulated could furnish.

Show me a man who loves his fellows and whose daily life makes the world richer by good deeds and generous thought, and I will show you a man who walks in the clear sunshine toward a glorious immortality. Believe what you will, but as to your doing, let it be God's work. Make some one's darkness bright with the light of your presence; cheer the comfortless with words of encouragement; then there will be tears of grateful sorrow when you go, and a warm welcome when you reach the other shore.

GEORGE H. HEPWORTH.

A National Disgrace.

It is down there in the Christian city of St. Louis, where they denude women in the public streets, and paint their persons green for riding on the street cars. Some measure should be devised to suppress the information so it shall not reach the Boxers of China, otherwise they may construct a rallying cry of it, and use it in a war against the Western Devils, as well as against the civilizing influence of Christianity.

Geologic Periods Made Plain.

An ingenious method, says the New York Press, has been suggested by the German geologist, Heinrich Schmidt, of Jena, for making it easier for the ordinary mind to grasp the comparative times of geologic periods. He has figured out the various periods of millions of years, which convey no meaning to most minds, in parts corresponding to parts of a day. This gives him these results. The first age of the world, the archaic or eozoic, occupied the same period toward the whole age of the world as do 12 hours 28 minutes and 48 seconds toward a day. The palaeozoic age was the equivalent of 8 hours 9 minutes and 30 seconds. The mesozoic age equaled 2 hours 23 minutes and 36 seconds. The quartenary equaled 2 to 3 minutes, and finally what we are accustomed to call the history of the world (the history of the last 6,000 years) amounts to only 5 seconds.

"Death Defeated; or the Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young." By J. M. Peebles, M. D., M. A., Ph. D. Price $1. For sale at this office.

TO CAMP-MEETING GOERS

And Spiritualists Generally Who Take no Spiritualist Papers, Greeting:

If you are a Spiritualist and read no Spiritualist paper, then, of course, you cannot know what is going on in our movement. To you it is midnight darkness in that one respect, however wise you may be in other directions. The Progressive Thinker, being the largest Spiritualist paper published, combining cheapness and excellence, it will be a splendid agent to keep you apprised of what is transpiring in the great Spiritualistic Cause. Thousands of Spiritualists who attend our camp meetings, take no Spiritualist paper. They will go there to have a spiritual feast, and then return home to remain in utter darkness and ignorance as to what is going on in our ranks throughout the world. We ask this class particularly to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker, and thus have their homes illuminated throughout the year.

We don't believe that more than one Spiritualist in ten who visits the camp-meetings takes a Spiritualist paper. We greatly desire to reach this class. We are sure The Progressive Thinker will be a benefit to them while they will be a benefit to us. The benefit derived will be reciprocal.

HOW SCIENCE AIDS INSPIRATION.

In this age of scientific discovery, of readjustment of old faiths in new lights, the clergy should defend the Bible in a very different way than of old. The warfare between science and theology has usually resulted in the defeat of theology, writes John Brooks Leavitt, LL. D., in the New York Journal. It is to science that we must hereafter look for the real defence of the Bible. Theologians will continue to do, what they have been forced to do for centuries, give up untenable conceits.

If the doctrine of the inspiration of Holy Scripture admits of nothing better in its defense than the answers of the candid priest and the broadside of the fulminating bishop, we laymen will have to give it up entirely.

The true way to defend inspiration is by means of analogies drawn from science rather than by pronunciamentos drawn from divines.

Such propositions are no doubt distasteful to those elderly and revered priests who cling to the past, and to our young priestlets who are so little in touch with the present that they take pride in obtaining truth by authority rather than by study; but they must commend themselves to men who believe that theology is not one of the exact sciences, and who hold that the power of the Holy Ghost as a revealer did not cease with the Apostles and is not to be deemed limited by their interpretations.

There is no statement to be found in the Bible, from cover to cover, that everything in it is inspired. Not a single passage. I have made diligent examination, especially of the texts which the compilers of the Westminster Confession of Faith cited in support of their propositions in respect of inspiration. It is to be presumed that those divines gave the most relevant ones.

You will find them printed with the Confession to this day as "proof texts," and can judge for yourselves as to the truth of the following criticism upon their use by theologians. If any lawyer in our law courts were to cite on his brief as supporting his argument cases as little in point to prove his positions as are these texts to support the inerrancy of the Bible, that lawyer would be reprimanded for wasting time, and if he persisted in the practice would be liable to discipline for trying to mislead the court.

At this point some troubled soul may ask, is not all this destructive of the faith? Far from it. It makes in its favor by brushing away obstacles.

What, then, is inspiration? It has been well said that it is no more definable than life. It may also be said that it is like that other force, electricity, only definable in terms expressive of its results. God is the creator of the mind as well as of the body. Christ calls us sons of God. St. Paul tells us that we are joint heirs with Christ. We, therefore, partake of His divinity, even as He partakes of our humanity. Our minds, even though it may be in an infinitely small degree, are emanations of the divine mind. Our thoughts spring from Him. Like a prism, we may refract them. Like a mirror we may distort them. Like a window-pane we may darken them. In the human crucible they may become evil. But remember that it is Christ Himself who approves of that statement of the Scriptures as one that cannot be broken, "I said ye are gods." We cannot explain how His electricity comes into our bodies. Neither can we tell how His inspiration comes into our our minds. We should open the windows of our souls to His inspiration as we open the windows of our homes to His light.

. . . "Be not afraid
To thrust aside half-truths and grasp the whole."

The mechanical theory of inspiration which has served the world heretofore is only a half-truth. The time has come to grasp the whole truth.

We can recognize electricity in physics, why should we refuse to believe in inspiration in metaphysics? A few years ago wireless telegraphy would have been regarded as impossible. Telepathy was scouted as nonsense. Now, the one is actually, and the other nearly proved. We speak of the natural and the supernatural. The latter is a term invented by the theologian. How much better would it be if we were to recognize that there is no distinction between the two except in our apprehension of them. Everything that exists is natural, because whether material or spiritual it is from God. It is hard to express the thoughts back of these words because words have technical meanings, which have to be enlarged before they can be used as vehicles for ideas begotten of later knowledge.

We are learning to judge theology in the light of discoveries in science, and shall have to express its propositions in their terms. It will be one of the death-bed messages of the nineteenth century to the twentieth, to restate its theology in terms of science.

We often hear it asked, Why do not more men go to church. Here is a reason. Thinking men cannot and will not listen to absurdities preached in the name of religion. It is true that many good men refuse to think. A great lawyer who was a Roman Catholic, when asked what he thought about the infallibility of the Pope, replied that on such subjects he never allowed himself to think. So must answer any Protestant layman who acknowledges the infallibility of the Bible.

Any attempt to excommunicate a man for heresy in respect of anything else, could be enjoined by a court of equity as being against the principles of natural justice. It would be contrary to natural justice to allow those who would narrow the walls of the room to expel him because he refused to think as they do on anything not expressly laid down or impliedly wrapped up in the Apostle's Creed; and, thank God, their construction of what is so laid down or wrapped up is not binding on any but themselves. They may not thunder forth into timid ears, "thus saith the Lord." So far as our church is concerned, this is the whole law of heresy in a nutshell. Any occupant of our room is free to stand in a corner and hug the walls on either hand. He may select any corner he likes, "High Church" corner, "Low Church" corner, "No Church" corner, "Advanced Catholic" corner. He may try to persuade others to come into his corner; but he may not dart out from his corner and pounce with ejecting hand upon one who prefers another, or the free and open middle. Nor may he expel one for trying to get a breath of air, or a glimpse of heaven from a window.

The search for spiritual gold in the Scriptures may well be likened to the quest for physical gold in the earth. The simile will grow upon the reflecting mind; the same differences in habitat, here in nuggets lying in the open, there in particles hidden in worthless quartz, now in shifting sands of ocean, again under the waters of running brook; the same differences in efforts to get it, here by casual straying and easy grasping, there by protracted prospecting and laborious toiling; the same differences in the subjective part of the pursuit, knowledge, experience, resolution, persistence, spirit, all necessary to mine spiritual as well as material gold.

The Lily Dale Training School.

In reply to the question "What of the Training School?" I say: Moses Hull has the Bible class; he is up-to-date and ready to digest all questions from Genesis to Revelations. He raises the curtain on the spectacular stage of events.

Mrs. Jahnke is a natural teacher of oratory. She has a very pleasing and effective way of imparting what she teaches, and the drudgery of study and drill becomes a pleasant pastime. Her recitations are well rendered, and reality holds you spellbound. The thoroughness of her work this year will recommend her for next year.

Mr. A. J. Weaver, the superintendent, is a central and important figure that poses in the foreground. He instructs the class in logic, rhetoric, and advanced grammar. The writers, speakers, actors, and would-be-preachers are materializing and dematerializing opinions, vivisecting sentences, cremating provincialisms and digesting syllogisms. Mr. Weaver is doing a good work and the weaver of thought vibrations with high toned colors blends harmony's rhythms in beautiful expressions.

Mrs. Mattie Hull presides over the psychic class which is a kind of experience class, educational as the exchange of thought and opinions opens up a new field of thought and the search light reveals many facts to the undeveloped.

Mrs. Hull has charge of the primary grammar. We are pleased to have the school at Lily Dale. Future events will reveal the benefit and the power behind the throne. M. S. S.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Astral Worship." By J. H. Hill, M. D. For sale at this office. Price, $1.

OUR ECLECTIC MAGAZINE

A TURE GHOST STORY.

During the fall of 1882 I was engaged in an exciting political campaign in Florida. In the very midst of it, Judge John B. Whitney, then the attorney for the United States for the Northern District of Florida, who was an active co-laborer on the stump, was unexpectedly summoned to Washington. A very close and warm friendship existed between the judge and myself, and we had about concluded arrangements for the formation of a business partnership. My family was then located on Massachusetts avenue, in this city.

When I parted from Whitney, on Bay street, in Jacksonville, I gave him my house number, and received his promise at all hazards to call upon my family and let them know that I was well. The poor fellow had scarcely reached Washington when he was stricken down with brain fever and conveyed to Providence Hospital. On the Sunday following his departure we were overwhelmed with horror by the receipt of a telegram announcing his death.

On the night previous a number of us had gathered in for a rest until Monday, and we were all billeted at the house of our friend, Ed Higgins, then collector if customs. As is most natural on such occasions, a feeling of the utmost fellowship prevailed, only tinged with regret for Whitney's absence. A game of poker was in full progress, and there was no lack of stimulating nourishment. But, for some reason, inexplicable to me at the time, I felt no relish for the hilarity of the occasion. Profound depression overpowered me, which intensified every hour, and at last became the subject of remark and inquiry. I was sensitive, and shrank from the thought of being laughed at, and ashamed to avow my real feelings, lest I should be deemed weak and childish. But upon being pressed closely, I frankly said: "There is no slavish superstition in my nature, nor can I very well tolerate such a thing. Yet, if I must be candid, I can't disabuse my mind of the belief that Whitney is here. I feel his personality, and I can't shake the feeling off."

All agreed that I was suffering from nervous prostration from excessive and exhausting campaigning, and all said I needed rest and quiet. But I could not shake off that haunted feeling, and my rest was broken and unrefreshing.

The next day we received a telegram which said: "Whitney died last night at 12 o'clock."

The campaign came to an end, and I returned to Washington. My wife said to me: "Willie (my little three-year-old boy) gave me quite a fright on Saturday night, three weeks ago."

In response to my questions, she said: "Willie woke me up. He was sitting up in bed, with his eyes wide open and shining. He said: 'Mamma, who is that man sitting by the table, in the middle of the room?' I thought he was but half awake and under the spell of a dream. I told him several times there was no one there, but he persisted in declaring that he saw a man sitting there.

"'Who is he?' he inquired. 'He's too large for Wim (her brother), and he's got whiskers over his mouth, and his hair is short, and he's got buttons up to his throat, a black coat on, and he's got something in his hand; it looks like Wim's fiddle, but it's not a fiddle, and —there, now—he's gone!"

"'Where did he go to?' I said.

"'Right up through the ceiling,' he answered.

"I couldn't help being worried," said my wife, "for the child was earnest and wide awake, and I hadn't heard from you for several days, and was afraid something had befallen you."

While she was telling me the little boy glided in, and before I knew it was between my knees, and, looking into my face, said: "Yes, papa, I saw him." I asked him what the man looked like, and in a childish way he gave a fairly good description of Whitney. The judge never wore other whiskers than a moustache, and on the day he left Jacksonville he had his hair cut close to the scalp. Besides, it was a peculiarity of his that he always wore his coat buttoned to the top. At all events, the likeness painted by the child was exact enough to cause a strange feeling to permeate my being like a sudden chill.

On the following morning I called at the house of a friend, who was then, and is now, an honored member of the Washington bar. In the course of our conversation, I told him of the occurrence in my bedchamber. He looked at me gravely, and said: "You may be able to communicate with your friend."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"Your boy may be a medium," he said.

I must confess that it angered me to think of connecting my artless little child with what I regarded as gross charlatanism. But later he explained that, during my absence, accident had revealed a strange faculty in his wife, by means of which she was enabled, through the unassisted use of a pencil and paper, to communicate with those who have passed away from among us.

I politely concealed my surprise at his credulity, and in a little while his wife came in to greet us. She was a beautiful woman, of most engaging manners, and possessed of an extraordinary degree of magnetic force. Leaving aside all details, suffice it to say that I requested her to favor me with an exhibition of her newly developed powers. She most graciously assented, and in a short time we were in position at a table.

The light was almost entirely extinguished. There were four of us in the circle—herself and husband, myself, and for the fourth, a gentleman who is to-day one of the leading real estate operators of Washington. We were arranged in such a way that the left hand of each rested lightly upon the wrist of the one next to the left. I sat to the right of my friend's wife, and my left hand rested upon the white and shapely wrist of her right hand. A small piece of pencil lay upon her right hand, between the thumb and forefinger. On the table before her lay a sheet of white paper. This lady had never seen Judge Whitney, had never heard his name before that night, and had not the faintest conception of his appearance.

After what seemed a considerable time, during which the pencil made no motion to write, I exclaimed, with irony in my tone: "Why does not the pencil write?"

She looked me full in the eyes, and said, "I cannot write."

"Why not?" I asked, somewhat brusquely.

"Because I am controlled by a man," she answered.

"Where is he?" I inquired.

"He is behind my chair," she said. "Now he has moved, and is standing behind you. He regards you with an unutterably mournful look. He seems to want to say something to you."

"What does this rude stranger appear like?" I asked. "Describe him."

And she did!! From the Oxford ties, with their broad laces, to the crown of his head; his trousers, his close-buttoned coat, the black string cravat, his moustache, the color of his eyes—even a livid scar across his face,

To say that I was petrified with astonishment mildly expresses my surprise.

"Ask him to write his name upon the paper," I said, and the pencil scratched upon the white page, and then fell from her fingers. We turned up the gas, and on the sheet was written, in a peculiar but firm masculine hand, "John B. Whitney."

'I have long ago learned what it was that he so vainly then sought to impart to me. It was true, indeed, that, as my friend's wife said: "He wanted to say something to me." What it was is not pertinent to this occasion; but he was my friend, as I was his, and in the end I came to understand what he would have told me if he could.

In 1887, while in the Providence Hospital, I inquired of a sweet-faced Sister if she remembered him. "Yes, indeed," she said. "Sister —— nursed him; but he died, though."

I visited the room in which he died, and spoke to the Sister who was his faithful attendant. "I remember him well," she said. "He was delirious from the the time of his coming. He died about midnight one Saturday night. He grew very violent, so that he had to be held. He insisted that we should let him go. 'I tell you I must go, and I will go! I promised Mr. Perkins that I would go to No —— Massachusetts avenue and see his wife, and I will keep my word!" They restrained him by force, but his strength was gone, and in a short time he passed away."

Tears sprang to my eyes. It was like the dear, old, loyal fellow.

"I knew him well," I said; "he was my friend!"

The Sister looked at me, and then she said: "Are you Mr. Perkins?" I answered, "Yes."

"I thought so." she said gently, and then iturned and went away.

Cipher it out if you can. The hospital, the battle with death to redeem a promise; the sight that my little boy saw on that Saturday night, in the bedchamber; the presence just at my back that looked upon me with mute agony and vain attempt at speech; the portraiture that my friend's wife drew of one she had never seen, and the undefined sensation of his presence that Saturday night in Jacksonville. Put it together. Was it a ghostly presence—a shadow from the land of the departed? Let psychologists argue. To me, the answer is simple and real—it was Whitney.—W. T. Pierson in Washington Post.

Photograph of a Ghost.

Thornton, Iowa.—Editor Blade.—I send you a photograph of a ghost seen several times about two miles from this town, and which has been drawing quite a lot of people away from their homes during the twilight hour for the past two weeks. Many testify to having seen the strange visitor, which generally appears between 7 and 8 o'clock in the evening.

The apparition, or ghost, or whatever one may call it, looks taller than a six-foot man and it is always clad in a sort of grayish garb. It carries a carbine or shot gun and always appears on the same spot, close to a great rock, or boulder, by the roadside at the top of a hill. With the assistance of John Snyder, I, Saturday evening, succeeded in getting a rather poor snap shot picture of his ghostship, and a copy of the same is herewith enclosed. You will notice a peculiar vaporish halo completely encircling the figure of the ghost, and, what is more amazing, you will please observe that the figure is perfectly transparent, the rocks being plainly visible through the lower extremities of the mystical personage.

The picture I send you is not as good as it might be, as it was getting dark when we took it and both Snyder and myself were in "somewhat of a hurry," I assure you. It being my first picture of a genuine ghost I confess I was more than a little nervous. No one here can explain the mystifying circumstances. A man disappeared here a few years ago and foul play was at the time suspected. A hat known to have been worn by the man on the day he disappeared was found beneath the big rock where the ghost now appears.—C. W. Hansen in Chicago Saturday Blade.

OUR PREMIUMS.

There are many Spiritualists who know a good thing when they see it. There are others, however, who do not seem to realize what is going on around them, and therefore miss many chances to enrich their minds and enlarge their understanding. Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World is furnished to our subscribers at less than cost, and should be in every family in the United States, whether Spiritualists or not. Volumes 1, 2 and 3 constitute a wonderful magazine of thought on Death in its multifarious phases; in fact you can not find in all the libraries of the world as valuable information in regard to Death as you will have presented to you in these three volumes. They are nicely printed, neatly and substantially bound, and are an ornament to any library. Volume 3 is furnished at 25 cents, much less than the actual cost to us, and the three volumes, when ordered in connection with a yearly subscription to The Progressive Thinker, only cost $1.10. The aggregate cost of the three books to the trade is $4.50. At this price, these three books ought to be in every Spiritualist family.

The Progressive Thinker is the first Spiritualist paper to inaugurate the Divine Plan—a portion of the profits of the office returning to subscribers in valuable books.

"Our Bible: Who Wrote It? When? Where? How? Is It Infallible? A Voice from The Higher Criticism. A few thoughts on other Bibles." By Moses Hull. Of especial value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.

"A Few Words About the Devil, and Other Essays." By Charles Bradlaugh. Paper, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

MATERIALIZATIONS.

Hudson's "Laws of Psychic Phenomena."

I wish to add a word about frauds of all kinds. As I understand the word it means intentional misrepresentation—inducing or allowing persons to believe what is not true. Now there is some of this in your ranks as well as in pulpits, but in neither case is there any such a per cent as many persons will tell you there is, and where it does exist there will exist so much of it that it can and will be known by a clear-headed investigator.

In this city some months ago a number of gentlemen and ladies, few of whom were Spiritualists, knowing that a medium—Mrs. Maggie Thedford, of excellent reputation for being an honest medium or nothing—was coming, prepared a room with a few yards of black calico, according to her plans, at the residence of Capt. Ben C. Cooley, one of our oldest and most respected citizens and whom everybody knows to be a man of the most sterling integrity, and that Mrs. Cooley is not one whit behind him in those excellent qualifications.

When all was ready and time drew near a carriage was sent for the medium, who was carefully examined and known to be not possessed of devices of any kind, nor of a confederate to help her. We each agreed to obey such rules of conduct as she requested and as any gentleman will keep even if not requested. She went in, took her seat in a simple chair behind the black calico curtain. Our circle of twenty was made up of bankers, lawyers, news-paper editors, professional and business men of our city, and about one-half dozen ladies, mostly our wives and daughters, and one strictly orthodox minister of the Episcopal church of this city. All of us save a few were agnostic as to the subject at hand, but we thought we were willing to know the truth when proven, and we demanded proof. We saw nothing wrong in the dollar which we dropped in the hat, being reasonable folks.

We were all seated and in dim light repeated together the Lord's prayer, and then sang in low tone "Nearer, My God, to Thee," etc. We were soon greeted by those who came out in white that had not been seen by our mortal eyes before. The control came out and sat in my lap (she was a sweet little girl), told us all who she was, who her parents were and where they lived, and when she died, etc. I introduced her to the minister and to several others, and she received their acquaintance in a becoming manner and talked to all in audible tones and a sensible way about spirit life and the beyond, and the way to be happy.

Brother Jones, the minister, tried the spirits as Paul directs, and they stood the test well and approved of it. Others came whom we had known in the flesh, in one case I held the hand, saw the form and face and heard the words simultaneously of the dearest friend and perhaps the best man my life hath known—see! all my senses testifying save taste and smell, and they were not sworn in. Now the point I want to make is clearly this: There was no fraud in the whole performance—by all the Gods there was not. No one of the several very intelligent persons thought there was, nor could they be persuaded even now that there was the slightest bit of fraud, but then they could not all believe in spirits being alive and intelligent, so they by chance got Mr. Hudson's book, "Law of Psychic Phenomena," and it went the rounds and to many it explained away the utter reality and identity of the spirits we saw and felt and heard and indeed convinced us that we were at best only honest fools, and that the medium was too fast asleep to explain matters to us. So we know what many a mortal never knew—that we are fools!

Now in candor I will say that the apparitions in touch, sight and hearing, also in intelligence were genuine, and I know that they were genuine, but I do not know that perhaps the extraordinary conditions might create for the instant things real to us, even reviving old memories long since forgotten. While I do not know contrary to such a possibility, yet I do not believe that any such a thing is true.

Now, I do not call myself a Spiritualist, certainly not an orthodox one, yet the above are things verily believed among us.

Now a word about the Rev. Grumbine's statement that nine-tenths of the mediums are frauds, etc. Why did he say this? It is not true, beside being false it is malicious, as every intelligent investigator in all America and Europe knows. If the phenomena be not what it appears, certainly it is not fraud, for the psychic does not know it as a rule. In far the greater majority of cases they have proven themselves genuinely honest, but having some human faults and weaknesses linked to their characters. Now let us be honest and give the hated medium and the Devil their dues. L. H. H.

Marshall, Texas.

A MISER'S PRAYER.

If I should die before I wake—
Stop! Let me think awhile;
There's not a cent that I could take
Of all my splendid pile!
If I should die before—oh, dear,
I wonder why 'tis so?
How can I leave my money here
When I am forced to go?

If I should die before I —Lord
Have mercy on me, pray!
Thou knowest well that I have stored
A noble pile away!
If I should—oh, why may I not
Take in each hand some gold
To cling to while I lie and rot
And mingle with the mold?

If I should die before I wake—
O woeful thought—I pray
The Lord of Hosts, since I may take
No part of it away.
That here it may forever be,
Piled in a heap where I,
Dumb to the glories there, may see
It glitter from the sky! Amen.
—Chicago Times-Herald.

Toledo (Ohio) Spiritualists.

The Independent Association of Spiritualists, which was organized the 21st of last December, closed a very successful series of meetings the last Sunday in May, with a good balance in the treasury. At the semi-annual meeting the following officers were elected: President, H. E. Dowd; vice-president, Mrs. Dr. M. E. Jameson; secretary, W. M. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. W. Hemmig; financial secretary, H. Hoffman. Trustees—W. Hemmig, J. Newton, Mr. Truedell, Mrs. Travis and Mrs. Newton. The society will open meetings in September and would like to hear from all first-class speakers and test mediums having open time for the season of 1900 and 1901, giving dates and terms. Address all communications to W. M. Smith secretary, 1105 So. 15th street, Toledo, Ohio. W. M. SMITH.

The Commandments Analyzed, price 25 cents. Big Bible Stories, cloth 50 cents.

COMMON SENSE

In the Consideration of Various Subjects.

I know of nothing more valuable to humanity than common sense. It will nourish every nerve, tissue and fibre of our being. There is nothing so refreshing to an earnest soul seeking light on the great problems of duty and destiny as common sense. It opens up a realm of reality where the soul can hold sweet communion with nature's verities and thus come in touch with the heart of the universe. I know of no safer guide to lead men out of the bogs of blind superstition and stifling miasma of credal belief than common sense.

Common sense and reason are twin sisters, and reason is the voice of truth in human consciousness. A substitution of belief for reason is suicidal. What the world needs to-day is knowledge in every department that affects human welfare and destiny.

The human soul seeks for light, it demands the truth; it longs to be free from environments that hinder its development and progress in line with natural tendencies. No creed is broad enough to compass the whole of truth. Absolute truth lies beyond human comprehension, the human mind cannot grasp it in its fullness.

Truth is the exact statement of facts in their true relation to which they refer.

Truth requires us to treat things as they are, and not as they are not. This is the voice of nature as well as the demand of reason. To do otherwise is to falsify. We have no right to ascribe worth to an object in which no worth exists.

To set up claims that have no foundation in fact is a libel on truth.

The world has been cursed by fictitious claims purporting to emanate from the soul of the universe, when in fact they had their home in the bosom of hades, and their odor was strongly tinctured with the fumes of brimstone.

The race all through the ages has been cursed by dogmatic creeds demanding our allegiance on penalty of an eternal home in hades if we refused to comply. Assumption is not a natural basis upon which knowledge is to be predicated. The thinker demands facts in harmony with the eternal verities, and when these facts are clearly perceived he stands upon a basis that is invulnerable. All the divine forces in nature are at his command and will render him their active co-operation. Is not this attainment worthy of our life's best efforts?

To unfold the inherent possibilities of a human organism is the greatest achievement of which we can form a conception. The true goal of a human being is angelhood; and this goal can only be attained by living in harmonious relations with universal tendencies. We can neither modify nor annul an established fact in nature; all attempts in that direction will prove abortive.

So common sense teaches that it is the part of wisdom to live a true life, to develop all the powers we possess, and thus familiarize ourselves with the principles upon which we are constructed. These laws become luminous to the earnest thinker and point the way to the haven of eternal repose, not in idleness, but in service to humanity. Success in this life or the life to come is only attainable by obedience to their demands. There is no escape for the evil doer, only by adjusting himself to the demands of rectitude. Nature holds every man to the strictest account for his life character and history. She provides no scape-goat for his conscious or unconscious violations of law—he must reap what he sows, and from this result there is no appeal.

What a magnificent world this would be if common sense dominated humanity. Then each member would subserve the best interest of his fellow-man. If utilitarianism was the controlling motive of the race, the garden of Eden would be a present reality, and Paradise a substantial fact. All social and political institutions would blend harmoniously. Discord and dissension would be unknown, and wars between nations would be relegated to the silent tomb of oblivion. Will this concept ever be realized, or is evil or undevelopment necessary to the unfoldment of the psychic forces inherent in man. Evolution implies imperfection. The thing evolved has not attained its full growth.

Is not evolution nature's process of attaining higher and better results. If so, then conflict of thought is desirable, its tendency is to uplift and build on a more solid foundation; hence out of apparent discord and inharmony a grander life is attained.

Perfection precludes growth; it implies and involves stagnation and death. Constant motion and change is a primary law in nature. There is nothing in the infinite realms of space that is at rest. Common sense teaches that everything is correlated; that humanity is a unity; that we cannot build up an individual or a nation at the expense of another. It reaches down to the deepest depths of human degradation and rises to the highest realm of angelhood. It touches every key that affects human welfare and sends forth a song of eternal gladness that reverberates through the infinite realms of space.

Under the law of progress, what is effete must die; you can't depend upon a shadow for growth or inspiration. Absurdity and inconsistency is not a solid basis upon which to build a sound character. The life forces inherent in man must be in touch with what is vital in nature, and in no other way is progress attainable. No one can enjoy the sunlight who shuts his eyes and dwells in a cavern. We must scan the universe from the mountain peaks of reason and common sense to catch the vibrations of truth that inspire and quicken. In so doing, life will be rounded out in beauty and symmetry—our mental vision clarified and our entire nature illuminated with a divine radiance. We will then realize our kinship with universal life and become co-workers with all that can elevate humanity, and be the recipients of the richest boon that nature can confer upon her children—a true type of manhood, symmetrically developed, and in harmony with all the divine forces in the universe. That this consummation may be realized is the supreme effort of nature and of all loyal souls; and failure to reach this result as an ultimate is inconceivable.

DAVID B. WILLIAMS.

Utica, N. Y.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments). By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Spiritual Songs for the Use of Circles, Camp-meetings and Other Spiritualistic Gatherings." By Mattie E. Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"Mind and Body: Suggestions and Hypnotism Applied in Medicine and Education." By A. C. Halphide. President Chicago Society of Anthropology. For sale at this office. Price $1.

EDUCATION:

The Business of Life Here and Hereafter.

Education is the true business of life, "here and hereafter."

Brother Jesus is reported to have said, "Be ye perfect, as your Father in heaven," etc.

"Seek and ye shall find."

"Knock and it shall be opened."

"As ye sow, so shall ye reap," etc.

Each one must be his own savior and must work out his own salvation, by doing his duty to others.

Each one is held responsible, under the natural law, according to his, or her capacity—according to his "talents."

A dear friend sends me word from spirit life that her occupation now is universal education, from the kindergarten up—this is reasonable.

The pulpit should be the common school, the rostrum the atheneum. The clergy should teach instead of preach. The life of Brother Jesus has been misunderstood from the beginning, and is misrepresented to-day, on false and personal selfish principles that have produced discord, hate, poverty, war and suffering—all the world is making war on each other on so-called Christian principles. Every regiment has a chaplain on a salary, for tax-payers to pay. This instead of "Peace on earth and good will to man"—a better social system to secure liberty, equality and fraternity to all people, by his commandment, to "love each other as I have loved you"—the eleventh and best commandment. He did not come to die for the world, but to live for it. He brought nothing new into the world, but a better life, of love to the neighbor. His precepts are the natural law, as old as the world—inherent in every man's conscience—the God within—the judge of all humanity—regardless of religion, sects, creeds, dogmas.

Under the present religious and political systems now controlling the world, it is growing worse instead of better. There is more crime of all kinds than was ever known before—more poverty and suffering, with greater wealth for the few. Some one said that God could not be happy while one of his children was suffering in hell—neither can an earthly parent.

Lord Tennyson said, God damn the God who invented everlasting punishment. Nothing but a self-conscious knowledge of our responsibility for our every thought, word and deed can save humanity from suffering here and hereafter.

Earth life is a comparative failure for the great majority of humanity, because they make no suitable preparation for a progressive life beyond so-called death, which is only a birth.

Intellectual, industrial and spiritual education—integral education—as practiced in well managed co-operative colonies, as experienced by the writer, seems to him to be the best institution of learning for both children and adults, known at the present time, for progress toward a higher life here and in the beyond.

B. FRANKLIN CLARK, M. D.
Belvidere Seminary, N. J.

Civil Marriage Ceremony.

Married on the ninth day of June, 1900, Phillip H. Hibner and Florence V. Jean, both of Seattle, Washington, Esther Thomas, Spiritual minister, officiating.

We have gathered here for the purpose of celebrating what is called a "civil marriage." The contracting parties are Philip D. Hibner and Florence V. Jean, who have decided, according to the laws of our state, to come before the world as husband and wife; and deeming it best at all times to conform to those laws which man has made, and which he considers best for mankind's good, they as law-abiding citizens agree to conform thereto. Therefore, by the authority vested in me I do pronounce them husband and wife; but when those few words are said only the tiny rap is heard at the great door of all mysteries, and only then, when before the world they acknowledge themselves as holding that relation, have they begun to read the great Book of Life.

There is a law which transcends and is above all human law, and only by obeying can we truly understand the great mystery of husband and wife. It was intended at all times that man and woman should stand side by side, equal helpmates one unto the other; and according to the old allegory, when God gave to man from his side a helpmate, it was not intended that woman at any time should be subject unto him, but that symbol (for the world is written in symbols) portrays the fact that from his side she came, and by his side she stands, equal and co-equal at all times. The idea has been so long accepted that man is the head, and well may it be. But going back to the old symbol, woman came from the side nearest the heart—man is the head and woman the heart, and no man has attained his true manhood until he finds that one who truly is the one, according to the old symbol, who was taken from his side or heart. And when he finds that one, whether by any law of the land, or whether it be not according to the accepted precepts of the laws of the land, they then are man and wife.

Do you with these thoughts, Philip Hibner, agree? "I do."

Do you with these thoughts, Florence Jean, agree? "I do."

If so, then hand in hand (placing their hands together), it is best for man and woman ever to travel, one being a helpmate unto the other.

Here in my hand I hold a tiny band, a symbol in ages past of bondage, but he who now has taken her by the hand, if agreeing to the above thoughts, must never look at it in the old light, but take it as a beautiful symbol, as a covenant between "me and thee," between "us two." Philip D. Hibner: "I will place this upon your finger that the world may know that our happiness is united."

According to the right vested in me as a mediator between the higher forces which may ever guard and guide you both and enable you to smooth down the rugged rocks that may, for a moment, press your feet, and make your pathway like unto one of these flowers, (scattering petals) so that each one may feel that although under the petals the thorn may be, still our mutual love will so cover it, will so hide it and deeply imbed it from our sight, that we will tread only on the soft yielding substance of the fallen flower, so, by the authority vested in me by the higher spirit world, I say, "Ye are husband and wife, and what God hath joined together, no man can put asunder."

After the ceremony and congratulations, which includes saluting the groom, which is never omitted by the minister, dainty refreshments were served. The bride and groom took the evening train for the quaint old English town, Victoria, and will be at home the 15th. ESTHER THOMAS.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

MORALITY A SCIENCE.

Thoughts on the Cause and Cure of Disease.

A subject with which our American Spiritualist papers have been dealing periodically during the past four years is beginning to be discussed among our British cousins, namely, the baneful effect of evil thoughts or unspiritual emotions on the health of the one so indulging.

Prof. Elmer Gates, of Washington, D. C., is credited with being the discoverer of this fact through a series of experiments thus giving it a scientific basis as a working hypothesis.

As a theory, however, if intuitively-felt truths can be so-called, it has been known to many of our mediums ere this. It was a generally accepted fact that self-love (a universal term for envy, hatred, vindictiveness, conceit, etc.) or selfishness was the cause of all disease among mankind.

Orthodoxy said disease was God's punishment for wrong-doing. Spiritualism said it was an effect of wrong-doing per se—a natural consequence of disharmony with laws; that love was law, and opposing this law devitalized the doer and generated a disease comporting with the specific negative or unspiritual development. Furthermore, that certain habits (becoming passions when uncontrolled) affected the nerves, while others affected the blood, thus the nervous and blood disorders, named by the medical science neuralgia, dyspepsia, liver complaint, Bright's disease, etc. And furthermore that every such disease betrays the inherited or developed passion of the individual, and which disease is only absolutely curable by an opposing virtue.

But self-study is the first essential, self-control or self-culture the next, "Overcome" is the religious application, but few understand it practically. Christian Science puts it in the form of faith-cure, but burns the bridge of reason behind the convert. Faith without reason is negative, therefore has no curing properties. Reason applies either will-power or facts to faith and it becomes effective. The poor laborer, who has no time to be ill, cures himself by overcoming the disease or willing it away. An expert in the use of drugs, knows how to remove the poisons which the disease generates, and so holds himself above it, until one of the organs breaks down, when death ensues. But a double application of self-knowledge and drugs often give a new lease of life to a very sick man.

Magnetic healing is a form of vitalization, but not a positive cure, unless the patient so wills it by self-culture.

Now Elmer Gates has added a bit of very practical knowledge to the whole, which shows why selfishness or hatred diseases the flesh. He claims that it generates or extracts from the blood poisonous elements or acids that create the various diseases the human flesh is heir to. The philosophy is the same as ours. Certain negative indulgences result in certain diseases. Certain emotions or passions extract certain poisonous elements from the blood (or generate them) and vitiates the flesh or breaks down one of the organs.

Knowing this, it should make man guard against his emotions—of which the thought is the father—or guard against his evil thoughts—bad thoughts—unspiritual thoughts, or such that are in discord with the spiritual or positive side of nature—with spirit, and not with matter. The antithesis of all this is, of course, benevolence, charity, love, temperance, humility, etc., and constitutes the emotions or feelings, which create health or lead to it, when in ill health—the real and only absolute self-cure. The observation and practice of all this makes morality a veritable science.

ARTHUR F. MILTON.
Charleston, S. C.

FOR a moment stop and consider. The Progressive Thinker is the one original dollar Spiritualist paper. It introduced a new era in the ranks of Spiritualism. Its success financially has been all that could be desired. Notwithstanding the rise in the price of print paper, it has still maintained its status as the only one dollar Spiritualist paper. Not only that, but it introduced the Divine Plan in its business with its subscribers—a portion of the profits of the office returning to them. Just think of the Seven Premium Books being sent out to our subscribers for $2.35. After paying the postage of these seven books, and the expense of mailing them, all that we have left is $1.50. You can readily see that we are furnishing them for less, by far, than the actual cost to us. We do this work in accordance with The Divine Plan, in order to assist in forming the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home. Read carefully our premium list, and you will certainly want to become a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker, if not so already, and obtain the books we announce.

Talmagean Inanities, Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies; a Review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism." By Moses Hull For sale at this office. Price ten cents.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

"Wedding Chimes." By Delpha Pearl Hughes. A tasty, beautiful and appropriate wedding souvenir. Contains marriage ceremony, marriage certificate, etc., with choice matter in poetry and prose. Specially designed for the use of the Spiritualist and Liberal ministry. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Watseka Wonder." To the student of psychic phenomena, this pamphlet is intensely interesting. It gives detailed accounts of two cases of "double consciousness," namely Mary Lurancy Vennum of Watseka, Ill., and Mary Reynolds of Venango county, Pa. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

"The Mysteries of the Formation of the Earth, the Rising and Sinking of Continents, the Introduction of Man, and His Destiny Revealed in God's Own Way and Time." A work of deep interest, given through the mediumship of Mrs. M. T. Longley, by an advanced band of ancient spirits. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Harmonics of Evolution. The Philosophy of Individual Life, Based Upon Natural Science, as Taught by Modern Masters of the Law." By Florence Huntley. A work of deep thought, carrying the principles of evolution into new fields. Cloth, $2. For sale at this office.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

YOU MAKE $5.00 A DAY EASY
Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating. At home or traveling, taking orders, using, selling Prof. Gray's Machine. Plates all kinds of Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles, all metal goods. NO EXPERIENCE. Heavy plate. Modern methods. No toys. We do plating, make outfits, all sizes. Complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. The Royal, new dipping process, quick, easy. We teach you the art, furnish secrets, formulas, free. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, etc., FREE. D. GRAY & CO., Plating Works, CINCINNATI, O.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

I wish every person in the U. S. suffering with EPILEPSY or FITS to send for one of my large-sized bottle (16 full ounces) FREE. I guarantee to permanently cure every case that will take my treatment. Where others fail I cure.

DR. F. E. GRANT,
Dept. 33, Kansas City, Mo.

FREE ASTHMA REMEDY.

Free Trial Bottle to Everyone Who Suffers from Asthma.

A physician who suffered many years from violent attacks of asthma, has discovered a sure cure for the disease, and is now entirely recovered. He has written letters to the leading newspapers of the country, requesting that their readers be informed of this new remedy, and that he will mail, free, a trial bottle to anyone who writes for it. It has cured quite a number of people who obtained the free trial: is an absolute cure, perfectly safe and harmless, and so fortifies the system that the cure is permanent. Write to W. K. Walrath, Box 618, Adams, N. Y., and he will forward at once by mail, prepaid, a trial bottle, so that you can test it and see what it will do in your case. An offer like this ought to be taken advantage of by every reader. Write to-day without fail. Don't wait.

554

The above is the number of the present issue of The Progressive Thinker, as printed at the top of the first page, right hand corner. If this number corresponds with the figures on your wrapper, then the time you have paid for has expired, and you are requested to renew your subscription. This number at the right hand corner of the first page is advanced each week, showing the number of Progressive Thinkers issued up to date. Keep watch of the number on the tag of your wrapper.

ATLANTIS The Antediluvian World. By Ignatius Donnelly. An attempt to demonstrate by authentic data the existence in the Atlantic Ocean of a continent known to the ancient world as Atlantis. Price, $3. For sale at this office.

Works of Thomas Paine

A new edition in paper covers with large clear type, comprising;

Age of Reason.....25 cts.
Rights of Man.....25 cts.
Crisis.....25 cts.
Common Sense.....15 cts.

This is a splendid opportunity to secure these standard works, as the price is within the reach of all. For sale at this office.

Who Wrote the New Testament?

The authors discovered. The writings of Dante used as a basis. Astonishing confessions of Eusebius and Athanasius, and of the Popes, Leo I., Hilarius and Urban VI. Transcribed by M. Faraday. Price 10c. For sale at this office.

Health and Power,

A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth 25 cents. For sale at this office.

History of Atharael.

Life in the Stone Age. The History of Atharael, Chief Priest of a band of Aryans. This pamphlet, containing 91 pages, was written through the mediumship of U. G. Figley, and is intensely interesting. Price 30 cents. For sale at this office.

INTERVIEWS WITH SPIRITS.

A real visit with friends on the other side of life, and a familiar talk. By Spirit Samuel Bowles: Carrie E. S. Twing, Medium. Price 30 cents. For sale at this office.

HELEN HARLOW'S VOW;
Or Self-Justice.

By Lois Waisbrooker. Many have read this book, many have re-read it, and many others out to read it. It should be read by every man and woman in the land. It shows the falsities rampant in society in matters of moral and social import, and the wrongs that flow therefrom to innocent victims of social ostracism. It contains a fine likeness of the author. Fine cloth, 280 pages. Price $1.00

Thumbscrew and Rack.

Torture implements employed in the XVth and XVIth centuries for the promulgation of Christianity, with pictorial illustrations. By Geo. E. Macdonald. Price 10 cents.

HYPNOTISM;
Its Facts, Theories and Related Phenomena, with Explanatory Anecdotes, Descriptions and Reminiscences.

BY CARL SEXTUS. THE BOOK IS largely a record of the facts and demonstrations which the author has seen, heard of or presented in his own experiments. The history of the various phases of the science is succinctly presented, and the various theories clearly stated. Many of the experiments described occurred in Chicago. The pictorial illustrations add much to the interest and value of the book, which will be found very interesting to the general reader, as well as helpful and instructive to the student. The work is a handsome volume of 300 pages, bound in cloth. Price, $2.00. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

ANTIQUITY UNVEILED.

The Most Important Revelations Concerning the True Origin of Christianity.

Reader, in bringing to your notice "Antiquity Unveiled," it is with the sincere hope that you are earnestly looking for the truth, regardless of any other consideration. If such is the case, this advertisement will deeply interest you, and after reading this brief description you will doubtless wish to give the work a careful perusal. Price $1.50.

HYPNOTISM UP TO DATE

BY SYDNEY FLOWER.

An entertaining manual of hypnotism, useful to students of the subject. In the form of dialogue and story, the author presents very successfully a condensed account of hypnotism, its theory and practice up to date. Price, paper, 35 cts. Sold at this office.

Heliocentric Astrology,
OR
Essentials of Astronomy and Solar Mentality,

With Tables of Ephemeris to 1910. By Yarmo Vedra. With 64 illustrations, thirty-five of which are original drawings by Holmes W. Merton, author of "Descriptive Mentality." A new system of personality, determining the primary fund of Mental and Physical forces and their results in mental aptitudes that dominate the nature of the individual as based upon date of birth. Price, cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Occult Forces of Sex

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

This admirable work consists of three pamphlets embodied in one volume, in which questions of great importance to the race are discussed from the standpoint of an advanced social reformer. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

Mahomet, the Illustrious.

BY GODFREY HIGGINS, ESQ.

This work is one of the Library of Liberal Classics. No author was better qualified to write an impartial and honest life of Mahomet than Godfrey Higgins, and this volume is intensely interesting. It should be read in conjunction with Gibbon's work. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

CONTRIBUTORS.—Each contributor is alone responsible for any assertions or statements he may make. The editor allows this freedom of expression, believing that the cause of truth can be best subserved thereby. Many of the sentiments uttered in an article may be diametrically opposed to his belief, yet that is no reason why they should be suppressed; yet we wish it distinctly understood that our space is inadequate to publish everything that comes to hand, however much we might desire to do so. That must account for the non-appearance of YOUR article.

WRITE PLAINLY.—We would like to impress upon the minds of our correspondents that The Progressive Thinker is set up on a Linotype machine that must make speed equal to about four compositors. That means rapid work, and it is essential that all copy, to insure insertion in the paper, all other requirements being favorable, should be written plainly with ink on white paper, or with a typewriter, and only on one side of the paper.

ITEMS.—Bear in mind that items for the General Survey will all cases be adjusted to the space we have to occupy, and in order to do that they will generally have to be abridged more or less; otherwise many items would be crowded out. Sometimes a thirty-line item is cut down to ten lines, and ten lines to two lines, as occasion may require. Every item sent to us for publication, should contain the full name and address of the writer. We desire to know the source of every item that appears. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

The Globe of Atchison, Kans., says: "A ghost has been causing some excitement in North Atchison. If you have been thinking that ghosts were no longer believed in, you are mistaken. This ghost is that of a colored man, and it carries a sword."

Dr. W. O. Knowles writes that he has the entire month of July open dates, and can give also one week in August to any societies, camps or grove meetings who may wish his services. Lectures and tests at reasonable terms can be made by addressing him at 247 Conde avenue, Grand Rapids, Mich.

In answer to "A Subscriber" we will state that the camp-meeting advertised to be held at Deep Lake is not under the auspices of the Illinois State Spiritualists Association.

The Southern California Camp-Meeting Association is pushing the camp work, and all things appear favorable to a successful meeting. Sycamore Grove has again been secured and during the month of September a number of good speakers have been engaged. Allen Franklin Brown is with us and arrangements have been made by the camp association to have him conduct a series of missionary meetings through Southern California, and we wish those who desire him to visit their locality to correspond with the secretary at once, that we may arrange his itinerary. Mrs. Anna L. Gillespie in her usual satisfactory manner is filling a three months' engagement for the Harmonial Society. For information as to the camp-meeting, address Elton T. Brown, secretary, 341½ S. Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Decatur (Ind.) Journal says: "Bluffton is in the midst of a harrowing sensation. Yesterday just a few minutes past noon, the bell in the Christian church suddenly began ringing. It gave two short, quick taps and then tolled several times. The eager populace in that part of the city rushed in, but all was quiet as a mute asylum. What rang the bell is a mystery which nobody seems able to explain.

Mrs. S. Wainright writes: "I really feel I cannot do without The Progressive Thinker. It certainly is one of the best papers I read, without exception, and I am sincerely glad it does not uphold frauds—with all due respect to honest mediums."

A. Katzenberg writes from Fort Wayne, Ind.: "Mr. Frank T. Ripley has been giving lectures and tests during the months of May and June, with large audiences. The ladies of the First Spiritual Society, in order to show appreciation for his services during his stay here, surprised him with a fine gold locket, set with diamonds, rubies and turquoise. The surprise was so perfect and unexpected that Brother Ripley could hardly find words to express his feelings."

Correspondent writes from Flint, Ind.: "Mrs. Squire, of Chicago, has been here. She gave very fine tests. She gave good lectures and woke up the ideas of some of the skeptics. She had circles at her boarding place, and they were good."

E. W. Baldwin writes from Verona, Wis.: "Will C. Hodge has been speaking for our society here, and I say without hesitation that he has grown to be simply immense. I have heard a good many of our so-called best speakers, at different camp-meetings, in Chicago, and elsewhere, and I have not heard his superior."

Virginie Barrett writes: "I want to answer the many letters that have reached me from those who donated to the Mayer Fund in the past, requesting a painting for same as I offered, that my offer holds good for those who have donated since my offer and in the future. However, those who have donated in past, can renew donation. Friends will see that it would be impossible for me to paint pictures for past donation."

G. F. Dougherty, M. D., writes from Neoga, Ill.: "I am fast building a good Spiritual library. I am almost alone. Please say to the people I am working hard to plant Spiritualism at this place. I am furnishing a hall for the work, and to all good mediums say that this hall is for them. I can raise $15 or $20 any time in three hours, if a good medium will come this way. I must have help, and we can make the work go and it will be a success."

Mattie M. Eldridge writs from Saginaw, Mich.: "The Court Street Spiritualist Society held their last meeting for the season, Sunday, the 24th. The meetings have been quite as successful as we had anticipated, and also the circles each week at the home of the pastor, Dr. W. S. Eldridge. We will continue the circles for a time. The subjects for the last lecture were taken from the audience, and handled in a highly satisfactory manner, and the readings and descriptions were all pronounced correct."

G. F. Perkins writes: "Mrs. Perkins has been conducting the meetings at Chicago while I am firing into the thickets in Milwaukee. Had a very interesting meeting June 24. Everybody is psychologized with the Carnival this week and the city is in her best bib and tucker. I am meeting friends that were made dear to us five years ago, and am receiving a hearty welcome."

Take due notice, that all items for this page must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer. It will not do to say that Secretary or Correspondent writes so and so, without giving the full name and address of the writer. The items of those who do not comply with this request will be cast into the waste basket.

William E. Bonney will attend the Franklin, Neb., Camp as one of the speakers. Camp commences July 20. Would like to make a few stops en route from Blair, Neb. Any one who can arrange a meeting, in open air or otherwise, please correspond at once.

C. H. Dennis, secretary writes from Seattle, Wash.: "The Spiritual Association of Seattle, Wash., meets every Sunday in Masonic Temple, R. F. Little president. Children's lyceum at 10:45. A very interesting mediums' meeting is well attended at 2 p. m. Lena I. Gifford has served as pastor for the last six months, giving able lectures of a high spiritual order. Spiritual interest is growing rapidly with large and appreciative audiences. Mrs. Dr. Swan gives psychometric readings. Dr. W. T. Parker of Chicago, assists with tests and treatments. Mrs. Lottie Lovejoy, a good test medium is doing a good work. Worthy traveling mediums are always invited to occupy the platform to get acquainted, for our platform is a broad one. On the evening of June 21, Dr. Olivia was ordained by the pastor at her residence, 400 Denny Way."

Monroe Sage writes: "God bless The Progressive Thinker. Although its pages are always filled with rich thoughts from its many contributors, the letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea alone to me are worth many times its price. They portray the most reasonable and natural solution of the spirit life beyond this earth's existence. I wish also to add my testimony to the magnificent Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World. I read its contents over and over and grow each time happier in the reading. Had it not been for The Progressive Thinker, I presume I should not have gained possession of this wonderful book. So I am led to exclaim, God bless The Progressive Thinker.'"

Mrs. P. A. Cleveland writes: "Trinity Spiritual Society, Chicago, held their regular meeting at Van Buren Hall, on Wednesday, June 27, and had a really spiritual time. While many members were absent, Mrs. Ruth Squire was especially missed as she has always responded to the roll call. But our loss is the gain of others, she having been called to spread spiritual truth in eastern Indiana. Charlie Allen gave an excellent address under control, his maiden effort. Mrs. Briggs and others spoke, and Mr. Brooks, a visiting medium, gave many excellent tests. At our next meeting July 11, we are promised slate-writing. Visitors are always welcome. No charge at door."

Mrs. Jennie Gardner, 05 Fourth street, N., Fargo, N. Dak., writes that a good medium would do well in that city of over 15,000 inhabitants. She writes that there are quite a good many Spiritualists there, but no mediums.

P. J. Culhane, Hamilton, Canada, writes: "Mrs. Bartholemew, of Buffalo, gave meetings here June 19, 20, 21, 22 and 23, and satisfied all who attended that the light of Spiritualism is indeed a comforting angel to those who embrace it. Your premium books arrived O. K. I am more than pleased at the inexhaustible mine of mental wealth contained in them."

Dr. T. Wilkins says he has decided to devote all his spare time to the publication of music for awhile, and has a song in press now, entitled, "We Miss Their Sweet Faces To-day." Words by himself and the music by B. J. Bechtel, of Chicago.

"I am very much interested," writes L. J. Potter, from 116 Huntington, avenue, Boston, "in the contents of The Progressive Thinker. It is always full of food for thought. I am an old publisher myself, though not an old man, and know some of the problems of the business which have to be met and solved. I have recently begun conducting Oahspe services at the above address, assisted by Mrs. H. D. Kimball, an author and lecturer of some repute. Oahspe is, as you know, a complete religious philosophy, given through the late J. S. New brough, with which every Spiritualist ought to be familiar. It is in fact, a new Bible, which reconciles all the seeming discrepancies and contradictions of the old. Either of us are prepared to go any reasonable distance from Boston to speak upon this subject."

E. W. Sprague and wife, speakers and platform test mediums, are filling a two months' camp-meeting engagement at Lake Brady, Ohio. They have September and October open for engagements; also some time later in the season. Address until September 1, Brady Lake, Ohio, via Kent. Home address, 618 Newland avenue, Jamestown, N.Y.

Louis Lyons writes from Los Angeles, Cal.: "Mrs. Anna L. RobinsonGillespie is now acting as pastor of the Harmonial Society, and will continue in that capacity until next September, in which month she will be with the Southern California Camp-Meeting Association that will hold forth in Sycamore Grove, a delightful place within the city limits."

J. W. Briggs writes from Island Lake Camp, Brighton, Mich.: "Here we are at beautiful Island Lake, where the first week has been a great benefit to us in health. Fishing is good, the air bracing, the scenery magnificent and everything which leads to the physical is as good as could be, and I see no reason why the camp-meeting should not be the best ever held here. Great improvements have been made. Here is the best and most commodious hotel, with bath rooms and every accommodation necessary in a first-class hotel; the best I ever saw at a Spiritualist camp."

We were pleased to receive a call last week from Geo. A. Letford, the drummer medium.

Geo. F. Perkins writes: "I have read the third volume of the Encyclopedia and some articles several times. I pronounce the book of incalculable value to every thinker along our lines. It is the best of the three volumes, and ought to bring $3 each."

Andrew C. Dunn writes concerning "Lisbeth": "This work by Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, our 'spiritual evangelist,' is worthy a place in the library of every Spiritualist, Liberal and true Christian in the land. Its characters are life-like, its lessons are wholesome, its moral is uplifting, and as a bearer of spiritual truth it has few equals. One cannot help pitying the dark conditions of the Rev. Daniel Doolittle, admire the sturdy heroism and true self-sacrifice of the 'enlightened' Aunt Betsy, and gentleness and true Spiritualism of Uncle Isaac, sympathize in the afflictions and rejoice in the spiritual victory of the glorified instrument Lisbeth. Our sister has been touched with the heavenly fires of exaltation in thus teaching life's lessons. My own reading was eager and intense—my family fairly devoured the book and vied with each other for its possession; my neighbors are enjoying it, and it will find (by request) a place in our village public library, where it will 'abound' in the hearts of our people I trust. I hope our good sister will not cease from her labors in this line, but that she will continue to break to the hungry inquiring souls the bread of Spiritualistic truth, with her inspired pen, as she has always by her speech."

FROM THE N. S. A.

The Mayer Fund for N. S. A. Home.

Kindly allow me to state in your valuable columns, that as the Mayer fund still needs from fifteen hundred to two thousand dollars to complete it, in order to secure the home, Mr. Mayer once more agrees to extend the time ninety days, or to October 1. We trust by that time to see the fund filled, and a National Home owned by the Spiritualists, with a working fund for its good objects. Mr. Mayer will not get a dollar for the property as he gives that free of charge—the fund is for the treasury of the N. S. A. It seems as if this latter explanation should be unnecessary, as it has been made so often, but I am still receiving letters asking me if we have enough to buy the home, and if the seller will not take less for the same.

If all who can spare a dollar or less, who have given nothing to this fund, will but donate what they can well spare, we shall have the fund filled in less than a month, and we trust they will arouse to their duty in this line, and at once forward me the donation they will some time be very glad they made to the cause.

Several large pledges have been canceled, either because those who made them cannot meet the obligation, or because they were made by irresponsible persons in the name of societies that know nothing of them and that cannot pay, we are trying to see where we stand financially, and if those who have pledged, will send the money to this office, we will be grateful. The fund will be filled and the home secured, we know the spirit world does not prophesy this in vain, but, if by any chance it should not be a success, the money will be returned to those who ask it, and there will be no risk in their sending it here at once.

With sincere gratitude to all who are in sympathy with this work, and especially for the courtesy of the editors of the spiritual papers, cordially,

MARY T. LONGLEY,
Secretary N. S. A.
600 Penna Ave. S. E., Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond.

Mrs. Richmond filled her engagement at Brodhead, Wis., June 10, to a large and appreciative audience. A much needed rain, however, prevented friends in the adjacent country from attending, but the meeting was an excellent one.

On the Sundays of June 17 and 24 she filled her engagement at Waterloo, Iowa. A park and pavilion had been secured three miles from the town, where the meetings were held. A small but earnest band of workers here have lately organized a society comprising some of the most intellectual people of the city. These gathered around to hear Mrs. Richmond's guides, and seemed to listen breathlessly to every word that fell from her lips.

During the week various receptions were tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Richmond at private residences, and the answer sought to questions and name-poems given by Ouina were most eagerly sought for—this being an entirely new experience to the Spiritualists of Waterloo. The pleasant and fraternal relations established between the friends in Waterloo and Mr. and Mrs. Richmond promise to bear rich fruitage for spiritual work in that portion of Iowa.

While at Waterloo Mrs. Richmond engaged to go to Reinbeck, 18 miles distant, where she spoke twice on the 25th. Passing through Chicago, on their way east, they were sorry not to be able to attend a social meeting under the auspices of the Band of Harmony, held at the residence of Mrs. Peet. She and Mr. Richmond have gone first to Cleveland, Ohio; then her route will be as outlined in a previous number of this journal. X.

News from Kansas City, Mo.

It is with much pleasure we report a recent visit of Maud Lord Drake to our city. Her stay with us for two Sundays was the occasion of much rejoicing among the old Spiritualists, many of whom were made to know the truth by her mediumship. Barring her trouble with her eyes she is no less a power in the hands of the spirit world to open the eyes of those who have groped in darkness all their lives. Her spiritual vision is keen, and her devoted husband, who walks in the light of her inner sight, has come to be a power in his business affairs, and he declares he never makes a mistake if he follows the dictates of her guides. Mrs. Drake conducted three public seances while here, greatly to the delight of the many who heard her. The music for these services was rendered in a most delightful manner by the two Misses White and Mrs. G. W. Langdon, who sang with charming effect the poem lately written by Mrs. Payne, of Topeka, Kan., and published in The Progressive Thinker a few weeks since, beginning "I am told of a country just over the sea." I was so charmed with the poem that I cut it from the paper and met Mrs. Langdon on the street and asked her if her guides would give her some music to it. She sat down to the piano and obtained the music before having seen the poem. No changes have been made in the music since, and all who hear her sing this poem with her own inspired music pronounce it not excelled by any who do this kind of work. She has a large variety of pieces ready for the press that came to her under the influence of her musical guides. She is a sister of the celebrated medium Mrs. Steelman Mitchell.

We are glad also to report the excellent work being done here by Mrs. Bean and her daughter, Miss Evyland Edwards, both of Lincoln, Neb. They are charming ladies and have few equals in their work.

Kansas City, Mo. S. D. BOWKER.

"The Great Roman Anaconda." By Prof. Geo. P. Rudolph, Ph. D., ex-priest of the diocese of Cleveland, O. A sharp and pointed letter to Bishop Hortsmann. It is good reading, and should be widely distributed, that people may be enlightened concerning the ways and methods of Rome and its priesthood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

MENTAL MESSAGES.

Has Telepathic Word from China.

Mental telepathic messages, says Mrs. Cecile Payen, 244 Farwell avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., have come to her from her daughter Cecile, who is, with Mrs. M. S. Woodward and daughter, Ione, of Evanston, a guest with Minister Conger of the United States Legation at Pekin. The telepathic messages bear news that the whole party is safe, that the legation has been neither burned nor sacked.

The messages, says Mrs. Payen, arrive in the form of impressions that she hears her daughter's voice speaking to her. A few days ago, Mrs. Payen relates, she received a message that all were safe, and that Minister Conger was in conference with a high Chinese official, who was giving assurances that the members of the different embassies were in no danger from the insurrectionists and would receive proper and sufficient protection from Chinese forces.

So strong was the impression received by Mrs. Payen that she insists she heard her daughter's voice speaking to her, that she is convinced in her own mind that the situation in Pekin is as presented by the mental telepathic messages, and has rested easy, although before that time the alarming news of the danger in which the legation was placed by the reported uprisings had almost caused her nervous prostration.

Mrs. Payen's mentally received messages have received the fullest credence in a wide circle of her friends. Mrs. Payen is a woman of strong mind and individuality, and asserts she is not a believer in humbug of any description. She has not been a student or follower of mental telepathy believers, and has not embraced the teachings of the cult. Her daughter Cecile is a young woman of accomplishments, and is said to be a miniature painter of ability, having devoted five years to study in the best studios of Paris.

Mrs. Payen numbers among her friends Mr. Morgan S. Woodward and wife of Evanston, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McConnell, 4359 Lake avenue, and Mrs. A. W. Becker, 4820 Oakenwald avenue, Chicago. Mrs. E. P. McConnell is a sister of Minister Conger's wife, Miss Payen accompanied Mrs. S. M. Woodward, her daughter, and Mrs. Conger on their trip to join Minister Conger at Pekin. With the exception of Mr. Woodward, who has small hope for the safety of the party, all regard the impressions received by Mrs. Payen as reliable.

The first of the messages from her daughter came to Mrs. Payen June 17, it having been reported on the 15th that Chinese troops had attacked the foreign forces and that a mob had burned the Japanese legation. The reports imbued Mrs. Payen with the greatest alarm for the safety of her daughter. Harassed by the thought of the danger of Miss Cecile, she was sitting alone in her home at a late hour when suddenly she seemed to hear her daughter's voice calling her by her pet name, "Maman," and saying, "It is all right maman, I am in no danger."

Half frightened Mrs. Payen sat as if transfixed in her chair, hurrying when she had recovered to a friend, to whom she related the incident. So strong had been her impression that she heard the beloved tones of her daughter's voice that she could not believe that she had been the victim of a delusion.

When morning came, however, and the lapse of hours had half effaced the impression Mrs. Payen came to think her imagination had played upon her. Half hoping and trying to believe in the fact that she had actually heard Cecile's voice Mrs. Payen read eagerly all the reports from Tien Tsin and Pekin, becoming more and more unstrung at the alarming situation. Later came the report that the legation had been attacked and burned, and fast upon the heels of the news flashed a telepathic message of denial that brought solace to the aching heart of the mother hoping for the safety of her daughter. This time the message came to Mrs. Payen in midday. At the first sound of the voice of her daughter Mrs. Payen stood in listening attitude. "Do not worry, mamma," she heard. "We are all well." So plainly she heard it, says Mrs. Payen, that she could not believe but what her daughter had stood beside her and spoke.

On Friday June 22, while visiting at the home of a friend, she was left alone for a moment when again her daughter's voice came to her, saying: "A Chinese official is conferring with Minister Conger. We are all protected. All are safe."—Chicago Tribune.

Evidence of Man's Love.

Prof. Christman's attention should be called to the case of August Craft and Katie Putnam, of Bucyrus, Ohio. It is an answer to his assertion that man does not love. August has loved and courted Katie for 71 years. Unfortunately, both were too poor to marry. But August was faithful. At last a legacy coming to him enabled him to marry. And no happier couple were ever seen than the bride and bridegroom who have been true to each other as lovers for so long.

Now, if August's love had been merely ordinary passion, could he have waited for Katie for so many years? Would he not have deserted her long ago and tried to win some young woman with enough of this world's goods to enable him to marry her? As everybody knows, it would not have been difficult for him to find and win such a woman. There are many of the fair sex who are eager and willing to take a man, no matter if he be poor, so long as he is in the mental attitude of the famous Barkis.

The love of an old man for an old woman is a beautiful thing in nature. It should make optimists of us all. It is one of the saving traits of our poor humanity.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

PEACE THAT FOLDS THE DEAD.

One folds the little white hands and lays a flower between,
And sees death's lilies pale, where life's sweet rose hath been,
And aches through all her heart, besides the baby face serene.

One smiles a brave good-morrow and walks with even tread,
The while she bears the burden of a great and nameless dread;
God wot—a living grief is worse than the peace that folds the dead.

—Collier's Weekly.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Commandments Analyzed." By W. H. Bach. The Commandments are not only analyzed, but contrasted with other Bible passages, showing great incongruities. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

THE GOLDEN GATE.

Echoes of a Voice from California.

To the Editor:—I presume that you would like to hear and know what is being done for the Spiritual Philosophy here in this far away land. Well, we are trudging along slowly but sure, for the grandest cause on earth, a cause that teaches us how to live right and to do right by our fellow man and woman—that cause is Spiritualism.

There is an organization here that has nobly held together this last ten years, and has not missed one single meeting. This organization is known and titled, The Independent Free-Thought Bible Spiritualistic Society of San Francisco, Cal. It is and has been located at 909 Market street.

Dr. C. H. Rin-es is the founder and president of this society, and will be until he is called to the bright Summerland. We all hope that he will stay a long time with us yet. He is a real genuine consistent and true Spiritualist, one who dares and does speak and tell the truth wherever he may be; he says that as long as he may be permitted to remain on the earth plane, this society shall live, and hold its regular meetings. Superstition has to give way before his sledge-hammer blows for our beautiful philosophy.

This society was incorporated April 23, 1892, under the laws of the State of California. The Doctor, by authority of law vested in him by the State of California and the society as its president, has ordained 183 ministers of the gospel of Spiritualism, who are doing a good work. Their ordination and papers will stand the severest test of the law throughout the United States. These ministers are authorized by law and this society, to perform the rite or ceremony of marriage, officiate at funerals, and do whatever any other clergyman does.

We have grand and noble mediums, who grace our rostrum every Sunday. They are all ordained ministers of the gospel of Spiritualism, who deal out large doses of the beautiful truth of spirit return to the thirsty and hungry souls that come to our meeting, who are eager to receive what is given them from the spirit world, and always ask for more. Our meetings are well attended, by a good class of people, who want the truth and are tired of shams. I will now mention by name some of the ministers who occupy our rostrum, and are doing a grand work. First is Sister E. Seeley, the vice-president. She deals out such solid facts that it staggers the people who listen to her; she sets them to thinking. Sister E. H. Vigars is not slow. She clinches the nails that she drives into the coffins of myths, and clinches them solid, so that they can't be pulled out by the claws of superstition. Bros. John Wilson, J. Arnold, Fischer and Hanson are very convincing, so much so that the skeptics can't budge them in any way. We have Sister Katie Heussmann. It would do your heart good to see how she sails into the ranks of superstition. It is not but a little while after she goes into action when the black clouds drift away, and the sunlight of truth comes streaming into the hearts of her auditors. There are some more noble and true mediums. Sisters Lester, Bailey, Lapworth, Kotter, Harrison, and Sister M. M. Maxwell, and a host of others that I can't call to mind at present.

I must testify to the great worth to this society of Sister Ida F. Green, who makes every one feel that they are at home when they enter our meetings; also her genial husband, who is ever ready to extend the right hand of welcome to all. We truly have a harmonious band of workers that are doing all that is possible for them to do for Spiritualism. They are heart and soul in this work, spreading the spirit light of true knowledge.

I can't give all of the names of the members of this society. They are all good, consistent Spiritualists, ever ready to put their shoulder to the wheel of progress and help it along.

I almost forgot Bro. W. Phelps. I did not mean to do it, for he is a splendid fellow. I don't know what we would do without him, for he is a good singer and creates lots of harmony. That is what is most needed everywhere. It makes good conditions, then the best results are obtained.

Here are the names of the board of directors of this society: Mr. R. Young, Mrs. E. Young, James R. Little, Wm. Lovejoy, W. Phelps, H. A. Dunham, Mrs. Ida F. Green, M. J. Rin-es, and Dr. Rin-es, the president; James R. Little, secretary.

This society has chartered about eight other societies (or branches). Three of these are located at the following numbers in this city: No 2, 605 McAllister street; No. 3, 335 McAllister street; No. 4, 3250 Twenty-second street; and every one of them is in a flourishing condition.

One more word about our worthy president, the Doctor. He is a fine transmitter for the spirit world, and is the last one to take the rostrum, after the other mediums get through their work.

I still have another one in view that I wish to speak about. That one is the Doctor's good little wife, who is a real helpmate to her husband. She plays the violin and is a natural musician, and cheers us up with her sweet music.

We have just organized an auxiliary society, to be known as the Spiritual Aid Society. Its objects are to help needy members of the parent society when they are in distress. It is composed of real good, true-hearted, sympathetic Spiritualists. The president of this society is Mr. Collins; vice-president, Mrs. M. M. Maxwell; secretary, W. Phelps; treasurer, Dr. C. H. Rin-es.

CAPT. A. A. STOUT.

San Francisco, Cal.

MY LOVE AND I.

How fondly we watched, you and I,
While silently the pageant passed by,
Lingering in the wake of spring,
With tenderness on everything.

How winsome fair seemed the world,
When morn with dewy lips empearled,
And earth in all her tuneful bliss,
Gave to the sun a lover's kiss.

How linger here beneath the skies,
And read her silent prophecies,
That smoulder in my soul's desire
The sad notes of my untuned lyre.

How longer linger here alone,
Away from thee and the unknown,
When thou who gave this life its bliss,
On all I see so sadly miss.

BISHOP A. BEALS.

Summerland, Cal.

"Historical, Logical and Philosophical Objections to the Dogmas of Reincarnation and Re-Embodiment." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A keen and masterly treatise. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"Woman, Church and State." A historical account of the status of woman through the Christian ages; with reminiscences of the Matriarchate. By Matilda Joslyn Gage. An important work for all women, students of history, etc. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, gilt, $1.50. For sale at this office.

BOOK REVIEWS.

Autobiography of Emma Hardinge Britten. Edited and published by Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson (her sister and sole surviving relative), Winfield Terrace, Old Trafford, Manchester, England.

This comely volume will be welcomed by the many friends of the lamented and talented medium, speaker and writer.

Emma Hardinge Britten's career was of great note and wide service in the cause of Spiritualism, both in this country and in England. She was a unique personage, and her work was dramatic in the intensity of its earnestness and devotion.

This volume is especially instructive to mediums and speakers, by the narration of her striking experiences.

PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free. All in excess of ten lines will be charged at the rate of fifteen cents per line. About seven words constitute one line.]

Passed to the higher life, Mrs. Dorothea Miller, wife of H. Miller, who preceded her ten months before. She was an ardent Spiritualist, and was waiting for the summons to go home where she knew her beloved companion and seven children were waiting for her. A very large concourse of friends was in attendance to pay the last tribute of love and respect. Services conducted by the writer.

MRS. MARIAN CARPENTER.

Passed to the invisible world, June 21, 1900, at 3503 North Oakley avenue, Chicago, Mrs. Lena Vallet, nearly 24 years old, a sincere investigator of Spiritualism, leaving a husband, mother, a sister and two brothers. She died of consumption. She had had one child, which preceded her to the other world. S.

Passed to spirit life, at Utica, N. Y., June 10, William D. Doyle, aged 80 years. A life-long Spiritualist, and a physical medium, ever true to his convictions of duty, and welcoming the change that would release him from his infirmities. Services conducted by David Williams. W.

Passed to the higher life, from her late residence, Detroit, Mich., Mrs. Mary Brown, aged 59 years. She leaves a husband, five children and many friends, who realize that their loss is her spiritual gain. Services conducted by Nellie S. Baade. B.

Passed to spirit life, June 11, 1900, Charles A. Haskell, in the 69th year of his life. Mr. H. was a firm believer in spirit progression, and he lived a true, upright life, honored by all who came in contact with him. He welcomed the change and did not fear to go. He was a true friend, a devoted husband and father. He leaves a widow and one son, Edson.

MRS. C. A. HASKELL.

Passed to the higher life, from his late residence, Rose Center, Mich., Solomon C. Skidmore, aged 83 years. His four sons acted as pall-bearers, while the remaining members of the family with kindest words and sweetest flowers showed their appreciation of a loving father. Services conducted by Nellie S. Baade. COR.

Passed to spirit life, from her home, Matherton, Mich., June 10, 1900, Mrs. Ada Newland, aged 31 years. She has been a Spiritualist for 25 years and a firm advocate of the truth in all its phases. She has been a reader and subscriber of The Progressive Thinker for about ten years.

VINA NEWLAND.

Passed to spirit life, June 27, 1900, Harry R. Smith, aged 21, at Richardson's Landing, Mich., by drowning. The remains were brought to Chicago for interment. For some time he had resided at the residence of Mrs. G. Partridge. W.

YOU, as a progressive mind, should know something of the phenomena of that magnificent change called Death. On that subject you will find valuable information in the three volumes of The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World. Those three volumes contain more valuable information on that subject than all the libraries of the world. They are furnished to the subscribers of The Progressive Thinker at a nominal cost. Read carefully our premium list.

A CARD.

The principals of Belvidere Seminary would respectfully inform their friends and the public generally that this institution will be open during the summer and early autumn for the accommodation of children and adults who seek freedom from business cares or the excitement of social and fashionable life. Its location is healthy and beautiful, its grounds ample and well shaded, drainage and water excellent.

Belvidere, as its name indicates, is a beautiful inland town, in Northern New Jersey, 700 feet above the sea, and surrounded on all sides by forest-covered hills, at the base of which flow the Pequest and Delaware rivers, along whose banks are many places of special interest to artists and all lovers of the picturesque in nature.

Its streets are well shaded and lighted with electricity. In its near vicinity are well cultivated farms, from which a fresh supply of milk, eggs, butter, fresh fruits and vegetables can be had daily. It is only twelve miles from Easton, Pa., and ten miles from the Delaware Water Gap. It is easy of access from New York and Philadelphia by the Pennsylvania and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroads, with six trains running daily each way. Its walks and drives are exceptionally fine, presenting an ever pleasing variety of river and mountain scenery. Here is just the place for the weary to find repose and the recreation that invigorates without fatiguing. For further particulars, address A. C. BUSH,
Belvidere, Warren Co., N. J.

The new song-book, The Golden Echoes, by S. W. Tucker, has found its way into many homes, and its beautiful songs have cheered many sorrowing hearts, which they are sure to do when heard and sung. They should be heard in every home in the land. For sale at this office. Price, 15 cents; $1.50 per dozen.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of information on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

PUBLICATIONS
— OF —
HUDSON TUTTLE

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.
This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.
Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.
In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.
The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Philosophy of Spiritualism." Price, $1.

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.
English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.
Containing the latest investigations and discoveries, and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.
This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.
A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 50 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?
How to investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.
By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.
For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents. Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.
For humane Education, with plan of the Angel Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address
HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

NEW EDITION.
THE LYCEUM GUIDE

Do you want to organize a society, for the social, intellectual and spiritual advancement of the children and adults?

THE PROGRESSIVE LYCEUM
furnishes all you desire.

Do you want a self-sustaining society, founded on the basic principles of the spiritual philosophy? You have it in THE PROGRESSIVE LYCEUM. It furnishes a system of evolution by internal growth; not the old cup and pitcher Sunday-school. It has something to interest and advance every member, and those who are most active in teaching are the ones who learn most.

NO SPECIAL INSTRUCTOR REQUIRED.
THE LYCEUM GUIDE gives every detail needed for effective organization, and for conducting the society when established.
It has Golden Chain Recitations; the prettiest songs and music; choral responses; a service for a Band of Mercy; calisthenics; how to make the badges, flags and banners; marching exercises; full instructions in conducting the exercises, with parliamentary rules, etc.
Many Spiritualists living in isolation, have formed lyceums in their own families; others have banded two or three families together, while large societies have organized on the lyceum platform, and found great interest in this self-instructive method.
Do not wait for a "missionary" to come to your assistance, but take hold of the matter yourself, procure copies of the GUIDE, and commence with the few or many you find interested.
Mrs. Emma Rood Tuttle (address, Berlin Heights, Ohio) will answer all questions pertaining to lyceum work.
The price of THE LYCEUM GUIDE is 50 cents, postpaid, or by the dozen, 40 cents each, by express charges paid by receiver. Address

HUDSON TUTTLE,
BERLIN HEIGHTS, O.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST
RECITATIONS.

To Advance Humane Education in All Its Phases.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Lyceums and Societies that wish to get up elevating, interesting and paying entertainments cannot do better than to have a Prize Contest. The entire plan, with full directions, is in the book, and may be easily managed. Nothing kindles enthusiasm more quickly than an Angell Prize Contest! Nothing is needed more. Any individual may organize one in his own town and reap a financial reward.

TRY IT! PRICE, 30 CENTS.
Address
EMMA ROOD TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

THE SUNDAY QUESTION
Historical and critical review, with replies to an objection. By G. W. Brown, M. D. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

Life Work of
CORA L. V. RICHMOND,
Compiled and Edited by
HARRISON D. BARRETT.

OUTLINE OF CONTENTS:
INTRODUCTION.
CHAPTER I. Parentage—Place of Birth—Childhood—School Experiences—First Mediumistic Work, etc.
CHAPTER II. Hopedale—Mr. Scott in Massachusetts—Removal to Wisconsin—The Ballou Family—Adin Ballou's Work—Work of Spirit Adin Augustus Ballou.
CHAPTER III. Ouina—Her Earthly Life and Tragic Death—Her Mission in Spirit-Life.
CHAPTER IV. Other Controls—The Guides.
CHAPTER V. Work in Cuba, N. Y.—Buffalo Pastorate—Workers in Buffalo—Thomas Gales Forster—Sarah Brooks—Horace H. Day—Removal to New York City, 1856—Philadelphia—Boston—Baltimore.
CHAPTER VI. Work in New York City.
CHAPTER VII. New York City (continued). Prof. J. J. Mapes—Hon. J. W. Edmonds—Dr. Gray—New York Editors and Clergy—Other Places in the East—Meadville, Pa., 1864—Hon. A. B. Richmond.
CHAPTER VIII. Washington, D. C.—Reconstruction—Senator B. M. Howard—George J. W. Julien—Gen. N. P. Banks—Nettie Colburn Maynard

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin, Heights, Ohio.

NOTE.—The Questions and Answers have called forth such a host of respondents, that to give all equal hearing compels the answers to be made in the most condensed form, and often clearness is perhaps sacrificed to this forced brevity. Proofs have to be omitted, and the style becomes thereby assertive, which of all things is to be deprecated. Correspondents often weary with waiting for the appearance of their questions and write letters of inquiry. The supply of matter is always several weeks ahead of the space given, and hence there is unavoidable delay. Every one has to wait his time and place, and all are treated with equal favor.

NOTICE—No attention will be given anonymous letters. Full name and address must be given, or the letters will not be read. If the request be made, the name will not be published. The correspondence of this department has become excessively large, especially letters of inquiry requesting private answers, and while I freely give whatever information I am able, the ordinary courtesy of correspondents is expected. HUDSON TUTTLE.

J. H. V.: Q. A spirit communicates that after having two wives here on earth, he has taken a third in spirit-world! What is the difference between this and bigamy, and is not the influence of such teachings immoral?

A. The perplexing question in almost identical form is reported to have been given to Christ. The answer is clear. "For in the resurrection they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are as the angels of God in heaven."

The purely materialistic, and gross ideas, too prevalent of spiritual beings is responsible for a great deal of the crass and reprehensible theories, beliefs and fancies. We know our good orthodox brethren will be sadly disappointed when they reach the spirit world, and may be assured that many Spiritualists who claim to know so much about it, will be even more woefully disappointed. Marriage, in its relations to a home and offspring, is of this life, and all inferences drawn from the desires and appetites here, cannot be otherwise than erroneous. The spirit may for a time feel the reflection of its earthly life, especially if that life has been gross in its tendencies, but this will be outgrown.

The fancy that there are two halves made for each other and their union is perfect; the doctrines of matehood and "affinity" which have grown therefrom, cannot be affirmed as having a moral tendency, on the contrary as directly sustaining immorality, and discontent. For if a husband and wife find that they disagree and antagonize, however slightly, if they accept this doctrine of matehood, then they at once say they are not the right halves, and the laws of man are not to be considered against the laws of God written in their hearts. They increase the antagonism, drift apart and constantly seek and expect the other half, their true affinity.

This perfect harmony is rarely, if ever formed. It ought not to be, for it is impossible for two individuals to see things alike, and nature has wisely provided that conjugal attractions involuntarily shall be for opposite qualities, for the balance of the opposing qualities in either mate, that the offspring may partake of the excellencies of both. Not the stagnation of sameness, but the control of reason, is wanted. The lustful man, "cribbed, cabined and confined" by law, is informed that his true mate is in the spirit world waiting for him. The dreams of Moslems of black-eyed houris, are not more debauching than his fancies. I have seen in a "materializing" circle, one of these "halves" come out brazenly and embrace her "dear" to the disgust of all right-minded persons, and induce the said "dear" to pay a good price for a portrait of herself, painted under "test" conditions by another "medium."

The harsh tarletan enveloping the "spirit" in a nondescript way, and collusion evident between the "half" and the "painting medium," made the "test" unsatisfactory, and we wonder why such abominations are tolerated. The "dear's" old wife was at home, probably an important factor in the explanation. If such "tests," and such theories are wanted, they will be given and the baser element responded to.

There is no difference between having a spirit affinity to inflame the fancy and one in flesh, in the moral effect.

The higher courts of the spirit world affirm a different doctrine. The spirit escapes from the bondage of its life here. It has affections, intense as no mortal man ever dreamed of, but they are like itself pure and spiritual. Souls joined by this pure love, and while here on earth will not be parted. They have no reason for or cause to be united except as drawn together by this uniting power; because helpful to each other; because in perfect sympathy they find joy.

Instead of materializing the spirit world and spirits, would it not be more in accord with the new philosophy of life, to spiritualize ourselves?

H. Augir: Q. We are told by some authors that a common flea holds a middle rank among animals; that there are sentient beings as much smaller than fleas, as fleas are smaller than elephants. Is this correct and if so why does not the microscope reveal the persons of spiritual beings?

A. It is true that there are beings as much smaller than a flea, as a flea is smaller than an elephant. The bacteria and bacilli, that are supposed to be the cause of various diseases are immeasurably small. A million of these united would scarcely make a point visible to the unassisted eye. It seems that the limit of minuteness of these microscopic forms is measured by the power of the instrument employed, and with each increase of magnifying power a new revelation is made of those yet smaller. It is impossible with the present form of the microscope to reach the limit, and before the eye of the observer glimpses appear to tantalize him with anticipations of what might be seen if the glass had double power.

These minute forms have no organs. They are incomprehensibly small portions of protoplasm, a name given to matter in that physical condition in which although living, and capable of increasing, and propagating by division, it cannot be said to be a living being in the sense the term is applied to animals and plants.

In these swarming myriads of portions of matter capable of organic life, yet having of itself no organs, we approach the threshold of the origin of life and its individualization in the countless types of the living world.

The microscope can only reveal physical forms, and spirits are invisible not because of their size, but because of their substance. The spiritual vision of the clairvoyant is the only instrument by which they are made visible.

"Fleas have little fleas,
And these have fleas to bite 'em,
And these again have little fleas,
And so on infinitum."

Dr. A. N. D.: Q. (1) What proof is there extant, by contemporaneous writers, as to the life and doings of Jesus, at the beginning of this era, as related in the four narratives, by the so-called evangelists, in the New Testaments?

(2) If there is any direct allusion to the life and acts of Jesus, in contemporary Roman history, can you cite me to it, so that I may obtain it?

A. These questions were answered at length some time ago. The information the correspondent desires is contained in Dr. J. M. Peebles' "The Christ Question Settled." All historic evidence that can be produced is there presented. In thus recommending the book we by no means endorse the evidence. Dr. Peebles has made the strongest plea that can be made for the affirmative. He has gathered all the historic and mythic material, and yet the question is not "settled." It cannot be, because the witnesses are one and all, untrustworthy. Not a word or line that is quoted from ancient pagan writers, but has been condemned as spurious by critics time and again, and revived as though no criticism had been made. The best scholars in the world stand on the firm ground that there is not a paragraph, or even a word about the Christian religion or its founder in any contemporary writer, that is not a bare-faced fraud and interpolation. The hand of the insidious priest is plainly seen in every attempt made to foist such evidence on the credulity of believers.

All the evidence that now exists is in the so-called evangelists, written no one can determine when or by whom.

A. B. S.: Q. What is Love?

A. The translators of the Bible made charity and love almost identical. No word has a wider range of meaning or is used more ambiguously. It represents the sum of all that is adorable in the most exalted mind, and on the other extreme stands for the most selfish passion. So diverse are the many meanings that it is essential for correct understanding to use qualifying terms; as conjugal, fraternal, parental, sexual, spiritual.

The diverse meanings become apparent when contrasted. Passional love is the most cruel and selfish, seeking only its own gratification. While love in its highest sense is self-devotion for the good of others, absolute unselfishness, infinite charity, and its emblem is the sun which forever sheds its warmth and light, giving always and receiving nothing. One is the love of man, the animal, the other of man the spirit. One calls out and allies itself with the most brutal passions of jealousy, hate, revenge, the other idealizes and aspires for all that is noble, magnanimous and desirable in an immortal spirit.

The often quoted phrase, God is Love, neither defines God, or love, and it is one of those high-sounding sentences which have no meaning. He is no more love than he is truth or justice. It would be parallel to define the sun as light.

B. K., Milwaukee, and many others: The only way to determine mediumship and the form it will assume in any given case is trial by sitting in a circle, or alone. The latter method is not as well as the former, because the circle forms a helpful element. Its members act as a whole the part of a magnetizer on his subject.

Cremate the Body.

It seems the most awful thing in the world the way people are being buried alive! Any kind of death would be preferable to me. Your paper too is telling of many narrow escapes, and such cases are to be happily congratulated. Even the thought of having our dead bodies put six feet under ground, there to be devoured by slimy worms, is horrible beyond description, much more while still living! I believe it is wicked to bury the body, any way; and it should never be disposed of in any form until actually known to be lifeless beyond all restoration. I shall leave it as my last earthly wish to have the body burned, with no foolish preservation of the little handful of dust which will remain—either bury or put it out of sight in some other respectful way.

Another thing I would mention: Why do people, with a belief in the immortal life, follow the fashion of mourning—draping the dead form in black, hanging crape about the house, and even garbing themselves in the same sombre hue? There ought to be whiteness and brightness all about.

In all my years of Shaker life I have never known a dead body buried in black—nor a bit of black worn by the living, in consequence of the spirit's departure for the better country. As much as we might miss the visible form in our midst and mourn its absence, we rejoiced with the spirit, at its happy transition to the beautiful evergreen shores of life immortal. The body is draped in white, the funeral ceremonies simple and rational, and no one thinks of death only as a happy change to a much better and brighter life beyond the grave.

CREMATE THE BODY.

When my mortal race is ended,
Do not haste to say good bye;
Give the spirit time to sever
From its flesh the "silver tie."

Drape the form in robe of whiteness,
Waste on it no idle tears;
It has rendered faithful service,
More than man's allotted years.

Wreathe it with the sweetest flowers—
Roses white, with evergreen;
Have no priestly prayer or sermon,
Nor a scrap of mourning seen.

Sing a song of joy and gladness,
That the soul is free from earth,
And will rise to realms of glory
Through its new and second birth.

Do not have the body buried
In a narrow bed of clay;
Better far is clean cremation,
Than earth-worms and slow decay.

Gather up the useless ashes,
Sink them in the ocean deep;
Better so, than for remembrance
Such a deadly dust to keep.

For the summons I am waiting,
Which will take me to my home;
Not a wish have I to linger
On the earth to further roam.

Would that now the bars were broken,
And no time to intervene,
Ere the beautiful transition
To those "Isles of evergreen."

JULIA H. JOHNSON.

Los Angeles, Cal.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

THE CAMP-MEETINGS.

Ashley Camp, O.

This camp begins July 29, and ends August 19, 1900. For programmes address H. Baxter, Ashley, Ohio.

Maple Dell Camp, O.

The National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association will hold its twelfth annual session, commencing July 22, ending September. For full particulars and programme, enclose stamp and address Lucy King, corresponding secretary, Mantua, Ohio.

Arkansas Valley Camp.

The Arkansas Valley Spiritual Association will hold its 7th annual camp-meeting in Island Park, at Winfield, Kansas, commencing July 7, and ending July 17, 1900. For full particulars address Chas. O. Bethel, Winfield, Kans.

Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass.

This camp opens July 29. The circulars are now ready and can be had upon application. In writing for them please enclose stamp for return postage. Address Albert P. Blinn, Clerk, 603 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Camp, O.

This camp will open July 1, and close August 27. Send for programmes to Dr. W. D. Noyes, secretary, 189, N. Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich.

Spiritualist camp-meeting will be held at Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich., commencing June 15 and closing July 9. For full particulars address N. M. Kellam, manager, Oden, Mich.

Chesterfield Camp, Ind.

The camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will open at Chesterfield, Ind., July 19, and close August 26, 1900. For programmes and further information address Flora Hardin, secretary, Anderson, Indiana.

New Era Camp, Oregon.

Its next annual gathering will be held beginning June 23 and ending July 16, thus including four Sundays. Full particulars may be had by addressing E. W. Penman, secretary, Canby, Oregon, or Mrs. Kate Obrock, vice-president, 309 Shaver street, Portland, Oregon.

Delphos Camp.

The twenty-second annual camp-meeting of the First Society of State Spiritualists and Liberals will be held at Delphos, Kans., from August 10 to August 26 inclusive. For further particulars or information write to President J. N. Blanchard, Delphos, Kansas; M. J. Main, vice-president, Simpson, Kansas, or E. S. Bishop, secretary, Glasco, Kansas.

Cassadaga Camp, N. Y.

This favorite place of resort offers an attractive programme the coming season. The camp opens July 13 and closes August 26. Write to the secretary, A. E. Gaston, Meadville, Pa., for programmes.

Onset Camp-Meeting.

Commences July 15, and closes August 26, 1900. For further particulars address Secretary, Onset, Mass.

Vicksburg Camp.

The seventeenth annual camp-meeting of Vicksburg, Mich., will be held in Fraser's Grove, commencing August 3, and closing August 26, 1900. For further information address Jeannette Fraser, Manager, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo county, Mich.

Lake Brady.

The camp grounds will be open for picnics June 1, extending through the summer. The camp-meeting opens July 1, closing September 1. Anyone wishing a Lake Brady program will please write Geo. N. Abbott, Lake Brady, via Kent, Ohio, or E. R. Kidd, Canton, Ohio.

Mount Pleasant Park, Ia.

The eighteenth annual camp-meeting of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists' Association will be held at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, from July 29 to August 26, 1900. All wishing circulars should write to the secretary, Stella A. Fisk, 18 N. 11th street, Keokuk, Iowa. Those wishing to rent tents, etc., should write to John Nelson, Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa.

The Ottawa Camp.

The Ottawa, Kansas, Spiritualist camp-meeting, from August 8 to August 13 inclusive. H. W. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kans.; Ezra Carpenter, secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

Freeville Camp, N. Y.

Opens July 29 and closes August 12. B. L. Robinson, president, Freeville, N. Y.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

Grand Ledge Spiritualist Camp-Meeting commences July 29 and closes August 26. For further particulars and full programmes, write to M. F. Phares or Geo. H. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opens July 1 and closes August 19, 1900, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Program cheerfully mailed to any address received on postal card to Thos J. Haynes, secretary, 389 Western avenue, Muskegon, Mich.

Camp-Meeting at Deep Lake.

The Illinois State Spiritualist Camp-meeting opens its second season at Deep Lake, 1½ miles from Lake Villa, Ill., on Wisconsin Central railroad, commencing July 10 and closing September 1. Those who intend to camp with us please let us know in time so that we can make preparations for you. Address G. V. Cordingley, President, 3300 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Island Lake, Mich.

Island Lake Camp, Island Lake, Michigan, commences Thursday, July 19, and closes September 3. For further information address the secretary, Ella B. Brown, 266 Twenty-first street, Detroit, Mich.

Verona Park Camp.

Opens June 15 and closes August 26. For programmes address Albert F. Smith, president, Bangor, Maine.

Lake Helen, Fla.

The Southern Cassadaga Camp, Lake Helen, Florida, will open the first Sunday, in February, 1901. Emma J. Huff, corresponding secretary.

Niantic Camp.

The Connecticut Spiritualist Camp-Meeting Association, at Niantic campgrounds, Niantic, Conn.; season of 1900, commencing June 25 and continuing until September 8, inclusive. For programmes address Mary A. Hatch, secretary, South Windham, Conn.

Franklin (Neb.) Camp.

The Northwest Kansas and Southwest Nebraska Spiritualist Association will hold their fifth annual camp-meeting at Franklin, Neb., from July 20 to August 6 inclusive. No pains will be spared to make it a success. For announcement, circulars and other information, address the secretary, O. H. Simpson, Franklin, Neb.

Colorado Camp.

Canyon Camp, opens in South Boulder Canyon, July 1, and continues through July, August, and possibly September. Any information desired in regard to this new and interesting movement may be obtained by writing May Taylor, Box 780, Denver, Colo.

Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The twenty-third annual Lake Sunapee Spiritualist Camp-meeting will be held at Blodgett's Landing, N. H., for four weeks, commencing Sunday, July 29, and closing Sunday, August 26, 1900. For programmes address the secretary, W. H. Wilkins, Claremont, N. H.

Los Angeles, Cal., Camp.

Arrangements have been made to hold a camp-meeting at Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, Cali, September 2 to 20, inclusive. Address Elton T. Brown, secretary, 341½ So. Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Marshalltown, Iowa.

The Central Iowa Spiritualist Association will hold its annual camp at Marshalltown, Iowa, September 2 to September 16 inclusive. Grounds open to campers after August 27. Leading speakers, Mrs. Marian Carpenter, of Detroit, Mich., and D. P. Dewey, of Grand Blanc, Mich. Other phases of mediumship will also be ably represented. For information or programs address W. H. Wilson, 301 N. Center street, Marshalltown, Iowa.

Haslett Park, Mich.

Eighteenth annual assembly of Spiritualists at Haslett Park, Mich, August 2 to September 4, 1900, inclusive. For programmes address J. D. Richmond, secretary, St. Johns, Mich., or G. F. Ottmar, Riley, Mich.

Haslett Park, Mich.

A few days ago my wife and I, assisted by a few kind friends, went to Haslett Park with a large number of well-rooted flowering plants. These, as well as those that the friends brought with them, over 1,000 in number, were set out in well-prepared beds throughout the park. This will be a start to make our grounds a beautiful spot and an enjoyment to all who will attend our meetings. The grounds never looked so nice before.

C. C. Dent wishes it announced that the Mediums' Protective Union will meet at Haslett Park, for their annual meeting, August 20, 1900, at the Mediums' Home. Any one desiring to donate anything to help furnish the Home and make it comfortable for the mediums who desire to occupy it, it would be gladly received at this meeting. Write to C. C. Dent, Vicksburg, or Julia M. Walton, Jackson, Mich.

We are preparing for a large camp-meeting. No pains will be spared to make it pleasant for those who will come. A fine array of talent has been engaged. Others have been added to the list since the publication of the program. Annual announcements furnished on application.

G. F. OTTMAR, Manager.
Riley, Mich.

FRUITION.

"Faith shall be lost in sight."

I have heard the voice of a word not spoke,
I have felt the touch of a hand not seen,
'Twas my spirit child that the silence broke
And lifted the curtain that lies between.

How I bless the power of the spirit band
Who have made the rift where the hand has passed;
And, oh, what a comfort at our command
When the unseen palms of our loved are clasped!

When the dust of death has our souls made sad,
And the heart bleeds free, being rent in twain,
How our hopes rejoice in the message glad
That binds up the wound and unites again.

When the broken thread has been spliced once more
That had cut the tie of a friendship dear,
And back to our bosom our friends restore,
The heart knoweth not to express its cheer.

Aye, come as ye may with the tiny "rap,"
Or come with the form congealed from the air,
Ye silence the pain of a sore mishap,
And bring us a truth that is rich and rare!

From our souls ye lift the dread of the tomb
And pave with the diamonds of life the way
That leads from the earth to a better doom
Than the bibles of man were wont to say.

How grand are the lessons that ye have taught,
That each is the judge and the builder true,
Constructing, himself, in the realm of thought
The mansion that justice proclaims his due.

With a bold amen may we hail again
The comforting "voice" of an era new!
That silences doubt in the hearts of men
And that opens to life a broader view.

B. F. SLITER.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Fourteen beautiful, soul-inspiring songs, with music, by O. Payson Longley. Price by mail, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Religious and Educational Society.

The last meeting of the Religious and Educational Society of Spiritualists of the District of Columbia (incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, and chartered by the N. S. A.) was held at their hall Sunday evening, June 24. The hall was profusely decorated with palms and flowers, kindly furnished by Mr. Wm. Gude of the firm of Gude & Brother. The national emblem was also conspicuously displayed. The hall was filled to overflowing, the audience was composed of the best and most intelligent people of the city. The meeting was opened with the hymn, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," followed by prayer. Mrs. A. M. Jacques then delivered a grand invocation followed by seasonable talks upon Spiritualism by Dr. R. R. Roberts and Gov. Isaac Sharp. Mr. and Mrs. Frears, well-known workers in the field, then rendered a duet, followed by Mrs. Frederick and Miss Petersen, who are experts on the piano. The audience was vastly entertained by the singing of the Misses Burnham, Warneka and Miss Slade. Mr. Hall rendered a poem entitled Poe's Raven Paraphrased.

Mrs. Julia Warneka then gave some very wonderful tests. The crowning event of the evening being the presentation to Mrs. Warneka by Mrs. Jacques on behalf of the society of a beautiful five-pointed star pin, set with diamonds and opals as a token of appreciation for the grand work doné in behalf of truth by this medium. The society then adjourned to meet again on the first day in October.

It may not be amiss to give a short history of this society.

Prior to October, 1889, there existed in the District of Columbia no organized method for the defense and protection against persecution, either by individuals, the press, or the authorities, of the mediums of this city.

The Evening Star, one of the daily papers, saw fit to attack three of the recognized media of this city—Mrs. Julia Warneka and Mr. and Mrs. Emmner. A committee consisting of some of the most reputable citizens called upon this paper for redress, which was refused, upon the ground that the article was merely a matter of news, and that no injury had been done either the cause or the mediums. These mediums, who were members in good standing in one of the older associations, then through a committee called upon that source as a means of obtaining justice. This was also refused upon the ground that they could not afford to antagonize the all-powerful press. It was then decided by the friends to organize for the future protection of Washington mediums, and the result we now find in this society. Its growth has been phenomenal. The hall is packed to overflowing every Sunday. It numbers among its members the very best citizens of the District of Columbia, among every profession and calling, and has every facility for defending not only the cause but also its phenomena both upon the rostrum and before the courts. It has no fear, and asks no favors from the enemies of Spiritualism, no matter from what source they may emanate.

Through the efforts of its mediums over five hundred converts have been added to the cause of Spiritualism within five months. These actually profess the faith.

The officers for the ensuing year are: Gov. Isaac Sharp, president; William Glenn, vice-president; Dr. John Walter, treasurer; J. Emmner, Jr., secretary. Board of Trustees, Dr. R. R. Roberts, Wm. Knobloch, Wilson Gregory, Dr. J. Walter, J. Emmner, I. Sharp, William Glenn. Mrs. Wm. Glenn, Mrs. Fowler, Mrs. Roberts, Miss Anthony and Miss Brinkman are a committee to the Ladies Aid, who will have charge of the work during the vacation.

J. EMMNER, Jr.
Secretary.

Emma Rood Tuttle—Her New Volume of Poems.

Since the publication of "From Soul to Soul," by Emma Rood Tuttle, there has been constant inquiry for another volume of her poems which was promised. When the prospectus of that volume was issued, requesting the names of those who wished to subscribe, nearly 1,000 were at once received and three editions have been called for. This plan proved so satisfactory that this new volume will be issued in the same manner. By it the cost of publication is guaranteed, and at the same time to those desiring the book it is furnished at much less cost.

The new volume will be in the same style as "From Soul to Soul," will contain over 300 pages, beautifully bound, with embossed cover, will contain engraved portrait of the author, and subscribers copies will have her autograph.

Emma Rood Tuttle is well known to the readers of The Progressive Thinker and the spiritual press by the many poems she has contributed, and her spiritual songs. The present volume will contain the best of these, and many not before published. The price will be $1; to subscribers, 75 cents. It will be published as soon as the number of subscribers warrant.

Please send names at once—money not desired. HUDSON TUTTLE.
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library. One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

Rending the Vail: This volume is a compilation by J. W. Nixon, of psychic literature, most given by spirits through and by means of full form visible materializations, at seances of a certain Psychic Research Society, known as the Aber Intellectual Circle, the medium being William W. Aber. 507 pp. octavo. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker. Price $2.

"Nature Cure." By Drs. M. E. and Rosa C. Conger. Excellent for every family. Cloth, $1.50 and $2.

"After Her Death. The Story of a Summer." By Lilian Whiting. No mind that loves spiritual thought can fail to be fed and delighted with this book. Beautiful spiritual thought, combining advanced ideas on the finer and ethereal phases of Spiritualism, leading the mind onward into the purer atmosphere of exalted spiritual truth. A book for the higher life. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.

"The Truth Seeker Collection of Forms and Ceremonies for the Use of Liberals." For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

Great Work by a Great Author.

"THE UNKNOWN"

—BY—

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

"The Unknown" created a marked sensation in France when first published and can scarcely fail to arouse the greatest interest in this country. It is an eminent scientist's study of the phenomena of the spirit world. In touching upon the various physical manifestations the author cites many absolutely authenticated instances, and chapters of his book are as weirdly fascinating as the most fantastic of Poe's tales. It treats on incredulity, credulity, hallucinations, psychic action of one mind upon another, transmission of thought, suggestion, the world of dreams, cerebral physiology, psychic dreams, distinct sight in dreams, actual facts, premonitory dreams and divination of the future, etc. 487 pages, cloth bound. Price $2.00.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

DEATH DEFEATED,

—OR—

The Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young,

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D., M. A., Ph. D.

It certainly is just what is needed as a book of good suggestions and instructions along the line of health. He treats the subject in his own matter-of-fact style. The book comprises a practical subject handled in a practical manner by a practical man. Even if people do not wish or expect to live here always, they should know how to live right and enjoy the life that belongs to them. This is undoubtedly the most useful book for the masses the Doctor has ever published, for it strikes at the root or cause of disease, and tells how to avoid it. 212 pages, cloth bound. Price, $1. For sale at this office.

Three Remarkable Books!

"The Divine Pedigree of Man."
"The Law of Psychic Phenomena."
"A Scientific Demonstration of the Future."

The Divine Pedigree of Man, or the Testimony of Evolution and Psychology to the Fatherhood of God. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL. D. This is a most remarkable work, demonstrating the existence of the Soul and Future Life. It is scientific throughout. Price $1.50. Dr. Hudson's work on "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," is also valuable. Price, $1.50. His "Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life" should be read by all. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Being a Review of

The World's Beliefs on the Subject, a Consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling,

Leading to the Question as to Whether It Can Be Demonstrated as a Fact.—To Which Is Added an Appendix Containing Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

BY MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D.

8vo, Cloth, 342 Pages.

After a review of the beliefs held in the past concerning life beyond death, Dr. Savage takes up the present conditions of belief and considers the agnostic reaction from the extreme "other-worldliness" which it replaced, which was in turn followed by the Spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism. He points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon the people. He then considers the probabilities of a future life, probabilities which, as he admits, fall short of demonstration. The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr. Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well authenticated communications from persons in the other life. The chief contents of the volume are as follows:

Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

For Sale at this Office. Price $1.50. Postage 10c.

OUR BIBLE:

WHO WROTE IT? WHEN? WHERE? HOW?

Is It Infallible?

A Voice from the Higher Criticism.

A Few Thoughts on Other Bibles.

BY MOSES HULL.

Excellent as an exposition of the Higher Criticism and an analysis of the Bible from that standpoint. Of special value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.00.

ORMSBY'S SIMPLE SYSTEM

OF THE

PLANETS and the ZODIAC.

A New Book with the Places of the Planets—the Chart that Makes It Easy to Study the Stars—5th Edition—Just Out—Greatly Improved—Price, $2.00

ASTROLOGY SIMPLIFIED—SPECIAL OFFER.

Any person having one of these charts of any former edition may exchange the same for one of the latest with new book, on payment of $1.00.

This is by far the best system for new beginners to take up, as hundreds of persons have become proficient in the science of the planets in a short time by starting with this Simple System. The new books give the corrections covering one hundred years, all of the 19th century.

Corrections for the 20th century, 100 years in advance, are now ready, which makes the chart good for 200 years. Price for the 20th century tables, $2.00. For sale at this office.

Bible and Church Degrade Woman

By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three essays on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

FORCE AND MATTER.

By Ludwig Buechner. A celebrated book. Cloth.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,

Or The Three-fold Power of Sex. By Lois Waisbrooker. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

MYTH AND MIRACLE.

One of Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll's best lectures. Price 5c. For sale at this office.

The Law of Correspondence Applied to Healing.

A course of seven practical lessons. By W. J. Colville. Limp cloth, 50c.

Zelma the Mystic, or White Magic Versus Black.

By Alwyn M. Thurber. Occult philosophy clothed in story form; aims to give a better understanding of magic, black and white. 330 large pages. Cloth, $1.25.

PROGRESSION,

Or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-Life. The evolution of man. By Michael Faraday. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

Special Prepared Remedies Made According to Dr. Watkins' Psychical Prescription.

THESE PRICES FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY.

FOR LADIES.

No. 1: Tablets for Consumption,....50c, now only 25c.
No. 2. Tablets for Dyspepsia,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 3. Tablets for Liver,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 4. Tablets for Female Weakness, 50c, now only 25c.
No. 5. Tablets for Stomach, acidity, flatulency, gas, and distress after eating, old.....price 50c, now only25c.
No. 6. Catarrh. .....50c, now only 25c.
No. 8. Headache. .....50c, now only 25c.
No. 13. Nervous Debility,.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 14. Painful Menses,.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 15. Suppressed Menses,.....50c, now only 25c.
Woman's Friend cures Leucorrhea, usually called Whites, $1.00.

FOR MEN.

No. 1. Constipation,.....25c.
No. 2. Dyspepsia,.....25c.
No. 3. Liver,.....25c.
No. 5. Stomach, acidity, gas, etc.....25c.
No. 16. Pile Ointment,.....25c.
No. 18. Nervous Debility,.....25c.
No. 33. Invigorator,.....25c.
No. 44. Vital Tablets,.....25c.
No. 55. Vigor Tablets,.....25c.
No. 66. Tablet of Youth,.....25c.

All of the above Remedies sent for $4, or any Ten for $2. Express Prepaid.

Our Rheumatic Liniment

CONCENTRATED.

Nothing better to take out soreness and relieve pain. $1.00 a bottle for 50c.

La Grippe Tablets.

A sure cure and preventative. 50c. Trial Box, 25c.

Don't Forget.

You will never regret ordering these Remedies.

KINDLY REMEMBER

That we are very anxious to place these remedies in every house in the United States. We believe is our duty that we owe to humanity to try to let all know of the great value of these prescriptions, and we therefore will, till further notice, sell at above prices. Don't put off ordering these remedies but order to-day. We will diagnose disease free. Send sex, age and leading symptoms.

Ayer, Mass. DR. C. E. WATKINS.

TRUTH

The only way to find out who is the "Greatest Psychic Physician living" is to read what their patients say.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

never claims that he is the greatest physician living, or that he is the

GREATEST PSYCHIC.

He believes that there are hundreds of healers who are just as successful as he is, and he never yet has claimed that he is or was the best psychic, although twenty years before the public as the independent slate-writer with the record of not one person who ever accused him of fraud, ought to make the public THINK when they compare his claims to other so-called psychics.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

only desires those who are sick to remember that for over twenty years he has been before the public as a psychic, and over twelve years as a physician, and he never claims greater powers than others; but we believe he has a right to think he has as great gifts as those who claim so much.

Kindly read the following

TESTIMONIALS:

Dr. C. E. Watkins—Dear Doctor:—I am well satisfied with the results of your treatment, and if you desire to print as testimonials any of my letters, you have my full consent to do so, as I hope they may be the means of bringing back to health and happiness those who, like myself have endured many years of suffering and spent large sums of money in their endeavor to find that greatest of all human blessings, good health. Wishing you every success, I remain, very respectfully, your patient,

CLARENCE A. JOLIFF.
East Germantown, Ind.

Dr. C. E. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I will say that I am still improving every day. I am much better in every way since I have been under your treatment. Yours truly,

Dover, N. H. MISS L. E. DORE.

My Dear Friend and Doctor:—I am ever ready to thank you again and again for your kindness in restoring me to my present condition of health, as I have felt better this winter than for years before. My deafness resulted in a permanent cure, and words cannot express my happiness at having my hearing fully restored to me, and I do not hesitate in telling it to all my friends. Even the doctors here think it wonderful. Hoping to hear from you again, I remain ever your friend,

MRS. FLORENCE NICKERSON.
Amesbury, Mass.

Dear Doctor:—I do not have any more stomach trouble, and my appetite is good. My friends and neighbors all around here know how well and quick I got over my pain and distress, after taking your medicine, and I shall do all I can for you. I remain, as ever, your friend,

MRS. WILLARD STORMS.
Holley, N. Y.

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I am feeling much better than when I last wrote you, and am able to walk quite a distance, without giving out, something I could not do when I began treating with you. Respectfully,

MARY E. WALKER.
Maple Ave., Los Angeles, Cal.

Brother Watkins:—I received your letter, wherein you ask me if I would like to join your Psychic circle. My dear friend, not only would I like to join it, but esteem it a great privilege granted me, which privilege I shall highly appreciate. Yours honestly and kindly, F. D. WARNER.
2119 Wall St., Los Angeles, Cal.

Dear Doctor:—Received your medicine yesterday all right, and began taking it this morning, and I honestly believe if I can be cured you will do it. I generally follow my impressions, and I am always led right. I think your diagnose was very correct, and thank you for same. Yours respectfully,

MRS. BELLE FERRIS.
No. McGregor, Iowa.

VOLUMES 1, 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic, Ghost Land, The Next World Interviewed, and the Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate) constitute our premium list. Those seven books have been on sale, costing the buyer in the aggregate, $10.75. We, after paying the postage and expense of mailing, realize only $1.50 for the seven—far less than cost to us. We desire to form the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home, hence this remarkable offer. By subscribing for The Progressive Thinker, you then have the privilege of purchasing these books at the premium prices. See terms on another page.

"The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail, $1. For sale at this office.

KINGDOM OF HEAVEN.

A Prophecy and Fulfillment in the Present Age.

In the Apocryphal book of Second Clement, chapter 5, we have the following:

"For the Lord himself, being asked by a certain person when His kingdom should come, answered: When two shall be one, and that which is without as that which is within; and the male with the female, neither male nor female."

It is only through a long and thoughtful observation of daily life viewed in a great city, coupled with illumination from a spiritual source, that one could hope to unravel the mystery of this prophecy; and it is in this light that I make the effort.

We have come to understand that there are two great forces in Nature that we are pleased to term variously, electricity and magnetism, positive and negative, masculine and feminine; and that they, in the gradual evolution of the animal kingdom, become finally individualized in man and woman as intelligence and love, either sex manifesting but the one dominating force or principle.

From this time on the great effort of progressive unfoldment is to gradually embody these two forces in the one individual of either sex; to balance or bring to an equilibrium, the masculine and feminine, positive and negative, reasoning and loving forces in the great body of humanity; so that "two shall be as one."

That this has been effected through the principle of magnetic exchange between the sexes, both in the ordinary social contact of every-day life as well as the closer relations of the married state, can hardly be denied; as well also, that each successive generation naturally partook more of a proper balance of the two forces in the one individual than their parents.

From being merely selfish animals in human form, men have become softened with the love principle that has become a part of their being; while woman from being a weak and loving creature ruled by impulse alone, is now self-controlling through the balance of power given her by the blending of the reason principle with her basic love nature.

Victoria Woodhull and Tennie C. Claflin led off as he-she women—radically so—and to-day the women generally are wearing mannish tailor-made suits and engaging in occupations that have all along been monopolised by the sterner sex. Here again the two have become one, and mingle together in business relations without those sharp, strong and overpowering attractions that only tend to make the irregularities of life, stir up trouble, and make conditions that savor more of hell than heaven both in the family and out of it.

Thus the wisdom of the late arrival of the type-writer becomes apparent, for had it come to maturity sooner there would have been neither the mentality nor balance in the feminine young necessary to make their employment safe and wise in its manipulation.

From this view it is also not difficult to realize what is meant by "the male with the female, neither male nor female."

The sharp distinctions of sex are a thing of the past, very largely, to what they were. The two have come gradually nearer and nearer to each other nearer and nearer to a balance of the "two-in-one"—the masculine and feminine forces in the one individual; so life is calmer, more with poise, more with reason as the dominant factor of rulership; and thus heaven as a condition of being draweth nigh, if not already here in fullness.

It only remains in this short article to call attention to one more statement in the selected passage, viz., that that which is without shall be as that which is within. This can only reasonably mean that the material nature, on the one hand, becomes so softened and refined, and the spiritual nature becomes so unfolded, on the other, that the two become as one.

As the race reaches this goal, and upon this attainment the crown of spiritual knowledge is added thereto with all it means in making man "one with God," then verily have male and female alike become the sons and daughters of God, and angels in human form walk the earth, God is with man, and heaven on earth. W. J. CUSHING.
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Cosmian Hymn Book." A collection of original and selected hymns, for liberal and ethical societies, for schools and the home; compiled by L. K. Washburn. This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical and their psychical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the spirit world. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

A GREAT HEALER

Dr. Peebles' Wonderful Cures Have Made His Name Famous the World Over.

Read His Generous Offer to the Sick.

J. M. PEEBLES, A. M., M. D., PH.D.

THERE is probably no physician or healer living who is curing more cases of Chronic and obstinate disease than is Dr. Peebles. During an experience of over fifty years this TRUE AND GREAT HEALER has cured thousands of those who had been pronounced "incurable" by the best local physicians. Mrs. Alfonso Buck, of Mechanicsville, O., says: "It is now about three months since I began your treatment and I am happy to say that I am free from those dreadful pains and have gained 15 pounds and am still gaining rapidly. My doctor had given me up as 'incurable.' Being sure that I owe my life to your skill I most cheerfully and heartily recommend you to all those in search of health." Miss Maggie Polson, of Guthrie, Oklahoma, says: "Six months ago I suffered with terrible headaches, heart trouble and female weakness. My friends despaired of my life and I was so weak I could do nothing. Now I am well, strong and hearty. I can never forget the good you have done me."

Remember that Dr. Peebles does not heal by Christian Science, Hypnotism, or any other "ism" but employs MILD and POTENT medicines, combined with his PSYCHIC POWERS. These Psychic treatments are the greatest power known for relieving pain and suffering and curing disease. One of his patients recently said, "these treatments seem as a breath of higher life. It seems as if they alone would almost raise the dead." Besides being the greatest Psychic Physician living he is an authority in Europe and America on Psychic Phenomena and the Psychic Science. He has written an essay "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease," which he will send free to any sufferer asking for it. The Doctor's diagnoses are equally as astonishing as his cures. His Psychic Gifts enable him to accurately locate the diseased and weakened tissues, thus he never has to experiment for weeks to discover the real trouble. No disease is really incurable if perfectly understood, for every effect or diseased condition has its cause, and if this is seen and removed by the aid of natural forces, health will be restored. What is your condition and its cause? It is within your power to know. No two cases are exactly alike so do not spend precious time in taking patent medicines which are prepared a "text-book" case, or risk your life in the hands of a physician who does not understand your condition. Write to-day for a FREE DIAGNOSIS and special advice in your case. This will cost you nothing. The Doctor will also send you his essay on this wonderful science and other valuable literature FREE. Thousands of so-called "incurable" cases are cured by this method. So do not despair, if your physician has failed to cure you. Just write the doctor a plain, truthful letter, giving him your name, age, sex and leading symptom, in your own handwriting and receive a complete diagnosis of your case by return mail.

G. D. Younge, of Wimer, Ore., who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, says:—"I consider it my sacred duty to extend to you my heartiest thanks for the perfect cure your medicines and advice have effected in my case. I was very skeptical when I began the use of your medicines and treatment, but I am free to say that I now have a confirmed belief in their almost miraculous efficacy. Three months ago I bore about my body the hideous spectacle of my disease. Now I am a mentally and physically robust man."

Mrs. Lydia Mason, of Boyd, Oregon, who had not walked without crutches for a long time, after a few weeks of our treatment says:—"I can now walk without my crutches for almost half a day. I am gaining rapidly and expect to soon be in perfect health again."

Mabel Keyes, of Iron Creek, S. D., who had suffered for a long time from eczema, says:—"The roughness of the skin has entirely disappeared. I am very thankful indeed for the great good you have done me. I talked with our family physician and he thinks my cure is remarkable. I doctored with him before I called on you and he said he did not think there was any help for me and he is one of the best doctors around here."

Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Battle Creek, Mich.

Sunday Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins' spiritual meetings, 40 E. Randolph street, Handel Hall, Fourth floor, Sunday evening, 7:45. Wednesday evening, 675 Larrabee street, corner Garfield avenue.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, G. V. Cordingley, pastor, room 409 Handel Hall, 40 Randolph street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Band of Harmony, auxiliary to the Church of the Soul, meets at Room 608 Handel Hall Building, 40 Randolph St., every first and third Thursday of the month, beginning afternoons at three o'clock. The ladies bring refreshments; supper served at six o'clock. Evening session commences at a quarter to eight. Questions invited from the audience, and answered by the guides of Mrs. S. J. Ashton. Always an interesting programme. All are welcome.

Church of the Spirit Communion will hold meetings in Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, each Sunday. 3 p. m., conference and tests; 8 p. m., lecture by J. K. Hallowell; tests by H. F. Contes and others. All are invited. Good music and seats free.

There will be a Spiritual meeting at 2:30 each Sunday, at Smith Hall, Wisconsin and Larrabee streets. German and English speaking by Mrs. W. Hilbert and Mr. Bernhart.

Spiritualistic services will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m., 1453 N. Springfield avenue. Tests at 4 o'clock prompt. Wm. Fitch Ruffle, medium.

Garden City Spiritual Alliance holds regular meetings at Mackinaw Hall, No. 204 and 206 East 43d street, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Spirit messages, Tests in telepathy or thought transference, good music. Seats free. May Goodrich, pastor.

The Gross Park Spiritual Society meets at 1785 N. Hoyne avenue, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society meets every Sunday evening at 7:30 at 8927 Exchange avenue, instead of Eigenman's Hall.

The Christian Spiritual Society hold meetings in Hygeia Hall, 404 Ogden avenue, at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. Miss Sarah Thomas conducts.

The Englewood Spiritual Union Society meets every Sunday at Forbes' Hall, 420 W. 63d street. Competent leaders of spiritual thought and mediums of note in charge.

Church of the Star of Truth, Wicker Park hall, No. 501 West North avenue. Services at 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey.

Truth Seekers meet at the Teutonia Hall, corner of 53rd and Ashland avenue, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Chicago Liberal Society is a non-sectarian association for the encouragement of morality, the promotion of education, the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, and the inculcation of truth in the place and stead of error and superstition. The Temple services of the society are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, 17th floor, and are in charge of Thomas B. Gregory. You are cordially invited to attend the same.

The Avenue Spiritualist Society will meet at 2979 Wabash avenue, corner 30th street, every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. Harry J. Moore, pastor.

Send in notice of meetings held on Sunday at public halls.

Bear in mind that only meetings held in public halls will be announced under the above head. We have not space to keep standing notices of meetings held at private residences.

"Right Living." By Susan H. Wixon. The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principle of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in Children's Lyceum. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. Cloth $1. For sale at this office.

"Heliocentric Astrology or Essentials of Astronomy and Solar Mentality, with Tables of Ephemeris from 1880 to 1910." By Yarmo Vedra. For sale at this office. Price, $1.50.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole:—

43 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.:

Your melted pebble spectacles are wonderful. I can see to thread a fine needle and can read with comfort, and my eyes are getting stronger. Your clairvoyant system of fitting is perfection. I am, your friend,

MRS. L. E. MARTIN.
Blairsville, Pa.

For ten cents we will send by mail, a 4-oz package of my Magnetized Compound, for sore or weak eyes. Once used you will not be without it. Address B. F. POOLE & CO.,
43 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here gathered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

"Mansill's Almanac of Planetary Meteorology," almanac makers' and weather forecasters' guide and new system of science for 1900 is now for sale at this office; price 25 cents. This is the 28th annual almanac issued by R. Mansill, Rock Island, Ill. It is one of the most interesting and instructive annual publications along the line of the planetary science now published, and is far more explicit in relation to the movements of the heavenly bodies and the effect produced upon our earth. You need this book.

RELIGION OF THE STARS

By O. H. RICHMOND,

G. M. of the Order of the Magi, Chicago.

BOUND IN CLOTH WITH GOLD side, and containing 320 pages. This splendid book, just issued, contains nineteen full Temple lectures upon occult subjects, together with other articles from various newspapers, relating to the great work. It contains all the old Temple lectures issued in 1892, and three others on the HUMAN SOUL, which are alone worth the price of the book. This wonderful book is unique as an Evangelist of Science and Truth. Price $1.25, postpaid, to any address. For sale at this office.

MAN

—IN THE—

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

A POPULAR ACCOUNT OF

Results of recent scientific research regarding the origin, position and prospects of mankind.

From the German of

DR. LUDWIG BÜCHNER,

Author of "Force and Matter," Essays on Nature and Science," "Physiological Pictures," "Six Lectures on Darwin," Etc.

"The great mystery of existence consists in perpetual and uninterrupted change. Everything is immortal and indestructible—the smallest worm as well as the most enormous of the celestial bodies,—the sand grain or the water drop as well as the highest being in creation, man and his thoughts. Only the forms in which being manifests itself are changing; but Being itself remains eternally the same and imperishable. When we die we do not lose ourselves, but only our personal consciousness. We live on in nature, in our race, in our children, in our deeds, in our thoughts—in short, in the entire material and physical contribution which, during our short personal existence, we have furnished to the subsistence of mankind and of nature in general."—Buechner.

One vol., post 8vo., about 350 pages, vellum cloth, $1.

THE World's Sixteen Saviors,

—OR—

CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST.

BY KERSEY GRAVES.

New and startling revelations in religious history which disclose the Oriental origin of all the doctrines, principles precepts and miracles of the Christian New Testament, and furnishing a key for unlocking many of its sacred mysteries, besides comprising the History of Sixteen Oriental Crucified Gods. This wonderful and exhaustive volume will, we are certain, take high rank as a book of reference in the field which the author has chosen for it. The amount of mental labor necessary to collate and compile the varied information contained in it must have been severe and arduous indeed, and now that it is in such convenient shape, the student of free thought will not willingly allow it to go out of print. But the book is by no means a mere collation of views or statistics; throughout its entire course the author—as will be seen by his title-page and chapter-heads—follows a definite line of research and argument to the close, and his conclusions go like sure arrows to the mark. Printed on fine white paper, 380 pages. New edition, revised and corrected with portrait of author.

Price (1.50. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

OUR MOTTO

To Do All the Good We Can.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Who is so widely known as one of the many

SPIRITUAL HEALERS,

SHE HAS

Successfully Treated

And Cured

Thousands of Patients.

Will Diagnose Your Case

FREE

REQUIREMENTS:

Lock of hair, age, sex, one leading symptom, full name, three 2-cent stamps and plain full address.

SEND TO

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Box 132. SAN JOSE, CAL.

MRS. G. PARTRIDGE,

Psychometrist and Healer. Readings by hand-writing or photo $1.00. Three reasonable questions answered for 25 cts. Address 54 N. 52nd ave., Chicago, Ill.

NEW DREAM BOOK.

By DR. R. GREER, 52 Dearborn st., Chicago, Ill. 25 cents 519tf

CHART FREE.

By a Bohemian Gypsy Astrologer and Clairvoyant. Send age, color of eyes and hair, in own handwriting. Address GEO. WELLES, Box 190, Newark, N. J. 551

YOUR FUTURE accurately calculated by Astrologer WALROND, 87 Opera House Block, Denver, Col. From $1.00.

WM. W. ABER.

Readings by mail, $1.00. Advice on all affairs of life. Spring Hill, Kans. 555

Geo. F. Perkins, Emaline Perkins,

Platform and Private Test Mediums, 3558 Cottage Grove ave., flat 14, Chicago. Circles Friday. Readings daily. 539tf

MRS. E. J. HANSON, TRANCE MEDIUM, 76 Bingham St., near Milwaukee av. car barns. 555

FOR RENT.—Desirable rooms fronting the lake, near Grand Hotel. Terms reasonable. Address Abbie E. Olmstead, Lily Dale, N. Y. 556

TEST READINGS, 15 cts. for 30 days. Mrs. Elizabeth E. Barney, No. 85 Quimby st., Grand Rapids, Mich. 554.

FOCO-MAGNET The Key to the OCCULT.

Focalization and Concentration necessary to development. This new invention makes this possible in light or dark sittings. Sent with full instructions for 50 cents, in stamps, postal order or other suitable way. Address DR. T. WILKINS, 54 N. 52nd av., Chicago, Ill.

FRED P. EVANS,

The Well-Known Psychic

For Slate-Writing, Etc.,

Gives seances daily at his office. The Occult Book Store, 103 W. 42nd st., N. Y. City. Send stamp for circular on mediumship and catalogue of books.

$2 — TRUMPETS — $2

ALUMINUM TRUMPETS in two and three sections 36 in. high—magnetized when desired—42 on receipt of price. Address WM. A. MURRAY, 503 E. 2nd St., Newport, Ky. 534

Myself cured, I will gladly inform any one addicted to

Morphine, Opium, Laudanum,

or Cocaine, of a never-failing harmless Home Cure. Mrs. M. E. BALDWIN, P. O. Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

MRS. MAGGIE WAITE

Reading by mail, $1.00. Business advice a specialty. 304 S. Crouse ave., Syracuse, N. Y. 556

DON'T READ THIS.

Frances L. Loucks, the only psychic wonder living, that cures the spiritual X-Ray without any leading symptom to direct, and locates all internal diseases. A trial will convince you. Nervous exhaustion and lost vigor of youth cured successfully treated, as hundreds can testify. Send name, age, sex, complexion and ten cents in stamps, and receive a correct diagnosis of your case free, worth dollars to you. Address,

FRANCES L. LOUCKS,
Lock Box 7. Stoneham, Mass.

TALMAGEAN INANITIES.

Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies.

A review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

An Institute of refined Therapeutics, including the Sun Cure, Vital Magnetism, Electricity, Mind Cure, and a higher science of life. Chemical affinity and basic principles developed with their marvelous applications. Students in four continents have taken the course. The college is chartered and confers the degree of D. M., Doctor of Magnetics. By a system of printed questions students can take the course and receive the diplomas at their own homes. Institution removed to 69 N. 3rd st., San Jose, Cal. Diplomas of unsurpassed beauty granted. Send stamp for catalogue to E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D., Dean. 441tf

DR. J. S. LOUCKS

For thirty years has treated and cured the sick in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thousands have been cured after being given up to die. His psychic powers are unequaled, as his cures prove. Talk doesn't prove anything. Facts are proof. He also cures diseases of men, such as loss of manhood, debilitating losses causing nervous exhaustion. Send name, age, sex, lock of hair, 6 cts in stamps, for a diagnosis. Address,

DR. J. S. LOUCKS, M. D.,
85 Warren st., Stoneham, Mass.

Card from Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Dear friends, you can greatly help me care for my blind sister, Jennie L. Webb, one of the earliest mediums now in the form, by writing a letter to a spirit friend. Send it to me with $1, and I will try and get reply by independent writing or whispers. Address Annie Lord Chamberlain, Milford, Mass. 531tf

TRUTH AND DESTINY

Deals with the hidden forces of mind and the influence of environment upon human life. Gives a contrast of the destiny of one who acted out in the darkness for the light he vainly sought, and the destiny of another who found the radiance within. It reveals the laws and conditions which create happiness and indicates the path which leads to the attainment of Self-Mastery and Power. Price 25 cents,

URIEL BUCHANAN,
Dept. P. T., Box 210, Chicago, Ill. 544tf

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

THE RELATION

Of the Spiritual to the Material Universe; and the Law of Control. New edition, enlarged and revised, by M. Faraday. Price 15 cents.

A Few Words About the Devil, And Other Essays.

By Charles Bradlaugh. With the story of his life as told by himself, and the history of his parliamentary struggle. With portrait. Paper, 50c.

WOMAN: FOUR CENTURIES OF PROGRESS.

A Lecture delivered at the Freethinker's International Congress, Chicago, Ill., October, 1893. By Susan H. Wixon. Price, 10c.

THE GOD IDEA OF THE ANCIENTS,

Or Sex in Religion. By Eliza Burt Gamble. "It is a sensible, quiet, logical statement of opinion, deduced at times curiously from statistics which might be open to doubt; and never for a moment sensational or revolutionary."—Chicago Herald. 288 pages, large type, cloth bound. Price $2.15. For sale at this office

THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL

SERIES ONE TWO AND THREE,
BY LILIAN WHITING,

Three choice volumes, each complete in itself, in which spirituality is related to everyday life in such a way as to make the world beautiful. Price $1 each. For sale at this office.

Cultivation of Personal Magnetism

A Treatise on

HUMAN CULTURE.

By Leroy Berrier, Anthropologist and Author. A very suggestive and instructive book. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This is a very interesting little book, and will be appreciated from start to finish by all who wish to gain spiritual information. Price 25 cts. For sale at this office.

OUTSIDE THE GATES

and other tales and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA

According to Old Records.

By Dr. Paul Carus. A translation made from Japanese, under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was published in Japan. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 60 cents. For sale at this office.

TWO IN ONE

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a careful comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministries; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and as touching the merits of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

MAN THE MICROCOSM.

His Infinite and Divine Relations. Intuition—The Light Within. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

KAREZZA.

ETHICS OF MARRIAGE.

By Alice B. Stockham, M. D.

Karezza makes a plea for a better birthright for children, and aims ahead individuals to seek a higher development of the affections through most sacred relations. It is pure in tone and aim, and should be widely circulated. Price, cloth, $1.

ASTRAL WORSHIP.

By J. H. Hill, M. D. A valuable contribution to the current discussion of religious problems. The author by illustrations and a planisphere (a representation of the celestial sphere upon a plane with adjustable circles), traces most of the myths which lie at the base of Christianity to their origin in sun and star worship. The astronomical facts given possess great value, the illustrations rare and curious. The book is bound in only one style—heavy boards. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 339 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . None and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton

EVOLUTIONISM.

A Series of Illustrated Lectures Upon the

EVOLUTION OF ALL THINGS IN THE UNIVERSE.

BY OLNEY H. RICHMOND,

Price, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS

And How We Ascend Them.

How to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. By Moses Hull. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper 25 cts. For sale at this office.

Apocryphal New Testament

Being all the Gospels, Epistles, and other pieces now extant, attributed in the first four centuries to Jesus Christ, his apostles and their companions, and not included in the New Testament by its compilers. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though to escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 83 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD,

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve,

By Lois Waisbrooker. This is a novel written with a purpose to improve the human race; to mold the future offspring with reason, health and inspiration. No one need be afraid of this book. Price $1, postpaid. For sale at this office.

G. WALTER LYNN

THE EMINENT

Mental Physician AND Gifted Psychic.

Obsession Cured.

Special Attention Given to

Nervous Ailments.

Astonishing Cures of Disease, Physical and Mental, Through

Magnetized Remedies and Psychic Science.

Readings and business advice, by mail, $1.00 and two stamps.

For correct diagnosis of disease send five two-cent stamps, age, name, sex and own handwriting.

I have never known a more competent, reliable and truthful medium for the Spirit-world than Chas. Walter Lynn. JOS. RODES BUCHANAN.

Address, 1017 Castro st., Oakland, Cal.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 50 cents of all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE & CO., 43 Evanston av., Chicago, Ill.

Reed City Sanitarium and Private Hospital, A. B. Spinney, M. D., Prop.

Staff of eight consulting physicians and surgeons; professional nurses, steam heat, electric light. Cheapest sanitarium for the accommodations in the world. Board, medical attendance, nursing, baths, massage and electrical treatment, $7 per week. Cases diagnosed free and treated at a distance by correspondence. Prices reasonable. Send your name and address with stamp to REED CITY SANITARIUM, Reed City, Michigan.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Free Diagnosis by Psychic Power.

We cure diseases that are called incurable, by our new and original Method, of personal and absent treatment. Write for our ten-day special offer. Free diagnosis in every case. Our faculty consists of the best healers in the country. Our cures are quick and permanent. Agents wanted to represent our school of Science, for our practical mail courses on Hypnotism, Clairvoyance, Magnetic Healing, etc. These are easy lesson courses and will develope you.

Special Offer:—To introduce our easy lesson courses, we will by way of advertisement, send our regular ten dollar ($10.00) Course for two dollars ($2.00) embracing any one of the above branches of science. Courses beautifully typewritten, and a diploma will be granted to all who pass our examination after taking our lessons. We guarantee satisfaction. Remember the $2 price is limited to a short time only. We want agents everywhere. Write for terms.

REV. CHARLES L. AINSWORTH, Pres.
CHARLES A. MITCHELL, Sec'y.
Central School of Science, 34, 35, 36 Talbott Blk., Indianapolis, Ind. 554

CONVENT CRUELTIES

Is the title of a 32 page pamphlet by Henry A. Sullivan, ex-monk, which is a sort of prospectus, or advance portion of a larger work to be published under the same title as soon as the sale of the smaller work provides the funds therefor. Besides the introduction the pamphlet discusses "How Girls Become the Brides of Christ—A peep into the Convent," "The Convent Horror—A Sworn Statement," "Taking the Veil," etc. Its tales are thrilling. Send 10c in silver to Henry A. Sullivan: 1178 W. Adams st. Chicago, for sample copy. 554

Longley's Beautiful Songs

For Public Meetings and the Home.

VOLUME ONE

Contains the following songs with music:

I'm thinking, dear mother, of you. We miss our boys at home. The land of the bye and bye. The good times yet to be. The land beyond the stars. They are waiting at the

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER

SPIRITUALISM—Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.—SPIRITUALISM

VOL. 22 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, SATURDAY, JULY 14, 1900. NO. 555

CHILDREN IN SPIRIT LIFE

The Condition in Spirit Life of Little Children, and Their Growth to Maturity.

A Lecture Delivered through the Mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond.

"In my Father's house there are many mansions; I go to prepare a place for you."

"See that you harm not one of these little ones, for their angels do always behold the face of the Father which is in heaven."

"Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

It is estimated that scarcely one-fifth of the human family reach maturity, perhaps the real percentage is even less. Most of these pass away either in infancy or childhood. We know that when the apple orchards are all adrift with bloom not one per cent of those blossoms probably will ever reach fruition. Still nature is prodigal of her blossoming and gives abundant fruitage for the season. We know that of all the buds that come forth in nature there are only a certain number destined to reach perfect growth. The floriculturist prunes his rose-trees that there may not be over-blossoming; and all the fruitage of the earth, in its highest cultivation, is produced under similar processes of pruning.

Nature is prodigal, but is also kind, and while a nation like the Chinese is liable to become over-crowded for a while in being separated from the rest of mankind the majority of the human race need not fear over-population, although it has been a serious subject of discussion. There are natural cataclysms that sweep away the superabundance of the human race, and, until human beings are better trained and more generous, there will be pestilence, famine and floods and every kind of seeming disasters to take away the surplus population. It is beneficent that it should be so. Still at the present time the earth probably could support a very much larger number of people. But the impetus to life must be accounted as having an ultimate purpose and, if it is true, as we maintain, that only a certain number of souls can find ex-pression on a given planet, then of course everything must be arranged with the view to the ultimate as well as to the intermediate conditions.

As you find yourselves, however, in human life, these little ones are loaned to the household and many of them pass out in infancy, or in early childhood, or before they reach youth or maidenhood, or before they reach maturity. So it has been the great study of many scientists, how to prevent children from dying. Just as it has been the great study with a great many people, who ought to have done something better, to prevent grown-up people from dying. You are aware that the "elixir of life," the "fountain of perpetual youth," which was the dream of Americus Vespucius and many others, has, in a measure, been in the minds of nearly every great philosopher and every great sect for all ages, who have sought to perpetuate the individual human existence upon the earth.

The majority of people say: "Oh, we do not mind when those who are aged pass on; it seems most suitable that they should pass on with their ripened years and earthly experience; or even in middle age, but it seems cruel and unkind that little children should pass on, should suffer and die." Some people find great rebellion rising up in their hearts when their children pass away. They consider it an especial act of cruelty that their children should pass on. Of course these are all conditions of imperfect growth.

We consider that the great superabundance of family life under certain conditions and the fact that the percentage is so small of those who reach maturity are, not only synonymous with similar conditions in nature, which analogy holds good, but that there is specific intention and purpose. In certain states of human existence procreation is, of course, abundant; in other states, where the mental and other faculties are more employed there is not so great a tendency to genesis. But in all instances the lives that come into existence have especial places. When they cease to exist upon the earth do you think they have no place in the beyond?

Spirit existence being true, and spirit preceding matter makes all the difference in the world in the view of this question. If these "little ones" have no spirits, then, of course, they pass back to the dust; and the materialist might complain that they do not grow up, because all the materialist knows of life is that which is manifest in one human existence here. But if it is true, that spirit precedes the body, as it must in order that there shall be a body; if it is true, that every little life, even every life that does not see the light of day reaps a spirit existence, then much of the grief, much of the deep sorrow passes with reference to children going on to spirit life. With all their usual terror of death it is a remarkable fact, that in the Romish church the children, if properly baptised, are considered better off in the other world than here because they are safe, they are not subject to temptation.

There is a story prevalent about the Hindoo woman who plunges her babe into the Ganges, which is that its life may be saved unto Brahma. But the true story is this: It is not the living babe the mother so sacrifices, but you are aware, that there is in that country no interment, but there is cremation, which of course, is perfectly proper as a sanitary measure. The poor, however, are not always able to afford the price and the expense of the necessary accompaniments of this kind of disposition of the dead; so sometimes a native woman makes a light raft or ark of rushes, reeds or canes and twines it around with flowers for the needed decoration, then puts the little body upon this and allows it to float out on the river to the sea to be cared for by the gods. It is a most pathetic and interesting scene. A soft chant accompanies this kind of burial, when unto the river-god the mother bestows the child that cannot be given the too expensive rites and ceremonies of the Brahmin or Buddhistic sepulture. This is, in fact, what she belies: That the kind river god and the spirits of the waters will take care of her darling just as well as the Brahmin, who gives incantations and sacrifices in the usual flames. Perhaps something of this kind is true of every mother heart; she trusts her darling, wherever it has gone, to Infinite love. She knows that somehow and somewhere if she loves her child it will be hers.

But you must think of the great number of loveless lives, of the great number of children who are not the acknowledged children of any one, of the great number of those who would be orphaned if they stood upon the earth, of the lives of those in penury, want, crime and misery in the crowded cities. You take up any paper at this time of the year and you will read of benevolent societies and institutions, of those who are engaged in works of charity, who feed and clothe and give especial dinners to thousands and thousands of children who are not owned or claimed by any body on earth. In order to ease the human conscience, and in order to give every one full opportunity to express their thought of charity, benevolent institutions have been erected called orphan asylums. Then there are other institutions of charity, and every church society has its especial line of work in this direction. In fact the institutional work of civilized Christian countries in reference to those unfortunate, those who are poor, those who are maimed, those who are blind or crippled in any way are in excess of all other works put together. That which should be done by the state is left to the charity of individuals, because individuals have the privilege of amassing wealth. Whatever may be said in favor of charitable institutions, and there is much that can be said, we say from the standpoint of spirit life and of the true spirit of humanity, that institutional charity is a compromise; that institutional charity is a substitute for the real love and beneficence of the human race.

You leave money to do that which you should do from affection, and interest in the welfare of earth's children. many noble lives are imbued with this kind of work, and they carry it forward from love of the work, and of course in such instances it is productive of the flowering out of the highest human philanthropy. But as a rule the endowment is simply certain conscience money given out of the surplus wealth.

In spirit states it is not so. However new the life, however small the beginning, that which the life was intended to express will be expressed. If the babe passes out before the earthly state has even been seen there is still a spiritual existence, and although that spirit existence is not fruitful in the direction of earthly experience it bears its blessing to the household as a spiritual benefaction. Many human parents, many human mothers, and we must say it here and now, will find their unborn babes as ready to meet them as those that have had material breath; even although their own lives were such as is the result of the ignorance of natural law and of higher ethics of life. Do not believe your physician when he tells you that there is no life in the unborn babe. Every beginning of life has a spirit and those spirits are yours to meet you and to minister to you when the time shall come. Meanwhile the darlings of your household, those whom you could not spare when they nursed and drew the breath of life from you, those who were with you an hour, or a day, or a month, or a year, or five years, or ten years, or sixteen years, these also await your coming.

In spirit states such mothers as have left their darlings here on earth care for those who come out of the earthly state leaving their mothers here, minister to them and teach them to minister to their parents. What a beautiful thing it would be, as said in a previous discourse, and as is often said by Ouina, if you could care for the children here whose parents are not in human life or who do not recognize their duties as your children are cared for in spirit life. There would be no orphans and no need for orphan asylums. Every home would have its percentage of children and there would be joy and gladness in every household.

Of course these children cannot take up the thread and burden of human life as they might have done here, but they take up the thread of life that is assigned them—one equally valuable. Do not think because they pass away before they can go to human schools, before these boys can learn to toss and tumble one another about, and these little girls can learn to weave daisy chains and read story books, that, therefore, they are not taught in useful ways. It is a great mistake to suppose that children are not wanted in the spirit world just as much as here Child life is valuable life, and that state of existence is a state where the child life is needed; it is the next step, and it is presumptuous to suppose that all children are needed here and all people who have reached old age are needed there more. The truth is, that the mingling of the two states, and their similarity spiritually, makes it quite as necessary that there shall be children in spirit life as here.

If you retained all of your children, if there were not one vacant chair, if all the clothes and playthings had been used up and broken, if you did not put them away carefully in memory of some little life that was taken out of your midst, if all your children grew up in the usual routine of your home existence, how much thought would you give to the next step of life, to this world of which we are talking? Of course when the aged went on you would think of them in their newfound conditions, but you would say: "Oh, they have arrived at the age when it is suitable to pass on," and the growing children would occupy all your time, thought and attention. But like the minor notes in music, that one pause in life when the little form is hushed to rest and when, like a waxen or marble image it is laid away in the casket, when the children come in bringing flowers, when you are obliged to explain to them, and to know something to tell the other children, when nature opens a new chapter to you and you are obliged to say, either that that child is blotted out of existence or that it is in another and higher state; it opens up a great chapter of human existence that never would be learned, that never can be learned in any other way, unless it is the child life that goes out of your midst, out of your hearts. Oh! there is great instruction in an empty cradle, great instruction in the toys and playthings that will not play themselves, and great instruction in that mother-love that crowds back her own grief in order that she may teach these other little darlings whatever has come to her of knowledge concerning the other life. If there has nothing come to her, God pity her and them. If the gap closes with a heavy thud, like the sound of the earth on the coffin lid, and there is always an ache in her heart, and the little children do not understand when the sister or brother is spoken of why they are hushed, why the name must never be mentioned.

We knew one lady whose little girl at the age of nine was a beautiful and promising child; she had her toys, dolls and playthings, and companions just like other little girls. She was an unusual child in disposition, sweet, loving and kind. The mother was a communicant in the church, we think the Episcopal church, but owing to a difference of religion on the part of the father the child had not been baptised. When that little gird died the mother naturally wished her own minister to speak at the funeral services. To her great horror and amazement, the minister cast a shadow of doubt on the salvation of the little girl because she had not been baptised in the church. With her knowledge of the nature of her child, with her idea of that little child she felt the indignation of the mother heart rise to sustain her in that hour. When she walked out of that church she walked out never to return. Since, if her child, never having done anything wrong could not be in heaven, she did not wish to be saved. Death was the great instructor in that case; for it took her out of her bondage of form and ceremony into the light of the religion of affection. She knew that if that child lived, and she believed that it did, she would meet her in the next life. It was the first step in that open doorway of future life. That night she was rewarded with a lovely vision. Her little girl came to her, pressed her brow and lips and said, "Mamma, I am with grandpa and grandma and all our friends, and this is such a beautiful world into which I have entered." See what an open doorway came to that woman, first through grief and then through the shock given her by that minister's words at the funeral services of her child. Had that child been baptised in the usual way she would probably have walked out of that church with consciousness that somewhere, away off in some distant, unknown place she would meet her child, but the child would not have been here.

We knew another mother—whatever the fathers' experience perhaps their feelings are more controlled—whose beautiful daughter, her only child, passed away. She, also, had the faith of the church, we think the Presbyterian, or the Congregationalist. She just as much believed that her faith would sustain her in such an hour as she believed the sun shone, but when the time came and her child was dead and the body beside her she felt the faith leaving her; just as you have felt the sand, on the re-action of the incoming tide of the sea, leave your feet. She was bewildered, she was shocked. With all the effort of her nature she strove to rally. She appealed to her clergyman, who preached the usual kind of sermon and gave such comfort as clergymen do give, but it all seemed to convey no meaning to her. She was well nigh on the verge of insanity, although of unusually strong mind. She would not accept any such result, she had fully believed that her faith and confidence in the Savior would be ample to take her through any trial, but she found it not so, that she could not be satisfied under those circumstances. Her physician was called, for her health had failed. He was a Spiritualist; he carefully commenced to talk to her about the other world, about her spirit daughter, about the possibility of having a communication from her. One of our popular test mediums, we think Mr. Emerson, was passing through the city at that time; she went to see him and she received a message from her child. It was as though she had been instantly restored; her feet were upon solid ground; she knew her child lived from that time forward. Without denying any of the gracious acts and gifts that had come to her in the past, she felt certain of the companionship of her child.

Now even in the homes where this knowledge does not come with such positive splendor there is the hope, there is still the thought of the one darling that is there. It is a sweet little poem that you all remember, where the little child answers the stranger when he asks how many children there are in the family, "We are seven, five on earth and two in heaven." In that household the links had not been severed; in that household there was unity; and the religion that could exalt them beyond the deserted clay into the companionship of the skies was a success.

More than thirty years ago your present speaker knew a little girl whose mother was very orthodox, a strict conformist to all the ceremonials of the church. The little girl visited a friend where your speaker was staying and they became very much attached to each other. Nothing was ever said about spirits or spirit life, but the love of the child and the one standing before you for each other was marvelous. The little girl saw spirits, and she would say to her mother: "Mamma, I saw my little brother last night and he told me a great many things." The mother was displeased, and instead of encouraging these gifts she spoke harshly to the child. But the visions went on, and every time she would tell her mother that she had seen her little brother the mother would punish her. She was a fair, delicate, fragile child, endowed with the gift of seeing, still the mother would not permit her to speak of the visions she saw, telling her that she would punish her until she ceased to see the visions. Of course, out of mercy to the child the visions had to be taken away, and the senses overlaid them with that which was permissible in the mother's religion. Of course the mother was sincere; the mother heart could not have possibly brought itself to punish the child if she had not been. But when the Great Awakener comes, when the final revealment shows to her that the little boy was visiting his sister daily and trying to make her, also, understand his presence, how great will be the remorse.

We only tell you these instances that you may know what a light you have entered into, how these vacant places have been filled, how your lives have expanded to include another realm, and to know that these children are cared for and trained according to their spiritual needs in the realm they have entered, that you need not feel that they are lonely and unaccompanied. All this should be a great comfort to your hearts. Neither are you to feel that they forget you. But, fathers, as you would not take your earthly daughters to every place that you visit, as you would not take them into the knowledge of all the thoughts that you have, remember as Spiritualists, you invite your spirit children to you wherever you are, and that if you would have their presence and their care you must do something with those thoughts that we have been speaking of, something with your conditions of mind and your conditions of life that will make it possible for your spirit children to be with you wherever you are and whatever you are thinking of; and if they are trained as messengers, or made messengers and guardians to bear the message of life and love to other children on earth who are less fortunate than they, it is such a comfort to know that their human parents think of them in their work and in their knowledge. For the knowledge gained in spirit is to minister to those in need; to give of what is received; and if there is a tendency in any direction, in science or art, to assist those who are engaged in that work. As the young man who spoke through this organism one Sunday evening, said, he found his mission was to help those young men who were engaged where their difficulties were over their ledgers, and who might be tempted in some way, so these children find ample occupation in ministering to all the waifs in the crowded cities and in ministering to their little brothers and sisters when they would be tempted to any unkind word or deed of wrong to another; or in ministering to their fathers or mothers, or some other fathers or mothers who are lonely, who do not understand, and in helping to take their darlings near where they can minister also. For this great other life impinges upon this human state all the time.

These children are not satisfied to go away into their beautiful homes, and surround themselves with the joys and blossomings of spirit life unless they minister to those who have not such blossomings. So when the burdens of life in your daily toil are suddenly lifted and you say, "I feel better now than I did yesterday," over some trial you have had to bear; or when suddenly in the midst of the clouds there seems a ray of sunshine to pierce through, no doubt it is your darlings or somebody's darlings come to minister unto you. There are kind mother-spirits in these spiritual spheres who instruct these, your children, in the ways of ministering, and make them messengers of light unto your earth. And they wish that you who have no earthly children left would, also, take charge of some of the little ones here who have no earthly parents, their parents in spirit life may be ministering to your spirit children, and that you, also, assist those who have no homes to find homes with those who have no darlings of their own.

We know of those on earth who have no children who, nevertheless, are more true parents than those who are parents in the mortal form, because they minister to, teach and fill their houses with children.

The spirit states contain every provision for such as go there in early age. You say, "What a pity that this young man or young woman should go who is just entering upon human life." Ah! if the veil could be thrown aside; we think you would then say, "how wonderful that that young life was taken to do a greater and higher work, to fulfill a loftier and more perfect mission." "This young man just entering into the prime of his early youth," you say, "what a pity, all his hopes in life cut off." Do not believe it. When the great Master of things promotes a youth, or maiden, or child to the next state of existence before the full fruition of three score years and ten, or four score years, it is because that particular life has something to do there. We do not say, that you, or another, or this young man, or that young woman has; but that life has. It is in keeping and harmony with the great universal purpose that that life shall be there instead of having more growth in the human form; having work to do there, having ministrations to perform, having something to fulfill not included, possibly, in your present knowledge.

Now, this being true, the fruition of life comes there as here, though not in the same way. This bud, that would have been under other circumstances more perfect, becomes unfolded there in its perfection. Those blossoms that pass from earthly life seemingly before expansion find expression in the spirit states, and possibly more congenial surroundings than here. You cannot hypothecate what the life would have been had it stayed here; but you can know, that having passed, that life is not a failure, not abortive, has not been in vain and finds ample expansion and exercise for its powers.

"Do they have to learn," you ask, "earthly things, as they do here through coming in contact with earthly existence?" We answer: They do not have to learn of earthly things in that state; they learn of spiritual things. Their purpose and mission is to learn spiritual things and impart it to those who have not the knowledge that they have. There is necessarily some contact with the human state to know your requirements. A child can read your thoughts quite readily, even here, and discern what is passing beneath the surface, and when the body is removed the child can understand your needs. You may take an intuitive child in earth-life and however much the mamma may hide her tears and turn away when she is in grief this child understands that something is the matter with mamma. If not very intuitive, the child speaks about it, if very intuitive the child tries silently to comfort the mamma in every possible way. Remove the barriers of time and sense and that child is still nearer striving to put balm into the mother's heart; to comfort his mind when papa is worried about business and comes home weary and care-worn. Is not the child's spirit just the same as when in the earthly form with all the rest of the children? Is not that child climbing upon his knee and patting his head and giving him comfort? Oh, in this expansion of your home; oh, in this including of the larger realm, in this admitting of the day-light of spirit existence condescend so much as to think, what will be done with these darlings in spirit as what it will do to you to uplift and strengthen your human state. Make sure and glad this strong and wonderful boast of belief in spirit existence, and you need have no doubt that in any line of instruction or teaching adapted to their state and that which they need there is ample provision, and teachers, guardians and friends according to the law of adaptation. Not as there are teachers here, who understand one child here, but does not understand another; no great mill of human learning in which every child is put as into some hopper and expected to be ground out in the same way. Because with all the free schools, which are a great benefaction, in the human state there is still the especial need of every child which cannot be considered in the great bustle and whirl of this human world. The mother knows the difference between her children; she knows the difference in temperament and the different requirements; though she loves them all alike she understands that they are different. The wise teacher also understands it. But in the earth's states and in the spirit states there is a vast difference; in the latter every child has teaching according to the need, according to adaptation; but in the competitive systems of earth the strongest is foremost, wins the prizes and the praises, and those who are less favored are left behind. The human carrying out the false idea of what is called "natural selection;" while in the spiritual selection there is what you denominate moral hospitals for the weak, asylums for those who need them, raised letters for the blind, the application of superficial and artificial means of hearing for the deaf, every method by which you can assist the weak in all directions excepting business. In business and in work of your world the weak are trodden under foot. Theology has a good deal to do with this. The great moral revolution of this age is to assist those who are not able to help themselves; if they are weak physically supplement their weakness. In your system of training, of competitive examination the weak are left behind.

When the genius Froebel by the inspiration of the skies thought to establish the wonderful "Kindergarten" plan, he came en rapport with the spirit spheres. Every child according to the individual needs; every human being according to the law of adaptation. When at last your colleges and universities shall become real institutions of learning, on the plan of the spirit and the skies, there will be adaptation according to the needs of the student, and no "B. As." or "A. Ms." ground out of the same treadmill, but such knowledge as each is adapted to learn, receiving such assistance as is required. A sensitive child, that just because of the competitive examination cannot say the lesson which it knows perfectly well while some more self-confident child presses forward and wins the prize, is crushed; and the dull child that needs some especial attention and care is not helped, but if endowed with genius is helped from within and like Daniel Webster comes out above all systems.

This knowledge, this higher training is percolating through the minds of teachers of public schools and institutions are becoming pervaded by it.

In one of those wonderful congresses that assembled during the world's exposition a great church philanthropist said: "We are beginning to have our doubts concerning institutional charity." Think of this, from a church light, from one who had graduated in the schools of charitable institutions: "We are beginning to have our doubts."

Let us learn these lessons of the skies: The mother's is the ideal state of love; institutions never foster love, they are but the transition state between the barbarism of letting the unfortunate starve and die, and the higher state which will teach the children of earth the true language of the skies and the parents of earth the true ministration of heaven.

SAD REFLECTIONS.

The Condition of Orthodox Churches in America.

Spiritualists are charged with falsehood and unfair dealing against the churches, which needs proof to make it good. The truth is worse than we have expressed it. Some of their own great leaders paint the churches in stronger colors than Spiritualists have done. Let them tell their own tale, and we will hear it. I will quote from one of their own fraternity and give the following brief extract from an essay by Rev. W. A. Evans, of Malden, Mass. This we regard as high authority, which shows the status of orthodox churches in America and makes pages of true history. The essay from which I have quoted you can find in the Arena, Vol. 14, No. 71, page 228. I have quoted and condensed about one-fourth of it.

A. H. NICHOLAS.

"Evangelical Christianity, born in the German Reformation, has already so far apostatized that another reformation is needed to fit the church for the work of the present century. Cold formalism, ornate with pomp and ceremony, makes the church of the present day, to a very large degree, a valley of dry bones greater than that which Ezekiel saw, and as sorely in need of a divine afflatus to give it life. Social discontent, born of pinching poverty on the one hand, riotous riches on the other, gambling, intemperance, commercial dishonor, political corruption, and the whole pestiferous brood of evils which prey upon the nation and threaten its peace, if not its perpetuity as a free republic—they all find their coveted opportunity in the worldly ideals, the grasping covetousness, the denominational pride, the sectarian selfishness, the moral cowardice and the spiritual apathy of the church.

"The only power in the church that is worthy of the name is spiritual power—the power that comes of being right and doing right. The church has waxed, religion has waned; quantity has been attained, but quality lost.

"No careful observer of men and events, as reflected in the religious press, can fail to see that the relative power of the church over the masses for public and personal righteousness in this nation, has most signally and sadly failed to keep pace with the increase of communicants. Crime goes on increasing faster than the increase of population.

"What means this dying out of hundreds of country churches on the one hand, so that many districts once the radiating centers of Christianizing influences have become the fields for missionary operations; and on the other, the notorious corruptions of our cities and their equally notorious paucity of church-goers? The city churches wither, the country people have gone. What means this 'secularization of life' against which the religious press so vehemently inveighs? Why is it that there are so many lodges to every church, and that so large a part of the humanitarian and reformatory forces that make for human weal in this life, are concentrating outside the church? Why is it that, as every minister of the gospel knows, so many honorable, noble and high-minded men and women are standing studiously aloof from the church?

"It is evident that 'There is something rotten in the state of Denmark.'

"Instead of 'one chasing a thousand and two putting ten thousand to flight,' it takes a thousand church members to chase one evil, and then they don't catch it—unless 'there is something in it.'"

The trouble is, a profession of religion, in many instances, is made to be a very lucrative one, a commodity of trade. The church, having become numerous and eminently respectable, the name "Christian" has become a mighty one to conjure with. Membership in the church is used as floating capital and available assets. The church is made the decoy of thousands of fortunes, utilized as a screen of scoundrels, and, like charity, is made to "cover a multitude on sins." Legal robbers and pious frauds lodge under the shade of it. Many of the most cunning knaves, the sleek rascals, the most adept practitioners of "man's inhumanity to man," also belong to it, and use it as a cloak for their crooked ways. Such are they who bull or bear the market on boards of trade six days in the week and then go to church and look pious on Sunday; who in order to get surplus wealth corner the necessaries of life by which millions are filched—legally of course—from the common people; who wreck railway systems for private greed or personal spite; who crush thousands to death beneath monster monopolies, or use the same unprincipled methods on a smaller scale; who by evasion and bribery dodge the tax-gatherer that the poor man out of his penury may support the government under the protection of which they live to get and grab; and then, to hoodwink the people and keep up a respectable exterior, they contribute to some church enterprise, endow a college, or rent the best pews, or become "liberal givers" to the church.

And what is the church doing to rid herself of these weights and cleanse that cesspool? Little or nothing. On the contrary, the church puts the stamp of her tacit approval on such religious acrobatics and calls it Christianity. She too often shares in the profits of the sinner and then demands that the pulpit keep mum about the sin. She muzzles the preachers and puts herself in bondage to ungodly men of wealth, and plays into their hands the tremendous power of ecclesiastical machinery. Thus, the functionaries that were created to conserve the purity of the church are turned over to those who use them for the opposite effect.

We are bound to concede that the fittest for membership in the church are the least fitted for the kingdom of heaven. How long will the people's faith in the church and what it should stand for endure the strain? One cannot single out any one denomination as being especially guilty. The same conditions widely prevail and one is probably as bad as another—if not worse. The plutocracy of the local church may, and frequently does, represent the very worst element in it, as judged by the highest moral and spiritual standard; it may be well known to "the world's people" as abominably corrupt.

So far has degradation gone that the young minister, with however high ideals he has set out, soon learns that the favoring nod of the plutocrat is the "open sesame" to "good standing" and promotion in the church. Now ministers are but human. Put them where they must choose between slow martyrdom and ministerial mugwumpery, and what is the result? Martyrs there will be; martyrs there are, who with both eyes open walk into the fire for the sake of being true. They suffer shameful abuse by those whose sins they have rebuked. This they do for Christ's sake, to keep a clear conscience and preserve their self-respect. But the majority will not be martyrs. No man naturally likes to be voted a failure. Therefore make "success" synonymous with gathering "a wealthy and fashionable congregation," instead of a congregation of Christians; and need we be surprised if the preaching consults the convenience of the plutocrat rather than the needs of the parish? Need sensible people be disappointed under these circumstances if they hear sermons which aim at nobody and nothing—and hit their mark? Is it any wonder if the preacher "gives it to the Pharisees" who crucified Christ, and, somehow, fails to note the Pharisees of the present day who have a weakness for "the uppermost seats in the synagogue?"

The minister knows that if he ignores the distinctions of caste and class and honestly tries to reach the masses, put moral cleanliness and spiritual power above all personal and worldly considerations in the church, he is likely to pay for the privilege with his ecclesiastical head, at the beck of plutocracy whose piety would not sell in any market for fifty cents on the dollar. The reins are laid on the neck of the downhill steed in the church that is galloping faster and faster along the road of looseness in doctrine and worldliness in life. The church is but a painted ship upon a painted ocean, freighted with no cargo, bound for no port. Spiritual power is an impossibility in the church that has set its heart upon that worldly equipage and favor which in order to obtain it must grovel before wrong clad in rich livery and kiss the feet of the golden calf.

Finally, what is the effect of all this on the people? Read the answer in the empty pews of the average church; in the meager returns for the enormous outlay of money and effort; in the widespread skepticism that prevails; in the phenomenal success of the Salvation Army, which studiously avoids every semblance to a church; in the hiss that greets the mention of church in representative gatherings of laboring men. The people are not fools; they are not to be caught with chaff! They know the difference between hollow shams and Christian sincerity. The average man infers that he will suffer no inconsiderable loss if he lives and dies outside the church.

The writer does not wish to be misunderstood. He is neither a skeptic nor a cynic. He is an orthodox clergyman who loves the church and writes from a heart that is sad at a contemplation of these things. He bemoans the evils herein set forth. He longs to see the church awaken to her danger and behold the coming social battle, and bring forth fruit meet for repentance.

Southwestern Michigan.

That pioneer Spiritualist society, the Southwestern Michigan, held its yearly meeting at Lake Cora, June 24, and the occasion proved to be a genuine revival. For seven years Mrs. Sheehan-Horman has spoken for this society at their annual summer convocation, and never has she done better work than this year, when her audience of more than a thousand people listened with rapt attention while her forcible utterances gave a yet deeper significance to the terms Spiritualism and Spiritualist.

Mrs. Woodruff, of South Haven, who has for so long been a familiar presence at these gatherings, gave the earnest message that is always eagerly waited for, and other speakers—Mrs. Williams, of Paw Paw, and Mrs. Lucetta Curtis, of South Bend, Ind., deserve more than mere honorable mention.

Mrs. Coffman, of Grand Rapids, gave from the platform words of affection and remembrance from many relatives, friends and neighbors who had passed beyond the veil, to those still in the mortal, in almost every case giving names which were quickly recognized.

Mr. Chapman, of Marcellus, improvised a fine poem from a subject presented by the audience. Mr. Chapman is comparatively new in this line of work, but is evidently destined to be very successful.

SECRETARY.

WE call special attention to The Next World Interviewed, one of our special premiums. We are enabled to furnish it to our readers at the price announced in our premium list, from the simple fact that Mr. Horn donated the plates of the book to us. We have sent out thousands of copies of this book, and it has been well received everywhere. It should be circulated by the millions among all classes of Spiritualists. The seven books that we are offering to Spiritualists as premiums contain a large storehouse of useful knowledge on Spiritual and Occult subjects. You should have them on the shelves of your library where you can have access to them at any time. Read carefully our premium announcement.

"A Few Words About the Devil, and Other Essays." By Charles Bradlaugh. Paper, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

LIFE AND EXPERIENCE IN SPIRIT LAND

A Series of Letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea to His Son, Carlyle Petersilea.

LETTER NUMBER THIRTY.

In our last letter we described a Temple of Wisdom within the celestial spheres. The temple which we described is in the fourth sphere, and there are temples, halls, and schools without number; yet no two are alike; still, a similitude runs through them all. They are of all grades and sizes, from the merest infant kindergarten to the most lofty and sublime. There are also grand conservatories of music, there are lofty edifices in which architectural designing is taught; there are thousands of thousands of chemical laboratories; there are brilliant buildings for the inventive faculties to grow and expand, especially those appertaining to electrical appliances, together with the study and uses of electricity—and, let us here say, that the knowledge of the electrical power, on earth, is yet in its infancy. We would like, also, to state how it will be on your earth a century or more from the present time.

All steam and horse power will be entirely obsolete. Electricity will supersede all other motive power, whatever. No other kind of light will be used. New inventions will rapidly appear for the generation of heat as well as light, and all heating and cooking will be accomplished by its aid. Another element will be joined to the electrical, which will give a pure white heat, that will melt rock and iron, and all smelting will be done with it. The day is not far distant when great palaces will be erected, built from vast blocks of crystal, in all the beautiful shades and colors found in prismatic states. Many of these buildings will be patterned after the brilliantly stained glass, now only used in windows, but as soon as the great white heat is discovered, sand will be more precious than gold, and will be used for thousands of purposes never thought of before—it will be smelted into glass, most elegantly colored, and pressed into great thick slabs and tiles; also beautiful pillars, domes, and arabesques. Great glass manufactories will line the seashores, ocean beaches and inland, wherever sand may be found. Houses will be built entirely of glass, requiring no inside work except doors, and these also will be made of pressed glass, after the most beautiful patterns. The glass for building will not be transparent but opaque, yet light will be seen glittering through all the lovely coloring. Sidewalks and flaggings will be laid in ground glass.

Now, how do we know all this? Because it already exists, as a great scientific truth, here in the spheres, as soon as possible, to be given to earth. We withhold nothing from earth that the people are capable of receiving. The waters of the ocean, and the air, will be made to generate as much heat and electricity as your whole world will need for all purposes to which it may be put—even your cars and vehicles will be made of glass. There will shortly come a time which might be properly called the "Glass Age." There has been a "Stone Age," an "Iron Age," and so forth, and one might say there had been, or is, a "Wooden Age" and "Brick Age"—although wood, brick, and stone, have been used in nearly every age—but there never yet has been, on earth, a glass age. That will soon appear. Nothing now seems so utterly worthless and barren as a great sand desert, but when the glass age comes, nothing will be more precious or useful; in fact, together with electricity and white heat, it will make a new and most brilliant age and, really, little else will be needed except food and clothing; but there will also be new inventions to supply these wants. There will come a time when woven cloth will be out of date and clothing will all be made from pressed material, much of it brilliant and shining in the extreme. Sea-weed and kelp will be used extensively in its manufacture, yet a great many other things besides.

Washing and laundry business will be entirely done away with. Exceedingly soft, warm, pliable material will be pressed into suitable underclothing that will not cost as much as the washing of a garment does now, and when soiled, can be burned instead of being washed. All manner of ordinary, as well as beautiful and brilliant dresses, cloaks, and so forth, will also be manufactured. The present fashions will have changed, and the attire of men less irksome and more suitable and durable.

But the ladies—bless their souls—they will revel in beauty to their heart's content. The most beautiful flowers will be made of thin flexible glass—for a method will be discovered whereby glass can be made as flexible and soft as any velvet or silk—and these flowers will be colored to imitate the natural ones which they will fairly rival, and subtile odors will be introduced that will be enduring. And now about food.

The diet of mankind will also change, and flesh will be eaten no more, neither of beast, fish nor fowl. That age will entirely pass away, and the glass age will rapidly hasten its decline. When all motive power is electrical, as it then will be, vast fields can be easily and rapidly cultivated. Men will set in glass cabooses, or little cabins, when working their electrical machines, which will plow, harrow and sow, all combined in one machine; then another will reap and rake, while yet another will thresh and bag the grain, together with an appliance that will hoist and throw or place it into a great receiver or car, which will straightway carry it to be cooked and flaked, then packed into glass jars. Thus much for grain.

The bakeries on earth will all disappear—and it is about time they should, for as it is at present they turn out very little that is not slow poison—and the cooking and flaking of grain, of all kinds, will leave little to be done except to stir it together with water, or some other refined liquid—probably the extracted juice of fruit—into pudding or small cakes which will be both delicious and nutritious.

Fruit of all kinds will be cultivated extensively, for there will be a combination cultivator and pruning machine, run by electrical motive power, and a man, neatly attired, sitting in a glass caboose, will run and work the machine. Fruit in immense quantities will be sent to great glass canning factories, and all not eaten in its natural state will thus be preserved. Glass cans, or jars will be much better and cheaper than tin, and exceedingly more healthful. Olive and nuts will take the place of meat, vegetable oils will be extracted, condensed into small cakes or preserved as oil in glass casks and bottles to be used in broths and soups.

Vegetables of all kinds will be cooked, mashed and mixed with a suitable amount of the aforesaid oils, packed in air-tight glass receivers, ready for consumption. People can have beautiful homes wherein very little labor will be needed. All manner of dishes and household utensils will be made of glass, easily kept clean. Beds and pillows will be made of air cushions, as will all couches, sofas and all sorts of upholstery. Carpets will be entirely out of fashion—all floors will be laid in beautiful glass tiles—mosaic floors will be all the rage with occasionally a rug here and there.

All slaughter-houses will be abolished, as well as the raising of animals for the purpose of murdering them and eating their flesh.

Animal life will gradually become extinct upon the earth, as it has become extinct on many of the planets.

So you perceive by this, dear friends, those who think there would not be room enough in Eternity for so much animal life, that animal life exists only for a time on any planet—for a time surely comes when it ceases to be—and that time is when the glass and electrical age takes the place of wood, stone and iron, and electrical motive power takes the place of steam and animal power—and as soon as men cease to be cannibals, animal life will fade away, that is to say, from your earth; but upon the earths not yet progressed up to that point, it will be as it has been, and was, on the earth.

Now when some read this they will at once say: "Oh, that is all speculation. One can imagine almost anything."

Now, kind friends, let us beg to differ, for we know whereof we speak. Just this that we have written has already been taught us in the Temple of Wisdom that we told you of in our last letter.

What good will it do you, or the world, at the present time, to know what may be a hundred years or more from now?

Well, it will do you the same amount of good that it does us here. Do you say: "I shall be dead a hundred years from now. All that you have said, that will come to pass, will not benefit me any." But, my friend, you will be just as much interested in the welfare of the earth and its inhabitants as you are at the present moment; aye, a thousand times more so, for your understanding will be immensely enlarged. You will be as eager for wisdom then as you are now, and will be as impatient to give it to the earth and all spirits who have it not, as we are. The grand-children of those who inhabit the earth to-day will be in the heyday of their earthly lives—middle-aged, active men and women. Will you not feel interested in your grand-children? Your own children will be in the spheres with you, but their children will be upon the earth, and surely your children will be deeply interested in the children left below, as we are now in those we have left there, and you will desire to benefit your children the same as you do now, and you will love their children, left on earth, nearly or quite as much as you do them, in a hundred years from now, which is but a moment to Eternity.

There will be no mail service, and you will signal and talk freely with the inhabitants of Mars.

"No mail service? How is that?"

Well, my friend, the fad will be wireless telegraphy; and there will be a receiver in every house, and a little bell in every room. When friends who are divided by distance desire to talk to each other they will simply touch a little electric button, to call the attention of the distant friend; then they will talk with their friends as long as they please, back and forth, and not an electric wire will be used on the earth—not an iron railroad will be in existence.

"Not a railroad? What then, pray? You are growing wild, we think."

Oh, no, no, my friends. We are as level-headed and sane as possible. Pneumatic tires will be exceedingly fashionable, a hundred years from now, and asphaltum grooves will take the place of iron rails. We know it is not all clear to you now, but it will be then, and you will be the very ones, after you have been taught these things here, to push them forward to your grand-children.

"Well, how about accidents?"

There will be very few, or no accidents, for when your cars are all run by electrical power, there will be no long trains, as at present. Each car will generate its own electricity at a trifling expense, and each can be stopped at a moment's warning. Most families will have a car of their own—they will keep a car as they keep carriages now—and grooved roads will take the place of highways—all persons paying a small road tax. Horses will be entirely out of date, but when the glass and electric age comes, people will not be in such a dreadful hurry as they are now, men will not be in such fearful haste to get rich, the railroad companies will have all gone to smash—not a railroad company on the earth, a hundred years from now. Just think of it friends, and "Uncle Huntington" will be as eager for the new state of things as he has been for the interests of the railroad companies he has managed on earth.

"Well, how about the great heavy lines of freight trains? They cannot be run with pneumatic tires and grooves."

No, they cannot, and will not, for there will be none to run."

"Oh, you are talking folly."

No, my friend, we are telling the truth. First of all, no cattle cars will be needed, for no cattle or animals of any-kind will be raised or slaughtered. Next, all arable lands will be tilled as we have previously stated, and any very great amount of transportation will not be necessary, and great flaking mills will exist everywhere, as will, also, canning factories and merchants or families—there will be comparatively few merchants—will run their own private car to the mills and back, as people drive their carriages now, and the mills will also run their own cars through all the streets of a town or city for the purpose of supplying families with cooked and flaked cereals or other produce, such as we have previously described. The transportation of wood, lumber, brick, stone, lime, coal, oil, and all corresponding things, will have ceased. There will be no further use for them. Joining or cementing will be done, mostly, by fusion and all your great iron foundries will be no more. Of course, these things will decline gradually, as they cease to be needed. When manufactories can all be run by electricity, generated on the spot, they will start up everywhere, wherever needed, which will do away with an immense amount of transportation; in fact, every home will have its own generating appliances, and there will be so many new inventions for the use of electricity, that each house or family will manufacture much of that which they require. It may take something over a hundred years to bring all this to pass, but very much that we have said will be brought about in a hundred years, for the inventions are even now already started, or are being worked out in the minds of men. They think they are doing it all themselves. How surprised they will be when they find that it was not themselves, alone, but that they were working out that which we had impressed upon their plastic brains, just as we are impressing this brain, at this writing, to tell these inventors these things.

"Well, what good can be accomplished by telling us what will be, so far in the future?"

We will tell you, friends. Thousands will read this, among them many inventors. Many minds will receive an impetus from what we have written. It all goes toward helping the time to come. If no one ever thought ahead of the times, there would never be any progress. Looking ahead is the cause of all progress. It is looking ahead and thinking of the good time coming that makes that good time come.

Can anyone gainsay this? We are helping to bring about that good time in the future at this moment, and this medium is helping to bring it about by writing for us and listening to that which we have to say.

Suppose when a grand Wisdom Spirit stands by the side of Thomas Edison and impresses upon his brain great inventions, he should say, "Oh, I will not give thought or time to anything so visionary—so speculative. What we have now is quite good enough for me. What do I care about a hundred years hence?" He well understands that he is only sowing the seeds for something great and grand in the future, long after he has joined us here. If, we say, great sensitive minds like his should say this, the world might be to-day where it was two hundred or a thousand years ago.

"Well, can't you tell us something about the churches, creeds, and so forth?" and when we come to these, friend Robert steps forward. "I would like to take a hand here," he says, and we gracefully and gratefully step one side that he may have his say— and he says:

(To be continued.)

Religious despotism binds him who exercises it no less than him who is its victim.—Sentinel of Liberty.

The river of printer's ink is a black and muddy stream, but it has clarified the human mind and washed the soul clean of many superstitions.—Unity.

The credit given to popular traditions, and the fictions substituted for truth, and these two errors being accredited in ensuing ages—these are the cause of that obscurity in which the most important facts are veiled.—Tacitus.

IMPORTANT MATTER FROM OUR FOREIGN EXCHANGES

HARBINGER OF LIGHT, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

MAZZINI AS A SPIRITUALIST.

Il Vessilo Spiritista remarks that not only was Giuseppe Mazzini a Spiritualist in the noblest sense of the word, but that he was also the precursor of that higher form of it—the intuitional and inspirational—which is now superseding the phenomenal. In proof of which Signor Cavalli quotes the following letter addressed by the Italian patriot to his friend, F. dall' Ongaro, in the year 1849. Having spoken of perennial progress as the law of human life, both here and hereafter, Mazzini proceeds to give a rapid sketch of his religio-philosophical system, which substitutes a temporary purgatory for an eternal hell; and comprehends "a series of existences—successive and progressive periods of life; re-appearance on the earth, so long as we have not fulfilled the moral law given to humanity; our transformation into superior beings scarcely satisfying that law; the hierarchy (of spiritual beings) ascending towards supreme perfection, or God. * * Hence the bond of union between the stage of life and that of continuous existence; and hence also the power given to help in the perfecting of the creatures who are beloved by us upon the earth, which is the recompense of the soul lifted up into angelhood; and this power is manifested by what we call intuition, inspiration, faith, etc.; and is the influence exercised by our dear ones who have passed over; hence, too, the memory of the past achieved by the being, in proportion as he advances, just as in ascending an eminence, we obtain a continually widening view of the landscape that lies beneath us, until the completed memory constituting some day the intelligence of the entire past, with all its joys and sorrows, etc., will meet with its supreme recompense.

HIGHLY IMPRESSIONAL MEDIUM.

In a late number of his Archivio di Psichiatria, Antropotogia e Criminologia, Professor Lombroso speaks of the remarkable sensitiveness to spiritual impression of Dr. Celesia, whom he describes as "one of the most distinguished of our young scientists." This gentleman, writing to the Professor, says: "In spite of my disbelief in Spiritualism, it is my duty to verify the accuracy of my presentiments." And then he goes on to relate how when passing the Exhibition Building at Como, about 3 o'clock in the afternoon of the 4th of February, 1899, and observing a plate upon it indicating that it was insured in the Compagnia Anonima di Assicurazione, of Milan, he observed to Sig. Luigi Ralli, a barrister, who was with him at the time, "We must sell out our shares in that company, for I have a most vivid presage that the Exhibition will be destroyed by fire." As many remarkable presentiments of a similar kind had been previously verified, his mother sold out the shares she had held in the Company for about nine years, and representing a value of nearly £6,000 sterling, between the 20th of February and the 28th of March; and the sale was effected through Sig. Augusto Cavigila, a sharebroker of Milan. On the 8th of July, the Exhibition was burnt to the ground; and every time Dr. Celesia visited the building during the few days preceding the disaster, he was observed by his friend, Cattaneo Ernesto, to be weighted down by melancholy, as if impressed by some impending calamity. The facts, as related by Professor Lombroso, are corroborated by letters from Dr. Celesia's mother, from the stock broker, and from his two friends Ralli and Ernesto. The Professor regards it as a case of telepathy; but granting that Dr. Celesia is the recipient of the telepathic message, who is the sender of it? There must be an operator at the other end of the wire. The operator is obviously an intelligent being; and what other hypothesis is adequate to cover the facts of the case than this, that the intelligent operator, or impressor, is a friendly spirit, interested in, and watching over, the welfare of the Celesia family?

BY DIRECT VOICE.

Among the officers of the Royal Dublin Fusileers, who fell in the engagement which involved such a severe loss of life on the part of that splendid regiment, was Captain Weldon; and the London Daily Mail of the d20th of November last contains the following statement of how that gallant soldier's death became known to his family: "His mother had felt very uneasy for several days, and declined to go to a ball given by her daughter, under the impression that something painful was weighing on her mind. That same night she heard some one say "Mother, mother." She got up and went into the room of another of her sons, but found he was fast asleep. Next day, about tea-time, a blue official letter was brought to her, and on opening it she read that Messrs. Cox (well-known army agents) had learned the death of her son, and inquired what would be done with his effects. This was the first news of the grievous loss she was called upon to sustain."

THE LOGIC OF FACTS.

Signor Ernesto Bozzano, of Genoa, concludes a lengthy and able article upon Spiritualism and Scientific Criticism, in the last number of the Rivista di Studi Psichici (which is now published at No. 27 Rue di Colisee, Paris, instead of in Turin, as heretofore), by asking the opponents of Spiritualism whether they are prepared to accept our arguments as unassailable, provided the facts upon which they are based can be clearly verified?" "Facts are facts," he observes, "and precisely because they are so, they will gradually command attention, in spite of everything and everybody. This is inevitable; so that we need scarcely take the trouble to laboriously demonstrate the truth to any one. We would rather say to them: 'Read, study, prove; we have no other advice to give you, nor can there be any stronger arguments on our side than this.' As to the facts themselves, we repeat, they will make their own way. Upon this point Spiritualists may rest perfectly secure and tranquil."

A HAUNTED HOUSE.

We are indebted to our esteemed friend, Professor Falcomer, of Alessandria, for a copy of the Gazette del Popolo (Turin) of the 27th of February last, containing an account of some mysterious noises which have occurred night after night, in the ground floor of a place occupied by the Cavalier Tizzani, in the Via Guglielmo Paladini, one of the principal thoroughfares of the city of Lecce, the capital of the province of that name, situated about 24 miles to the south of Brindisi. From the hour of midnight or "twenty-four o'clock," as the Italians call it, to three in the morning, there is a continuous rumbling, such as might be produced by a heavy cannonade, and rendering sleep impossible. The ground floor of the palace is inhabited by the owner and his family; the flat above by a distinguished artist named Francesco Tempesta; and the upper story by the family of a gentleman named Magli. The premises, which have been newly erected, have been vigilantly watched and carefully examined by the police and the municipal authorities, without discovering anything to explain the cause of the "infernal din," and although the house has been solemnly blessed by the priests, under the impression that the phenomena must have a diabolical origin, the unearthly disturbances continue unabated. But the popular instinct has possibly divined the real origin of these abnormal occurrences; for people have called to mind the fact that the site of the palace was formerly occupied by some old shanties, very much dilapidated, and by a baker's shop, and that in years past it was the scene of two murders. Hence it is concluded that the place is haunted by the restless spirits of the assassins.

SPIRITUALISM IN GENOA.

Professor Falcomer's lectures upon telepathy between the living, and telepathy between the living and the dead, delivered to large and intellectual audiences, seem to have produced a strong impression on his auditory, because the lecturer was enabled to treat the subject in a thoroughly scientific spirit, and therefore he succeeded in securing the attention of the medical men and the materialists who constituted a not unimportant section of his hearers. The fact that one of his addresses was listened to with interest for nearly two hours and a half, was certainly complimentary to himself, as well as a pretty good indication of the interest felt in those psychic problems which are agitating men's minds at the present time. The Caffaor of Genoa, publishes a very good digest of the second lecture, in which Professor Falcomer entered very fully into the nature and functions of the ethereal or astral body, variously known as the aura, the perispirit, and the "double" of the physical body; the existence of which may be regarded as scientifically proved by the experiments of Col. de Rochas and others; the final conclusion arrived at by the lecturer being that the soul and spirit pre-exist in union (using the word "soul" as the synonym of the ethereal body) and continue their united existence, after the change called death. It is amusing to read in the Vessillo Spiritista, that three medical men in Genoa, Drs. De Paoli, Crotto and Addi have denounced Spiritualism to the "competent authorities," and invoke the intervention of the law, for the purpose of arresting the movement! They might just as well endeavor to suspend the motion of the earth around the sun; that is to say, assuming that they believe that our planet is not stationary.

SPIRITUALISM IN SWITZERLAND.

The Society for Psychic Studies in Geneva continues its praiseworthy practice of issuing its annual Rapports pour l'Exercise of the year, prepared by its president, M. D. Metzger, its treasurer, M. Gardy, and its librarian, M. Perrot. In the first of these documents, a comprehensive survey is taken of the proceedings of the society, and it serves to show the spiritual and intellectual activity of its members, who are evidently working in a very earnest and, at the same time, a thoroughly scientific spirit, under the guidance of their president, whose valuable Essai de Spiritisme Scientifique was reviewed in the Harbinger at the time of its first appearance. The society appears to number eighty subscribers, who hold monthly meetings at which lectures are delivered, papers read, and psychic subjects are discussed, while its usefulness has been extended by the action of its lady members who have formed an auxiliary association, in connection apparently, with the "Swiss Union of Liberal Christianism." Our cordial salutations to M. M. Metzger and Gardy.

A STRAW ON THE SURFACE.

As such we may regard the publication in Le Pelerin (The Pilgrim) a French Roman Catholic magazine, of a report of a spirit which appeared on All Souls Day to a barrister who was taking a holiday in a rural village, and who recognized, in the apparition, the form and features of a young gardner, named Theophile, who had lived with him for seven years, and had died about two years previously to the incident. In the course of conversation, the spirit told his late employer that his body had been buried in the cemetery at Amiens, where the barrister subsequently found it, with a little woden cross at the head of the grave. The facts are circumstantially narrated in Le Pelerin, without so much as an insinuation that the "Devil" has had anything to do with them; and this is far more remarkable than the apparition itself.

VOLUME 1 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World treats of the "Mythical Origin of Death;" "A Magdalen's Passage to Spirit Life;" "Impressive Communications from the Spirit Side of Life;" "Death Considered by the Spirit Lucretius;" "Oddities in Reference to the Dead;" "Death from a Vibratory Force;" "The Day After Death Beautifully Illustrated;" "Sensations of the Dying;" "A Birth Out of Dark Conditions;" "After Death Experiences of an Avaricious Man;" "A Special Visit to the Spirit World;" "Fragrance at a Child's Death Bed;" "The Varied Experiences of a Humanitarian Spirit;" "The Impressive Testimony of an Exalted Spirit;" "Indications of the Process of Dying;" "The Idiosyncrasies of Death;" "Life and Death Thoughtfully Analyzed;" "Signs in the Process of Dying," etc., etc. In fact this volume is a mine of valuable information, and every person should have access to it. It should be in every home. Read the premium terms carefully, and then send for the Three Volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death.

"Religion as Revealed by the Material and Spiritual Universe." By. E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A compact and comprehensive view of the subject; philosophic, historic, analytical and critical; facts and data needed by every student and especially by every Spiritualist. One of the very best books on the subject. Price, reduced to $1, cloth; paper 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"After Her Death. The Story of a Summer." By Lilian Whiting. No mind that loves spiritual thought can fail to be fed and delighted with this book. Beautiful spiritual thought, combining advanced ideas on the finer and ethereal phases of Spiritualism, leading the mind onward into the purer atmosphere of exalted spiritual truth. A book for the higher life. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.

The new song-book, The Golden Echoes, by S. W. Tucker, has found its way into many homes, and its beautiful songs have cheered many sorrowing hearts, which they are sure to do when heard and sung. They should be heard in every home in the land. For sale at this office. Price, 15 cents; $1.50 per dozen.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON OUR MAIN PREMIUMS.

The Progressive Thinker one year and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, an intensely interesting, instructive and fascinating work, $1.25. The twenty-five cents only pays a little more than the postage and the expense of mailing. The price of this work to the trade is $1.50. This book will constitute our main premium for the remainder of 1900, and up to May 30, 1901. It is very valuable. It will hold your attention throughout, and will teach you a much needed lesson. The postage on the above book, which we prepay, is ten cents, hence it is almost a gift to our subscribers. It is furnished at considerable less than actual cost to us.

Offer Number Two.

Vol. 1, Vol. 2 and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, will be sent out when accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker, for $1.10. The paper one year, and the three volumes, $2.10. You can add to this order any of the other books, at 40 cents each. You can make only one order for three books for $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Three.

Any three of the books in our premium list that you may select will be sent to you for $1.10. You are at liberty to select any other books in the list that you desire in connection with this order, at 40 cents each. You can only make one order for three books at $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Four.

Our regular premium, The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, is only 25 cents. If you wish to add thereto one of the other premium books only, the same will cost you 50 cents. If you wish two additional books, the cost of the three will be $1.10. You can add thereto any other books you desire at 40 cents each.

Offer Number Five.

If you wish to order only one book in connection with a year's subscription, and that one not our regular yearly premium, the price will be 50 cents.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

OFFER NUMBER SIX.

SEVEN REMARKABLE BOOKS FOR $2.35.

Offered at Far Less Than Actual Cost.

The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol 1, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 2, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, Price	$ 1.50
Art Magic, or Mundane, Sub-Mundane and Super-Mundane Spiritism. Price	$ 1.50
Ghost Land, Spiritualism, Occultism. Price	$ 1.50
The Next World Interviewed. Price	$ 1.25
The Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate). Price	$ 2.00
Total price to the trade	$10.75
Total price to our subscribers	$ 2.35
The Progressive Thinker one year and the seven premium books	$ 3.35

These seven books, substantially and elegantly bound, and printed in the neatest style of the printer's art will be furnished to our subscribers alone for $2.35. But bear in mind that in order to secure these SEVEN valuable premium books for $2.35, the order must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. The paper one year, $1.00; the seven books, $2.35. Total, $3.35.

The aggregate price of these seven books to the trade is $10.75. In order to assist in forming a Spiritual and Occult Library in every Spiritualist's home, these seven valuable books are furnished to our subscribers for $2.35, which is less by far than their actual cost. The authors make no charge for the vast amount of labor bestowed on these works, and which extended over many years. The publisher receives not a single cent for the great expense he was to, hundreds of dollars being paid out in putting them in type, and electrotyping the pages, and making them ready for the printer. That is why you are getting these intensely interesting books for almost nothing. We are only carrying out the Divine Plan, inaugurated only by The Progressive Thinker. There are thousands of Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper, and this inducement is offered, in order that they may commence forming at once a Spiritual and Occult Library, and thus keep in line with the advancing procession. The postage on the above books and expense of mailing is about 85 cents, hence you are almost receiving them as an absolute gift.

By taking 85 cents from $2.35, you will find that all we have left us for those seven books is only $1.50.

Postmasters.

We have been swindled out of a large amount of money by postmasters, who knowing a person desires The Progressive Thinker, sends his money, deducting a large commission. The Progressive Thinker is one dollar per year. The great rise in print paper renders it utterly impossible for us to give any commission to news agents or postmasters. Any person with ordinary common sense can see that it is impossible for us at present to furnish the paper at 75 cents per year. Our patrons are requested to always deal directly with this office. Any subscription received from whatever source will only be entered on our list for the amount sent. Please take notice of this fact.

VEDANTA PHILOSOPHY.

Lectures by the Swami Vivekananda, on Raja Yoga; or Conquering the Internal Nature, and other subjects; also, Patanjali's Yoga Aphorisms, with commentaries and a copious glossary of Sanskrit terms. Revised and enlarged, 12mo., Cloth, $1.50. Raja Yoga is an ancient system of Indian Philosophy, and one of the four chief methods that the Vedanta Philosophy offers to obtain freedom and perfection. Swami Vivekananda became a familiar figure in several American cities during the three years following the Parliament of Religions at Chicago; he was cordially received in America, where the breadth and depth of his teachings were soon recognized. His teachings are universal in their application. The book is cheap at $1.50. For sale at this office.

Woman, Church and State.

A Historical Account of the Status of Woman Through the Christian Ages, with Reminiscences of the Matriarchate.

BY MATILDA JOSLYN GAGE.

THE AMOUNT OF VALUABLE INformation succinctly and clearly stated in this volume of 554 pages is amazing. The title, as above given, fails to convey an idea of the fulness and completeness with which the subjects are treated. The Matriarchate, or Mother-rule, is the theme of the first chapter, in which much lore, quaint, queer and curious, is brought to view in elucidation of the subject. This is followed by chapters on Celibacy, Canon Law, Marquette, Witchcraft, Wives, Polygamy, Woman and Work, The Church of To-day, Past, Present, Future; and there is not a chapter in the book that is not handled in a masterly manner, and that for quantity and quality of information, is not worth the full price of the volume. It is packed with knowledge well-arranged, and intensely interesting from beginning to end. No one can possibly regret buying it; it is a valuable addition to the library of any free and truth-loving mind.

Price, $2.00. For sale at this office.

AUTOMATIC WRITING

[SO-CALLED] WITH OTHER

PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

—BY—

SARA A. UNDERWOOD,

With Half-tone Portrait and Specimen Pages of the Writing.

Handsomely bound in cloth. Price $1. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH,

OR DEATH AND ITS TO-MORROW.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By Moses Hull. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE REAL ISSUE.

By Moses Hull. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have. For sale at this office.

God in the Constitution.

By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of the author. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ORIGIN OF LIFE

and How the Spirit Body Grows. By M. Faraday. Price, 10c. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By M. Faraday. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Spiritual Body Real.

Views of Paul, Wesley and others. Valuable testimonies of modern clairvoyants. Witnesses of the separation of the spiritual body from the dying physical form. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

Real Life in the Spirit-Land.

Given inspirationally by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

CHURCH AND STATE

The Bible in the Public Schools; the New "American" Party. By "Jefferson." Third edition. 28 pages. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Science of Spirit Return.

By Charles Dawbarn. A scientific rehearsal that is truly interesting. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Seers of the Ages,

EMBRACING

Spiritualism, Past and Present.

DOCTRINES STATED AND MORAL TENDENCIES DEFINED.

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D.

An exceedingly interesting and instructive book. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

Your Ruling Planet Discovered by Astrology.

By Prof. G. W. Cunningham. Devoted to the study of Astrology and its laws. Price, 25c.

Appeals to Methodists.

A short discourse by spirit Bishop Haven, given automatically through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing Price 20c. For sale at this office.

RIGHT LIVING

— BY —

SUSAN H. WIXON,

Author of "Apples of Gold," "All in a Lifetime," "The Story Hour," "Summer Days at Onset," "Sunday Observance," etc., etc.

"Living is an art, a method of expressing great conceptions; in fact, the highest method, the noblest of the arts."—Thomas Starr King.

This book gives an admirable course of study in ethics, and supplies a long-felt want of an ethical text-book especially adapted to the comprehension of children, as well as older persons whom it is wisely and appropriately designed to interest while teaching them valuable ethical lessons.

The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principles of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in children's lyceums. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. It is a most excellent book and should be widely circulated.

CONTENTS:

Right Living. What Is Morality? What is Ignorance? Knowledge the Great Treasure. Concerning Education. Conduct; or Right Doing. Virtue, the Illuminator of Life. Prudence, an Economy of Life. What Know Ye of Justice? Fortitude a Noble Possession. Temperance and Intemperance. Is the Use of Tobacco Dangerous? Cultivation of Individuality. Character, a Jewel of Great Price. Idleness, Another Name for Loss. Industry, the Staff of Life. Value of a Trade. Recreation a Necessity. Games of Chance. Truth and Falsehood. What is an Oath? or the Worth of a Promise. Fraud a Crime. The Poison of Slander. What Is Hypocrisy? Conscience, or Moral Sense. Selfishness, the Menace of Society. Gratitude, a Fragrant Flower of Life. Is Reverence a Duty? Self-Reliance. Self-Control. Self-Respect. Foolish Pride and Silly Prejudice. Anger, the Distorter. The Angel of Forgiveness. Observation a Great Faculty. Perseverance, the Friend of Man. Punctuality, a Promoter of Success. The Difficulties of Life. Temptation, the Demon on the Highway. Habit, Second Nature. Power of Will. Courage, a Necessity to Right Living. In Regard to Concealed Vice. Beautiful Charity. Fidelity, the Giver of Strength and Honor. Value of Wealth. Avarice, Not a Means to Life's Best End. Good Nature, One of Life's Best Blossoms. Reason and Free Inquiry. Free Speech. A Free Press. Rights of Animals. Rights of Children. Human Rights; or the Equality of Man. Moral Cleanliness. Politeness.—The Gentleman. Politeness—Continued.—The Gentlewoman. Best Society. Progress; or Enlightenment. Wisdom.

Price, Cloth, $1. Sold at this Office.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which should be put into the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous moral cosmos that will supersede mere confusion; that only verifiable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and reason will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

The Influence of Christianity, In the First Three Centuries.

By J. S. Loveland, Summerland, Cal.

NUMBER THREE

With such a picture of the character of the Christian Church of the first three centuries as has been drawn by the New Testament and reliable church history, it may be asked how such mistaken opinions came to be formed and entertained. One main reason has been that the priesthood have continually asserted it. And, as they have almost exclusively possessed the means of information, the people have accepted their assertions as the truth. But the main reason has been the unquestioning faith that miracles distinguished the three first centuries. This is the uniform testimony of Christian writers. And, of course, if God was working miracles through the members of that church, and thus the world was being converted, it must have been a holy church. The argument is this: God will not, cannot work miracles through bad men. But God did work miracles through the primitive church, therefore that church was holy.

The conquests and spread of Christianity is declared to be largely due to the miracles wrought by the primitive church; and the earliest records, which have come down to us, are largely accounts of the most absurd miracles. Of course, we know that all this pretense of miracles is an utter falsehood; that such a thing as miracles is an impossibility. And that the claim of miracle is made either by ignorance or fraud. But we will admit the plea of ignorance, and that the pretended miracles of early Christianity were on a par with the mediumistic manifestations of to-day. Just as great—just as wonderful miracles have distinguished the last fifty years as they did the first three centuries. The character of the two sets of miracles is precisely the same. The conditions and mode of working them are also substantially the same. Now, the same causes always produce the same effects. Hence, by carefully observing the effects of modern wonder-working, we can readily estimate the result in other periods of history. It is perfectly safe to say that the effect of mediumistic miraculism has not been the moral development of the actors. On the contrary, the wide-spread influence of intemperance, to speak of nothing else, has filled with shame and sorrow the earnest, order-loving Spiritualists. And so wide-spread were the facts that years ago, it was almost or quite universally conceded that the moral character had nothing whatever to do with the possession of mediumistic powers; and especially those of the miraculous kind.

A partial knowledge of the philosophy of the case settles the matter at once. The special physical, nervous and mental physiology, which produces the most powerful mediumship, is the one most liable to moral aberrations of a particular character. Vanity, jealousy, intemperance and deception are the most common defects. The primitive church and modern Spiritualism have both been tainted in the same manner. And this will forever be the case with all who put their trust in the so-called spiritual gifts and powers, whether from God, angels or spirits, instead of rigid, altruistic discipline and culture.

The Corinthian church meetings, as depicted by Paul, are an admirable picture of not a few gatherings of Spiritualists. He writes: "When ye come together, every one of you hath a psalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation." With such a heterogeneous condition there would of course be "envyings, strifes, tumults, suspicions, and backbitings." We have had, and continue to have our share of the same conditions. And they are the natural results of unregulated mediumship.

Human nature is such that, in the majority of cases, mediums cannot escape the feeling of superiority over others. It must be, they reason, that I am superior to others, else God, or the spirits, would not have conferred this wonderful gift. For, not only do mediums, but many others, indulge the false and superstitious notion that mediumship is a gift bestowed by some person or persons outside of themselves. This was pre-eminently the case with the primitive church. It was the Holy Ghost "poured out" upon them. They were simply receivers, in the superstitious phrasecology of to-day, "instruments" of a higher power. Hence, if they uttered a mass of gibberish, it was an unknown tongue, and the imagination of some one else was the interpretation, but it was all from the Holy Ghost, or, as we call it, from the spirits. And the tendency has been to relieve the medium actors from all the responsibility. Even in the murder of Ananias and his wife, it was the Holy Ghost, and not Peter who killed him. And when some wonder-working medium is picked up dead drunk on the sidewalk, why, it is some old drunken spirit which had influenced him. But I will not extend this parallel, though it might be continued indefinitely, and it would confirm more strongly the fact that surrender or abeyance of our selfhood to any supermundane person or influence is essentially demoralizing. That was the condition of the primitive church, and this, with the general ignorance of the people, was the grand cause of the spread of Christianity in the early ages. But as there are very many Spiritualists who are not carried away into surrendering their selfhood to outside influences, but regard true Spiritualism as intelligent co-operation of the spiritual and natural spheres of being for the purpose of social and altruistic growth, so also the primitive church, no doubt, had many earnest, noble souls, though largely tinctured with the grovelling superstitions continually taught them.

But another, and one of the most potent influences for the demoralizing of the early church, was the universal belief in devils. The devils were the ever present and ever active agency in all the untoward events of individual life, and the experience of the church as a body. The heathen Gods were all devils. The Emperors and civil rulers were all inspired with the Devil. So also the Jews, as well as all the so-called heretics. And a large percentage of all physical and mental disease was possession by the devils. The New Testament is largely a recital of the war against possessing devils. This faith in devils inverts and perverts the whole of human life and action. When every motion of the animal passions and selfish propensities is attributed to devils, and no help can be found except in miraculous assistance from God, society is in the most deplorable condition. That was the condition of the Christian church in the first three centuries. A true ethical life is impossible where all our moral defects are laid upon the Devil; and self help is utterly repudiated, and deliverance is sought only through the capricious favor of someone else. This poison stream has flowed down through all the ages, and its pestiferous power is felt more or less in the Spiritualistic movement. And we have the idiotic exhortation urged on us to humble ourselves and pray to the Spirits to aid us in undoing our own follies and moral delinquencies!

But we must go one step further and ascertain what were the moral teachings of the reputed author of Christianity, for it will be insisted that his teachings were perfect, and, therefore, all the moral delinquencies of the church are chargeable to its members and not to any defect in the teachings of their Lord and Master. We shall see. Of course, we know nothing what those teachings were except what we find in the Gospels.

I have already discussed the belief in devils, and its influence. That was one of the special teachings of the Gospel Jesus. Through his whole ministry, he is set before us as in constant collision with devils, and the most of his public work was "casting out devils." For nearly two thousand years, the church has grovelled under the influence of this immoral falsehood taught by its founder. Inseparably connected with this superstition was the doctrine of eternal hell-fire, "prepared for the Devil and his angels," but to which all, who did not believe in him, were doomed.

Among the positively immoral teachings, we must reckon disregard of the ordinary maxims of common sense and prudence. In that much eulogized Sermon on the Mount he said: "Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on." Much effort has been expended to show that this language means something different from what the words imply, but the attempt is useless. He repeats it three times and illustrates his meaning by very forcible comparisons. He points to the fowls of the air, to the lilies of the field, and as God feeds the birds and beautifies the lilies, will he not feed and clothe you? The same teaching crops out when he sent his disciples to preach. They were forbidden to take purse or scrip or change of garments. They were worse off than our tramps, for they usually have a blanket. And the test made to some who were disposed to follow him was to sell all they had and give the proceeds to the poor. The Jerusalem church is represented to have obeyed this command. All such teaching is essentially demoralizing. Any community attempting its practice would rapidly deteriorate. It laid the foundation for the monkey and beggar which has so largely characterized and cursed Christianity through all the ages. So also it has cultivated that indiscriminate alms-giving which has been misnamed charity; for, in connection with this, he said, "Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow turn thou not away." And, to clap the climax of immoralism, he commands "resist not evil." If one smites thee on one cheek turn the other. If he forcibly takes your cloak, give him your coat also. Fortunately even Christians are not fools and insane enough to obey these teachings, thus practically affirming their immoral character. One of two positions must be true: Either Christians are immoral sinners in not obeying these non-resistant teachings, or the teachings themselves are immoral.

Another most objectionable teaching is that of physical mutilation to secure spiritual blessing. "If thy right hand offend thee cut it off and cast it from thee; it is better to enter life maimed than having two hands to be cast into hell fire." Such doctrine is monstrous, and has had its baneful effect. Origen, the first great scholar of the church, emasculated himself, and later the Flagellants sought to whip sin and the devil out of themselves. But the principle was applied in another form. Paul directed the Corinthian church to deliver over an offending member to Satan for the destruction or torture of the flesh, that the Spirit might be saved in the day of the Lord. This monstrous notion that physical torture can promote spiritual welfare has stimulated the untold torments which the church has inflicted upon its victims through all its history. This doctrine of flesh mutilation has produced all the sects of the Flagellants, all the vast system of fasting and penances which have tormented the people and given power to the priestly confessors over their dupes.

But of all the obnoxious teachings of Christianity, the doctrine of Grace, which is based upon vicarious atonement, is the very essence of immoralism. Pure, unmerited favor, entirely disassociated from all excellence of merit, is the reason for all the benefits conferred upon man. The good shepherd gives his life for the sheep—the Son of God gives his flesh and blood for the life of the world—by the grace of God he tastes death for every man, and there is no salvation unless man "eats the flesh and drinks the blood" of this Son. Through the entire New Testament nothing is demanded for salvation but faith in Jesus. By that faith man partakes of the body of Christ and all his sins are remitted. Without that faith, however spotless his life, he is damned. Now, what is the essence of the doctrine of grace, or atonement? It is this: Something for nothing. Mankind owe what they can never pay. They deserve damnation, but God, for Christ's sake, saves a part of them. They are not only destitute of any merit, but are deserving of wrath and punishment. Justice is thus trodden under foot, and proclamation is made that God deals with man, not on the principles of justice, but of favoritism, and that those who have sinned the most will love the most, consequently the vilest of the race will be the highest in the kingdom of heaven, for they will love the most. But it is assumed that by virtue of the vicarious atonement "God can be just and the justifier of them who believe in Jesus." That is, that justice can be supplanted, transformed by favoritism. In other words, that the acquisition of something for nothing can be established as a moral principle. It is impossible to estimate the demoralizing influence of this false teaching. The sale of indulgences, the privilege to commit sin, by the Catholic Church, is only one of the forms of its manifestations. The confessions to the priests, and their granting forgiveness to those confessing, is another. But both Catholic and Protestant say to all men, by this doctrine, "live in sin, gorge yourselves with pleasure, disregard right through life, but at the last moment believe in Christ and you shall be saved, and the worse you have been the higher your seat in heaven, for you will have the most forgiven and, therefore, will love the most. Your sins will all be washed away by the "blood of the lamb," and his merit will be accepted on your behalf as ample satisfaction to God." But fundamental principles usually have very wide application, and this one of something for nothing has had almost universal application. Reason would say that if a principle was true in the highest department of life and action, it certainly must be so in the lowest. If it is right for God to set aside the principles of absolute justice, it cannot be wrong for man to do the same thing. Hence we have the entire business of the world based upon the principle that something for nothing is pre-eminently right. What is termed "business" means that and nothing else. "Profit," "interest," "making money," are simply forms for acquiring something for nothing. They are the practical workings of the doctrinal and moral teachings of the Gospel of Christ. And if you reproach the teaching and practice as dishonest, the answer is at hand: "For if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lie unto his glory; why yet am I also judged as a sinner?" The robbing, stealing, cheating and all forms of dishonest getting are so many ways of carrying out the Christian doctrine of something for nothing, or the doctrine that "By grace are ye saved, through faith, and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God."

Among the immoral teachings of Jesus, we must place the doctrine of his second coming in that generation, and the final wind-up of all terrestrial things. It embodied not only the falsehood as to time and circumstance, but also of his own character. "All power in heaven and earth" was his, and hence he was the supreme judge of all mankind. No doubt the neglect of common duties and the adoption of the tramp life was wonderfully strengthened by this notion. But lack of right teaching is often the most immoral kind of teaching. The gospel Jesus was distinguished in this respect. There is not a sentence in his reported teachings directing his disciples to aim at the acquisition of knowledge. He chose his twelve Apostles from the ignorant. His own education apparently embraced only the ability to read the Jewish scriptures. And he gives no hint of anything more than that being at all necessary. He organized no school, nor did his apostles. Ignorance is the prolific parent of immorality. The Christian church was extremely ignorant during the three first centuries, and therefore the fair inference would be that it could not be distinguished for any extraordinary ethical excellence.

There is one more most important fact bearing upon the influence of Christianity in the three first centuries. Early in the fourth century, Christianity obtained control of the Roman government. Constantine became a Christian, and Christianity had now the opportunity to show just what it was. Its first use of power was persecuting to the death. And all through the ages the soil of the earth has been reddened with the blood, and the air rent with the shrieks and groans of the victims of Christian persecution. Prior to Constantine they could only persecute by expulsion and anathema, but once the sword was in their hands the hated heretics must submit or perish. Even in their own meetings the bishops and elders would get into fistic fights, such as only the lowest groggeries of the present day ever witness. Now, the simple conversion of Constantine could not at once so change the character of the universal church. Indeed, all accounts agree in stating that the Emperor made great efforts to reconcile the warring clergy and factions, but without success. They wanted vengeance on each other, and forced the hand of the civil power in persecuting those whom they hated. The influence of Christianity in the first three centuries created a body of people which has had no parallel in human history for cruelty, perfidy, bloodthirstiness and remorseless butchery of innocent persons.

I have, as far as possible, sought to find the "divine power of Christianity in the non-manipulated gospels and epistles," and also in the life and teachings of Jesus as given in the gospels, and to "the Christian faith and practice in the first three centuries," and the result is that the church of to-day is far in advance of that of those early centuries in everything pertaining to an ethical and upright life; and immensely superior so far as faith is concerned. Indeed, the whole claim of superiority of the primitive church is destitute of any historic proof. And the assumed excellence of the teachings of Jesus rests entirely upon the fact that he repeated, if we take the gospel stories for anything, the common sayings of the Jewish teachers of his time. But, as I have shown, whenever we come to any original teachings they are decidedly of an immoral influence. The repetition of a few of the common ethical maxims of the times is no palliation for the monstrous immoralisms of his constant teachings. His teaching of Miracles, Blasphemous Claims to Divinity, Needless Poverty and Trampism, Non-Resistance, Physical Mutilation, Possessing Devils, and Eternal Damnation constitute an array of immoralisms that no people would tolerate at the present time. That they are tolerated, as having been taught, is due to the false glamor with which his real character has been concealed. But we are outgrowing the delusion, and are finding out that the "Divine power of Christianity" consists in the hypnotic spell which has enslaved us.

J. S. LOVELAND.

We believe in telling the truth even to the young.—Unity.

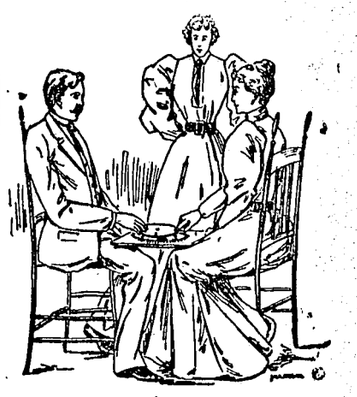
Erroneous zeal will make you do evil with double violence.—R. Baxter.

BLINDNESS
PREVENTED AND CURED.

THE BLIND SEE... THE DEAF HEAR.

BY THE GREAT EYE RESTORER AND ONLY CATARRH CURE

ACTINA is a marvel of the nineteenth century, for by its use the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and Catarrh is impossible. Actina is an absolute certainty in the cure of Cataracts, Pterygiums, Granulated Lids, Glaucoma, Amaurosis, Myopia, Presbyopia, Common Sore Eyes or Weakened Vision from any cause. No animal except man wears spectacles. There need not be a spectacle used on the streets of the world and rarely to read with. Street glasses abandoned. Actina also cures Neuralgia, Headache, Colds, Sore Throat, Brochitis and Weak Lungs. Actina is not a snuff or lotion, but a Perfect Electric Pocket Battery, usable at all times and in all places by young or old. The one instrument will cure a whole family of any of the above forms of disease.



PROF. WILSON'S MAGNETO-CONSERVATIVE .....APPLIANCES.....

Cure Paralysis, Rheumatism and all Chronic Forms of Disease. These appliances are as puzzling to the physicians as is the wonder working Actina.

A Valuable Book Free on application. Contains treatise on the human system, its diseases and cure and hundreds of references and testimonials.

AGENTS WANTED. WRITE FOR TERMS.

New York and London Electric Ass'n,
"T" 929 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

THE PSYCHOGRAPH
—OR—
DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means of developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings, been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Oricut, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose gravestones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

E. D. BABBITT'S WORKS.

Human Culture and Cure.
Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. Paper cover, 50 cents.

Human Culture and Cure.
Part Second. Marriage, Sexual Development and Social Upbuilding. Cloth, 75 cents.

Social Upbuilding.
Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennobling of Humanity. Paper cover, 15 cents.

Health and Power.
A Handbook of Cure, Etc. Cloth, 25 cents; Leat'er, 35 cents.

Religion.
Most thoughtful, spiritual and excellent Cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

Principles of Light and Color.
One of the greatest books of the age, $5; by mail 32 cents extra.

Studies in the Outlying Fields of Psychic Science.

To which is added Spiritual Phenomena: How to investigate their various phases; how to form circles and develop mediumship; an absolute test of genuine mediumship. By Hudson Tuttle.

A most excellent work. Every Spiritualist should have it. Price, cloth, 75c.

Three Journeys Around the World,

Or Travels in the Pacific Islands, New Zealand, Australia, Ceylon, India,

And other Oriental countries. By J. M. Peebles, A. M., M. D., Ph. D. In this splendid large book Dr. Peebles has concentrated a vast amount of valuable information. It is exceedingly entertaining and readable, and Spiritualism as he found it everywhere in his travels receives due attention, making the book of special value and interest to Spiritualists, 454 large pages, finely bound, at the low price of $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Bridge Between Two Worlds.
BY ABBY A. JUDSON.

With portrait of the author. Deeply spiritual and instructive. An excellent work. Price, cloth, $1.00; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By the late M. Faraday. The origin of religions, and their influence upon the mental development of the human race. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Devil and the Adventists.

An Adventist attack on Spiritualism repulsed. By Moses Hull. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE DIAKKA.

The Diakka and Their Earthly Victims, by the Rev. A. J. Davis, is a very interesting and suggestive work. It is an explanation of much that is false and repulsive in Spiritualism, embodying a most important recent interview with James Victor Wilson, a resident of the Summer Land. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

THE KORAN.

Commonly called the "Alkoran of Mohammed." The standard Arabian or Mohammedan Bible. Clothe price, $1. For sale at this office.

PRACTICAL METHODS TO INSURE SUCCESS.

A valuable little work, full of practical instruction in matters pertaining to physical, mental and spiritual health. Worth many times its cost. Price 10 cents.

CHRISTIANITY A FICTION.

The astronomical and astrological origins of all religions. A poem by Dr. J. H. Mendenhall. Price 50 cents.

RELIGION,

A Necessity of the Human Soul.

Religion is a necessity of the human soul. A germ of religion is born with every babe. From this germ is evolved or developed all the forms of religion that ever existed; each according to the environment or surrounding influences of the individual, sect, tribe or nation. As a rule, when a form of religion becomes well established, it adopts creeds and fixed ideas, rules, rites and ceremonies, apparently under the belief it has reached perfection. This condition is a bar to further progress, and has in many cases been a great hindrance to the advancement of the human race. Old forms of religion have resisted every evolution of new ideas, broader thought or new scientific knowledge. Evolution and progression are fixed laws of the universe. We have reached our present condition under those laws. In accordance therewith we have outgrown many crude ideas that formerly prevailed. But many others, originating in pagan ages, still influence and shape our conceptions of religious duties. An idea, no matter how erroneous or absurd it may be, that is thoroughly impressed in a young child's mind by the teaching of a pious mother becomes so near indelible, in most cases, as to resist, in after life, every assault of reason on that subject. As a result of this early influence we find many highly gifted people still believing religious dogmas that are too absurd to talk about. I have seen pictures in school books representing a Hindoo mother casting her babe into the mouth of a hideous crocodile, to appease the wrath of her God. This seems to be the height of absurdity. But is it? Let us see. Can we not find its counterpart in the most highly educated and intelligent Christian nations? We are taught, in substance, that God, the great supreme creator and ruler of the universe, sent his only son, who was equal with the Father, to the earth for the purpose of being murdered to appease the wrath of the Father God towards his earthly children. Were it possible to raise 1,000 men of common sense to the age of maturity without hearing of this reputed act of God and then inform them of it, the last one of them would laugh you to scorn, and tell you that the act of the Hindoo mother was no more absurd than this reputed act of God. This idea of atonement of sins by the shedding of blood is purely Pagan, coming down to us from ancient times of ignorance and superstition, when the people were taught they could appease the wrath of God by shedding the blood of cattle, sheep and goats and sprinkling it on the door posts and altars of their temples. Is it not time the world was outgrowing such heathen ideas? Is it not time for us to learn something of the real grandeur, power, glory, character and goodness of God? The Christian world does a cruel injustice to God in representing him as the author of all the horrible crimes committed in his name by the old Jewish nation. He never did it. He is a far grander, greater God than you give him credit for. Go look at the sun, moon, and millions of stars, planets, and worlds in the blue vault of heaven, and then ask yourself if the creator and ruler of all the vast universe is not a greater being than he is represented to be in the Jewish records. Thank God and the holy angels for the fact that the rays of divine light are breaking the clouds of ignorance, superstition and intolerance. The world does move—human intelligence is progressing. The gateways between the two worlds swing gently open at the touch of angel fingers, and the pathway to the spirit land is illumined by their presence. For thirteen years I have held sweet communion with friends on the other shore. They have come to me in every phase—in materialized form, face to face, as natural as life. Sometimes they give me slate-written messages, talk to me through clairvoyants and clairaudients, by rappings and by telegraph and by impressions. The last mentioned force impels me to write these lines. I have learned more from them about life on the other side than can be learned from all the theologies on earth. I learn from them that there is no hell, except that which we create by our own acts on earth. I learn from them there is no death, only a change for the better. I learn from them that we cannot depend upon any other person to bear our sins, but that each one of us must stand on our own merits; that as we sow so shall we reap; that the better we live here the better it will be for us over there; that when we leave this life we enter the next with precisely the amount of goodness or badness we possessed at the moment of death of the body, and then take our place where we belong. All are more or less imperfect when they enter the spirit life. When they arrive there the folds of memory are lifted and they see every act of their lives clearly depicted before them. They are not judged by the great God, but by themselves, and they are compelled to judge correctly. There is no escape from this. The torture of remorse of the wicked and vicious of earth life are, in some cases, for the time being, almost equivalent to the orthodox hell, but after atonement for their sins, each, in just proportion to their deserts, enter the line of progression and go onward and upward through all the cycles of endless eternity. The good and pure in life have but little to answer for and soon enter upon the line of progression, but progression can only be attained over there by doing good to others, which is the highest and best form of religion known to men or angels. Life in the spirit world is not idle repose, as some imagine, but it is one of activity in doing good and acquiring knowledge. They say they are not infallible, and do not know it all. I am almost as well acquainted with the spirit of a Greek maiden who departed this life in the year 430 B. C., as I am with my own family. I have seen and talked with her often, and learned the fact of her earth life from others; she is so modest that she will say but little about herself. She tells me, however, that Cleon, the Greek leader, was a friend of her family. She spent her earth life in doing good in the city of Athens, where she lived. She, on one of her missions of mercy, went to see a poor woman and child that were sick with the plague, which was then raging in Athens. She contracted the disease and soon passed to spirit life, aged about twenty-four years. And now, after the lapse of 2,330 years she is still continually doing good to others. She tells me that activity is rest over there. She is strewing the pathway of my life with the golden flowers of buoyant happiness. Being filled with the beautiful facts that I have so imperfectly outlined, can you wonder that the ordinary funeral sermon over one who has died in his sins grates sadly upon my soul? I pity the poor preacher who has to officiate on such occasions. He knows nothing of the condition of the soul of the departed, and don't know what to say that would be applicable to the case. For his benefit and for others I will give the substance of a message from Robert G. Ingersoll, which I received about a month ago. The conditions were unusually favorable and the spirit forces very strong. Mr. Ingersoll said: "I want to apologize to the world for my mistakes. I want especially to recant and recall every word I spoke in my last lecture in Boston against the idea of a future existence, and my views on that line delivered at all other places. Thousands of people have been misled by my teachings, and I now regret it and feel badly about it. I want you to write what I tell you and have it published to the world for the purpose of correcting, as far as possible, the wrong I have done. The true knowledge was within my reach. I ought to have availed myself of it, but I got started wrong, and pride of consistency and force of habit kept me in that channel of thought. This is a burden upon me here, and retards and hinders my progress, and I am anxious to do all in my power to give the true knowledge to the world. One or two mediums seem to think they own me. They are mistaken. I belong to no one, but am free to commune with the world through any means within my reach."

S. H. WEST.

Arrowsmith, Ill.

ANSWERS

To "Questions for Bible Experts."

A writer in The Progressive Thinker of June 30 propounds questions for Bible experts. He himself is evidently not a Bible expert, or he would not propound such questions. We think Spiritualism would be much the gainer if its votaries were only careful to learn one thing at a time. If they spent their time in proving the facts of Spiritualism, rather than in assailing Scripture or theology (things they know little about and where they only see "men as trees walking") they would probably find one day that the Bible rightly understood is not at war with Spiritualism rightly understood.

The writer asks: "If the church is the conservator of morals as well as religion, kindly state which of the patriarchs from Noah to Solomon would you have us take for a guide?

A.—Well, dear friend, none of them. Who said we should? Not the Bible; not Christians; for they offer Jesus Christ as the only guide. And Solomon, dear sir, was not a patriarch at all. The Bible itself finds fault with Noah; finds fault with Moses; finds fault with Solomon. Does it find fault with you also? Is this the ground of your opposition?

Q.—"Where is your Bible authority for preachers to marry people, and exact a big fee for it?"

A.—Neither the preacher nor the magistrate gets his authority to solemnize matrimony from the Bible, but from the civil government. If you do not like to have the preacher marry people, you should tackle the civil government, and not the Bible. As to the "big fee" you speak of, the preacher exacts no fee, but leaves it to the bridegroom to pay what he pleases. If you do not know these things, you should learn; and if you do know them, you should speak according to the facts. At any rate the Bible has nothing to do with your grievances in this matter.

Q.—"Of what did those awful sins consist that caused the flood? These were neither laws of Moses nor the gospel of Christ. They neither had to get circumcised nor take no thought for the morrow."

A.—The Bible will tell you what the sins were; read it, or hold your peace. The sins of that age, of every age, are violations of moral law. Moses did not enact a moral law, neither did Christ. Moral law is based in the relations of moral beings. Give us such and such beings in such and such relations, and moral law exists, as light exists if there be a sun. It is foolish to talk about Christ or Moses or anybody else making a moral law. If such a thing was sinful after they spoke, it was sinful before they spoke. our moral transgression is against the law of nature, and, Christ or no Christ, you will reap what you sow. As for circumcision, it is not a moral law, but a sign of covenant and relationship, as a grip and a pass-word are among the Masons.

Q.—"Is it not evident that the real God of Nature never stops work on Sunday; for I have watched the pumpkin vines, and found he made them grow several inches while he should have been 'helping to pass the hat?'"

A.—That pumpkin vines can grow seven days in the week without stopping to rest is no proof that man can do as much without recreation or repose. You surely do not wish us to class you with pumpkin vines. As to God's resting on the Sabbath, it is plainly metaphorical—legendary, if you prefer the word—but you are as averse to working incessantly like pumpkin vines, as God is to having you do it. Your allusion to "passing the hat" is suggestive. Until Spiritualists are less afraid of this, their own cause will not prosper greatly. Woe to Spiritualism when its defenders are men who fight the Bible and run from the "hat."

Q.—Kindly tell us how many of his commands he kept himself?"

A.—The Corliss engine in the powerhouse lays its commands on the trolley lines of a whole city; obey them, and you will go somewhere, easily and agreeably; disregard them, and you will not go; or go with difficulty; or break your neck. How many of its commands does the engine itself obey? Will you find fault with it on this score and then defy its power? Similarly, God is the basis of the universe, no matter if there had never been a Moses or a Christ, God is that rock on which if a man fall, he shall be broken, but if it fall upon him it will grind him to powder. Note the goings forth of the power, my friend, and keep out of the way by living according to immutable and eternal moral laws.

Q.—"Is it not more than probable that ancient writings of the Jews were lost in the destruction of Jerusalem and the Babylonian captivity?"

A.—Possibly; yet more remain than you have probably read with care, and quite enough for the main purpose. Remember that light for the head and motive for the heart are all that man needs to lead him to his highest possibilities. Show the Bible deficient here, and you will attack it at the center; otherwise, you will waste your breath.

Q.—"And if Ezra re-wrote them from memory and guess-work under a contract with the king of Babylon, as recorded in the Apocrypha, might he not have left out some of the snake and whale stories?"

A.—Not a whit more improbable in themselves than hundreds of stories I have read in the books of Spiritualism. And yet, if you wish, you can leave them out for yourself without impairing the integrity of Bible teaching and incentive—all that concerns you. Ezra did not rewrite the Scriptures from memory, nor under a contract with the king of Babylon, and you ought not to say so before you are prepared to produce some evidence.

Q.—"If the priests of the 4th century compiled the Bible by ballot, then may not balloting be inspired as much as writing?"

Possibly. According to Spiritualism lots of things are put into people's heads by spirits; what if they impressed these fathers how to vote? On Spiritualist grounds you are not in a very good fix to fight. It is not a matter of much concern to me whether the books which they voted are inspired, provided they are true in respect of moral teaching and moral prompting.

Seize upon truth wher'er 'tis found,
Among your friends, among your foes;
On Christian or on heathen ground,
The flower's divine where'er it blows;
Neglect the prickles, and assume the rose.

J. YOUNG M'FARLAND.

Chicago, Ill.

THE MAN WHO PREACHED.

"I'm an easy-going person, to most little troubles dumb,
And my motto is to simply smile and take things as they come;
I remember God's above us when misfortunes fall on me—"
Then he rose and ripped and tore because a fly fell in his tea.

"I believe the things that happen must be always for the best,
And I try to keep a buoyant and a brave heart in my breast;
God, I know, still guides our footsteps on the smooth ways and the rough—"
Then he swore because he got a dab
of butter on his cuff. —S. E. Kiser.

WE are trying our best to establish libraries in every Spiritualist family of the United States, hence we are offering Seven valuable books as a premium. Those seven books have been sold for $10.75. A single one has sold as high as $25. The first edition of Art Magic sold for $5 per copy. As high as $15 has been paid for a single copy of Ghost Land; yet we furnish these seven books to our subscribers for $2.35, when ordered in connection with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. Read our premium announcement carefully.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year..... $1.00
Six months..... 50c
Thirteen weeks..... 25 cts
Single copy..... 5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis No. 40 Loomis Street Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Progressive Thinker is furnished in the United States at $1.00 per year, the postage thereon being but nominal, but when it is sent to foreign countries we are compelled to charge 50 cents extra, making the yearly subscription $1.50. Please bear that in mind.

SATURDAY, JULY 14, 1900.

Question of the Hour.

Methodists have 142 American missionaries in China, Presbyterians 209, and the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions 110.—News Item.

Because of these missionaries the United States has formed an "entangling alliance" with foreign powers, just what Washington, in his farewell address, urged us to shun, and we are now at war with the oldest, most populous and most peaceful nation on the globe.

Was the American government established as a propaganda of Christianity, or any other system of religion? If so, in what state paper is that fact set forth? That great charter of our liberties, the Constitution of the United States, says in its preamble:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquillity, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution."

Not a word is said in that instrument about the "blessings of Christianity," or the purpose to extend Methodism, or Presbyterianism, or Foreign Boards of Missions into any country. Such a thing was never contemplated by a single member of the delegation which framed that Constitution. So ambitious were they to make this a purely secular government they purposely excluded all reference to God, or other supernatural parties, from the instrument.

Religious cranks have labored zealously for years to amend the Constitution, and convert the government into an engine for sectarian purposes; but they have failed thus far.

Intolerance Exemplified.

Three Mormon missionaries were whipped by a Christian mob, at Concord, N. C., the other day, then they were conducted to the county line, and instructed not to return under penalty of death.

But that was done in the barbarous South.

About the same time two Mormon elders in Rockford, Ill., while quietly visiting from house to house, merely asking the privilege of correcting false reports against their sect, were arrested by the police and ordered to leave the city, which they did to avoid direful consequences.

That was in the free and Christian North.

The Mormons are a Christian sect, claiming to follow in the footsteps of "Our Lord," but they profess to have a later and more clearly expressed Gospel than has the older churches, hence their unpopularity.

Over there in China the people place as low an estimate on all Christian sects as do American Christians on their Mormon brothers, so they want the whole caboodle of them to leave the Flowery Kingdom. For this the Western powers are angry, and are threatening to disrupt the Chinese empire.

Have the Mormons cause for war against the United States because their missionaries are very generally outraged wherever they attempt to tell the story of "The Latter Day Saints of Jesus Christ?"

In a Rapid Decline.

Now the information comes that the Methodist press is in a languishing condition. It is asserted all their church papers are published at a loss; are sustained by outside contributions. Only two, it is said, have made money. Thirteen others have received $64,000 in subsidies and have sunk $100,000.

The whole system on which the church of all denominations is built is going to the demolition bow wows. Its foundation rests on sand, and its fall is as certain as is the death of the old religions out of which the new was constructed.

Justly Indignant.

The Galesburg Mail gives this as a fact:

A young man who had been converted at a camp-meeting declared that all the pride and self-conceit had been taken out of his heart. To prove it he said he would go down in the audience and kiss an old colored woman. As he went down the aisle the old negress rose to her feet and said: "Look heah, white man, you may not have no pride, but I has. I ain't gwine to let no man Hobsonize me heah before all dese white folks."

"Spiritual Songs for the Use of Circles, Camp-meetings and Other Spiritualistic Gatherings." By Mattie E. Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

Education the Savior of the World.

Ignorance is the parent or superstition. Science, another name for knowledge, is the parent of skepticism. In those countries where the people are mostly uneducated, there the church rules and there the priest is held in highest esteem. Of such European countries are Spain and Italy. In France, in Germany and in Great Britain knowledge is more widely diffused, and in those countries churchmen have been gradually discarding their inherited errors until with the educated only few of the ancient dogmas remain.

In our own country, doubtless the New England States are most advanced in knowledge. There the gross barbarism prevalent in the church three hundred years ago has been very generally discarded. Unitarians and Universalists are most numerous in those States, and their philosophy has almost imperceptibly crept into all the orthodox churches, and modulated their faith, now forcibly shown in the great desire to get away from their old creeds.

The South, with its millions of uneducated negroes, only one generation removed from slavery, leads this country in illiteracy. It also leads in faith in the old creeds. There an orthodox hell and the Devil are in their glory. And there, among the devotees of the church, science is little known.

In Europe late statistics show that 79 per cent of the soldiers of Russia and Servia can neither read nor write. A little more than one-half of Italian and Hungarian soldiers can read; while up there in half-skeptical Great Britain 97 per cent of her soldiery can read and write, and 30 per cent are credited with a liberal education.

They who never think, without regard to location, believe as they were taught in infancy. Mumbo Jumbo reigns supreme among the savage tribes of Africa. And a great big exaggerated man, with all the passions, hates and loves of a barbarian people is worshiped among the thoughtless and uneducated classes in all Christian countries. Worse still, many do so who know better, that they may not be maligned and ostracised by the "faithful."

When the Tartar hordes overran China, overthrew the ancient dynasty, and set up their own rule in the country, as evidence of loyalty to the new dynasty, the head of every Chinaman was shaved save a scalp-lock—known to us as a pig-tail—which was retained, symbolic of their servitude to the Tartars. In time the reason for wearing this uncouth appendage was forgotten. The descendants of those who first wore this mark of vassalage forgot its origin, so now a Chinaman knows no greater grief than the loss of that lock which demonstrates his slavery.

So the cross was used as a symbol of subordination wherever the Roman Supreme Pontiff planted it as his standard. The people were crushed and overborne, and this hateful instrument of torture was ever before them evidencing their servility. In time the acts of the oppressors were forgotten, until now it is the most sacred object to which the eye turns.

It is education, with a history of the past, that arouses hate, and invites to the abandonment of the cruelties and creeds of tyrannous usurpers. When it shall become universal the remaining Christian dogmas will take their place with the discarded myths of older religions, then will begin a new day, when Spiritualism will come to the front and peacefully reign forever. We pray the good spirits to hasten the dawning of that brighter day.

Cause of the Chinese Rebellion.

There are said to be three times as many Catholic missionaries in China as there are of all denominations of Protestants.

In a treaty between France and China, made some two years ago, special privileges were conferred on Catholics, which were not extended to Protestants. The Boxers interpreted that treaty as placing Christians outside of Chinese authority, exempting them from punishments to which Chinamen were subject. It is reported Catholic missionaries cited this privilege extended to them, and not to Protestants, as an inducement to embrace their faith.

If these statements are correct, and were similar privileges extended to Buddhists in America, there would be a rebellion against the constituted authorities of which the troubles in China are only child's play.

Under threats of division of the empire among the great Christian powers, Chinese authorities have made concessions which the people will not allow foreigners to exercise.

Confessed Cannibals.

Confraternity of the Blessed Sacrament is the name of a society of priests of the Protestant Episcopal church, who aim to restore the mass, practiced by Roman Catholics, to their church. At a late session held in New York, the "Eucharistic Sacrifice" played an important part. One speaker said: "The church is spiritually nurtured and kept alive by the holy eucharist," that is feasting on the body and blood of a crucified God. That "body and blood" represent the human nature of Jesus, hence the eating of them by mortals is cannibalism, and nothing else. Another priest, Rev. Watson, said: "The constant preaching of the real presence of the body of Jesus in celebration of the eucharist is necessary, because it is the unquestioned doctrine of the church." If the bread and wine is metamorphosed into the real body and blood of Jesus, then every participant in the sacrament is a cannibal.

The Two Historians in Contrast.

The first page of Chinese history, says the Encyclopedia Britannica, begins by describing the nucleus of the nation as a little horde of wanderers, roving among the forests of Shan-se, without houses, without clothing, without fire to dress their victuals, and subsisting on the spoils of the chase, eked out with roots and insects.

The reader will contrast this history with divine revelation, and determine for himself which narrative is the most probable. Because of eating a forbidden fruit the eyes of the first pair were opened, and God, humiliated because they had discovered they were naked, turned tailor and made them clothing of skins, which he probably tore from the bodies of living animals, for human genius had not yet invented the knife.

It may be proper to mention that the Chinese story did not originate with God. This may be the reason of its greater probability.

Yes, Times Have Changed.

Lately said the Rutherford News, of New Jersey:

"Less than ten years ago it was confidently believed that war, of any considerable magnitude, was well nigh impossible; that mankind had so developed in the higher civilization that all differences between nations could be readily settled by arbitration, and that the enormous destructiveness of modern implements of warfare would deter all nations from yielding to the aggressive instinct. To-day we find the whole world more or less convulsed with the war fever and ready to plunge into the destruction of human life on a comparatively slight provocation. Verily the times have changed."

Religious demagogues saw their glory was departing. In every country where education is generally diffused the power of the church is declining. When it lost the whip and spur of hell, changing that fiery domain into the Greek hades, "a place for the dead in general, without regard to their goodness or badness, their joys or their sorrows," as Rev. George Campbell, in his "New Translation of the Gospels, with Notes," defined the word 125 years ago, and this word was restored untranslated to the sacred text by the late revisers, with it went all the fright the Christian pulpit had taught for the last 500 years. The Devil, whom Milton made but a little inferior to God, took his departure with his bottomless domain, so it has become necessary to gain control over the barbarous races to retain even a remnant of its power. In all civilized countries the indications are, the church dogmas will be relegated to the Past within the next hundred years.

The revelations of the spirit world have been wonderful aids to the great revolution. Each new convert augments the opposition to the old creeds, while the united forces are quite irresistible The next grand effort should be to dethrone the usurper, human-born, whom priests have delighted to make, first co-equal with the Father, then that Father himself. They who wish to convert him into a real character, or a medium between the two worlds, are at liberty, so far as we are concerned, to do so; but it is blasphemy to clothe him with the attributes of divinity. Intelligence repudiates the claim, and the uncultured races are sought for as recruits by churchmen driven to desperation.

The Japanese repulsed a religion greatly inferior to their own, so Christianity could gain no footing among those islanders. Mahomet made all his conquests in suppressing idolatry, so no progress can be made in gaining votaries to a triple-headed God among that people. The last hope for future conquests by Christian missionaries is China. That people, the oldest nation on the globe, with an unbroken history of 5,000 years, and ostensibly of 20,000 years, has a system of religion well adapted to their needs. They can see no good reason why they should change their faith at the caprice of "Foreign Devils," who, unasked, have intruded themselves into Chinese homes, and labor to destroy the common worship for what they conceive a very inferior system, and no way adapted to their condition.

Sectarians took advantage of commercial treaties. They entered the country through the open ports in the guise of traders. As such they built up places of business, secured the services of a few dependent natives, from whom they learned the Chinese language; then they commenced peddling their dogmas, and threatening with hell those who would not receive them. And that, really, is what has brought on the present troubles.

The Chinese are as devoted to their God—Joss, in their vernacular—as are Christians to their Deity, whose name the English borrowed from the Dutch.

The Peace Congress, last year at The Hague, was supposed to be a peaceful movement looking to the adjustment of national disputes by arbitration instead of "trial by battle." But it was an assemblage of the Christian powers. The members of that Congress were selected by the executives of Christian governments. It resulted like an assemblage of priests intent on benefiting themselves and the countries they represented, with seemingly little care for the outside world.

Are Horses to Disappear?

Having some business that called us east on a flying trip, we took the opportunity to stop at Tarrytown, N. Y., for a couple of days, to witness the remarkable production of mechanical skill, a horseless carriage, or "Mobile," as it is called. The Mobile Company of America has purchased a large tract of land near Tarrytown, and erected thereon an extensive plant, where about 500 skilled mechanics are employed in turning out the wonderful Mobile. It certainly is a most ingeniously constructed machine, and is probably the best for general use in the market to-day. When once ready for operation it can be easily managed. We saw men, women, and even boys, running it, when once put in operation, and outstripping any horse, going up hill and down as if moved with animal life. The officers and employes of the firm are exceedingly courteous and obliging to visitors, there being several present from various parts of the United States, some of whom returned to their homes with a Mobile. It is evident the horse in a great measure is to disappear as a factor in the industries of our country. Those contemplating buying a Mobile would do well to correspond with the Mobile Company of America, located at Tarrytown, N. Y.

Level-headed.

Prof. Goldwin Smith, of Toronto, is reported as saying of the troubles in China:

"One thing is clear: All the missionaries should be compelled at once to withdraw to places of security; or, if they choose heroically to remain in posts of danger, should be warned that they do this, as did the early missionaries, at their own risk. It is monstrous that a religion of peace and good-will should be made, as too often it has been in the hands of its indiscreet apostles, a brand for kindling the flames of murderous war."

Abuse of Authority.

It is stated that in Art. 29 of our treaty with China in 1858, provision is made that Chinese converts to Christianity who peacefully teach and practice the Christian religion, "shall in no case be interfered with or molested." Is it possible that the treaty-making power of this nation has ever been guilty of thus intermeddling with foreign powers in the interest of sectarianism?

"Astral Worship." By J. H. Hill, M. D. For sale at this office. Price, $1.

A Boy Has Visions.

A correspondent of the Chicago Blade living at Flemingsburg, Ky., gives an extraordinary story of spirit power. As set forth, in the last few days visions of traged and ghosts have been troubling this community, caused by a mysterious and grewsome find of human bones under the house known as the "old Augustus Sanford residence," located about four miles from Flemingsburg, and occupied at present by William Black and family, consisting of father, mother and their boy.

There are many mysteries associated with this old house, which was once occupied by a man, now deceased, who was a quaint and peculiar kind of a being, one having few qualities calculated to make him desirable as one's neighbor. After his death it was learned that there was a trap door under his bed leading to the cellar. The door was so arranged that it could be opened from the bed, by merely pulling a sort of trigger attached to the bed.

It is said that seven persons disappeared at this house in the last twenty-one years. The first was a traveling dentist known to be worth considerable money. He stopped at the house one night after selling a number of race horses, and had the money derived from the sale on his person. He was never heard of afterward, but at the time of his disappearance it was not known that he stopped with the eccentric occupant of the house.

Thursday, May 15, Willie Black, aged 10 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Black, the present occupants of the house, had a vision, or claims he did, in which a ghost told him to dig in the cellar and he would find a skeleton, that of a man named Bradshaw, the spirit said, who was murdered just north of the house, in the orchard, twenty-one years ago.

When the boy made this known several men, your correspondent included, proceeded to verify what had been communicated to the boy in the strange manner alleged. After digging about three feet we came upon a human skeleton, with old-style clothing still upon the remains. We also unearthed about $3,000 in counterfeit money.

Next day the boy claimed to have had another vision. He said if we would dig in the opposite corner from where we had dug before we would find three more skeletons. We dug as directed, and when about three feet down we came upon three more skeletons, just as the boy had predicted.

The four skeletons have been viewed by several doctors, including Drs. Akin, Garr, Kehoe and Brace, and all pronounce the bones as human. About 500 people also saw the remains in one day, saying nothing about the reporters, who are as thick as flies, all after photographs, etc.

The boy appears to take very little interest in what is going on around him.

The College of Fine Forces.

Dr. Babbitt has now two courses of study, the Academic Course and the College Course. The Academic is simpler and very much cheaper than the other and gives new and powerful methods of cure which will save great suffering and big doctor's bills.

AN UNSHAKEN BELIEVER.

They're tearing down the castles we've erected in the air—
They claim that Brother Damon never flourished anywhere.
They tell us that the story of his friendship was a myth;
But I believe in Damon, and I've faith in Brother Pyth.
They cite us facts and figures, claiming it's a fairy tale,
Of the residence of Jonah in the inside of the whale,
And they say that Billy Tell did not take snapshots at his son—
But I believe the stories—I believe 'em every one.

They state that our immortal George not only lied but he
Was not the lad who hatcheted his papa's cherry tree;
But I believe that Washington was a most honest youth—
If that tree was an orchard, I'd declare it was the truth.
They try to shatter my belief in Barb'ra Frietchie's flag,
But still my faith is steadfast, and it is not prone to sag.
I'd swear the tale was truthful if it said she waved a gun—
For I believe the stories—I believe 'em every one.

They try to prove that Sheridan could not have "saved the day,"
They say he didn't ride like mad from "twenty miles away,"
But I put my trust in it—I'm content to go it blind—
I've just as firm belief in it as if I rode behind.
I pin my faith to every one of all the good old tales;
I've confidence in all the men, the horses and the whales.
They cannot break my idols—they cannot spoil my fun,
For I believe the stories—I believe 'em every one.

—Baltimore American.

BOOK REVIEWS.

Words That Burn. A Romance. By Mrs. Lida Briggs Browne.

We are glad to welcome this, another literary effort, which in quality and tone is adapted to interest, instruct, and leave an impress for good on the mind of anyone that reads. Like the recently issued book, "Lisbeth," by Mrs. Twing, this volume of "Words That Burn," is worthy of hearty commendation. No Spiritualist, or others, can read it without being spiritually richer for it. It is replete with the New Thought of to-day.

We shall not attempt to analyze the work. Mrs. Browne is not unknown to readers of this journal, as in time past she has enriched our columns by the effusions of her brain and pen. We congratulate her on this literary effort, and hope it may prove, as it deserves, a substantial financial success. It is well bound in cloth. Price, $1.50. For sale at this office.

YOU, as a progressive mind, should know something of the phenomena of that magnificent change called Death. On that subject you will find valuable information in the three volumes of The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World Those three volumes contain more valuable information on that subject than all the libraries of the world. They are furnished to the subscribers of The Progressive Thinker at a nominal cost. Read carefully our premium list.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

Spiritualism as Witchcraft.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says that the subject of Spiritualism was considered at the session of the Wisconsin synod at St. Marcus church in a paper that was read by the Rev. A. Pieper, of St. Marcus' church. Mr. Pieper only partly completed his paper, which consists of six theses, but he will take the stand that Spiritualism is "the work of the devil," and should be combatted by the Christian church. He holds that it is neither a religion nor a science, but a piece of witchcraft. He takes the stand that the Bible recognizes witchcraft as a reality and that Spiritualism comes under that heading.

Mr. Pieper read only two of the six theses and a general discussion was indulged in as the reader proceeded.

The first thesis treated the history of Spiritualism, Mr. Pieper holding that it was not a discovery of the modern times, but traces of it were found in the Old Testament and in ancient Egypt, Assyrien, Babylon, China and other Eastern countries. The speaker then traced it up to the present day. In his second thesis he took the stand that the supernatural phenomena believed in by Spiritualists are not altogether frauds, but that some phases of it are real, such as the trance, though he did not believe that such a condition was produced by spirits, but rather by a condition of the body, such as disease.

The third thesis will treat the subject from the view that science is unable to explain many Spiritualistic phenomena. The fourth thesis will be the teachings of Spiritualism. In the synopsis that he has furnished, he holds that according to the Scripture the supernatural phenomena in Spiritualism are not the work of departed souls, but the work of the devil, and the teachings of Spiritualism are the teachings of demons.

The fifth thesis will hold that Spiritualism is neither a science nor a religion, but a piece of witchcraft. This will be an acknowledgment that witchcraft exists, Mr. Pieper taking the stand that in the Bible it is acknowledged as a reality and arguing from that point of view. The concluding thesis will be on the dangers of Spiritualism. He will hold that the Christian church has every reason to combat Spiritualism and will assert that the word of God is the only effective means to combat it with.

Mr. Pieper is a Lutheran, and, like the Catholics, is violently opposed to Spiritualism. He certainly has an exceedingly narrow mind, or he would not regard Spiritualism in the light he does. He is at least fifty years behind the times. Spiritualism, with its millions of adherents, has no fear of these assaults from the pulpits. They are perfectly harmless, doing the church no good, and Spiritualism no harm. The statements made by this divine have been refuted a thousand times.

A SPIRIT'S EDITORIAL.

Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men.

There is joy in heaven over every effort that makes for peace and concord on earth. I come to you with charity and devoutness of soul.

Words can not tell of the glory felt here when our prayers had been answered by the deep burial of all strife and contention between our three great papers, The Banner of Light, The Progressive Thinker and The Light of Truth.

In beautiful symbol let us put a period on this consummation of our efforts, and as you read these poor words of mine try to feel what they cannot express, the soul exultation, the gratitude to the Divine Giver of all good, in that now and henceforth these great instruments of good may do our work on earth as it is done in heaven, thereby bringing out and into your lives the fruit of the great prayer of the ages, "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, on earth as it is in heaven."

The Banner of Light as the oldest now of all our periodical publications, withstanding many tempests and rising grandly above many vicissitudes, is like the giant-oak around whose trunk wind vine-like and in harmonious concord The Progressive Thinker and The Light of Truth, the younger, vigorous champions of liberty of thought and our common immortality. While streaming from them all are the sprigs of olive, bearing peace and love to all the world.

Dear mortals, happiness consists altogether of kindness and love. If we love we are happy. If we give, we are happy. Happiness is service, sacrifice, devotion, the amplitude of the virtues of soul life. Bestow the best you have upon others and in the giving you find abiding happiness. Nothing else abides. All else is vainglory and death. Without charity we are nothing. Wisdom is in contriteness, benevolence, simplicity. O that this work may go on!

Be sure that in giving this testimonial of the watchers in spirit life over the turmoils now allayed, we reap our abundant rewards in true happiness. May peace and love abide with you, the workers on these and all the other papers struggling to interpret the munificent benisons of our world.—Light of Truth.

NEARING THE BEAUTIFUL RIVER

I am nearing the beautiful river,
It's silvery ripples I hear;
How I long to glide over its waters
To that home of love so dear.

Bright faces of loved ones are waiting
To welcome me over there;
They beckon to me o'er the waters,
Their joy and their love to share.

Chorus—
I am nearing the beautiful river,
Its silvery ripples I hear;
Soon I'll glide o'er its soft waters,
To that home of love so dear.
Hark! music like a sweet-voiced bell,
Farewell! dear friends of earth, farewell.

I am nearing the beautiful river,
That flows thro' the shadowy vale;
On its borders are daintiest flowers
Ever seen in earth's meadow or dale.

Sweet perfume and music ideal
Greet my spirit with rapture sweet,
As I eagerly strain at the fetters
That are binding my weary feet.

Oh! I long to cross over the river,
Tho' leaving some loved ones behind;
But they know I'll watch over their footsteps
When the path into heaven I find.

Ah! the silver-robed angels are coming,
With a promise of peace and rest;
Oh! at last has my soul found the sunshine
In the home of the loved and blest.

—Exchange.

"Religious and Theological Works of Thomas Paine." Contains his celebrated "Age of Reason," and a number of letters and discourses on religious and theological subjects. Cloth binding, 480 pages. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE OPINIONS

Of a Distinguished Chinaman.

There is living in London, Eng.,—in fact, he holds a high position in a firm of eastern merchants—a Chinese gentleman who has for many years belonged to the Boxers' secret society in China, and with whom a representative of the Buffalo Express has had a most interesting interview.

"You English," he observed, speaking our language with remarkable fluency, "only look at Chinese matters from your own point of view. Ah! if you could only look at them from ours!

"Western civilization is to us a mere mushroom. It is a thing of yesterday. Chinese civilization is unnumbered thousands of years old. We consider ourselves at least 2,000 years ahead of you.

"There was a time when we had, like you, our 'struggle for life,' our race for wealth, our ambition for power, our haste and hurry and worry. We, too, had your clever inventions—gunpowder, printing and the rest—but we have lived long enough to find out how essentially unnecessary all these things are.

"We have also had our periods of doubt, fanaticism, and dissension in matters of religion. We have had our martyrs, our reformations, our nonconformists, our intolerance, and finally, our toleration. Yes, thousands of years ago.

WISDOM FROM THE CENTURIES.

"But, as I say, we have outgrown it all. From the experience of past centuries we have learned wisdom; from the mistakes and disasters of our ancestors we have learned that none of the things for which we strove were really worth striving for.

"Our passions and ambitions have settled down into a calm desire for happiness in this world; our religion is reduced to a philosophy of life which the test of the last 2,000 years has proved to be absolutely sound.

"We believe that the best thing to pursue in this life is happiness, and we teach our children that their happiness can only be secured by the performance of duty, by the observance of moral and business obligations, and by surrounding one's self with a circle of equally happy friends and relatives.

If a Chinaman prospers beyond the lot which falls to his kindred, he finds his greatest happiness in sharing his good fortune with them. And in China we never cease to work. There is no such thing as 'retiring from business.' Work is part of our pleasure, because it is part of our duty.

A COMFORTABLE PHILOSOPHY.

"We believe in making the best of this life, which is the only one we know anything about for certain. That is the Be All and End All of Chinese philosophy.

"All through China you will find the same level, uniform spirit of content.

"You may think we live lives of ignorance and squalor and idleness, but I assure you it is not so. We are as well off as we want to be, and no man can improve on that.

"Now, these being our circumstances, you of the western world come to us with what you call your new ideas. You bring us your religion, an infant of 1900 years. You invite us to build railways so that we may fly from place to place at a speed which for us has neither necessity nor charm. You want to build mills and factories so as to debase our beautiful arts and crafts, and produce tawdry finery in place of the beautiful textures and hues which we have evolved after ages of experiment.

"Against all this we protest. We want to be let alone. We want to be free to enjoy our beautiful country, and the fruits of our centuries of experience. When we ask you to go away you refuse, and you even threaten us if we do not give you our harbors, our land, our towns.

"And now, having carefully considered the matter, we of the so-called Boxers' society, have decided that the only way to get rid of you is to kill you. We are not naturally bloodthirsty. We certainly are not thieves. But when persuasion and argument and appeals to your sense of justice are of no avail, we find ourselves face to face with the fact that the only resource is to put you out of existence.

THE MISSIONARY QUESTION.

"Consider your missionaries. They come, as I have said, with a new religion, upon the main principles of which they are bitterly divided among themselves. They tell us that unless we accept their doctrines we shall suffer eternal punishment. They frighten our children and the more weak-minded of our older people, and create all kinds of dissensions between families and individuals. No wonder that we will not tolerate them.

"If we wanted your railways, and machines, we could, of course, buy them; but we do not. We have no use for them. We have learned to do without them. Yet you say you will force us to buy them, whether we will or not. Is that just? I say it is an impertinence—an outrage.

"A good deal is made of the fact that we are not soldiers. Well, we have ceased to be soldiers, because we have become civilized. War is a barbarism. The effect of our having arrived at our present stage of civilization is that we have increased and multiplied beyond every other race on the face of the earth. In spite of our great mortality (which seems to be very shocking to you, although we recognize in it only a wise provision of nature), the Chinese race is increasing at a greater pace than any other people in the world.

"We could if we chose overwhelm the rest of mankind. That we do not do so is due to the perfection of our civilization, our philosophy, and our morals. We number 400,000,000 human beings, and who could withstand us if we chose to assert our power? Do you think we are unconscious of it? On the contrary, we understand it only too well. Let the white races of the earth appreciate the fact that we and not they are its masters.

WHAT HAPPENS TO INVADERS.

"There have been twenty so-called successful invasions of China. But what has happened? Have the invaders dominated the Chinese? No. The conquered have absorbed their conquerors. All have became Chinese. The very Jews who have come among us have been absorbed by our race—a thing which has never happened elsewhere.

"Let me repeat that all the forces which divide men in the west have practically no existence in China. Politics, religion, private ambitions, the necessity for expansion, land-hunger, gold-hunger—all these have no existence in China. You think that because the Chinaman is inert, careless and simple, he is a child. There never was a greater mistake.

"He has learned the secret of being happy. His life is placid, and nothing troubles him so long as his conscience is clear.

"There you have our character in a sentence. Let us alone, and we will let you alone."

INTELLIGENCE.

Some Interesting Examples Noted.

To the Editor:—Kindly permit me to say a few words in regard to that "Infinite Intelligence" that has been so much written about and talked of, fully realizing my finite mind cannot grasp the Infinite.

It seems to me there must be an Intelligence running through all matter, through all things, animate and inanimate. The other morning as I was taking my deep breathing exercises out on the plazza, with face toward the rising sun, in true oriental fashion, I espied between me and that glorious orb, a gossamer spider's web, wet with pearly, shining dew. It was a marvel of perfection as to fineness, form and skill in its workmanship.

I called Jay to admire and help me gush over it; he put his finger too near, the web being viscid from its newness and the dew, clung to the finger and was torn. The spider was a little grey insect not over the eighth of an inch long, with five tiny, red horns protruding from the upper surface of its body. It remained quiet at the center of its wonderful piece of mechanism all that day. Next morning the web was most skilfully repaired and several strands added to its circumference; I am sure it had been all done in the darkness of night or the dim dawn of the early morning.

No delicate, fairy, human fingers could have wrought the marvel. It was cabled to a tree limb on one side five feet distant, on another side to a twine I had stretched near by, on the third side to an oleander bush a yard away. These cables were lovely in execution as I could see through my magnifying glass; divided into regular spaces of plain gossamer and fuzzy white links. No man living has the ability or intelligence to build such a wonder as this modest insect had done; the day was windy, the delicate fabric swung to and fro for many hours. The next morning found it several strands larger, broken places mended in an astonishingly ingenious manner; the center nearly closed up and made stronger by the linked cables. Day after day we watched the wondrous building and repairing till a violent storm obliterated it, and perhaps, in the seeming cruelty of nature, destroyed the gifted architect. Intelligence! Who can deny it to this little spider?

The other week I went into a friend's store; he sat at his desk behind a screen of lattice work; in and out of the diamond shaped interstices, through and through, ran a sweet potato vine, so royal in appearance, that for some little time I did not recognize the plebeian origin of the careening, emerald beauty. My friend looked up and said, "Don't you want one?" "What is it?" I inquired. "Wait a minute," he replied. He went to a back room and brought me a large, sprouted tuber. I brought it home, placed it in a small bucket with the sprouts up, filled the vessel with tepid water so half of the potato was covered, then hung the pail near a sunny window, taking care to add a little water every day or two to make up for evaporation. In a few days the vine was rampant. I watched it in its search for support. On one side of the large window was a bracket to which an empty bird cage was attached. It soon ran up to this, twined about the cage, in and out, between the wires, making it a bower of verdure. In the meantime two tender branchlets had been dropped and were seeking a support below. I drove a nail still lower, tied a twine to it, fastening the same to another nail higher up on the opposite side; in a week one branchlet ran down, wound round the nail and then kept on towards the floor, while the other sought the twine and ran across the window. Here I drove another nail in the wall away from the casings, and still another on the side of the cage a foot and a half above it. At first the vine seemed to hesitate as if it were pondering, "Now what shall I do, run out on this dark wall or across the sunny window?" I was from home a few days. What was my surprise on returning to find my little traveler had put out two more branchlets, one of which was running along the wall, the other across the window. What can all this be but Intelligence? So human as to almost seem wise.

I make a saturated solution of sodium chloride; in this, for a patient's special use, I place a Russian towel, then wring it loosely out, hanging it in an airy place for the water to evaporate, leaving the salt to crystallize on every little loop and thread. In a short time there is a perfect forest of lovely, fragile, needle crystals of many sizes, making for the inactive skin of the ailing person one of the finest flesh brushes ever invented.

Later I looked at the solution remaining in the bowl after wringing out the towel; having set it aside in a quiet place where no agitation could disturb it. The liquid has disappeared, while the mineral has built itself into a heap of beautiful, equal sized cubes! Who can say there has been no Intelligence in this mysterious work?

Thus I could go on multiplying examples ad infinitum. Has any reasoning mortal the least idea that all this Occult Knowing How, sits on the outside of these operations, in the form of a man, with a crown on his head, a sceptre in hand, while any number of "Elders" stand curtsying before him by throwing down and picking up their crowns?

It seems impossible; yet can one deny this universal Intelligence? Call it Law; but can we say it is an unintelligent Law?

MRS. H. H. CHAAPEL, M. D.
Palmetto, Fla.

"The Mysteries of the Formation of the Earth, the Rising and Sinking of Continents, the Introduction of Man, and His Destiny Revealed in God's Own Way and Time." A work of deep interest, given through the mediumship of Mrs. M. T. Longley, by an advanced band of ancient spirits. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Poems of Progress," By Lizzie Doten. In this volume, this peerless poet of Spiritualism may be read in her varied moods, "from grave to gay, from lively to severe." It is a book to be treasured and richly enjoyed by all who love genuine poetry, and especially by Spiritualists. The volume is tastily printed and bound. Price $1.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments). By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

The Commandments Analyzed, price 25 cents. Big Bible Stories, cloth 50 cents.

OUR ECLECTIC MAGAZINE

GYPSY'S STRANGE PROPHECY WAS FULFILLED

TWO AWFUL MURDERS FORETOLD BY PALMISTRY—LAUGHING GIRLS WARNED THAT THEY WERE TO MEET TRAGIC FATES—YEARS AFTER WORDS CAME TRUE

Do the lines which cross one another, cut strange little channels, die out or stretch and stretch themselves over one's hand tell the story of a person's life? Is the future of a man or of a woman mapped out and then diagrammed upon that individual's hand so that all who see it and may read, will know? Or is it mere coincidence which makes the prophecies of those who give dire warnings or tell of joyous futures sometimes come strictly true?

This is a story of romance and of tragedy—a tale all the more wonderful for its being true. It is a relation of facts which prove that the mysteries of Scheherezade linger with us still. It expands from the fertile fields of Pennsylvania to the wealth of Washington, and through it runs the hand of human fate.

Potter county has never produced two handsomer girls than Grace Richardson and Effie Copley. Cousins they were and of an age. Chums almost inseparable. Miss Richardson lived with her parents in Middlebury township. They were not extremely wealthy persons, but they were well to do. A better farm than theirs was not to be found for twenty miles about. Hundreds of sheep gamboled in their pasture fields and their cattle were famed at the county fair. So Grace Richardson always went well gowned, and she knew how best to bring golden hair and azure eyes into delightful contrast with the gown she wore.

Effie Copley was the antithesis of her charming cousin. She was tall and dark. Her hair was as glossy as a black bird's breast, and her dark eyes danced and sparkled. Her parents, too, were well to do, but their acres were not so numerous nor their herds so many as those of the Richardsons, whose farm land theirs adjoined. They were content with lesser things.

Girls develop young in Potter county. The rich country air makes the red blood tingle in their veins and they grow strong and hearty. So it was that at 14 years of age Grace Richardson and Effie Copley were very near matured. Company they had in plenty and both could scarcely wait for later years to come.

VISITED THE GYPSY CAMP.

At this time there passed through Potter county a wealthy band of gypsies. All the way from Texas they had come journeying toward New York. Not ordinary nomads were these persons. From their beautifully constructed wagons dozens of thoroughbred horses trailed far behind. Prone to trade, they were as honest as any horse traders could well be and word of their good faith went on before them.

To a vast concourse was the party going as an escort to their queen. This woman traveled in a carriage all her own. She was arrayed as was the Queen of Sheba, and at night she slept in a tent of many gorgeous colors.

The gypsies camped for three days in a bit of woods on the outskirts of Cross Forks, and there the people gathered from all the region round about and had their fortunes told. Seated upon a gilded throne and bedecked with forest flowers, the Queen gazed into the palms of her visitors and revealed their fortunes to them. It was noted that the Queen was not an optimist. Quite frequently would she refuse to talk with some of those who called. To others she gave gloomy forebodings of the dark days to come. "The world is full of sorrows" she would explain, "but there are many joys. You will find them out together."

To the grove in which the gypsies had encamped Grace Richardson and Effie Copley went. They saw the gorgeous tent which enclosed the Queen, and the dozens who entered there and then came out again made them very curious. So they took their place in line and waited to see what the future had in store for them. So inseparable were the girls that they determined that each should hear what was told the other.

Together the girls marched in before the Queen. She took a hand of each, and looking at them sharply, simply said:

"I do not want to tell your fortunes."

This seemed so strange to the cousins that they insisted, and giving way to their importunities the gypsy, taking their hands in hers again, began slowly, as she traced the lines, to read:

DREADFUL PROPHECY.

"I see before both of you," she said, as if reciting a story well known to her, "a few years of happiness. Then will come days of sorrow. You will both die quite young, and your ends will be too dreadful to contemplate. Both will go to the grave by violence and after the same fashion. I did not want to tell you, but you insisted. It is written on your hands, and what is traced there comes true." Then the Queen dismissed them with a sorrowful smile of sympathy.

Now all this seemed but a huge joke to Grace Richardson and Effie Copley. Laughingly they rejoined their friends and told them of their fortunes. Then they departed for their homes. The gypsies moved on and were forgotten, so were their prophecies. One year followed close upon the heels of another until four had been passed. The girls had beaux in plenty, but of all those who visited the Copley house the most favored was Walter E. Goodwin. An industrious young man was Goodwin, and he was well to do. He had a store of his own and a little farm and seemed to be gaining a fortune. It was to her cousin Grace that Miss Copley blushingly first broke the news that soon she was to be married.

The Goodwin-Copley wedding is remembered by all who live at Cross Forks. It was the most promising in many years, and all the neighbors gathered to wish the happy couple well. Grace Richardson was a bridesmaid.

But this little country town quickly became too small for Goodwin and his aspirations. He and his charming little wife moved to Mansfield, in Tioga county, and everything seemed to prosper for awhile. Mansfield is an educational center as well as one of business. It has a normal school, big stores and temptations. Of the latter the Copleys did not know until their daughter appeared at their door and announced that she had come to stay. All of this occurred so sudden that it took the people's breath away.

MURDERED BY HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Goodwin said never a word about her troubles, but it was not long before it was learned that Goodwin's love had been won away from his country help-mate. One day Mrs. Goodwin returned to Mansfield. The next morning her mutilated corpse was found lying in an alley in the principal part of the town. A deep bruise on the head and a bullet hole told the tale of murder.

For a quarter of a century Mansfield had been free from serious crime. From mansion and tenement the people gathered for but a single purpose, the punishment of the destroyer of their peace. Foremost among them was Goodwin. His had been the loss, he said, and his must the vengeance be. But as startled as the town had been upon the discovery of the murder, no less startled was it to learn the very next day that Goodwin had been arrested and taken to Wellsboro. For so sincere had his grief appeared to be that few were willing to believe that he was the slayer of his wife.

The trial of Goodwin will remain long in the minds of the residents of Tioga county. It was fraught with sensation. None knew what evidence there was against the prisoner; the defense was coolly confident. Goodwin appeared in court attended by some of the best attorneys of the northern tier of counties. He smiled upon his friends, shook hands and reassured them he quickly would be free. Then the blow came.

As a mist rolls away and discloses a mountain, so did the prosecution's mystery disappear with the opening of the trial. The first witness was the person to whom of all others Goodwin had looked for aid. She was his guilty partner in the murder—the woman for whose sake Mrs. Goodwin had been slain. Calmly she told the gory tale—each detail she painted in the most grewsome hue. There was little defense. And at the hanging, which occurred in June, 1898, Goodwin told his story just before the black cap was adjusted.

MAN'S DIRE THREAT.

Mrs. Goodwin's tragic death recalled with startling vividness to Grace Richardson the prophecy so earnestly made by the Gypsy Queen so many years before. Her parents pooh-poohed it, her friends smiled at the recollection, but the young woman, still unmarried and unloving, believed that some day the prophecy would come true. Miss Richardson grew thin and wan. She wanted to go away, she cared not in what direction; some place where the scenes of her childhood would no longer haunt her troubled brain; some place where she was not known.

After weeks and months of pleading, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson consented to this plan. Joyously did the victim of the strange hallucination pack her trunk and bid herself away to Galeton. There in the midst of the lumber region, where things were fresh and new, she would find peace.

At Galeton resided Frank Sprague. A lumber king was Sprague. His acres reeked with virgin timber, and his employes were numbered by the score. He was big and commanding, and into his coffers gold was flowing fast. About this time Mrs. Sprague became ill and Miss Richardson, moved by pity, went to nurse her back to health. So womanly was Miss Richardson and so dainty that not only did she win her way into the heart of the invalid, but into the soul of the husband as well. Earnestly he pleaded with her. If she would but run away with him, he said, they would go to the other end of the world; he would cover her with riches and with happiness as well.

Contemplation of Sprague's proposition frightened Miss Richardson far more than the gypsy's proposition. She quietly left the house. Sprague followed and promised that should she ever wed her life would pay the price. Galeton had quite lost its charm by this time. Miss Richardson, still broken in health and on the brink of nervous prostration, returned to the home of her parents in search of the peace which was not there. Day by day the specter of death followed hard behind her. It crept into the room by night and laughed at her derisively in the morning. Then to save her mind, to make one last dash for preservation, this woman determined to flee far away.

PROPHECY FULFILLED.

A party of friends was going to California at this period. Miss Richardson became a member of it. At last, distant from the shadow of her youth, amid the tall trees of Yosemite and the vineyards on the hillside she bloomed as in the years gone by. It was there in the land of the smiling days that the Pennsylvania girl met the man she was fated to wed. Guy T. Hale was his name, and, strangely enough, he, too, was a lumber man. In far-off Washington Hale's possessions struck deep into the forest. There he took his bride and they were happy far beyond their dreams.

A dispatch from Tacoma tells the rest of this strange story.

"Frank F. Sprague, a Pennsylvania lumberman," it says, "arrived in this city from his home in Potter county, that State, a few days ago. He proceeded to the home of Guy T. Hale, seven miles from town, without delay. Sprague found Mrs. Hale, a former acquaintance of his, at home. Her husband was away.

"When Mr. Hale arrived home he was met at the door by his wife, who told him that Sprague was within. Scarcely had she spoken than Sprague, who had followed close behind her, shot Mrs. Hale through the heart, and she fell dead into the arms of her husband. Retreating into the house, Sprague then committed suicide by shooting himself. Hale, who is nearly wild with grief, states that his wife had told him Sprague once threatened to take her life if she ever married. He had come all the way from Pennsylvania to take his vengeance."

A short time ago the remains of Sprague arrived home from Washington. The casket was opened at the station, and there hundreds of the dead man's former friends gathered to do last obeisance to the body. Dr. Cummings and Druggist Hayman made an examination of the corpse and found that Sprague had placed a revolver muzzle between his teeth and pulled the trigger. So the tragedy of the gypsy's prophecy was ended.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail." By Chas. B. Newcomb. Excellent in spiritual suggestiveness. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1. For sale at this office.

SPIRITUALISM:

Will It Ever Become Popular?

Do I hear the question asked, if Spiritualism will ever become a popular religion? My friends, Spiritualism is to-day the most popular religion in the world. It is a religion that if rightly understood by the people, would be wished to be believed by nearly everyone. It is embraced by hundreds every year, and they are becoming Spiritualists in every church all over our land. Some do not know it, and some have had enough of Spiritualism to know to what society they belong.

The very discords arising in the other churches, the lukewarmness expressed by so many on the subject of religion, is the Spiritualism in their natures working in its own good way to counterbalance the evils they have been taught through the past generations. They have come to the conclusion their own belief is not right, and have heard the scriptures expounded in various ways, until becoming tired of the many versions of it, some sit down quietly, discouraged at the conflicting opinions, while others go on investigating on their own account until they become convinced that hell is not one-half as hot as painted by the old divines. If any come to stumbling blocks in their path that seem insurmountable, they always take the easier way, the pleasanter path, where the foothold is clear and the way so bright, that everyone will be enabled to see the glory and the light of the new life, that happy land that lies at our door and where the doors are ever ajar and angel hands are waiting to welcome their friends to the beauties of the higher sphere.

Is Spiritualism popular? I ask. Did you ever tell an unbeliever, one that knew nothing of our faith or in what it consists, that that person did not express a wish that he or she had the faith to believe the beautiful theory, beautiful in living and more beautiful in dying? How many times in telling my friends of my belief, I have had the same thing said to me, and no doubt you have had the same, "Oh, if I only had the faith to believe your beautiful religion."

Now, my friends, did you ever hear a person say he wished he had the faith to become a Methodist, a Presbyterian, a Baptist, or a Catholic? Is it anything to be wished for? Did you ever in your lives hear the wish expressed that anyone had faith to believe one of their doctrines? And why not? Because every teaching of Nature is in direct opposition to them. Every soul shrinks from the horror of such a faith and turns to something more beautiful, more tangible to get hold of, and where it is all light instead of darkness. Nothing but fear taught by other than angel teachers has instilled into the minds of the young the feeling that they must follow in the footsteps of their forefathers and belong to some church in order to be saved. It is nothing beautiful in the religion itself, but a fear born of something dreadful to come if not lived in the only manner they know anything about and have been taught from their earliest infancy. Now is not a religion popular that everyone would like to have faith to possess? or have I misunderstood the meaning of the term popularity?

No one can doubt for one moment that we are sincere and earnest in our work, and mean what we say, and the churches believe it too, and they are becoming awakened to the knowledge of the fact that their religion is a fraud in a degree; although it has done its work well, it must now make way for more advanced thought and higher feeling of good will to all men, making no exceptions between the good and the bad, the high and the low, but giving each and everyone a fair chance and able angel teachers to teach the new truths to be learned to enable us to be advanced on the tree of life as far as we are capable of climbing with the powers we possess here and the help we are given.

Shall we attain a higher degree of Spirituality? It is impossible to tell of the vast possibilities for the attainment of Spirituality. It is without limit. Although we may not satisfy ourselves in this life, believe me everything is sent to us to help us to become something higher, something better. We may not see the whys and wherefores, but the divine presence is over all, inspiring us with higher hopes and mightier ambitions, and our lives are growing nearer the divine plan Nature intended us to fill in this great universe of life.

The very discords in the churches are purifying them. They are cleansing the impure and making them examine their own hearts and minds and leading them to look further for something better and more elevating than they have ever enjoyed, and they are sure to come into a more liberal atmosphere, where the treasures of the storehouse of Nature are poured upon them until they see the errors of their former belief, and enjoy the blessing so richly earned and so dearly bought.

My friends, be not discouraged that everyone is not a Spiritualist. It could not be. It is an impossibility. Our natures are not alike, but the spirituality within is constantly working and struggling with the coarser part of our natures, and is sure to triumph in the end. Look at the many good things that have come with Spiritualism. You can count the blessings by thousands. Is this nothing to be thankful for? Believe me, it is flourishing like the green bay tree, and before we know it light will enter the doors of the most careless observers and they will become imbued with the spirit of progress, until it will not be asked in whispers if he or she is a Spiritualist, but thousands will come to the front and shout the truth in no mild tones, without a tremble in the voice or a quiver of the nerves for fear someone will say he is a Spiritualist, but all will rejoice with joy unspeakable that they have been enabled to see the light with so much force that they fear to tell no man their convictions, and know they are truths sent from the other side of life to cheer and console those whom misfortune and trouble have overtaken until they are nearly fainting by the wayside and have been picked up by their angel friends and made to see the beauties of our religion.

MRS. D. E. PAINE.

Canton, N. Y.

"Never-Ending Life Assured by Science." By Daniel Kent Tenney. A strong and conclusive argument from the basis of science. For sale at this office. Price 6 cents.

"Love—Sex—Immortality." By Dr. W. P. Phelon. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

"Mind and Body: Suggestions and Hypnotism Applied in Medicine and Education." By A. C. Halphide. President Chicago Society of Anthropology. For sale at this office. Price $1.

"Our Bible: Who Wrote It? When? Where? How? Is It Infallible? A Voice from The Higher Criticism. A few thoughts on other Bibles." By Moses Hull. Of especial value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.

VIBRATIONS: THE LAW OF THE UNIVERSE

The Star, the Molecule, Their Path the Law of Design.

By E. C. Getsinger.

Little did the Chinese statesmen dream when they constructed the great wall around their empire to obviate against the invasion of the Tartar, that this same wall would be an obstacle in the way of civilization and that the statesmen of our day or possibly of fifty years hence would order its demolition at certain periodic distances so that intercourse with civilization will be accelerated. This wall was built when a fixed state of thought existed in the ranks of that government and when it was thought that the Tartar hordes would always be a menace. Little did they dream that civilization would threaten the Empire of China as did the Tartar, and that this same wall would serve as an obstacle in the way of both extremes.

The thought realm of a man is like an empire, each trend of thought is as a citizen and according to its degree of importance is either noble or plebeian—graded in this realm according to the law of fancy in one individual, and according to the law of utility in another, or a combination of both. In this thought realm each individual has rules of government, and a thought that applies for citizenship must stand the test of these rules and is accordingly accepted or rejected. But the individual whose thought realm has become like an ancient Chinese empire is the one who has reached a fixed state of thought which acts as a wall around his mental state—where one thinks he repels the invasion of Tartars, when in fact he rejects the fruit of civilization.

The history of religion of science teaches us to beware of a fixed state of thought, but to cultivate a flexible conviction whose radius of expansion is graduated by common sense—the product of civilization.

The great problems of science are not conclusively analyzed in one lifetime, but generations can only pass final judgment. The minor problems can be passed upon after a brief time of trial. The fundamental laws of nature are vast problems and those that were apparently solved and given us a century ago as being facts are now found to be untenable, and were it not for the flexible conviction of the civilized mind this change of opinion would still be impossible.

The finer forces with which science is now dealing forces even the conservative minds beyond the possibility of, conservatism, which is only another name for a fixed state of thought. Genius has never knocked at the door of conservatism but what it was branded a Tartar and rejected. But there is a vast difference between a genuine scholar and thinker whose cautiousness is the stamp of his sincerity, and the rigid conservative thinker who appoints himself as a guardian against a Tartar invasion into the realm of science and who, when approached, merely knits his brow as if it were possible for him to concentrate intensely, then looks as wise as a tree-full of owls and finally drawls out the fact that "this is not exactly in accordance with the authorities on the subject." But such words were never uttered by Goethe when he found the young harum-scarum Schiller, nor by the practical Liszt when he found the esoteric Wagner, nor by the flexible-minded co-workers of Darwin when he dared to lay his views at the feet of conservatism where they were both kicked and pummeled.

The electrical science has revealed some of those finer forces and with such rapidity has one, marvel come upon another that the pseudo-guardians of science have fled in dismay. The owls have deserted the tree of knowledge.

Nothing has so much changed the fundamentals of science as did the relation of vibrations to the electrical science. As electricians became more and more familiar with the fluid with which they were dealing, so did these find it necessary to consider the laws and phenomenon of vibrations. And much of these results are due to the peculiar researches of Tesla, who finally discovered the secret of lighting by high alternations or by vibrating a small volume of electricity at the rate of hundreds of thousands times a second. Electricity sufficient only to ring a telephone or operate a telegraph instrument when lashed into a high degree of agitation becomes the lighting power of an alternating current, and so does water become foam by the same process.

Vibratory energy when not operating under stress or resistance imparts a sensation of cold, but the same rate of vibrations when operating under a stress of resistance manifests as heat, consequently heat is a vibratory energy and only manifests as heat so long as the stress is maintained. A heated molecule is one overburdened with a vibrant energy and this relieved makes a cool molecule. To resolve the phenomenon of heat or of cold to merely conditions under which the vibrant energy operates, is simplifying the causes of one-half of natural phenomena with one sweep. It is said that friction causes molecular heat. What is friction but a vibration. Prove it? Certainly! A vibration is a rapid and rhythmic motion. When two bodies that revolve with the same velocity come in contact with each other they smoothly roll upon each other, but when two bodies revolve with different velocities and come in contact with each these will only touch each other periodically in about the same way as when you moisten your finger then run it over the surface of a varnished table, it periodically touches the table. When this rhythmic contact is exceedingly rapid then it is a vibration. Thus when molecules come together under pressure and these revolving at various velocities, will alternately touch one another, and this at an intensely rapid rate becomes a vibration, this vibrant energy crowding upon the molecules faster than these can dissipate the same, results in a heated state of matter which will be maintained as long as the pressure or resistance is maintained. In this manner heat is a vibration operating upon matter under stress or resistance. Friction is not a continuous contact between two revolving molecules, but is a rhythmic contact, and if the contact alternates at the rate of eighty thousand times a second or more, it is decidedly a vibration.

The stupendous mass of the sun whose molecular particles are all rotating under great stress one against the other, has made the sun a vibrating mass of incandescent matter, the radiations of vibrant waves of energy form heat near the sun and these heat waves when dissipated out into the ether agitates this subtle substance into light, this light vibration becomes mere wave motion through dissipation and which reverberates to the planets whose atmospheres collect the same, and this solar energy when thus re-intensified by atmospheric stratas and directed to the surface of the earth, becomes the earth's heat and light. Beyond the earth's atmosphere this vibrant energy is merely motion and atoms and souls. He was able to manipulate the potencies of the two by utilizing the laws as they developed, until the mechanical universe was formed and until the intelligent expression of the Concrete Mind was manifested in the human form.

Some years ago I was inclined to pantheistic atheism, but subsequent discoveries have led me to believe in God as a unity—a Creator Infinite, whose will, when concentrated for the purpose of spiritual guidance of the human souls upon the earth, or during the early history of man in the physical development of his body by giving forth from the Almighty Presence a series of sanitary, dietetic and social laws for man's physical development, such an occurrence was a manifestation of God upon the earth and when this occurred through human agencies, such a person was called a prophet. In this way the concentration of the Will of God, gave him an apparent personality.

The soul of man is an intelligent entity whose faculties are the reflection of the powers of the Concrete Mind, and in this way is the soul limited while its Creator is unlimited.

I mention these points so as to obviate against the readers' utilizing any of my views in reinforcing their atheistical tendencies, should there be such.

The soul is a dynamic entity possessing nine attributes or faculties, these when uniting and blending with the dynamic entity known as the power of life, or that wave which caused the form, these two upon combining form an intelligent life, possessing powers of discrimination, voluntary application of will, intelligent direction, application, and execution of its powers. Many animals have souls, but none have nine attributes. The dynamic entity or the power of life, and the intelligent entity or the soul, having lived in a blended state within the enclosure known as the body, after death or dissolution (this intelligent entity or the soul loses its form by blending with the dynamical entity of human, and since this latter form existed as a dynamic entity in the beginning of creation before matter encompassed it, hence will remain such after being stripped of the physical outline), enters a dynamic world and there exists under new conditions, where natural laws still govern. Its condition must of necessity be subject to the dominant and universal law of vibration, and by the law of correspondence levitates to a plane that corresponds to the manner of life of the individual, which in turn gives the soul its "pitch and octave."

In-so-much as the electrical science has undermined the materialistic foundation of science, so has the modern science of psychology undermined the materialistic philosophy of life, and if the views here presented seem to be radical, the maxim that "coming events cast their shadows before" will tend to modify the impudence of my intrusion.—Medical Times of New York.

OUR PREMIUMS.

There are many Spiritualists who know a good thing when they see it. There are others, however, who do not seem to realize what is going on around them, and therefore miss many chances to enrich their minds and enlarge their understanding. Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World is furnished to our subscribers at less than cost, and should be in every family in the United States, whether Spiritualists or not. Volumes 1, 2 and 3 constitute a wonderful magazine of thought on Death in its multifarious phases; in fact you can not find in all the libraries of the world as valuable information in regard to Death as you will have presented to you in these three volumes. They are nicely printed, neatly and substantially bound, and are an ornament to any library. Volume 3 is furnished at 25 cents, much less than the actual cost to us, and the three volumes, when ordered in connection with a yearly subscription to The Progressive Thinker, only cost $1.10. The aggregate cost of the three books to the trade is $4.50. At this price, these three books ought to be in every Spiritualist family.

The Progressive Thinker is the first Spiritualist paper to inaugurate the Divine Plan—a portion of the profits of the office returning to subscribers in valuable books.

FOR a moment stop and consider. The Progressive Thinker is the one original dollar Spiritualist paper. It introduced a new era in the ranks of Spiritualism. Its success financially has been all that could be desired. Notwithstanding the rise in the price of print paper, it has still maintained its status as the only one dollar Spiritualist paper. Not only that, but it introduced the Divine Plan in its business with its subscribers—a portion of the profits of the office returning to them. Just think of the Seven Premium Books being sent out to our subscribers for $2.35. After paying the postage of these seven books, and the expense of mailing them, all that we have left is $1.50. You can readily see that we are furnishing them for less, by far, than the actual cost to us. We do this work in accordance with The Divine Plan, in order to assist in forming the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home. Read carefully our premium list, and you will certainly want to become a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker, if not so already, and obtain the books we announce.

555

The above is the number of the present issue of The Progressive Thinker, as printed at the top of the first page, right hand corner. If this number corresponds with the figures on your wrapper, then the time you have paid for has expired, and you are requested to renew your subscription. This number at the right hand corner of the first page is advanced each week, showing the number of Progressive Thinkers issued up to date. Keep watch of the number on the tag of your wrapper.

"Talmagean Inanities, Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies; a Review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism." By Moses Hull For sale at this office. Price ten cents.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

AFTER HER DEATH.

THE STORY OF A SUMMER. BY LILIAN WHITING.

Pervaded with pure and beautiful spirituality of thought. Instructive and helpful to all who love and seek the higher and finer ways of spiritual experience. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

MAHOMET,

His Birth, Character and Doctrine.

BY EDWARD GIBBON.

This is No. 6 of the Library of Liberal Classics. It is conceded to be historically correct, and so exact and perfect in every detail as to be practically beyond the reach of adverse criticism. This work will be found intensely interesting. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

The New and the Old,

Or the World's Progress in Thought. By Moses Hull. An excellent work by this veteran writer and thinker. Price 10 cents.

Origin, Development and Destiny of Man.

A Scientific and Philosophical Treatise, by Thos. P. Fletcher.

CONTENTS: The Beginnings; Fundamental Principles; Formation of Constellations, Systems, Suns Planets and Satellites. The Origin of Meteors and Comets; The Organic Kingdom; The Origin of Man; Man—His Attributes and Powers; The Soul—How it Receives and Imparts Knowledge; How the Soul Receives Its Highest Impressions; The Record Book, or The Heavenly Ether; How to Cultivate the Sixth Sense; The Finer or Spiritual Body; Growth and Degeneration; Morally, Spiritualism Proved by the Bible; The Bible and Christ; The Summary: "What Must We Do to Be Saved." For sale at this office.

Price, cloth, $1.00. Paper 50c.

MOLLIE FANCHER,

The Brooklyn Enigma.

An Authentic Statement of Facts in the Life of Mary J. Fancher,

The Psychological Marvel of the Nineteenth Century.

Unimpeachable testimony of many witnesses.

BY ABRAM H. DAILEY.

With illustrations. Price, cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

A Conspiracy Against the Republic

By Charles B. Waite, A. M., author of "History of the Christian Religion to the Year 200," etc. A condensed statement of the facts concerning the efforts of the church leaders to get control of the government. An important work. Price, paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

ALL ABOUT DEVILS.

Or an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and his subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By Moses Hull. Price, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

ANCIENT INDIA:

Its Language and Religions. By Prof. H. Oldenberg. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

APOLLONIUS OF TYANA.

Identified as the Christian Jesus.

A wonderful communication, explaining how his life and teachings were utilized to formulate Christianity. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

IMMORTALITY,

...OR...

FUTURE HOMES AND DWELLING PLACES.

BY DR. J. M. PEEBLES.

AN INVALUABLE WORK!

This admirable work contains what a hundred spirits, good and evil, say of their dwelling-places. Give us details—details and accurate delineations of life in the Spirit-world!—is the constant appeal of thoughtful minds. Death is approaching. Whither—oh, whither! Shall I know my friends beyond the tomb? Will they know me? What is their present condition, and what their occupations? In this volume the spirits, differing as they may, are allowed to speak for themselves. No man is better qualified than Dr. Peebles to place a work of this kind before the people. He treats of the Mysteries of Life; Doubts and Hopes; The Bridging of the River; Foregleams of the Future; Testimony of Saints; The Growth and Perfection of the Spiritual Body; Is it the Soul or Body that Sins?; Clothing in the Spirit-world; Our Little Ones in Heaven; The Personal Experiences of Aaron Knight; The Red Man's Testimony; Evil Spirits; Testimony of Physicians in Spirit-Life; The Homes of Apostles and Divines; The Friends and Shakers in Spirit-Life; Spirit Homes of Bruno and Others; Many Voices from the Spirit-Land. Many other matters are treated, too numerous to mention. Price, cloth, $1; paper 50 cents. Postage 12 cents. For sale at this office.

In Tune with the Infinite

By Ralph Waldo Trine.

Within yourself lies the cause of whatever enters into your life. To come into the full realization of your own awakened interior powers, is to be able to condition your life in exact accord with what you would have it.—From Title-Page.

CONTENTS—I. Prelude; II. The Supreme Fact of the Universe; III. The Supreme Fact of Human Life; IV. Fullness of Life—Bodily Health and Vigor; V. The Secret, Power and Effect of Love; VI. Wisdom and Interior Illumination; VII. The Realization of Perfect Peace; VIII. Coming into fullness of power; IX. Plenty of All Things—The Law of Prosperity; X. How Men Have Become Prophets, Seers, Sages, and Saviors; XI. The Basic Principle of All Religions—The Universal Religion; XII. Entering Now into the Realization of the Highest Riches. For sale at this office, Price, postpaid, $1.25.

What All the World's a-Seeking.

RALPH WALDO TRINE.

Each is building his world from within; thought is the builder; for thoughts are forces,—subtle, vital, irresistible, omnipotent,—and according as used do they bring power or impotence, peace or pain, success or failure.—From Title-page.

The above books are beautifully bound in gray-green raised cloth, stamped in deep old-green and gold, with gilt top. Price, $1.25. For sale at this office.

WAYSIDE JOTTINGS.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

THE PRIEST, THE WOMAN

—AND—

THE CONFESSIONAL.

BY FATHER CHINIQUY.

This is a most valuable book. It comes from an Ex-Priest, whose character is above reproach, and who knows what he is talking about. Everybody should read it. Price, $1.00. It contains the following chapters:

CHAPTER I.
The Struggle before the Surrender of Womanly Self-respect in the Confessional.

CHAPTER II.
Auricular Confession a Deep Pit of Perdition for the Priest.

CHAPTER III.
The Confessional is the Modern Sodom.

CHAPTER IV.
How the Vow of Celibacy of the Priests is made easy by Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER V.
The highly-educated and refined Woman in the Confessional—What becomes of her after unconditional surrender—Her Irreparable Ruin.

CHAPTER VI.
Auricular Confession destroys all the Sacred Ties of Marriage and Human Society.

CHAPTER VII.
Should Auricular Confession be tolerated among Civilized Nations?

CHAPTER VIII.
Does Auricular Confession bring Peace to the Soul?

CHAPTER IX.
The Dogma of Auricular Confession a Sacrilegious Imposture.

CHAPTER X.
God compels the Church of Rome to confess the Abominations of Auricular Confession.

CHAPTER XI.
Auricular Confession in Australia, America, and France.

CHAPTER XII.
A Chapter for the Consideration of Legislators, Husbands and Fathers—Some of the matters on which the Priest of Rome must Question his Penitent.

Sent Post-paid, Price, $1.00.

WHAT WOULD FOLLOW

The Effacement of Christianity? By George Jacob Holyoake. This is a most valuable contribution to Freethought literature. Bound in paper with good likeness of author. Price, 10 cents; twelve copies for $1.00.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD--ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

CONTRIBUTORS.—Each contributor is alone responsible for any assertions or statements he may make. The editor allows this freedom of expression, believing that the cause of truth can be best subserved thereby. Many of the sentiments uttered in an article may be diametrically opposed to his belief, yet that is no reason why they should be suppressed; yet we wish it distinctly understood that our space is inadequate to publish everything that comes to hand, however much we might desire to do so. That must account for the non-appearance of YOUR article.

WRITE PLAINLY.—We would like to impress upon the minds of our correspondents that The Progressive Thinker is set up on a Linotype machine that must make speed equal to about four compositors. That means rapid work, and it is essential that all copy, to insure insertion in the paper, all other requirements being favorable, should be written plainly with ink on white paper, or with a typewriter, and only on one side of the paper.

ITEMS.—Bear in mind that items for the General Survey will all cases be adjusted to the space we have to occupy, and in order to do that they will generally have to be abridged more or less; otherwise many items would be crowded out. Sometimes a thirty-line item is cut down to ten lines, and ten lines to two lines, as occasion may require. Every item sent to us for publication, should contain the full name and address of the writer. We desire to know the source of every item that appears. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

Take due notice, that all items for this page must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer. It will not do to say that Secretary or Correspondent writes so and so, without giving the full name and address of the writer. The items of those who do not comply with this request will be cast into the waste basket.

Geo. Raley, known in Sioux City, Ia., as Geo. Zelmer, is still at his old work of deceiving the people. It is strange how Spiritualists have been deceived by this trickster.

M. A. England writes: "The books received all right, and please let me thank you for them, for I look upon them as a present, and like many others I don't know how you do it. Beside being so beautiful to look at, what a feast inside!"

Prof. J. Madison Allen has made a flying trip to Northern Texas to deliver a Fourth of July oration, and will visit a number of places for spiritual work. For engagements address him at Fort Worth, Texas.

C. E. Dent writes from Vicksburg, Mich.: "I expect to attend the camps as follows: Will be at Briggs Park camp, Grand Rapids, Mich., August 12, 13 and 14; August 5 to 11 at Vicksburg, Mich.; at Haslett Park, August 19 to stay a few days. May take in some of the other camps a few days. I will take subscriptions for The Progressive Thinker whenever I have an opportunity. I hold myself in readiness to conduct funerals or solemnize marriages, or work in the missionary work when called on. Address, Vicksburg, Mich."

Farmer Riley, the well-known materializing medium, is now in the city, and is open for engagements to hold seances here whenever desired. Mr. Riley has an excellent reputation as a materializing medium. He has been sick for several months unable to do anything. He has now recovered, and possesses greater powers than ever as a medium, and his manifestations can not fail to be satisfactory. A letter will reach him if addressed to 16 Pacific avenue, Room 27. Those who desire to see him personally can do so by consulting Policeman Bland, of the Open Board of Trade.

Mrs. Sue Gary writes from Rockport, Ky.: "I would like to make inquiry through your paper for the whereabouts of Charles Gratz (Sphinx). Some that met him in Kentucky last year are very anxious to communicate with him."

Mrs. R. V. Ferris sends the following from Walton, Mich., sworn to by nine persons before a notary: "We the undersigned wish to certify to the following test put upon Miss Dolly Williams (a medium) in a circle held for that purpose June 28, 1900: First, we put a pair of black mittens on her hands, sewed them to her dress sleeve with white thread, sewed her dress up in front, put her into the cabinet, sewed her hands down to her lap, sewed her fast to the cabinet, and closed it up. There was talking independently, and through the trumpet; hands appeared from the top and bottom of the cabinet. She was in this trance for about one hour, and when we opened the cabinet we found the mittens on her hands, the same as we left them; everything the same except that she was tied hand and foot, head and neck, and wound up in a regular network of black thread, and there was no black thread in the room when we put her in the cabinet."

J. H. Moon writes from Little Rock, Ark.: "A good test medium would do well here. I would be glad to correspond with some good lecturer and test medium who would like to come to our city."

Columbus Wells writes: "Why is it vegetarians cannot offer the first effectual remedy for the discontinuance of meat eating? It is very foolish for them to say it is wrong to eat meat, for it has been used for millions of years. If they think it is not good for anyone to eat meat, let them bring out a remedy. Do they think the working people can live on nothing?"

Mrs. M. E. S. writes from Fort Dodge, Iowa: "I believe Mrs. Hooker McEvoy, in her article 'An Earnest Appeal for Honesty,' voices the sentiment of every honest investigator of Spiritualism. Any so-called medium that cannot stand an honest test condition, has no right to be a medium, and should under no conditions be allowed to practice their sleight-of-hand or legerdemain art on any public, faithful or skeptical. It is a fact well known to all kinds of tricksters, that it is an easy matter to delude the faithful Spiritualist. If ever any non-Spiritualists happen to be present at such seances they are as a rule relegated to the very rear seats, no matter how honest may be their motive for being present, and the faithful never protest at such apparent injustice. The least bit of a trick proves the phenomena to them without a question. If said Spiritualists could just reason a little coolly on the subject they so love, they would be able to see many a thin fraud as keen as they now see all the fallacies in the orthodox church. Another detriment to the cause is the $1 rate seance, which you are expected to pay whether anything is proven to you or not, and helps in almost every case sustain a fraud. If the medium be honest, no such price is necessary, any hall would be crowded by people eager and anxious to hear the truth were a price set in the reach of all, and such action would soon crowd out the tricksters, and they would not be able to deceive a large mixed audience very long, and could be prosecuted for obtaining money under false pretense."

Wilmer Holmes writes from Brainerd, Minn.: "Those sterling workers, G. W. Kates and wife, stopped here one night, June 13, and lectured and gave tests to a small but appreciative audience. Hope they will come again and stay longer."

Correspondent writes: "The Progressive Lyceum of Galveston, Texas, held their third annual sunflower party June 17, the theme for discussion being 'Love lightens labor,' and the emphasized thought 'As the sunflower turns its face to the light of the sun so Spiritualism turns the face of humanity to the light of Truth.' July 4 the children and a number of adult friends met at the residence of the conductor, which was prettily decorated with flags and bunting, and appropriately commemorated the nation's birthday with recitations, songs, etc."

Mary A. Ingalls, of Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "Since I became a believer in Spiritualism, nearly six years ago, I have heard what I believe to be spirit voices, which guide me. I have had impressions which, when followed, always leads me to success. I am acquainted with a true medium, unknown to the public, except in a small way, and while entranced she has told me of events which would come into my life months ahead, and the events have taken place just as predicted. I have supposed that I was being directed by invisible spirits. Within the past two years I have read a few of Helen Wilman's books, and at present I am taking lessons in Mental Science of an Institute in Canada. My teacher tells me that all power is within myself. He gives me no thought that spirit friends are my helpers." Of course the voices you hear emanate from spirits. Any person who teaches you that all power is within yourself, certainly lacks common sense. All power is equivalent to infinite power, and no human being possesses that.

Viola writes from Syracuse, N. Y.: "The First Spiritualists' Church closed its meetings in Clinton Hall, Sunday, June 27. Mrs. Mary C. Von Kanzler, their speaker and medium for the past month, has been requested to return to them after the heated season has passed. In her private work she has made many friends. She visited Auburn, N. Y., and in the future, with other interested minds, will do some work there. 'The society has not held any meetings for more than a year,' was the words of their then secretary, Frank Mohr. The societies in Oswego and Hannibal have not held any meetings for almost a year. The president of the State Association reports a need of missionaries for the work. What we most need at present is financial aid. It would prove the greatest missionary of to-day, with our already developed speakers and mediums put into the field under right generalship, so as not to give all the money that the people can raise into the hands of railroad magnates. There could also be brought into use much undeveloped home talent, that would unfold into great good, that could help to hold the scattered forces, and with the hope of a visit from a speaker once or twice a month, there would be kindled a flame of interest."

Mrs. Minnie G. Van Tyne writes from East Syracuse, N. Y.: "I have been a reader of The Progressive Thinker since February last, taking advantage of your generous offer of premiums, the Occult Life of Jesus of Nazareth and The Next World Interviewed, which I prize very highly. Grand meetings have been held in our community by Mrs. Mary C. Von Kanzler, whom we secured about three months ago to give lectures and tests. There is no one more pleased than I am to receive spirit messages, but it is not wholly spiritual tests that tend to upbuild the cause of Spiritualism. I agree with Brother J. M. Humphrey that our cause should be called 'Modern Educationalism.'"

Miss Thomas's meetings in Hygeia Hall have been closed for the summer. This has been a year of excellent success. At the request of many friends, Miss Thomas gave a picnic on Sunday, July 1. Mrs. Townes kindly gave the use of her beautiful grove, also her house, at East Grossdale, for the purpose. The day was beautiful, and over 200 people were in attendance and a most enjoyable time was had. All went home delighted and with loud praise for Miss Thomas's ability as an entertainer.

Mrs. Eliza Smith writes: "Since reading the first two or three letters from the pen of Carlyle Petersilea I look for his offering each week, and even long for the paper to reach me. They answer so many questions that we all want to know about, of which we have been so ignorant, and their helpful, straightforward way of dealing with matters spiritual makes me feel that I am indeed listening to that master mind, Franz Petersilea. To me, they alone are worth the price of the paper, and I sincerely hope that they may continue for a long time to come, as I believe that worlds of good may be accomplished thereby. Often have I been tempted to write direct to Carlyle Petersilea, thanking him for the privilege of reading those grand thoughts, so masterfully expressed, and assuring him of the great good to be derived from them, but I have not yet ventured to assume that liberty. I am getting together a library of spiritual books, having already a good nucleus upon which to build, and I now wish you to send me the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World—Vols. 1, 2, and 3, and The Next World Interviewed, for which I enclose you $2.50. The Progressive Thinker is a rare gem, with its liberal, unselfish policy, and I do wish it could find its way into every home in the land."

"I am not prepared to state that the dead can come to life," said H. R. Peters, "but the experience of a friend of mine in a Pennsylvania German town recently would seem to incline one that way. In the town where he was visiting he became acquainted with the local undertaker, and in that way was enabled to be present at the funeral of a young woman who had expired from a shock at seeing her husband fall from a load of hay, according to the Chicago Record. He was not hurt at all, but she was to all intents and purposes, as dead as the proverbial door nail. The body was laid out in the parlor and all the relatives and friends had assembled to pay their last respects to the dead. As is customary in that locality, a big funeral dinner was served. In the midst of the meal the parlor door opened and in walked the corpse. It didn't take a minute to clean the room, leaving the intruder from the spirit world in sole possession. The undertaker finally plucked up courage enough to return to the dining-room, and found his subject enjoying a hearty meal after her enforced fast. Her first question was: 'Was Jake hurt much?'"

Charles Heisen writes from Baltimore, Md.: "Quite an awakening in the interest of our glorious cause has taken place in this city during the past few weeks, through the mediumship of Miss Alice M. Cary. Miss Cary is one of the finest instruments the spirit world has, being finely educated, and a gifted musician and composer. Possessing these valuable qualifications normally, and being of an exceedingly refined and sensitive nature, it will be thus seen that the spirit rarely has so fine an instrument for its use. Miss Cary is occupying Benson's Hall three nights a week, to highly delighted audiences, last Sunday being especially so. After a poem read in the opening exercises, she was controlled by Colonel Ingersoll, who gave one of his grand and eloquent addresses for which he is so famous. After the lecture Miss Cary gave upwards of thirty tests, nearly all of which were recognized."

Word comes from Toledo, Ohio, that Mrs. Laura Webb, the Southern editor, author, poet, and elocutionist, is reported to have attempted to end her life there recently by taking a dose of chloroform. She has been in Toledo several months, giving entertainments, and while there attended several Spiritualistic meetings. She took such an interest in Spiritualism, it is said, that she became deranged and very violent. She tried to throw herself from a window Saturday night, and was locked up in a police station. For a number of years Mrs. Webb edited a Southern newspaper, and enjoys a wide acquaintance with literary men and women. Her husband was a general in the Confederate army. It has been correctly estimated that where one becomes insane in consequence of investigating Spiritualism, one hundred become insane through religious excitement.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay, of Grand Rapids, Mich., will be absent from their home for several weeks. They will leave for Milwaukee, Wis., on July 9, and intend doing a missionary work along the line of travel. They will visit several places before going to camp at Clinton, Iowa. Communications sent by mail to us will be forwarded to them from time to time as they change place. They write: "We had the pleasure of attending Briggs Park camp-meeting last Sunday. The weather was fine, and in the afternoon quite a large audience listened to the lecture of Dr. Peebles. The opening of camp indicates a prosperous season."

The citizens on Church street, South Charleston, Ohio, are much alarmed, it is claimed, over a haunted house in the neighborhood. The house is occupied by C. F. Diffendal, a prominent livery man. For some time the family on arising in the morning would find the furniture changed about and upset. It was thought some members of the family were doing it, but this was found to be incorrect. On Sunday night Mr. Diffendal sat up, hoping to find the intruder, but failed, although the furniture was changed and more havoc than ever prevailed. Last night Mr. Diffendal had Mr. Drake, the marshal, and Ralph Harrold, editor of the Sentinel, to stay at the house. With all the lights extinguished the men kept watch, but nothing was seen or heard. However, next morning revealed the fact that "spooks" had visited the house, as the furniture was changed from room to room and tables in the room where they sat were upside down. All this occurred with three men sitting in the room in the darkness. The house is owned by Mrs. Graham, of Springfield. The whole affair is a mystery, and will be sifted to the bottom, if possible.

Mrs. M. J. Carter writes: "Our Spiritual (4th of July) celebration at Jonesboro, Ind., was a complete success. Dr. H. C. Andrews was here and gave two of his characteristic patriotic speeches, which were a blaze of eloquence from start to finish, under influence of Mrs. Colby Luther and Mrs. Alice Marsh."

Santa Teresa Urreak, the woman healer (notices of whom have often appeared in The Progressive Thinker), on whose head Mexico has placed a price and who is accused of having twice incited the Yaqui Indians of Sonora to rebel against the established Government, is now in Arizona, and a few days since she was married at Clifton, to one Juan Rodriguez. The couple went to Metcalf to spend their honeymoon and the next day word was brought to Clifton that the bridegroom had attempted to murder the alleged saint. Two sheriffs chartered an engine and hastened to Metcalf. They found the village in an uproar. After trying to kll his wife, Rodriguez had shut up the town and disappeared. He was subsequently run down by the officers and arrested. Some years ago, while Santa Teresa was in El Paso engaged in healing the sick, a well-dressed stranger from Mexico sought to make her his wife and proposed that they spend their honeymoon in Mexico. Santa Teresa was at the time a fugitive from her native land for political reasons and her father refused to sanction the match, fearing that the Mexican government had devised the scheme to decoy her back across the border and thus effect her capture.

Clara P. Johnson writes from Canon City, Col.: "Reports from the Spiritualistic field in this section of our country seem to be scarce, and therefore would give the impression that the laborers in the Spiritual work here are asleep. This is not the case, however. We hold meetings and seances here in our little city quite often, and they are always well attended. We have a young lecturer here, Harry A. Davis, who gives splendid promise of becoming one of our leading speakers. He is liberal in belief, and as a speaker he is earnest and impressional, which together with a splendid flow of language makes him an interesting and entertaining speaker. Mr. Davis, working with his father, a splendid medium, Charles H. Davis, of Frankfort, Neb., together with a few other self-sacrificing souls, have aroused much enthusiasm in the noble work in this vicinity. With such earnest workers as these and such progressive journals as The Progressive Thinker, the cause is sure to gain ground."

The Denver (Col.) Post says: "Spiritualism and how far its influence may be permissible before fraud is declared is the vital point in the trial to recover $700 damages in the case of Lucinda Rounsevell and H. L. Blackman vs. W. C. Marshall and Jeannette A. Marshall, his wife. Miss Blackman and Mrs. Rounsevell conducted a restaurant in 1897 and Mr. Marshall ate at their place for a year. During that time, the plaintiffs allege, he ingratiated himself in their good graces, finally telling them that he was a clairvoyant and occult scientist; that he was not as other men are, but that he had spiritual guides, who instructed him to befriend the two lonely, hard-working women by giving them an opportunity to purchase a half interest in a mine owned by his wife at Empire for $400; that it was purely friendship that prompted such a sacrifice of valuable property, but his guides had given him messages from departed spirits, relatives of the sisters, and these messages urged the women to place their small savings of $400 into the mine and soon they would become very wealthy. Many were the conversations held in regard to Spiritualism, and many messages were received by the women from their dead friends, until Mr. Marshall shone with a spiritual halo to the women, who believed him wealthy, honest and a friend raised up by their dead friends to help them in their struggle for a living. This intense belief lasted until a short time ago, when assays revealed the worthlessness of the mining property, and now the suit comes as a result, and a jury will decide whether Mrs. Rounsevell and Miss Blackman were sort of criminally ignorant and trustful and whether or not Mr. Marshall was wrong in claiming this occult power and thus influencing the unwary. The case is being tried in the county court."

Lyman C. Howe is at Lake Brady this week.

The Salt Lake City News says: "The question whether there is a life after this, and if so, whether the fact can be demonstrated, has lately occupied the minds of some scientists. Professor Flournoy, of the University of Geneva, is just out with a book dealing with this subject. The author has for a heroine a young woman who on weekdays earns a living as an employe of a dry goods shop, but on Sunday acts as the 'medium' of a Spiritualist circle, which invited Professor Flournoy to examine her. In these trances this young woman becomes the wife of a rajah of South Kanara, who lived in the fifteenth century, and while so 'controlled' she converses fluently in a mysterious Oriental tongue. But she is not confined to this role by any means. She essays others, and with as remarkable success. All the tests that scientific men could suggest to M. Flournoy to apply to this remarkable young woman when in a trance he has adopted, but by none of them has it been proved that the elements of fraud is 'Mlle. Smith's' controlling force. On this side Professor Hyslop has lately conducted certain psychical researches in the same line. These have been made through the medium of Mrs. Piper, who, while in a state of 'trance,' has recorded with pencil on paper, in reply to questions asked, certain communications or messages from deceased friends and relatives of Dr. Hyslop, the inquiries having been carried on under conditions intended to preclude the possibility of deception, and to be, at the same time, free from telepathic influences. The inference which Dr. Hyslop conveys in his discussion, as the result of these repeated inquires and the verification of their details, is that it is easier to believe that the information received came from discarnate spirits than from any other source."

G. H. Brewster writes: "The Sunflower Social Club, of which Mrs. Georgia Glady's Cooley is president, met Thursday evening, June 28, at the residence of Brother J. W. Bowen, northeast corner 31st and Dearborn streets. Mrs. O. B. Wilson, vice-president, presided. The meeting was an enthusiastic one, and especially so when Sister Cooley's letter to the club was read by Dr. H. A. Cross, and the secretary was instructed to reply, requesting another for our next meeting, which will be held at Sister Allison's on Thursday evening, July 26, No. 2521 Michigan avenue. The old officers were re-elected with the exception of the secretary, W. FitzHugh Smith, who resigned. Bro. G. H. Brewster was chosen to fill his place. Some of the members of the club thought that the handsome diamond sun-burst pin given to Sister Cooley at her farewell reception, was not enough for their president and pastor, so they had a handsome engraved souvenir programme of her reception, which was decorated with beautiful floral designs by Mrs. Dr. H. A. Cross. It was a spontaneous outburst of feeling on the part of her followers, and no doubt will be warmly cherished and come to the front wherever Mrs. Cooley may be. The club had a picnic Sunday afternoon, July 8, at Washington Park."

Mrs. F. Otto informs us that resolutions were passed at Syracuse, N. Y., endorsing Mrs. Mary C. Von Kanzler for the good work she did there as speaker and test medium.

Carrie Swenson writes: "A grove meeting was held on Mr. T. Ryan's farm, four miles east of Pine City, Minn., from June 30 to July 5. As it rained most of this time the roads were muddy and prevented many from attending but those that could be present seemed very interested. Mrs. S. M. Lowell was the speaker and test medium, the writer assisting a little at times. Mr. A. Moe, from Grantsburg, Wis., spoke in the forenoon on the 4th of July. The Woodside Society at this place is chartered by the State Association, and its members are very earnest workers in the spreading of our philosophy. Mrs. Lowell is willing to attend such grove meetings wherever her presence is desired. Her address is 1203 Aldrich avenue, North Minneapolis, Minn., or Anoka, Minn."

Mrs. S. Snyder of Philadelphia, writes that she has the three volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic and Ghost Land. Of course she is delighted with them.

Mrs. Wm. H. Lyon writes from Maine: "I wish to extend thanks to you for the four premium books received, consisting of the three volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, and the Next World Interviewed. I consider them almost a gift, and very interesting. I wish every Spiritualist and Investigator could have them in their homes."

Allie Lindsay Lynch writes: "I have removed from Chicago, and will make my home at Mena, Arkansas. As soon as I am settled in the quiet little home I am about to build, my labors in the Spiritualistic fields will be carried forward. Health for a loved companion, quiet at home, and to reside near an only brother are the motives which lead to my removal from the great noisy city on the lake. Friends will please write me at Mena, Arkansas, Box 176."

B. R. Anderson writes: "As the horror of being buried alive seems to prevail, I will state what has entirely quieted my agitated mind on this subject. My only fear now is, that as I am living entirely alone, my request might not be carried out. When the decision to bury has become final, I have requested that a sponge thoroughly saturated with chloroform may be placed beside me in the casket. It should be sufficient to prevent the possibility of waking. To me an assurance of this kind entirely robs premature burial of all its horror."

Mrs. Latham writes: "The Spiritual people of Leonidas, Mich., held a picnic on the lawn of Mr. S. Kinnie, on July 4. There was a large attendance, and a general good time. After a very bountiful dinner served under the beautiful shade trees, the people were called to order, Mrs. Culbertson acting as chairman on the occasion. They were then pleasantly entertained by several fine recitations and songs by the little ones as well as the elder ones. Mrs. Culbertson delivered a very able and patriotic address; Mr. Carpenter also gave a short address, subject, 'Training Our Children to be Patriots.' The entertainment was interspersed with several fine musical selections by Mr. Geo. Milllard and his graphophone. In the evening a seance was held by Mr. Riley Louther (transfiguration medium), with very satisfactory results."

New Camp at Columbus, O.

On the "Glorious Fourth" I closed my first engagement with this camp association. The intense heat is against us, but the situation has many promising features. The grounds are dry and spacious, with chance to cover two acres or so with a lake of spring water, and the approaches are easy and pleasant. Considering the various disadvantages attending a new camp, the attendance the first Sunday was very good and a marked interest manifested. Mrs. Cora Noyes followed each lecture with platform tests, and those who were personally concerned seemed to accept them as genuine and satisfactory. On the Fourth, particularly, there were several that were quite striking, and she impresses one as sincere—not loaded with "stock tests." At the flag-raising, Rev. Mr. Parsons of the G. A. R., made a pertinent and interesting speech. He is a Methodist divine, and was a chaplain in the U. S. army during the Civil war, and a man of fine abilities. He sat upon the platform during the afternoon lecture, and cordially endorsed the address. It was his first experience in a spiritual meeting. The music was excellent, both the instrumental and vocal. The band boys seemed interested in the meetings and their music was choice. Miss or Mrs. Black from Columbus sang a charming solo in a charming manner, and a male quartette from New York delighted all and were vigorously encored.

A new trolley line is in prospect for next year which will connect the camp with outlying towns and cities, and make access cheap and convenient. On Sunday morning, Mr. Marshall, of Columbus, gave an address of welcome, in behalf of the mayor of the city, breathing a cordial spirit and fraternal interest in the objects and aims of the camp association. If the people appreciate the opportunities this camp offers them, they will fill up the room with tents and cottages, and make this a great center of attraction and a power for good. Mr. Dennis, the president, and Dr. Noyes are active and hopeful, and I trust this will be a leading camp in the state in the near future. May prosperity attend it.

LYMAN C. HOWE.

Lily Dale Camp.

Letters denouncing, and letters supporting materializing mediums who are now located at Lily Dale, are sent me almost daily. This question of the reliability of this phase of mediumship cannot easily be settled. As long as people demand and will run after this kind of manifestation they must take their chances as to its genuineness. To say materialization is all humbug is carrying the matter too far; to accept all as genuine is equally a mistake, as I honestly believe from my own experience in investigation, however, there are other ways by which communication can be held with the spirit side of life, and ways by which useful instruction can be given, and through this we can gain all that we seek without cheating ourselves or being cheated. The only way to get rid of fraud is to let it die a natural death; that is, give it nothing to feed upon. If you have been cheated once, and you know you have, keep away from the flame that burned you and do not, moth-like, go fluttering back to have your wings singed again. When people get awakened to the full meaning of the message brought to earth through the inter-communion of the two worlds, they will see more clearly the heights from which their spirit friends are watching, and will look higher than the seance room for that which will feed their hungry souls, and bring to them the deeper meaning of life, and the truer revelations of the spirit world.

We are pleased to know that Mrs. Thankful Gaston, wife of our honored president, A. Gaston, is again to spend the season at Lily Dale.

Those who are attending Clegg Wright's classes speak of them in the highest terms. We are glad they continue through the month.

Rev. Moses Hull has purchased a home at Lily Dale. We understand Rev. A. J. Weaver also contemplates the purchase of a cottage here.

Mrs. Greenameyer is again located at Lily Dale.

The camp is already well filled, and there is every indication of a large attendance during the entire session. Hotel accommodations are good, and all who come can be well served.

MARY WEBB BAKER.

Lake Brady, O.

The encampment here is now fairly started with enough genuine mediums on the grounds to convince all the skeptics in the Western Reserve if they would only come here to be convinced. Willard Hull and E. W. Sprague were respectively speaker and test medium at the opening session, with D. A. Herrick as chairman. Many leading Spiritualists occupied the platform and made short speeches. Mr. Hull gave one of the finest addresses we have ever had the pleasure of hearing. Said he: "Love is life and God is love, therefore Love cannot die. But the man who loves nobody must covet death. Yet death is only transformation. The dead are more alive than we are who live on the wrong side, the seamy side of life. It is time Spiritualists were converted. Representing as they do a tremendous fact in nature, they should learn to appreciate it more and apply it to the needs of life. The beautiful ship of earth is floating through space with a noise so loud you can't hear it. One man has control of the hold. Though the ship is freighted with all the needs of life, every passenger must pay tribute to him for the privilege of pulling out a few things. Our economic system makes it impossible to do business honestly. Any one who tries it will be bankrupt in a year. This is the verdict of business men. Opportunities for young men are growing narrower and narrower under this struggle of individual interest. And what is individuality? A mop-rag on the wheel of God's eternal decrees because in doing for others we do for ourselves. Of all sacred things the most sacred thing is a platform such as this where we dare tell the truth. Even the truth regarding this grand, glorious, yet besotted country, based upon a bung-hole economy; cutting bung-holes as it were out of the air and building barrels around them. An angel with a spy-glass may find a soul away down in the dark cavern of the dead millionaire, who has allowed others to starve around him, but it will take an angel to do it. But the higher powers are controlling all this, and giving us an object lesson in the struggle for life down here in its claypits that will eventually bring out the angel in the human."

The management of Lake Brady is almost completely changed from that of last year, but everything runs smoothly with bright prospects for a successful season.

The various phases of mediumship on the grounds are as follows: Full form materialization, manifestations in the light, independent slate-writing and independent voices, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Renner, the former of Cleveland and the latter of Pittsburg. Trance and test mediums, Mrs. H. C. Ebertshauser of Sandusky, Mrs. Cooper, of Akron, and Geo. W. Way of Wheeling Island, W. Va. Trumpet mediums, C. J. Barnes, D. A. Herrick. Inspirational and business mediums, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Sprague of Jamestown, N. Y. There are other mediums that have not yet reported, expected on the grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Sprague are organizing a school for psychic development.

The Womans' Lake Brady Association has been re-organized for the season.

The Fourth of July here was duly observed with a splendid patriotic oration by Mr. E. W. Sprague, a display of fireworks and dance in the evening.

The Haines' Orchestra, of Detroit, has been engaged for the season and we are safe in saying, now discourses some of the sweetest music ever heard at Lake Brady. Mrs. Flora Russell, assisted by Mrs. Sadie Herrick, with Miss Fannie Russell as accompanist, render beautiful selections in vocal music.

MRS. M. M'CASLIN.

STRANGE MENTAL POWERS.

How People Are Influenced.

Startling Words From the Committee Appointed to Investigate Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism for the Benefit of World Readers.

From New York World.

F. H. STOUFER Secretary and Treasurer of Railway Conductors, Pueblo, Col.

REV. J. C. QUINN, D. D., PH. D., Pittsfield, Ill.

HENRY MOREHEAD, M. D., Campbell, Mo.

JACOB RODRAIN, JR., Frackville, Pa.

Hypnotism is no longer a myth, a fanciful creation of the mind, but a reality, a most potent power, capable of producing infinite good. For the purpose of ascertaining the exact value of this much-talked-of-power a committee, composed of a prominent minister, a well-known physician, a practical business man and a leading railroad man, was appointed to investigate Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism.

The committee carried on a series of investigations in regard to the power of Hypnotism to influence the actions and deeds of people in the everyday walks of life.

The first steps taken by the members of the committee was to master the science in every detail, so that they might state from personal experience the good or evil this strange power might produce. They wrote the New York Institute of Science, of Rochester, N. Y., the greatest school of Hypnotism and Occult sciences in the world, and received full and complete instructions in regard to how Hypnotism may be used to influence people in business, how to use it in treating diseases, etc., etc. In a few days they mastered these instructions and were full-fledged hypnotists.

It was clearly demonstrated that hypnotism may be employed so that the person operated upon is entirely unconscious of the fact that he is being influenced; and, all things considered, the committee regards it as the most valuable discovery of modern times. A knowledge of it is essential to one's success in life and well-being in society.

Mr. Stoufer performed the astonishing feat of hypnotizing Mr. Cunningham, of Pueblo, Col., at a distance of several blocks. He also hypnotized an aged gentleman and had him run through the street shouting "Red-hot peanuts for sale." Mr. Stoufer says it is indispensable to one's business success, that it gives a man a wonderful power and advantage over his associates.

Rev. Mr. Quinn says that every minister and every mother should understand personal magnetism and hypnotism for the benefit they can be to those with whom they are brought in daily contact.

Dr. Morehead says, after a thorough investigation, that he considers it the most marvelous therapeutic or curative agent of modern times.

Jacob Rodrain, Jr., says: "I believe one may, through the agency of hypnotism, develop a force of character, a magnetic power that will make him practically irresistible. I never before understood the secret of the influence which some men exercise over audiences and large bodies of people. I was completely astounded at the extent to which people can be influenced without their knowledge."

In speaking of this marvelous power, President Eliot, of Harvard College, said to the graduates: "Young gentlemen, there is a subtle power lying latent in each of you, which few of you have developed, but which when developed might make a man irresistible. It is called Personal Magnetism or Hypnotism. I advise you to master it."

The New York Institute of Science has just issued 10,000 copies of a book which fully explains all the secrets of this marvelous power, and gives explicit directions for becoming a practical hypnotist, so that you can employ the force without the knowledge of any one. Anybody can learn. Success guaranteed.

The book also contains a full report of the members of the committee. It will be sent absolutely free to any one who is interested. A postal card will bring it. Write to-day.

Address NEW YORK INSTITUTE OF SCIENCE, Dept. NB 17, Rochester, N. Y.

A CARD.

The principals of Belvidere Seminary would respectfully inform their friends and the public generally that this institution will be open during the summer and early autumn for the accommodation of children and adults who seek freedom from business cares or the excitement of social and fashionable life. Its location is healthy and beautiful, its grounds ample and well shaded, drainage and water excellent.

Belvidere, as its name indicates, is a beautiful inland town, in Northern New Jersey, 700 feet above the sea, and surrounded on all sides by forest-covered hills, at the base of which flow the Pequest and Delaware rivers, along whose banks are many places of special interest to artists and all lovers of the picturesque in nature.

Its streets are well shaded and lighted with electricity. In its near vicinity are well cultivated farms, from which a fresh supply of milk, eggs, butter, fresh fruits and vegetables can be had daily. It is only twelve miles from Easton, Pa., and ten miles from the Delaware Water Gap. It is easy of access from New York and Philadelphia by the Pennsylvania and Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroads, with six trains running daily each way. Its walks and drives are exceptionally fine, presenting an ever pleasing variety of river and mountain scenery. Here is just the place for the weary to find repose and the recreation that invigorates without fatiguing. For further particulars, address A. C. BUSH,

Belvidere, Warren Co., N. J.

"Woman, Church and State." A historical account of the status of woman through the Christian ages; with reminiscences of the Matriarchate. By Matilda Joslyn Gage. An important work for all women, students of history, etc. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, gilt, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Nature Cure." By Drs. M. E. and Rosa C. Conger. Excellent for every family. Cloth, $1.50 and $2.

"The Truth Seeker Collection of Forms and Ceremonies for the Use of Liberals." For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Commandments Analyzed." By W. H. Bach. The Commandments are not only analyzed, but contrasted with other Bible passages, showing great incongruities. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"Encyclopedia of Biblical Spiritualism: or a Concordance of the Principal Passages of the Old and New Testament Scriptures which prove or imply Spiritualism; together with a brief history of the origin of many of the important books of the Bible." By Moses Hull. The well-known talented and scholarly author has here embodied the results of his many years' study of the Bible in its relations to Spiritualism. As its title denotes, it is a veritable encyclopedia of information on the subject. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The World Beautiful." By Lilian Whiting. Most excellent in their high and elevating spirituality of thought. Series 1, 2, and 3, each complete in itself. Price, cloth, $1 per volume. For sale at this office.

"Buddhism and Its Christian Critics." By Dr. Paul Carus. An excellent study of Buddhism, compact yet comprehensive. Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin, Heights, Ohio.

NOTE.—The Questions and Answers have called forth such a host of respondents, that to give all equal hearing compels the answers to be made in the most condensed form, and often clearness is perhaps sacrificed to this forced brevity. Proofs have to be omitted, and the style becomes thereby assertive, which of all things is to be deprecated. Correspondents often weary with waiting for the appearance of their questions and write letters of inquiry. The supply of matter is always several weeks ahead of the space given, and hence there is unavoidable delay. Every one has to wait his time and place, and all are treated with equal favor.

NOTICE—No attention will be given anonymous letters. Full name and address must be given, or the letters will not be read. If the request be made, the name will not be published. The correspondence of this department has become excessively large, especially letters of inquiry requesting private answers, and while I freely give whatever information I am able, the ordinary courtesy of correspondents is expected. HUDSON TUTTLE.

F. W. D.: Q. (1) We constantly hear rappings on the doors and furniture, yet when we sit in circle we receive nothing. Why?

(2) What gases are there that will ignite when suddenly compressed?

A. (1) It is much easier for a spirit to give a single rap, than to time responses to questions. A well-organized circle, with patience, will reach the desired result.

(2) Hydrogen and oxygen, when suddenly compressed, unite with explosive energy and produce water.

"Hope" Q. How can the physical life be prolonged?

A. It is a singular paradox of human nature, this want to live on earth as long as possible, even if that life has become a burden for its suffering and deprivations. The tramp who sleeps under a hay stack and begs his cold lunch desires to live with the tenacity of the millionaire surrounded by every luxury heart may wish. Scientists speculate on the possibilities of prolonging life indefinitely, and theorize how by balancing the processes of renovation and decay, the vital forces may be conserved to a century or more. There are endless receipts for preserving health and life beyond the three score years and ten, allotted as the life of man, so diverse that they become amusing. The witty Dr. Holmes had rules by which he expected to reach an age which would go on record. He worked by rule, ate by rule, slept by rule, rested by rule, and came to a sudden end. Dr. Fiske, the distinguished historian, claims he is sound as a nut, yet works the largest part of the twenty-four hours, eats what he likes, drinks two or three quarts of beer, never gets out of a draught; prefers to sit in one; in short takes no thought of his health, and has the best in the market.

Dr. Pearson says his rule is: "Keep cool, don't overload the stomach, breathe pure air and lots of it, eat a vegetable diet, don't eat late suppers, go to bed early, don't fret, don't go where you'll get excited, and don't forget to take a nap after dinner." That is good for a millionaire, but how is John Smith to follow, who has to work ten hours a day to support his family? Yet a great many John Smiths, with hard work and coarse fare, rough it to a good old age, and many a millionaire living by this rule dies young!

One old gentleman has been a vegetarian, drank nothing but water, indulged in no excesses, and claims his ninety years is due thereto. Another at almost a hundred has indulged in stimulants now and then, chewed and smoked tobacco, and thinks his years are mainly due to the narcotics.

What are we to infer from such diverse facts? Surely that there is no straight and narrow way to longevity.

J. M. Peebles has written a large book on the subject, and although his own life is prolonged beyond the average, probably not one of his readers will live a day longer for the reading. The fact is that human nature is endowed with marvelous persistency. There is in many a hereditary toughness of constitution, by which they are adapted to a great variety of circumstances, and able to bear heavy drains on their vitality. With healthy digestion, all kinds of food are digested and converted into strength. They can sleep soundly for half the day, or go without for day's together; they can labor at the most exhausting tasks for more than half the hours, or not work at all; they can drink water, or beer, or whisky, and yet retain the power of recuperation.

Yet it does not follow that it is useless to observe the laws of health. The strong may not become prostrated by overtax, or strain, mental or physical, that would destroy the weaker, but they suffer therefrom, and the very consciousness of their strength may lead to their overthrow, as they lose that cautiousness those less robust are constrained to exercise, and they suddenly find themselves bankrupt. Yet it must be admitted that the first and most essential element of prolonged physical life, is a sound constitution, inherited from long-lived ancestors. To this must be added, for the best result, plain food, freedom from overburdening cares and labor, and confidence in the laws of hygiene and not in drugs.

J. A. Horn: Boiling water frees it from nearly all its mineral impurities, such as lime, magnesia and iron, and if continued for at least half an hour, all germs. It does not free it from soluble salts.

Reliance should not be placed on the testimony of spirits, locating mineral veins, etc., as infallible.

Tobacco is a poison, and the habitual use of a poison cannot be a benefit. When the habit has been formed and age advances it may be tolerated, and the harm it does, when the system becomes accustomed and the use moderate, may be at a minimum.

J. J. Lake: Q. It is an old story that witches tie knots in the manes of horses that they ride. I do not believe in witches, but the knots are there, and how do you explain the curious manner in which they are tied?

A. The folk-lore story of witches riding at night, and the owners finding their horses jaded in the morning, led to taking the knotted manes as evidence, and conclusive it appeared to the superstitious. Well groomed horses have not these tangles. They are found on those neglected, and the shedding of a part of the mane, which becomes enmeshed in that which remains. It requires some time for the tangles to form which shows that they are caused by the tossing of the mane by the wind and the motion of the animal's head in feeding or moving.

The specimen accompanying the question is indeed marvelous, and might well have been braided by the witches who pursued Tam-o-Shanter's good mare Meg.

In the times when witchcraft was believed as implicitly as any other Bible teaching, these uncanny recipients of demoniac favor, were not content to tangle the manes of the horses they rode at night, but twisted into snarls my lady's hair, and when the comb pulled, the ugly witch received the petulant blame.

Querist, Marcellus, N. Y.; Q. What is the origin of the saying, "He won't set the North River afire."

A. In pursuing this phrase to its source, we become aware of the wonderful permanence of a thought changing its garb to suit the locality and comprehension of those who receive it. It illustrates the modifications of folk-lore myths, and the handing down of wise sayings, often remarkable for their exact preservation, and again changed in verbal clothing almost past recognition.

In England the phrase is, "He will not set the Thames afire." When the pioneer American used it, he was loyal to his own river. In either case the saying is meaningless, for no one ever did or can work so fast as to set a river on fire, and the phrase is always applied to a lazy worker. In the olden times the millers used a sieve to separate the flour from the bran, which had to be shaken by hand. Sometimes a rapid workman would set the wooden rim on fire, which a lazy man would not do. As this sieve was called a temse, the saying arose, "He never'll set the temse afire." As the names of the river Thames was pronounced exactly the same, those who knew nothing of the sieve or its name, mistook the saying as applying to the river.

Constant Reader: Q. What is the story of Frankenstein?

A. A German medical student constructed from the material furnished by the dissecting table and church yard bones a being, which he endowed with life. It was a human, yet a monster, and like a remorseless demon pursued its unfortunate creator, wrecking all his plans of life, murdering his sweetheart, and finishing by causing his death. It is one of the few romances which have a meaning far beyond the written word, and are new and fresh to every succeeding generation of readery. Every individual creates a good or evil influence, which may be personified as an angel to guide and guard, or a monster to relentlessly pursue even to the grave, and beyond.

Burns and His Highland Mary.

To the Editor:—I see in a recent number of your paper a request is made to have the poem reprinted that came from the spirit of Robert Burns through the medium of Mrs. Hyzer. I happened to have it in a scrap book, so I enclose it and send it to you. I think it has been somewhere near forty years since it was first printed. I have taken your paper nearly ever since it has been printed. I would be lonely without it. I have been a staunch Spiritualist for fifty years. What a comfort and satisfaction it has been to me..

MRS. LUCY SMITH.

Chicago, Ill.

The circumstances of the production of the following lines are these: Mrs. Francis O. Hyzer, of Montpelier, Vt., is sometimes influenced to write both poetry and prose purporting to emanate from departed spirits. She had one day been reading some of these productions to a lady visitor, who asked her if Robert Burns (the lady's favorite poet) had ever communicated to her. She replied that she had never been conscious of his presence, nor was she familiar with his writings. The lady remarked that she hoped he would some time make known his presence, and answer a question she had in her mind, which question she did not express. A few days subsequently, Mrs. Hyzer felt impelled by spirit influence to pen the following, which on being shown to the lady, was found to be an appropriate reply to the query she had in her mind:

Fair lady, that I come to you
A stranger-bard, fu' weel I ken,
For ye've known naught of me, save through
The lays I've poured through Scotia's glen;
But when I speak o' gliding Ayr,
O' hawthorn shades and fragrant ferns,
O' Doon, and Highland Mary fair,
Mayhap ye'll think o' Robert Burns.

I am the lad—and why I'm here,
I heard the gudedame when she said
She'd know, in joyous spirit-spheres,
If Burns was wi' his Mary wed.
I sought to tell her o' our joy—
Na muckle impress could I make—
And lady I have flown to see
If ye'd my message to her take.

Tell her that when I pass'd from earth
My angel-lassie crown'd wi' flowers,
Met me wi' glowing love-lit torch,
And led me to the nuptial bowers;
That all we'd dreamed o' wedded bliss,
And more, was meted to us there—
And sweeter was my dearie's kiss
Than on the flow'ry banks o' Ayr.

Where Love's celestial fountains play'd,
And rose-buds burst and seraphs sang,
And myrtle twin'd, our couch to shade,
I clasp'd the love I'd mourn'd sa lang,
And while by angel-harps were played
The bonnie "bridal serenade,"
Though na gown'd priest the kirk-rite said,
Burns was wi' Highland Mary wed!

Ther's na destroying death-frost here
To nip the Hope-buds ere they bloom—
The "bridal tour" is through the spheres—
Eternity the "honey-moon."
And now, my lady, if ye'll bear
These words unto the anxious dame,
I think I can ye so reward,
Ye'll ne'er be sorry that I came.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

THE CAMP-MEETINGS.

Ashley Camp. O.

This camp begins July 29, and ends August 19, 1900. For programmes address H. Baxter, Ashley, Ohio.

Maple Dell Camp, O.

The National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association will hold its twelfth annual session, commencing July 22, ending September. For full particulars and programme, enclose stamp and address Lucy King, corresponding secretary, Mantua, Ohio.

Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass.

This camp opens July 29. The circulars are now ready and can be had upon application. In writing for them please enclose stamp for return postage. Address Albert P. Blinn, Clerk, 603 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Camp, O.

This camp will open July 1, and close August 27. Send for programmes to Dr. W. D. Noyes, secretary, 189, N. Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Chesterfield Camp, Ind.

The camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will open at Chesterfield, Ind., July 19, and close August 26, 1900. For programmes and further information address Flora Hardin, secretary, Anderson, Indiana.

Delphos Camp.

The twenty-second annual camp-meeting of the First Society of State Spiritualists and Liberals will be held at Delphos, Kans., from August 10 to August 26 inclusive. For further particulars or information write to President J. N. Blanchard, Delphos, Kansas; M. J. Main, vice-president, Simpson, Kansas, or E. S. Bishop, secretary, Glasco, Kansas.

Cassadaga Camp, N. Y.

This favorite place of resort offers an attractive programme the coming season. The camp opens July 13 and closes August 26. Write to the secretary, A. E. Gaston, Meadville, Pa., for programmes.

Onset Camp-Meeting.

Commences July 15, and closes August 26, 1900. For further particulars address Secretary, Onset, Mass.

Vicksburg Camp.

The seventeenth annual camp-meeting of Vicksburg, Mich., will be held in Fraser's Grove, commencing August 3, and closing August 26, 1900. For further information address Jeannette Fraser, Manager, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo county, Mich.

Lake Brady.

The camp grounds will be open for picnics June 1, extending through the summer. The camp-meeting opens July 1, closing September 1. Anyone wishing a Lake Brady program will please write Geo. N. Abbott, Lake Brady, via Kent, Ohio, or E. R. Kidd, Canton, Ohio.

Mount Pleasant Park, Ia.

The eighteenth annual camp-meeting of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists' Association will be held at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, from July 29 to August 26, 1900. All wishing circulars should write to the secretary, Stella A. Fisk, 18 N. 11th street, Keokuk, Iowa. Those wishing to rent tents, etc., should write to John Nelson, Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa.

The Ottawa Camp.

The Ottawa, Kansas, Spiritualist camp-meeting, from August 8 to August 13 inclusive. H. W. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kans.; Ezra Carpenter, secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

Freeville Camp. N. Y.

Opens July 29 and closes August 12. B. L. Robinson, president, Freeville, N. Y.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

Grand Ledge Spiritualist Camp-Meeting commences July 29 and closes August 26. For further particulars and full programmes, write to M. F. Phares or Geo. H. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opens July 1 and closes August 19, 1900, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Program cheerfully mailed to any address received on postal card to Thos J. Haynes, secretary, 389 Western avenue, Muskegon, Mich.

Camp-Meeting at Deep Lake.

The Illinois State Spiritualist Camp-meeting opens its second season at Deep Lake, 1½ miles from Lake Villa, Ill., on Wisconsin Central railroad, commencing July 10 and closing September 1. Those who intend to camp with us please let us know in time so that we can make preparations for you. Address G. V. Cordingley, President, 3300 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Island Lake. Mich.

Island Lake Camp, Island Lake, Michigan, commences Thursday, July 19, and closes September 3. For further information address the secretary, Ella B. Brown, 266 Twenty-first street, Detroit, Mich.

Verona Park Camp.

Opens June 15 and closes August 26. For programmes address Albert F. Smith, president, Bangor, Maine.

Lake Helen, Fla.

The Southern Cassadaga Camp, Lake Helen, Florida, will open the first Sunday, in February, 1901. Emma J. Huff, corresponding secretary.

Niantic Camp.

The Connecticut Spiritualist Camp-Meeting Association at Niantic campgrounds, Niantic, Conn; season of 1900, commencing June 25 and continuing until September 8, inclusive. For programmes address Mary A. Hatch, secretary, South Windham, Conn.

Los Angeles, Cal., Camp.

Arrangements have been made to hold a camp-meeting at Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, Cali, September 2 to 20, inclusive. Address Elton T. Brown, secretary, 341½ So. Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Franklin (Neb.) Camp.

The Northwest Kansas and Southwest Nebraska Spiritualist Association will hold their fifth annual camp-meeting at Franklin, Neb., from July 20 to August 6 inclusive. No pains will be spared to make it a success. For announcement, circulars and other information, address the secretary, C. H. Simpson, Franklin, Neb.

Colorado Camp.

Canyon Camp, opens in South Boulder Canyon, July 1, and continues through July, August, and possibly September. Any information desired in regard to this new and interesting movement may be obtained by writing May Taylor, Box 780, Denver, Colo.

Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The twenty-third annual Lake Sunapee Spiritualist Camp-meeting will be held at Blodgett's Landing, N. H., for four weeks, commencing Sunday, July 29, and closing Sunday, August 26, 1900. For programmes address the secretary, W. H. Wilkins, Claremont, N. H.

Marshalltown, Iowa.

The Central Iowa Spiritualist Association will hold its annual camp at Marshalltown, Iowa, September 2 to September 16 inclusive. Grounds open to campers after August 27. Leading speakers, Mrs. Marian Carpenter, of Detroit, Mich., and D. P. Dewey, of Grand Blanc, Mich. Other phases of mediumship will also be ably represented. For information or programs address W. H. Wilson, 301 N. Center street, Marshalltown, Iowa.

Haslett Park, Mich.

Eighteenth annual assembly of Spiritualists at Haslett Park, Mich, August 2 to September 4, 1900, inclusive. For programmes address J. D. Richmond, secretary, St. Johns, Mich., or G. F. Ottmar, Riley, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opened July 1, under the most favorable circumstances. The day was perfect. Dr. J. M. Peebles was the speaker of the day. He was followed in the morning by Mrs. Blake and in the afternoon by Mrs. Ferris with descriptions. They were all enthusiastically received and recognized. Dr. W. O. Knowles, who was to speak in the evening, was called upon to officiate at a funeral in the country and could not be present. A pleasant surprise awaited the people. Frank T. Ripley, of Boston, was present and filled his place. After his lecture, delivered in an able manner, he and Mrs. Blake gave some descriptions which were absolutely correct. Our attendance was large and everyone seemed happy. Rockford society will be represented as a society on the grounds. Their tent will be in charge of Samuel Smith, of Fruitport. Frank N. Foster arrived to-day. Mrs. Carpenter is expected to-morrow to visit with us until after her engagement closes, July 19. Our attendance last year was 20,000. This year we expect to double it. THOS. J. HAYNES, Sec'y.

Missionary Work.

The work of G. W. Kates and wife in Minnesota continues to be active, and attracts large audiences. They held large meetings in Hendrum, Minn., June 26 and 27. The society of "Mystic Seekers," at this place, chartered with the State Association, provided a good hall elegantly decorated and a splendid quartette of singers, with three children musicians upon violins and the organ. The meetings were very interesting. The lectures were eloquent and forcible, while the spirit messages and descriptions by Mrs. Kates aroused great enthusiasm by their accuracy so forcibly presented.

The meetings at Grand Forks, N. D., June 28 to July 2, are attracting much attention as witnessed by the following item in the Daily Herald:

"A large audience greeted the second appearance of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kates at Hall's Academy last evening, when Mrs. Kates gave an inspirational lecture on evolution, a subject suggested by one of those present, followed by a number of very satisfactory tests. To say that the lecture was good would convey no adequate idea of its excellence. Mrs. Kates' control has certainly a wonderful command of language, which is used with force to elucidate some equally wonderful ideas relative to the influence and power of spirit control and the philosophy of Spiritualism.

"The local society is to be congratulated on securing even the temporary services of such able exponents of their belief. On Sunday evening Mrs. Kates will devote her time to tests and readings."

Emma Rood Tuttle—Her New Volume of Poems.

Since the publication of "From Soul to Soul," by Emma Rood Tuttle, there has been constant inquiry for another volume of her poems which was promised. When the prospectus of that volume was issued, requesting the names of those who wished to subscribe, nearly 1,000 were at once received and three editions have been called for. This plan proved so satisfactory that this new volume will be issued in the same manner. By it the cost of publication is guaranteed, and at the same time to those desiring the book it is furnished at much less cost.

The new volume will be in the same style as "From Soul to Soul," will contain over 300 pages, beautifully bound, with embossed cover, will contain engraved portrait of the author, and subscribers copies will have her autograph.

Emma Rood Tuttle is well known to the readers of The Progressive Thinker and the spiritual press by the many poems she has contributed, and her spiritual songs. The present volume will contain the best of these, and many not before published. The price will be $1; to subscribers, 75 cents. It will be published as soon as the number of subscribers warrant.

Please send names at once—money not desired. HUDSON TUTTLE.

Berlin Heights, Ohio.

"Historical, Logical and Philosophical Objections to the Dogmas of Reincarnation and Re-Embodiment." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A keen and masterly treatise. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Heresy Trial of Rev. B. F. Austin, M. A., D. D. Giving a sketch of Dr. Austin's life, story of the heresy trial, copy of the charges, the heresy sermon, the scene at conference, and Dr. Austin's full address defending his views on Spiritualism at the London Annual Conference at Windsor, Can.," etc. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"A Plea for the New Woman." By May Collins. An address delivered before the Ohio Liberal Society. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

BACKBONE WANTED.

A Worker Again Replies to Dr. Conger.

To the Editor:—Dr. M. E. Conger writes in your issue of June 9 in reply to an article of mine criticising a previous article from his pen on the subject of "Free Camps."

I have been away from home for a month and have only just read his reply, so could not answer it before. I wish now to offer a few suggestions. I understood his first article to demand free work from mediums and speakers. Now he calls for camps "free to campers." I don't understand his position. If he will make his demands clear then we can perhaps answer him in an intelligent manner. In reply, however, we will say that as far as our experience goes, camps cannot be run without expense, and some one must pay the bill. Who has any more right to foot the bill than the visitors who partake of the mental and spiritual feast provided at our annual camps? Workers like Dr. Conger, who have other sources of revenue, can go and work for their health or for their love of the cause, but those who devote their entire time and energies to this work cannot do so.

In regard to "fooling away money paying car fare to hunt up heathen on the Western prairies, I for one would just as soon give a little time and money (if I had it) to educate prairie people as to pay it out to rapacious city landlords for hall rent in a vain attempt to spiritualize and humanize city folks, who would rather spend their money at the saloons, theaters, etc., than help along a missionary worker in Spiritualism.

I consider the work of a lecturer on spiritual topics just as much necessary on the "Western prairies" (where I live) as that of the school teacher, and furthermore, I consider my work as important as any school teacher or other educator, and as worthy of recompense. The platform speaker on Spiritualism and kindred subjects is an educator and as such his or her work is as necessary in the sod schoolhouse as in the city temples.

I don't believe Spiritualists, as a class, have built a great many temples, churches and halls as Dr. Conger says. At least I have only seen a very few myself.

I would like to ask Dr. Conger a plain question and would like him to meet it squarely. If a camp-meeting is a good thing, and of course he believes it is, then why should we not carry the same line of work into every schoolhouse in the land? We all have to pay taxes to help build and maintain schoolhouses, why not demand an opportunity to use them for educational purposes along spiritual and reform lines.

I maintain that if the Spiritual philosophy is a good thing, we can't teach it too much or too often. We ought to keep every man and woman constantly employed at a reasonable salary. But do we keep our workers employed?

In the majority of instances I am compelled to say most emphatically, No. I'll tell Dr. Conger why we don't. Some of our speakers and mediums are very independent thinkers, some have very high progressive spirits to back them. They say things about the labor question, the war craze, the marriage muddle, and many other things which are too radical for tender-feet people to listen to. They say these things because they are true and need to be said. The consequence is, their services are no longer required.

Spiritualists as a class need bracing up, a stiffening of the back-bone; they need to take a firm stand upon all the great and vital questions of the age, and not be afraid to call a spade a spade. Speakers must smooth over all the rough places in order to secure engagements, and then the independent, fearless few who used to uphold our Spiritualistic meetings, drop out in disgust and join the ranks of the Free-thinkers. We have lost many of our old-time wheel-horses in this way. Personally I have some serious thoughts of doing the same thing myself.

If there is anything on earth I despise it is cant and hypocrisy. I believe in calling things by their right names and proclaiming from every house-roof and tree-top, if necessary, the truth as we understand it.

Dr. Conger says "it is generation, not regeneration, that should be considered by ambitious missionaries." We agree with Dr. Conger again, but we contend that agitation always comes before reformation, and those who have made any study of the laws of right generation should use every opportunity to enlighten the masses, otherwise the light they have received is a hidden talent. Personally we would gladly hail the day when it would be possible to advocate the most advanced ideas on the generation of human beings not only at our camps but in every district schoolhouse.

Dr. Conger again writes: "Some practical foundation work must be done if we expect to command the attention and respect of the public. To this we say Amen, right from our heart. That is just why I want more local societies, more organization, more agitation, more reformation of the individual. Organization is necessary for educational work, educational work is necessary to bring about individual reformation; individual reformation must come before we can have "right generation."

In conclusion I would say, if Dr. Conger wants Spiritualism "to come to the front" let him respect the "tramp brigade" as he calls the hard-working itinerant missionaries who are breaking new ground under hard conditions, turning over the hard-pan of priestcraft and superstition with the sod-plow of humanitarian love and good-will to men. Let him see to it that the laborers are backed up with his best wishes and good thoughts, instead of telling them that the Salvation Army missionary is the only one "worthy of notice."

Spiritualism can never prosper as it should till we have back-bone enough among our folks to stand up for the advanced ideas given through inspirational mediumship, not only about the truth of spirit return but every other subject of interest to human lives on earth.

WILLIAM E. BONNEY.

Blair, Neb. (A Worker.)

Rending the Vail: This volume is a compilation by J. W. Nixon, of psychic literature, most given by spirits through and by means of full form visible materializations, at seances of a certain Psychic Research Society, known as the Aber Intellectual Circle, the medium being William W. Aber. 507 pp. octavo. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker. Price $2.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Fourteen beautiful, soul-inspiring songs, with music, by C. Payson Longley. Price by mail, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Vol. 2. Sweet songs and music for home and social meetings. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

"Cultivation of Personal Magnetism. A Treatise on Human Culture." By Leroy Berrier. For sale at this office. Price $1.

Great Work by a Great Author.

"THE UNKNOWN"

—BY—

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

"The Unknown" created a marked sensation in France when first published and can scarcely fail to arouse the greatest interest in this country. It is an eminent scientist's study of the phenomena of the spirit world. In touching upon the various physical manifestations the author cites many absolutely authenticated instances, and chapters of his book are as weirdly fascinating as the most fantastic of Poe's tales. It treats on incredulity, credulity, hallucinations, psychic action of one mind upon another, transmission of thought, suggestion, the world of dreams, cerebral physiology, psychic dreams, distinct sight in dreams, actual facts, premonitory dreams and divination of the future, etc. 487 pages, cloth bound. Price $2.00.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

DEATH DEFEATED,

—OR—

The Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young,

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D., M. A., Ph. D.

It certainly is just what is needed as a book of good suggestions and instructions along the line of health. He treats the subject in his own matter-of-fact style. The book comprises a practical subject handled in a practical manner by a practical man. Even if people do not wish or expect to live here always, they should know how to live right and enjoy the life that belongs to them. This is undoubtedly the most useful book for the masses the Doctor has ever published, for it strikes at the root or cause of disease, and tells how to avoid it. 212 pages, cloth bound. Price, $1. For sale at this office.

Three Remarkable Books!

"The Divine Pedigree of Man."
"The Law of Psychic Phenomena."
"A Scientific Demonstration of the Future."

The Divine Pedigree of Man, or the Testimony of Evolution and Psychology to the Fatherhood of God. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL. D. This is a most remarkable work, demonstrating the existence of the Soul and Future Life. It is scientific throughout. Price $1.50. Dr. Hudson's work on "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," is also valuable. Price, $1.50. His "Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life" should be read by all. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Being a Review of

The World's Beliefs on the Subject, a Consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling,

Leading to the Question as to Whether It Can Be Demonstrated as a Fact.—To Which Is Added an Appendix Containing Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

BY MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D.

8vo, Cloth, 342 Pages.

After a review of the beliefs held in the past concerning life beyond death, Dr. Savage takes up the present conditions of belief and considers the agnostic reaction from the extreme "other-worldliness" which it replaced, which was in turn followed by the Spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism. He points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon the people. He then considers the probabilities of a future life, probabilities which, as he admits, fall short of demonstration. The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr. Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well authenticated communications from persons in the other life. The chief contents of the volume are as follows:

Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

For Sale at this Office. Price $1.50. Postage 10c.

OUR BIBLE:

WHO WROTE IT? WHEN? WHERE? HOW?

Is It Infallible?

A Voice from the Higher Criticism.

A Few Thoughts on Other Bibles.

BY MOSES HULL.

Excellent as an exposition of the Higher Criticism and an analysis of the Bible from that standpoint. Of special value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.00.

ORMSBY'S SIMPLE SYSTEM

OF THE

PLANETS and the ZODIAC.

A New Book with the Places of the Planets—the Chart that Makes It Easy to Study the Stars—5th Edition—Just Out—Greatly Improved—Price, $2.00

ASTROLOGY SIMPLIFIED—SPECIAL OFFER.

Any person having one of these charts of any former edition may exchange the same for one of the latest with new book, on payment of $1.00.

This is by far the best system for new beginners to take up, as hundreds of persons have become proficient in the science of the planets in a short time by starting with this Simple System. The new books give the corrections covering one hundred years, all of the 19th century.

Corrections for the 20th century, 100 years in advance, are now ready, which makes the chart good for 200 years. Price for the 20th century tables, $2.00. For sale at this office.

Bible and Church Degrade Woman

By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three essays on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

FORCE AND MATTER.

By Ludwig Buechner. A celebrated book. Cloth.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,

Or The Three-fold Power of Sex. By Lois Waisbrooker. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

MYTH AND MIRACLE.

One of Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll's best lectures. Price 5c. For sale at this office.

The Law of Correspondence Applied to Healing.

A course of seven practical lessons. By W. J. Colville. Limp cloth, 50c.

Zelma the Mystic, or White Magic Versus Black.

By Alwyn M. Thurber. Occult philosophy clothed in story form; aims to give a better understanding of magic, black and white. 330 large pages. Cloth, $1.25.

PROGRESSION,

Or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-Life. The evolution of man. By Michael Faraday. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

Special Prepared Remedies Made According to Dr. Watkins' Psychical Prescription.

THESE PRICES FOR A SHORT TIME ONLY.

FOR LADIES.

No. 1: Tablets for Consumption,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 2. Tablets for Dyspepsia,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 3. Tablets for Liver,.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 4. Tablets for Female Weakness, 50c, now only 25c.
No. 5. Tablets for Stomach, acidity, flatulency, gas, and distress after eating, old,.....price 50c, now only 25c.
No. 6. Catarrh.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 8. Headache.....50c, now only 25c.
No. 13. Nervous Debility,.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 14. Painful Menses,.....50c. now only 25c.
No. 15. Suppressed Menses,.....50c, now only 25c.
Woman's Friend cures Leucorrhea, usually called Whites, $1.00.

FOR MEN.

No. 1. Constipation,.....25c.
No. 2. Dyspepsia,.....25c.
No. 3. Liver,.....25c.
No. 5. Stomach, acidity, gas, etc,.....25c.
No. 16. Pile Ointment,.....25c.
No. 13. Nervous Debility,.....25c.
No. 33. Invigorator,.....25c.
No. 44. Vital Tablets,.....25c.
No. 55. Vigor Tablets,.....25c.
No. 66. Tablet of Youth,.....25c.

All of the above Remedies sent for $4, or any Ten for $2. Express Prepaid.

Our Rheumatic Liniment

CONCENTRATED.

Nothing better to take out soreness and relieve pain. $1.00 a bottle for 50c.

La Grippe Tablets.

A sure cure and preventative. 50c. Trial Box, 25c.

Don't Forget.

You will never regret ordering these Remedies.

KINDLY REMEMBER

That we are very anxious to place these remedies in every house in the United States. We believe is our duty that we owe to humanity to try to let all know of the great value of these prescriptions, and we therefore will, till further notice, sell at above prices. Don't put off ordering these remedies but order to-day. We will diagnose disease free. Send sex, age and leading symptoms.

Ayer, Mass. DR. C. E. WATKINS.

TRUTH

The only way to find out who is the "Greatest Psychic Physician living" is to read what their patients say.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

never claims that he is the greatest physician living, or that he is the

GREATEST PSYCHIC.

He believes that there are hundreds of healers who are just as successful as he is, and he never yet has claimed that he is or was the best psychic, although twenty years before the public as the independent slate-writer with the record of not one person who ever accused him of fraud, ought to make the public THINK when they compare his claims to other so-called psychics.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

only desires those who are sick to remember that for over twenty years he has been before the public as a psychic, and he never claims greater powers than others; but we believe he has a right to think he has as great gifts as those who claim so much.

Kindly read the following

TESTIMONIALS:

'Dear Sir:—Yours of recent date at hand. I am so much better than when I wrote last. Am gaining all the time. I am carrying out every instruction as close as possible. I have gained eight pounds since treating with you. Ever your friend, MRS. N. REID.
Schoolcraft, Mich.

Dr. Watkins:—I am in receipt of your prompt message of recent date, and am taking the medicine as directed; am some improved in strength already; if your medicine fails, there is no need of trying anything else, for I am well convinced in my mind that your medicines are par excellence. I am pleased with your treatment and prompt reply, and cheap price. I am as ever, yours truly,
J. S. ENGLEOTH.

My Dear Sir:—Regarding my stomach and bowels, I feel very much improved, and think I will not need any more medicine. Fraternally yours,
Medford, Mass. JOHN N. EAMES.

Dear Sir:—I am still feeling very good; think I am still on the gain. I commenced sitting for my psychic treatments last night, and expect they will do me a great deal of good. Yours gratefully,
MRS. S. D. FOWLER.
Wolcott, N. Y.

Kind Doctor:—Your medicine received, and thank you for your prompt attendance. I feel sure you will help me. Inclosed find money order for the first month's treatment. Yours,
MRS. KATE MEAD.
Chatsworth Park, Cali.

Dear Doctor:—I am happy to say that I am feeling much better than when I last wrote. My limbs, I think are nearly well. I am feeling first-class now, and do hope it will be lasting. I never saw such a change in a person in so short a time as there has been in Mr. Tarleton. His food does not distress him now, and he sleeps well. In fact he seems like a new man every way. Yours kindly, MRS. TARLETON.
Grand street, Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir:—I have not had the asthma scarcely any the past week, and I think I shall not need any more medicine. Thanking you for what you have done for me, I remain, Yours respectfully,
EFFIE CARVILL.
Farmington, Me.

Kind Friend:—Well, I am feeling some better; don't have near as much pain, and the stiffness is better in my neck; am sleeping better and hope I shall be able to leave my chair by the time you return east. Very truly,
MRS. S. K. SYMONDS.
24 Tremont street, Chelsea, Mass.

Resumed Business.

The fire which destroyed the immense Swamp Root medicine plant of Dr. Kilmer & Co., July 1, was the most disastrous which has ever occurred in Binghamton. However, the Kilmers resumed business next morning, though not at the old stand, which is a heap of smouldered ashes. While the firemen were yet pouring water on the burning Chenango street establishment, the Kilmers were arranging to do business somewhere else.

That this great industry might not be crippled for a moment, through the courtesy of other prominent firms and citizens, the large factory and adjoining buildings on South street were vacated for the benefit of the Swamp Root people, and possession was taken immediately, and here, by Monday, July 8, this new, temporary factory will be turning out Swamp-Root, the great Kidney Remedy, in quantities of about 60,000 bottles per day, and in two or three weeks' time the full capacity of more than four times that amount will be produced. The immense demand for Swamp Root will thus in no way be interfered with.

On the old site, with adjoining property which has just been purchased, will be erected immediately an absolutely fire-proof six-story structure, plans for which have been early completed.

GALVESTON, TEXAS.

G. A. R. Memorial Day, Etc.

The Galveston News of May 31 says in reporting the exercises of G. A. R. memorial day: "Mr. John W. Ring, pastor of the Spiritualist Society, spoke in glowing terms of the dead soldiers who have gone on to their eternal homes, saying in part: 'How beautiful the thought that life is everlasting. The flowers and all the creatures of nature remind us of it. So it is with the principles for which the heroes whose graves we are to-day decorating, fought, the principles of freedom, liberty and justice; the principles that will live so long as the moon continues to reflect its somber light upon the earth, so long as the sun continues to cast its beams of light forth on the many bodies that continue to move on their orbits around it. Everywhere over this country are graves of men who fought for these principles, and we are to-day assembled to commemorate their lives. Ah yes, look at this fair land to-day. If these principles of liberty, justice and freedom still live, if memories are still sweet, where then are the lives of these dead comrades? They have not gone out. We who stand here in full knowledge of life immortal are happy to think that just beyond the veil, there stand the comrades gone before. Let us cherish these principles and we may feel assured that we are inspired by those who gave their mortal life in defense of them.

How thin the veil that hangs between
The tangible and the great unseen.
Could we list or see with ear or eye
The tramp of comrades passing by,
Would greet our anxious gaze
And inspire our hearts for coming days.

Under date of June 25 the same paper says: "The schoolhouse at League City yesterday morning would remind one of fairy land, it having been so beautifully decorated with white bunting, evergreens and flowers, the occasion being a Spiritualist christening ceremony. The infant son (Floyd Oscar) of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Williams was the recipient. Mr. John W. Ring, pastor of the Spiritualist Society of Galveston, assisted by their quartette choir, conducted the ceremony. A large, attentive and appreciative audience witnessed the very impressive and beautiful ceremony, after which they were conveyed to Dickinson, where they were met by other Galvestonians and enjoyed a basket pisnic."

PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free. All in excess of ten lines will be charged at the rate of fifteen cents per line. About seven words constitute one line.]

Abram Baldwin died suddenly of heart failure, on May 19, 1900, at his home near Freeport Long Island, N. Y. His wife had been away from home, in Chicago, and only got home a few hours before his death. He was aged 62. M. E. B.

Frank Merriott, of Brainerd, Minn., passed to spirit life, June 14, of consumption, aged 46 years, 6 months and 9 days. He leaves a wife and brother to mourn his loss. He has been a Spiritualist from childhood. Funeral was conducted by the Red Men, of which order he was a worthy member.
WILMER HOLMES.

Franklin C. Stone, of Cedar Springs, Mich., passed to spirit life, Sunday, June 13. He served his country in the Fourth Michigan cavalry. He was 67 years old. He was a patient sufferer for two years, and was confined to his bed for six months. Those who knew him most loved him best.
MARY H. STONE.

Passed to spirit life, June 25, 1900, at her residence, in Russellville, Pope county, Ark., Mrs. Harriet May Parsons. She was 63 years of age, and had been a Spiritualist for many years.
COR.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole:—
43 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.:
Your melted pebble spectacles are wonderful. I can see to thread a fine needle and can read with comfort, and my eyes are getting stronger. Your clairvoyant system of fitting is perfection. I am, your friend,
MRS. L. E. MARTIN.
Blairsville, Pa.

For ten cents we will send by mail, a 4-oz package of my Magnetized Compound, for sore or weak eyes. Once used you will not be without it. Address B. F. POOLE & CO.,
43 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail, $1. For sale at this office.

"Heliocentric Astrology or Essentials of Astronomy and Solar Mentality, with Tables of Ephemeris from 1880 to 1910." By Yarmo Vedra. For sale at this office. Price, $1.50.

A GREAT HEALER

Dr. Peebles' Wonderful Cures Have Made His Name Famous the World Over.

Read His Generous Offer to the Sick.

J. M. PEEBLES, A. M., M. D., PH.D.

THERE is probably no physician or healer living who is curing more cases of Chronic and obstinate disease than is Dr. Peebles. During an experience of over fifty years this TRUE AND GREAT HEALER has cured thousands of those who had been pronounced "incurable" by the best local physicians. Mrs. Alfonso Buck, of Mechanicsville, O., says: "It is now about three months since I began your treatment and I am happy to say that I am free from those dreadful pains and have gained 15 pounds and am still gaining rapidly. My doctor had given me up as "incurable." Being sure that I owe my life to your skill I most cheerfully and heartily recommend you to all those in search of health." Miss Maggie Polson, of Guthrie, Oklahoma, says: "Six months ago I suffered with terrible headaches, heart trouble and female weakness. My friends despaired of my life and I was so weak I could do nothing. Now I am well, strong and hearty. I can never forget the good you have done me."

Remember that Dr. Peebles does not heal by Christian Science, Hypnotism, or any other "ism" but employs MILD and POTENT medicines, combined with his PSYCHIC POWERS. These Psychic treatments are the greatest power known for relieving pain and suffering and curing diaease. One of his patients recently said, "these treatments seem as a breath of higher life. It seems as if they alone would almost raise the dead." Besides being the greatest Psychic Physician living he is an authority in Europe and America on Psychic Phenomena and the Psychic Science. He has written an essay "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease," which he will send free to any sufferer asking for it. The Doctor's diagnoses are equally as astonishing as his cures. His Psychic Gifts enable him to accurately locate the diseased and weakened tissues, thus he never has to experiment for weeks to discover the real trouble. No disease is really incurable if perfectly understood, for every effect or diseased condition has its cause, and if this is seen and removed by the aid of natural forces, health will be restored. What is your condition and its cause? It is within your power to know. No two cases are exactly alike so do not spend precious time in taking patent medicines which are prepared a "text-book" case, or risk your life in the hands of a physician who does not understand your condition. Write to-day for a FREE DIAGNOSIS and special advice in your case. This will cost you nothing. The Doctor will also send you his essay on this wonderful science and other valuable literature FREE. Thousands of so-called "incurable" cases are cured by this method. So do not despair, if your physician has failed to cure you. Just write the doctor a plain, truthful letter, giving him your name, age, sex and leading symptom, in your own handwriting and receive a complete diagnosis of your case by return mail.

G. D. Younge, of Wimer, Ore., who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, says:—"I consider it my sacred duty to extend to you my heartiest thanks for the perfect cure your medicines and advice have effected in my case. I was very skeptical when I began the use of your medicines and treatment, but I am free to say that I now have a confirmed belief in their almost miraculous efficacy. Three months ago I bore about my body the hideous spectacle of my disease. Now I am a mentally and physically robust man."

Mrs. Lydia Mason, of Boyd, Oregon, who had not walked without crutches for a long time, after a few weeks of our treatment says:—"I can now walk without my crutches for almost half a day. I am gaining rapidly and expect to soon be in perfect health again."

Mabel Keyes, of Iron Creek, S. D., who had suffered for a long time from eczema, says:—"The roughness of the skin has entirely disappeared. I am very thankful indeed for the great good you have done me. I talked with our family physician and he thinks my cure is remarkable. I doctored with him before I called on you and he said he did not think there was any help for me and he is one of the best doctors around here."

Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Battle Creek, Mich.

Sunday Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins' spiritual meetings, 40 E. Randolph street, Handel Hall, Fourth floor, Sunday evening, 7:45. Wednesday evening, 675 Larrabee street, corner Garfield avenue.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, G. V. Cordingley, pastor, room 409 Handel Hall, 40 Randolph street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Band of Harmony, auxiliary to the Church of the Soul, meets at Room 608 Handel Hall Building, 40 Randolph St., every first and third Thursday of the month, beginning afternoons at three o'clock. The ladies bring refreshments; supper served at six o'clock. Evening session commences at a quarter to eight. Questions invited from the audience, and answered by the guides of Mrs. S. J. Ashton. Always an interesting programme. All are welcome.

Church of the Spirit Communion will hold meetings in Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, each Sunday. 3 p. m., conference and tests; 8 p. m., lecture by J. K. Hallowell; tests by H. F. Coates and others. All are invited. Good music and seats free.

There will be a Spiritual meeting at 2:30 each Sunday, at Smith Hall, Wisconsin and Larrabee streets. German and English speaking by Mrs. W. Hilbert and Mr. Bernhart.

Spiritualistic services will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m., 1453 N. Springfield avenue. Tests at 4 o'clock prompt. Wm. Fitch Ruffle, medium.

Garden City Spiritual Alliance holds regular meetings at Mackinaw Hall, No. 294 and 296 East 43d street, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Spirit messages, Tests in telepathy or thought transference, good music. Seats free. May Goodrich, pastor.

The Gross Park Spiritual Society meets at 1785 N. Hoyne avenue, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society meets every Sunday evening at 7:30 at 8927 Exchange avenue, instead of Eigenman's Hall.

The Englewood Spiritual Union Society meets every Sunday at Forbes' Hall, 420 W. 63d street. Competent leaders of spiritual thought and mediums of note in charge.

Church of the Star of Truth, Wicker Park hall, No. 501 West North avenue. Services at 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey.

Truth Seekers meet at the Teutonia Hall, corner of 53rd and Ashland avenue, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Chicago Liberal Society is a non-sectarian association for the encouragement of morality, the promotion of education, the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, and the inculcation of truth in the place and stead of error and superstition. The Temple services of the society are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, 17th floor, and are in charge of Thomas B. Gregory. You are cordially invited to attend the same.

The Avenue Spiritualists Society will meet at 2979 Wabash avenue, corner 30th street, every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. Harry J. Moore, pastor.

Send in notice of meetings held on Sunday at public halls.

Bear in mind that only meetings held in public halls will be announced under the above head. We have not space to keep standing notices of meetings held at private residences.

VOLUMES 1, 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic, Ghost Land, The Next World Interviewed, and the Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate) constitute our premium list. Those seven books have been on sale, costing the buyer in the aggregate, $10.75. We, after paying the postage and expense of mailing, realize only $1.50 for the seven—far less than cost to us. We desire to form the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home, hence this remarkable offer. By subscribing for The Progressive Thinker, you then have the privilege of purchasing these books at the premium prices. See terms on another page.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical and their psychical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the spirit world. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here gathered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

CLUBS!

CLUBS

We want ten thousand clubs formed in every part of the United States, for which we present inducements never before offered by any Spiritualist paper. These clubs must consist of ten subscribers, and each one will get Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death; or if they would prefer it, they can have the Next World Interviewed. They can have their choice of the two. Each subscriber in order to avail himself of this offer must pay $1.15. The fifteen cents is to pay expense of postage and mailing, and the books sent out are practically a gift. They are not cheap affairs; they are nicely and substantially bound in cloth, neatly printed in clear type and are ornaments to any center table. The contents are indeed valuable, such as every Spiritualist family should have. The aggregate price of these two books to the trade is $2.75. To each of our club subscribers one of these books is a gift, and when they receive the one of their choice they will be delighted with it, and will wonder how we can afford to do so much for them. The one who gets up the club will be entitled to The Progressive Thinker for one year, and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit Spirit World, and also the Next World Interviewed. He will not only get The Progressive Thinker for one year, but both books. He gets what is equivalent to $3.75 for his trouble. There should be no difficulty whatever in getting up hundreds of clubs.

Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World will not only interest Spiritualists, but church members will be attracted to it. The Rev. M. J. Savage, a leading liberal divine of New York, leads off with several of his masterly productions, treating Death from an advanced standpoint. He is followed by leading Spiritualists who treat of Death in a philosophical and fascinating manner.

The Next World Interviewed is also a very excellent work. The plates of this book were donated to the office of The Progressive Thinker by Henry J. Horn. It consists of communications from the spirit side of life from leading minds there. Fifty-five communications are given by prominent personages; among them Prince Albert, Harriet Martineau, Judge Edmonds, Horace Greeley, Lord Lytton, Fanny Fern, Dr. Livingstone and the Czar of Russia.

Now is the time to get up

CLUBS.

OUR MOTTO

To Do All the Good We Can.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Who is so widely known as one of the many

SPIRITUAL HEALERS,

SHE HAS

Successfully Treated

And Cured

Thousands of Patients.

Will Diagnose Your Case

FREE

REQUIREMENTS:

Lock of hair, age, sex, one leading symptom, full name, three 2-cent stamps and plain full address.

SEND TO

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Box 132. SAN JOSE, CAL.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

The students of this College represent four continents, and many of them are physicians, medical professors, or clergymen. Hudson Tuttle, the well-known author, calls this college "An institute of refined therapeutics, which is fast becoming of world-wide fame, and attracting students from many countries. It builds on exact science, and includes the magnetic, electric, chemical, solar, and spiritual forces which underlie everything. Its course can be taken at home, and a diploma conferring the title of D. M. (Doctor of Magnetics) granted." Send stamp for catalogue.

A cheaper and simpler ACADEMIC COURSE has been established for those who do not wish to take the more elaborate COLLEGE COURSE. It covers new and beautiful methods of Nature, which are powerful to heal and upbuild. Address E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D., Dean, 58 North Third St., San Jose, California. 555

NEW DREAM BOOK.

By DR. R. GREER, 52 Dearborn st., Chicago, Ill. 25 cents 519tf

CHART FREE.

By a Bohemian Gypsy Astrologer and Clairvoyant. Send age, color of eyes and hair, in own handwriting. Address GEO. WELLES, Box 130, Newark, N. J. 554

YOUR FUTURE accurately calculated by Astrologer WALROND, 37 Opera House Block, Denver, Col. From $1.00.

WM. W. ABER.

Readings by mail, $1.06. Advice on all affairs of life. Spring Hill, Kans. 555

Geo. F. Perkins, Emaline Perkins,

Platform and Private Test Mediums, 3558 Cottage Grove ave., flat 14, Chicago. Circles Friday. Readings daily. 539tf

MRS. E. J. HANSON, TRANCE MEDIUM, 76 Bingham St., near Milwaukee av. car barns. 555

FOR RENT—Desirable rooms fronting the lake, near Grand Hotel. Terms reasonable. Address Abbie E. Olmstead, Lily Dale, N. Y. 556

$2—TRUMPETS—$2

ALUMINUM TRUMPETS in two and three sections 36 in. high—magnetized when desired—$2 on receipt of price. Address WM. A. MURRAY, 508 E. 2nd St., Newport, Ky. 584

Myself cured, I will gladly inform any one addicted to

Morphine, Opium, Laudanum,

or Cocaine, of a never-failing harmless Home Cure. MRS. M. E. BALDWIN, P. O. Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

MRS. MAGGIE WAITE

Reading by mail, $1.06. Business advice a specialty. 304 S. Crouse ave., Syracuse, N. Y. 556

DON'T READ THIS.

Frances L. Loucks, the only psychic wonder living, that uses the spiritual X-ray without any leading symptom to direct, and locates all internal diseases A trial will convince you. Nervous exhaustion and lost vigor of both sexes successfully treated, as hundreds can testify. Send name, age, sex, complexion and ten cents in stamps, and receive a correct diagnosis of your case free, worth dollars to you. Address,

FRANCES L. LOUCKS,
Lock Box 7. Stoneham, Mass.

DR. J. S. LOUCKS

For thirty years has treated and cured the sick in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thousands have been cured after being given up to die. His psychic powers are unequaled, as his cures prove. Talk doesn't prove anything. Facts are proof. He also cures diseases of men, such as loss of manhood, debilitating losses causing nervous exhaustion. Send name, age, sex, lock of hair, 6 cts in stamps, for a diagnosis. Address,

DR. J. S. LOUCKS, M. D.,
85 Warren st., Stoneham, Mass.

Card from Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Dear friends, you can greatly help me care for my blind sister, Jennie L. Webb, one of the earliest mediums now in the form, by writing a letter to a spirit friend. Send it to me with $1, and I will try and get reply by independent writing or whispers. Address Annie Lord Chamberlain, Milford, Mass. 531tf

TRUTH AND DESTINY

Deals with the hidden forces of mind and the influence of environment upon human life. Gives a contrast of the destiny of one who cried out in the darkness for the light he vainly sought, and the destiny of another who found the radiance within. It reveals the laws and conditions which create happiness and indicates the path which leads to the attainment of Self-Mastery and Power. Price 25 cents,

URIEL BUCHANAN,
Dept. P. T., Box 210, Chicago, Ill. 544tf

TALMAGEAN INANITIES.

Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies.

A review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

WOMAN: FOUR CENTURIES OF PROGRESS.

A Lecture delivered at the Freethinker's International Congress, Chicago, Ill., October, 1893. By Susan H. Wixon. Price, 10c.

THE GOD IDEA OF THE ANCIENTS,

Or Sex in Religion. By Eliza Burt Gamble. "It is a sensible, quiet, logical statement of opinion, deduced at times curiously from statistics which might be open to doubt; and never for a moment sensational or revolutionary.—Chicago Herald. 329 pages, large type, cloth bound. Price $2.25. For sale at this office

MEDIUMSHIP,

A chapter of experiences, by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10c. For sale at this office.

MAN

—IN THE—

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

A POPULAR ACCOUNT OF

Results of recent scientific research regarding the origin, position and prospects of mankind. From the German of

DR. LUDWIG BÜCHNER,

Author of "Force and Matter," Essays on Nature and Science," "Physiological Pictures," "Six Lectures on Darwin," Etc.

"The great mystery of existence consists in perpetual and uninterrupted change. Everything is immortal and indestructible—the smallest worm as well as the most enormous of the celestial bodies,—the sand grain or the water drop as well as the highest being in creation, man and his thoughts. Only the forms in which being manifests itself are changing; but Being itself remains eternally the same and imperishable When we die we do not lose ourselves, but only our personal consciousness. We live on in nature, in our race, in our children, in our deeds, in our thoughts—in short, in the entire material and physical contribution which, during our short personal existence, we have furnished to the subsistence of mankind and of nature in general."—Buechner.

One vol., post 8vo., about 300 pages, vellum cloth, $1.

THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL

SERIES ONE TWO AND THREE.
BY LILIAN WHITING.

Three choice volumes, each complete in itself, in which spirituality is related to everyday life in such a way as to make the world beautiful. Price $1 each. For sale at this office.

Cultivation of Personal Magnetism

A Treatise on

HUMAN CULTURE.

By Leroy Barrier, Anthropologist and Author. A very suggestive and instructive book. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This is a very interesting little book, and will be appreciated from start to finish by all who wish to gain spiritual information. Price 25 cts. For sale at this office.

OUTSIDE THE GATES

and other tales and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA

According to Old Records.

By Dr. Paul Carus. A translation made from Japanese, under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyer, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was published in Japan. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This work was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 60 cents. For sale at this office.

TWO IN ONE,

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books combined at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a careful comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

MAN THE MICROCOSM.

His Infinite and Divine Relations. Intuition—The Light Within. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

KAREZZA.

ETHICS OF MARRIAGE.

By Alice B. Stockham, M. D.

Karezza makes a plea for a better birthright for children, and aims to lead individuals to seek a higher development of themselves through most sacred relations. It is pure in tone and aim, and should be widely circulated. Price, cloth, $1.

ASTRAL WORSHIP.

By J. H. Hill, M. D. A valuable contribution to the current discussion of religious problems. The author by illustrations and a planisphere (a representation of the celestial sphere upon a plane with adjustable circles), traces most of the myths which lie at the base of Christianity to their origin in sun and star worship. The astronomical facts given possess great value, the illustrations rare and curious. The book is bound in only one style—heavy boards. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 339 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton.

EVOLUTIONISM.

A Series of Illustrated Lectures Upon the

EVOLUTION OF ALL THINGS IN THE UNIVERSE.

BY OLNEY H. RICHMOND,

Price, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS And How We Ascend Them.

How to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. By Moses Hull. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper 25 cts. For sale at this office.

Apocryphal New Testament

Being all the Gospels, Epistles, and other pieces now extant, attributed in the first four centuries to Jesus Christ, his apostles and their companions, and not included in the New Testament by its compilers. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though it escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance, "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 32 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50; postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD,

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve,

By Lois Waisbrooker. This is a novel written with a purpose to improve the human race; to mold the future offspring with reason, health and inspiration. No one need be afraid of this book. Price $1, postpaid. For sale at this office.

G. WALTER LYNN

THE EMINENT

Mental Physician AND Gifted Psychic.

Obsession Cured.

Special Attention Given to

Nervous Ailments.

Astonishing Cures of Disease, Physical and Mental, Through

Magnetized Remedies and Psychic Science.

Readings and business advice, by mail, $1.00 and two stamps.

For correct diagnosis of disease send five two-cent stamps, age, name, sex and own handwriting.

☞I have never known a more competent, reliable and truthful medium for the Spirit-world than Chas. Walter Lynn. JOS. RODES BUCHANAN.

Address, 1017 Castro st., Oakland, Cal.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarmo's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles

Restore lost vision. Write for illustrated Circulars show ng styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE & CO., 43 Evanston av., Chicago, Ill.

Reed City Sanitarium and Private Hospital, A. B. Spinney, M. D., Prop.

Staff of eight consulting physicians and surgeons; professional nurses, steam heat, electric light. Cheapest sanitarium for the accommodations in the world. Board, medical attendance, nursing, baths, massage electrical treatment all for $10 A WEEK. Cases diagnosed free and treated at a distance by correspondence. Prices reasonable. Send your name and address with stamp to REED CITY SANITARIUM, Reed City, Michigan.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Free Diagnosis by Psychic Power.

We cure diseases that are called incurable, by our new and original Method, of personal and absent treatment. Write for our ten-day special offer. Free diagnosis in every case. Our faculty consists of the best healers in the country. Our cures are quick and permanent. Agents wanted to represent our school of Science, for our practical mail courses in Hypnotism, Clairvoyance, Magnetic Healing, etc. These are easy lesson courses and will develope you.

Special Offer:—To introduce our easy lesson courses, we will by way of advertisement, send our regular ten dollar ($10.00) Course for two dollars ($2.00) embracing any one of the above branches of science. Courses beautifully typewritten, and a diploma will be granted to all who pass our examination after taking our lessons. We guarantee satisfaction. Remember the $2 price is limited to a short time only. We want agents everywhere. Write for terms.

REV. CHARLES L. AINSWORTH, Pres.
CHARLES A. MITCHELL, Sec'y.
Central School of Science, 34, 35, 36 Talbott Blk., Indianapolis, Ind. 554

CONVENT CRUELTIES

Is the title of a 32 page pamphlet by Henry A. Sullivan, ex-monk, which is a sort of prospectus, or advance portion of a larger work to be published under the same title as soon as the sale of the smaller work provides the funds therefor. Besides the introduction the pamphlet discusses "How Girls Become the Brides of Christ—A peep into the Convent," "The Convent Horror—A Sworn Statement," "Taking the Veil," etc. Its tale are thrilling. Send 10c in silver to Henry A. Sullivan, 1178 W. Adams st. Chicago, for sample copy. 554

Longley's Beautiful Songs

For Public Meetings and the Home.

VOLUME ONE

Contains the following songs with music:

I'm thinking, dear mother, of you. We miss our boys at home. The land of the bye and bye. The good times yet to be. The land beyond the stars. They are waiting at the portal. When the dear ones gather at home. Resting under the daisies. The grand jubilee. My mother's tender eyes. Dear heart come home. Come in some beautiful dream. Where the roses never fade. In heaven we'll know our own.

VOLUME TWO

Contains 15 new and beautiful songs, suited to the home circle, seances, local meetings, mass-meetings, conventions, anniversaries and jubilees. They comprise an excellent variety of poems set to easy harmony and ought to sell readily. These books are 15cts. each; the two for 30cts. For sale at this office.

Discovery of a Lost Trail

BY CHARLES B. NEWCOMB,

Author of "All's Right with the World." Cloth 270 pages. Mr. Newcomb made a distinct success with "All's Right with the World," which continues in the front rank of the Metaphysical books that are now so popular. The great number who have been cheered and strengthened by him will welcome another book by this

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

SPIRITUALISM—Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.—SPIRITUALISM

VOL. 22 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1900. NO. 556

SOME EXCELLENT THOUGHTS.

They Are Brilliant and Glowing with Divine Spirituality.

Spiritualists Can Gather Pearls of Wisdom Therefrom, and Extract Lessons Laden with That Which Enriches the Soul.

FOLLOWERS OF PRENTICE MULFORD FORM A SOCIETY—CHICAGO LEADS THE NEW MOVEMENT WITH 200 MEMBERS—BELIEVE IN SUPREMACY OF MIND OVER MATERIAL THINGS OF LIFE—BELIEVE PURE THOUGHT LEADS TO BETTER THINGS, HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

As set forth in an admirable manner by the Chicago Chronicle, hardly a shorter, and certainly no better name than Auto could have been found for the clubs which are in process of formation in this city by some followers of Prentice Mulford, for their master's doctrine was that self is capable of ruling absolutely the body and spirit—that self is the spirit, and may of itself shape its own career—that the body is fair or ugly, well or sick according as the spirit is pure or impure. This, of course, makes the body a mere instrument, which in Mulford's contention is not more the man than the hammer is the smith or the carpenter. Self-power, if this doctrine be true, is all sufficient to both the bodily and the spiritual well being of every man and woman who embraces it. The Greek prefix "auto," which the English language has borrowed and made extensive use of, in its new usage means just that; the Auto Club has for its members men and women who believe in educating the temperament, and by so doing overcome the evil and correct the non-success of each individual life.

The new movement starts in Chicago. So far there is but one Auto Club, but it is an incorporated body, with the principle of expansion in its constitution and by-laws. The one existing—the mother club—already has 200 members, who are mostly young men, but there are also young women among them. It has not yet a fixed place of meeting, but meets around in the different offices and stores or houses of individual members. But they have a location somewhere in the central part of the town. Then it is expected there will be formed one or more auxiliary clubs in each of the three divisions of the city, and their members will be extended the privilege of visiting daily, if they so choose, the central or mother club. There is to be a kitchen set up and a competent chef employed, who has been specially educated and will be required to produce meals composed of the best and freshest materials that can be found in the market. Incidentally it is one of the teachings of Mulford that purity of food is a prime help in the work of fashioning beautifully the human spirit. But it would be a mistake to impute to the Mulfordites the doctrines of the pure food advocates, who are otherwise known as vegetarians. The leaders in the new movement say and insist that they are not in any sense visionaries or cranks, but, on the contrary, claim to be quite level and practical. Certainly some among them are practical enough. John Walgren, a young attorney, who has the reputation of being devoted to his profession, is one of the leaders, and others are earnest and successful in various commercial pursuits. They think that by accepting the teachings of Prentice Mulford, and by conforming their lives to those teachings, they may become better and stronger men and women in whatever is lovely and of good report.

They hold, too, that it is only by associating together in clubs that the full benefit of the new doctrines can be appropriated by the individuals respectively. Hence a great and persistent effort will be made to organize numerous Auto Clubs in this city for the purpose mainly of bringing about good fellowship of all such as are like minded with Prentice Mulford. And if the projectors of these clubs in this city are overconfident the movement is destined to spread until the whole country is covered by similar clubs.

SUGGESTED BY MULFORD'S WRITINGS.

There are many parts in Mulford's teachings—in one place he seems to be a Christian Scientist, in another a quietist, in still another a Spiritualist, and now and then he almost declares himself a Theosophist. He evidently believes in spirit walking and thought transference. But he avoids committing himself wholly to any one of these doctrines. He was an honest thinker, though many will call him a self-deluded man, and no doubt he sought to create a new philosophy of life out of materials old and new, though some will think the newness in this case is only a new statement of things that are as old as imagination in the human race.

But, whatever his doctrines are or howsoever valuable or the reverse they may be, no doubt he entertained the hope that posterity would regard him as the founder of a sect. To this end he suggested the policy of association for his followers and indicated what he considered a true way to escape from social and spiritual ills. The thing to do is to get out of and forever keep distant from "the inferior thought current." It becomes important, then, to know where this inferior thought current most obtains. This he indicates as follows:

"Every low place of resort, every saloon filled with hangers-on more or less under the influence of stimulant, every and any place of deceit, of trickery in trade, is an actual spring of low thought. This thought flows from it, as real, though unseen, as water from a spring. In any great city all these are as so many thousands of springs of filthy thought—elements near together. It is not a live, rapid current. It is more like a slowly moving bed of filthy ooze, in which you are mixed and slowly borne along. Every tattling, gossiping, scandal-mongering group of people is an additional spring of such thought. So is every family where disorder, sour looks, cross words and peevishness and petulance reign. Good society, as well as that called inferior in the social scale, can contribute this inferior thought current. The purest spirit cannot live in this thought current without being unfavorably affected by it. It requires continual outlay of force to resist it. You become mixed and intangled in it, blinded by its obscurity, weighed down by the burden it brings."

ONE WAY OF ESCAPE.

One way of escaping from this inferior thought current as to love to meet is of a value you cannot overestimate. is, according to Mulford, to go into a better physical environment. "You may have noticed," he says, "how much of inordinate desire you are freed from on getting in the open country, far beyond the city limits. Mountains are more free from this thought. It is an element which conforms to the law of gravitation. Low thought runs to the lowest places, as does anything heavy, crude and coarse. Trade, commerce and manufacture unfortunately demand cities to be built on low levels, either at the seaside or river bank. In the coming higher civilizations the making of the most perfect men and women and the discovery and making of real and permanent pleasure will be the chief pursuit. Cities will then be built on hills and mountains, so that all the cruder emanations, seen and unseen, shall readily drain away."

But while the world is waiting for cities builded on hills much can be accomplished by forming superior thought currents, and the way to form these is to organize men and women with high ideals in groups and clubs. With so much of this injurious, unseen element about us, he says, there is an additional necessity for this. A quotation will make his reasons plain.

"There is necessity for forming groups of people who are naturally aspiring and more pure, who shall frequently come together and by conversation and silent communion generate a current of pure thought. The more of this they make through such co-operation, the power is given each individual of the group to keep himself, whether in the body by day out of it by night from being unfavorably affected and perhaps overwhelmed by these prevailing destructive tides. You are then forming a chain of connection with the higher, purer and more powerful region of thought. The more you earnestly seek to form such connection the stronger will be the chain. You do not realize the strength of these powers of darkness all about you or the odds against you in trying to stem this dark tide alone.

WILL LEAD TO BETTER LIFE.

"The thought brought to and made by a few persons who so meet in concert and who are so alive to its benefits It is the more powerful thought. It is part the thought and with the thought the force of wise, powerful and beneficent spirits who will be attached to your group and who come with every desire to aid you. It will clear your brain, make stronger your body, drive out disease and give you new ideas and plans for every kind of legitimate business. You do not realize how much you are kept from success and on a lower level of life through unconsciously absorbing and being swayed or partly blinded or confused by the low thought current about you. You accept false views of life. You may absorb timidity from others. You may so absorb inertia and lack of courage. Your periods of lack of confidence and indecision may be results of absorption of this lower element. You may not know how blind you are and what a different man or woman you might be did you see more clearly what could injure and what could benefit you. Your generation of the more powerful thought, though meeting in a concert of pure motive, inquiry for truth and desire to benefit others as well as yourselves would clear your intellect, increase your energy, lead you away from errors and stumbling blocks, improve your health and build you up in a force which would bring to you every material good thing. It is a way for 'seeking first the kingdom of God, when all these things shall be added unto you.' They are added because the force you create in yourself through these meetings as a family and fraternity will be as an actual magnet, attracting all things which your wisdom says will benefit you."

Thus did Prentice Mulford outline a scheme for forming his followers into groups or clubs, but though this outline has been before the world now for twenty years, no such club or group was formed until last month, when John Walgren and associates, being provided with a charter from the State, organized the Auto Club in this city.

SAYS THOUGHTS ARE THINGS.

A very great man, Cardinal Newman, has in one of his books a wonderful passage, in which he declares that musical notes are living things. Mr. Mulford in one of his most ingenious essays says something similar to this. Thoughts are things, he declares. "Every thought, spoken or unspoken, is a thing, a substance, as real, though visible, as water or metal; every thought, though unspoken, which goes to that person, thing, or locality on which it is placed." Again: "Thought is a substance as much as air or any other unseen element of which chemistry makes us aware. It is of many and varying degrees of strength." It is the spirit, he says, that thinks and it is the spirit and not the body that overexertion makes tired. So many thoughts which are things go out of the spirit in a single busy day that the spirit is tired at night.

"The spirit is weak at night, because its forces have in thought been sent in so many different directions during the day that it cannot call them together. Every thought is one of these forces and a part of your spirit. Your spirit has during the day been sent in 1,000, perhaps 10,000 different directions. When you think, you work. Every thought represents an outlay of force. So sending out force for sixteen or eighteen hours, there is not at night sufficient left in or near the body to use it. The body therefore falls into the condition of insensibility we call sleep. The spirit collects its scattered forces, its thoughts, which have been sent out far and wide; it returns, with its powers so contracted, to the body and again possesses it with its full strength. It is when scattered as so many scattered rills of water trickling in many directions. Put all these things together in a single volume and you have the power that turns the mill wheel. Could you call all your spirit at once to its center and so collect its widely scattered forces, you could be fresh and strong in as many minutes as it now takes hours to rest you."

One duty, therefore of the Auto Club will be to cultivate in its members the faculty for taking rest. This will be done by readings from Mulford's works. He says that the power to take perfect rest can be acquired by all through a certain training.

"It is done by first placing the body in a state of as complete rest as possible; stopping all involuntary physical motions, such as the swinging of limbs, tapping with the foot or drumming with the fingers. All such involuntary movements waste your force, and, worse, train you unconsciously to a habit hard to break, of wasting force. The involuntary working of the mind, the straying of thought in every direction—toward persons, things, plans, projects—the useless frettings over cares great and small—must be similarly stopped and the mind for a few minutes made as near a blank as possible. Concentration of thought on the word 'indrawing,' or 'drawing into self,' or the mind picture of your spirit with its fine electric filaments reaching to persons, places and things far from you, being all drawn back and massed in a focus, is a help to do this; because whatso you imagine in your mind is a spiritual reality. That is, what you image you are actually in spirit and by spirit doing."

The argument from this is that we should think only good and pure thought, and this he enforces on his followers in a dozen different and striking ways. If, he in one place says, one think hateful thoughts and fall asleep thinking them, no rest is had.

WHAT HAPPENS IN SLEEP.

Mr. Mulford's views of sleep and of what the spirit does during sleep correspond very nearly to some of the views of the Spiritualists. "You travel when your body is in the state called sleep. The real 'you' is not your body; it is an unseen organization—your spirit. It has senses like those of the body, but far superior. It can see forms and hear voices miles away from the body. Your spirit is not in your body. It is never wholly in it; it acts on it and uses it as an instrument. It is a power which makes itself felt miles from your body."

In this way he accounts for telepathy, transference of thought, and apparitions. He says: "Your spirit can, and does frequently, go from your body to other places during sleep. It is then still connected with it by a thread of exceedingly fine element. This can be drawn out to a great distance. It is an expanding or contracting wire, connecting your spirit with the instrument it operates, your body. This power of the spirit so to leave the body accounts for the phenomenon of persons being seen in two places at the same time. It is the spirit that is seen by the clairvoyant eye. It is the 'double,' the 'doppel ganger' of the Germans, the 'wraith' of the Scotch. The spirit may even be far from the body just previous to the body's death. It is only the feeble supply of life sent to it through the connecting thread which causes the involuntary throes (so-called) of dissolution. These are not as painful as they seem. The real self, the spirit, even then may be unaware of the death-bed scene. It may go to some person, possibly at a distance, to whom it may be attracted, and thereby is solved the mystery of the apparitions, seen by distant friends, of persons whose deaths at or about the time of such appearances were not heard of until months after."

The Auto Clubs have a wide field of study before them. They will not only inquire into the problems of work-a-day existence, but will discuss the things of the spirit, present or temporarily absent, and the profound mystery of sleep. The members of Auto Clubs should have always refreshing sleep, if they obey their master. But their clubs will be much too lively to be mere sleeping stations.

SLEEPLESSNESS AND ITS CURE.

Mr. Mulford says the spirit may remain scattered all night and may never be able to bring its forces together at any time. But it is often out on frivolous or harmful errands. The spirit, when it frets sends out force to the things fretted about. These states of mind, acts of thought, and useless waste of force become at last so confirmed a habit that the spirit may lose all power of bringing all its strength together. In this state it gathers no strength by night or day. This, he says, is sleeplessness. He enlarges on the definition: "Sleeplessness comes of the difficulty of the spirit to bring itself to a center and collect its forces. Insanity comes of the total inability of the spirit to focus its thoughts. The permanent cure for sleeplessness must commence in the daytime. You must drill your mind to put its whole thought on the act you are now doing. If you tie your shoe, think shoe and nothing else. Then you bring yourself to a center and collect your forces. If you tie your shoe and think of what you are going to buy, the next hour you are sending needlessly half of your force from yourself. You are in reality trying to do two things at once. You do neither well. You are scattering your spirit on as many things as you think of while tying the shoe. You are cultivating the bad habit of scattering your force until such habit becomes involuntary. You are making it more and more difficult for your spirit to collect itself together. By so doing you make it more difficult for the spirit to return with strength to its body in the morning, or to leave it at night. You can get no healthy sleep at night unless your spirit does withdraw from its body.

"Sleeplessness means simply that your spirit cannot leave its body. If you fall into the dangerous habit of fretting, your spirit may fret as much on going from its body at night as when using it in the daytime."

This is good doctrine, but it is not new. Something like it is in the Bible in the injunction "let not the sun go down on your wrath." As Mr. Mulford interprets this injunction, it is having in mind just before the body's eyes close in sleep, the recollection of the persons you dislike, and be then engaged in sending hating thought to them. The spirit will keep up the process after it leaves the body. To hate is simply to expend forces in tearing yourself, your spirit, to pieces. Hate is a destructive force. Good will to all is constructive—it builds you up stronger and stronger. Hate tears you down. Good will to all draws to you healthy and constructive elements from all with whom you come in contact. As he prettily puts it: "Could you see the actual elements as they flow from them to you, in their liking for you, you would see them as fine rills of life feeding you. Could you see the contrary elements of hatred which you may excite in others, you would see them flowing toward you as dark rills of dangerous, poisonous substance. * * Self-interest should prompt people to hate none. It weakens the body and causes disease. You never saw a healthy cynic, growler, or grumbler. Their soured thought poisons them. Their bodily disease originates in their minds. Their spirits are sick. That makes the body sick."

DISEASE AND ITS CURE.

Next come a few sentences that make one think Mr. Mulford was a Christian Scientist. "All disease originates in this way. Cure the spirit, change the state of the mind, replace the desire to make others feel disagreeably by that of making them feel agreeably, and you are on the road to cure disease." He was a Christian Scientist, but did not object to the employment of material remedies. He says: "That is a spiritual gift which finds out healing properties in plants, roots and herbs. All nature expressed in substance, seen by the physical eye, is an expression also of mind or force; and every plant has its peculiar kind of quality of that force, and this, when applied, can help the individual spirit to drive out disease. But all seen things are expressions of the lower or relatively cruder form of mind or spirit, and therefore have a limited power; and, when any material remedy is applied, the main dependence should not be on the remedy, but on the power of mind, and, above all things, one's own mind or force, to put the body above the reach of disease. I apply clothing to my body as an external application of wool or cotton to protect that body from cold. But I believe in the power of mind to resist cold and be comfortable, with much less clothing than the average wearer. Your spirit can by degrees attain such power. That is no reason why I should lessen the amount of clothing in cold weather before I have grown to or gathered that amount of force which shall so resist cold. If I think a medicine will aid what force I have to cure the body, or, in other words, to add to its peculiar spiritual strength my own spiritual strength, to act on the body, I think it better to take it. But for that reason I should not fly to a pill or a stimulant at the first sign of pain or weakness, but turn on my first spiritual or mental force, and in any case rely first and last on that.

"The gift of thought healing is a spiritual gift. It belongs to all in proportion as their permanent flow of thought is pure, cheerful, determined, vigorous, decided and abounding in good will to others. * * Your own healthy thought, aided by the healthy thought of others, is real substance, and has the power to build up any organ which is sore or inflamed, and wasting away through lack of some element necessary to it."

Now it is seen how the Auto Clubs are to be of benefit to the health of their members. A better kind of sympathy is to exist between the members. There is to be nothing but good will in those clubs. The rule there will be that of spirit, and what lovely spirits will there not be among the Autos in time if Mr. Mulford's doctrines prove in practice what they are in theory.

DON'T TAKE TO SPECTACLES.

If there is an oculist in the Auto Club he will not like one thing in Mulford's teaching. The oculist will say every time, "Let me prescribe spectacles for you." But Mulford says if your eyesight is weak make up your mind firmly that it must be as good as ever it was. "In taking immediately to spectacles," he says, "thousands unconsciously make up their mind that because the natural sight has failed it has failed for the remainder of their lives. When you take to glasses you take to crutches for the eye. Then of course you use eye crutches for the rest of your life. You do not reason or act in this way with a strained leg or foot. If you do seek the help of a crutch or cane you are continually in mind wishing to do without that cane and trying from time to time to walk without crutch or cane. The eye can be made weak by some weakness of the body, and this weakness of the body was caused by some kind of trouble of the mind—either grief or worry or anxiety—about something, for all these states of the mind exhaust the force of the body. Rest enables an overtaxed stomach to recuperate itself. Rest enables an overtaxed muscle or limb to become as strong as ever. Why should not rest restore an overtaxed eye? It is the same unseen force that gives strength to all the body organs. You do not rest the eye in wearing glasses. You do overstimulate it through putting on artificial lenses for concentrating the light to make you see, which the natural lens has failed to do."

The ear doctor also gets a scoring. "If you have a slight deafness, keep your thought always against deafness. Can your mind, you ask, throw out an obstruction in the ear, an accumulation of the secretion peculiar to the ear? Your force or spirit throws off in time the outer covering or scab of a sore. It throws off continually the dead outer skin. When the mind can no longer use the body, or the body, as we say, dies, there is no longer such casting off of dead matter from different portions and organs. If you are educated to think a disease must increase it will increase, because then your mind is working its force not to help its body, but to encourage the idea that the body is falling to pieces. Your mind then feeds the disease."

AUTO CLUB A CONFESSIONAL.

The Auto Club a kind of confessional, is it? Prentice Mulford in one place says: "It is very injurious both to mind and body to live with the knowledge of our sins, or rather our immature tendencies, confided to no one and locked up in our own breasts. These thoughts (or things) if not talked out to some trusted friend, in full sympathy with us and in our vein of thought, will remain and generate more evil. The mind then fastens itself steadily upon them. We might say that it endeavors to draw nutriment from a food which it has eaten over and over again. This will eventually bring some form of disease.

"The real food for both spirit and body is new ideas, new and newer conceptions of life, new and newer interpretations and meanings for all material things about us. We shall see things with a new eye every day. The thought, the plan, the opinion, the view we had yesterday are to be succeeded the next by newer thought, plan, opinion. When the mind grows to this state it is receiving its 'daily bread' of life, and this is new life for the body also. This constantly changing mental condition is constantly changing for the better the character and quality of the elements composing the body, and will prolong indefinitely the life of the body."

New ideas are to be found by associating with genial and sympathetic spirits. Such persons are to tell the mental and heart experiences to one another—they are to confess. This is for the groups and clubs, for Mr. Mulford says: "The only persons who can talk safely with each other and serve as mutual confessors each to the other must be in the same current of thought. They must see things with the same eye. They must understand each other. They must divine or interpret each other's motives and character through that intuition or unspoken communion which always exists between kindred minds and by which a few words tell more than can be explained in an hour of spoken conversation."

PRENTICE MULFORD'S CAREER.

It will be seen from the foregoing that Prentice Mulford had a singular turn of mind for things both philosophical and practical. Besides, he was something of a mystic. He had little in his thought that was new, but he combined a number of mental and spiritual things in a manner that gave newness of effect to them. The body of his writings is not large—the "White Cross Library" is one of the smallest of libraries. It consists of twenty-five essays. To name a few of the titles is to indicate the nature of these essays. "You Travel When You Sleep," "How Thoughts Are Born," "The Law of Success," "The Slavery of Fear," "Profit and Loss in Associates," "What Are Spiritual Gifts," "Mental Medicine," "Cultivate Repose," "The Power of Honesty," "Woman's Real Power," etc., etc. All of Mr. Mulford's writing is good. His doctrines cannot possibly harm and his literary style many find admirable He began writing on a newspaper published near a great mining camp in California, and when he had had enough of both gold mining and a country newspaper he went to San Francisco and took a position on the leading literary weekly paper there. It was many years ago, when the present San Francisco Chronicle was called the Democratic Chronicle, and when Bret Harte, Mark Twain, Charles Warren Stoddard, Ralph Keeler and other men who later became famous were making copy for any who would buy, and found it hard enough to live. Mr. Mulford, in a way, held his own with them. But after a time he removed to Stockton and edited a paper there. Next he was sent by some rich men of San Francisco to England "to advocate by writing and talking the good and glory of California." While abroad he served also as correspondent for a number of papers in the United States. He returned in 1873 and became connected editorially with the New York Graphic. In another year or two he was back again on the other side of the Atlantic, and after reporting the Paris Fair of 1878 for the San Francisco Bulletin, he tired of foreign civilization and decided to try that of New York once more. "I again took a position on the Graphic," he has written, "as head boiler down and condenser of news. I filled that position for six years and left it in 1883 because of being thoroughly tired and sick of chronicling in short meter day after day the eternal round of murders, scandals, burglaries, fires, accidents and other events which people deem it indispensable to know and swallow after breakfast. I became so thoroughly saturated with the horrors consequent on civilization as to feel some mornings after I had stewed the preceding day's miseries down into a small mess that I wanted to go for a dose of arsenic or paris green myself." Soon he retired from that position and built with his own hands a ramshackle shanty in a New Jersey wilderness, seventeen miles from New York. "It cost $40," he told a friend, "and was not an elegant piece of architecture. But it filled the bill. There I commenced writing my 'White Cross Library' Series."

He lived seven years after that and continued to write and lecture. In 1891 he died. One who knew him well has said of the event: "If Prentice Mulford could have chosen the manner of his own death I think he would have elected to go as he did go; he died alone in his boat on a Long Island bay, wafted back to the Infinite on the bosom of the sweet, green, restful sea."

THE LAND OF SILENCE.

There's a restful land called Silence,
Where our souls for peace may go,
Where the faces that meet us and glance
Are bright, unshadowed by woe.

And the valleys and hills are cradled
In images of beauty and love,
That the Gods of our fathers have fabled
And pictured in visions above.

Sweet are the dreams that there gather,
As the taper of day burns low,
And breaths of beauty and pleasure
Unmingled with sorrow and woe.

There the domes and pilasters are glinted
In rays of the brightness of gold,
And the star-beams of heaven imprinted
In beautiful colors untold.

And there are the loved ones of days,
The playmates of youth's brief hour;
They meet us with the same glad ways
Awakened from death's grim power.

They glide to our side with caresses
As fond and gentle as of old,
With the incense of their love that blesses,
And warm arms our spirits infold.

And the sad days of our loss and sorrow,
With its sombre pall and death,
Is rich in the light that we borrow
Of God's soul-kindling breath.

BISHOP A. BEALS.

Summerland, Cal.

Bankson Lake, Mich.

Bankson Lake Camp commenced June 3 and closed June 17, Mrs. Jennie Hagan-Brown, of Fort Worth, Texas, being the first speaker after the address of welcome by the Chair, Mrs. Lucy J. Williams, of Paw Paw. Mrs. Brown's lectures were good and poems expressive. She stayed with us until Friday, the 8th, Mrs. Amanda Coffman, of Grand Rapids, then occupied the rostrum, and in her sweet way lectured, and gave descriptions after each lecture. Mrs. Marion Carpenter came June 12, and remained until the close of camp. In her usual interesting way she held the audience spellbound, and with the aid of her genial husband many descriptions were given which were recognized. Mrs. Kinny of Grand Rapids, and Mrs. Worthington of Texas, Miss O'Dell of Paw Paw, and Miss Bernice Quick of Paw Paw, assisted in the way of music. Our earnest and much loved Sister Mattie Woodbury, of Lansing, was there during the entire camp, and many availed themselves of her clear-cut mediumship. Bro. Chapman, of Marcellus, gave us many of his inspirational poems. It is hoped much good was accomplished. Certainly all enjoyed the spiritual feasts and also the shady grove and the lake, with hopes to meet there again.

MRS. LUCY J. WILLIAMS.

LIFE AND EXPERIENCE IN SPIRIT LAND

A Series of Letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea to His Son, Carlyle Petersilea.

LETTER NUMBER THIRTY-ONE.

"Talmage! Talmage! Brother Talmage! Will you put on the gloves, my gentle brother, and take a friendly bout with me? and if we get too furious, Herr Franz here will throw up the sponge.

"Brother, you told your congregation, some time ago, that when you became a spirit, you would visit them. You said: 'When I get to heaven—as by the grace of God I am destined to go to that place—I will come and see you all. Yes, I will come to all the people to whom I have administered the gospel, and to millions of souls to whom through the kindness of the printing press, I am permitted to preach every week to the uttermost parts of the earth. I will visit them all. I give you fair notice. Our departed friends of the ministry are now engaged in that delectable entertainment and undertaking.'

"There, I believe I have fairly quoted your words. You will come to them all, my brother, all those to whom you have preached the gospel, either by word of mouth or through the printing press?

"When you made the foregoing remarks, did you ask the people how they would receive you? Did you tell them in what manner you would come? I think you intimated that you would come as one of God's soldiers. I suppose you forgot all about that 'still small voice.' Did you mean one of God's soldiers, or one of Christ's soldiers? But as you believe God and Christ are one and the same, and as you pretend to be a follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, I take it that you meant a soldier belonging to his regiment—or, did you mean to imply that God was the general of the armies in heaven, said armies being reviewed by the Holy Ghost, while Jesus was, or would be, the captain of your particular company? You did not inform your hearers, if I make no mistake, whether you were to be a private, sergeant, or lieutenant, but as you are supposed to feed the people, I think that you really, cannot rightfully take the place of a fighting soldier. I greatly fear, my brother, that you are placing yourself a little too high in the list. You cannot be a fighting soldier in the ranks and feed the army at the same time. I have been a soldier and know whereof I speak. I have been a soldier, and they called me Colonel, Colonel Bob, Colonel Robert, Colonel Ingersoll, and so forth, and the regulations do not admit the one who feeds the army, or a regiment, into the ranks as a fighting soldier.

"If you claim Jesus as your captain, he said, 'feed my lambs.' What are you giving them, my brother? How are you feeding them? Are you giving them good, wholesome food, or embalmed beef?

"You say you have administered unto the people the gospel. You feed them upon gospel according to your own words, and you will come as a spirit to those whom you have fed upon the gospel.

"Well, now we really ought to analyze gospel and find out what it is—whether it is good for the people or not. The regulations for the army say, that the men shall be fed on good, nourishing food. Now, as you feed the mind instead of the body—that is, we will say that you feed the spirit, mind, and soul, instead of the body, you certainly are expected to furnish good, wholesome, nourishing food to the spirit, mind and soul of man. You feed them gospel—the gospel of Christ Jesus. You feed the people gospel.

"Gospel is good news; consequently you feed the good news. Now instead of a fighting soldier, you are the bearer of good news—the messenger bringing good news.

"Gospel is not bad news, but good news. Nothing in the gospel has any reference to bad news. You are to feed your people on good news, and I take it that good news is of the kind which makes everybody happy, otherwise it would be bad news, not good for the mind, spirit, and soul of man.

"Good news, good news! I fear, Brother Talmage, you are making a greater mistake than I did. I was mistaken, I admit. Are you sure that you are quite right?

"Brother, be sure that your news is all correct. Don't let any blunders or mistakes creep in. The gospel food must be as pure and unadulterated as truth can possibly make it; then, as I understand it, the gospel means good news, pure and truthful, not a single lie or misrepresentation must be in it—pure as clear, spring water, Brother Talmage.

"The gospel of Jesus the Christ, or anointed one, that is, the good news, the truthful news that Christ gave to the people. Well, what was the news that Christ had for the people?

"'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' 'If thy brother offend thee forgive him seventy times seven times. 'Bear not false witness against thy neighbor.' 'Bless them that curse you.' Now this is just a little bit of the good news that Jesus had to bring to the world, and you are one supposed to be called by the meek and lowly Jesus to give of his good news to the people.

"I suppose, Brother Talmage, you admit, as Jesus did, that all men are brothers and consequently even a spiritual man is your brother—or rather a man who believes he has a spirit—and a man who believes he has a spirit is a Spiritualist, otherwise a Spiritualist is one who believes he has an immortal soul.

"Anything wrong about that, Brother Talmage? and the man who thus believes—the Spiritualist—is your brother. Now all Spiritualists believe they have an immortal spirit, consequently all Spiritualists are your brothers. Have you been careful in your bearing of the good news, to do unto the Spiritualist as you would have the Spiritualist do unto you? Have you forgiven what you suppose to be his mistakes 'seventy times seven times?' Have you been exceedingly careful not to bear false witness against your brothers? Have you blessed and not cursed them? I ask these pertinent questions, that you may reflect whether or no you have not been making a few mistakes—that the good news you bring from Christ is purely that which he commanded you to give? Are you bringing the good news directly from God or Christ? If you say from God direct, I reply, that God, as you believe, never commanded any man to give gospel direct from him except his only begotten son, Jesus, the Christ. You must fight me on that ground or none. It is Christ or nothing. If, as you say, Christ is the only begotten son of God, then you are not the son of God and can only know or see God through Christ. So it is with Christ and Christ only you have to deal, and it is his commands, and his only, that you are expected to obey.

"Did Christ say anything about such a heaven as you talk of? He is supposed to have said, 'In my father's house are many mansions. If it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you, that where I am, there ye may be also;' and he is supposed to have said to the thief on the cross, 'This day shalt thou be with me in paradise.' He never said a word about an army, never mentioned the name of a general, captain or colonel, but he said, 'In my father's house are many mansions. If it were not so I would have told you.' Mansions! very many mansions—and the father's house must be the place where the spirits of men dwell.

"Brother Talmage, where do the spirits of men dwell? Where are the many mansions that Christ spoke of? Do you know? Can you tell me? If you cannot and your Spiritualist brother can, why he must be nearer to Christ than you are. Why, you must be a very poor commissariat, to allow your Spiritualist brother to take your business out of your hands on account of your incompetence. You are engaged to feed the people with good news, true news, unadulterated food, direct from the fountain head, Christ; and you can't even tell them where the father's house is situated. Do not hate your brother because he can give them better news than you can, for the gospel is good news, not bad.

"'If I go to my father—or to the place where the spirits of men dwell—I will come again.' He was going to the father's house, or to the place where the spirits of men dwell—to the place where they had a great many mansions—he was going as a spirit freed from his body and he would come again.

"Did he keep his word, Brother Talmage? You believe that he did. He first appeared to Mary Magdalene and she ran directly and told the good news to others.

"What a crazy, debauched Spiritualist she must have been. You also think she was an immoral woman. I don't know that we can settle that question now, and really it may be quite unimportant whether she was a perfectly pure woman or not, but your captain thought her good enough to give the good news to the people, and if he thought so, what right have you to differ from him?

"We have no record that Christ said to her, 'Mary, you are a magdalen, consequently I forbid you to tell the people, and my disciples, that you have seen me. No; you must keep perfectly silent about having seen me, while I will go and find a pure, moral, upright, wise and good man—like Brother Talmage, of course—who will tell the people that I have kept my word and have come again.' No; he didn't say anything of the kind that we know about, but he said, 'Mary, it is I. Be not afraid. Go and tell the people, and my disciples, that you have seen me.'

"Now, Brother Talmage, you have dwelt largely on that seance that King Saul had with the woman of Endor—a seance which took place, probably, thousands of years before Christ, your Captain, lived in the lower world. Your captain never had a word to say about that seance, that I know of. What right have you to talk of that which your captain ignored? Why don't you tell us about that seance in that upper chamber, where the doors were all shut and the spirit of Jesus stood in their midst.

"Now this seance had nothing so awful about it. Why don't you give good, pleasant news to the people? 'and the doors being shut, Jesus stood in their midst,' Were these men nice, rich, fashionable? Tell us, brother, were they? No; they were poor, common, illiterate fishermen, not altogether good either, for Judas betrayed his master, Simon Peter denied that he knew him, and Thomas doubted that it was he. So we have among the disciples a betrayer who sold his master for silver. Do you ever sell the truth for silver, Brother Talmage? If you do not, then the Rev. Mr. ———, of Hornsy Rise, London, must bear false witness against you, for he said that you would not even enter a pulpit to give the hungering, poor people of a parish, the good news until you had received five hundred dollars in advance.

"That was really more than Judas received for betraying his master, and that master distinctly commanded, 'Go, give the gospel—or the good news—to the people, without money and without price.'

"You ought to be court-martialed for disobedience and insubordination! But to return to that seance in that upper chamber, with those closed doors—and the book says that Jesus appeared to the eleven. Simon Peter had already denied his master, being ashamed to own him; probably he thought he might be laughed at; and Thomas would not believe that it was Jesus. He, no doubt, thought it a fraudulent materialization, and so he had to take hold of Jesus and feel the wounds in his hands, feet, and side, before he would believe his own eyes.

"Now Jesus did not stop to ask whether they had all been good boys or not; fact is, he knew very well that they were not all good, but, he commanded: 'Go, preach to the world the glad tidings of great joy, that you have seen me—that I still live and have kept my word and come again. Although you thought me dead, Lo, I still live!' and many believed and were glad.

"Now at this seance nothing was said about Jesus coming up through the floor; but, 'the doors being shut he appeared in their midst.' We are not even told that they were immoral, insane, cadaverous, nervous, clammy, exhausted, sepulchral, weak, epileptic or cataleptic; but, simply, that 'Jesus stood in their midst,' and that it was an incident to inspire joy and gladness, and they were to publish it to the world as such. "Gospel! Good news! Jesus still lives; and if Jesus still lives, we also shall live. This is evidence to our material senses. It is positive evidence, for we have seen him, had hold of him, and heard him talk. Now he is in that place where spirits dwell, and there are many mansions there. If he can come again, we also can come again. Go, tell the good news—the good news!

"Brother Talmage, why didn't you tell the people about that seance instead of the other? Or, if you must tell about the other, tell about both of them.

"Now you say that you are coming back from that place where the spirits dwell—you call it heaven—your captain called it the father's house—you have faith to believe that you can come back—you say you will visit millions of people. Now, just here is the rub. Are you the only spirit who will be permitted?

"You have told your hearers and readers that the seance room is the door of hell, or of all that is vile, debauched, immoral, licentious, cadaverous, nervous, weak, sepulchral; you have warned them away from it as from a horrible pit of darkness and depravity, and held up the mediums or sensitives, as abhorrent wretches. I am really anxious about you, my brother, for I sincerely hope you will be able to visit those millions of people.

"Brother, having shut all the doors against yourself, and thrown the keys into the abyss, will you climb up some other way—some way especially designed for Talmage? Even your master must use the medium, Mary Magdalene, and that upper chamber, with the closed doors, for a seance room, and a circle composed of the apostles or believers.

"Your captain can't speak a word to the world to-day without mouth-pieces, or mediums. You pretend to be a mouth-piece, or medium, for Christ to manifest through to-day; in fact, you say that you are a medium for God himself to manifest through, you do not even stop at Christ. Then you are a sorcerer of all sorcerers, and a few hundred years back would have been burned at the stake. Are you insane, immoral, licentious, weak, nervous, cadaverous, epileptic, cataleptic, and a moral leper generally?

"Fie, fie! my brother. Aren't you ashamed of yourself? Your captain commanded you to love your brother, bless him and forgive him seventy times seven times. I am a spirit here in the father's house, or the place where spirits dwell, and I have reported you to your captain. We have talked about your disobedience and insubordination together—yet he knew of it all along. Have you forgotten the Golden Rule—Do unto others as you would have others do unto you? Thou shalt not bear false witness. Now this command interests me fully as much, or more, than any other, for the simple reason that when with you in the form of perishable substance, I was much engaged in the courts of so-called Justice, and had much to do with witnesses; and I love the old calling still; and intend to engage in it whenever I find an opportunity. You, also, hope to be engaged in the delectable entertainment and undertaking of carrying good news to the people; but, if you bear false witness, I will subpoena you to appear before the courts of heaven to answer to the charges of defamation of character, public slanderous utterances, and malicious falsehoods; and, if you cannot prove your innocence, you will certainly be obliged to suffer the penalty for such crimes.

(To be continued.)

There are two times in a man's life when he should not speculate—when he can't afford it, and when he can.—Mark Twain.

Hate not each other because you differ in opinion—rather love each other; for it is impossible that in such a variety of sentiments there should not be some fixed point on which all men ought to unite.—Zoroaster.

IMPORTANT MATTER FROM OUR FOREIGN EXCHANGES

LIGHT, LONDON, ENG.

SPIRITUALISM—CATHOLICISM.

The "Revue du Monde Invisible" is one of the Roman Catholic organs which has the temerity to publish and discuss Spiritualistic phenomena. It has interested us to note the attitude it takes with regard to these facts, and we think readers of "Light" will be similarly interested if from time to time we insert a brief notice of anything in the journal worth recording.

It goes without saying that the editor is opposed to Spiritualism; he could not be otherwise and yet hold the position of a Roman Catholic bishop. He is, however, an opponent who deserves respect, and moreover, he affords an interesting psychological study. We find in his expressions of opinion the result of a cross between two opposite tendencies. His personal tendency seems to be that of a candid and bold inquirer, inclined to investigate strange facts, and to acknowledge them frankly when faced; but he is also under the bias of another tendency, one which must strongly affect all minds brought up from earliest days with the firm belief that all facts ought to be under the lock and key of an autocratic authority, and can only be interpreted by its infallible dictum.

It is extremely interesting to see how this subject of Spiritualism, with all the facts and conclusions to which it leads, acts upon all sorts and conditions of minds. It reminds one of nothing so much as the chemical test of a laboratory. When minds first come into contact with this subject a mental precipitate is at once formed, and with experience it would soon be almost as possible to know what precipitate to expect in a given case as it is for a chemical student; the mental precipitate is a vivid manifestation of the composition of the personality, not only mentally but morally also, and that in very various ways.

There are two articles in the April number of this Review of particular interest. One is the confession of a penitent sent with the permission of his priest. The word "confession" led us to suppose that the narrator had been in communication with some spirit whose messages had been either unorthodox or morally bad; but we found nothing to indicate this. He had been discussing with a Roman Catholic professor the subject of magnetism, and had maintained that there was hardly a case of phenomena which he did not think would be explained by the science of the twentieth century. He had then carried out successfully an experiment in mental suggestion with which he intended to confront the professor as an instance in proof of his contention. That night he was awakened by violent raps, which continued for days whenever he wanted to rest; and at last he was compelled to ask himself: "Was it a spirit?"

"I find it so humiliating," he writes, "to be in connection with the wicked enemy of God and of my soul, that I did not like to ask the question till I was compelled to.

"Not till the third night did I ask aloud: 'If you are a soul in trouble, knock three times.' No response.

"'If you are a demon, knock three times.' A second's silence, then a shower of raps. That was too many; I had only asked for three.

"'Tell me my age, by giving as many raps as I have years.' No response.

"At last on the seventh day, after a mass had been offered that I might obtain an answer which would determine the nature of this noise, I repeated my two questions. At the first, no result. After the second: 'If you are a spirit, in the name of Jesus Christ and of the Holy Mother rap three times.' I heard distinctly and forcibly the three raps I had required."

This statement is followed by the fervently expressed hope that others will learn from his experience to avoid a position so humiliating and distressing; though where the humiliation comes in it is difficult to see.

The editor subjoins a note to the effect that some theologians have held that souls in purgatory do sometimes make known their desire for the prayers of the living by raps.

The other article is one published originally in "La Lumiere," from which journal M. Elie Meric says that he has borrowed it, adding of course that he does not share the views of the writer, who is evidently a convinced Spiritualist. The latter, who signs himself "Rouxel," states that the Royal Academy of Moral and Political Science at Naples has agreed to allow one of its members, M. Pasquale Turiello, to deliver an address on the subject of "Italian Spiritism and Science," and that the Academy has decided to incorporate it in its memoirs.

In this address M. Turiello reviews the past history of Spiritism, the low estimation in which it was held by scientists and religious teachers, and the later experiences and changed attitude of investigators. He then touches upon the various theories by which it is attempted to explain the facts. With reference to the hypothesis that the phenomena are due to the evil one (which is seemingly that which the editor of the "Revue" favors), M. Turiello points out that the spirits constantly urge the love of God and man, prayer, and the pardon of injuries, and that many atheists have been brought back to faith and good works, though not to faith in the Roman religion.

All the scientific theories are touched upon, and M. Turiello concludes by stating that in his opinion the Spiritists are on the road which leads to the advancement of physical science. And he quotes a saying of Kant, to the effect that the human soul is, even in this life, indissolubly associated with all the beings of the spiritual world, and that they mutually impress one another, although man in his normal health is not ordinarily conscious of the fact.

VOLUME 1 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, treats of the "Mythical Origin of Death;" "A Magdalen's Passage to Spirit Life;" "Impressive Communications from the Spirit Side of Life;" "Death Considered by the Spirit Lucretius;" "Oddities in Reference to the Dead;" "Death from a Vibratory Force;" "The Day After Death Beautifully Illustrated;" "Sensations of the Dying;" "A Birth Out of Dark Conditions;" "After Death Experiences of an Avaricious Man;" "A Special Visit to the Spirit World;" "Fragrance at a Child's Death Bed;" "The Varied Experiences of a Humanitarian Spirit;" "The Impressive Testimony of an Exalted Spirit;" "Indications of the Process of Dying;" "The Idiosyncrasies of Death;" "Life and Death Thoughtfully Analyzed;" "Signs in the Process of Dying," etc., etc. In fact this volume is a mine of valuable information, and every person should have access to it. It should be in every home. Read the premium terms carefully, and then send for the Three Volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death.

HARBINGER OF LIGHT, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

MAN IS A SPIRIT.

It is one of the fundamental affirmations of Spiritualism that man is a spirit, the physical body being the instrument through which he cognizes and operates upon the condition of matter by which he is environed. The majority of mankind, however, do not realize this fact, but look upon the physical body as the man himself. They have some justification for doing so in the fact that the actions of the external man denote to a great extent the character of the internal one; but a more thorough realization of the supremacy of spirit and the influence of the mind over matter would materially enhance the soul powers, bringing the functions of the body under the control of the spirit, and thus ensuring harmonious action, and maintaining the healthy condition essential to the development of the indwelling spirit, by which it is brought into harmony with nature, and mediately with nature's God.

That the Divine mind must be the source of all vitality, energy and evolution will be apparent to all spiritual thinkers; and in the ratio in which we approach harmonial conditions do we realize our kinship to the divinity and our power to do the Father's will. But harmonial conditions are not to be attained at a bound; the primary essential is the realization of the inherent supremacy of spirit before alluded to, and the focalization of the will (which is the executive of the spirit) to the subjection of all discords in the body or mind; to the control of all selfish propensities, and the practical expression of brotherly love in daily life. The mere affirmative—I am all spirit, I am all good, I am God! which some of our well-meaning metaphysical writers give us as a formula for the attainment of harmony and spiritual power, may temporarily exalt the individual and lift him off his feet for awhile, but cannot permanently sustain him; nothing of any real value is to be obtained without persistent effort, and we cannot all get to the top of the mountain in a balloon—the wind does not blow that way. Mental science and metaphysical teachings, which are attracting considerable attention just now, are hopeful signs of spiritual awakening. They appeal to the spiritual side of man and impress him with the idea of the supremacy of the mind, or spirit; but the tendency of many of the writers is to affirm, or promise, too much; to make the road appear too easy, and thus dishearten those who fail to reach the goal by leaps and bounds.

The seeker after Divine wisdom should always remember that he is a terrestrial as well as a spiritual being, and whilst climbing heavenward never lose touch of the earth, but preserve both his physical and mental equilibrium. His position will then be stable, and his influence on his fellow mortals far more definite than that of those who live and move and have their being in the ideal. The ideal will be our reality by and by, when we reach the spiritual plane, but meantime mundane things impress their reality upon us, and the true philosopher will endeavor to realize both, and preserve the equilibrium between them.

THE DAWN, CALCUTTA, INDIA

ASTROLOGY.

No one needs to be told that astrology is an ancient system. Originally it included what is now called astronomy, but so vital a subject as the influence of the planets upon mundane affairs was bound to receive separate consideration. India boasts of a large number of astrological works by the ancient Rishis or sages; but honest professors of the science are in modern days few and far between, since astrology has been degraded into a profession in India. Charlatans have abounded and no steps have been devised for protecting reputable astrologers and preventing pseudo-astrologers from palming off their worthless predictions upon a guileless public. The most recent astrological work in India is Hora Vijnana Rahasyam (or the Secrets of the Starry Science) in Bengali by Pandit Narayanachandra Jyotirbhushan. It is really a great and useful work, although it is not original, being a most elaborate and systematic compilation from some thirty original and authoritative works. From India to Chaldea, we find the Chaldeans were the most advanced astrologers of the day. But during the Middle Ages, the pagan characteristics of the science disappeared and the good churchmen did not hesitate to patronize its professors. Cicero was a skeptic in his day and would not believe in the deities of the sky; but that pious monarch, Louis XI. of France, who went to mass as readily as to murder, had the celebrated astrologer Galeotti in his train. Indeed, astrology flourished about as freely just before the Reformation as it had done centuries before in Babylon, although perhaps its predictions were not always fulfilled so conspicuously as in Belshazzar's case. The Reformation helped to destroy faith in this science as in some other things; yet there remained believers even among Protestants—Melancthon, for example. Dryden had his children's nativities reckoned. Fludd and Lilly published "Almanacks" that foretold the plague, the fire of London, and the execution of Charles I.

The hieroglyphic of the great plague in 1665 was published by W. Lilly in the year 1651, and that of the great fire of London, which occurred in 1666, was similarly foretold by William Lilly fourteen years before it happened. After the fire was over, Lilly's prediction (in hieroglyphic) was thought of such sufficient interest and importance by the House of Commons itself, that he was invited by that body by summons to help the "Committee appointed to inquire after the cases of the late fire."

"Religion as Revealed by the Material and Spiritual Universe." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A compact and comprehensive view of the subject; philosophic, historic, analytical and critical; facts and data needed by every student and especially by every Spiritualist. One of the very best books on the subject. Price, reduced to $1, cloth; paper 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"After Her Death. The Story of a Summer." By Lilian Whiting. No mind that loves spiritual thought can fail to be fed and delighted with this book. Beautiful spiritual thought, combining advanced ideas on the finer and ethereal phases of Spiritualism, leading the mind onward into the purer atmosphere of exalted spiritual truth. A book for the higher life. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.

"Buddhism and Its Christian Critics." By Dr. Paul Carus. An excellent study of Buddhism; compact yet comprehensive. Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

KEEP YOUR

ON OUR MAIN PREMIUMS.

The Progressive Thinker one year and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, an intensely interesting, instructive and fascinating work, $1.25. The twenty-five cents only pays a little more than the postage and the expense of mailing. The price of this work to the trade is $1.50. This book will constitute our main premium for the remainder of 1900, and up to May 30, 1901. It is very valuable. It will hold your attention throughout, and will teach you a much needed lesson. The postage on the above book, which we prepay, is ten cents, hence it is almost a gift to our subscribers. It is furnished at considerable less than actual cost to us.

Offer Number Two.

Vol. 1, Vol. 2 and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, will be sent out when accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker, for $1.10. The paper one year, and the three volumes, $2.10. You can add to this order any of the other books; at 40 cents each. You can make only one order for three books for $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Three.

Any three of the books in our premium list that you may select will be sent to you for $1.10. You are at liberty to select any other books in the list that you desire in connection with this order, at 40 cents each. You can only make one order for three books at $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Four.

Our regular premium, The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, is only 25 cents. If you wish to add thereto one of the other premium books only, the same will cost you 50 cents. If you wish two additional books, the cost of the three will be $1.10. You can add thereto any other books you desire at 40 cents each.

Offer Number Five.

If you wish to order only one book in connection with a year's subscription, and that one not our regular yearly premium, the price will be 50 cents.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

OFFER NUMBER SIX.

SEVEN REMARKABLE BOOKS FOR $2.35.

Offered at Far Less Than Actual Cost.

The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol 1, Price.....$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 2, Price.....$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, Price.....$ 1.50
Art Magic, or Mundane, Sub-Mundane and Super-Mundane Spiritism. Price.....$ 1.50
Ghost Land, Spiritualism, Occultism. Price.....$ 1.50
The Next World Interviewed. Price.....$ 1.25
The Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate). Price.....$ 2.00

Total price to the trade.....$10.75
Total price to our subscribers..$ 2.35
The Progressive Thinker one year and the seven premium books..$ 3.35

These seven books, substantially and elegantly bound, and printed in the neatest style of the printer's art will be furnished to our subscribers alone for $2.35. But bear in mind that in order to secure these SEVEN valuable premium books for $2.35, the order must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. The paper one year, $1.00; the seven books, $2.35. Total, $3.35.

The aggregate price of these seven books to the trade is $10.75. In order to assist in forming a Spiritual and Occult Library in every Spiritualist's home, these seven valuable books are furnished to our subscribers for $2.35, which is less by far than their actual cost. The authors make no charge for the vast amount of labor bestowed on these works, and which extended over many years. The publisher receives not a single cent for the great expense he was to, hundreds of dollars being paid out in putting them in type, and electrotyping the pages, and making them ready for the printer. That is why you are getting these intensely interesting books for almost nothing. We are only carrying out the Divine Plan, inaugurated only by The Progressive Thinker. There are thousands of Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper, and this inducement is offered, in order that they may commence forming at once a Spiritual and Occult Library, and thus keep in line with the advancing procession. The postage on the above books and expense of mailing is about 85 cents, hence you are almost receiving them as an absolute gift.

By taking 85 cents from $2.35, you will find that all we have left us for those seven books is only $1.50.

Postmasters.

We have been swindled out of a large amount of money by postmasters, who knowing a person desires The Progressive Thinker, sends his money, deducting a large commission. The Progressive Thinker is one dollar per year. The great rise in print paper renders it utterly impossible for us to give any commission to news agents or postmasters. Any person, with ordinary common sense can see that it is impossible for us at present to furnish the paper at 75 cents per year. Our patrons are requested to always deal directly with this office. Any subscription received from whatever source will only be entered on our list for the amount sent. Please take notice of this fact.

MOSES HULL'S BOOKS.

A List of His Noted Works,

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

Wayside Jottings,

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hulls best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1.

The Spiritual Alps and How We Ascend Them.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents.

New Thought.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 579 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. Price, only $1.50.

New Thought.

Volume II. 884 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents.

Joan, the Medium.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

The Real Issue.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have.

All About Devils.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents.

Jesus and the Mediums, or Christ and Mediumship.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of mediumship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Spiritual Birth, or Death and Its To-Morrow.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents.

The Quarantine Raised.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. Price 10 cents.

SpiritualSongster.

By MATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price, 10 cts., or $6 per hundred.

OLD AND NEW PSYCHOLOGY.

BY W. J. COLVILLE.

Reports of twenty-four distinct lectures, recently delivered in New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia and other prominent cities of the United States, have contributed the basis of this volume.

The chief aim throughout the volume has been to arouse increased interest in the workable possibilities of a theory of human nature, thoroughly optimistic and at the same time, profoundly ethical. As several chapters are devoted to improved methods of education, the writer confidently expects that many parents, teachers and others who have charge of the young, or who are called upon to exercise supervision over the morally weak and mentally afflicted, will derive some help from the doctrines herewith promulgated.

CONTENTS.

What is Psychology? The True Basis of the Science.
Rational Psychology as presented by Aristotle and Swedenborg, with Reflections thereon.
Relation of Psychology to Practical Education.
A Study of the Human Will.
Imagination; Its Practical Value.
Memory: Have we Two Memories?
Instinct, Reason and Intuition.
Psychology and Psycurgy.
Mental and Moral Healing in the Light of Certain New Aspects of Psychology.
Music: Its Moral and Therapeutic Value.
The Power of Thought; How to Develop and Increase It.
Concentration of Thought, and what it can Accomplish.
A Study of Hypnotism.
The New Psychology as Applied to Education and Moral Evolution
Telepathy and Transference of Thought, or Mental Telegraphy.
Mediumship, its Nature and Uses.
Habits, How Acquired and how Mastered; with some Comments on Obsession and its Remedy.
Seership and Prophecy.
Dreams and Visions.
The Scientific Ghost and the Problem of the Human Double.
The Human Aura.
Heredity and Environment.
Astrology, Palmistry and Periodicity; their Bearing on Psychology.
Individuality vs. Eccentricity

Price $1. For sale at this office.

PSYCHOGRAPHY.

Marvelous Manifestations of Psychic Power Given Through the Mediumship of FRED. P. EVANS.

"A book you ought to read. Absorbingly interesting, and should be in the hands of every thoughtful man and woman. No one can read its pages without being convinced of the existence of a future life. The book is of great value, not only to Spiritualists, but to those interested in the problem of man's future life, as well as to those interested in phenomenal research."—J. J. Owen.

This volume is superroyal octavo in size, beautifully bound in cloth and gold, and profusely illustrated.

Price $2, postpaid. For sale at this office.

A. Schopenhauer Essays.

Translated by T. B. Saunders. Cloth, 75c.

CONTENTS.—The Wisdom of Life; Counsels and Maxims;; Religion and other Essays; The Art of Literature; Studies in Pessimism.

"Schopenhauer is one of the few philosophers who can be generally understood without a commentary. All his theories claim to be drawn direct from facts, to be suggested by observation, and to interpret the world as it is; and whatever view he takes, he is constant in his appeal to the experience of common life. This characteristic endows his style with a freshness and vigor which would be difficult to match in the philosophical writings of any country, and impossible in that of Germany."—Translator.

For sale at this office.

The Infidelity of Ecclesiasticism,

A Menace to American Civilization. By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A trenchant and masterly treatise. Price 25 cents.

A. P. A. MANUEL.

A Complete expose of the principles and objects of the American Protective Association. A book for all patriotic American citizens. Price 15c, or two for 25 cents. For sale at this office.

THE PROPHETS OF ISRAEL.

By Prof. C. F. Cornill. Consisting of popular sketches from Old Testament History. Price 25c. For sale at this office.

The Everlasting Gospel.

This volume consists of a series of lectures, messages and poems written and delivered in public through the mental organism of Mrs. Magdalena Kline, a trance, clairvoyant and inspirational medium. The book contains 493 large pages, and will be sent postpaid for $1.50. For sale at this office.

Grimes of Preachers.

An interesting book along its line and useful to Spiritualists attacked by the clergy and their followers. Price 25 cents; for sale at this office.

Healing, Causes and Effects.

By W. F. Phelon, M. D. Deals with the finer mental and spiritual forces as applied to healing. Price, 50c.

BIBLE MARVEL WORKERS,

AND THE WONDROUS POWER which helped or made them perform mighty works and utter inspired words, together with some Personal Traits and Characteristics of Prophets, Apostles, and Jesus, or New Readings of "The Miracles," by ALLEN PUTNAM. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

The Myth of the Great Deluge.

By James M. McCann. A complete and overwhelming refutation of the Bible story of the Deluge. Price 15 cents.

A SEX REVOLUTION,

BY LOIS WAISBROOKER.

Author of "Helen Harlow's Vow," "The Occult Forces of Sex," "Perfect Motherhood," and many other works. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

RELIGION.

The Sole Cause of All Wars, Crimes, Etc.

To the Editor:—It is my purpose in writing this article to prove by holy writ, and other historical accounts, that religion has been and is now the whole cause of all the wars, all the bloodshed, all the crimes, all the suffering, and nearly all the insanity that humanity is heir to.

"And they warred against the Midianites, as the Lord commanded Moses; and slew all the males."

"Now therefore kill every male among the little ones, and kill every woman that hath known man."

And Moses and Eleazar the priest did as the Lord commanded Moses. And the children of Israel, took by the direct command of their God all the women of Midian captives, and their little ones, and took the spoils of all their cattle, and all their flocks, and all their goods.

According to the Jewish history it was one continuous warfare from the beginning of time up to the end of their rule as a nation. The Romans broke them up as a nation and they have scattered to all parts of the earth. By holding tenaciously to their religion, the Jews fought themselves out of power, and for nearly two thousand years are lost to the world as a nation.

The Romans started out to conquer the world, and to subdue them in the interest of their religion. After many years of continuous warfare, one Egyptian queen came to the rescue, and through her beauty and the charms she possessed, was the main cause of the downfall of the Roman Empire. For more than one hundred years the Romans fought the Carthagenians before they subdued them in the interest of their religion.

When Jesus was born a new religion came into existence. It was an innovation and took the world by surprise. That surprise has not yet ended, and judging from present appearances will not end for many generations to come. They have carried the war into East India, into Africa, and into China. The whole of Europe and America is involved in the crushing events of this Christian missionary controversy.

Oh religion (Christian religion) to what extent will you not go to conquer the world in the interest of your God and the many dogmatic creeds that you possess. It is not enough for you to disturb the Western World with your dogmatic creeds, but you must build large ships and load them down with war material and send them to the farthest ends of the earth to compel its inhabitants to become Christians. India, Africa and China, if left to themselves, would work out a plan of religion best suited to their present conditions, which the outside world has no business to interfere with. It will be time enough for the Christians of Europe and America to send their missionaries abroad into the Oriental kingdoms, to instruct them in the different creeds, after they have instructed themselves which among the different church denominations is the real church of God. When this is accomplished, we will have a heaven right here among ourselves.

The brotherhood of man with all the Gods left out would be a far better religion for the world to enjoy, than any we know of that the orthodox Christians are engaged in at the present time. Let us have more and greater light upon this all-important subject of religion before we go abroad to teach others that have had more experience in religious matters than we have. A religion enforced by gunpowder and other explosives. If the Christians would live up to the teachings of Jesus and the examples he gave them, they would be better prepared to teach the people of the old world how to live in this in order to enjoy the greatest happiness in the next life. To those who have learned that life is immortal, and to those that believe in eternal progress, to them the Christian religion is a back number that they have lain aside as being no longer of any use to them.

Evolution evolves a principle of higher life that is not really comprehended in the earth time of our existence. It takes all eternity to fill up the measure of individual progress that will never come to an ending. It behooves humanity to make the most of life while they have the opportunity to do so. A well spent life in the interest of humanity removes that selfish desire to grab all that comes within our reach and prepares us for the grand entrance into that world of cause of which this earthis only its effects. The soul of man is a part of the soul of God, and it behooves every human being to be as Godlike as it is possible for him to be.

Christian warfare should have been outgrown a thousand years ago. Had the Pope of Rome known that the world evolved and that he was not God's vicegerent on the earth, humanity would have been farther advanced in morals and religious principles.

Modern science has advanced a part of the human family into the knowledge of eternal life, and the people of the upper world are doing all in their power to instruct the other part that the real life of every human being commences as soon as the breath leaves the human form.

If every Christian could realize the fact that he or she must atone for all the sins they commit and that they must atone to those they have wronged, whether they live on the earth or in the spirit world it makes no difference; happiness must be deferred until the pardon is obtained. Jesus taught this principle, and why do not the Christians do the same? Surely Jesus made it plain enough, when he said, do as you would like to be done by. To do as one would like to be done by, is religion enough to make every man, woman and child co-equal with the angels and dearly beloved by the father of all life. Truth must prevail though the heavens fall. There is no change to be made after we have entered the spirit world. Better take the chances of right living while we are in the body.

The decrees of heaven are surrounding us on all sides. Do as you would like to be done by.

DR. WM. CLEVELAND.

Minneapolis, Minn.

"Arcana of Spiritualism: A Manual of Spiritual Science and Philosophy." By Hudson Tuttle. A spiritual text-book of rich and inspired thought. An excellent work. Finely bound in scarlet and gold. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Fourteen beautiful, soul-inspiring songs, with music, by C. Payson Longley. Price by mail, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Vol. 2. Sweet songs and music for home and social meetings. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

"The World Beautiful." By Lilian Whiting. Most excellent in their high and elevating spirituality of thought. Series 1, 2, and 3, each complete in itself. Price, cloth, $1 per volume. For sale at this office.

MOTE AND BEAM.

Orthodoxy of Churches and Spiritualists.

History truly repeats itself. Every religious sect in existence or that ever had existence originated in a protest against the orthodoxy of its predecessors and straightway constructed an orthodoxy of its own. Spiritualism is no exception.

There are some points of difference, however. The churches have, usually after some bitter contention among themselves, agreed upon an orthodoxy which should be binding upon all their members. They have each adopted a creed or profession of faith. He who should refuse to accept any article of this was to be regarded as heterodox. Each new creed discarded something belonging to those of more ancient date. But so far as it went it was mainly positive. Its essential character was expressed in the words "I believe."

Orthodox Spiritualism is the orthodoxy of the individual. There is as yet no common agreement as to what constitutes it, nor does any such agreement appear to be in sight. Each Spiritualist makes a definition of Spiritualism for himself. Having made it to his own taste he considers those who agree with him to be of the right brand and would exclude all others regardless of what claim they may make for themselves.

And orthodox Spiritualism is chiefly negative. Its profession is not so much conveyed in the declaration "I believe" as in "I know it is not so."

Admitting these differences it is still orthodoxy of the true blue kind. For orthodoxy is nothing else than refusing to examine a new thought because it does not tally with the ideas on which we have already taken our stand. This orthodoxy we have right in our own ranks. It would be well if we looked after it a little, instead of wasting all our ammunition on the orthodoxy of our neighbors.

There was a time when Christian orthodoxy presented some front to our attacks. Except in the Catholic church it has shrunk to a very small mote. We need a powerful microscope to find it in almost anyone's eye. Better pluck out the beam in our own.

We have been too long satisfied with observing phenomena and talking of a philosophy which has had no existence. Let any one attempt to penetrate into the causes of the phenomena and the question arises, "Is this Spiritualism?" "Is he a Spiritualist?" These are questions which should never be asked. If he has discovered a truth we want it and we want him. If by searching he has struck a new line of thought and so opened the way for the discovery of truth in the future, we need to investigate along that line and we need him to aid us in the investigation.

Perhaps some one has proved to his own satisfaction that some teaching given outside the close communion of Spiritualism is true. Then there is a cry, "This is Theosophy, or Christian Science or some other heresy. We will have none of it."

We started out, as others before us, to claim liberty of thought. Let us continue to claim it for ourselves, and unlike others before us, be free to give it. If any other class of thinkers discover a truth let us not reject it because they found it first. If the discovery is made in our own ranks let us rejoice that we are not all turned into pillars of salt for looking back to the days of '48. And if some philosophical theory of to-day does not altogether harmonize with the ideas we have previously entertained let us frankly admit that while what is new to us is not necessarily right, it is just possible that some ideas we have long entertained may happen to be wrong.

Let us pluck this beam out of our own eye and leave the mote in the Christian eye to work itself out in due season.

E. J. BOWTELL.

THE HOME CIRCLE.

Practical Exemplification of Its Uses.

I will give some of my own experiences in the Home Circle. It is with the greatest of pleasure that I do so in the interest of communion with our departed friends. About four years ago we commenced holding family circles for manifestations from the spirit side of life. I have spirit controls that have told me many wonderful things, and showed me beautiful spirit scenes. I seem to be carried along by the spirit guide through the air above the house tops, over villages and cities, above everything. As we glide along quietly and gently, my guide will show me beautiful scenes on the spirit side of life. Language cannot express their beauty. I feel happy and secure in my guide's presence. I can see spirits, and they send sweet messages of love to their earth friends. I have been shown some of the dark spheres of spirit life, and permit me to say that it is a dreadful darkness; I mean anguish of soul—soul torment! Oh! what sorrow is written upon the countenances of some of those poor unfortunates who were steeped in crime in their earth lives. They must stay in darkness until they can progress out of that condition. They must all answer for what they have done. I have seen spirits come into our circle on their hands and knees, and ask for help from us, that they may be able to get out of those conditions. How dreadful to pass into the spirit life with such a state of the soul. I am impressed to speak of these things for the sake of suffering humanity, that some one may profit thereby and seek the true way while they are in the mortal life.

When I receive these truths, I must become very passive and open wide the doorway for spirits to enter. They are more willing to give to us than we are to receive.

I have seen many of my spirit friends, and those of others. We have had some very devoted Spiritualists sit in our circle, and that has made good conditions. Spirit friends have shown us beautiful wreaths of flowers, and the little spirit children come to us. They seem happy and free.

Friends, I know there is life beyond the so-called death—death of the body, and freedom for the spirit.

My only sister was taken to spirit life last August. I informed her of the spirit life as it was revealed to me. She did not believe me; she believed in faith to carry her safely on. She was a church-member, strong in her belief. She came back a short time ago. She looked sad. I guess she did not find it as she expected. Had she heeded the message while here in the earth life, then she would have known something of the beyond. Her companion passed from earth scenes a few days ago, and they are reunited again in the spirit world, and they must journey along together and gain spiritual knowledge. How much better to prepare for the change here; then will we go on progressing. MRS. HATTIE GATES.

Cortland, N. Y.

MILLER'S PROPHECY.

And the Failure of Its Fulfillment.

William Miller, a preacher, and a close student of Bible prophecies, predicted the second coming of Christ, the end of the world, and a general judgment, which was all to occur in the year 1844. I was at that time a boy attending school, and well remember that the day was set for this wonderful event to take place. However I was not much alarmed, and went to school as usual, for my mother was a Methodist, and we failed to take stock in Mr. Miller's prophecy; but his followers as the time drew near made due preparation to receive the king of glory, and to receive places of honor in his kingdom which he was about to establish upon the earth; for which they were worthy because of their faithfulness in waiting for his coming, and the part they had taken in helping to carry on his work during his absence.

Many of them had rid themselves of their earthly possessions, having no more use for this world in its present condition, but would again take an interest in its affairs after the sinners were burned up, and it was purified with fire. But their hopes were doomed to disappointment; for the predicted day came and went, and their expected king failed to materialize.

It was discovered later on by Mr. Miller that he was mistaken in his calculation in regard to the time required for the cleansing of the sanctuary (see the book of Daniel, 8th chapter, 14th verse). So he figured again, corrected the mistake, and set another day. But again there was a disappointment, for we have arrived at the year 1900 and the end is not yet. Although the prophecies of Mr. Miller failed of fulfillment, he did not fail to form a sect, and this is the rise of the Millerites or Adventists. And strange as it may appear, these people are still looking for the coming of Christ and the end of the world.

I want to say right here that when people take the Scriptures literally; and also when they make predictions and found them on the visions of the prophet Daniel, and John the revelator, they are liable to make mistakes. The Adventists are no more mistaken in regard to the second coming of Christ than was the Apostolic church. This event is plainly foretold in the 24th chapter of Matthew, by Paul in his letters to the Thessalonians, and also by Peter in his epistles. I am of the opinion that there is no doctrine of the church that is better substantiated by scripture, than is this. The Adventists are yet expecting this great event to occur, and why should they not? Are we not to hear of wars, and rumors of wars? Are not the nations at war? Then if all these Scripture prophecies are correct, what is to prevent his coming at any moment? It is wonderful how the old dogmas of the church are adhered to. It is encouraging, however, that the day is beginning to break; some are totally blind, others begin to "see men as trees walking," and some are enjoying the fuller light.

T. H. SKETCHLEY.

Seattle, Wash.

Columbus Camp, O.

After a great deal of work in preparing the ground for our camp, we at last have the meeting started in good shape. Our camp is situated just east of the village of Worthington, Franklin county, Ohio, at the junction of the Big Four and C. S. & H. Railroads, thus making it accessible to all points in the State and United States.

Sunday, July 1, the camp was dedicated to the cause of Spiritualism, in a manner very suitable to the occasion.

At 10:30 the meeting began in the large tent-covered auditorium, with an address of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Columbus, by Assistant Director of Law Marshall, who represented Mayor Schwartz of that city. Justice Pinney represented the Mayor of Worthington in the address of welcome for that village.

Lyman C. Howe then lectured, and to hear him was a treat we were not expecting. We were amply repaid for our trouble in getting the camp started, by the eloquent talk he gave us, which was a masterpiece in oratory, depth of thought and logical reasoning.

The afternoon meeting was much the same as the forenoon. Mrs. Cora B. Noyes, at the close of this meeting gave some fine spirit tests, music being furnished for these meetings by the Columbus City Band, Mr. Sands, leader.

Wednesday, July 4, was flag-raising day, and Chaplain W. F. Parsons, late of the United States Army, delivered the flag address. We then adjourned to the auditorium, where Lyman C. Howe delivered the Fourth of July oration, which excelled anything we have ever heard in that line. In the evening the benches were removed from the auditorium and dancing was indulged in until a late hour.

On Sunday, July 8, Dr. W. D. Noyes, of Columbus, lecturer, and Mrs. Maggie Stewart, of Piqua, medium, were the entertainers. To hear them once only creates a desire to hear them again. Mrs. Shauss, of Toledo, also gave a short talk.

Our camp is rapidly filling with friends anxious to have an outing in such a beautiful grove, free from the heat of the city. There are mediums upon the ground, and all kinds of refreshments, making it a lovely spot to spend the sultry days.

Conference meetings are held every afternoon, and Wednesday evenings musical and literary programs will be rendered. Friday evenings there will be dancing.

All are cordially invited to attend these meetings and entertainments, and if convenient to spend a few weeks with us. ASSISTANT SEC'Y.

HOPE'S FRUITION.

Mankind is waking up, methinks,
On better things to dare and do
Than shaping Superstition's links
To bind our weary limbs anew.

Henceforth the anvil and the steel,
That welded fetters in the past,
Will ring a world-redeeming peal
Upon the broken gyves at last.

The brawny arm no longer strains
Its muscle making claymore blades—
Submissive now to better brains,
It hammers out good garden spades.

Too long we plodded on content
To live for ancient prayer and praise;
A better faith has Heaven sent—
A truer faith for future days.

No more we turn our longing eyes
To temples dim with hoary age—
But all around the star-gemmed skies
We learn to read Great Nature's page.

We need no Bible, priest or rod
To make the new religion clear;
For Nature teaches us that God
Is just the same from year to year.

His word we read in Nature's laws—
Truth grand, eternal and sublime—
Effects following their cause;
Throughout all space, throughout all time.

J. MARION GALE.

MEDIUMS.

Views Concerning the True and the False.

There are many phases of mediumship, and many mediums who are adapted to the work, and among so many claiming the power it would be very strange if there were not a few counterfeits. Sensitives are seldom appreciated to the extent that they should be by those with whom they come in contact. They are supposed to be able to hold converse with those who have passed over the mystic river, and are held accountable for the messages received, which if they do not satisfy fully the recipient are looked upon with suspicion as to their genuineness. We mortals are too apt to think that because our friends have passed to the great beyond they are of necessity far in advance of those they have left behind them, and we consequently expect that whatever purports to come from them must be truthful, and we even expect to find them vastly improved in all things, and are disposed to believe all they tell us, whether consistent with reason or not. There are many mediums who are, or at least who think they are, bearers of messages from our spirit friends, and yet how few can really give us satisfactory proof of the genuineness of the messages so received.

I have attended a great many seances and have had many very satisfactory tests. I may say that they always were unexpected, so much so that I can say positively that I know that we do have communication with our departed friends.

But are we not expecting too much from our sensitives? The most of them are very negative and are easily controlled, and the more negative they are the more easily they are influenced. We expect that our dear ones will come to us if the conditions are right, and give us proof of their nearness to us, but we are often sadly pained at the frivolous communications we get. Now we want to bear in mind that not all our loved ones were saints while in the earthly form, and they are just the same there that they were here; if honest and truthful while here they will be the same over there, and if dishonest and untruthful while here we may look for a continuance on the other side, at least until they have progressed beyond their earthly habits. Now let us understand that our mediums try to be strictly honest and truthful and believe that all they receive while under control comes by and through the spirit who is controlling the medium. Now why are there so many different phases of mediumship? And why are mediums acted on so differently? Is it not a fact that the organism of the medium has much to do with the result? And is it not likely that the brain of the medium being in an active state and not entirely controlled may add its own quota to that received through the controlling influence and thereby seriously affect the communication so received, and so raise the question of its being genuine, while the medium may be and is generally perfectly innocent of any wrong doing? I am impressed with the truth of this theory from an incident that happened in my own experience about twenty-five or more years ago. I had a sitting with Dr. Slade in this city, and among other very remarkable manifestations, he took an accordeon, holding it by the bellows end in his right hand with his left hand on the table he sitting at the end of the table on my left, the accordeon being between us, both my hands being on the table, and the keys of the accordeon being in plain sight, the time 10 a. m., of a sun-shiny day, the keys of the instrument were manipulated and several tunes were played. I asked him if they would play if I held the instrument? He said they sometimes did so. I took the instrument in my right hand and held it by the bellows end as he had done, the keys were opened and closed and the bellows was worked smartly but not a note of music could I get. I asked him the reason; He said he could not tell. I told him I thought I could tell, and that the reason was that the control got no music from me as I could not whistle or sing a tune, while the medium was an adept in music. You will see that all the mechanical moves were as well performed while the instrument was in my hands as in those of Dr. Slade, showing me that the brain of each medium must be attuned to its proper work in order to obtain its best results.

Is it not also a fact that little or no care is taken in the proper development of mediums? After a few sittings in a circle and some slight indications of an attempt at control, especially if they should get an acknowledged test, they seem to think that they know all that is worth knowing and they start out as full-fledged mediums and require nothing more, while they have not yet acquired the a b c of mediumship, with little or no experience, but taking for granted all they get through their Indian or other controls is gospel truth.

W. W. PARSELLS.

Rochester, N. Y.

Briggs Park, Mich.

It takes more than a damp day to scare a Grand Rapids audience. Although yesterday was a rainy, disagreeable day, more than 500 persons turned out to greet Dr. Spinney, Mrs. Ferris and Mrs. Barton at Briggs Park. They were well paid for their trouble. I don't think the lectures of the Doctor could be improved, and I am sure the descriptive work could not.

In the morning Frank T Ripley was the instrument, at 3:30, Mrs. Ferris, while in the evening, Mrs. Barton followed herself with descriptions.

Our music is of the highest order. Our chairman, Mr. Carpenter, is all we could desire, and harmony reigns supreme.

The mother of Mrs. Blake, one of our valued workers, passed to the higher life last week. The services were conducted by Mr. Ripley and Mrs. Carpenter of Detroit. The camp and campers remembered her in the form of a beautiful spray of roses as a token of their esteem, both for Mrs. Blake and her mother.

The mediums on the grounds at present are Frank N. Foster, Frank T. Ripley, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. C. H. Mullins, Mrs. Sears, Mrs. Coffman, Mrs. Payne, Mrs. Ferris, Mrs. Horton, Mr. Horton, Samuel Smith, Ed Cain, Meredith, the boy medium, and Mrs. Schumn. Mr. Tisdale arrives tomorrow to be with us the coming week. Next Sunday we have Mrs. Carpenter.

THOS J. HAYNES.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Historical, Logical and Philosophical Objections to the Dogmas of Reincarnation and Re-Embodiment." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A keen and masterly treatise. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

NOT MATERIALIZED.

The Spirit Left Wig and Sheet.

I am a firm believer in materialization; but I also believe after a long and varied investigation, that at least nine-tenths of the present-day materializations are the rankest fraud. If you grab the spirit, you will generally not only have the medium, but the wigs and other paraphernalia of modern make, used to carry on the deception. Those attending such seances, as a rule, are not honest with themselves, or they would thoroughly investigate the garb of the spirit. It is well known that a genuine spirit materialization dissolves at once under a strong light, excitement or great agitation. If the dress is a materialization, any small piece you cut off will dissolve when brought to the light, like a snowflake before the scorching sun. Be honest with yourselves, investigators, under whatever test conditions are presented, or under whatever test may be given you. I am led to these remarks by an article taken from the Pittsburg Dispatch, as follows:

"The faith of local Spiritualists has been badly shaken by an expose which occurred at a seance given in Avalon by an Allegheny medium. Avalon has long been a center for Spiritualists and frequent seances have been held in the borough attended by many believers from the North Side and Pittsburg.

"One of the principal figures in Spiritualist circles in the two cities is an Allegheny woman who claims to possess remarkable powers of healing. She has impressed the belief upon the minds of the credulous, mostly of her own sex, that she was able to make the lame walk and the blind see.

"A child of Harry Taylor, a well-known Avalon blacksmith, is crippled, and after considerable persuasion relatives agreed to permit the medium to use her healing power upon the child. A seance was arranged at the Taylor home, and at the appointed time a large crowd of Spiritualists were gathered to witness the performance of the miracle.

"The spectators were seated in a circle in a large sitting room that connects with a bedroom. The father of the little cripple, incredulous and disbelieving, was present, awaiting developments.

"The room was darkened and the medium announced that she would materialize a spirit which would appear before the audience in visible form and perform the miracle by washing and rubbing the crippled limbs of the child. When all was in readiness the circle was formed and someone struck up a hymn. Then the medium disappeared into the adjoining bedroom. Several minutes elapsed, and the bedroom door noiselessly opened and the 'spirit' made its appearance. It was enveloped in white drapery, and a shiver ran through the audience as the ghostly figure stepped into the middle of the room. Taylor had been watching the movements of the 'spirit' closely, and suddenly, startled the spectators by taking a sudden leap toward the 'spirit' and embracing it in his arms.

"The 'spirit' made a desperate struggle to escape, but Taylor held fast. When he loosened his hold he held a wig and a long sheet in his hand. The medium ran back into the bedroom, grabbed her valise and made a hurried exit from the house. This ended the seance and the audience dispersed."

I will say, however, that I am not inclined in any way whatever to interfere with those who believe in the "genuineness" of such manifestations that occurred at Avalon. They seem to derive great consolation from these fraudulent materializing circles, and desire to be protected in the privilege of patronizing them. Let the people have their fill of fraud, and sometime they will learn an important lesson, and then they will pity their lack of common sense. They will not accept of good advice or an admonition, but will go it "blind." SPIRITUALIST.

Pittsburg, Pa.

Mrs. Armstrong Among the Old Soldiers.

In this place has been organized and established "The First National Home Spiritual Church," with Mrs. S. Augusta Armstrong as pastor, who holds regular services in assembly hall, every first day of the week, and often at other times, giving interesting lectures and spiritual phenomena. Her lectures are always appropriate and well appreciated; they come from a thoughtful brain.

In this place all these old men had mothers, wives and sisters, but here they are walking in the lonely path leads to life's west window. Uncle Sam has been a "Lord" to them all. He has taken them up, clothed them, fed them and set them down to rest, and Mrs. Armstrong kindly tells them she knows that just over the hill all those dear friends are waiting to receive them; that the tents are all up and peace is declared.

The old soldiers have built a little home in Sawtell and donated it to this good woman, who would gather us old chickens all under her spiritual wing.

I am very favorably impressed with this new society. There is no hell in it. There is no cross in the church and the pastor is not cross. She says: "Believe what you please, and do right." There is no better temperance lecturer than this lady. She tells the boys not to take too much intoxicating drink for their mother is watching them. The old soldiers from every nation and state have donated this little home to their "mother," as they call Mrs. Armstrong. Here they meet in a circle of love. They dream they see their loved ones and hear them talk. It is a nice exercise, and it does them good whether it be real or imaginary, and is a pleasant pastime for the old soldier whose battle of life is nearly ended.

It is generally believed that a soldier has a spirit, and chaplains have been paid by the government to look after them. One minister is supposed to look after a thousand souls, and find his own clothes. Mrs. Armstrong boards herself, finds her own clothes, and lectures every Sunday, and gets the best of help from Los Angeles, San Francisco and the spirit land, for twenty-five cents a month from all who wish to help. She is a great worker; a mother to us all, and says she is proud of her children. To do good is her motto. This noble, self-sacrificing little woman in Sawtell is the materialization of 1,400 mothers in 32 states of this union. God bless her. S. NIXON.

Soldiers Home, Cal.

Rending the Vail: This volume is a compilation by J. W. Nixon, of psychic literature, most given by spirits through and by means of full form visible materializations, at seances of a certain Psychic Research Society, known as the Aber Intellectual Circle, the medium being William W. Aber. 507 pp. octavo. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker. Price $2.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Gleanings from the Rostrum." By A. B. French. Cloth, $1. For sale at this office.

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

What Has Become of Hell?

Why, if the soul can fling the dust aside,
And naked on the air of heaven ride,
Wer't not a shame—wer't not a shame for him
In this clay carcass crippled to abide?
—Omar Khayyam.

"In the well-born soul
Intelligence ne'er lingers till due seasons roll." —Cornelle.

As civilization progressed slowly with the barbarian, so it is again with the effort to educate the human social civilization into the higher development of the divine attributes lying dormant, unexplored, unused in the consciousness of mankind.

About every so often a wail is heard for the ministers of the gospel to settle the question as to the truth of the doctrine of a hell in which to punish wicked people's souls; and also that the doctrine of such a place was necessary to—scare-crow fashion—drive the human masses into churches, into good behavior generally.

"Come, let us reason together; though your sins (mistakes) be as scarlet they shall be made as white as snow." Has the fear of an abyss of burning ever made a noble, a loving shepherd for the manifold flocks of Christian denomination? Find one, search his record from childhood; tell us if he was drawn by hands of fear or love. Did he search the inspired word through fear or because that magnetic chord of love to God and man drew him? Has the sense of fear driven men to become great lawyers, great statesmen (great in the sense of benefiting all mankind)?

Did fear have anything to exercise itself with in the life of Abraham Lincoln? We shall have more Abraham Lincolns when men are drawn by the invisible chord of man's humanity to man. Did the giant Fear have aught to immortalize itself with in the lives and fruits of the lives of Raphael, Da Vinci, Murillo, Bach, Beethoven, and many unnamed ones? Is there one child living to-day that is a success as a dutiful child because it was forced through fear to be dutiful? If "the kingdom of heaven cometh not by observation, for verily it is within you," then why not look for heaven's great opposite, hell, within you also? It has been proved by many (to self-satisfaction) that the law of God cannot be changed. The law that tells us through the prophet that, "I make peace and I create evil." Certainly enlightened man ought to know that if he makes a hell for himself he may enjoy it or change it into a heaven for himself, and not be continually trying to cram other people into his mental abode.

Why not change the point of view and in the language of Omar Khayyam "fling such dust aside?" And naked of charging God with making hell to burn his own beloved sons in. On the air of a heaven ride, that owns not to the abiding in a crippled carcass; crippled by searching for hells when heavens lie so near.

If there is a decline of keen interest in the church, might there not be a finer reason than the absence of fear? Perhaps it is on account of the absence of love—pure, Christly love. The love the world deals in largely is not that deep diapason of love—warming heart fire—that vibrates when Jesus Christ rules the man from center to circumference. Love is the born fruit of the spirit—holy spirit of Christ, of God—and worketh no evil. Paul says, "If ye be led of the spirit ye are not under the law." Christ came to save us, not by bodily force, not by dire threatenings of suffering, not by philosophical reasonings, but by and through his great love, his great wisdom—not man made, but God inspired—his free-will offering of himself as God in man. This is the fire that shall never be quenched. It is the fire of God's love—God's love in man—God once, God forever. Jesus Christ comes to win through love, and if the soul of man once has its prison doors unbarred such floods of light, such leadings of love, will be revealed that the church need never more grasp to regain the weapon of fear to brandish over the heads of the masses in order to force them into confessions of faith, to compel them to keener interest in the church, or press them into the ranks of the lovers of Jehovah. R. R.

Chicago, Ill.

OUR PREMIUMS.

There are many Spiritualists who know a good thing when they see it. There are others, however, who do not seem to realize what is going on around them, and therefore miss many chances to enrich their minds and enlarge their understanding. Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World is furnished to our subscribers at less than cost, and should be in every family in the United States, whether Spiritualists or not. Volumes 1, 2 and 3 constitute a wonderful magazine of thought on Death in its multifarious phases; in fact you can not find in all the libraries of the world as valuable information in regard to Death as you will have presented to you in these three volumes. They are nicely printed, neatly and substantially bound, and are an ornament to any library. Volume 3 is furnished at 25 cents, much less than the actual cost to us, and the three volumes, when ordered in connection with a yearly subscription to The Progressive Thinker, only cost $1.10. The aggregate cost of the three books to the trade is $4.50. At this price, these three books ought to be in every Spiritualist family.

The Progressive Thinker is the first Spiritualist paper to inaugurate the Divine Plan—a portion of the profits of the office returning to subscribers in valuable books.

FOR a moment stop and consider. The Progressive Thinker is the one original dollar Spiritualist paper. It introduced a new era in the ranks of Spiritualism. Its success financially has been all that could be desired. Notwithstanding the rise in the price of print paper, it has still maintained its status as the only one dollar Spiritualist paper. Not only that, but it introduced the Divine Plan in its business with its subscribers—a portion of the profits of the office returning to them. Just think of the Seven Premium Books being sent out to our subscribers for $2.35. After paying the postage of these seven books, and the expense of mailing them, all that we have left is $1.50. You can readily see that we are furnishing them for less, by far, than the actual cost to us. We do this work in accordance with The Divine Plan, in order to assist in forming the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home. Read carefully our premium list, and you will certainly want to become a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker, if not so already, and obtain the books we announce.

$5.00 A DAY EASY FOR ALL WILLING TO WORK

Gold, Silver, Nickel, Metal Plating. At home or traveling, taking orders, using and selling Prof. Gray's Machines. Plates Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles and all metal goods. No experience. Heavy plate. Modern methods. We do plating, manufacture outfits, all sizes. Guaranteed. Only outfits complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. We teach you the art, furnish secrets and formulas FREE. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, etc., FREE. D. GRAY & CO., Plating Works, CINCINNATI, O.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

I wish every person in the U. S. suffering with EPILEPSY or FITS to send for one of my large-sized bottle (16 full ounces) FREE. I guarantee to permanently cure every case that will take my treatment. Where others fail I cure.

DR. F. E. GRANT,
Dept. 33, Kansas City, Mo.

FREE ASTHMA REMEDY.

Free Trial Bottle to Everyone Who Suffers from Asthma.

A physician who suffered many years from violent attacks of asthma, has discovered a sure cure for the disease, and is now entirely recovered. He has written letters to the leading newspapers of the country, requesting that their readers be informed of this new remedy, and that he will mail, free, a trial bottle to anyone who writes for it. It has cured quite a number of people who obtained the free trial: is an absolute cure, perfectly safe and harmless, and so fortifies the system that the cure is permanent. Write to W. H. Walrath, Box 618, Adams, N. Y., and he will forward at once by mail, prepaid, a trial bottle, so that you can test it and see what it will do in your case. An offer like this ought to be taken advantage of by every reader. Write to-day without fail. Don't wait.

PUBLICATIONS
— OF —
HUDSON TUTTLE.

A LIBRARY OF SPIRITUAL SCIENCE.

STUDIES IN THE OUTLYING FIELDS OF PSYCHIC SCIENCE.
This work essays to utilize and explain the vast array of facts in its field of research by referring them to a common cause, and from them arise to the laws and conditions of Man's spiritual being. Third edition. Price, 75 cents.

RELIGION OF MAN AND ETHICS OF SCIENCE.
Not servile trust to the Gods, but knowledge of the laws of the world, belief in the divinity of man and his eternal progress toward perfection is the foundation of this book. Price, $1.

LIFE IN TWO SPHERES.
In this story the scenes are laid on earth, and in the spirit-world presenting the spiritual philosophy and the real life of spiritual beings. All questions which arise on that subject are answered. Price 50 cents.

ARCANA OF NATURE.
The History and Laws of Creation. Revised and annotated English edition. "The Cosmogony of Spiritualism." Price, $1,

THE PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRIT AND THE SPIRIT-WORLD.
English edition. Price, $1.

THE ORIGIN AND ANTIQUITY OF MAN.
Containing the latest investigations and discoveries, and a thorough presentation of this interesting subject. English edition. Price, $1.

THE SECRETS OF THE CONVENT OF THE SACRED HEART.
This book was written for an object, and has been pronounced equal in its exposure of the diabolical methods of Catholicism to "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Price, 25 cents.

HERESY, OR LED TO THE LIGHT.
A thrilling psychological story of evangelization and free thought. It is to Protestantism what "The Secrets of the Convent" is to Catholicism. Price, 50 cents.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?
How to Investigate. How to form circles, and develop and cultivate mediumship. Names of eminent Spiritualists. Their testimony. Eight-page tract for mission work. Single copies, 5 cents; 100 for $1.25.

FROM SOUL TO SOUL.
By Emma Rood Tuttle. This volume contains the best poems of the author, and some of the most popular songs with the music by eminent composers. The poems are admirably adapted for recitations. 225 pages, beautifully bound. Price, $1.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE.
For the home, the lyceum and societies. A manual of physical, intellectual and spiritual culture. By Emma Rood Tuttle. A book by the aid of which a progressive lyceum, a spiritual or liberal society may be organized and conducted without other assistance. Price, 50 cents; by the dozen, 40 cents. Express charges unpaid.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST RECITATIONS.
For humane Education, with plan of the Angell Prize Oratorical Contests. By Emma Rood Tuttle. Price, 25 cents.

All Books Sent Postpaid. Address
HUDSON TUTTLE, Publisher.
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

NEW EDITION.
THE LYCEUM GUIDE

Do you want to organize a society, for the social, intellectual and spiritual advancement of the children and adults?

THE PROGRESSIVE LYCEUM
furnishes all you desire.

Do you want a self-sustaining society, founded on the basic principles of the spiritual philosophy? You have it in THE PROGRESSIVE LYCEUM.
It furnishes a system of evolution of internal growth; not the old cup and pitcher Sunday-school.
It has something to interest and advance every member, and those who are most active in teaching are the ones who learn most.

NO SPECIAL INSTRUCTOR REQUIRED.

THE LYCEUM GUIDE gives every detail needed for effective organization, and for conducting the society when established.
It has Golden Chain Recitations; the prettiest songs and music; choral responses; a service for a Band of Mercy; calisthenics; how to make the badges, flags and banners; marching exercises; full instructions in conducting the exercises, with parliamentary rules, etc.
Many Spiritualists living in isolation, have formed lyceums in their own families: others have banded, two or three families together, while large societies have organized on the lyceum platform, and found great interest in this self-instructive method.
Do not wait for a "missionary" to come to your assistance, but take hold of the matter yourself, procure copies of the GUIDE, and commence with the few or many you find interested.
Mrs. Emma Rood Tuttle (address, Berlin Heights, Ohio) will answer all questions pertaining to lyceum work.
The price of THE LYCEUM GUIDE is 50 cents, postpaid, or by the dozen, 40 cents each, by express, charges paid by receiver. Address

HUDSON TUTTLE,
BERLIN HEIGHTS, O.

ANGELL PRIZE CONTEST
RECITATIONS.

To Advance Humane Education in All Its Phases.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

Lyceums and Societies that wish to get up elevating, interesting and paying entertainments cannot do better than to have a Prize Contest. The entire plan, with full directions, is in the book, and may be easily managed. Nothing kindles enthusiasm more quickly than an Angell Prize Contest! Nothing is needed more. Any individual may organize one in his own town and reap a financial reward.

TRY IT! PRICE, 30 CENTS.

Address
EMMA ROOD TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

THE SUNDAY QUESTION

Historical and critical review, with replies to an objection. By G. W. Brown, M. D. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

Real Life in the Spirit-Land.

Given inspirationally by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year	$1.00
Six months	50c
Thirteen weeks	25 cts
Single copy	5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. If coats from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS: IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Progressive Thinker is furnished in the United States at $1.00 per year, the postage thereon being but nominal, but when it is sent to foreign countries we are compelled to charge 50 cents extra, making the yearly subscription $1.50. Please bear that in mind.

SATURDAY, JULY 21, 1900.

"A Hell of a Fellow."

The political papers of fifty years ago related in substance the following story of Henry Clay:

The Kentucky Senator, famed for his eloquence, had just concluded one of his great speeches on the state of the country. An Alabamian, standing over six feet in his boots, clothed in a suit of butternut-colored jeans, and wearing a broad-brimmed slouch hat, had listened to Mr. Clay's oratory from the gallery, and was charmed with it. Meeting the great statesman with extended palm, hat in hand, as he emerged from the Senate chamber, he addressed him with:

"How do you do, Hank, how do you do?" He then introduced himself and said: "Down there in Alabama I am known by everybody. I always attend horse races, bet largely on results and very generally win. A horse race not patronized by me is always a failure. You, Hank, are a statesman, and a leading politician. All the country listens to your nicely rounded periods, and cheer them to the echo. On the hustings you have no equal. Greatness belongs to you and to me; to you as a statesman, a brave defender of the right, the champion of universal liberty; I am distinguished in my State as you are in the Nation. I as a jockey, a horse jockey, Hank, winning laurels, and applause, and wealth at every race. I love great men, and I always liked you, Hank, and I voted for you several times and am d—d sorry we did not succeed in making you President.

"Now, Hank, what is the use in being a fellow unless you are a hell of a fellow?"

Near a year ago we listened to a young clergyman all the way from Colorado, to an assemblage of some 800 Methodist preachers in general Conference, the purpose of the orator to prove the Bible and science harmonize. The six days of Creation he magnified into six periods of indefinite duration, each of probably millions of years. He exhibited a wonderful aptitude for distorting facts, and making the worse appear the better argument; and he knew all about the designs of God in his formation of the world. Many scraps of forged literature bearing upon the supposed beginning of Christianity were cited and received with applause by the clerical audience. Each point was punctuated and made emphatic by the speaker raising his right foot as high as he was capable, then bringing it down with terrible force like a catapult on the rostrum, jarring the whole church structure, bringing forth hand clappings, loud applause, and knowing looks at the writer, as much as to say: 'We've got you now.' As we watched his monkey shines, and listened to his false renderings of geology, and even ecclesiastical history, we could not avoid the mental exclamation borrowed from the Alabamian: "What is the use in being a fellow if you are not a hell of a fellow?"

Is not the self-imagined great Rev. De Witt Talmage governed in his action by Old Russell's interrogatory? And the Rev. Sam Jones: Does not the same inspiring question give shape and force to his drollery? We think so.

The Chinese at School.

There is a school in New York, with some 600 children, made up of 15 different nationalities. Among this polyglot of kids, all wishing to learn the English language, are several Chinese boys and girls. At one time there were 21. Rev. A. K. Sanford, the assistant superintendent of the school, in a late report, said:

"The Chinese pupils speak English without a foreign accent and as fluently as do the American children. Their English vocabulary is not quite as large as that of the American pupils, but as they speak Chinese also, their vocabulary in the two languages is considerably larger than that of the white children of the same age. They seem to be equally good in all their English studies and never fail to pass their written examinations. Three of the Chinese boys are in the highest class in the school, and study English grammar, geography, arithmetic, reading, spelling, and writing. They are as quick of perception and as intelligent as the other pupils, and far more patient and plodding. They study tirelessly till they learn the lesson in hand, and learn it thoroughly. On the playground they show their high spirits and a frolicsome disposition; but they never make any mischief in the school. They are more obedient than the other pupils. This is perhaps due to the fact that respect for elders is ingrained in the Chinese people. From their cradles the Chinese children are taught reverence for their parents and implicit obedience.

What nobler task than teaching youth ignorant of our language, literature and science, enabling them to return to their own country and teach true knowledge to those now ignorant of it? All accounts agree that China is ambitious to become acquainted with the Western civilization, but they do not want its religion. They are naturally too learned to believe in human-born Gods.

Missionaries in China.

There are only 2,335 Americans in China. This includes missionaries and merchants. It is to be hoped that they can be got out in safety and will not serve as a reason for sending in four or five times their number in soldiers to effect their rescue.

This Chinese affair will bring up the question of how far a secular government is responsible for missionaries in a country where their presence is unwelcome. They do not go as a representative of their government. The civil authorities in this country are not very ready to interfere to protect either side to a religious controversy. Suppose that Mormon missionaries should go to China, or elsewhere abroad, and get treated as they are down South, where they are unwelcome? What would the other religious denominations say if this government should interfere? Such an issue would test the question. The Mormons have as much right to send missionaries as any other denomination, and as much right to protection. But all missionaries go abroad on their own responsibility. Their errand is of necessity in opposition to the government to which they go. Their proselyting is, in a large measure, a process of turning the people against their own civil and political institutions. This feature of the missionary situation seems but little understood. Still it seems that in China it is the cause of all the trouble. The German missionaries there exasperated and provoked the natives until they attacked the missionary compound. The attack served the Kaiser as a pretext for the seizure of Kiaochau and the planting of the imperial eagles on Chinese soil. For years exasperation of that sort has gone on, and no reasonable person can expect anything but that which has happened. The foreigners are not always wise nor respectful of the rights of the natives, nor good judges of human nature. They appear without invitation and remain often regardless of any real good they do. We are firm in the belief that it will be better for the morals and peace of the world when secular governments have it understood as a principle that missionaries who go abroad on their own responsibility need expect nothing from their government The history of Hawaii and the Philippines has given a sordid cast to the whole missionary business. In both archipelagoes the mission parties have issued from their soul-saving adventure owners of the land and property, and the natives find themselves excluded and aliens in their own country. Missionaries should let politics alone, and if they cannot outwardly respect the civil institutions of a country they should be left to take the consequences. We are far from unmindful that these views will be intensely unpopular among those who have ideas about the evangelizing of the world. But our reason for this position is found in such results as are now visible in China, and in the further fact that every country that sends out missionaries needs them far more at home than they are needed abroad. In every city in this country are thousands of people as pagan as any that burn punk before a joss in far Cathay. There are thousands as needful of medicine, letters, light and leading as any that can be found in the Dark Continent. When all of these thousands are taught to turn their faces to the stars, and keep their faces clean, and when mercy and pity have gone among them to soothe sorrows, nurse in sickness and comfort in death, and have let shine into their darkened lives the spirit of that message, "He who hath done it unto the least of these hath done it unto me," it will be time to go abroad with the Pentecost.

The above from the San Francisco Call expresses a grand truth. The hundreds of conflicting sects—each one giving the lie to all the rest—trying to "evangelize" China, presents one of the sorriest spectacles of the 20th century. The whole thing is ludicrous in the extreme.

What Became of Jesus' Body?

Advices from Germany show the great religious questions which are convulsing the churches of America are agitating those where the Protestant reformation had root. A Rev. Weingart, in his Easter sermon, discoursing on the resurrection of Jesus, said:

"The tired body of Christ remained in the tomb, dust to dust."

The Reverend conceded the spirit had ascended, but the body was mortal, and its fate was that of all the dead. Such teaching does not harmonize with the old Egyptian doctrine, the resurrection of the body, because in case of "our Savior" it was claimed the Egyptian suspension of life of 3,000 years was abridged to three days.

Rev. Weingart, for this unorthodox teaching was expelled from the ministry, and now abideth in outer darkness.

This expulsion of the offending cleric, because he could not believe in an ultimate reanimation of dead and decayed matter, either in the person of Jesus, or anyone else, aroused a very animated discussion among Germans. One of them maintained:

"Such a thing as is described in the account of the resurrection of Jesus never really took place as an objective reality. This must be claimed not because the reports of the affair are contradictory to the experience of mankind and to the scientific teachings of the day. It is the product of the wonder and miracle-loving world of the ancients. Neither as one really arisen, nor as a body of light did Christ appear to his disciples, but, as in the case with all mortals, his body returned to dust. Christians have been accustomed to lay too much stress on the resurrection."

Another German scholar says:

"The belief in the bodily resurrection of Jesus Christ, in violation of all the laws of the physical world, is an insult to the scientific spirit and scholarship of the age, and an insult to all true religionists."

They who deified Jesus were not content to let their hero rest in his grave until the end of all things, and the general resurrection, so they brought him forth on the morning of the third day, after he had toured through hades, and preached to the spirits in prison, as set forth in the Apostle's creed. To make Jesus' death noteworthy, Matthew 27:52, 53, made the graves open and many bodies of the saints who slept, come forth and go up to the holy city at the time of the crucifixion and appear to many; but, like a careless romancer, the historian neglected to tell whether they went back to their deserted graves, or sojourned forty days in the city, then escorted the crucified and lately dead God in his heavenly flight. A very unfortunate omission, for all want to know what became of those who participated in that corporeal resurrection.

The Chinese Monarchy Virgin-Born.

Late and pending wars make us acquainted with distant regions of which the world had before little knowledge. More is now known of Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippine Islands, and their people, as also of the Transvaal and Orange Free States, than would have been acquired in a century of peaceful times.

It is possible the curtain that has always shut China from sight of Western nations, is about to be lifted. If the great war still in embryo shall become general, and shall be prolonged, every page of her past history will be scrutinized with zealous care. The accounts of travelers, few as they are, will be searched; her own voluminous records, concealed in strange characters, will be deciphered, and their most hidden secrets will become the property of the world. We hope the important facts following will not be overlooked in writing up a popular history for Christian readers.

So late as the year 1620, the Manachoo Tartars invaded China from the north. They triumphed over all opposition, and in three years their leader gained the Chinese throne. This monarch had a very remarkable parentage, in some respects almost identical with that of "our Lord." Says the account, which we quote:

"In remote ages three heaven-born virgins dwelt beneath the shadow of the great White Mountains. While they were bathing in a lake which reflected in its bosom the snow-clad peaks which towered above, a magpie dropped a blood-red fruit on the clothes of the youngest. This the maiden instinctively devoured. Forthwith she conceived and in due time bore a son, whose name they called Ai-sin Ghioro—English, Golden Family Stem."

This is the name of the reigning family at this time, and such is its reputed origin.

It is not probable the parent of that story ever heard of David walking in the night time on the house top, and seeing the beautiful Bath-sheba at her bath. Neither did they know that this David, the great favorite of God and the church, sent messengers for her, and that in obedience to his command she sojourned with him all night. Is not this told with full particulars, which Anthony Comstock would seriously object to, if published elsewhere than in the inspired Word of God? See 2 Sam., 11:2 to close of chapter. Also same book, 12:24.

Turning to Matthew 1, we learn with astonishment that this liaison of David and Bath-sheba, which led to the murder of Uriah by the king of Israel, and gave birth to Solomon, an after product, through whom is traced the lineage of Jesus, the Son of God, and joint occupant of the throne with the Father, and is in truth that very Father himself, was an essential event leading up to the birth of Jesus, without which incident he could not have been, else would necessarily have come through other ancestors.

It will be further noticed that in this Chinese narrative several important factors in the Jewish and in the Christian story are omitted, not to the discredit of the Chinese romancer. The lecherous David, the "man after God's own heart," disappears entirely in the Chinese story. Solomon, the wisest of men, who built temples to heathen deities, even worshiped the shameful Ashtoreth, and sacrificed babies to Moloch, does not figure as an ancestor of the Chinese emperors, though the lineage of the blessed Jesus, the only Son of God, is traced through this Solomon, and his father David and the beautiful but rather indiscreet Bath-sheba, a name meaning, when rendered into English, "The daughter of satiety," that is, satiated or glutted.—Those Hebrew names generally tell their own story, like the American Indian "The-man-afraid-of-his-shadow."

Again: No jealous Joseph figures in the Chinese legend, neither is it confirmed by a dream, as in the history of our Savior. In the latter case it may have been necessary to authenticate the parentage of a God by a dream, but unnecessary when a mortal hero was generated.

The great heroes of antiquity were very generally sired by Gods, but few were virgin-born. That was a distinction peculiar to the minor gods. In this the Chinese have superiority in their present hen-pecked monarch, if not murdered as alleged.

Spirit Life Illustrated.

The Boston Post says: "I never saw three children in all my life that were happier or played so nicely together as did my three darlings. And yet neither of them were really mine, for I was just a lonely old maid who had been "aunty" to them all their lives. Cyril Blake was the oldest of the three, a tall, blue-eyed, brown-haired lad, who had never in all his life done a mean act. He was the son of my old school friend, Marcia Holmes, who had married Lawyer Blake and been left a widow when her boy was still very young. My other boy was Gordon Gray. He was the handsomest boy I ever saw. He had deep, blue eyes, and his head was covered with a perfect mass of tiny golden curls, and it was just the same when he grew up. No barber had ever been able to spoil that handsome head.

"Gordon was the child of wealthy parents. His father, Colonel Gray, had married late in life, a lovely English girl, who died when Gordon was a tiny little fellow. I had been his governess until he was old enough to go to school.

"Then I had taken a position as teacher in a young ladies' finishing school which my other child attended.

"This one was little Elsie Rainford, the village doctor's daughter. She was a dark little thing, with big, brown eyes and dark brown hair. She had tiny hands and feet, and was a dainty little lady, but she was only moderately pretty, and I often wondered why both my boys and I loved her so, and when they all grew up, and Elsie was 19, and Gordon 22, and Cyril 23, I wondered which it would be which my girlie would marry.

"But Elsie always cried: 'Oh auntie, how can I tell? I love them both alike!' and I believed her, for so did I.

"The day Elsie graduated she got flowers from both. Gordon sent hothouse roses, as he could afford to, while Cyril sent lilies of the valley from his mother's garden. And which did Elsie wear? Both—on her breast lay Gordon's roses, in her hand Cyril's lilies."

Here was a lovely old maid with all the love in her soul for children that is manifested in spirit life, Love, pure and simple, is what can finally redeem the world.

HUMAN KINDNESS.

It Tends to Spirituality, AND UPLIFTS MANKIND.

A Friend to Humanity.

The New York Sun shows that one exists even in that city:

Standing on the platform by the driver of a Third avenue car, New York City, one day, was a middle-aged, benevolent looking fat man. The fat man was plainly dressed, but there was an unmistakable air of prosperity and independence of the world floating about him. He talked pleasantly with the driver, laughed at the driver's jokes, and treated him generally with a generous and familiar recognition that seemed odd in a man of his evident superiority and importance. In front of a well-known financial institution in the Bowery the driver stopped the car. The fat man slipped a coin into the driver's hand, gave him a cheery "good day," and alighted. As the driver put the coin into his pocket the reporter noticed that it was a silver dollar.

"Rather a profitable and pleasant passenger, that," the reporter said to the driver, as the car started.

"Bet!" replied the driver. "Whitest man in this town. He has rode with me for years, and never got off my car without slippin' me all the way from a quarter to a dollar. He's the president o' that bank where he got off, back there, and you can bet der won't never be no fly duck goin' to Canady wid a boodle from that bank. He knows wot's goin' on every minute in the day, an' he makes it wut the while of evry feller dat's lucky enough to handle his funds to be up an' up an' honest. D'ye s'pose der's any faro skins a collerin' any o' dat man's cashers or tellers? Naw! Not much! D'ye s'pose der's any fly gals a dressin' in silks an' a wearin' di'mons dat's been paid for with money swiped from my friend's bank? If ye do yer way off, cully. My friend knows wot he's a doin', he does, an' ye mustn't forgit it.

"Why wot a ye t'ink he does, an' wot he's been a doin' for twenty years? You see all dem bootblack stands, an' paper stands, an' lots o' other stands on de corners, in cellars, an' any place where dey can stick one in an' 'commodate the public? Well, wot does my friend git in his long head an' big heart, years ago, 'fore d' was much o' that kind o' business, 'specially bootblack stands, but that such things wouldn't only be a helpin' to lots o' waydown young chaps, but would be a bang up 'commodation to lots o' people that was willin' to pay for usin' 'em. So he finds out ducks dat is lookin' for somethin' to do, an' wot hain't got no money nor nothin' to do it with, an' he lends 'em the money, or fixes up stands for 'em, an' sets 'em to boot blackin' or sellin' papers, or any decent thing that de public was a'chin' fer. He just takes dem fellers' notes fer de money, or wot de cost was, an' gives 'em time to pay. An' he tells me that out o' I ferget how many dozen o' wot most folks 'd a t'ought was de wust kind o' no-'count duffs he has started in trade he hasn't never lost one dollar by 'em yet! Some o' de chaps he set up has got well off, and shines around big with wives and children. That hain't all, boss. Many a poor duffer dat was way down on his luck, an' just waitin' for an openin' to start in as a pickpocket, or a burglar, or a ward heeler, has been took in hand by my friend. He's just braced dem ducks up by showin' 'em dat he had confidence in 'em, and d' hain't one of 'em that ever went back on him or demselves. I can p'int you out more den a dozen o' such chaps dat's as square an' gittin'-along fellers as d' is on de Bowery. An' he don't only help fellers out o' holes an' set 'em goin' right an' honest, but he's done de same trick by many a gal as was bein' pushed to goin' wrong by startin' her in a payin' biz, an' she a gittin' a bully home an' lots o' friends the first t'ing she knowed. Dat's de whitest old man in dis town, cully, an' you can tell 'em I say so."

The one who is a friend of humanity, is also a friend of God. He may never pray; he may never go to church; he may not believe even in the Bible, or in Spiritualism, yet if he is honest and a friend of humanity, he is as near to God and the angel world as possible for a mortal to get. That Spiritualist who doesn't to some extent live for the world at large is no friend of humanity; is not near to God, and cannot enter, if he should die to-day, the higher spheres of spirit life. He would gravitate to the plane where self is uppermost, and the scenery would not be very enchanting. To-day the world would be a paradise, and suffering and want unknown, if each one in the past had contributed something definite for a common humanity. While selfishness is the prominent factor of life, nothing diverging therefrom to aid those less fortunate than self, no progress whatever can be made in advancing to a higher plane.

IMPORTANT STUDY.

Everyone should read the first page of The Progressive Thinker this week; not only read it but carefully study it. It alone is worth a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker, to say nothing of the many other equally important articles. Everyone, after reading this week's paper, should go to work and try to induce others to subscribe, and thus aid in the good work. Nora Batchelor, prominent as a contributor to various Spiritualist journals, says: "The Progressive Thinker is far the best of our Spiritualist journals."

The Star of the Magi.

The Star of the Magi, published at 617 LaSalle avenue, Chicago, Ill., is a monthly journal ($1 per year) of Occult Science, edited and published by Dr. N. E. Wood. Those who are specially interested in occult subjects will find in its columns much that will interest and instruct them. Willis F. Whitehead, who is constantly delving deeply into occult lore, lends the brilliancy of his thoughts occasionally to enrich its columns.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments). By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

"Spiritual Songs for the Use of Circles, Camp-meetings and Other Spiritualistic Gatherings." By Mattie E. Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

WAR ON CRUELTY.

Spiritualists Should Enlist. IT TENDS TO SPIRITUALIZATION

The annual meeting of the Illinois Humane Society was held lately at the society building, 560 Wabash avenue.

In his annual address President Shortall laid particular emphasis on the determination of the society to push prosecutions against all classes of offenders by a rigid enforcement of the laws. Specifically he attacked the proposition to increase the time between feeding of live stock in transit from twenty-eight to forty hours.

"Awaken the country to this bill," he said, "and there would be one common protest from the people that would put this amendment to shame."

The president expressed satisfaction with the results of a case where a special agent at Kankakee had a man arrested and fined for "docking" a horse. He announced that the society would present a bill to the next Legislature asking that the owner of a mutilated horse be put under the burden of proof in case of a society investigation.

Inculcating humane principles in children was urged as a necessity of the times, and a committee was suggested to present some method of extending teachings to the schools. As to children as a society care, the speaker referred to the new juvenile court as relieving the society of nearly all that burden.

Especially did the speaker dwell on the dispersing of the child beggars, who had given the society so much trouble before the founding of the juvenile court. The child-saving conference of last winter was congratulated on its work, and it was urged that these conferences be continued.

The President referred to the conduct of the dog pounds for 1899, and announced that the society would conduct it again this year if proper premises and machinery are supplied by the city. Of last year's work the president said:

"Strict orders were given that only dogs running at large and without tags should be impounded. The consequence was that in no instance was it shown that any dog was captured except those that were legally entitled to be taken. During 8899 41,000 dog licenses were issued, as compared to 39,500 the previous year.

"Experiments in the use of coal and illuminating gas to kill dogs have been made with satisfactory results, and should no better means be found this agent may be tried this year. A new building for the purpose is about to be erected in Twenty-sixth street, on Bridewell land, but will not be finished until August 1."

There is nothing that tends to a greater extent in elevating and spiritualizing mankind than extreme kindness. It should become an integral part part of human nature. From earliest childhood it should be taught to children while awake and asleep. While a boy is asleep wonderful impressions can be made on the plastic brain by the parent tenderly talking to him. Try it, fathers; try it, mothers, on your sons and daughters.

Home Circle Extension.

In our present issue will be found some brief notes of experiences in a home circle. There are widely varied results in home circles, including many distinct phases of mediumistic gifts and spirit power. The manifestations range from the simple raps and other physical manifestations, to the finer degrees of spiritual illumination, including inspiration and clairvoyance.

We would be pleased to have others of our friends and readers write us of their experience. There can be no doubt that many of them can thus convey rich lessons which others may read and be profited thereby.

Such experiences will encourage others to institute circles within their own homes, and thus shall new avenues of communication between the spheres be developed and made to serve beneficial purposes in the hands of the spirit world.

It would be a most excellent and beneficial service to our cause and to humanity, were thousands of home circles to be formed in the homes of Spiritualist families. The multiplication of evidences of spirit continuity and return, thus induced, in manner free from all mercenary incentives to fraud and deception, would assuredly strengthen and firmly establish Spiritualism in a multitude of minds, and in outward results of accession to our ranks, as well as in inner spiritual growth of individual souls, the consequence would be to impart numerical strength and spirituality to a degree unknown before in the history of our Cause.

For the good of our Cause, let there be a strong movement for home circle extension.

Muscular Christianity.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," said the Master. Using this touchstone as a sure guide to knowledge, here is an interesting article bearing upon the subject, in a press telegram of the 3rd inst., from Port Jervis, N. Y., near the scene of the incident:

Henry Gotte, a farmer, living near Greeley, Pike county, Pa., wished to pray, and, being balked, stabbed his wife and daughter because they objected to his saying grace before meat. He is in the Milford jail.

Gotte, wife and daughter seated themselves at the dinner-table a few days ago.

"We will now return thanks for all the good things we are about to receive," said Gotte, devoutly.

"Oh, what's the use of praying?" interrupted Miss Gotte, who is 17 years old. "You'll be only quarreling and fighting and cursing afterward."

Her prayerful father threw a plate at her.

"I say we will pray," he insisted. "You're a thankless——"

"The child is right," broke in Mrs. Gotte, jumping up and striking her husband on the nose. "We want peace and quiet here, not prayers."

Gotte stabbed his wife in the arm with the carving-fork.

"We'll pray," he yelled, "or there'll be——"

"Let mother alone," screamed the daughter, springing at her father.

Gotte, the devout, stabbed his daughter with the fork, too. Mother and daughter ran shrieking to a neighbor's house, Gotte pursued, crying at every jump:

"You won't pray, eh? Just let me catch you!"

The neighbor sheltered Mrs. and Miss Gotte, who went to Milford next day and swore out a warrant for the truly-good Gotte's arrest.

Erroneous zeal will make you do evil with double violence.—R. Baxter.

YOU WILL DO IT.

Make Your Own Heaven or Hell. YOU ARE DOING IT NOW.

An author has well said that "mankind see the future life through their habits and likes of this life. The Eskimo pictures heaven as a place of eternal warmth; the inhabitant of the torrid zone thinks it a place of coolness, where everlasting shade abounds; the American Indian sees it as a happy hunting ground. The ancient Jews, absorbed in acquiring wealth, described the New Jerusalem as paved with gold. A German beer drinker probably dreams of heaven as a vast beer garden with angels in the shape of fat waiters forever bringing him mugs of beer, the floor paved with sawdust, and the aroma, not of Araby the blest, but of Limburger cheese, bologna sausage and sauer kraut. A man's heaven will be very much what he is himself. A man of impure thoughts and foul words would certainly be unfitted for the society of the pure and holy. He would be in hell though put in the nicest place in heaven. There are people who talk about God sending people to hell or taking them to heaven. If he does this directly it is because they are best fitted for the place. Is it too strong an expression to say that God will not make a man wicked or impure, or that he cannot make a man pure and save him, unless the man himself is willing? God is almighty, and so is man, as far as his salvation or damnation is concerned. 'As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he,' and we might add 'now and forever.' Every man is the architect of his own fortune, and also of his heaven and his hell."

Why not? The law, what you sow, that alone you shall reap, is one of the fairest expressions of justice in any ordinance of Divine Providence. It is a simple as well as comprehensive arrangement, and dispenses with a judge, jury or officers of any kind whatever. No trial is required to find your exact status, whether a philosopher, scientist, orthodox Christian, Catholic or Spiritualist. If you are gross, licentious, a liar, backbiter, or thief, etc., they alone determine your exact status, when the final transition comes. If, however, you are good in the most comprehensive meaning of that term, that, too, establishes your status in the higher spheres of spirit life, and a grand career opens up before you. We are glad that each one makes his own heaven and hell. If somebody else did that, mistakes would be made and justice would in many respects prove a dismal failure. All should thank "Divine Providence" for this grand arrangement, for no one can misjudge himself; by no mistake can the wicked ascend to the high heavens or the righteous descend into the regions of the lowest hell when life on earth ends.

A Missionary's Statement.

A Christian missionary who visited China, to redeem that people from heathenism, made in substance the following statement on his return to civilization. To gain admission inland he disguised himself as a trader, carrying with him, for purpose of deception, a small stock of Western goods. Reaching his destination, the field for future operations, he employed several servants to aid him in business, and to teach him the native language. He assumed the costume of the country, and shaved his head, retaining the usual scalp lock. Thus disguised, he practically entered on his mission. He was repulsed at every point. The people had no need of a secondary God. They repudiated his teaching that the Creator of worlds had demeaned himself and seduced a Jewish maiden, and had a son by her. They had their Confucius and their Buddha, whom they did not claim to be other than men. He labored zealously to make converts; but save those in his employ, none of them wanted his religion. He became satisfied these professed converts adopted it merely to hold their positions, not because of conviction or sympathy for the faith.

Those our trader-missionary proselyted plied him with questions he could not answer. They laughed hilariously at his Bible stories. They said Catholics and Protestants each claimed to have the true religion; but they were always quarreling and trying to destroy the opposite party. Even the various Protestant sects did not agree in their religious views. They advised him to go back to his own country, harmonize the divisions among Christians, then he could return to them. If on comparing the harmonized faith with their own, and if they shall find it a more peaceful religion, with less vice among its members, and better adapted to make men good, and faithful to each other, then, possibly, they will adopt it in place of the one they now have. They said they wanted no religion that leads to wars and conquests, and gave evidence that their religion was specially adapted to their needs. They declared with great emphasis,

"Whilst your religion desolated all the regions in which it originated, leaving great cities destitute of inhabitants, and nothing but ruins to mark their site,—not in Palestine only but throughout Asia Minor, Egypt, Greece, and the islands of the Great Sea,—China, with its Paganism, as you call it, has the most dense population on the globe, and the antiquity of our great cities ante-date your boasted civilization. Seldom was there strife among us until your missionaries, with their deceptive claim of peace, entered our country; then came war and the vices of the West."

With these terrible truths ringing in his ears the poor man struggled on for a time, fate ever seeming against him. His disguise did not change his complexion, oblique his eyes, nor blacken his hair. His walk, his every movement, his voice, betrayed a Foreign Devil. Children laughed at him and made mirth of his virgin-born God. His stock of goods depleted, the prospects of building up a trade by exchanging his wares for native products, gone, all his visions of wealth and fame vanished, each day growing less in favor with the populace, and hated by the mandarin for his gross ignorance, he thought it advisable to return to his own country, and abandon the missionary business forever. Because of his wise action in this regard he escaped the general slaughter and he is glad of it, and so are we.

"Never-Ending Life Assured by Science." By Daniel Kent Tenney. A strong and conclusive argument from the basis of science. For sale at this office. Price 6 cents.

"Love—Sex—Immortality." By Dr. W. P. Phelon. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

MEN OVER FORTY.

Shall They Be Asphyxiated? THE SPIRITUAL STANDPOINT.

Another great railway corporation has pronounced against old men—not such very old men, either, for the inhibition extends to men over 40. The man who has reached that age may not be newly employed in any capacity. The company will not, however, discharge him if he is already in its employ. Thus much concession to old and faithful servants.

But other corporations and firms are not so considerate. Instances are numerous and well known of wholesale discharges of old men. The employer is usually frank about it. He declares that he can get more and better work out of young men than from old men. He is in business to make money and not from philanthropic motives. Hence he purposes to get the most work for the least money whenever he can. That is the business view of it. He does not desire to mix charity with business.

The trouble is that if the prejudice against old men continues to grow—if the matter continues to be regarded purely from a business standpoint—the demands of charity will become so exacting that there may be doubts as to the business value of the proposition to eliminate old men. For old men like young men must live, and if they have no work they will become dependent upon charity, and thus it may eventually happen that the strictly business man may find it cheaper to keep the old men at work rather than maintain them in idleness in the poorhouse. This supposing we are still to have poorhouses.

It is a singular business altogether—this end of the century depreciation of men no longer in the vigor of early manhood. It is a complete reversal of time-honored traditions, and it extends not only to men engaged in occupations requiring manual dexterity and bodily strength, but to the learned professions as well.

It used to be conceded that years implied wisdom, and the deduction seemed warranted, for wisdom is the result of experience, and the oldest man is likely to have the most experience. But that conclusion is no longer accepted.

Nowadays it is the young lawyer who is sought for by the big corporation. The young doctor is sent for because he is supposed to be up in all the new-fangled medical ologies. The old preacher is looked upon as a fogy because he preaches doctrinal sermons instead of essays upon Shakespeare and the musical glasses. It is not so very long since Mr. John Watson, better known as "Ian Maclaren"—and himself a clergyman—seriously proposed that all preachers should be "turned out to grass," as he expressed it, upon reaching the age of 60 years.

One would almost be tempted to think that the inspired psalmist made a mistake in allotting to man a span of threescore years and ten. According to the modern idea it is at least thirty years longer than nature intended.

A Chicago philosopher of some reputation once declared, after profound reflection, that every man who reaches the age of 40 should be taken out and killed, but he based his conclusion not upon the uselessness of such men, but upon the theory that at the age of two-score "men become satisfied with the status quo and are consequently clogs upon the chariot wheels of progress."

But whether the philosopher was right or wrong there is some reason to anticipate that we may eventually have to adopt his programme. It would be cruel to allow the veterans of 40 and over to starve to death and it is likely to be a heavy charge to feed them. The obvious expedient is to put them out of the way as dogs are dispatched by the poundkeeper.

For business is business. The survival of the fittest means the fittest up to 39 years old. The others are out of it.

The above from the Chicago Chronicle illustrates the status of certain affairs from a worldly, selfish standpoint, and is calculated to petrify every exalted Spiritual impulse. The selfish tendency of the present time is to look upon the man who is over 40 as useless rubbish in the world of activity, whereas he may be just entering on a field of greater usefulness. With age often comes greater wisdom, providing the physical organism is not impaired with disease. Everyone—from the helpless infant to extreme old age—is entitled to a great degree of tender care and consideration, and to treat them otherwise would finally result in the human race relapsing into barbarism again.

Art Magic—Spiritism.

Willis F. Whitehead, who is connected with that excellent occult monthly, Star of the Magi, writes of Art Magic as follows:

"This truly remarkable volume is the most notable occult work ever issued from the Spiritualist press. Spiritualism has given the world a voluminous and varied literature, but among them all Art Magic stands unapproachable and supreme. At a time when Davis, Denton, Randolph, Owen and others are all but forgotten, this cap-sheaf of spiritual and recondite thought still presents its assuring motto—"God Understands"—to every seeker of the "Mysteries" and all who have traced the steps of Isis among the sand-covered civilizations of antiquity. Such a reputation among mystics and occultists everywhere has Art Magic made for itself that it would be idle to attempt any review of its contents. It deals with the various branches of the occult from the standpoint of the "Spiritual Philosophy," and, on that account, is a representative work, and one, therefore, that cannot be overlooked by the student, who desires an impartial view of the occult field. The author's name is unknown, we believe, but that he was an indefatigable student and was exceedingly well informed on many of the most abstruse and arcane points of occult research is beyond dispute. One citation alone will show this: "The day will come when the Magic of the ancients will be the scence of the moderns, and in that morning light the Great Pyramid of Cheops will be known for what it really is—the alphabet which spells out the signification of the divine Drama of Existence." (Page 207.) This work was first issued by Emma Hardinge Britten, and later by John R. Francis, as a premium to his paper, and from whom it can still be obtained. Copies of the first edition are very rare and difficult to procure, but this latter edition of over 350 pages, tastefully and substantially bound in cloth, can be procured for $1.50, which price includes a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker, the representative Spiritualist paper of the world, edited and published weekly by John R. Francis, at 40 Loomis street, Chicago, Ill."

"Cultivation of Personal Magnetism, A Treatise on Human Culture." By Leroy Berrier. For sale at this office. Price $1.

THE EVIL MEN DO.

Harm Done by the Good People IEXCELLENT ILLUSTRATIONS.

Has it occurred to you that about all the serious harm ever done in this cool world has been done by the Good People? It is the historic fact, as set forth by Charles F. Lummis in Land of Sunshine.

Not the little, ephemeral personalities like sneak-thieving, murder and the benevolent assimilation of a neighbor's wife. Acts harm the actors. These poor fools harm society no more than a madman kills it when he cuts his own throat. The criminal is absolutely powerless as a factor in evolution. We know him, if only late; and he knows himself. Whether we ever catch him and hang him, counts little. His punishment and his futility are in him and on him, anyhow.

But all the great long, deep, generic wrongs; all the ignorance and bigotry and oppression in human history—all these have been committed by the Good People.

Who blocked the new message of the Nazarene? The rabble? No, the orthodox. Whom does Christ curse—the brute Roman soldiery? Nay, the Good People. Rabbles do not adjudicate systems of religion—such things are approved or rejected by the religious.

Who stood in the path of Luther's Reformation—the slums? No, the Church. Who silenced Galileo—the dunces? No, the scientists. Who made the Spanish Inquisition a byword for cruelty—the bad people? Oh, no! The most pious, orthodox, God-fearing people in Spain. Who hanged witches and flogged Quakers in New England—the riffraff? Not at all; the most virtuous of our Puritan forefathers. The unregenerate do not care enough what another man believes to roast or rack him into orthodoxy; to be so cruel needs men who would die for the faith themselves. Even in our modern version of the Inquisition—church heresy trials—it is not the backsliders who play inquisitor.

Who kept negro slavery alive in this country? Not the Legrees (who were few) but the ministers of the gospel who preached and prayed for the "divine institution" of slavery, and proved by the Bible the righteousness of slave-holding; and the orthodox congregations which kept that kind of ministers to do their conscience. Who maintained the War of the Rebellion four years and more? The camp followers and "hard cases?" Never! Scoundrels and scrubs are as small a drop in the bucket below Mason and Dixon's line as above it—and it is an Abolition Yankee who admits this. That war lived because the sober, home-loving, law-abiding, God-fearing people of the South believed in it. They fought as scrubs never will fight—and they made the scrubs fight, who would have run away as soon as the brute excitement wore off. Only, all these Good People were mistaken.

It is needless to continue the parallel. All history runs the same way. It means something. And the first thing it means is that men can't wholesale their duty. It is a retail business. It means that a majority of the people in any country "mean well;" that they generally start wrong and wind up about right. And their itinerary is so invariably of one method that the student of history knows what to expect. When you see a stolid multitude of Good People; and here and there among them a Good Man arising, with brains in the upper end of him and disagreeing with the crowd at his proper cost; and the Word spreads, and persecution spreads with it—why, then you may reasonably figure that in a year or five years or a generation the crowd will agree with the man who wouldn't agree with the crowd. It works that way—whether it be one golden-rule carpenter against Mosaic Palestine; or one protesting monk against Catholic Europe; or one Puritan against a United States half slave-holding and half consenting to slavery. It doesn't mean that every man who protests is right, any more than that every crowd is right by conforming. But when men with heads and hearts begin to break out for conscience sake; when they brave their own party, their own social peers—why, then the crowd that thinks by platoons might as well make up its mind to right-about face. For it is going to have to.

"John Brown's body lies a-mouldering in the grave,
But his soul goes marching on."

Who was John Brown? Why, he was a fool! Also a rude, half-educated backwoods "copperhead" and "traitor." He was against the government of the United States—which then officially sanctioned and protected human slavery. He was so blasphemous as to think God as big as the President. He was against the State governments which desired to extend slavery. He was an impolite person. He did not ask anybody if he please might think. The implied permission God gave him, by giving him a brain to think with, was warrant enough for John Brown.

Do you chance to remember the name of anyone of the eminently respectable persons—bankers, ministers, professors, deacons, merchants, who were scandalized by John Brown, and balked his crusade so that he died a martyr without seeing the dawn? Remember who the Governor was that hung John Brown? Know the name or rank of the patriotic regular army officer who conquered him? Ever hear any songs about them? Or about the President of the United States that year—if you should chance to remember who he was?

But maybe you have heard ten thousand men, in a roar that shook high heaven, sing about the man of Ossawottamie. And felt it, as I have, in your feet; and opened your lungs with it, and felt something crinkle in your blood.

Why?

"Talmagean Inanities, Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies; a Review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism." By Moses Hull For sale at this office. Price ten cents.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price, 25 cents.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE REALM OF MUSIC

Music, Medicine, Inspiration, INTERESTING INCIDENTS.

From the time when medical knowledge was first embodied in rules of practice, says the London Lancet, and probably from a much earlier period, music held a recognized place in the treatment of disease. In no class of disease, however, are we likely to derive so much benefit from the use of so pleasant a remedy as in those affecting the mind itself. In melancholia and allied states of depression its value is generally admitted in our own day. Ancient practitioners were also cognizant of its usefulness in this respect. We must have all felt how suitable is its infinite variety and facility of expression to the changing moods of the same, and it is therefore the less difficult to understand how straying minds are pleased and settled by its charm. Certain it is that its beneficial effect is in this case considerable, and our readers, though possibly unable to acquire a knowledge of the art, should at least possess, and if needful assert in practice, a sense of its therapeutic value.

That music is often beneficial in cases of sickness, no one at the present time, in this progressive age, can consistently deny. The idea is generally entertained that all objects, great or small, have what is called a fundamental note, and when with a violin, piano, harp or trumpet that note is struck, there must from some source be a response. If the fundamental note of your physical organization is struck, there will occur therein rhythmic vibrations that are often attended with most excellent results. If the fundamental note of your physical organization is interfered with by asthmatic, feverish or painful vibrations, the tendency is when that note is sounded to restore the body to its normal state. The statement "That the morning stars sang together," is only a simple allusion to the rhythmic motion throughout all parts of God's vast universe. Says the poet:

All matter is God's tongue,
And from its motions
God's thought are sung.
The realms of space are the octave bars,
And the musical notes
The suns and stars.

The Popular Science Monthly says that animals of the same species vary in their musical gift, as they do in other points. Some animals are very fond of music and greatly affected by it, while others are insensible or quite averse to it; of the former the horse has already in remote antiquity been mentioned for its joy at the sound of the trumpet, as we read in the book of Job (xxxix, 25). Shakespeare also says in his "Merchant of Venice:"

"For do but note a wild and wanton herd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts,
Fetching mad bounds, bellowing, and neighing loud.
Which is the hot condition of their blood;
If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any air of music touch their ears,
You shall perceive them make a mutual stand,
Their savage eyes turned to a modest gaze,
By the sweet power of music."

A touching proof of this old truth was given in the late Franco-German war, when, in the evening after the battle of Gravelotte, on the trumpet signal for the roll call of the Life Guards, more than three hundred riderless horses, some of them wounded and hobbling on three legs, answered the well-known sounds and mustered with the remnant of their regiment. Of the nightingale it is said that in spring the males perch on the tree opposite the hens and sing their best one after another; whereupon the hens select their mates and fly off with them.

The New York Mail and Express relates a curious incident in connection with Sullivan's "Lost Chord."

Though Sir Arthur Sullivan's long compositions have won for him a more ample fame, it is his short piece, "The Lost Chord," which has done more than anything else to augment his popularity. The circumstances of the writing of this famous composition were as follows:

For the Norwich musicale of 1866 Sir Arthur Sullivan had been asked to write an overture. He had accepted the commission, but failing to hit upon an appropriate idea, he neglected the work until the date had approached dangerously near.

At length he decided to give up his commission. His father, however, persuaded him not to relinquish it. "Something is sure to occur to you," he urged. "even at the last moment." Three days after this Sullivan's beloved father died. The blow fell upon the young musician with terrible effect. He sat for hours as one dazed.

Finally, on the night of the funeral, he seized a pen and began writing. By the next morning the score for the Norwich festival had been finished. In producing this work Sullivan seemed to act almost without his own volition, and yet the Norwich score is considered one of the finest he has ever produced. It led almost directly to the production of "The Lost Chord."

The death of his father, to whom he was passionately attached, filled the composer with a profound melancholy, which was intensified a few weeks afterward by the desperate illness of his brother. For weeks Sullivan sat at the bedside, while the life of another whom he loved trembled in the balance.

One night, as the invalid passed off into a quiet sleep, and a respite seemed to have occurred in the battle between life and death. Sullivan quietly, almost stealthily, took a piece of paper from the table in front of him and, in a burst of divine inspiration, began writing music to the words which had been running so long in his head. When he had completed his work "The Lost Chord" had sprung into harmonious being.

As stated by the London Leader, the story of Miss Susan Strong, the American singer who is now appearing at Covent Garden, is most remarkable; more fortunate than that of Cornelia Falcon, a distinguished singer in the early years of the century, whose fascinating voice suddenly left her never to return. In the present instance Miss Strong was suffering from an illness some years ago, and her voice was entirely gone, greatly to her sorrow, for she expected never to regain it. A considerable length of time elapsed, when a bird singing in the garden acted as an inspiration upon her, and induced her to try to imitate his trills, and much to her wonder and delight she succeeded, and the long-lost voice reasserted itself.

Loss of the singing voice appears to be a form of restriction of the vocal chords; the ordinary limits of the voice comprehend about two octaves of the musical scale, easily increased to two and a half; but it sometimes reaches the exceptional range of three or three and a half, and when the voice is "lost" it is frequently confined to one.

Thus, at the commencement of the century Catalani's wonderful range astonished everyone who heard her, and she was regarded as a sort of prodigy. Suppleness and intensity may be acquired by practice, as has been proved in the case of many singers; the voice of Marie Garcia was harsh, but it became at last the delicious one of Mme. Malibran. In general the natural gift is manifested without culture; the child endowed with this charm warbles like a bird for amusement; a lover of art passes by, and promises glory and fortune to the lark to whom he has listened in surprise. Rubini's triumph is a case in point.

The potency of music is beginning to be understood. There seems to be no limit to its wonderful efficacy. As a reformatory agent it cannot be excelled.

"Our Bible: Who Wrote It? When? Where? How? Is It Infallible? A Voice from The Higher Criticism. A few thoughts on other Bibles." By Moses Hull. Of especial value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.

GOOD SUGGESTIONS.

By Professor Herbert W. Hart. BRAIN STARVATION.

Taking into consideration, says the Chicago Tribune, the great number of suicides that are taking place of persons of all ages and in all positions of life, in some cases mere children some of which suicides it has been found impossible to trace to a cause, and considering that insanity is greatly on the increase, according to the statistics of a most reliable authority, it being shown that "while the population of America has increased 100 per cent, insanity has increased 600 per cent." This being the case there must be a large percentage of those who are on the verge of insanity, another larger percentage still nearer the verge, and yet a larger percentage undergoing that state of transition from sanity to the first stage of incipient insanity. If this be so, then there must be some cause, and this cause can be traced immediately to a lack of brain nutrition, and primarily to the systematic extraction of brain sustaining phosphates from the flour of which the daily bread in fashionable use is made, irrespective of the removal by sifting and dressing of other most valuable nutritious properties which reduce what was once the original "staff of life," the mainstay of man for over 5,000 years, before the Christian era and since, to little better than starch, a carbonaceous compound or heat producer, containing "not a trace of phosphate," as proved by Dr. Grace Calvert, the eminent analytical chemist.

This being so, I consider the press cannot do a greater servive to humanity than by making these facts known, as it can be further proved beyond all doubt that the condition of mentality that leads to insanity is not only curable by partaking of such foods as are capable of being elaborated into normally constituted blood, but preventable by abstaining from such innutritious starch and other carbonaceous so-called foods as do not contain the necessary brain nutrition, such as rice, macaroni, tapioca, and the starch of potatoes when eaten without the skin. The reason why asparagus, cabbage, string beans, lettuce, spinnach, and other green vegetables are so wholesome is that the skins are not rejected.

It has been proved by chemical analysis and demonstrated by microscopic experiments made by myself that the most valuable brain-sustaining properties are resident in all skins of cereals, fruits and vegetables, and as an instance of the great difference to the health resultant from partaking or rejecting the skins, I will give here an incident that occurred in India as told by an Indian officer.

A regiment was stationed in a part of the country where grapes were the chief article of food. The officers, one after another, became so sick as to be invalided as unfit for service, but it being considered remarkable that the troops were all well, a commission of inquiry was instituted, when it was found that while every trooper in eating the grapes swallowed the skins, the officers followed the fashionable habit of rejecting them. It was then ordered that the officers should also swallow the skins, which was done, with the result that they immediately recovered.

The building up of a strong physical and mental organism is within the power of all who will conform to the natural, fundamental laws of life.

A reform school of cooking on a scientific basis is one of the first essential steps to increased brain nutrition. Several prominent men in New York have recently expressed their opinion that all suicides are insane. Of this there can be no question. No sane, properly nourished person could be capable of so rash an act.

I am of the opinion that nothing tends more to weaken the brain and render it liable to become unbalanced than lack of suitable nourishment. The brain can no more act with vigor without suitable nourishment than can a watch keep time without being wound up, and if properly wound up it requires no further stimulant to make it go correctly. If, as Savarin says, "the destiny of nations depends on their food," then the destiny, whether a healthy, long life, or insanity or suicide, of every unit of the United States depends on how he or she is fed.

If the breed so much depends upon food, why should not every person capable of normal thought seek to procure such food as best sustains his or her normality. Brain starvation, through the lack of suitable brain and nerve nourishment in our daily food, is the sole cause of the craving for stimulants to supply, as they do, artificially and improperly, what nature has provided in a natural form, in the skin of the grape, which contains the best part of the wine, in the skins of all fruits and vegetables, and if not in the skins of cereals, how comes it that stimulating properties are extracted from them—as the inner kernel, the starch, is devoid of anything other than a heat-giver?

It is generally admitted that prevention is better than cure, but unfortunately the human family of the present day lacks that sense which was once so prevalent among our ancestors (thanks to the normal food they partook of), as to be called common, so that hundreds of millions of dollars are spent for curatives, correctives, and ameliorative agencies, including the useless endeavors to arrest intemperance, while so-called food, such as bread, crackers, and pie, is provided wholesale, regardless of its lack of real nutrition.

LILIAN WHITING.

She Writes from London, Eng., GIVING THINGS SPIRITUAL.

Wilberforce Rejects the Idea of Hell.

Lilian Whiting is in England, and she writes from London to the Inter Ocean giving many incidents of great interest. Speaking of a meeting she attended, she says:

Wilberforce took for his theme two texts—that "Dives lifted up his eyes in torment," and "God is love." These two texts said Canon Wilberforce, might at first seem incompatible, but, on the contrary, they are mutually supporting. Dives lifted up his eyes in torment because God is love. Because when a man has lived the life of selfishness and of materiality, God's love gives him a great remedial school, a spiritual hospital, where great forces are at work to purify his soul. The preacher went on to assert that man is "surrounded, enwrapped, ensphered" by God's love. It is a characteristic of Canon Wilberforce to emphasize his meaning by this multiplication of words. He spoke scathingly of the unspeakable falsity of holding that God would punish any man eternally. "Such a doctrine would make God a failure," he said, and added that such a horrible misinterpretation of the scriptures was responsible for great wrong and wickedness. "A misdirected theology has taught the world how to swear," he said. But so long as sin lasts, so long must punishment last. It is the remedial power. The canon spoke earnestly of the continuity of character. The event of death has no miraculous power to change. As a man leaves this world so does he enter the next. But he comes then into a fuller awakening. He sees where he has erred; he comes into the larger intuitive grasp of realities. The sermon was one of the utmost power and fervor and of the highest spirituality. Canon Wilberforce is preaching the gospel of Christ in its highest and noblest application to daily life. He sees life in its wholeness, death as merely an event in it, and he teaches the truth that we are surrounded by spiritual forces companioned by spiritual friends.

The Rev. H. R. Haweis, who is the rector of St. James', Martlebone, and a special preacher at Westminster Abbey, recently delivered an address on Spiritualism and Christianity, in which he said that he could not conceive how any Christian could object to call himself a Spiritualist. He remembered some years ago, when he was in Boston, a reception which was given to himself and to Dean Farrar—a joint reception at a big hotel. His friend, Oliver Wendell Holmes, the author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," was present, and during the evening he had said to Mr. Haweis, "Do you see that man there? Well, he is a bishop, and a very good fellow, too—for a bishop." So he (the speaker) thought the value of his utterances would not, perhaps, be on account of their intrinsic merits, but because they might be considered as good enough for a clergyman of the Church of England.

The indebtedness of the clergy—if they knew their business—to Spiritualism was really very great. In the first place Spiritualism had rehabilitated the Bible. People now believed in the Bible because of Spiritualism; they did not believe in Spiritualism because of the Bible. Many years ago, when he began his ministry, he had been extremely sanguine about getting rid of the miracles out of the Bible. He thought it could be done, although it would require great ingenuity, a little shiftiness, some inventiveness, and some new views of historical criticism. Still he thought it could be done, and whenever he found a miracle that could be explained away it made him quite happy. But now he did not want to explain them away, because he found that they hung together with the experiences of human nature running through all history. You gained nothing by getting rid of the Bible miracles when you could not get rid of Sir William Crookes, Flammarion, or Alfred Russel Wallace. The miraculous element ran through the records of the past; the literature of Egypt, Syria, and India abounded with it. So there was no object in getting rid of it out of the Bible, because you had to grapple with it everywhere else. He did not say they should believe in all the miracles recorded in the Bible or elsewhere. Everything had to be judged on its merits. But if they could not explain the miracles naturally, he did not want explanations that made even greater demands on his credulity. The astonishing explanations of miracles, sometimes offered, were far harder to accept than the miracles themselves.

It was needless in that assembly to go through all the examples of miracles in the Bible which were paralleled by similar phenomena in latter times; to consider whether the visions of Jacob were like the dreams and visions of many saints; whether the voices that the prophets heard were like those which came to Joan of Arc or Swedenborg; whether the levitations of St. Philip or Elijah, or even Jesus, were like the levitations of Home, Stainton Moses, or of Francis d'Assissi.

Mr. Haweis continued: "We have had a new philosophical basis for immortality after that shock of atoms we call death. We find Spiritualism is not opposed to the atonement, not opposed to the doctrine of the dead, not opposed to the communion of saints. 'Are they not all ministering spirits, sent forth to minister unto such as shall be heirs of salvation?' I say that Spiritualism has finally taken away from us the capricious, fanciful, irrational kind of God who is supposed to judge his creatures in a way that would be a disgrace to a common magistrate, without intelligence, pity, sympathy, or knowledge; such a God as has revolted so many sensible religious people, and Spiritualism has done away with him. Spiritualism has pointed us to one who judges righteously, one who does not change, who is the same yesterday, today, and forever, loving man through all, bringing him back by slow degrees, back to the diviner life, to the realization of his diviner self; one whose policy can never alter, because he can never alter. Spiritualism has told us of this remedial world beyond. It points us to life, not death, for

"'Tis life, not death, for which we pant;
'Tis life of which our nerves are scant,
More life and fuller that we want.

"Yes, it leads us to the center and source of life; it reveals to us the bright galaxy of ministering spirits, the Jacob's ladder which reaches from earth to heaven and upon which the angels of God are ascending and descending. Spiritualism has given us back our immortality and given us back our God."

The address has been discussed widely and has increased the general interest in the subject.

LILIAN WHITING.

"Astral Worship." By J. H. Hill, M. D. For sale at this office. Price, $1.

FORBID TO MARRY.

Spiritual Aspect of the Case. DR. HARRY CAMPBELL'S VIEWS.

As a physician I am seeing every day of my life people whom I am compelled to class among nature's failures—people who fall short of the standard which makes life worth living, people who in virtue of their unfitness suffer more than they enjoy. When, therefore, I see and share in the vain struggle to patch up such failures, and when I read elaborate systems on treatment, I ask myself: Why not look facts sternly in the face and strike at the root of the evil by conforming to the supreme and inexorable law? I am convinced that some day this will be done, and that the wilful begetting of inefficient humans will be looked upon as scarcely less serious than the destruction of those already launched into being.

I make these observations because it is needful for my argument to insist upon the importance of this factor of elimination in keeping down the tendency to disease. In my work on "The Causation of Disease" I lay it down as an axiom that all non-accidental deaths occurring before the end of reproductive life are, racially considered, deaths of the unfit, such deaths acting beneficially on the race by limiting the production of unfit offspring. If the unfit individual dies before the productive period he can leave no offspring whatever to inherit his unfitness; if he dies during this period he has an opportunity, increasing with every year of survival, of leaving unfit offspring; while if he dies after the procreative period he has had the opportunity of leaving his full complement of such offspring. Hence, so far as the racial effect of death from unfitness is concerned, it is greatest when it occurs before the reproductive period, becomes less and less as it occurs later and later in this period, and ceases altogether when it takes place after it. The purifying action of elimination varying thus at different ages, we find the tendency to grave disorder is least before procreative life, steadily increases during it, and rises enormously at its termination. Inasmuch as post-procreative life comes not at all under the corrective influence of elimination, I should expect to find the organism manifesting many defects directly this period is entered upon. I should, indeed, be prepared to find, not only an enormous increase in the tendency to disease at this time, but a tendency for all organisms, vegetable as well as animal, to die soon after the cessation of reproductive life. How far this conclusion is borne out by observation I know not, but I believe it is true of man.

This line of thought renders it important to determine the average limit of the procreative period in man. The most vigorous specimens of the human male certainly retain procreative power beyond the allotted age of the Psalmist; and we owe it, I believe, to this very circumstance that many of us are able to reach or even to live beyond this limit. Had no man during the last 100,000 years got offspring after the age of fifty, we should all probably tend to die of old age about that time. There has, however, been no such limit to reproduction. In primitive communities, e. g., the man who by his great physical superiority becomes the warrior chief or king may continue to get children until well on in years, and may thus leave many more children than the average man. Now children thus got, female as well as male, tend by the law of heredity, to live as long as their father, to resist deadly disease as long as he. It is true that children got by fathers who procreate into old age must have always formed a small proportion of the total number of children born. Nevertheless, they have, I contend, exercised a leavening influence on the race, an influence which has been at work from the time of the ape-like man. The ability to live into the sixties and seventies, or even longer, we owe to the vigorous man of fine physique who retains his procreative power into advanced life. The woman, on the other hand, has played no part in the evolution of this power; her ability to live beyond 40 or 45 has no racial influence, since it does not increase her opportunity of leaving offspring to inherit it.

Now in civilized communities the tendency, observed in the more primitive ones, for the man who lives to a vigorous old age to leave more children than the average man is not great. The majority of men among the civilized have children by one wife only, and she is generally about the same age as the husband. The effect of this is to reduce the age limit of reproduction in the man to that of the woman. A man, therefore, marrying a woman about his own age, and possessing the power of propagation into advanced life, leaves no more children to inherit his superior death-resisting powers than the inferior man who dies at 45. Monogamy in such a case reduces the superior man to the reproductive level of the inferior man, and robs the race of a number of individuals whose birth would diminish the racial tendency to disease in the later years and increase the racial span of life. The effect of monogamy, in fact, is to increase the racial tendency to disease after middle life and to shorten the vital span.

Among the diseases one would expect to be increased by the monogamous limitation of procreative life is cancer. Reckoning for the sake of argument 40 years (which is indeed below the mark) as the average age limit to procreation among monogamous people, we must regard cancer as especially a disease of post-procreative life and one on which elimination has little or no racial effect. Before the individual with a tendency to this disease develops it he has had abundant opportunity of leaving children to inherit the morbid tendency. Nothing hinders his contribution to the species being as great as that of the individual possessing the minimum tendency to malignant disease. Thus monogamy tends to increase the percentage of cancerously disposed individuals.

While, however, monogamy is thus exercising an injurious influence on our race, polygamy is a sociological impossibility, and happily we have at our disposal a much more efficacious means than is afforded by it of securing to the fittest the largest number of offspring—of giving full play to that searching process of elimination which alone can sustain a high level of racial fitness. Nature's method of elimination is a merciless one; she unceremoniously sacrifices the individual for the benefit of the race—so careful of the type is she, so careless of the single life. The sole object of individual elimination, racially considered, is to prevent the unfit individual from leaving offspring to inherit his unfitness, and Nature in her rough-and-ready way achieves this object by simply wiping him out of existence. The same end can be attained, however, by the unfit abstaining from getting unfit offspring and choosing to join the ever-increasing army of the non-marrying. Elimination from the racial standpoint means not having offspring, and all who do not leave offspring are racially eliminated—unrepresented in posterity.

The best way, therefore—indeed, the only way—effectually to raise the racial standard is for the unfit to submit to voluntary elimination and to abstain from getting unfit variations. Not only would it be possible in this way to diminish the tendency to cancer and a host of other fell diseases, but it would also be possible, though some may think it undesirable, to extend the span of life almost indefinitely. I have elsewhere shown that a man does not grow old, as is so often assumed, by wearing out, like his boots. If such were the case he would begin to wear out from the very beginning of his existence, whereas it is precisely in the years of developmental life when most energy is expended that there is least evidence of wearing out, the organism, on the contrary, steadily advancing in efficiency. The period of senility is as much a part of the physiological vital cycle as that of development itself.

The spiritual aspect of the case is this: Everyone is entitled to have the right conditions for healthy, vigorous mental and physical qualities when first ushered into the world. Humanity, however, can only approximately reach that point, as perfection does not enter into any of the details of mortal life. We believe that every child, if rightly tutored up to the age of seven, will lead a strictly honest, moral life thereafter. Much can be accomplished through suggestion while a child is asleep. A mother had tried in vain to prevent her little girl from sucking her thumb. She then tried "suggestion." While her little girl was sound asleep, she sat quietly beside her, and gently reproached her for the disagreeable practice. In three nights she completely eradicated the habit. If children are not born right, the principle of "suggestion" should be brought into requisition. It is wonderfully potent.

"Mind and Body: Suggestions and Hypnotism Applied in Medicine and Education." By A. C. Halphide. President Chicago Society of Anthropology. For sale at this office. Price $1.

JESUIT THEOLOGY.

Its Immoral Tendency Given. THE FACTS OF HISTORY.

As set forth by the Citizen, of Boston, Mass., a Jesuit priest named Gasson, of Boston College (Jesuit), was reported in the Boston Globe a few days ago as saying in a lecture that there was nothing in Jesuit theology subversive of good morals or out of harmony with a pure Christianity. He was "talking to the galleries," without doubt, for every well-informed reader knows that the standard books of Jesuit theology are so vile that it is a crime against the United States laws to print and circulate them in English. In fact, men have been imprisoned in this country and in England for circulating "Jesuit morals."

That great book of Theodor Greisinger, the German scholar, ("History of the Jesuits") says (pages 479-482):

"The dangerous tendency of the Order of Jesus was proved, in as far as it affected the whole society of mankind, the Jesuit writings came to be zealously looked into, and in them was now discovered what had previously been held to be quite impossible—a moral doctrine was taught that was purely immoral. Indeed, on this account the Parliament of Paris caused a number of the most prominent Jesuitical writings to be officially investigated, and the result was a unanimous resolution that the moral writings of the Jesuits Emanuel Sa, Martin Anton Delrio, Robert Person, S. Bridgavater, Robert Bellarmin, Ludvig Molina, Alphonso Salmeron, Gregor de Valentia, Clarus Bonarscius, Johann Lorin, Leonard Less, Francis Tolet, Adam Tanner, Martin Becan, Edmund Pirot, Anton de Escobar, Jacob Tirin, Jacob Gretser, and Hermann Busenbaum, should be torn up and burnt by the public executioner at the foot of the great staircase of the Palace of Parliament, on account of their highly pernicious tendency and their horrible contents, which were entirely subversive of Christian morality.

In order to give the reader a more exact idea of what the Sons of Loyola taught in their writings and colleges, I will serve up a little specimen of their doctrines. I will not, however, confine myself to the so-called head matadore of the order, but quote more modern authors, as herein lies the proof that the principles alluded to belong not to an individual merely, but to the whole society as such, not being altered by the lapse of time. Let us see, first of all, how the Sons of Loyola give their judgment as to the crime of unchastity and adultery. "He," says Father Francis Zaver Fegeli (in his Practical Questions regarding the Functions of Father Confessor, Augsburg, 1750, p. 248), "who leads astray a young maiden with her own consent, is not guilty of sin, because she is mistress of her own person, and can dispense her favors according as she wishes." Father Escobar affirms precisely the same in his Moral Theology, which he caused to be printed in Lyons, in folio, in the year 1655, and also Father Moullet expressed himself in a similar manner in his Compendium of Morals. "But," the latter adds, further on, "whoever through force, threats, or cunning, causes a girl to leave the path of virtue, without having promised her marriage, is bound to compensate the young maiden and her relatives for all damage which has been occasioned to her, giving her, when he cannot otherwise compensate her, a dowry in order that she may find one who may marry her if he does not himself espouse her. If, nevertheless, his transgression should remain completely secret, she is not, according to the inward laws of conscience, entitled to any compensation." This Father Moullet further teaches: "If anyone enters into a guilty relationship with a woman, not on account of her being married, but on account of her being beautiful, the sin of adultery is not chargeable in such a case, even although she may be married, but simply that of impropriety."

FUNERALS.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Gives Her VIEWS ON THE SUBJECT.

The world is getting slowly wiser in many ways, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox in the New York Journal.

Funerals are no longer the barbarous exhibitions of death and sorrow to a gaping public which they were a decade or two ago.

Yet they are still capable of further improvement along the lines of delicacy and common decency.

The apparel of the bereaved is oppressive and depressing. Yet it can be pardoned when the loss is one which has stricken the light out of life for its wearer.

It is a protection against thoughtless inquiries and jarring levity.

But what is more inconsistent than the sight of a laughing, merry face swathed in the deepest folds of inky crepe? It is inconceivable to me—the attitude taken in these matters by sensible people, who claim a deeply religious belief.

A young woman of my acquaintance passed through the awful tragedy of having her father confined in an asylum during several years, hopelessly insane. His insanity was at times a raging, murderous mania, and always melancholy. He was never blessed with any happy delusions to temper the horror of his situation. His life was a tragedy, and the family purse was depleted to pay for his physical care.

Shortly after he passed out of his living tomb into the spiritual life, I met the young woman, and said to her: "I am so glad for your poor father and for you that he has been called home. What a relief it must be to you!"

She gazed at me reproachfully from her crepe, and said: "I feel terribly over the loss of my father; he was very dear to me."

I may be lacking in the finer sentiments of affection, but I cannot understand a grief of this kind. It it is genuine, it strikes me as unutterably senseless and selfish.

It is absolutely inconsistent with real religion.

No one who believes in a life beyond the grave can mourn the passing away of a soul from an insane body.

I can understand how a mother who has the care of a crippled or diseased child, or a wife of a husband, may feel the loneliness of the empty room and bed, even while thanking God the sufferer is out of misery; yet to shadow the lives of those about us with crepe and gloom because fashion demands it—and for fear people will "talk" if we do not—actuates many of us to do what common sense tells us is not necessary.

When a human being in the full power of life, and with ambitions ungratified and dreams unfulfilled, passes out of the world, it is always sad. When the useful, the happy, the loving and the loved go away from us, it requires all of a deep religious faith to support the loss; but when the diseased, the insane, the unhappy, the imbecile pass on to the freedom they long for—and to the health, happiness and sanity—we believe in waiting for them. Why should we go about in mourning garments or with mourning faces? Why should we change our methods of life, or deprive ourselves or our families of any pleasure or distraction which we indulged in while these unfortunate beings were suffering on earth?

THE BEYOND.

Among the floral offerings at the funeral of the late Mrs. William E Gladstone was a wreath from the Princess of Wales with a card containing the fourth verse of the following poem. The London newspapers credited Her Royal Highness with the authorship of the lines. The poem, however, was written more than ten years ago by Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox and was reprinted for the first time in the Chicago American.

It seemeth such a little way to me,
Across to that strange country, the beyond.
And yet not strange, for it has grown to be
The home of those of whom I am so fond.
It makes it seem familiar and most dear,
As journeying friends bring distant regions near.

So close it lies that when my sight is clear
I think I almost see the gleaming strand.
I know I feel those who have gone from here
Come close enough sometimes to touch my hand.
I often think but for our veiled eyes
We should find heaven right round about us here.

I cannot make it seem a day to dread
When from this dear earth I shall journey out
To that still dearer country of the dead
And join the lost ones for long dreams about.
I love this world, yet I shall love to go
To meet the friends who wait for me I know.

I never stand above a bier and see
The seal of death set on some well beloved face
But that I think one more to welcome me
When I shall cross the intervening space
Between this land and that one over there,
One more to make the strange "Beyond" seem fair.

And so for me there is no sting to death,
And so the grave has lost its victory.
It is but crossing with abated breath,
And with set face a little strip of sea
To find the loved ones waiting on the shore,
More beautiful, more precious than before.

WE call special attention to The Next World Interviewed, one of our special premiums. We are enabled to furnish it to our readers at the price announced in our premium list, from the simple fact that Mr. Horn donated the plates of the book to us. We have sent out thousands of copies of this book, and it has been well received everywhere. It should be circulated by the millions among all classes of Spiritualists. The seven books that we are offering to Spiritualists as premiums contain a large storehouse of useful knowledge on Spiritual and Occult subjects. You should have them on the shelves of your library where you can have access to them at any time. Read carefully our premium announcement.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1. For sale at this office.

556

The above is the number of the present issue of The Progressive Thinker, as printed at the top of the first page, right hand corner. If this number corresponds with the figures on your wrapper, then the time you have paid for has expired, and you are requested to renew your subscription. This number at the right hand corner of the first page is advanced each week, showing the number of Progressive Thinkers issued up to date. Keep watch of the number on the tag of your wrapper.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

CONTRIBUTORS.—Each contributor is alone responsible for any assertions or statements he may make. The editor allows this freedom of expression, believing that the cause of truth can be best subserved thereby. Many of the sentiments uttered in an article may be diametrically opposed to his belief, yet that is no reason why they should be suppressed; yet we wish it distinctly understood that our space is inadequate to publish everything that comes to hand, however much we might desire to do so. That must account for the non-appearance of YOUR article.

WRITE PLAINLY.—We would like to impress upon the minds of our correspondents that The Progressive Thinker is set up on a Linotype machine that must make speed equal to about four compositors. That means rapid work, and it is essential that all copy, to insure insertion in the paper, all other requirements being favorable, should be written plainly with ink on white paper, or with a typewriter, and only on one side of the paper.

ITEMS.—Bear in mind that items for the General Survey will all cases be adjusted to the space we have to occupy, and in order to do that they will generally have to be abridged more or less; otherwise many items would be crowded out. Sometimes a thirty-line item is cut down to ten lines, and ten lines to two lines, as occasion may requre. Every item sent to us for publication, should contain the full name and address of the writer. We desire to know the source of every item that appears. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

The Milwaukee Sentinel says: "The moon still shines if the dogs do bark," said the Rev. George B. Hopkins, of Chicago, who lectured before Milwaukee Spiritualists at Fraternity hall last night. "The fact that Lutherans said that Spiritualism was witchcraft does not affect us at all and we never reply to such attacks in our meetings. No one that knows anything about Spiritualism will say such things, for the world knows that there is truth in the doctrine. If any of these people challenge us to a public debate we accept, but we never take up any such action in our meetings, for the truth will progress."

The Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald speaks of the evening service at the camp as follows: "The evening service was, however, the most enlightening and interesting. Frank T. Ripley, of Boston, a well-known medium, arrived unexpectedly on the scene and spoke, and Mrs. Blake again acted as the intermediary between the material and the spiritual. Some of her revelations which followed Mr. Ripley's talk were remarkable, viewed even from a Spiritualistic standpoint."

A Spiritualistic camp-meeting and Chautauqua has opened in "Canon camp" in South Boulder canon, Colo. All the Spiritualists of the middle West will be represented or there in person and between the lectures by noted speakers, the seances and various other Spiritualistic manifestations, the session will be a very interesting one. It will conform in general to the one held at the same place last year, when something like 300 people attended every day. Mrs. May Taylor, president of the association, and Secretary George Taylor will be in charge of the camp-meeting, which will continue for three months. The site of the meeting is twenty-seven miles from Denver, near the mouth of South Boulder canon. It is a tract of eighty acres, belonging to the association and is in one of the most beautiful spots in the Rockies. The fertile valley, with green fields and inviting scenery, is just within the mouth of the canon. A fine little stream flows down, dropping 364 feet in a few miles and having six waterfalls of great beauty to the eye. The place is ideally situated for camping. Every facility desired is at hand and the surroundings and atmosphere conduce to high thinking and pleasant living.

Joseph Mathis writes from Los Angeles, Cal.: "I wish that every Spiritualist would send The Progressive Thinker to a brother or sister." This is what Mr. Mathis has done, and what he wishes others to do. The suggestion is a good one.

Mrs. S. Snyder thanks us for Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World. She says: "I have the three volumes; also Ghost Land and Art Magic."

T. S. Russell writes: "Sunday, July 15, Rev. Harry J. Moore conducted services for the Englewood Spiritual Union, with Mrs. Alice Gehring as test medium."

President Barrett says: "In the transition of Dr. Gibier, Spiritualism has lost one of its truest friends—in fact, one of its main props. Science loses one of its leading lights, and the literary world one of its brightest minds. He has done a noble work during his 49 years of earth-life, and has left a shining mark upon the pages of history.

That animals are entitled to their rights is the theme of an article by H. S. Salt in the International Journal of Ethics. He contends that all talk about the difference between men and animals as if between persons and mere things is thoroughly wrong and mistaken, whether in ethics or in science. Even the expression, "man and animals," is an absurdity, and "man and the other animals" would be better. Darwin says the senses and intuitions are found among animals. The trend of investigation shows at least the germ of every human faculty does exist in some species. Evidence of reasoning power is overwhelming for the upper ranks of the animal kingdom, and yearly are extended downwards as knowledge of the habits of the animals increases. Spiritualists, above all others, should take a kindly interest in animals.

Mrs. Izora C. Chandler, painter of dogs' pictures, author of stories about dogs, and lover of these intelligent animals, is a firm believer in the theory that they have souls, says the New York Mail and Express. "Yes, that is my conception," said Mrs. Chandler. "If dogs live up to the best canine ethics they will go to heaven just as we, if we live up to human ethics, will go to heaven. And I think that their heaven and our heaven are the same. Dogs and human beings are too close friends here to be separated hereafter." Mrs. Chandler had a pet St. Bernard named Rex that died a few years ago and left a void in the world for her. "Heaven is a state in which we shall all be content," continued Mrs. Chandler, "and I should never be satisfied unless I met Rex there, and I know he would not be content to follow another angel around. The Indian is sure that the first object he will see when he goes to the happy hunting ground will be his dog. And why should he not, if he was a good dog that lived according to his light?"

Take due notice, that all items for this page must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer. It will not do to say that Secretary or Correspondent writes so and so, without giving the full name and address of the writer. The items of those who do not comply with this request will be cast into the waste basket.

G. W. Kates and wife will serve during August at the Mantua, Ohio, Grand Ledge, Haslett Park and Island Lake, Mich., camps. Address them at 560 Seventh avenue, North, Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. Henry Frank, of the Independent Thinker, says: "There is doubtless much truth in Spiritualism, and I am inclined to believe that, after all the chaff and dirt are winnowed out of it, it will present the data for the science of the future."

What town in Michigan wants a speaker and psychometric test medium to locate in their midst to do a home work? Interested persons are requested to correspond with Mrs. Jennie Martin, 110 Kerr street S., Lansing, Mich.

Chester H. Parker writes from Asheville, N. C.: "I want to state to you and the readers of your paper, that I never visited a medium in my life who gave me the satisfaction that I derived from a sitting with this gifted man, Ernest Orvis. I consider him all a medium should be—honest, pure in thought and unassuming in appearance. In my sittings with him, I simply sat before him while he told me all I wanted to know. It was no guess work, but genuine mediumship. I told him he would make his fortune in larger cities. His reply was characteristic of the man. He passed to a window, and calling me to his side, asked, pointing to the mountains in the distance: 'Could any man who loved Nature and her handiwork leave this expression of Infinite Intelligence for the strife, dust and turmoil of a large city, where vice and immorality of all sorts and conditions run riot? No, I shall remain here.' Then smiling contentedly he resumed his seat and began telling of other things. I can safely recommend him to all investigators of truth as a medium worthy of one's confidence."

The Indianapolis (Ind.) News says: "The directory of the State Spiritualist Association instructed A. D. Kock and wife, mediums, to vacate, and refrain from giving seances in the camp at Chesterfield, Ind. Mr. Kock holds a ninety-nine-year lease, which places no restrictions on his profession, and he has informed the association that he can only be removed by legal process. As a number of mediums own camp leases, they will resist any attempt at dispossession on the part of the directory. It is thought that the new order, regulating mediums, will be inoperative as applied to leases, and that it cannot be enforced."

O. M. Ambler, of Vermont, writes: "You may set me down as a life-long subscriber to The Progressive Thinker, the best Spiritual paper published in the United States. Long may you be spared to show up the immoralities and hellishness of the Christian Bible and Christian teachings and the pretensions of Christians in general—the most damnable of all the great religions of the world. In this week's Progressive Thinker (July 7) was a communication from Julia H. Johnson in regard to cremation, which is all very sensible. Among other things, she says: 'Why do people with a belief in the immortal life follow the fashion of mourning—draping the dead form in black, hanging crape about the house, and even garbing themselves in the same sombre hue? There ought to be whiteness and brightness all about.' I subscribe to that in every particular. The couch of death should be surrounded by all that is cheerful, pleasant and beautiful—nothing to suggest death and decay."

Will C. Hodge paid The Progressive Thinker office a call while on his way to the Columbus, Ohio, Camp. He reports excellent meetings at Brodhead, Brooklyn and Bellville, Wis., and a fine social time with the friends in these respective localities as well as at Rockford, Ill. From Columbus he goes to Lake Brady for one week, and thence to Delphos, Kan., for the camping season. He is open for engagements in any locality after September. For terms and dates address 40 Loomis street, Chicago, Ill.

At a recent dinner given to Professor Hudson at St. Andrew's Hotel, N. Y., Prof. W. M. Lockwood was invited to reply to him upon his theories of "objective and subjective mind" in hypnosis. The Professor's reply elicited considerable comment, and several of the prominent physicians who were present said he had annihilated the physiological basis upon which Prof. H. builds his pet theories. Prof. Lockwood is now at Lily Dale.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kenyon are holding meetings in Phillis Hall, Onset, Mass. Mrs. Kenyon's tests have attracted many to attend who do not usually do so. At a late evening meeting a large number of tests were given. For over an hour she held the audience's closest attention, calling people by name and giving names of spirit friends and a great variety of other facts that carry conviction of truth to her hearers. Mrs. Kenyon can be addressed for dates as speaker and test medium, at Onset, Mass., Box 160.

Farney S. Hendricks writes: "If at any time the readers of The Progressive Thinker should be in need of music for any occasion, such as socials, concerts, balls, parties or weddings, I would be pleased to render my services. I can furnish an orchestra of two musicians to as many as desired, at moderate terms. Address me at 5441 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill."

Mrs. Bettie Fleming writes from Louisville, Ky.: "As I am so deeply interested and so dearly love the beautiful truth of Spiritualism, I wish to let the outside world know how we are progressing in this 'Sleepy Hollow' of ours. Mrs. Mary Ganett Shearon has just closed a very successful engagement of seven weeks at the Church of Spirit Communion, and the people would gladly have retained her for even seven months, but her previous engagements would not permit. She made many converts in her untiring energy. Being a lady of an extremely charitable and pleasing disposition, she will always have crowded houses to witness and encourage her noble work."

Commenting on the recently expressed determination of the Knights of Honor to admit to membership no "Christian Scientists" or other "faith cure" votaries, the Philadelphia Medical Journal says: "We are glad to see that at last the insurance societies are beginning to realize the evident fact of the heightening of the risk of applicants who crazily ignore the work of scientific medicine in saving and lengthening life. We would suggest that the list be extended to osteopathists and all the horde of anti-medical cranks, and that all life insurance companies draw the line as has the Knights of Honor. It is unjust that sane people who use common sense in the care of their lives should have their premiums raised because the companies are compelled to pay the inevitable losses accruing from the unnecessary deaths of the foolish and semi-insane." The New York Times says: "The point here made illustrates anew the fact which we have so often stated—that belief in one of the many false philosophies of healing is not a private and personal matter, concerning the believer alone, and therefore beyond the interference of non-believers and the law. On the contrary, each of the silly cults is a direct and serious danger to us all, because it manufactures persistently, and distributes industriously, infection of many kinds, and in more than a few ways besides raising the cost of life insurance do the faddists drain the pockets of those whom the Medical Journal calls sane people."

C. A. Wickland writes: "The Spiritualist Fraternal Society will hold a picnic Sunday afternoon, July 22, at the grove near Irving Park boulevard, on the east side of Chicago River. Take Lincoln avenue car to Irving Park boulevard and then walk west to near the river, but don't cross it. Grove on right hand side. Admission free. Mediums and friends cordially invited to be present."

The New York Times says: "In discussing Christian Science as a 'psychopathic epidemic,' Dr. J. B. Huber showed all of the real scientist's moderation of language, and yet he demonstrated clearly the identity of this new delusion with a dozen more that had their brief day in the past and are now almost forgotten. A striking passage in his address, perhaps the most striking, to the Doctor's lay hearers, was that in which he called attention to the fact that every one of the so-called churches of the sect in this city is situated among the residences of the well-to-do. There were, he said quietly, no missions by which the vaunted blessings of Eddyism could be disseminated among the poor. This is the case everywhere. Question a Christian Scientist on the subject, and the reply will be that poverty, like disease, is a 'mortal thought,' the very existence of which is to be strenuously denied. The self-styled healers never heal except for hire. They are cynically frank in placing a money value on their services, and they waste no time in preaching their doctrines among people whose conversion does not mean an increment of revenue. Money, it seems, is not a 'mortal thought.' 'Christian Science' books are expensive, and so are 'Christian Science' ministrations. They are not for the poor."

Geo. Hanson writes: "G. N. Kinkead, the trumpet medium, is dangerously ill at his home. Anyone knowing the address of Flora Kinkead, his wife, who is a public medium, will confer a favor by writing or telegraphing me immediately. Direct to me at No. 2112 State street, Chicago, Ill."

Mrs. E. Senauss writes: "On Sunday, July 1, a beautiful park situated eight miles north of Columbus, Ohio, was formally opened and dedicated to the cause of Spiritualism. Several hundred people from various parts of the State enjoyed a rare treat in the beautiful dedicatory sermon delivered by Lyman C. Howe, of Fredonia, N. Y., after which Mrs. Noyes gave spirit messages and phrenological readings, and once more gave proof and testimony of the accomplishments of Spiritual unfoldment. Altogether the day was a most enjoyable as well as instructive one, and the camp bids fair to become one of the most popular in this part of the State. The Fourth of July oration was delivered by Brother Howe. A flag raising with speech by Rev. Parsons, of Worthington, and national hymns beautifully sung by the choir, made the day most profitable. Sunday, July 8, lecture by Mr. Noyes, of Columbus, and tests by Mrs. Stewart, of Piqua, constituted the afternoon service. In the evening Mrs. Noyes assisted by giving tests from the sound of the voice, and all were recognized. Mrs. Schauss delivered a short but soul-inspiring lecture, and another good day was passed. The mediums on the ground are: Mrs. Groves, of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Noyes, of Columbus; Mr. Ketenhauser, of Grogan; Mrs. Stewart, of Piqua, and Mrs. E. Schauss, of Toledo. More are expected daily. Will C. Hodge, of Chicago, will be here and deliver the lectures at the services on Sunday, July 15, and Dr. Nellie Mosier will give the spirit messages and tests. Every Spiritualist should give the camps hearty support in word and deed and thus help to promote the purity of purpose contained in the beautiful teachings of Spiritualism, which eventully will make us a free people."

DeLoss Wood, journalist and lecturer, is making engagements with Spiritualist societies. Mr. Wood follows his lecture with phrenological life readings. These readings are really complete life readings, and are much appreciated by the public. At the close of each lecture he is kept busy giving readings, which are free to all. The readings also include phase of mediumship, and how best to develop it. Mr. Wood is said to be a hypnotist of unusual power and large experience. He is the son of the late Mary Macomber Wood, one of the pioneer trance lecturers, who will be remembered by old time Spiritualists all over the Union as one of the best lecturers the Spiritualists have ever had. Societies desiring the services of Mr. Wood should address all letters to DeLoss Wood, Box 199, Danielson, Ct.

T. S. Russell writes: "Last Sunday Mrs. Claman closed her engagement with the Englewood Spiritual Union for the present, and departs for the camps. We can say for this lady that our very best thought goes with her, and we only wish our work was always as fully, freely, and intelligently presented as her guides have done for us."

The Boston Transcript says that the Society for the Study of Inebriety has been considering the treatment of dipsomania by hypnotism. Dr. J. Milne Bramwell furnishes a learned and careful paper on this subject, and abides by the theory of which Frederick Myers is the exponent, that neither mental concentration nor suggestion can explain all the phenomena of hypnosis, which in his estimation are more largely due to the action of an intelligent secondary self which he terms the subliminal consciousness. Dr. Bramwell has found that in all cases where hypnotism has been used successfully in the cure of dipsomania that the first and strongest element must be the patient's willingness to be cured. From the time the hypnotic treatment begins Dr. Bramwell has some trustworthy person in constant attendance on the patient to whom he can confide his temptations and turn for aid in overcoming them. Perhaps it would lessen the number of cases of dipsomania if those afflicted by it pursued this course with members of their families—telling them of the first intimation that the appetite was to assert itself, calling in a second will to combat the desire or to attract the mind of the dipsomaniac from his cravings. But it is a well-known fact that these sufferers will rarely communicate to anyone, unless it be a medical adviser, the information that the desire for drink is showing itself. More than once, Dr. Bramwell says, patients who ultimately do well relapse during treatment, and with this understood the necessity for an attendant who is patient and not easily discouraged is clear. The account Dr. Bramwell gives of his experiences with treating dipsomaniacs will be worth studying by all who give any thought to the power of suggestion and a thousand times more so to any who have a personal knowledge of cases similar to them.

G. W. Kates and wife dedicated a Spiritual Temple in Wheaton, Minn., Sunday afternoon, July 8. This temple is the first one in the State, amongst the auxiliaries of the State Association, and we believe the only one specially dedicated to Spiritualism and owned by a local society of Spiritualists. The Wheaton friends, last fall, could not obtain a satisfactory hall to hold meetings for Mr. and Mrs. Kates to tell the good news. They resolved at once to obtain their own meeting-place. They succeeded in purchasing one of the large frame school buildings, which had been supplanted by a brick edifice. This they removed to a lot donated by Miss Leaser and converted it into a Spiritual temple. It is a two-story building—the lower room is the hall for meetings, whilst the upper one is to be used for lyceum, library and social purposes. The friends have cheerfully met the responsibility and are enthused with the knowledge of possessing a home. Mr. Kates spoke upon "The Use of a Temple," after reading the Beatitudes as recorded in Matthew, as a portion of the Sermon on the Mount. He also read Lizzie Doten's poem on "Guardian Angels" and "Jubilate." He spoke earnestly to the members and showed them the duties and needs of fellowship and zeal. Mrs. Kates, under spirit control, named the edifice "The Temple of Truth," and dedicated it to "The God of Truth, the God of Knowledge, and the God of Peace." She sprinkled flower leaves as the symbol of purity, joy and immortality. Then followed an address upon Spiritualism as the true religion of life. There were excellent flower decorations, and the choir rendered songs of good cheer and angel blessings. After the benediction the members and speakers gave each an expression of fellowship by mutual hand-shakes and words of congratulation. The night meeting was made interesting by short addresses by Mr. and Mrs. Kates, with spirit descriptions and messages liberally given by the latter.

The Westminster Review says: "There is no doubt that a person may apparently see objects and hear words which another person close by cannot see and hear. Such impressions are to be referred not to actual existing objects, but to the action of the subject's mind. Dr. Abercromby tells us of one patient who could, by directing his attention to an idea, call up to sight the appropriate image or scene, though the thing called up were an object he had never seen but had merely imagined. When meeting a friend in the street he could not be sure whether the appearance was his friend or a spectral illusion till he had tried to touch it and had heard the voice. Goethe saw an exact counterpart of himself advancing toward him, an experience repeated by Wilkie Collins. Sir Walter Scott relates that soon after the death of Lord Byron he read an account of the deceased poet. On stepping into the hall immediately after he saw right before him, in a standing posture, the exact representation of his departed friend, whose recollection had been so strongly brought to his imagination. After stopping a moment to note the extraordinary resemblance he advanced toward it and the figure gradually disappeared."

Mrs. Henrietta Straub writes: "This morning I heard my spirit son say to me: 'Mother, I go for a trip to Africa and China.' Toward noon he announced his return, and taking 'Psycho' this message was spelled out to me: 'In South Africa I saw heaps of wounded and dying, not distinguishable as to nationality, the uniforms being so much alike, on account of the climate. As to China, there is sure information that most of the United States soldiers, as well as ministers, etc., etc., have been slain. This will precipitate the war, that is unavoidable anyhow, as old rotten China is a blot on creation and must be wiped out as a nation. It was bent on mischief, and so perishes by its own fault.'"

The Ohio State Journal, Columbus, Ohio, says: "The camp of the Association of Spiritualists at Worthington is proving very successful and many from the city are in attendance. The camp is located just east of the town, in a beautiful grove, and the army of white tents, with the auditorium in the center, makes quite an imposing appearance. The meetings are held in the auditorium, and consist of addresses, music, spirit tests, etc."

E. F. Butterfield writes from Syracuse, N. Y.: "I wish you could have attended our May convention. I think there was more real vital life than any we have ever had. Spiritualism is getting down to bottom facts, and is beginning to want the practical knowledge from the spirits of how to make the best use of the wisdom they are teaching us. Brother Willard Hull, of the Light of Truth, has few equals as an orator and a logical reasoner. He hits from the shoulder and annihilates frauds with telling blows for truth. Townsend and Barrett, of the Banner, gave us wonderful discourses from the spiritual and physical side of life."

The Indianapolis (Ind.) News has the following: "The Supreme Court to-day affirmed the judgment setting aside a series of conveyances and assignments by which Amelia H. Luther, of Muncie, gave all her property to Lydia Mark, just before her death, in the fall of 1897. The complaint in the case alleged that Mrs. Luther had been an ardent believer in Spiritualism for twenty-five years, during which time she traveled over the country lecturing and giving exhibitions of her power and skill as a medium. After her mind had become enfeebled by age and sickness, it was alleged, Mrs. Marks represented to her that a spirit whom she called Naomi had revealed the fact that Mrs. Luther was subject to bad influences at the home of her granddaughter, where she was living, and ought to remove to Mrs. Mark's home for safety. After she had taken this advice, it is further stated, she began to report the advice of Naomi as to what should be done by Mrs. Luther with her property, and by this means she induced the old woman to transfer it all to her. The appeal was chiefly devoted to an attack on the complaint, but the Supreme Court held it to be sufficient."

The Denver (Col.) Post has the following: "Prominent among the leaders of the Spiritualistic religion at Canon Camp, will be the Rev. W. E. Mansfield, of Denver, who was interested in the meeting last year. Mr. Mansfield is young. He was born in 1871, on November 21, but he is interesting and has a history. His ancestors, too, have a history. His father was one of Colorado's first settlers, and old scout and Indian fighter. The elder Mansfield saw service on the plains with Kit Carson, Buffalo Bill and Texas Charley. The younger Mansfield began preaching at 18. He was almost foreordained to be a minister. The Rev. John Coates and Dr. M. J. Scott, of Denver, were pastoral tutors of the young man. Mr. Mansfield was first an evangelist. He worked in Chicago with John Bilhorn, a brother of P. P. Bilhorn, the famous singer. During the World's Fair the two held very successful revival meetings. It was soon after the great Chicago exposition that the young evangelist began to study the doctrines of the Spiritualists. Its philosophy and truths appealed to him and he renounced his former faith to become a Spiritualist. He has held meetings in Denver for the past three years. Mr. Mansfield, as a young and aggressive worker will be intimately associated in the camp meeting work in South Boulder Canon. Among the prominent lecturers and mediums who will be present are D. W. Hull, Norton, Kan.; R. C. Mason, of Omaha; E. L. Dohoney, Paris, Texas; Velma MacManus, Chicago; Mrs. Gonise Jeffries, Topeka, Kan., and Mrs. S. Karah, Mrs. K. B. Kevan, Mrs. Morris Rubican and Mrs. Ellen Shustrum of Denver."

Alfred Kitson, of England, writes: "I am happy to inform you that the premium volumes of The Progressive Thinker have duly arrived. Accept my most grateful thanks for such a set of splendid books, all full of deeply interesting matter. I feel I owe a deep debt of gratitude to you for this most excellent gift. I am sure the Spiritualists of America would overwhelm you with subscriptions for The Progressive Thinker could they but realize the worth of your premiums. I am also happy to say that the premiums have duly reached my two friends whose subscriptions I enclosed with mine. They are as delighted as myself with the same."

Mrs. C. H. Mullins writes from Reed City, Mich.: "The Spiritualist Freedom Society held its last meeting for the present in Chicago, June 27. Mrs. Hattie B. Sears and the writer left the city July 4, via lake, for Grand Rapids, where we spent a very pleasant time at Briggs Park, coming here Monday evening to Dr. Spinney's Home for the Friendless, as he calls it, and indeed it is true. The Doctor has a noble heart, and is working night and day to care for suffering humanity, and I'm sure many will arise and call him blessed. We held our Freedom meeting here in our rooms yesterday, twenty of the patients attending, some of whom had never heard of our truth, and others were hungry therefor. There has been no Spiritualist society here, but Sunday we hold forth in a hall. Dr. Spinney has arranged for meetings. He will open Saturday night, and we will follow Sunday at 3 p. m. The guides have found the way, and we are willing workers in the cause. We send kindly greetings to the Chicago friends."

Frank T. Ripley is at Briggs Park Spiritual camp-meeting, Grand Rapids, and he has the Sundays and week days of August open for lectures and platform tests. Address all letters to Briggs Park Spiritual Camp-meeting, Grand Rapids, Mich.

A. Crocker writes: "I have been reading the Arcana of Spiritualism, and find it up to date, just the kind of a book that I want for my neighbors to read, for it is clean-cut and sharp, and I think will take the attention of new recruits in the cause of Spiritualism."

The psychological journals are now occupying themselves with a curious phenomenon, which for some years past has happened at Berbenno, an Italian village. Nearly every night is seen in a certain locality a little wandering flame, usually white, sometimes colored. The flame is first perceived at a certain place on the road. It moves to a spot where two roads cross, and there seems to be transformed into a sort of pale cloud, perfectly visible even by moonlight. This cloud penetrates into a vineyard before the parsonage of the village, where it rests some time in obscurity, afterwards retaking the road. As it issues from the vines, it assumes a remarkable size, sometimes to the height of three feet, and resembles a magnesium light of light blue color. The flame continues its march along the road, frequently changing its color, until it is finally lost in another vineyard. Occasionally are seen three flames, rising from different directions, which meet among the vines, and form a large luminous globe. This flame flies from man. It suffices to approach it to se it fly rapidly away. Its movements are erratic. Sometimes it scrapes along the ground with a mad rush, then it will stop suddenly. Again it will hide behind the trunk of a tree. Winds have no effect upon it. It marches against the wind to follow its particular course, and no gale is sufficient to extinguish its light or to diminish its brightness. It only makes one course a night, which lasts several hours.

We are inclined to believe that the figures were much more accurate than is generally supposed. There are now only 650 Spiritualistic meetings held every Sunday in the United States and Canada, and less than one half of them are regularly organized societies. Even if they were all duly organized bodies, there would be very little difference. The attendance at these meetings ranges from twenty-five to four hundred persons. A generous average would be two hundred each. Of these two hundred, half of them may be avowed Spiritualists, but no well informed person would declare that such was the case. This estimate would make the number of avowed Spiritualists in America only 65,000. We have frequently asserted that we believe there are 150,000 persons in America who are brave enough to say they are Spiritualists.—Banner of Light.

Julia Purucker, the foreign correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, writes from Geneva: "There has come to light a remarkable case of what the doctors call 'automatic ambulation.' The name of the victim is Louis Durand. An excellent member of society until a few years ago, M. Durand suddenly developed symptoms of a nervous disease, taking a form of mania. Without warning he would be impelled to leave his occupation and start off on interminable walks. He would tramp aimlessly about the streets or wander miles into the country until exhausted. He seemed quite unconscious during these movements. Several specialists treated him unsuccessfully for nervous diseases. Finally he went to Berlin and sought the aid of a nerve specialist and believer in hypnotism. The doctor, after getting the patient under the influence, 'suggested' to him that henceforth his wanderings must cease. Durand went home and for months seemed quite cured. But after a time his roaming tendency re-asserted itself and he resumed his ambulatory practices. His friends notified the doctor of his relapse. The physician at once sent him a post card ordering him to fall asleep as soon as he read it. Durand, still under the influence, obeyed. After that whenever he felt the spirit of wandering coming over him he had only to read the post card to nip the attack in the bud. On one occasion, however, he unluckily left this safeguard at home, and after having placed a sum of money in his pocket belonging to his employer, an irrepressible roving fit overtook him, and his wanderings took him further afield than usual. The police traced him and lodged him in prison for theft. At his examination the counsel, at his wits' end to persuade the magistrate of his client's irresponsibility, bethought him of the magic post card. It was brought and given to the prisoner to read, who immediately fell asleep. Experts were called, who declared that Durand was not shamming, and the astonished magistrate was obliged to admit that the man was a genuine automatic ambulator. Naturally, he was given his freedom, and the money, still intact, restored to his employer."

The eighth Annual National Spiritualists' Convention will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Hall, Cleveland, Ohio, October 16, 17, 18, and 19 prox. Reduced rates on all railroads throughout the country upon the certificate plan (one and one-third fare for the round trip), will without doubt be secured, hence there is no reason why there should not be a large attendance upon this occasion. Business of great importance will occupy the attention of the delegates from the opening until the closing session. It is expected that several amendments to the Constitution will be brought forward from last year's Convention, and that a number of new ones will also be offered. As these may change the working machinery of the National Spiritualist Association to some extent, it is important that every State and local society connected with the N. S. A. should be represented by a full quota of delegates. A full board of officers for the year next ensuing will also be chosen at this gathering. This and all other items of business should receive the thoughtful attention of all Spiritualists who believe in co-operation from this time until the opening of the Convention. The low rates of travel, the work of the Convention, and the exceptionally fine evening programs, should attract the Spiritualists in large numbers to the "Forest City" in October.—Banner of Light.

The Denver Republican says: "There was something uncanny in the story that Albert Davis told at the Union Depot. Albert Davis is a Blue Mountain prospector, bound for his old home in the village of Arkwright, N. Y. Not far from his home is Cassadaga Lake, the assembly grounds of the Spiritualist cult, and from association with the Spiritualists, Mr. Davis became in time a sort of lukewarm believer in their teachings. He returns, he says, a true believer. He also returns with wealth in prospect. Mr. Davis told his story in the presence of several fellow passengers at the depot. It was in substance this: Three years ago his only son died. The father was all but heartbroken; he would not be comforted by the promises of his Spiritualist friends that the young man would come back to him. But one night the boy did come, and again and again. After several of these nocturnal visits, the son told of acquaintances he had made in the spirit world, among them, he said, being one whose name was John Fremont. This spirit told of his wonderful life in the West, and among other tales, one of a rich mine that he had discovered, but which never had been found by others. On subsequent visits the son told more particularly of the mine and gave detailed descriptions of its situation, until Mr. Davis became so deeply interested that he resolved to go in search of it. Two years ago he came to Colorado, and after a long search found the range of mountains that had been described to him. They were the Blue Mountains, near the Utah line, but his search was not completed. Weeks and months were spent in prospecting and hunting for the marks on the surface that would disclose the hiding place of the treasure. He was on the point of giving up, and also of losing faith in the spirits, when one evening he came onto the very spot that he was searching for. He knew it, he said, as well as if he had been there before. Mr. Davis lost no time in making a mineral location, and is now returning to his old home to get money, when he will return to Colorado to develop the mine to which the spirit directed him. He has not yet found ore, but he expressed a firm belief that it was there."

FROM THE N. S. A.

Again I have good news to report of the Mayer fund, as I have just received an additional check for eight hundred dollars from the same generous and venerable Spiritualist of Massachusetts, who gave the former one thousand. With the money comes good and highly prized words, and we feel that they emanate from a soul that is ripe for the highest kingdom of happiness and light.

It is indeed refreshing to find one, who, having saved his little fortune by labor and frugality, is now ready and willing to share it with a worthy cause, for the dissemination of truth and spiritual light. Would that we had more of such in our ranks, they are surely on the road to the regions of the blest. No one can fall to admire such characters, though few will look upon the acceptance of his generosity as one of our public workers has done, expressing the thought that it is almost a crime to take the money thus earned; rather do we feel as many another has expressed, that such a gift brings a holy blessing, that sanctifies the work it will perform, and that the giver as well as the recipient is spiritually enriched a thousand fold.

We have now to secure a thousand dollars—twelve hundred will cover any possible loss in the failure to receive the payment of pledges. There seems to be no reason why this sum should not be gained in a few weeks; those who have as yet given nothing—waiting to see if the fund is to be a success, can safely send their donations now, and if they be dimes or dollars they will be welcome and gratefully acknowledged. We hope that we will not have to make another call, but the public knows that I gave warning some months ago, that I should continue to beg, in spite of my dislike to it, till the fund is filled.

With love and good wishes for all,

Cordially,

MARY T. LONGLEY,
Secretary N. S. A.

600 Penna Ave. S. E., Washington, D. C.

WE are trying our best to establish libraries in every Spiritualist family of the United States, hence we are offering Seven valuable books as a premium. Those seven books have been sold for $10.75. A single one has sold as high as $25. The first edition of Art Magic sold for $5 per copy. As high as $15 has been paid for a single copy of Ghost Land; yet we furnish these seven books to our subscribers for $2.35, when ordered in connection with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. Read our premium announcement carefully.

"The Heresy Trial of Rev. B. F. Austin, M. A., D. D. Giving a sketch of Dr. Austin's life, story of the heresy trial, copy of the charges, the heresy sermon, the scene at conference, and Dr. Austin's full address defending his views on Spiritualism at the London Annual Conference at Windsor, Can.," etc. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Truth Seeker Collection of Forms and Ceremonies for the Use of Liberals." For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

EYESIGHT RESTORED

Failing Eyesight, Cataracts or Blindness Cured without the use of the knife.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted eye specialist of Des Moines, Iowa, has perfected a mild treatment by which anyone suffering from failing eyesight, cataracts, blindness or any disease of the eyes can cure themselves at home. 18,000 sufferers in all parts of the country were cured last year by his wonderful absorption method. Judge George Edmunds, a leading attorney of Carthage, Ills., 79 years old, was cured of cataracts on both eyes.

W. O. COFFEE, M. D.

Mrs. Lucinda Hammond, Aurora, Neb., 77 years old, had cataracts on both eyes and Dr. Coffee's remedies restored her to perfect eyesight. If you are afflicted with any eye trouble write to Dr. Coffee and tell him all about it. He will then tell you just what he can do. He will also send you Free of charge his 80 page book, "The New System of Treating Diseases of the Eye." It is full of interesting and valuable information. All cures are permanent. Write to-day for yourself or friend to W. O. COFFEE, M. D., 818 Good Block, Des Moines, Ia.

Daniel K. Tenney's BOOKS

The Earth Not Created.
Fallacy of All Cosmic Theories.... Price, 15 cts.
An able argument to show that the world has always existed.

Never-Ending Life,
Assured by Science..... Price, 6 cts.
The best scientific argument in favor of a future life that has ever before been made.

Jehovah Interviewed,
Or Orthodoxy from Headquarters... Price, 6 cts.
A newspaper reporter goes up to heaven and interviews Jehovah.

Theology,
Its Origin, Career and Destiny.... Price, 10 cts.
One of the best and most comprehensive summing up of the absurdities of the Christian Theology that has ever before appeared.

Holy Smoke in the Holy Land. Price, 10 cts.
Susan H. Wixon says: "I have read, first and last, many accounts of Palestine, or 'the Holy Land,' but have never seen anything in that line that pleased me so well as this description by Daniel K. Tenney."

The Plan of Salvation. Price, 10 cts.
In this pamphlet Mr. Tenney shows the absurdity of the Christian "Plan of Salvation" in so clear and plain a manner that any Christian who has a spark of reason left cannot fail to see it.

"Owed" to the Clergy. Price, 6 cts.
An address read before the Free Thought Congress held in Paine Hall, Boston, Nov. 17th, 1899.

The Master's Masterpiece,
Or the Sermon on the Mount..... Price, 10 cts.
This is the most thorough exposition of the fallacies of this noted "sermon" that was ever before published.

Modern Theology and Its Ideal Jesus Price, 10 cts.
The absurdities of the reputed teachings of Jesus are here shown up as no other writer has ever presented them before, which will convince any honest reader that the most of them are consummate nonsense.

The Hon. Daniel K. Tenney, the author of these books, has been for many years the leading lawyer in one of the most distinguished law firms in Chicago, and there is not a more able writer in the Liberal ranks.

Harmonics of Evolution.

The Philosophy of Individual Life, Based Upon Natural Science

As taught by modern masters of law. By Florence Huntley. An exceedingly interesting and distinctly valuable contribution to the literature of evolution, unfolding its laws from the deeper and clearer spiritual aspect, and indicating the defects of the Darwinian theory. Spiritualists and Materialists alike can gain much from its perusal. Price, finely bound in cloth, $2. For sale at this office.

ATLANTIS The Antediluvian World. By Ignatius Donnelly. An attempt to demonstrate by authentic data the existence in the Atlantic Ocean of a continent known to the ancient world as Atlantis. Price, $2. For sale at this office.

Works of Thomas Paine

A new edition in paper covers with large clear type, comprising;

Age of Reason.....25 cts.
Rights of Man.....25 cts.
Crisis.....25 cts.
Common Sense.....15 cts.

This is a splendid opportunity to secure these standard works, as the price is within the reach of all. For sale at this office.

Who Wrote the New Testament?
The authors discovered. The writings of Damis used as a basis. Astonishing confessions of Eusebius and Athanasius, and of the Popes, Leo I., Hilarius and Urban VI. Transcribed by M. Faraday. Price 10c. For sale at this office.

Health and Power,
A handbook of Cure and Human Upbuilding by the aid of new, refined and powerful methods of nature. By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., author of "Principles of Light and Color," "Philosophy of Cure," etc. Price, cloth 25 cents. For sale at this office.

History of Atharael.
Life in the Stone Age. The History of Atharael, Chief Priest of a band of Aryans. This pamphlet, containing 91 pages, was written through the mediumship of U. G. Figley, and is intensely interesting. Price 30 cents. For sale at this office.

INTERVIEWS WITH SPIRITS.
A real visit with friends on the other side of life, and a familiar talk. By spirit Samuel Bowles! Carrie E. S. Twing, Medium. Price 30 cents. For sale at this office.

Thumbscrew and Rack.
Torture implements employed in the XVth and XVIth centuries for the promulgation of Christianity, with pict

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin, Heights, Ohio.

NOTE.—The Questions and Answers have called forth such a host of respondents, that to give all equal hearing compels the answers to be made in the most condensed form, and often clearness is perhaps sacrificed to this forced brevity. Proofs have to be omitted, and the style becomes thereby assertive, which of all things is to be deprecated. Correspondents often weary with waiting for the appearance of their questions and write letters of inquiry. The supply of matter is always several weeks ahead of the space given, and hence there is unavoidable delay. Every one has to wait his time and place, and all are treated with equal favor.

NOTICE—No attention will be given anonymous letters. Full name and address must be given, or the letters will not be read. If the request be made, the name will not be published. The correspondence of this department has become excessively large, especially letters of inquiry requesting private answers, and while I freely give whatever information I am able, the ordinary courtesy of correspondents is expected. HUDSON TUTTLE.

Dr. G. F. Dougherty: Q. How can spirits manifest to us in our normal condition?

A. The mediumistic or sensitive state, is strictly normal, and is possessed because man is a spiritual being, clad in a physical body, and is not changed by severance therefrom. The same fundamental spiritual laws control him in one sphere and the other.

Back of this question, however, is the belief that the reception of spirit communications depends on an abnormal state in the recipient. If this correspondent takes that view, then communion with spirits in the normal state would be impossible, for there must be conditions of receptivity or mediumship. As all possess this in greater or less degree, it is very difficult to draw the line between what would be considered the normal and the abnormal state. Trance, clairvoyance, impressibility, depend on the independence of the spirit of physical life, and are as normal as seeing or hearing through the eye and ear.

Fair Play: Q. In your charges against Christianity you must admit that it has elevated the condition of woman from that of a slave and made her the equal of man.

A. Most decidedly I do not admit this statement. The direct contrary is the truth. Before Christianity strangled the glorious civilization of the Augustan Age, woman was man's equal and helper. The women of Greece modeled their lives after that of Ceres, the Mother Goddess, who was the highest ideal of excellence. Women of Rome sat in the portico of philosophy, ministered in the sacred precincts of the temple, and sat on the throne of the empire.

It was the myth of the creation; the fall of man and bringing thereby sin into the world by her temptation, that became the prolific cause of woman's degradation. From her high place where she received the reverence and respect of man, she became the hated paramour of the serpent-devil and as such received the abuse heaped upon her as just punishment.

The earliest church writers began this despicable tirade, which only brutes crazed by religion would have indulged in, and woman has ever since, until the dawn of modern liberal thought, been a helpless martyr.

The sanctified St. Bernard wrote: "Woman is the organ of the devil," and the oft-quoted Father Tertullian: "Woman the devil's gateway, the unsealer of the forbidden tree, the first deserter of divine law, and destroyer of God's image in man." St. Chrysostom wrote: "Woman is a necessary evil, a natural temptation, a desirable calamity, a domestic peril of dreadfully fascinating character and a painted mischief." But St. John of Damascus is most severe. He says: "Woman is the daughter of falsehood, a sentinel of hell, the enemy of peace and through her Adam lost Paradise."

Any number of quotations of like character might be made, all showing the hatred the Christian theology fostered against woman. The dreadful myth came from the Jews and it had so perverted their minds, that woman, the most of her life was so unclean that man was defiled by her touch. Some zealous theologians denied that she had a soul. During the sixth century, fifty-six bishops met in France to decide this question, whether she had or had not a soul. They admitted that the evidence was against, but they retained, amid the blighting clouds of their superstition enough manliness to refrain from voting.

Under the rule of the church, she was a slave owned by her husband, who had a legal right to chastise her with horsewhip or ox-goad if he so pleased.

When chloroform was first introduced, and it was stated in its favor, that it would be a blessing to woman, relieving her of the dreaded pains of the curse of motherhood, to such a depth of unfeeling and shameless depravity had the church doctrines reduced its preachers, that they stood up in their pulpits and denounced the blessed anesthetic as of the devil. Woman's pain was the just punishment inflicted by God for her tempting Adam, and it was opposing God's will to seek to avert his vengeance.

The equal! After a long and persistent struggle, the Methodists, most liberal of the sects, only at their last conference, voted for woman's equality!

How many times the saying of Paul has been quoted, and thrown as a club at every woman who cherished a thought beyond and above her seven-by-nine husband!

Yet Paul's command is the same, the Bible the same, the creeds the same as they were fifty years ago. What has wrought the mighty change in ideas and sentiments, made it a crime for a husband even to abuse, not to mention horsewhipping his wife, opened the colleges, the professions, and all avenues of preferment to women? Not Christianity. It has been in the face of Christianity; in direct opposition and with constant battle. It is the result of the propagation of liberal thought, of the scientific methods of thought as opposed to the theological. Eve in the myth, was the first illustration of that spirit. She did not accept by faith. She must be convinced by actual experiment. She must know and by knowing brought light, knowledge into the world. Had we not ought to bless her for it? Great and glorious mother! the first martyr to science! Truly the object and the results were worth the sacrifice, for after all, what a life it would have been to have passed eternally in that garden, eating fruit and lying in the shade, with no aspiration except to gaze on the glowing apples on the tree of life, and wonder what the result would be if one was eaten! True to the brutal instinct with which his descendants have ever treated the subservient woman, instead of defending her, Adam sought his peace with God, by despicable cowardice, betraying her.

That theology has made a thorny path for woman for two thousand years, but now with the breaking of the light of knowledge, the acceptance of true views of nature, the purposes of life, and destinies of man, she is escaping from the bondage of religion which has held her as its slave, and by her degradation brutalized man.

Noble men are not born of slave-mothers, and the development of a nation, the perfection and success of civilization, depends on the intellectual and moral attainments of its women.

J. H. Lucas: Q. What is meant by eternal life?

A. In a theological sense eternal life is a gift from God to those who accept the Christian scheme of salvation. It means one-ness with God. Primarily the word eternity and its derivatives imply infinite duration in the past as well as future, but in the common use of the word it relates only to the future. The word when used by Spiritualists has no such signification. It simply means the spirit life, which is regarded as everlasting. It must be ever held in mind that all words which attempt to express eternity of time, infinitude of space, are limited by the narrow bounds of human understanding. If life or time is prolonged beyond our horizon we say it is eternal. If space extends beyond our conception of distance we say it is infinite. We might as correctly say that a bird that flies into the horizon beyond our sight has started on an eternal flight.

Yet there are evidences beyond that of the senses, that of the life of a spirit, conclusions are not to be drawn from the limitations of the human mind. Thus if two lines extend into space at converging angles at however slight degree, we know that they somewhere meet, but if they go out diverging, then is it demonstratedly impossible. The spirit is evolved and goes forward in increasing individuality and energy corresponding to the diverging lines, and hence more than a comparative eternity may be predicated for its duration.

"Subscriber": Q. Can you inform me where I can procure a book entitled "Our Eternal Homes," by a Bible Student? and what is its character?

A. This book is not catalogued, and we presume is out of print. It was written and published in London, Eng., and republished by Carter & Son, Boston, in 1867. Although a Spiritualist can read between the lines that the author was of that belief, the book draws its evidences from the Bible, and presents the best support that book can give of spirit existence.

BOOK REVIEWS.

Arcana of Spiritualism: A Manual of Spiritual Science and Philosophy. By Hudson Tuttle.

This volume, of which a beautiful edition has recently been published, will take rank as a classic of Spiritualism. It is a thorough text-book pertaining to the underlying philosophy and the basic facts of the great Spiritualist movement. It is fairly encyclopedic in the amount of information concerning important questions of decided interest to Spiritualists and honest investigators. It answers a thousand-and-one queries that arise in the minds of thoughtful students of the phenomena and philosophy of Spiritualism. One who thoroughly studies this book will be well equipped in spiritual lore and so well grounded in the knowledge of spiritual facts and principles that he will be largely prepared to instruct others in the truth.

The subjects treated in this book include: Evidences of Spiritualism; Matter and Force: Their Relation to Spirit; Spiritual Atmosphere of the Universe; Animal Magnetism, Hypnotism, Mesmerism; Spirit—Its Phenomena and Laws; Philosophy of Death; Mediumship—Its Phenomena, Laws and Cultivation; Mediumship During Sleep; Heaven and Hell, the Supposed Abodes of the Departed; The Spirit's Home; A General Survey of Spiritualism; The Old Religion of Pain; Spiritualism the Religion of Joy.

The student of this rich work of inspired thought will find answers to a multitude of the ever-recurring questions that arise in a thoughtful, careful investigator's mind during his researches. The reader will not find it tiresome or tedious; it is written in entertaining style, eminently readable even in its most abstruse discussions. As a spiritual vade mecum, a manual of reference, for the convenience of the inquirer and student who wishes light on any point pertaining to the philosophy of Spiritualism or its data, the work is invaluable, and every one who desires to be well instructed in these matters should possess it, because of its full and rich fund of information.

The book contains 320 pages, is handsomely bound in scarlet and gold. Price $1.50. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker.

THE MAN ON THE SEAT.

"The rich," he cried, "are heaping on
The loads we have to bear;
We starve—our fairest hopes are gone,
But, curse them! They don't care!"

And then he climbed upon his load
His poor old horses drew;
The long lash of his ugly goad
Out at their bruised ears flew.

They struggled onward, weary-eyed,
O'erloaded, galled and spare—
He sat up on his seat and plied
The lash, and didn't care.

—S. E. Kiser.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

"Woman, Church and State." A historical account of the status of woman through the Christian ages; with reminiscences of the Matriarchate. By Matilda Joslyn Gage. An important work for all women, students of history, etc. Paper, 75 cents. Cloth, gilt, $1.50. For sale at this office.

THE CAMP-MEETINGS.

Ashley Camp. O.

This camp begins July 29, and ends August 19, 1900. For programmes address H. Baxter, Ashley, Ohio.

Maple Dell Camp, O.

The National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association will hold its twelfth annual session, commencing July 22, ending September. For full particulars and programme, enclose stamp and address Lucy King, corresponding secretary, Mantua, Ohio.

Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass.

This camp opens July 29. The circulars are now ready and can be had upon application. In writing for them please enclose stamp for return postage. Address Albert P. Blinn, Clerk, 603 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Camp, O.

This camp will open July 1, and close August 27. Send for programmes to Dr. W. D. Noyes, secretary, 189, N. Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Chesterfield Camp, Ind.

The camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will open at Chesterfield, Ind., July 19, and close August 26, 1900. For programmes and further information address Flora Hardin, secretary, Anderson, Indiana.

Delphos Camp.

The twenty-second annual camp-meeting of the First Society of State Spiritualists and Liberals will be held at Delphos, Kans., from August 10 to August 26 inclusive. For further particulars or information write to President J. N. Blanchard, Delphos, Kansas; M. J. Main, vice-president, Simpson, Kansas, or E. S. Bishop, secretary, Glasco, Kansas.

Cassadaga Camp, N. Y.

This favorite place of resort offers an attractive programme the coming season. The camp opens July 13 and closes August 26. Write to the secretary, A. E. Gaston, Meadville, Pa., for programmes.

Onset Camp-Meeting.

Commences July 15, and closes August 26, 1900. For further particulars address Secretary, Onset, Mass.

Vicksburg Camp.

The seventeenth annual camp-meeting of Vicksburg, Mich., will be held in Fraser's Grove, commencing August 3, and closing August 26, 1900. For further information address Jeannette Fraser, Manager, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo county, Mich.

Lake Brady.

The camp grounds will be open for picnics June 1, extending through the summer. The camp-meeting opens July 1, closing September 1. Anyone wishing a Lake Brady program will please write Geo. N. Abbott, Lake Brady, via Kent, Ohio, or E. R. Kidd, Canton, Ohio.

Mount Pleasant Park, Ia.

The eighteenth annual camp-meeting of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists' Association will be held at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, from July 29 to August 26, 1900. All wishing circulars should write to the secretary, Stella A. Fisk, 18 N. 11th street, Keokuk, Iowa. Those wishing to rent tents, etc., should write to John Nelson, Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa.

The Ottawa Camp.

The Ottawa, Kansas, Spiritualist camp-meeting, from August 8 to August 13 inclusive. H. W. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kans.; Ezra Carpenter, secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

Freeville Camp, N. Y.

Opens July 29 and closes August 12. B. L. Robinson, president, Freeville, N. Y.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

Grand Ledge Spiritualist Camp-Meeting commences July 29 and closes August 26. For further particulars and full programmes, write to M. F. Phares or Geo. H. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opens July 1 and closes August 19, 1900, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Program cheerfully mailed to any address received on postal card to Thos J. Haynes, secretary, 389 Western avenue, Muskegon, Mich.

Camp-Meeting at Deep Lake.

The Illinois State Spiritualist Camp-meeting opens its second season at Deep Lake, 1½ miles from Lake Villa, Ill., on Wisconsin Central railroad, commencing July 10 and closing September 1. Those who intend to camp with us please let us know in time so that we can make preparations for you. Address G. V. Cordingley, President, 3300 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Island Lake, Mich.

Island Lake Camp, Island Lake, Michigan, commences Thursday, July 19, and closes September 3. For further information address the secretary, Ella B. Brown, 266 Twenty-first street, Detroit, Mich.

Verona Park Camp.

Opens June 15 and closes August 26. For programmes address Albert F. Smith, president, Bangor, Maine.

Lake Helen, Fla.

The Southern Cassadaga Camp, Lake Helen, Florida, will open the first Sunday, in February, 1901. Emma J. Huff, corresponding secretary.

Niantic Camp.

The Connecticut Spiritualist Camp-Meeting Association, at Niantic campgrounds, Niantic, Conn; season of 1900, commencing June 25 and continuing until September 8, inclusive. For programmes address Mary A. Hatch, secretary, South Windham, Conn.

Los Angeles, Cal., Camp.

Arrangements have been made to hold a camp-meeting at Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, Cal., September 2 to 20, inclusive. Address Elton T. Brown, secretary, 341½ So. Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Franklin (Neb.) Camp.

The Northwest Kansas and Southwest Nebraska Spiritualist Association will hold their fifth annual camp-meeting at Franklin, Neb., from July 20 to August 6 inclusive. No pains will be spared to make it a success. For announcement, circulars and other information, address the secretary, C. H. Simpson, Franklin, Neb.

Colorado Camp.

Canyon Camp, opens in South Boulder Canyon, July 1, and continues through July, August, and possibly September. Any information desired in regard to this new and interesting movement may be obtained by writing May Taylor, Box 780, Denver, Colo.

Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The twenty-third annual Lake Sunapee Spiritualist Camp-meeting will be held at Blodgett's Landing, N. H., for four weeks, commencing Sunday, July 29, and closing Sunday, August 26, 1900. For programmes address the secretary, W. H. Wilkins, Claremont, N. H.

Marshalltown, Iowa.

The Central Iowa Spiritualist Association will hold its annual camp at Marshalltown, Iowa, September 2 to September 16 inclusive. Grounds open to campers after August 27. For information or programs address W. H. Wilson, 301 N. Center street, Marshalltown, Iowa.

Haslett Park, Mich.

Eighteenth annual assembly of Spiritualists at Haslett Park, Mich, August 2 to September 4, 1900, inclusive. For programmes address J. D. Richmond, secretary, St. Johns, Mich., or G. F. Ottmar, Riley, Mich.

Durrant Was Innocent.

One of the saddest and most atrocious legal murders so far recorded is that of Theodore Durrant, who was hanged in California a few years since, for the murder of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams, a most diabolical crime, its very fiendishness hardly having a parallel in the annals of vice, and its perpetrator was sought high and low for several days, the whole world wishing for his capture and punishment. In the meantime the so-called astute detectives and police authorities concluded a victim was needed, and after fastening their clutches on young Durrant proceeded to collect what they termed evidence, the whole mass of stuff in all probability being manufactured for the purpose of conviction, and all of a circumstantial nature. Durrant stoutly maintained from his arrest up to the moment of his execution that he was innocent of the horrible charge, but forsooth because he could not explain every moment of his presence at certain times he was convicted and hanged, and once more the majesty of law, along with the thick-skulled theory of these police wiseacres, was duly vindicated. Now the true sequel. A few days ago, on his death-bed, Rev. Gibson, who at the time was pastor of Emanuel church where one of the murders was committed, confessed that he killed both of the victims. He was an active and important witness at the trial of poor Durrant, the reason of which is now quite plain, and also in view of the fact that suspicion was strongly directed to him at the time.—Salt Lake Tribune.

The above has appeared in some of the Spiritualist papers. The whole statement is undoubtedly false. Dr. John A. Miller, 1018½ Valencia street, San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"They [the Spiritualist papers] stated that Rev. Geo. J. Gibson had died and confessed that he was the murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams. The truth is that Mr. Gibson is very much alive and respected in this community, and resides at 43 Hill street. There is no excuse for publishing to the world such dastardly falsehoods. The Examiner, Chronicle or Call each publish the names and subjects of the preachers, and any one having the least respect for fair play would carefully investigate such an important matter as a man's death-bed confession (declaration) even if he had made one."

Maple Dell Camp and School.

The outlook at Maple Dell is so encouraging that I would like to have your readers know something of it. Our new school building is about completed, and the prospect for a goodly number of students is very encouraging. The corps of teachers will consist of the ablest and best, and the scientific apparatus at hand will assist the inquiring students to better understand the subjects they are trying to master. We are pretty well up to date in the art of object teaching. Our science laboratories are furnished with fine microscopes and a powerful telescope, and the most perfect and powerful projecting microscope in this country, also the best of calcium light dissolving stereopticons, thus affording our students an extra opportunity in the fields of modern research.

The Maple Dell summer school will begin July 15 and continue during the camp session. The dedicatory services of the new school building will take place on this day, also there will be an interesting literary programme presented. The enjoyment of the day will be greatly enhanced by the excellent music of the Troy Cornet Band, which will give an out-door concert from 12:15 to 1:30 p. m. The entire satisfaction given by this company of musicians is guarantee enough for the quality of their music for this session.

The regular camp session opens July 22 and closes on the 3rd of September. The programme which will be presented by the able teachers, professors, mediums, psychics, etc., will be of the highest order and excellence. The talent engaged for this season is of the ablest, and most experienced character. The variety of information and amusement presented during this session is incomparable.

The school and camp are mutual. They are both under the management of the association, and since we now have the new, commodious school building, there will be no confliction between these two departments.

WM. J. KERSTETTER.

LIFE.

The azure of the bending skies;
The earth, the sea and wondrous air,
And every ray of light that dyes,
And glorifies this world so fair;
And all of nature's wondrous ways
Inspires the themes of poets' lays.

Life has been likened to a stream.
Swift is the stream of human time,
Although we fain would float and dream
And harmonize the world by rhyme
'Tis full of breakers; full of woes
And is portrayed the best in prose.

LOUISA B. REED.

Garfield, Kans.

"Nature Cure." By Drs. M. E. and Rosa C. Conger. Excellent for every family. Cloth, $1.50 and $2.

"A Plea for the New Woman." By May Collins. An address delivered before the Ohio Liberal Society. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

NEW YORK NOTES.

A Prominent Hindoo and an Ex-Roman Catholic.

THEY MAKE SOME INTERESTING REMARKS TOUCHING THE PRESENT SITUATION.

I think it a great mistake that all liberal meetings and churches have their doors closed during the summer months, so that in this large metropolis of New York City, there is no liberal service where the stay-at-homes and those whose business compels them to remain in the city can go. How much better to have a union service during the hot months where spiritual lecturers and liberal clergymen would be delighted to take part.

Several Sundays back I had the great pleasure of hearing Bahr Protap Chunder Mozoomdar, a priest of the Brahma Somaj of India, who occupied Dr. Savage's pulpit at the Church of the Messiah. To say I was delighted at his discourse would be placing it very mild, and after hearing him I could not help saying to myself, do these (so-called) Christians send missionaries to the country this gentleman comes from, when he can teach us more of the real truth in fifteen minutes than these missionaries could in years, of what I call of the real true religion. I will quote a few remarks of Mr. Mozoomdar for the readers of The Progressive Thinker, as follows:

"I do not call myself a Christian, nor am I a Unitarian. I told them in Boston the other day that if Christ were alive to-day I did not believe that he would be a Christian. Christianity is all right, but the Son of God came to establish freedom, though at the same time submission, and to make a balance among mind, motion and conscience. Man's mind was not capable of judging the infinity of the mind and purpose of God. I do not believe that when Christ declared that he and the Father were one that this was meant for himself alone, but that every man was included.

"If Christ and God are one, and we are alien, it would avail us nothing that he came into the world, but he and the Father are one in order that we and the Father may be one also.

"Every religion puts forth some method for bridging the immeasurable gulf between God and man. I came from a land where there are many gods, many creeds and many scriptures, and I can assure you that every one of these professes to establish a oneness between God and man, a oneness of spirit or a oneness of the soul, or a oneness of emotion. All have the same aim. Emotions lead some astray, but this is natural for man. It is of the utmost necessity that God should point our path. Hindoo sacred books say that the son is nothing more than the son re-born. He has the father's flesh and the father's form. This is what you call heredity.

"If you say that a man or woman is God re-born I do not think that you could better define the religion of Christ. But nature is often degenerate and the spirit of God re-born in man becomes debased. The truth of the theory of the transmigration of souls is often substantiated by the serpents found in men. The question is to know how to cultivate the spirit of God in man."

I considered this address one of the best I have heard from one of our Brahma visitors.

The other evening I had the great pleasure of hearing a priest that has just forsaken the Roman Catholic church. He is a young man of 27 years, of fine personal appearance; his name is Anthony Hanberich. Born in Hesse-Nassau, Germany, known to the Catholic church as Father Alphonsus, he has now severed his connection with the priesthood and the Franciscan Order, and has withdrawn from his work at St. Anthony's church, at Butler, N. J. He gave his discourse at Christ's Mission, 142 West Twenty-first street, this city. I would like to give his address in full, but I know the editor of The Progressive Thinker has not the space to spare, but will give just a few quotations, and if some followers of the Roman Catholic faith had only heard it, it would have opened their eyes. Father Alphonsus discussed freely his change of faith, and while acknowledging that his step is the result of a general disbelief in the doctrines of the Roman Catholic church as a whole, lays particular stress on his objection to the practice of the confessional.

"My reason for rejecting it," he said, "is that it seems ridiculous to me that one sinful man should have the power to forgive the sins of others. I believe in confessing my sins to my God and to God alone, and not to man."

In his letter to his Father Superior in Rome, Father Alphonsus said: "There is much that I could say regarding the policy and administration of the church in general, and in particular cases, but I will not enter upon details such as came within my personal knowledge in connection with the scandal of the 'Shrine of St. Anthony' in the church at Butler. The payment of money for masses for the living and the dead, and for the administration of sacraments, the traffic in jubilees, pilgrimages, shrines and relics were a scandal to me."

I met Father Alphonsus personally after his lecture and shook hands with him, and I told him I was so glad he had discovered the beacon light ahead. His English was the most perfect I have heard from a platform for some time. He told me it was his intention to ultimately enter the Protestant ministry. He also stated that his relatives were greatly incensed at his change of faith, but I am glad that so young a man can stand so nobly by his convictions, and I shake his hand with friendship. J. OSBORNE LUNT.

New York.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"Wedding Chimes." By Delpha Pearl Hughes. A tasty, beautiful and appropriate wedding souvenir. Contains marriage ceremony, marriage certificate, etc., with choice matter in poetry and prose. Specially designed for the use of the Spiritualist and Liberal ministry. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail." By Chas. B. Newcomb. Excellent in spiritual suggestiveness. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Death Defeated; or the Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young." By J. M. Peebles, M. D., M. A., Ph. D. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"A Few Words About the Devil, and Other Essays." By Charles Bradlaugh. Paper, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Infidelity of Ecclesiasticism. A Menace to American Civilization." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood, lecturer upon physical, physiological and psychic science. Demonstrator of the molecular or spiritual hypothesis of nature. Scholarly, masterly, trenchant. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

Great Work by a Great Author.

"THE UNKNOWN"

—BY—

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

"The Unknown" created a marked sensation in France when first published and can scarcely fail to arouse the greatest interest in this country. It is an eminent scientist's study of the phenomena of the spirit world. In touching upon the various physical manifestations the author cites many absolutely authenticated instances, and chapters of his book are as weirdly fascinating as the most fantastic of Poe's tales. It treats on incredulity, credulity, hallucinations, psychic action of one mind upon another, transmission of thought, suggestion, the world of dreams, cerebral physiology, psychic dreams, distinct sight in dreams, actual facts, premonitory dreams and divination of the future, etc. 487 pages, cloth bound. Price $2.00.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

DEATH DEFEATED,

—OR—

The Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young,

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D., M. A., Ph. D.

It certainly is just what is needed as here always, they should know how to a book of good suggestions and instruc- live right and enjoy the life that betions along the line of health. He longs to them. This is undoubtedly the treats the subject in his own matter-of- most useful book for the masses the fact style. The book comprises a prac- Doctor has ever published, for it strikes tical subject handled in a practical at the root or cause of disease, and tells manner by a practical man. Even if how to avoid it. 212 pages, cloth people do not wish or expect to live bound. Price, $1. For sale at this office.

Three Remarkable Books!

"The Divine Pedigree of Man."
"The Law of Psychic Phenomena."
"A Scientific Demonstration of the Future."

The Divine Pedigree of Man, or the Testimony of Evolution and Psychology to the Fatherhood of God. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL. D. This is a most remarkable work, demonstrating the existence of the Soul and Future Life. It is scientific throughout. Price $1.50 Dr. Hudson's work on "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," is also valuable. Price, $1.50. His "Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life" should be read by all. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Being a Review of

The World's Beliefs on the Subject, a Consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling,

Leading to the Question as to Whether It Can Be Demonstrated as a Fact.—To Which Is Added an Appendix Containing Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

BY MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D.

8vo, Cloth, 342 Pages.

After a review of the beliefs held in the past concerning life beyond death, Dr. Savage takes up the present conditions of belief and considers the agnostic reaction from the extreme "other-worldliness" which it replaced, which was in turn followed by the Spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism. He points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon the people. He then considers the probabilities of a future life, probabilities which, as he admits, fall short of demonstration. The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr. Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well authenticated communications from persons in the other life. The chief contents of the volume are as follows:

Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

For Sale at this Office. Price $1.50. Postage 10c.

OUR BIBLE:

WHO WROTE IT? WHEN? WHERE? HOW?

Is It Infallible?

A Voice from the Higher Criticism.

A Few Thoughts on Other Bibles.

BY MOSES HULL.

Excellent as an exposition of the Higher Criticism and an analysis of the Bible from that standpoint. Of special value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.00.

ORMSBY'S SIMPLE SYSTEM

OF THE

PLANETS and the ZODIAC,

A New Book with the Places of the Planets—the Chart that Makes It Easy to Study the Stars—5th Edition—Just Out—Greatly Improved—Price, $2.00

ASTROLOGY SIMPLIFIED—SPECIAL OFFER.

Any person having one of these charts of any former edition may exchange the same for one of the latest with new book, on payment of $1.00.

This is by far the best system for new beginners to take up, as hundreds of persons have become proficient in the science of the planets in a short time by starting with this Simple System. The new books give the corrections covering one hundred years, all of the 19th century.

Corrections for the 20th century, 100 years in advance, are now ready, which makes the chart good for 200 years. Price for the 20th century tables, $2.00. For sale at this office.

Bible and Church Degrade Woman

By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three essays on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Law of Correspondence Applied to Healing.

A course of seven practical lessons. By W. J. Colville. Limp cloth, 50c.

FORCE AND MATTER.

By Ludwig Buechner. A celebrated book. Cloth $

Zelma the Mystic, or White Magic Versus Black.

By Alwyn M. Thurber. Occult philosophy clothed in story form; aims to give a better understanding of magic, black and white. 380 large pages. Cloth, $1.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,

Or The Three-fold Power of Sex. By Lois Waisbrooker. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

PROGRESSION,

Or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-Life. The evolution of man. By Michael Faraday. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

MYTH AND MIRACLE.

One of Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll's best lectures. Price 5c. For sale at this office.

DR. C. E. WATKINS,

THE

NATURAL PHYSICIAN.

The Physician can only be the servant or handmaid of Nature in the cure of Disease.

In reality we can do nothing; we can only remove the offending cause while

Nature

Performs the cure, and therefore we lay it down as a fundamental maxim in medicine that all a Physician can do is to act as a Servant to Nature.

If you believe that the above statement is true, and believe that this method is the right one, then write to-day to

DR. C. E. WATKINS,

Sending age, sex and leading symptom.

DR. C. E. WATKINS, Ayer, Mass.

TRUTH

The only way to find out who is the "Greatest Psychic Physician living" is to read what their patients say.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

never claims that he is the greatest physician living, or that he is the

GREATEST PSYCHIC.

He believes that there are hundreds of healers who are just as successful as he is, and he never yet has claimed that he is or was the best psychic, although twenty years before the public as the independent slate-writer with the record of not one person who ever accused him of fraud, ought to make the public THINK when they compare his claims to other so-called psychics.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

only desires those who are sick to remember that for over twenty years he has been before the public as a psychic, and over twelve years as a physician, and he never claims greater powers than others; but we believe he has a right to think he has as great gifts as those who claim so much.

Kindly read the following

TESTIMONIALS:

Dear Dr. Watkins:—I received your diagnose, and consider it a very good description of my case. I appreciate and thank you for the attention you have given my case. Yours very truly,

Rutland, Pa. MRS. IDA FROST.

My Dear Friend:—Your welcome letter of recent date is received, and would like very much to join your Psychic Circle; am sure it will benefit my health greatly and be a great comfort to me. Kindly yours,

LOUISA SMITH.

Day street, Providence, R. I.

Dear Doctor:—I have to report progress and improvement. The catarrhal condition seems to be greatly mitigated; as far as the piles are concerned, there is a marked improvement. My appetite is good, and my general health excellent. Very respectfully yours,

W. P. WILLIAMS.

Salem, Oregon.

Dear Doctor:—Inclosed find money order for another month's treatment. Am feeling very good. I know your medicine is helping me, and expect to see more improvement this month. Yours respectfully,

GEORGIA MERRIFIELD.

Willimantic, Conn.

Dear Dr. Watkins:—Medicine just received. Thanks for same. Doctor, I think your healing influences came with the diagnose, for I have been improving ever since; and I would also like to have the psychic treatments. Yours truly, MRS. N. REID.

Schoolcraft, Mich.

Dear Doctor:—Yours of recent date is received, and I think your diagnose was correct, and I should like very much to take your treatment. Truly yours,

DAVID WINKLER.

Burlingame, Kans.

Dear Doctor:—I received your letter Saturday evening, and you described my feelings better than I could myself; I will send the money with this letter, because I want your medicine soon as possible. Well, I will close, hoping to hear from you soon.

Avilla, Ind. MRS. ALMA FISK.

Dr. Watkins—Dear Sir:—I received your diagnosis of my case; the explanation is correct in every particular, and it agrees with the one I received recently from a medium in this state. Thanking you very kindly for your information, and wishing you success, I remain yours, CHARLES DUNTON.

Boston, Mass.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole:—

43 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.:

Your melted pebble spectacles are wonderful. I can see to thread a fine needle and can read with comfort, and my eyes are getting stronger. Your clairvoyant system of fitting is perfection. I am, your friend,

MRS. L. E. MARTIN.

Blairsville, Pa.

For ten cents we will send by mail, a 4-oz package of my Magnetized Compound, for sore or weak eyes. Once used you will not be without it. Address B. F. POOLE & CO.,

43 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"Heliocentric Astrology or Essentials of Astronomy and Solar Mentality, with Tables of Ephemeris from 1830 to 1910." By Yarmo Vedra. For sale at this office. Price, $1.50.

AN INQUIRY

Regarding Certain "Wandering Mediums."

During the early part of March there arrived in Galveston, Texas, a trio of "wandering mediums" from Montreal, Canada, by way of New York—Messrs. Geo. W. Banner and Frederick C. Brandan and Mrs. Emma Banner, wife of the former and sister of the latter (so they said). G. W. B. is a nice-looking, smooth-faced man, weighing about 200 pounds, a soft innocent voice, blue eyes and a frank, hearty manner. He gives light cabinet seances (materialization of hands, writing on sealed slates, pictures, etc., on dampened handkerchiefs) which gave strong evidence of psychic manifestations.

F. C. B. is a tall, sandy complexioned young man, weighing about 187 pounds. He gives readings private and public. In Galveston he offered magnetized belts for sale to develop mediumship and in some instances in public. The tests (?) were known to have been prearranged. Mrs. E. B. is a quite nice-looking, plump woman of refined manners. She gave full-form materialization with her cabinet in one room and the sitters in another, with folding doors between. This was far from satisfactory.

Now to the point of inquiry: They claimed to know nearly all of the prominent workers of the north and east, having worked nearly everywhere (Lily Dale and Northwestern camps, New York, Brooklyn, Boston, etc.), but when these workers of the north and east were communicated with not a single one had ever heard the names and failed to recognize the "wandering mediums." They journeyed from Galveston to Houston; thence to El Paso, Texas, saying that they intended to continue to California.

Spiritualism is beautiful; its philosophy soul-inspiring; its phenomena comforting, but the impostors who infest its phenomenal field, making merchandise of the most hallowed communication with our departed loved ones, are a menace to our growth and must be uprooted by educating the investigators (and Spiritualists, too,) in the law of spirit communication, that the demand of the public will be more reasonable on the medium then. The temptation to "fake" will be less; and then put the lash to those who depart from legitimate work. We need not wonder that laws are enacted to repulse clairvoyance and kindred psychological work when the Spiritualists in a great many instances say: "Oh, let them alone; it is a free country." So it is, but it will not be long if "wandering mediums" are permitted unmolested to commit such sacrilege as claiming to communicate with departed souls, sell belts so saturated with magnetism as to develope mediumship. The phenomena of Spiritualism substantiates the grandest philosophy the world has ever known; and is far too sacred to deal out promiscuously by the dollar's worth as the merchant does sugar.

Galveston, Tex. COR.

PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.

[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free. All in excess of ten lines will be charged at the rate of fifteen cents per line. About seven words constitute one line.]

Entered the higher life, June 18, 1900, from Waterbury Vt., Mrs. Helen Eddy Ambler, aged 67 years and 9 months.

To pleasing manners, personal beauty, and high moral and intellectual attainment were added spiritual gifts. She was an earnest and devoted Spiritualist and an excellent medium; delicate health prevented her public espousal of the cause she so dearly loved, but in her own home and among her nearest relatives and friends, she has for many years been a ministering spirit, and to many honest seekers she has brought unmistakable proof of spirit communion. She leaves a husband who loved and reverenced her to an unusual degree, and dear relatives and numerous friends to regret her departure, but their bereaved hearts are solaced by the memory of her pure life and the blessed assurance of her angelic ministrations. Services were conducted by the writer.

MRS. EMMA L. PAUL.

Passed to spirit life, our dear sister, Sarah M. Sanford, at the age of 58. She was the wife of James R. Sanford and the mother of Mabel and Emmalisse Blake, the platform test medium of 364 South Division street, Grand Rapids, Mich. Mrs. Marian Carpenter, Frank T. Ripley and the writer officiated at their home on Saturday, July 7, 1900. The home was beautifully decorated with costly flowers brought by lodges of which she was a member. The home was packed, and the ground adjoining, by members of four different orders of which she was an honored member. She was a devout Spiritualist, and was contemplating a good time at Briggs Park camp, just opened.

DR. W. O. KNOWLES.

Grand Rapids, Mich.

Departed to a higher life, from his home in Berlin, O., Mr. Joel Fox in the 86th year of his age. He was born and always remained at the homestead, and was among the earliest pioneers in the wilderness of the Western Reserve. He lived a quiet, honest life, and was thoroughly respected by all in the community, although he was outspoken in his absolute freedom from superstition of any kind. The funeral held July 1, was largely attended, Hudson Tuttle delivering the discourse by special request of the deceased. ***

Mrs. M. J. Bundy passed to the spirit side of life, June 21, 1900. She was born September 9, 1813, in the state of Vermont. At an early age she came to California where she has since resided. During the last few years she has been a resident of the Old Ladies' Home at Times, Cal., where she was dearly beloved by all connected with the institution. As a Spiritualist she was one of the brightest and best I ever saw. Her influence was so pure and good it left its impress on every one with whom she came in contact.

A VAN HANN.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail, $1. For sale at this office.

"Harmonics of Evolution. The Philosophy of Individual Life, Based Upon Natural Science, as Taught by Modern Masters of the Law." By Florence Huntley. A work of deep thought, carrying the principles of evolution into new fields. Cloth, $2. For sale at this office.

A GREAT HEALER

Dr. Peebles' Wonderful Cures Have Made His Name Famous the World Over.

Read His Generous Offer to the Sick.

J. M. PEEBLES, A. M., M. D., PH.D.

THERE is probably no physician or healer living who is curing more cases of Chronic and obstinate disease than is Dr. Peebles. During an experience of over fifty years this TRUE AND GREAT HEALER has cured thousands of those who had been pronounced "incurable" by the best local physicians. Mrs. Alfonso Buck, of Mechanicsville, O., says: "It is now about three months since I began your treatment and I am happy to say that I am free from those dreadful pains and have gained 15 pounds, and am still gaining rapidly. My doctor had given me up as "incurable." Being sure that I owe my life to your skill I must cheerfully and heartily recommend you to all those in search of health." Miss Maggie Polson, of Guthrie, Oklahoma, says: "Six months ago I suffered with terrible headaches, heart trouble and female weakness. My friends despaired of my life and I was so weak I could do nothing. Now I am well, strong and hearty. I can never forget the good you have done me."

Remember that Dr. Peebles does not heal by Christian Science, Hypnotism, or any other "ism" but employs MILD and POTENT medicines, combined with his PSYCHIC POWERS. These Psychic treatments are the greatest power known for relieving pain and suffering and curing disease. One of his patients recently said, "these treatments seem as a breath of higher life. It seems as if they alone would almost raise the dead." Besides being the greatest Psychic Physician living he is an authority in Europe and America on Psychic Phenomena and the Psychic Science. He has written an essay "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease," which he will send free to any sufferer asking for it. The Doctor's diagnoses are equally as astonishing as his cures. His Psychic Gifts enable him to accurately locate the diseased and weakened tissues, thus he never has to experiment for weeks to discover the real trouble. No disease is really incurable if perfectly understood, for every effect or diseased condition has its cause, and if this is seen and removed by the aid of natural forces, health will be restored. What is your condition and its cause? It is within your power to know. No two cases are exactly alike so do not spend precious time in taking patent medicines which are prepared a "text-book" case, or risk your life in the hands of a physician who does not understand your condition. Write to-day for a FREE DIAGNOSIS and special advice in your case. This will cost you nothing. The Doctor will also send you his essay on this wonderful science and other valuable literature FREE. Thousands of so-called "incurable" cases are cured by this method. So do not despair, if your physician has failed to cure you. Just write the doctor a plain, truthful letter, giving him your name, age, sex and leading symptom, in your own handwriting and receive a complete diagnosis of your case by return mail.

G. D. Younge, of Wimer, Ore., who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, says:—"I consider it my sacred duty to extend to you my heartiest thanks for the perfect cure your medicines and advice have effected in my case. I was very skeptical when I began the use of your medicines and treatment, but I am free to say that I now have a confirmed belief in their almost miraculous efficacy. Three months ago I bore about my body the hideous spectacle of my disease. Now I am a mentally and physically robust man."

Mrs. Lydia Mason, of Boyd, Oregon, who had not walked without crutches for a long time, after a few weeks of our treatment says:—"I can now walk without my crutches for almost half a day. I am gaining rapidly and expect to soon be in perfect health again."

Mabel Keyes, of Iron Creek, S. D., who had suffered for a long time from eczema, says:—"The roughness of the skin has entirely disappeared. I am very thankful indeed for the great good you have done me. I talked with our family physician and he thinks my cure is remarkable. I doctored with him before I called on you and he said he did not think there was any help for me and he is one of the best doctors around here."

Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Battle Creek, Mich

Sunday Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins' spiritual meetings, 40 E. Randolph street, Handel Hall, Fourth floor, Sunday evening, 7:45. Wednesday evening, 675 Larrabee street, corner Garfield avenue.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, G. V. Cordingley, pastor, room 409 Handel Hall, 40 Randolph street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Band of Harmony, auxiliary to the Church of the Soul, meets at Room 608 Handel Hall Building, 40 Randolph St., every first and third Thursday of the month, beginning afternoons at three o'clock. The ladies bring refreshments; supper served at six o'clock. Evening session commences at a quarter to eight. Questions invited from the audience, and answered by the guides of Mrs. S. J. Ashton. Always an interesting programme. All are welcome.

Church of the Spirit Communion will hold meetings in Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, each Sunday. 3 p. m., conference and tests; 8 p. m., lecture by J. K. Hallowell; tests by H. F. Coates and others. All are invited. Good music and seats free.

There will be a Spiritual meeting at 2:30 each Sunday, at Smith Hall, Wisconsin and Larrabee streets. German and English speaking by Mrs. W. Hilbert and Mr. Bernhart.

Spiritualistic services will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m., 1453 N. Springfield avenue. Tests at 4 o'clock prompt. Wm. Fitch Ruffle, medium.

Garden City Spiritual Alliance holds regular meetings at Mackinaw Hall, No. 294 and 296 East 43d street, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Spirit messages, Tests in telepathy or thought transference, good music. Seats free. May Goodrich, pastor.

The Gross Park Spiritual Society meets at 1785 N. Hoyne avenue, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society meets every Sunday evening at 7:30 at 8927 Exchange avenue, instead of Eigenman's Hall.

The Englewood Spiritual Union Society meets every Sunday at Forbes' Hall, 420 W. 63d street. Competent leaders of spiritual thought and mediums of note in charge.

Church of the Star of Truth, Wicker Park hall, No. 501 West North avenue. Services at 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey.

Truth Seekers meet at the Teutonia Hall, corner of 53rd and Ashland avenue, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Chicago Liberal Society is a non-sectarian association for the encouragement of morality, the promotion of education, the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, and the inculcation of truth in the place and stead of error and superstition. The Temple services of the society are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, 17th floor, and are in charge of Thomas B. Gregory. You are cordially invited to attend the same.

The Avenue Spiritualists Society will meet at 2979 Wabash avenue, corner 30th street, every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. Harry J. Moore, pastor.

Send in notice of meetings held on Sunday at public halls.

Bear in mind that only meetings held in public halls will be announced under the above head. We have not space to keep standing notices of meetings held at private residences.

VOLUMES 1, 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic, Ghost Land, The Next World Interviewed, and the Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate) constitute our premium list. Those seven books have been on sale, costing the buyer in the aggregate, $10.75. We, after paying the postage and expense of mailing, realize only $1.50 for the seven—far less than cost to us. We desire to form the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home, hence this remarkable offer. By subscribing for The Progressive Thinker, you then have the privilege of purchasing these books at the premium prices. See terms on another page.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical and their psychical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the spirit world. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here gathered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

CLUBS!

CLUBS CLUBS

We want ten thousand clubs formed in every part of the United States, for which we present inducements never before offered by any Spiritualist paper. These clubs must consist of ten subscribers, and each one will get Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death; or if they would prefer it, they can have the Next World Interviewed. They can have their choice of the two. Each subscriber in order to avail himself of this offer must pay $1.15. The fifteen cents is to pay expense of postage and mailing, and the books sent out are practically a gift. They are not cheap affairs; they are nicely and substantially bound in cloth, neatly printed in clear type and are ornaments to any center table. The contents are indeed valuable, such as every Spiritualist family should have. The aggregate price of these two books to the trade is $2.75. To each of our club subscribers one of these books is a gift, and when they receive the one of their choice they will be delighted with it, and will wonder how we can afford to do so much for them. The one who gets up the club will be entitled to The Progressive Thinker for one year, and Vol 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, and also the Next World Interviewed. He will not only get The Progressive Thinker for one year, but both books. He gets what is equivalent to $3.75 for his trouble. There should be no difficulty whatever in getting up hundreds of clubs.

Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World will not only interest Spiritualists, but church members will be attracted to it. The Rev. M. J. Savage, a leading liberal divine of New York, leads off with several of his masterly productions, treating Death from an advanced standpoint. He is followed by leading Spiritualists who treat of Death in a philosophical and fascinating manner.

The Next World Interviewed is also a very excellent work. The plates of this book were donated to the office of The Progressive Thinker by Henry J. Horn. It consists of communications from the spirit side of life from leading minds there. Fifty-five communications are given by prominent personages, among them Prince Albert, Harriet Martineau, Judge Edmonds, Horace Greeley, Lord Lytton, Fanny Fern, Dr. Livingstone and the Czar of Russia.

Now is the time to get up

CLUBS.

OUR MOTTO

To Do All the Good We Can.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Who is so widely known as one of the many

SPIRITUAL HEALERS,

SHE HAS

Successfully Treated

And Cured

Thousands of Patients.

Will Diagnose Your Case

FREE

REQUIREMENTS:

Lock of hair, age, sex, one leading symptom, full name, three 2-cent stamps and plain full address.

SEND TO

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Box 132. SAN JOSE, CAL.

COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

The students of this College represent four continents, and many of them are physicians, medical professors, or clergymen. Hudson Tuttle, the well-known author, calls this college "An institute of refined therapeutics, which is fast becoming of world-wide fame, and attracting students from many countries. It builds on exact science, and includes the magnetic, electric, chemical, solar, and spiritual forces which underlie everything. Its course can be taken at home, and a diploma conferring the title of D. M. (Doctor of Magnetics) granted." Send stamp for catalogue.

A cheaper and simpler ACADEMIC COURSE has been established for those who do not wish to take the more elaborate COLLEGE COURSE. It covers new and beautiful methods of Nature, which are powerful to heal and upbuild. Address E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D., Dean, 58 North Third St., San Jose, California. 555

YOUR FUTURE accurately calculated by Astrologer WALROND, 87 Opera House Block, Denver, Col. From $1.00.

Geo. F. Perkins, Emaline Perkins,

Platform and Private Test Mediums, 3558 Cottage Grove ave., flat 14, Chicago. Circles Friday. Readings daily. 559tf

FOR RENT.—Desirable rooms fronting the lake, near Grand Hotel. Terms reasonable. Address Abbie E. Olmstead, Lily Dale, N. Y. 556

$2 — TRUMPETS — $2

ALUMINUM TRUMPETS in two and three sections 36 in. high—magnetized when desired—$2 on receipt of price. Address WM. A. MURRAY, 508 E. 2nd St., Newport, Ky. 584

Myself cured, I will gladly inform any one addicted to Morphine, Opium, Laudanum, or Cocaine, of a never-failing harmless Home Cure. MRS. M. E. BALDWIN, P. O. Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

MRS. MAGGIE WAITE

Reading by mail, $1.00. Business advice a specialty. 804 S. Crouse ave., Syracuse, N. Y. 556

DON'T READ THIS.

Frances L. Loucks, the only psychic wonder living, that uses the spiritual X-ray without any leading symptom to direct, and locates all internal disease. A trial will convince you. Nervous exhaustion and lost vigor of both sexes successfully treated; as hundreds can testify. Send name, age, sex, complexion and ten cents in stamps, and receive a correct diagnosis of your case free, worth dollars to you. Address,

FRANCES L. LOUCKS,

Lock Box 7, Stoneham, Mass.

DR. J. S. LOUCKS

For thirty years has treated and cured the sick in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thousands have been cured after being given up to die. His psychic powers are unequaled, as his cures prove. Talk doesn't prove anything. Facts are proof. He also cures diseases of men, such as loss of manhood, debilitating losses causing nervous exhaustion. Send name, age, sex, lock of hair, 6 cts in stamps, for a diagnosis. Address,

DR. J. S. LOUCKS, M. D.,

85 Warren st., Stoneham, Mass.

See the unsolicited testimonials of cures that tell a true story that needs no more proof. Judge a physician only by what cures he makes, not by what he may say.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y.—Dr. J. S. Loucks—Dear Sir: After ten months of severe suffering from excessive irritation of the stomach, bowels and bladder, and other complications, unable to eat except a raw egg, followed by great distress. In the last stage of dyspepsia, I was advised to try a clairvoyant and sent to you a lock of hair. You described the case perfectly. On taking the pleasant remedies I began immediately to pick up and can now eat a hearty meal and attend to business. It is considered a wonderful cure.

Yours very sincerely, JAMES B. SLADE.

Kind Dr. Loucks:—Mrs. Eckhart wished me to write you that she was gaining in strength rapidly. She grew better immediately after receiving your remedies. As for myself, I think I am getting along well. I expect to grow strong mentally as well as physically, as time goes on. When I first wrote you I was a physical wreck, and suffering the most intense pains from various chronic diseases of many years' standing. I was so bad that life had become a burden to me; but your magnetic remedies did good work, and I grew better from the first application, and after one month's treatment from you, I had gained ten pounds more in flesh, and the change in my general appearance was so great that it was a matter of remark among my friends. And I will say that I had employed the best medical aid I could get here, but they gave me no relief whatever, and I was growing worse under their treatment, and I have no doubt that if I could not have received your aid I would not to-day be in the land of mortals. I consider your magnetic remedies a dead shot. You can make such use of this letter as you choose. It may be of benefit to some suffering mortal. Most sincerely yours, JOHN W. LYON.

Decatur, Ill., Lock Box 226.

Dr. J. S. Loucks—Dear Sir:—I feel encouraged to send for treatment for my daughter, as I met a Mrs. Allen W. Lamb, of Garland, N. C. She told me that you cured her after five other doctors tried and failed, and gave up her case as incurable.

Dunn, N. C. J. B. FARRAR.

NEW DREAM BOOK.

1,000 Dreams and their interpretation; price. 25 cents; sent by mail on receipt of price, in coin or stamps. Address DR. R. GREER, Maywood, Ill. 556

Challoner Worm Powders

Effectually destroy any living thing in the human alimentary canal and stomach. 624 Sedgwick st., Chicago, Ill. 557

A. JANE, PSYCHOLOGIST AND ASTROLOGER. Trial reading, 10 cents and stamp. By mail only. 52 So. Broadway, Aurora, Ill. 559

Card from Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Dear friends, you can greatly help me care for my blind sister, Jennie L. Webb, one of the earliest mediums now in the form, by writing a letter to a spirit friend. Send it to me with $1, and I will try and get reply by Independent writing or whispers. Address Annie Lord Chamberlain, Milford, Mass. 531tf

TRUTH AND DESTINY

Deals with the hidden forces of mind and the influence of environment upon human life. Gives a contrast of the destiny of one who cried out in the darkness for the light he vainly sought, and the destiny of another who found the radiance within. It reveals the laws and conditions which create happiness and indicates the path which leads to the attainment of Self-Mastery and Power. Price 25 cents,

URIEL BUCHANAN,

Dept. P. T., Box 210, Chicago, Ill. 544tf

TALMAGEAN INANITIES.

Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies.

A review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

THE GOD IDEA OF THE ANCIENTS,

Or Sex in Religion. By Eliza Burt Gamble. "It is a sensible, quiet, logical statement of opinion, deduced at times curiously from statistics which might be open to doubt; and never for a moment sensational or revolutionary.—Chicago Herald. 229 pages, large type, cloth bound. Price $2.25. For sale at this office

MEDIUMSHIP,

A chapter of experiences, by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10c. For sale at this office.

Song Books.

THE GOLDEN ECHOES:

A New Book of Inspirational Words and Music.

For the use of meetings, lyceums and home, by S. W. Tucker. These beautiful songs have already comforted many broken hearts, and it is hoped that they may be heard in every land. Price 15c; $1.50 per dozen. For sale at this office.

Echoes From the World of Song.

A collection of new and beautiful songs, with music and chorus, in book form. By C. P. Longley. Price $1.25. Postage 15 cents.

SPIRITUAL SONGSTER.

BY HATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price 10 cents, or $7 per hundred. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL WREATH.

A collection of words and music for the choir, congregation and social circle. By S. W. Tucker. Comprises sixty or more gems of song. Price, 20c.

MAXHAM'S MELODIES.

Songs Sacred and Secular. By A. J. Maxham. Thirty-two pages of sweet songs and music. The author and compiler is well known as a Spiritual singer and composer. Price, 25c.

SPIRITUAL HARP.

A Collection of Vocal Music for the Choir, Congregation and Social Circles.

By J. M. Peebles and J. O. Barrett; E. H. Bailey, Musical Editor. New edition. Culled from a wide field of literature with the most critical care, free from all theological bias, throbbing with the soul of inspiration, embodying the principles and virtues of the spiritual philosophy, set to the most cheerful and popular music, (nearly all original), and adapted to all occasions, it is doubtless the most attractive work of the kind ever published. Its beautiful songs, duets and quartets, with piano, organ or melodeon accompaniment, adapted both to public meetings and the social circles. Cloth $1.25; postage 14 cents. For sale at this office.

COSMIAN HYMN BOOK.

A COLLECTION OF

Original and Selected Hymns

For Liberal and Ethical Societies, for Schools and the Home.

COMPILED BY L. K. WASHBURN.

This volume meets a public want. It comprises 258 choice selections of poetry and music, embodying the highest moral sentiment, and free from all sectarianism. Price 50 cents. Sold at this office.

Longley's Beautiful Songs

For Public Meetings and the Home.

VOLUME ONE

Contains the following songs with music:

I'm thinking, dear mother, of you. We miss our boys at home. The land of the bye and bye. The good times yet to be. The land beyond the stars. They are waiting at the portal. When the dear ones gather at home. Resting under the daisies. The grand jubilee. My mother's tender eyes. Dear heart come home. Come in some beautiful dream. Where the roses never fade. In heaven we'll know our own.

VOLUME TWO

Contains 15 new and beautiful songs, suited to the home circle, seances, local meetings, mass-meetings, conventions, anniversaries and jubilees. They come prise an excellent variety of poems set to easy harmony and ought to sell readily. These books are 15cts. each; the two for 30cts. For sale at this office.

POEMS

From Soul to Soul.

BY EMMA ROOD TUTTLE.

THIS VOLUME CONTAINS THE best Poems of the author, and some of her most popular songs, with the music by eminent composers. Among the Poems which have attracted wide notice are: "Budding Rose," "Incidents of Life Under the Blue Laws," "Parson Smith's Prophecy," "From the Highlands of Heaven," "The City of Sorrow," "Soliloquy of Fulvia at Sicyon," "The Holy Maid of Kent," etc.

The Music includes "The Unseen City;" "Clariel," a June Song; "We Shall Meet our Friends in the Morning"; Meet Us at the Crystal Gates."

Many of the Poems are admirably adapted for recitation, and were used by the author in her public readings.

PRESS NOTICES.—Mrs. Emma Rood Tuttle is masterful in her prolific poetical genius.—The Two Worlds (Eng.) A talented writer, and one of President Garfield's brightest scholars.—Chanuning Register. A gifted poet, whose writings are familiar to many.—Detroit Advertiser. Mrs. Tuttle is well known as a poetess, and author of many exquisite songs.—Sat. Eve. Spectator. Her poems are worthy to hang like a banner on our walls to recall us daily to our better selves.—Hester M. Poole. A gifted lady, with rare poetic talent.—Warren Tribune. A poet with abundant talent and versatility.—Banner of Light. She is one of nature's poets.—American. Intuitive, spiritual, daintily refined, setting itself to music.—Progressive Thinker. Strong, true and beautiful.—Mrs. Sara A. Underwood. Clariel is exquisitely beautiful.—D. D. Home.

The volume contains 225 pages, is beautifully printed and bound, and furnishes a fine Holiday Gift. Price $1.50, post-paid.

For sale at this office.

FROM DREAMLAND SENT.

A volume of Poems. By Lilian Whiting. Cloth, $1.25.

POEMS OF THE LIFE BEYOND AND WITHIN.

Voices from many lands and centuries, saying, "Man, thou shalt never die." An excellent selection, edited and compiled by Giles B. Stebbins. Cloth, $1.

Poems From the Inner Life.

By Lizzie Doten. These poems are as staple as sugar. Price $1.00. For sale at this office.

POEMS OF PROGRESS.

By Lizzie Doten. They are really valuable. Price $1.00.

THE VOICES.

By Warren Sumner Barlow. The Voices contain poems of remarkable beauty and force. They are most excellent. Price $1.00.

THE MISSING LINK IN MODERN SPIRITUALISM.

By A. Leah Underhill, of the Fox Family.

Interesting and valuable as a history of the beginning of Modern Spiritualism, by one of the Fox Sisters. 478 Pages, 16 Illustrations, including portraits of the Fox Family. History of the Hydesville rappings, as related by eye-witnesses; remarkable and well-attested manifestations; the "exposures," etc. Handsomely bound in cloth. But few copies remaining. Publishers' price, $1.50. We will send the book postpaid for $1.40.

Aryan Sun Myths, the Origin of Religions.

By Sarah E. Titcomb. With an introduction by Charles Morris, author of "The Aryan Race." Price, cloth, $1.

PHILOSOPHY OF SPIRITUAL INTERCOURSE.

This work contains an account of the very wonderful spiritual developments at the house of Rev. Dr. Phelps, Stratford, Conn., and similar cases in all parts of the country. This volume is the first from the author directly upon the subject of "Spiritualism," and has stood the test of many years. Cloth, $1.25. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

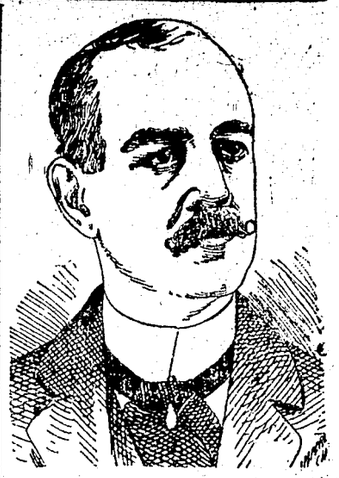
Mediumship and Its Development,

And How to Mesmerize to Assist Development. By W. H. Bach. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

Memorial Oration by Col. Ingersoll

On Roscoe Conkling. Delivered before the New York Legislature, May 9, 1888. Price, 5 cents. For sale at this office.

Molecular Hypothesis of Nature;



The Relation of Its Principles to Continued Existence and to the Philosophy of Spiritualism. By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

INGERSOLL'S ADDRESS

Before the New York Unitarian Club. The first time in the history of the world that a Christian Association ever invited a noted infidel to lecture before them. The lecture is a grand one, and was received by the Club with continuous applause from beginning to end. The pamphlet contains 12 pages, beautifully printed. Price 5 cents; ten copies, 50 cents.

THE SOUL,

Its Nature, Relations and Expression in Human Embodiments. Given through Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond, by her Guides. A book that every one who is interested in re-incarnation should read. Price $1.00.

G. WALTER LYNN

THE EMINENT

Mental Physician

AND

Gifted Psychic.

Obsession Cured.

Special Attention Given to

Nervous Ailments.

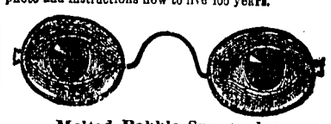
Astonishing Cures of Disease, Physical and Mental, Through

Magnetized Remedies and Psychic Science.

Readings and business advice, by mail, $1.00 and two stamps.

For correct diagnosis of disease send five two-cent stamps, age, name, sex and own handwriting.

I have never known a more competent, reliable and truthful medium for the Spirit-world than Chas. Walter Lynn. JOS. RODES BUCHANAN.



Address, 1017 Castro st., Oakland, Cali.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power in me. I can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photos. B. F. POOLE & CO., 43 Evanston av., Chicago, Ill.

Reed City Sanitarium and Private Hospital, A. B. Spinney, M. D., Prop.

Staff of eight consulting physicians and surgeons; professional nurses, steam heat, electric light. Cheapest sanitarium for the accommodations in the world. Board, medical attendance, nursing, baths, massage electrical treatment all for $10 A WEEK. Cases diagnosed free and treated at a distance by correspondence. Prices reasonable. Send your name and address with stamp to REED CITY SANITARIUM, Reed City, Michigan.

Discovery of a Lost Trail

BY CHARLES B. NEWCOMB,

Author of "All's Right with the World." Cloth 270 pages. Mr. Newcomb made a distinct success with "All's Right with the World," which continues in the front rank of the Metaphysical books that are now so popular. The great number who have been cheered and strengthened by him will welcome another book by the wise teacher whose words of help are doing so much to make the world better by making men and women better able to understand and enjoy it.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail"

is a simple study of that strange and beautiful thing called life, but grand in its scholarly simplicity. It will be in demand by many who have not previously read metaphysical writings. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Soul of Things;

Or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries. By Wm. and Elizabeth M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text book it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make geology plain as day, and throw light on all subjects now obscured by time. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

In three volumes, cloth bound, $1.50 each.

The Christ Question Settled

JESUS, MAN, Medium, Martyr.

A Symposium by W. E. Coleman, J. S. Loveland, Hudson Tuttle, Moses Hull, J. R. Buchanan, B. B. Hill, Rabbi I. M. Wise, Col. Ingersoll—and what the spirits say about it. By

J. M. PEEBLES, M. D.

Whether this book settles the question or not, it will be found eminently entertaining, and brings together a mass of evidence to establish the historical character of Jesus. A large volume, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

TALLEYRAND'S LETTER TO THE POPE.

This work will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts stated, and the keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

WOMAN: FOUR CENTURIES OF PROGRESS.

A Lecture delivered at the Freethinker's International Congress, Chicago, Ill., October, 1893. By Susan H. Wixon. Price, 10c.

STARNOS.

By Dr. Delia E. Davis. A rosary of pearls, culled from the works of Andrew Jackson Davis. Intended for the light and solace of every sorrowing and stricken heart. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

STRIKE OF A SEX.

By George N

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

SPIRITUALISM—Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.—SPIRITUALISM

VOL. 22 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, SATURDAY, JULY 28, 1900. NO. 557

VITAL QUESTIONS DISCUSSED

Spiritual Propaganda--Can Spirits Leave Their Mortal Bodies Temporarily?--The Bible--Vaccination and Its Effects--Malthus and Small Families--Marriage and Divorce.

Dr. J. M. Peebles Forcibly Presents His Views, for the Consideration of the Readers of The Progressive Thinker.

While Spiritualism in its broadest and deepest sense is a fact, and a philosophy-encouraging religion, still it is questionable if it contains all the lore, and all the virtue and all the concentrated wisdom of the ages. Spiritualists write themselves down as numbering all the way from nine to 20,000,000. But are they really Spiritualists? Are they any better than their orthodox neighbors? Where are their homes for the aged, their schools for orphans, their resorts for sick, worn-out mediums, their halls of learning, their liberally endowed seminaries, their free libraries for the poor, and their fiery-souled missionaries toiling in both this and foreign lands?

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as others see us!
It wad frae monie a blunder free us,
And foolish notion."

The Rev. A. B. Simpson, standing a few months ago in the American Theater, New York, before an immense audience, so aroused their enthusiasm for Christianity in the line of foreign missions that $78,000 was subscribed before the service closed. One man gave nearly all his farm, women gave their jewelry, several gave parts of their libraries, one man subscribed $10,000, fully two-thirds of what he was financially worth. And all this was to go to foreign lands to convert the heathen to Christianity. Whatever we may think of the wisdom of such conversions; such gifts bespeak the deepest sincerity—also a liberality and self-sacrifice that ought to put to shame the niggardliness of many calling themselves Spiritualists.

Recently, also, a Seventh-Day Adventist, deceased, left this religious denomination $400,000 to be used in propaganda work. If some of our rich Spiritualists would do something of this character while vestured in mortality, say in the line of education, the supporting of the Belvidere Seminary, the organization of Lyceums, and for sending lecturers over this country, through India and Ceylon, with their hearts afire with truth, and their hands full of Spiritualist literature, it would add much to their happiness when looking down from the highlands of immortality—looking and seeing the golden harvest gathered from the good they had done. The spirit says—"Thus sow, and thou shalt reap an hundred fold." Brother, is your lamp trimmed and burning? Brother, are you sowing the good seed? Brother, are you doing the work assigned you? Brother, do you really intend to do anything of consequence for the cause you profess, before your body dies? Answer from the depth of your conscience. Remember that while you may be good at dodging, you cannot dodge death—and remember further, that just as this life leaves you the future life, leaden or golden, will find you.

IS IT—OR IS IT NOT TRUE?

That spirits while dwelling in mortal bodies have the power to, and do temporarily leave them (except by a silvery electrical cord), and meanwhile travel through the interstellar spaces, guided by their spirit friends?

This question has often been discussed, and it seems to be with some a question still. Permit us to give two or three illustrations in the line of substantiating the affirmative:

John Brown, Sr., the late "Medium of the Rockies," as he was called, recently passed to the higher realms of immortality. I never met him in the flesh, but a few months previous to his departure, I said to myself, I will send him a copy of my pamphlet entitled—"Who Are These Spiritualists?"—we will exchange pamphlets. During the night succeeding the day that I made the resolution, himself and wife, at midnight, were quietly asleep, when heavy spirit raps awoke Mrs. Brown. These sounds continuing she awoke her husband, and he hearing the raps and becoming clairvoyant, said: "Why, here comes Dr. Peebles! I never met him in the mortal, but it is surely him. My spirit friends knew him and he has something for me, but I cannot clearly see just what it is, but I certainly see him, and he has a printed message for me."

John Brown, in writing me of this phenomena, said: "I will give you the words that my spirit guide gave to me. He said: 'John, tell Bro. Peebles that he is on the threshing-floor, and for the good of humanity. We want him to continue writing for us the burning words that from time to time will be impressed upon his mind, words such as will burn up the chaff and leave the pure truth of Spiritualism. The barnacles must be knocked off from the ship. The tares must be separated from the wheat. They have all too long grown together. Tell him to continue standing firmly upon the rock of truth. Fear must be removed. Stony creeds that crush must be rejected, and a trembling, half-doubting belief in a spirit world must give place to knowledge. This knowledge will dry the mourner's tears, and comfort the sick on earth. Tell him, furthermore, that his chapters are like bugle peals, sounding along the line of battle that is now savagely raging between truth and error. These chapters, with those of others, will ere long be compiled into a new Bible—the 20th Century Bible of reason, of science and immortality; and he will shine like a star among the million stars in the higher heavens on the day—the not far distant day when we shall meet in the worlds of spirits.' Thus, my Brother," wrote John Brown, "have I related as best I could what the spirits said, and it was all as vividly real as my own life." Now the question is, did I leave my body and go to John Brown's home? If so, I was not on the next morning conscious of it in memory.

A few months since I received a charming letter from Mrs. Georgie Gladys Cooley, of Chicago, a most excellent woman as well as fine medium and lecturer. In this letter she says: "Last Sunday while I was speaking upon the platform you walked into the hall during the afternoon service, and stood upon the platform to my right, while Mayflower was giving messages. She also saw you and spoke of the fact. It was just after four o'clock in the afternoon. It was positively real. I certainly saw you on the platform, as did my spirit friends. Were you conscious of the visit and have you any memory of it at the present time?" The question again is, had I really left my body and traveled to Chicago or not? If so, I was not externally conscious of it then or afterwards.

Another fact: Dr. E. C. Dunn was for years a splendid unconscious trance medium. He had his eccentricities, as most mediums or all have in some way. Often he left his body—so he said, and so his spirit teachers affirmed—and traveled afar off into different spirit spheres, aided by his guides. At these times he was more like a corpse than a living human being. His body would become partially cold and as rigid almost as a bar of iron. The pulse, so far as I could discover, would entirely for a time disappear. His breathing would become very, very slow, hardly discernible. I have known these phenomena to last nearly an hour at a time. They generally occurred just after we retired. At first they alarmed me, but the spirit guides would say, "Have no fear, we understand the science of these phenomena. We perform them as a matter of education to the medium and to thousands of attending spirits as witnesses." Returning to his body often exhausted, he would give the most beautiful descriptions of what he had seen in the spirit spheres, such as fields, forests, fountains, landscapes, temples, people strangely clothed, some happy even to ecstasy, and others in lower spheres restless, dreamy, sorrowing and wandering in search of light. Upon the matter of these phenomena I do not dogmatize, but mention—specify them as belonging to the category of other and many similar phenomena that I could enumerate, hoping thereby to arouse thought, inspire spiritual study, deeper psychic research, and thus so far as possible settle the interesting question. In a multitude of counsellors there is wisdom.

THE BIBLE

Recent controversies in the Spiritualist journals upon the Bible, if neither very instructive nor ornamental, largely revealed the tastes and characters of those engaged in the contest. Human beings naturally find what they hunt for, and quite generally they find reflected what is the most prominent in themselves. Like attracts like. To those peering through green lenses, everything is emerald. To seek and diligently search for imperfect apples only in an orchard laden with golden fruitage, is not very commendable. I never knew a person attain perfection by pointing out and magnifying the imperfections of others, or belittling their inspired utterances.

The Bible is a collection of ancient tracts, pamphlets, and epistles, written some thousands of years ago, and bound together. The writers represented different nationalities, the Semitic predominating over the Aryan. The most of the authors were mediums, occupying different planes of unfoldment, and as in Spiritualism, we should naturally have different theories and some downright contradictions. The true and the good therein is to be conserved. Let us, though critics, be reasonable. Apples are excellent for food, but it is not necessary to eat the stems, skins, seeds and cores. Some are so constituted that they see nothing but cores and worm-eaten fruit in the best of orchards, and little save briars and bugs in the most inviting berry fields and gardens. People must not be harshly blamed for having hare-lips, or flat, irreligious topheads.

Conscientiously I believe the Bible—believe it all, believe its history to be history, its visions to be visions, its psalms to be psalms, its proverbs to be proverbs, its abounding errors to be errors, its falsehoods to be falsehoods, its inspired truths to be truths—and I can scarcely understand what all this "fuss," this snarling and growling and semi-criminations concerning the old book has been about. The controversy perhaps was all well enough, but how much wiser is the world? Such Biblical growlings do not feed the hungry, clothe the naked, build educational institutions, nor disseminate the glorious principles of Spiritualism.

Let us for a moment bring to view a few of the gems that make radiant those old Biblical pages that some so delight to bespatter with their uncorked vials of indignation:

"The heaven of heavens cannot contain thee." "The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want." "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people." "Hate the evil and love the good." "Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity." "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." "In my father's house are many mansions." "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavily laden, and I will give you rest." "Blessed are the pure in heart." "If this house were dissolved we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." "What doth the Lord thy God require of thee but that thou shalt deal justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with thy God." "We are all the offspring of God." "We are all brethren." "Let love be without dissimulation." "Cease to do evil and learn to do well." "For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." "Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thy heart, * * but thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." "Clean yourselves from all uncleanness. * * Sanctify yourselves, therefore, and be ye holy." "Thou shalt not oppress an hired servant that is poor and needy, whether he be of thy brethren, or of the strangers that are in thy land within thy gates." "Therefore, I command thee, saying, Thou shalt open thy hand wide unto thy brother, to thy poor, and to thy needy in the land." "But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself, for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt." "Thou shalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer among the people." "Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against thy neighbor, or the strangers that dwell among you." "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honor the face of the old man. * * Thou shalt honor thy father and thy mother." "Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me." "God is no respecter of persons." "He that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done." "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." "The Lord will not cast off forever." "The Lord is good unto all and his tender mercies are over all his works." "Be kindly affectionate one to another with brotherly love." "Rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation; given to hospitality." "Bless them that persecute you, bless and curse not." "Recompense no man evil for evil. * * Live peaceably with all men." "Overcome evil with good." "This I say then, walk with the spirit, * * but the fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance." "The spirit is life, because of righteousness, and to be spiritually-minded is life and peace." "Whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report, if there be any virtue, if there be any praise, think of these things."

Surely the above Bible teachings quoted from memory will harm no one. Beloved, take down from the shelf that old moth-sullied Bible that so cheered and comforted your mother, and blowing and wiping the dust off from the covers, read it just as you read other books, exercising your reason and sound higher judgment—read the there recorded visions, trances, healings, exhortations, prophesyings, gifts of tongues, materializations, transfigurations and uplifting inspirations—read and quiet your coarse, gruffy growlings—read it and forever quit hunting in its old back-chapter pages for filth and piles of compost just to so gladly, glaringly and relishingly put on exhibition! Further, ask yourself if all of our to-day mediums are saints, and if you—even you yourself are perfect, absolutely perfect? If not, retire self-confessed, oh hypocrite, for meditation, repentance and resolutions to henceforth live the good, the true and the beautiful.

VACCINATION AND ITS EFFECTS.

Can flowers bloom on mountain glaciers? Can death produce life? Can poison protect against poison? Is it right to project into the human system a virus to prevent, if not a kindred, a more malignant disease? Is it a preventative? The most distinguished medical men of the world admit—show conclusively to the contrary. The Registrar-General of the London Small-pox Hospital informs us that nearly four-fifths of the small-pox patients had been vaccinated. The vaccinated are, in fact, more liable to take the small-pox than the unvaccinated, because of vaccine-virus-depleted organizations.

A venerable medical gentleman of Liverpool, England, Dr. Mitchell, writes in this strong manner:

"Thousands of infant lives have been sacrificed at the altar of this modern Moloch, and infanticide has thereby been legalized among us. If vaccination were abolished to-morrow, it would take generations to eradicate the mischief it has caused in the physical deterioration of the health of the nation. Where is our boasted freedom, where the liberty of the subject, when parents, at the instigation of paid and hireling informers, are reluctantly and with sorrowing hearts compelled to submit their children to the poisoned lancet, and to have inserted in the pure fountain of life the disgusting and impure products of a disease of the brute creation?"

Jacob Bright, M. P. from Manchester, brother of the great Commoner, John Bright, not approving of the late law of vaccination in England, proposed years ago this amendment:

"Your committee cannot recommend that vaccination should continue to be made compulsory by act of Parliament, for the following reasons: That the health and lives of some children are—though it may be in rare cases—undoubtedly sacrificed by it; that syphilis can be, and is, transmitted by vaccination; and that children from whom the vaccine lymph is taken may be syphilitic, the doctor at the same time having no means of discovering the fact."

Is it not a reckless presumption to insert into the pure blood of human beings, especially sensitive children, corrupt matter thrown out from the sores—the diseased parts of the beast? And what adds to the malignancy of the presumption is the fact that this cow-pox virus may have, unknown to the purchasing doctor, passed through the veins of those tainted with erysipelas, scrofula, cancer, syphilis, and various skin diseases.

As sphere touching sphere, atom infringing upon atom, as in the case of a grain of musk appreciably scenting a room for a century—so a particle of vaccine virus, infused into the blood, affects the whole physical organization, producing physical changes and mental disturbances; thus more or less injuring the spiritual structure, which in turn corrodes and tarnishes the moral nature. Vaccination has not a redeeming trait. It is the total depravity of medical science and ethics.

Every atom, every particle of blood or nerve aura, contains the essential nature of the poison to whom it belongs. The poison from the bite of a rattlesnake induces hissing. Persons mad with hydrophobia often howl. And so the aural poison from a tobacco-smoking, beer-guzzling psychic is worse than a nuisance; it is a disease-breeding stench. The cures, or apparent cures, wrought by such, will prove later to be curses. Liars boasting of success along this line are moral failures. They collapse and thinkers drop them.

Interjecting animal blood—calf-lymph virus, into the human skin, and thus by absorption into the veins, induces individuals to feel, to act animal-like. So great is the disparity in the degrees of life that such inoculation can only be most disgustingly degrading. The Old Testament law refused the Israelites gratifying their thirst by drinking bullock's blood, and imposed severe penalties upon persons guilty of commerce with animals; for the reason that such an inoculating intimacy induced psychologically a "descent of the species."

It is apparent then, to the most superficial student, that one of the chief mischiefs in vaccination arises from the promiscuous mixing of natures, the brute and the human—amounting, in fact, to an artificial adultery of compulsory blood-poisoning. There is, however, an inoculation worthy of our confidence, and that is the healthy magnetisms from refined unadulterated sources, beautifully designated in the Scriptures, the baptism of the Holy Spirit—that is, the influx of sweet spiritual and heavenly influences. Sitting many times in agone years by the side of the sainted Lucretia Mott, I uniformly received a calm, peaceful baptism of the Holy Spirit. Regenerate and exalted spirits, understanding the psychic law, understanding this spiritual engraftment of the forces connected with the finer auras of the concrete degrees, are ever insinuating their etherealized effluences, celestial sunbeams, into our brains, working psycho-chemical changes and building up more etherealized, full-orbed characters.

MALTHUS AND SMALL FAMILIES.

If memory serves me it was Mary F. Davis more than a generation ago who said, "Fewer children and better ones." It is an indisputable fact that the lower down in the moral scale the more numerous the offspring. A pair of spiders, they and their broods, will produce millions in a single season. The queen bee, so it is said, lays about 50,000 eggs in the course of a year; while the elephant brings into the world but one of her offspring at a time. The world's greatest men and most highly unfolded women of culture have had few or no children. It is not to be inferred from this, however, that large families are not desirable where parents are healthy, harmonially married and have both the capacity, the morals and the finances to properly educate them. There is no music like the pattering of children's feet in the family home. But, considering the indiscreet marriages, insinuating diseases, heredities and other environments, there are altogether too many children born into the world.

And this reminds me that when lecturing several years ago in Honesdale, Pa., a good-hearted, conscientious German farmer in humble circumstances came to me and said with a sort of tear in his tone: "Doctor, I am a poor man with a family of thirteen, the eldest a daughter of twenty-one, all unmarried, and we do not want any increase at present in our family."

Thoughtfully, meekly, in subdued tones of tenderness, I responded: "No, I should think not! How is your wife's health?"

"It is poor, very poor; I tell her she nurses each baby too long."

"Quite likely," was my gentle, pathetic reply.

"Well, doctor, I came to see if there's any legitimate way to prevent having large families; and, will the remedies you prescribe, if you do so, be injurious to us?"

"Not in the least," was my enthusiastic response.

"What will be the expense, doctor?"

"Nothing, nothing, sir."

"I had heard, doctor, that you were kind-hearted and very benevolent. Thanking you in advance, will you kindly inform me?"

"Certainly—and that without the least hesitancy! Labor hard, sir, during the day, use a diet of fruits, grains and vegetables, take a cold water bath each night before retiring, keep your mind on intellectual and spiritual affairs, and have a cool, well-aired sleeping apartment in your house especially for yourself—yourself only—remember that! In the higher circles of Germany and France, and I may add England and America, each person of the household has a room by himself and herself. This is not only a wise but a healthy arrangement."

Listening to me seriously, and sadly too, this poor, unsophisticated farmer went away exceedingly sorrowful. It may be added that though quite poor and a large family on his hands, this German farmer had money enough to furnish board for several cats and dogs, and enough also to purchase plenty of coffee, tobacco, lager beer and other nonessentials to health and happiness. There's no poverty so morally pinching as the poverty of intelligence.

Nature's laws are just and inexorable. The least infringement has its penalty. Purposed abortions are murders. Many physicians walk the streets of our cities with the blood of unborn innocents upon their hands. Nature never ruthlessly tears the bud from the bough, nor permits the peach to fall before fully ripe. It was the stern old psalmist who so bluntly said, "Fools because of their transgressions are afflicted."

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Child-marriage prevails extensively in India. Even babies are betrothed. Parents being wiser and older conscientiously believe themselves more competent, knowing the ancestral line, to select marriage-mates than the young themselves would be. And considering family broils and divorces this method of mating has been encouragingly brouched in America.

Divorces, sad to say, are growing more numerous each year. During one week last year in Los Angeles, Cal., there were nine divorces granted by the courts and there were issued eleven marriage licenses. What's the matter? Where's the remedy? Marriage on the multiplying plane for propagation is assuredly right and honorable. What is the cause then of the unhappiness in wedlock leading to so many divorces? In a word it is ignorance—gross ignorance of each other's ancestry, temperaments, tempers and oft concealed tendencies. The syphilitic, the epileptic, the drunkard, the consumptive, the nervously jealous and suspicious, the sickly, have no moral right to marry, to breed, and to perpetuate by the law of transmission their physical and mental diseases.

Passion—selfishly inflamed passion—should have no voice in the sacredness of marriage. The majority take this step in life too young. From twenty-three to twenty-eight is the proper time for the young man and from twenty-two to twenty-six, the young woman. Previous to these periods they are not formatively firm and mature. Woman should never part with the ownership of her own body.

The young before entering wedlock should be examined physiologically, pathologically, temperamentally, phrenologically, physiognomically, and sarcognomically by competent committees of medical men and women. These committees should be appointed by the State and amply paid for their services.

Marriage for position, for wealth, for convenience, for policy, for gratification, or any other motive unhallowed by purest love will prove to be a broken reed—a vanishing hand.

Life, manifest in and all around us, proceeds from and depends upon antecedent life. Living souls are not artificial products. Chemistry does not create. Spontaneous generation died in being born. Human babies are not shaken out of chemical test-tubes. They are innocent entities plus moral consciousness and the possibilities of seraphic unfoldment. That souls eternally pre-existed is true. Entities and atoms are equally conscious on their respective planes. The latter attract, approach, marry, separate, because of some stronger electro-attraction. But thinking men and women standing upon the very apex of earth's organic pyramid, are rational and morally responsible. Better things, therefore, are expected of them.

Divorces, uncommon in the orient, pertain to the deceptions and imperfections of civilized life. If inspired by bodily passion they are unpardonably demoralizing. The serpent first charms, then stings. Divorces are the canker-worms of the social fabric. If they do not undermine they at least jar the basic foundation of society. The family, sacred in its best estate, is the unit of national strength and permanency. But there is no marriage where there is not confidence, mutual help and the brooding love of truth, sincerity and purity. When these are wanting marriage is a mockery; and the marital relation prostitution.

Much of pronounced incompatibility is imaginary. Suspicions scorch the soul. Fears and jealousies wrinkle the face. Storms sometimes purify the air; at other times they demolish and destroy. Palliate as the theorists may, it is unendurable for love to be crushed by passion, or burned in the fiery furnace of sensuous lust. It is unendurable for enthusiasm and progress to be yoked to a moping drag, or for an able, genial, aspiring nature to be almost continually taunted by the tongue-thrusts of ill-tempered Xantippes. Suicide is no escape. It does not kill. Under the shield of any combination of circumstances it is an unwise, cowardly act.

God never united as one, oil and water. Though both are liquids and may be temporarily mixed, they are chemically, fixedly incompatible. If the married yet really ununited in soul—in their youthful innocence or through deception, or hypnotic suggestion, unwisely joined themselves in wedlock, making a mistake—a most palpable, painful mistake; no statute law, nor congressional legislature has the right to enforce—to rigorously compel the continuance of this distressing mistake through an unhappy half-dying lifetime. Freedom is the soul's inalienable birthright, and in the enjoyment and practical pursuance of this God-given right it should feel no icy shackles, be saddled with no unnecessary burdens, press no crimsoned thorn-paths, drink no wormwood draughts, nor breathe the socially-poisoned, pestilential air of dark, dismal dungeons. * *

Whatever said to the contrary, marriage on the material plane of being is both desirable and honorable. It is the preliminary step towards co-operation. The family forms the soul's first altar. Here the fires of sympathy and self-sacrifice and abiding trust should perpetually burn. Here should center the heart's warmest and tenderest attractions—a symbol of that higher regenerate family—home—home of equality and purity, where kindness is law, self-sacrifice is worship, and love is as pure, tender and abiding as it is universal.

A SUPREME POWER, BUT NO SUPREME BEING.

We must bear in mind that the majority of men are imperfectly educated, and hence we must not needlessly offend the religious ideas of our age. It is enough for us ourselves to know that, though there is a Supreme Power, there is no Supreme Being. There is an Invisible Principle, but not a Personal God, to whom it would be not so much blasphemy as absurdity to impute the form, the sentiments, the passions of men. All Revelation is necessarily a mere fiction. That which men call chance is only the effect of an unknown cause, even of chance there is a law, there is no such thing as Providence, for Nature proceeds under irresistible laws, and in this respect the Universe is only a vast Automatic Engine. The vital force which pervades the world is what the illiterate call God, the modification through which all things are running takes place in an irresistible way, and hence it may be said that the progress of the world is, under Destiny, like a seed, it can evolve only in a pre-determined mode.—Draper.

FULFILLED.

Margery Avord's Beautiful Dream.

It was a beautiful Sunday morning in June. The earth, and air, and sky were redolent with the spirit of the summertime. The breeze from the lake made its way through an open window in one of the large apartment buildings on Calumet avenue, and touched with its freshness the face of a child just awaking from slumber.

"O, Mamma," exclaimed little Margery Avord, "I have had such a beautiful dream. I thought Papa came, and he was a big, strong man, with eyes and hair, almost like mine, and he took me in his arms and kissed me, and you and he and I all went off in the cars, ever and ever so far away! Do you think, Mamma, that we are going to die, and that Papa will take us both away to heaven with him? Papa is really dead, isn't he, Mamma?"

Mrs. Avord's slender form quivered and her dark eyes filled with tears as she looked at the eager child. "Yes, Margery dear, your Papa is dead—to us," she slowly added, and then, with an effort of self-control, she said in a voice of tender cheer: "Now my little girl must be washed and dressed and made ready for breakfast, for it is getting late."

It was five years since a cruel misunderstanding had come into the lives of Edward and Jessie Avord. Too proud to ask for an explanation, and almost heart-broken with the grief that had come to her, the young wife disappeared from her Eastern home, taking with her little Margery, then but two years old.

Mrs. Avord had often delighted her many friends with gifts wrought by her own hands, and her artistic skill had been the pride of her husband.

To Chicago, the great Western metropolis, she went, determined to win for herself and child an independent support.

There had been struggles and failures and disappointments through the long years—shadows and heartaches, almost too hard to bear had kept her close company, but the strong, invincible spirit of motherhood had inspired her with its conquering force, until now she had, she said to herself, "entered into a sustaining peace."

Many Sunday afternoons Margery and her mother spent in the Art Institute, finding in these visits almost their only recreation.

There was to be a special exhibition of pictures on this particular Sunday, and Jessie Avord and Margery went earlier than usual.

They were standing before a picture of home life in Holland.

The wonderful shades and colorings, the quaintness and simplicity of the scene, crowned by that indescribable charm that speaks to the soul of home's sacred love-world appealed to Jessie Alvord with the strong sense of her great loss, and she stood entranced and motionless, when suddenly little Margery pulled her dress, exclaiming as she did so in a loud whisper, "O Mamma, see! see! There's a gentleman who looks just like Papa did in my dream!"

Jessie Avord raised her eyes, and saw—Edward Avord's eager, startled face.

"At last! O at last!" he said as he stepped quickly to her side.

The crowd parted to let a lady pass, who had almost fainted—no doubt from the over-heated air, it was said. A gentleman supported her and led by the hand a little child.

Calling a carriage, Edward Avord and Jessie and Margery were soon lost to the outer world.

Only a few words and mistakes were made clear, and loving hearts were joined once more.

Awed by the tender caresses showered upon her Mamma and herself, little Margery looked up with wondering eyes into her father's rapturous face, saying, "Then you really are my 'sure-enough' Papa, aren't you? And you've come to take Mamma and me both up to heaven, haven't you?"

"Heaven has come to me, my little Margery," her father said, "and to-morrow we will take the train for our own dear home once more," and Jessie answered back, with beaming smiles, that told of peace and sweet content.

Was the child's dream a mere coincidence, or was it the fulfillment of that higher law of thought-vibration whose infinite currents sweep through the speechless ether? ELLA DARÉ.

Austin Sta., Chicago.

Scoffing Kings.

The editor of the London Spectator says that though there are few kings who are pious, there are fewer who are scoffers at religion, and he can recall but one of the latter kind, namely, Frederick the Great, 1740-1786.

Frederick I., Emperor of Germany, surnamed Barbarossa, reigned from 1152 to 1190. Much of the time he was at war with the Pope. He is credited with saying: "Three prestidigitators, Moses, Christ and Mahomet, that they might rule the world, seduced all the people of their time." The author of "Anatomy of Melancholy" gives the sentence in Latin and says that Henry of Landgrave heard him speak it.

In the year 1451 Albrecht Achilles, Elector of Brandenbourg, in order to settle the question of burial in consecrated ground, issued the following edict:

"Let the corpses be taken to the house of the priest, who must see to their interment at once. Let us fight the Devil with the Holy Ghost."

This historical fact is brought to light by Prof. Thudichum, of Tubingen University, in an essay on Cemeteries.

King Ludwig (Lewis Charles) of Bavaria, was a Catholic and his wife a Protestant. This royal equation of religious profession was necessary to the maintenance of the equilibrium of the kingdom. The king persuaded his special favorite, Moritz Saphir, a distinguished Jew, to become a Catholic. By and by the queen induced the Catholic Jew to embrace Protestantism. His conversion in both cases was easy, but on a festive occasion, while in a convivial mood, he amused the king and his parasites by saying: "When I was a Jew, my God saw me, but I didn't see him; when I became a Catholic, I saw my God (pointing to Christ on a cross), but he didn't see me; when I became a Protestant, my God didn't see me, and I didn't see him."

King Ludwig abdicated the throne in consequence of an unholy alliance with Lola Montes, whom Mme. Diss-Debar affirms to be her mother by the aforesaid royal sire. W. H. BURR.

WE call special attention to The Next World Interviewed, one of our special premiums. We are enabled to furnish it to our readers at the price announced in our premium list, from the simple fact that Mr. Horn donated the plates of the book to us. We have sent out thousands of copies of this book, and it has been well received everywhere. It should be circulated by the millions among all classes of Spiritualists. The seven books that we are offering to Spiritualists as premiums contain a large storehouse of useful knowledge on Spiritual and Occult subjects. You should have them on the shelves of your library where you can have access to them at any time. Read carefully our premium announcement.

LIFE AND EXPERIENCE IN SPIRIT LAND

A Series of Letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea to His Son, Carlyle Petersilea.

LETTER NUMBER THIRTY-ONE—Continued.

"First, defamation of character. You have, with malice aforethought, defamed all those persons whom you call Spiritualists, although yourself a Spiritualist, as has been amply proved by your own concessions. You have publicly defamed them by the most base and false accusations. You have accused them of about every crime the world knows anything about; and when a supposed follower of the meek and lowly Jesus so far forgets himself, and the express commands of his master, it should be taken up on the plea of justice to the world at large. You have made a public statement to the effect that the insane asylums of the world are filled with those whom you call Spiritualists. This is utterly false, as has been proved again and again. You have borne false witness against your brothers, and your master said: 'He that loveth and maketh a lie shall have his part in the lake of fire and brimstone, where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched.' If he did not say so, you believe he did, which amounts to the same thing to you.

"Then, Brother Talmage, as you are proven guilty, your sentence has already been pronounced by your captain. Your sentence is just. You are to have your part in the lake of fire and brimstone, where the worm dieth not and the fire is not quenched.

"Why, Brother Talmage, even I, the 'Infidel,' the 'Atheist,' the 'Great Agnostic'—Bob Ingersoll—have escaped that hell. I really can't help laughing to think that the 'Great Preacher' of the 'Divine Gospel' or 'Good News,' should get into that dreadful place with his eyes wide open, while poor, foolish Bob, with shut eyes, has actually escaped.

"How do you feel down there, Brother Talmage? that is what I shall ask you.

"Give me your hand, my poor fellow, and I will try to lift you out. You may refuse, and not care to associate, or receive help from a 'Vile Infidel.' In that case you must remain until someone else offers you a helping hand.

"Now all the various counts, or accusations, that you have brought against Spiritualists, are, in the main, false and untrue. You have, with malice aforethought, prevaricated the truth, and wilfully borne false witness, knowing it to be so; and you stand accused before the all-seeing eye—and the all-seeing eye is the all-seeing Spiritual World—those who dwell in the father's house, or that place where the emancipated spirits of men dwell. In three or four years, you, also, will be here, for age is already upon you, and I want to tell you, now, before you come, precisely how it will be with you.

"You now expect that God himself will stand ready to receive one of his great vicegerents—DeWitt Talmage—and you will be crowned by him, in person, to the sound of martial music—for you are a soldier, you say—with great honor and glory. Well, that is all in your imagination, my dear brother. You are being tricked by it. It tricks you worse than any fraudulent medium ever tricked at a seance. Oh, I know whereof I speak! You are, really, more gullible than any Spiritualist that ever lived, and are doomed to suffer far greater disappointment than a Spiritualist who has grasped and holds in his hands the medium instead of the spirit of his friend.

"Well, you will come here. After a little while you will be conscious that you have departed the earth life, then, presently, you will be very eager to see God. But no God will appear. Then you will ask to be taken directly to him; but there will be none to respond. Then probably, you will try to get somewhere yourself—you won't have any clear idea where, but you will cry out for God and heaven, for you have told the people, that by the grace of God you are destined to go to heaven. The spirits won't hurry at all, and you will actually get into a white heat of exasperation at their delay. Perhaps you'll shout a little and pound an imaginary pulpit with your fists in a commanding and authoritative sort of way, but the spirits will only smile and say: 'That's Talmage! Wait till he gets over some of that earthly bluff. It is useless to say very much to him at present. Let him shout and pound until he wearies of it.'

"And now, brother, I will tell you what I mean to do. I mean to go right up to you and offer you my hand. I expect that you will look at me in the most scornful way imaginable, and say, 'Can it be possible that my God has consigned me to the same place with infidels and scoffers?' Then I shall make reply:

"Brother Talmage, I simply heard the rustle of a wing and caught a glimpse of the beaming star of hope, and it has really done as much for me and perhaps more than your God and heaven have done for you. And if you read this you will remember these words. Come, brother! I hear the rustling wings now, and the star of hope still leads onward; Come!

"Come where? Do you still tell me there is no God, no heaven, and that I cannot wear a crown and don heavenly regimentals?

"Not yet—not yet. Oh, my brother! But I will tell you something very sweet. If you desire, I will take you to your captain, Jesus, whom men have called the Christ. Perhaps you will say, 'But it is through Jesus that I shall see God.'

"But Jesus himself has never seen God—not God as you understand him. We may and can have an interview with Jesus, and when you look into his sweet eyes all your past follies will rush over you like a whirlwind, yet no word of his will accuse you, still, the sweet truth will strike you like an electric stroke: 'Neither do I accuse you. Go and sin no more.' But the sweet soul will not be able to remain in our atmosphere long and we shall presently find ourselves standing alone; then, all the abusive slanders, falsehoods, and insults you have heaped upon those whom you sneeringly call Spiritualists, will, like chickens—the brood hatched by yourself—come home to roost and your soul will be shaken by remorse as by a whirlwind—aye, you will cower and hide your face, but you can't hide yourself from yourself and the brood will refuse to budge.

"Now, what's to be done? Reparation, Talmage, Reparation. Pay all that thou owest. Repair the wrongs you have committed as quickly as possible, and let me just whisper it now: The sooner you commence the better. There is no need of waiting until you get here. Better leave a portion of the vile brood behind. Take back your insults, falsehoods and abusive slanders, and give the Spiritualists due credit for what rightly belongs to them, as good and pure as you are, perhaps, more so. They are, as a rule, far more modest; and no medium living on your earth to-day, has even received one-half the money—or as you have often called it, 'filthy lucre—that you have; and now I shall hip you a little here. You have cajoled the people into paying you what to a medium would be an enormous salary each year, and nearly every word you have uttered, in all these years on the subject of religion, is utterly false—has no foundation in truth whatever. You are, and have been, a blind leader of the blind. Who is the greater fraud, you or the Spiritualist medium? Who has robbed the public most, you or the Spiritualist medium? As a rule the Spiritualist medium is as sincere as you are and far nearer the truth. He gives his time and services as you give yours. He receives, perhaps, an eighth part of what you do, and many, very many give their time and services free. I do not believe there is a medium in the United States who would have refused to give of his gospel, or goods news, to the hungry people of London, Eng., until he had at first received five hundred dollars in his hand, or a hundred pounds.

"The people of some if those churches were poor, very poor, indeed, could scarcely provide themselves food, shelter and clothing, but they were eager to hear the gospel and so managed to scrape together the money, and nearly every word you told them was false, utterly false. Don't call other men sinners until you cleanse your own soul.

"You may reply: 'Well, I believe all that I say to be true.' In an earthly court of Justice it counts for nothing that you are ignorant of the law and through that ignorance transgressed it. The court exacts the penalty just the same, holding you responsible for your ignorance, saying you should have informed yourself; and we now say to you: Natural Law requires you to pay the penalty of transgressed law, whether it be transgressed ignorantly or otherwise, thereby compelling one in a measure to inform oneself.

"From the spirit of
"ROBERT G. INGERSOLL."

LETTER NUMBER THIRTY-TWO.

We have a friend, still remaining on earth, in whom we are deeply interested.

This friend is worthy of all honor and esteem, and is greatly beloved and revered, as he should be. We visit him often, put ourselves en rapport with him, when his mind becomes to us like a page from an open book, to be read and understood. This friend is called a Spiritualist and believes himself to be one. He is also somewhat mediumistic, but as we in spirit read his mind, we find that he is really more of an evolutionist than a Spiritualist. He accepts evolution without demur or question, but casts aside involution; which reminds us of a man with only one arm, having lost the other, and it being so long gone from his memory, he either thinks he never had another, or, if once he had, he believes it was useless, of no account whatever, and that he is better off without it; this strong right arm of evolution is all he needs, or all that anyone needs or ought to have—it is enough for all humanity. And here he rests, placid and secure, believing he has the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; and yet this dear friend believes in eternal progression.

As we have said before, we often visit this friend, in spirit, put ourselves en rapport with him, thereby agitating the calm surface of his mind.

Friends, do not allow your minds to become fixed on any one point and think you have the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, for, like the friend above mentioned, you may have only a part of the truth. We have purposely caused this friend a good deal of agitation of mind, for if the mind is not agitated it becomes like a calm and placid pool and stagnation is the result. We beg of you, each and all, do not stagnate. Do not allow any idea to become unalterably fixed within the mind, for in that case progression is impossible. The meaning of the word progression is, that the mind receives new truths which it had not previously understood or conceived to be true, and when the mind becomes so fixed, it becomes blind to the truth, consequently cannot see it, although it may be very plain to many others.

We agitate the waters of this friend's mind, that we may benefit him—keep him from becoming fixed, stagnant and blind to that which he ought to comprehend, in other words we desire him to progress.

Personalities should be hidden behind truthful principles. Persons are, after all, but like grains of sand on the sea-shore of life, all necessary, yet each separate grain is of little value.

Sarcasm never yet convinced any man of truth, and calling names is rather undignified and childish and is calculated to weaken the position taken by the person who indulges in the, to him, pleasing pastime—that is, it is supposed to be pleasing to the one who indulges in that delectable entertainment; but, to come back to our friend.

This friend is somewhat mediumistic and clairvoyant, but his clairvoyant sight is not always as clear as it might be. He sees things, as it were, afar off, and you are all aware that things look somewhat different off than they do near by.

This friend, who believes in evolution and discards involution, says that he discerns, or sees with the clairvoyant vision, a "Shining City," within the spiritual spheres, where those who pass out of earth life will meet—friend with friend, husband with wife and children—where all husbands and wives, brothers and sisters, children and friends will be re-united and happy together.

Now this is all true, looking at it from a distance, but rather vague and uncertain. The point that we wish particularly to make, is this: This friend believes and teaches that only man, or the human race, exists after the death of the body—only man is immortal. This has become a fixed or stagnant idea with him, which is much to be deplored, for his mind is grand and noble and should not become permanently or immovably fixed, consequently unprogressive. No one can go on and remain stationary at the same time.

Now as we are spirits within the spiritual spheres, we have a right to assert that which is. We may not, and do not, know all there is to know, but there are many things that we do know positively—many things that we are not and cannot be mistaken in, no more than those on earth are and and can be mistaken in much that they know. They know that they are surrounded by a multitude of other living creatures besides man. They cannot be mistaken in it. We here also know that we are, and cannot be mistaken in it. In former letters we have asserted this fact again and again. We also tried to prove it to the earthly world; but, like a sum in arithmetic, we have proved it one way, that is we have proved it by the great truth or rule of Involution; we will now try to prove it in another way, and if it stands the test both ways, we think our esteemed friend ought to accept the great fact, and thereby hasten his progress.

Now this time we intend to prove it—unmistakably prove it—through the very words that he has uttered and written himself. He first tells us that he sees—with the eye of the spirit, or clairvoyantly—a shining city within the spiritual spheres; which is as true as truth can be. He speaks of but one city, but no doubt he believes—as is the fact—that there are millions upon millions of shining cities here; but we will simply examine the one city that he speaks of. By examining one city we can, usually, comprehend, more or less, that which appertains to other cities, for cities are all much alike, both here and on the earth; enough alike to give a true and comprehensive idea of them all.

(To be continued.)

Search for Happiness.

If you are looking for perfect happiness the sooner you give up the search the better. The world is worn by countless paths that seek in vain for perfect happiness. And yet each generation begins anew the fruitless search. The rainbow of perfect joy arches our life, but never quite touches it. The path that leads nearest is pure unselfish work for others.

Some one has truly said: "My own happiness is something to desire; and yet, I know that I must win it by forgetting it in ministry to others. If I make my happiness the motive of my work, I spoil it by the taint of selfishness."

Peace, contentment and a certain amount of happiness may be found, but perfect, lasting happiness is not for earth. Life is not alone for pleasure, but for experience, too. Some wise one has said: "The attainment of happiness is a disappointment, but the pursuit of happiness is happiness itself." Another has said: "All is well that ends well, and all that is not well is not yet ended."

We may write like saints and sages on the vanity of seeking earthly happiness and yet ere our ink be dry the most of us will be seeking and believing with the children, "there is golden treasure buried where the rainbow touches earth."

CALLA HARCOURT.

Chesnut, Ill.

We believe in telling the truth even to the young—Ex.

IMPORTANT MATTER FROM OUR FOREIGN EXCHANGES

HARBINGER OF LIGHT, MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA.

SOME OF THE STEPS.

I will now endeavor to outline some of the steps up which the student must climb. Colville lays down two great propositions: First; every human being is capable of uniting himself with the spiritual realm or Unseen Universe by means of desire united with expectation, by steadily concentrating upon that particular spiritual reality with which he desires to ally himself most completely. Second, by following out any line of action (even the humblest), it is possible to mentally advance in the direction inwardly desired, while the hands are occupied in performing tasks of a totally different character. Concentration is always easy in proportion to the amount of affectionate interest felt in the object upon which the mental gaze is rivetted. To steadily concentrate the mental gaze upon an object or to hold persistently to the inward pronunciation of a forceful word is to invoke association of the most intimate kind with the reality which lies behind the chosen symbol: "Call upon me and I will answer," is a sentence which philosophers may well attribute to every plane of consciousness in the universe. Thus when we are informed in the Scriptures that whatever we seek with our whole hearts we shall surely find, we are but reminded in the tersest language that whole hearted, that is, undivided devotion to any object secures our union with it. With concentration and expectation must be combined desire or love. We do not desire a thing unless we like it. Love is the impelling force everywhere. Love is the infinite creative agent by means of which all things are fashioned, for out of love springs desire, aspiration, courage, determinate resolve—in a word, all that can enable us to carry projects into effect. There is a wealth of meaning in Swedenborg's utterance: "Thought gives presence; love gives conjunction." We bring into our presence, or we go into the presence of whatever we fix our thoughts upon; but what we love we become, for the act of loving is the cause of becoming. Silent meditation introspection and self examination show us where we stand inwardly, and in no way can we get our bearings more perfectly than by thinking over a list of subjects on which we could concentrate our attention and then pick out the one above all others on which we desire to concentrate. But it may be asked, "How can people concentrate their attention on spiritual subjects when material cares and duties demand their constant attention?" The reply is, always remember there are two requisites to spiritual growth: first, the desire for it; and second, the expectation of it. Humble manual work is not debasing, and honest duties faithfully performed can never hinder spiritual development.

INDUCES SELF-KNOWLEDGE;

To use an occult term, the "Guardian of the Threshold" always confronts you with the fallacy which you must steadily combat, that your present engagements are so unfavorable to your inward growth that you must abandon either it or them. Inward repose is even more necessary than periodic retirement from the outer world. Always bear in mind

ANDREW JACKSON DAVIS'S

"Magic Staff," "In all conditions keep an even mind." It is only through self-discipline, only through determined, resolute, persistent effort to keep your thought centered on a selected subject that victory can be won over the distracting forces of the earth's chaotic atmosphere. The student in his daily life must gradually train his mind in thinking consecutively and thinking definitely, and he will not permit himself to be led astray by all the manifold temptations to the scattering of thought in every direction. He will read sustained arguments, long lines of argument, which train the mind in going along one definite line for a considerable period, and he will not permit it to leap from one thing to another rapidly, thus intensifying the restlessness which is an obstacle in the path and which will block him utterly until it is overcome. He will learn to choose that of which he thinks; he will no longer allow his thoughts to come and go; he will no longer let a thought come into the mind and fix itself there and decline to be evicted; he will be master in his own house.

If there are any here who regard the scheme of psychic development that I have endeavored to outline as one that is impossible or impracticable, the vain dream of visionaries and mystics, to such I would say: "In the world of spirit all things are possible." Does not every fresh advance of scientific discovery establish the truth that spirit is the real and permanent, and matter but its transitory and changing expression. Do we not find the same truths taught by the inspired teachers of all religions? When Jesus Christ said, "As thy faith is, so shall it be given unto you." "If ye have faith even as a grain of mustard seed ye could remove mountains." "Taking the Kingdom of Heaven by force." What could he mean but that the dominating power of man's spiritual forces (when properly concentrated and directed) over all things material and spiritual. As a clever writer has said, "The curse of the present age is the belief of limitations." This is one of the fetters that bind the human spirit, forged by the materialistic spirit of our age, and which Spiritualists should certainly be the first to shake off. The methods of that I have outlined in this paper are condensed in the following law formulated by Colville and which will bring this paper to a close: "There is a law regulating human welfare absolutely plain and straightforward, and that law can be summarily stated in the following precept: Whatever state you wish to attain, that state image forth as a mental picture. See yourself mentally in the present actual possession of whatever you wish to possess; then through the operation of the law of universal attraction you will, through being a magnet to douse, draw to you and find yourself drawn toward exactly that which is the goal of your desire and the crown of your most fervent aspiration."

PSYCHIC CULTURE

"Religion as Revealed by the Material and Spiritual Universe." By. E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A compact and comprehensive view of the subject; philosophic, historic, analytical and critical; facts and data needed by every student and especially by every Spiritualist. One of the very best books on the subject. Price, reduced to $1, cloth; paper 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?" A pamphlet of 40 pages by Dr. J. M. Peebles, the well-known author. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

THE DAWN, CALCUTTA, INDIA

ASTROLOGY.

The celebrated Nostradamus had also predicted the same fire in London in that year, about eleven years previously, as follows:

"Le sang du juste a Londres fera faute
Brusiez par feu, de vingt et trois les six.

[The blood of the just which has been spilt in London requires it to be burned with fire in '66.] He states that he had made this prediction by "Astronomical Affections." There is a book in the library of the British Museum by a Frenchman, Le Sieur de Pavillon, in which an attack was made by him on his contemporary Nostradamus, and in which he ridiculed the latter's prediction exactly dated, of the French Revolution in 1789 and its duration to 1815. Nostradamus had, it is important to remark, made a public declaration of the fact that the astonishing prediction of what would happen in 1789 was the common property of the mediaeval astrologers, and was first made by the Arab astronomer Albumazar (776—885 A. D.) in his De Magnis Conjunctionibus" (a copy of which is preserved among the archives of the British Museum), nearly a thousand years before the event.

Coming down to more recent times, the testimony of two great men, one, the late R. A. Proctor, the brilliant popularizer of astronomical knowledge, and the other, Sir Edwin Arnold, the singer of Eastern lore and a whilom educationist in India, would be of special interest. That of the astronomer, however, is of an indirect kind, whose value gains by what it opposes or leaves unsaid. The astronomer acknowledged that astrology had a perfectly reasonable basis in theory, but added that "this fascinating theory which has in every age attracted the greatest minds, does not work out in practice and hard fact." And he threw out a challenge in an article entitled "The Planet of Mars," appearing in the Cornhill Magazine for July 1877. The challenge was in these words:

"But if Mars were in truth the planet of war, if his influence poured from near at hand (in perigee) upon the nations of this earth, excited them to war and bloodshed, we might well fear that the coming months would bring desolation in many fair terrestrial fields. For Mars has not blazed so fiercely in our skies since 1845, nor will he so shine again for forty-seven years as during the last days of August and the opening days of September. Moreover, Aurice during his period of greatest splendor, his days will be closely conjoined with those of the malign planet Saturn, the greater Infortune, as Mars himself is the lesser Infortune of astrologic systems."

The challenge thrown out by the astronomer, however, recoiled against him; for the Russo-Turkish war which was at the time when the above-mentioned article appeared regarded by European diplomacy as a mere walk-over for the Russians, soon assumed portentious dimensions; and on the 10th of December "in which," in the language of the Sphinx, "Mars entered his domal dignity, the fiery Aries," Plevna was carried by storm with a carnage unsurpassed in history. In the edition however, of collected papers, "Poetry of Astronomy, 1881," by R. A. Proctor, the challenge thrown out by the author does not find a place, for obvious reasons. Again, in the current number of the Sphinx, there is an article entitled "The Engine of Fate," over the signature of Sir Edwin Arnold, in which he gives a graphic account of a certain disastrous verification of a certain astrological prediction about "Mr. Edward Howard, the Director of Public Instruction in the Presidency of Bombay, under the government of Lord Elphinstone, and immediate chief of the Educational Department," his official supervisor, and directing genius of the Bombay University, and of the Deccan College, of which Sir Edwin was, at the time, the president. Mr. Edward Howard was traveling down by the night express from Poona on important official business, and met his death (at a particular point on the railway previously calculated for him by a Joshi or Astrologer who had cast his horoscope) by the express colliding with a "furious runnaway engine." Not a very long time before the event actually came to pass, the Principal and his Chief had been conversing about Indian astrology, "which is entirely believed by the people of Hindustan, and indeed reduced to an exact system." "Idle as it appears to the Western mind," Sir Edwin goes on to add, "the respect paid to the papers of the 'Joshi' is very deep in India, and over and over again, astounding instances have occurred of correct predictions and timely warnings resulting from them." And then he refers to his Chief having caused his horoscope to be cast, "which was not altogether to his satisfaction." Says Sir Edwin: "Edward Howard had been going into the subject a little, and had caused his own horoscope to be drawn, not altogether to his satisfaction, as he laughingly said, since the old 'Joshi' had told him to be careful about a certain date and locality, with other particulars which now escape my memory." The prediction came out true to the letter, for the actual collision took place "at the point that had been calculated."

The moral of all this, however, seems to us to be that the true scientific inquirer, while not bound to accept astrology as a verified science, should yet be wofully in error if he persists in ignoring facts, is in the spirit of the old Adam in us, he falls back upon the a priori fallacies of the Pre-Baconian days and takes facts or phenomena for fictions, assuming that his present verified knowledge of a particular order of phenomena is the measure of all possible knowledge of all other phenomena. The refusal to recognize or investigate things or events which for the moment is inconsistent with a particular scientific philosophy, is the very antithesis of the scientific spirit; and the shut-your-eyes policy in the scientific domain only finds its parallel in the more pronounced bigotry of theological creeds.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

"Buddhism and Its Christian Critics." By Dr. Paul Carus. An excellent study of Buddhism; compact yet comprehensive. Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

KEEP YOUR EYE ON OUR MAIN PREMIUMS.

The Progressive Thinker one year and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, an intensely interesting, instructive and fascinating work, $1.25. The twenty-five cents only pays a little more than the postage and the expense of mailing. The price of this work to the trade is $1.50. This book will constitute our main premium for the remainder of 1900, and up to May 30, 1901. It is very valuable. It will hold your attention throughout, and will teach you a much needed lesson. The postage on the above book, which we prepay, is ten cents, hence it is almost a gift to our subscribers. It is furnished at considerable less than actual cost to us.

Offer Number Two.

Vol. 1, Vol. 2 and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, will be sent out when accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker, for $1.10. The paper one year, and the three volumes, $2.10. You can add to this order any of the other books, at 40 cents each. You can make only one order for three books for $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Three.

Any three of the books in our premium list that you may select will be sent to you for $1.10. You are at liberty to select any other books in the list that you desire in connection with this order, at 40 cents each. You can only make one order for three books at $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Four.

Our regular premium, The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, is only 25 cents. If you wish to add thereto one of the other premium books only, the same will cost you 50 cents. If you wish two additional books, the cost of the three will be $1.10. You can add thereto any other books you desire at 40 cents each.

Offer Number Five.

If you wish to order only one book in connection with a year's subscription, and that one not our regular yearly premium, the price will be 50 cents.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

OFFER NUMBER SIX.

SEVEN REMARKABLE BOOKS FOR $2.35.

Offered at Far Less Than Actual Cost.

The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol 1, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 2, Price	$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, Price	$ 1.50
Art Magic, or Mundane, Sub-Mundane and Super-Mundane Spiritism. Price	$ 1.50
Ghost Land, Spiritualism, Occultism. Price	$ 1.50
The Next World Interviewed. Price	$ 1.25
The Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate). Price	$ 2.00
Total price to the trade	$10.75
Total price to our subscribers	$ 2.35
The Progressive Thinker one year and the seven premium books	$ 3.35

These seven books, substantially and elegantly bound, and printed in the neatest style of the printer's art will be furnished to our subscribers alone for $2.35. But bear in mind that in order to secure these SEVEN valuable premium books for $2.35, the order must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. The paper one year, $1.00; the seven books, $2.35. Total, $3.35.

The aggregate price of these seven books to the trade is $10.75. In order to assist in forming a Spiritual and Occult Library in every Spiritualist's home, these seven valuable books are furnished to our subscribers for $2.35, which is less by far than their actual cost. The authors make no charge for the vast amount of labor bestowed on these works, and which extended over many years. The publisher receives not a single cent for the great expense he was to, hundreds of dollars being paid out in putting them in type, and electrotyping the pages, and making them ready for the printer. That is why you are getting these intensely interesting books for almost nothing. We are only carrying out the Divine Plan, inaugurated only by The Progressive Thinker. There are thousands of Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper, and this inducement is offered, in order that they may commence forming at once a Spiritual and Occult Library, and thus keep in line with the advancing procession. The postage on the above books and expense of mailing is about 85 cents, hence you are almost receiving them as an absolute gift.

By taking 85 cents from $2.35, you will find that all we have left us for those seven books is only $1.50.

Postmasters.

We have been swindled out of a large amount of money by postmasters, who knowing a person desires The Progressive Thinker, sends his money, deducting a large commission. The Progressive Thinker is one dollar per year. The great rise in print paper renders it utterly impossible for us to give any commission to news agents or postmasters. Any person with ordinary common sense can see that it is impossible for us at present to furnish the paper at 75 cents per year. Our patrons are requested to always deal directly with this office. Any subscription received from whatever source will only be entered on our list for the amount sent. Please take notice of this fact.

WORKS OF THOS. PAINE

THOMAS PAINE'S Examination of the Prophecies.

A consideration of the passages in the New Testament, quoted from the Old and called Prophecies Concerning Jesus Christ. Price 15 cts. For sale at this office.

Paine's Political Works Complete

Two volumes. Theological Works; Poetical and Miscellaneous Works; Life. This set of five volumes all boxed ready for shipping, $5.00 This is the best and cheapest edition and should be on the shelves of every student of liberal thought. For sale at this office

THE AGE OF REASON.

By Thomas Paine. Being an investigation of True and Fabulous Theology. A new and complete edition, from new plates and new type; 196 pages, post 8vo. Paper, 25 cents; cloth, 50 cents.

LIFE OF THOMAS PAINE.

By Editor of the National with Preface and Notes by Peter Eckler. Illustrated with views of the old Paine Homestead and Paine Monument, at New Rochelle, also, portraits of Thomas Clio Rickman, Joe Barlow, Mary Wollstonecraft, Madame Roland, Condorcet, Brissot, and the most prominent of Paine's friends in Europe and America. Cloth, 75 cents.

COMMON SENSE.

By Thomas Paine. A Revolutionary pamphlet, addressed to the inhabitants of America in 1776, with explanatory notice by an English author. Paper, 15 cents.

Paine's Theological Works.

Age of Reason, Examination of the Prophecies, etc. Illus. edition. Post 8vo., 482 pages. Cloth, $1.00

A Study of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

By Lilian Whiting.

Author of "The World Beautiful," "Kate Field," "After Her Death," "From Dreamland Sent," etc. With portrait. 16mo. Cloth, gilt. Price $1.25. The writer of this "Study of Elizabeth Barrett Browning" has thrown the book into five chapters, with sub-titles as follows:

LIVING WITH VISIONS. "Summer Snow of Apple Blossoms;" Music-Flow of Pindar; Friends in the Unseen.

LOVES OF THE POETS. The Prefigured Friend; Vita Nouva; "One Day, My Siren."

IN THAT NEW WORLD. Plas and Poetry; In Casa Guidi; Florentine Days; Walter Savage Landor.

ART AND ITALY. Individuality of Character; The Clasped Hands; Kate Field's Records; Mrs. Browning's Death.

LILIES OF FLORENCE. Poetic Rank; Spiritual Laws; Modern Scientific Thought; The Consideration of Genius.

For Sale at this office.

SOCIAL UPBUILDING,

Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity. By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15c. For sale at this office.

The To-Morrow of Death,

...OR THE...

Future Life According to Science.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH BY S. R. CROCKER.

A VERY FASCINATING WORK.

This fine volume might well have been entitled Spiritualism Demonstrated by Science. It is written in that peculiar interesting style in which French writers excel when they would popularize scientific subjects in adaptation to the needs of the general reader. The author is not a Spiritualist—he even mentions Spiritualists as "devotees of a new superstition," etc., etc., in which he manifests the usual animus of the "scientific class," yet he says again: "There is a true and respectable idea in Spiritualism," and regards as proved "the fact of communication between superhumans and the inhabitants of Earth;" and he goes on to relate instances of fact in evidence. There is, to a Spiritualist, a manifest discrepancy in the authors's ideas, but the well-read mind will readily select and arrange the pros and cons, and out of the whole will find not only good mental culture, but much valuable information. The author holds the theory of reincarnation. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

Joys Beyond the Threshold

A SEQUEL TO

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH.

BY LOUIS FIGUIER.

TRANSLATED FROM THE FRENCH.

THE TO-MORROW OF DEATH was written to develop the idea of the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its reincarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of etherial space. "BEYOND THE THRESHOLD" continues on the same lines, enlarging and expanding the idea by reasons and considerations drawn from science and philosophy; clothing that the certainty of a new birth beyond our earthly end is the best means of arming ourselves against all weakness in the presence of death, and that the help offered by science and philosophy to that end is far superior to that of any of the existing religions. From beginning to end it is interesting, entertaining, instructive and fascinating, and whether one accepts it all or not, much will have been learned and much pleasure enjoyed in its perusal. Price $1.25. For sale at this office.

VOLNEY'S RUINS

—AND—

THE LAW OF NATURE,

∴ TO WHICH IS ADDED ∴

Volney's Answer to Dr. Priestly, a Biographical Notice by Count Daru, and the Zodiacal Signs and Constellations by the Editor;

Also, a Map of the Astrological Heavens of the Ancients.

Printed on heavy paper, from new plates, in large clear type, with portrait and illustrations. One vol., post 8vo, 248 pages; paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

This is undoubtedly one of the best and most useful books ever published. It eloquently advocates the best interests of mankind, and clearly points out the sources of human ignorance and misery. The author is supposed to meet in the ruins of Palmyra an apparition or phantom, which explains the true principles of society, and the causes of both the prosperity and the ruin of ancient states. A general assembly of the nations is at length convened, a legislative body formed, the source and origin of religion, of government, and of laws discussed, and the Law of Nature—founded on justice and equity—is finally proclaimed to an expectant world.

ORIGIN OF SPECIES,

By means of natural selection, or the preservation of a favored race in the struggle for life. By Charles Darwin. Gilt top, cloth bound. This book is the grandest achievement of modern scientific thought and research. It has passed through many editions in English, has been translated into almost all the languages of Europe, and has been the subject of more reviews, pamphlets and separate books than any other volume of the age. Most of the great scientists of the age fully support his position. The thought of this book has become a part of the common inheritance of the race. For sale at this office. Price 75 cts.

"THE DREAM CHILD,"

A Fascinating Romance of Two Worlds. By Florence Huntley. Price, cloth, 75 cents. Books like "The Dream Child" spur humanity on to make more and more demands of this nature, and will open up new heights and depths of spiritual knowledge.—Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Will, I believe, take its place beside Bulwer's "Zanoni" and the "Seraphita" of Balzac.—Daily Capital, Topeka, Kansas. Although simple and unvarnished with any inflammable descriptions, enthralls the mind to the exclusion of other thoughts, until reluctantly the reader closes the last page.—Minneapolis Sunday Times. For sale at this office.

Conflict Between Religion and Science.

Just the book for progressive thinkers. By John W. Draper. Cloth. $1.75. For sale at this office.

Father Tom and the Pope,

Or a Night at the Vatican.

Written probably by Sir Samuel Ferguson. From Blackwood's Edinburg Magazine. This is a humorous account of a rollicksome visit to the Pope of Rome by Father Tom, an Irish priest, armed with a superabundance of Irish wit, two imperial quart bottles of Irish "putteen," and an Irish recipe for "conwounding" the same. "What's that?" says the Pope. "Put in the sperits first," says his Riv'rence; "and then put in the sugar; and remember, every dhrop of water you put in after that, spoils the punch." "Glory be to God," says the Pope, not minding a word Father Tom was saying. "Glory be to God!" says he, smacking his lips. "I never known what dhrink was afore," says he. "It bates the Lachymalchrystal out ov the face," says he—"it's Necthar itself, it is, so it is!" says he, wiping his epistolical mouth wid the cuff of his coat. Paper, 25cts.; cloth, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

THE TALMUD.

Selections from the contents of that ancient book, its commentaries, teachings, poetry, and legends. Also brief sketches of the men who made and commented upon it. By H. Polano. 359 pp. Price, cloth $1.00. For sale at this office.

"WHERE I AM AT."

Elder H. W. B. Myrick Defines His Position in a Lucid Manner.

He Likes the Theory and Philosophy of Spiritualism.

The Progressive Thinker is evidently a very widely read and circulated journal. For artistic arrangement and dainty display of contents it is simply sui generis. Believing a worthy effort should receive the word of encouragement I frankly express my delight and profit in its generous pages of new, helpful and entertaining articles upon such a variety of living issues.

I remark upon its circulation because letters have come to me from New York to California, from Canada to Texas, elicited by my little rencounter with Mr. Burr Chapel. Some have applauded to the echo and some have "skinned" me to their entire satisfaction in whole pages of bad grammar and indecipherable adjectives. One enthusiastic Hoosier (I, too, am one) is troubled about my veracity. I said in one of my articles that Mr. Ingersoll made certain statements regarding Jesus in his last lecture published in The Progressive Thinker. My Indiana friend thereupon, and moved by the spirit of the antiquarian, delves into a file of the papers and triumphantly resurrects from its paper tomb a copy of our well beloved Progressive Thinker containing the last, the very last, lecture of Mr. Ingersoll, and lo! there is no such statement therein as I have attributed to the great and lamented Agnostic. Hence he falls a-foul of me as at least inexcusably ignorant if not actually a liar.

All of which is very disconcerting to a timid man like myself. However, on closer inspection, I discover that the gentleman from the historic Wabash is referring to a lecture given by Mrs. Richmond, in the city of Chicago, and which she, or they, or somebody, "whether in the body or out of the body, God wot," attributed to the shade of the mighty Ingersoll. So I found a way of escape. When I said last lecture I meant the one about the Devil, delivered by Col. Ingersoll himself, in the flesh, very much alive. I do not recognize the speech made by Mrs. Richmond as an Ingersoll lecture at all. I have a collection of the peerless Free-Thinker's speeches, embracing nearly if not quite all of them, and this mediumistic effort is not included.

Understand. I do not say Mrs. Richmond's address was not interesting, even valuable. I make no invidious comparisons between her alleged Ingersoll speech and others which we know to be his. I simply announce that I do not accept it as a lecture inspired by Mr. Ingersoll.

The same gentleman demanded that I should define my position. He wanted to know if I was a Christian or a Spiritualist? Whether I believed in the phenomena of Spiritualism or not, etc.? Perhaps I should tell "where I am at."

I have seen but little of the physical manifestations—a table tipped a few times. Have heard the raps frequently. Witnessed a planchette move once, but at random and unintelligently. That is all. Perhaps it is enough. I am frank to say that physical manifestations do not especially appeal to me. I believe many of them to be genuine evidences of spirit existence and power and hence important and even necessary. But if I had my choice, to-night, of attending a notable materialization seance or of listening to an address by Prof. Lockwood, Moses Hull or Mr. F. E. Titus, I would unhesitatingly choose the lecture. And, moreover, if the choice was between the most noted "inspirational" lecturer and some sturdy thinker and brain worker, who would give us the results of his own thought and research rather than the (alleged) utterances of a disembodied spirit, I will take the latter every time. You may say my faith is weak. I would say that my "bump of credulity" is not abnormally large. With me philosophy takes precedence of phenomena, and brain motion affects me much more favorably than table motion. To my mind Spiritualism should be spiritual. The sensuous show, the glittering spectacle, the tricks of the wizard, the vending of that which arouses the curious, these seem very far from the ideal. Oh! that we all could drop forms and material allurements and "worship in spirit and truth."

Now a word about the inspirational lecture. I have a friend, a fine, sensitive woman, and she is a medium. She "is a discerner of spirits." She is also clairaudient. She describes a spirit who always accompanies me and she tells me what he says. For all I know to the contrary she may actually see my uncle in spirit by my side, and she may hear what he says and correctly repeat it to me. How am I to know? I do not wish to question her honesty—will not in fact.

But here is my difficulty. My friend is a cultured woman. She is a prominent worker in the M. E. Church. She is district president of the W. C. T. U. She can offer a fine prayer or make us a splendid speech. And when, with closed eyes, she rattles off to me a nice little speech, full of trite and commonplace remarks, announcing that these things are delivered to her for me by the spirit of my Uncle Jackson, "I am in a strait betwixt two." For I know that she is abundantly able to make that speech herself. So, no doubt, is Mrs. Richmond equal to the task of making even an Ingersoll speech. And I do not know if the spirits of the departed really said these things or not.

I know this seems an ungracious thing to say. I wish that I could state it otherwise but it is quite impossible. I do not wish to question the integrity of these ladies. For all I know or can prove to the contrary, they are really only the mediums through whom departed spirits actually address us out of the "pale realm of shades." But I know of no expedient which will banish from my consciousness the fact that these good women are able, without any spiritual prompting, to deliver just such discourses. And as long as this stern fact is in the way I may be pardoned a little incredulity. Somebody, even these mediums themselves, may be deceived.

In fact there is no adage we need to treasure more than this: "Be not deceived." I had a good friend, a teacher, some years ago, a strong Spiritualist, and often after hearing me preach he would say: "You are an inspirational speaker. Some of the spirit friends are impressing their thought and influence upon you." I would feel flattered. And the lady of whom I speak tells me that my spirit uncle—who was a Christian preacher in earth life—is my control, and that, unknown to myself, he has often controlled in the delivery of my most successful sermons. Add to this the fact that I often do feel an uplift in speaking, a sublime ease of speech, a peculiar inflow of beautiful thoughts entirely unpremeditated, and you have the foundation for a nice little case of self-deception. I could no doubt easily have persuaded myself, with a little help from others, that I was controlled by the spirit of a dead orator, and, deceived myself, have deceived others.

But here again my natural element of skepticism saved me a mistake so preposterous. I took myself by the collar, so to speak, and sat myself down hard. With close analysis I sifted my claims to inspiration. I had a shorthand report made of some of the most eloquent and effectual sermons I delivered. Then, calmly, unmoved by the magnetic surroundings or the flattery of friends, I dissected those precious specimens of oratory. I found they did not contain a fact which was not already a portion of my mental hoard; not an apt quotation or poetic pearl which had not already been stored up in memory for such an occasion. In short, the speeches were simply on the level of my own attainments. My work in school, my library, my papers and magazines, my contact with lecturers at various gather—all these explained my very best efforts without the necessity of summoning back the departed shade of my respected uncle. So my only claim to spiritual gifts passed away at a very early stage—it died a bornin'.

For the rest, I am simply an investigator. I like the theory, or, if you prefer, the philosophy of Spiritualism. This teaching of the life here and its relation to that which is hereafter is not only beautiful but it is reasonable. Instead of an arbitrary system forced upon the belief, it is a rational scheme of things which enlists in its support the love of the heart and the thought of the brain. I am impressed with the thought that it is true. And the various kinds of phenomena may all be genuine so far as I know.

I began the investigation of Spiritualism by reading Samuel Watson's book, "The Clock Struck One." I have just finished "The Seers of the Ages," by Dr. Peebles. In between I have read Owen, Davis, Denton, Epes Sargent, and others, a goodly array. And during all these years I have preached, in the name of Jesus, mercy, truth, love, kindness, the hope of immortality and the unending Life Beautiful. Looking back, dispassionately, at those years of preaching, I find but little to regret. I honestly believe that my work, as a whole, has made for the extension of Righteousness. In accepting Spiritualism I am under no painful necessity of retracting a great deal that I have heretofore said and done.

So to my friend—all my friends—I would say: Taking the best there is in Christianity, I am a Christian. Taking the best there is in Spiritualism, I am a Spiritualist. Much that passes and is preached as Christianity I reject; and much that seems, at least, to pass muster as Spiritualism is to me absurd and even vicious. But I judge no man. I am among you for good—especially to get good. If any, like my Hoosier friend, want to know who and what I am, this is my reply. I am sincerely yours,

H. W. B. MYRICK.

Gentryville, Mo.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Sunday was an ideal day at camp. We had the pleasure of listening to Mr. A. E. Tisdale in the forenoon, while at the afternoon and evening meetings Mrs. Carpenter, assisted by her husband, were the workers. More than 1,400 persons turned out to greet them. It was the closing lecture for Mr. Tisdale and the beginning of Mrs. Carpenter's engagement. Mr. Tisdale delivered a fine lecture. It was full of instruction and good advice.

Mrs. Carpenter's lectures were also good. At the close of each lecture Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter gave descriptions and spirit messages. They were all recognized. "Snowdrop," Mrs. Carpenter's control, was as good as she could be. She is and has always been a great favorite with Grand Rapids people. It was due to her work more than anything else that this camp was organized. Mrs. Blake was ordained by F. T. Ripley at the afternoon meeting. On account of the great number of campers and visitors present all the time, it has been decided to hold our conference meetings in the forenoon and have a lecture and test meeting in the afternoon.

Mrs. Merrill was with us on Sunday with her autoharp and favored us with some very nice songs in her own way, which is entirely her own. The singing of Mrs. Claman, Mrs. Wagner and Mrs. Haynes was also well appreciated. At the evening service Prof. Harris and Mrs. Merrill sang with much expression that incomparable piece of Mr. Longley, "When I Go Home." Altogether our camp is progressing nicely despite the wet weather. Everyone seems to be having a good time.

T. J. HAYNES, Secretary.

Swensonia Ranch, Texas.

On July 4 and 5, 1900, we celebrated with a grove meeting and basket picnic the 124th Anniversary of American Independence, on the Swensonia Ranch, near Caddo, Texas. The celebration was well attended and all seemed to enjoy themselves well. The morning ceremonies consisted in Prof. N. N. Rosenquist delivering the address of welcome and Prof. T. W. Brown, of Breckenridge, reading the Declaration of Independence, followed by song and music, when the noted inspirational speaker, James Madison Allen, of Springfield, Mo., arose and delivered an address on independent thought and action in all of our undertakings, which remarks were very appropriate for the occasion.

The time having arrived for our physical bodies to be sustained, all enjoyed themselves from the contents of their baskets. After dinner we had more music and song, after which Bro. Allen again arose and delivered an address about "Spiritually uplifting of humanity and the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man." This ended the first day.

On the 5th we had selected music on organ and violin with song, and Bro. Allen spoke on the text, "A True Life," which was very much appreciated. The balance of the day was spent in mutual and friendly conversation, and thus ended our first gathering of reformatory work. We congratulate the managers of the celebration for their noble efforts on their side to make the gathering a success, as well as the people in general for their courteous manner and good behavior when we consider the many different minds gathered together. Their actions were kindly and peaceful, and we extend hearty thanks to all.

Bro. Allen made many warm friends while here who will long remember him for his kind and gentle words that made a deep impression upon all.

PETER SWENSON.

Caddo, Texas.

TOLERATION.

Let Him That Is Without Sin Cast the First Stone.

Many accusations are hurled at Spiritualists and Spiritualism by those who imagine they have all the truth bound in their little bundles, not being overly burdened with toleration, but absolutely fettered with fanaticism. They seem unwilling that we shall have the privilege of "sifting the wheat from the chaff," or of "working out our own salvation." Not being able to meet us in argument, many will fling out accusations, forgetting that when Jesus invited those without sin to cast the first stone, the battle terminated, because the accusers were self-condemned, and they wrapped their robes of self-righteousness about them and departed, so that there were none left to witness against the poor woman, who was one of God's family, though a sinner like unto her accusers.

No doubt there are some who call themselves Spiritualists, who may have unsavory reputations—black sheep in the flock—who are not true to Spiritualism, and cannot claim what does not belong to them, any more than can a member of any other religious denomination, whose life casts a shadow upon everything about them.

We often read of ministers of the gospel proving recreant to their trusts, and actually becoming the very chief of sinners, but such unworthy members cannot be cited as an argument against Christianity. If we listen, we can hear that same voice coming down to us from the hills of Palestine, saying, "Go, and sin no more." "Neither do I condemn thee." How strangely in contrast is the conduct of some of these hot-headed churchites, to the teachings of the Man of Sorrows, who was willing to forgive. These would-be followers of the Master desire swift and terrible punishment to be meted out to those who do not think and act in accord with their contracted vision. Some of the most frightful and bloody wars have been waged because of this kind of fanaticism. This idea of coercing or shooting religious beliefs into people who desire to exercise the liberty that God has given them, should be relegated to the shades of the barbarous past.

The marvelous number of beliefs that humanity promulgates, and then nurse until they actually believe that God inspired every word verbally, is very bewildering to those who allow others to do their own thinking.

The man has not yet been born who can tell us all about the attributes of the Creator, and yet some of the small electric lights, of one-candle-power, who claim to have been called to preach, can inform us exactly along lines pertaining to our duties here and beyond, and measure with great precision the mysteries that confound greater intellects. When these men study with greater care the real life of him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom," they must see how wide apart they are from his well-rounded character; see how deficient they are in toleration and in love for humanity.

Surely we must soon witness great changes toward a more perfect brotherhood. We cannot afford to go back to the ages of superstition and bigotry. Let us bear in mind that the humblest member of God's family is entitled to an honorable place in the great vineyard, without money and without price, character being the only passport. The rich men in this world may be beggars in the next. Kings and queens cannot take their earthly crowns beyond the terminal of their physical existence. There they will have to be side-tracked as being classed among the things that perish with the using.

ANNEX.

"Death Defeated."

The literary activity of Dr. Peebles at his advanced age is remarkable, and is itself a signal illustration of the efficacy and potency of the hygienic rules not only taught but practically exemplified by him. If anything the Doctor writes with greater force and vigor than in his earlier years. We may not always agree with all that he says, but we cannot gainsay the fact that he has the courage of his convictions, that he is intensely in earnest, and that his utterances and his writings voice no uncertain sound.

I am under obligations to the Doctor for a copy of his recent book on "Death Defeated." I have carefully read it, and I find in it much, very much, of sound, practical instruction, suggestion and advice. One of the most important things in this world is to understand the laws of right living and to live in accordance therewith; and Dr. Peebles' "Death Defeated" is an invaluable aid in this direction. It is chock-full of excellent matter, clearly and plainly presented. Nature intends that each one of us should live in this world as long as possible and in as good health as possible; and this book tells us how to accomplish it.

In an article in The Progressive Thinker of June 23, Mr. Hudson Tuttle, in an extended review of this work, said of it much that is in consonance with my own views anent it—said it, too, better than I could have said it. This relieves me of the necessity of making a detailed or long review of it at this time, which I could hardly have done in any event, owing to my state of health.

The great press of work devolving upon me, in connection with my duties in the War Department, since the beginning of the war with Spain, and continuance to the present, consequent upon the military operations in the Philippines, has aided in impairing my health, and for the last year or two my health has been such that I have been unable to do any literary work or mental labor of any consequence outside of that which I have to do daily in the office of the chief quartermaster, U. S. Army, in San Francisco. I do not know when I shall be able to engage again in literary work. My inability to do any important literary work was one reason why I made no reply at the time to the various unjust attacks of certain writers in The Progressive Thinker upon my article on Dr. Peebles' "Christ Question Settled." Perforce, I had to leave unnoticed their misstatements about me and what I have published in that work. And now I can only say that I have stated therein nothing but indubitable facts—facts historical, archaeological, linguistic, etc. I ever strive to present the exact truth; and the exact truth, so far as known or ascertainable at the time, is found in my contributions to the composition of the "Christ Question Settled." This every competent, unbiased scholar knows to be true.

WM. EMMETTE COLEMAN.

San Francisco, Cal.

"Wedding Chimes." By Delpha Pearl Hughes. A tasty, beautiful and appropriate wedding souvenir. Contains marriage ceremony, marriage certificate, etc., with choice matter in poetry and prose. Specially designed for the use of the Spiritualist and Liberal ministry. Price 75 cents. For sale at this office.

THE LAND OF MAGIC.

Modern Miracles and Miracle Workers of Thibet.

MARVELOUS SIGHTS WITNESSED BY TRAVELERS IN THAT PRACTICALLY UNKNOWN LAND—A WONDERFUL BABY.

The country known to English-speaking folk as Thibet bears a very different name among its own people. It is called Bod, or Bod-yul, "the country of Bod." The name Bod probably refers to Buddha, Thibet being the headquarters of what is termed Northern Buddhism, in contradistinction to the Buddhism of Ceylon, which is spoken of as Southern Buddhism. In India proper Buddhism is no longer a dominant cult.

Though ostensibly Buddhists, the people of Bod are in reality slaves to Lamaism, a system of theology which has been defined as "Buddhism corrupted by Sivaism and by Shamanism or spirit worship." Shamanism is the dominant cult of Mongolia, and is a system of demon worship rather than spirit worship.

Thibet is regarded by students of the occult as the home of magic, and whether or no there be "Mahatmas" in that wild and weird land, in which the late Mme. Blavatsky, the high priestess of theosophy, it is claimed, served a seven-year apprenticeship in the magic art, we have it on the most respectable testimony that the lamas of Bod-yul can and do perform feats which have not yet been explained in terms of science and which can only be classed as magical.

The performance of the Bokts, or wonder-working lamas, are quite as astonishing in their way as those of the Indian fakirs, who are Mohammedans, or of the Sanyahis or Yogis, who are Brahmins, but they are usually terrible and revolting. A Thibetan Bokt, who had wandered from his native land and penetrated as far as Benares, gave an exhibition of his wonderful powers in one of the vast temples of the holy city a few years ago. He was accompanied and assisted by a mongrel crowd of half-human compatriots. The exhibition promised by the wonderful magician was truly an astonishing one. He proposed, in view of all beholders, to rip up his abdomen, remove a handful of intestines, display them to the spectators and then replace them again and heal up the wound by a few magical passes, leaving no vestige of the damage inflicted.

Needless to say such exhibitions are not every-day occurrences, and the ordinary globe trotter might traverse India from Cape Comorin to Nepal and not be fortunate enough to witness so marvelous, if revolting, a spectacle as that in question.

When the hour of noon arrived the lama appeared and took his seat before the raised altar, on which candles had been lighted. Before him was a radiant image of the sun, and on either side of the altar were grim idols which had been placed there by the attendants.

The lama was in person a small, spare man, with fixed, glittering eyes, an emaciated frame and an immense mass of long black hair, which floated over his shoulders. He appeared altogether like a walking corpse, in whose head two blazing fires had been lighted, which gleamed in unnatural luster through his long, almond-shaped eyes. He was about forty years of age, and report alleged that he had already some four times previously performed the great sacrificial act he was now about to repeat.

From the moment this skeleton figure had taken his seat the seventy fakirs who surrounded him in a semi-circle began to sway their bodies back and forth, singing meanwhile a loud, monotonous chant in rhythm with their movements. In a few minutes the gesticulations of the fakirs increased almost to frenzy. They tossed their arms on high, bent their bodies to earth, now forward, now backward, now swung them around as if thrown by the hands of others. Meantime their monotonous chant rose into shrieks and yells so frightful that the ears of the listeners were deafened and their senses distracted by the clamor. On every side of the auditorium braziers of incense were burning. Six fakirs swung pots of frankincense, filling the air with intoxicating vapors, while six others stood behind, beating metal drums or clashing cymbals, which they tossed on high with gestures of frantic exultation. For some time the howls, shrieks and distracting actions of this maniac crew produced no effect on the immovable lama.

SAT LIKE ONE DEAD.

He sat like one dead, his fixed and glassy eyes seeming to stare into illimitable distance, without heeding the pandemonium that was raging around him. "Can he be really living?" whispered one of the awestruck Englishmen to his neighbor; but this question was speedily answered by the series of convulsive shudderings which at length shook the lama's frame. His dark eyes rolled wildly, and finally nothing but their whites were to be seen, spasm after spasm threatening to shiver the frail tenement and expel its quivering life. The teeth were set, and the features distorted as in the worst phases of epilepsy, when suddenly, and just as the tempest of horrible cries and distortions was at its height, the lama seized the long, glittering knife which lay across his knee, drew it rapidly up the length of the abdomen, and then displayed, in all their revolting horror, the proofs of the sacrifice in the protruding intestines.

The crowd of awestruck ascetics bent their heads to the earth in mute worship. Not a sound broke the stillness but the deep breathing of the spectators. At length one of them, who had witnessed such scenes before, addressed the living creature—for living he still was, though he uttered no sound nor raised his drooping head from his breast—and said: "Man, can you tell us by what power this deed of blood is performed without destruction of life?"

A dead silence ensued. The living corpse moves. It raises its quivering hands and scoops up the blood from the wound, bears it to the lips, which breathe upon it. They then return to the wound, begin to press the severed parts together and remake the mutilated body. The fakirs shout and send up praises to Brahma; the drums beat; the cymbals clash; shrieks, prayers, invocations resound on all sides. The fragrant incense ascends; the flute players planted on the outskirts of the estate pour forth their shrill cadence; the harps of some European servants stationed in a distant apartment and previously instructed, send forth strains of sweet melody amid the frantic clamor.

The ecstatic makes a few more passes, and after wrapping a scarf previously prepared over the body as if to cleanse it from the gore in which it was steeped, suddenly he stands upright, casts all his upper garments from him and displays a body unmarked by a single scar. Gesticulations, cries, shouts subside; low murmurs of admiration and worship pass through the breathless assembly, and then the Bokt, clasping his thin hands and elevating his glistening eyes to heaven, utters, in a deep, low tone, far different from the shrill wail of the half-dead sacrifice, a short but fervent prayer of thankfulness, and all is finished.

A Florentine traveler succeeded in penetrating in disguise to Potala shortly after the death of a Dalai lama, and describes what he saw in connection with the reincarnation of the Buddha who had taken up his abode in the body of a young child.

"An altar is ready in the temple to receive the resuscitated Buddha found by the initiated priesthood, and recognized by certain secret signs to have reincarnated himself in a new-born infant. The baby, but a few days old, is brought into the presence of the people and reverentially placed upon the altar. Suddenly rising to a sitting posture the child begins to utter in a loud, manly voice the following sentences: 'I am Buddha; I am his spirit, and I, Buddha, your Dalai Lama, have left my old decrepit body at the temple of * * and selected the body of this young babe as my earthly dwelling.'"

The Florentine says he was permitted by the priests to take the baby in his arms and carry it off some distance, so as to satisfy himself that it was no trick of the ventriloquist. The infant opened his eyes and gave him such a look that it made his flesh creep, and then repeated the same words, so there could be no mistake about it. This account is confirmed by Abbe Huc, who states that the child answers questions and tells those who knew him in his past life the most exact details of his anterior earthly existence.

This incident is inexplicable, but it is not without collateral support from independent sources.—Home Magazine.

A STRANGE TALE.

Led by the Ghost of Former Master.

THE SERVANT SAYS HE WAS DIRECTED TO WHERE HIS FORTUNE WAS BURIED.

There is a ghostly phase in the finding of the buried treasure of the late Captain Richard P. Thomas beneath the old log cabin which the aged capitalist built with his own hands just beyond La Loma, his suburban home in the Berkeley hills. John Downey, a workman employed by Mrs. Thomas, is authority for the ghost story. It was Downey who discovered the corpse of the capitalist on the day of his death lying across the steps of the cabin. This is quite close to the log structure beneath which the treasure was buried.

According to Downey, ever since the death of the capitalist, a month ago, strange noises have been nightly heard in the vicinity of the spot where the gold and bonds were concealed. These noises were generally confined to the midnight hours, which is supposed to be the popular time for ghosts to promenade. On several occasions Mr. Downey, on being awakened from his sleep by the noise, peered out into the night, but he never was able to catch a glimpse of the shade of his former employer.

The sounds which emerged from under the log house, he says, were strange and uncanny. He never heard the jangle of chains, which up-to-date spooks are supposed to carry around with them, but he is positive he heard noises that were anything but earthly. He told a number of his fellow workmen of his experience and admitted that he was afraid to leave his house after dark.

It may be a coincidence, but many people regard it as marvelously strange that the gold and bonds were found where the shade of Captain Thomas is supposed to have lingered.

"No," said Downey yesterday; "I never saw his ghost, but I hear him. The noise which always accompanied his presence came from beneath the log cabin just where the gold and bonds were discovered. I found the corpse of the captain lying across the entrance to my cabin on the day of his death. I don't know much about ghosts and I am not superstitious, but I must confess that the sounds which came from under the log house scared me. I told some of the workmen about it, and they tried to make me think I was the victim of imagination, but I wasn't.

In a large stone jar discovered under the log house by the searchers for the wealth of Captain Thomas, $8,100 in $20-gold pieces was found. In a niche of the chimney of this structure was $100 in gold and seven empty purses. In addition to the cash, $10,000 in government bonds was in the stone jar. The sum total of the find was $18,200. Mrs. Thomas admitted this yesterday.

The story of the finding of the buried treasure published in yesterday's "Examiner" created much comment among the friends and former business associates of the eccentric old soldier on both sides of the bay. And now the wise men who were interested in the failure of the California National Bank in 1888 are wagging their heads and stroking their beards as they swap the stories that were going the rounds at the time of the bank's collapse.

Twelve years ago Captain Thomas was the subject of general condemnation, when the California National Bank, of which he was president, closed its doors and posted a notice that business was suspended. There were many who believed President Thomas had retained a fortune.

An investigation followed. There were no end of sensational rumors regarding the developments that would accompany the findings of the men conducting the investigation. But when the work was completed Mr. Thomas was exonorated from all blame.

This whitewashing, however, could not convince the associates of the president that the bank had been properly conducted, and to the time of his death there were many who believed he had buried the treasures which he was supposed to have taken from the bank. The discovery of the gold and the bonds has led to a revival of these tales.

But the chances are that the gold was the money belonging to the Standard Soap Company, of which the captain was president at the time of his death. A few days before his passing away he drew $8,000 of this money from an Oakland bank. His widow believes that this was the money found under the log cabin.

For some time before his death, Captain Thomas acted strangely. He was a very secretive man and objected to anyone questioning him about his financial affairs.

For the past month a search has been under way in quest of this wealth. The servants of the house were not told about the search and everything possible was done to keep the work secret.—The Examiner, San Francisco, Cal.

Catholic Before Anything Else.

A few days ago the New York Sun had an editorial on Bishop McFaul's declaration that it was time for Roman Catholics to make themselves felt politically. The Sun editor professed to be unable to explain why the Catholic church sticks so close to the Democratic party. A correspondent enlightens the Sun in a letter which that paper prints, as follows:

"Your editorial on Bishop McFaul's proposition hardly does justice to the intelligence of your readers, the majority of whom know by observation why the Roman Catholics vote the Democratic ticket.

"The bishop says there are twelve million Catholics out of a total population of seventy million. The absurdity of running a Catholic political party while in this minority is plain on its face—more ice can be cut, more benefit to the church received by allying themselves with the party which offers them the largest inducements.

"An examination of the payroll of Greater New York, including the employees of the city works, police, fire, charities, and correction—all the city departments without exception, will show that a majority of the employees and heads of departments are Roman Catholics and out of proportion to the numbers in the population. The city works department and charities department are notoriously so.

"If you will step across the park from the Sun office into the City Hall you can readily convince yourself of the facts."

Catholics are Democrats wherever Democrats have the patronage to dispense, and they are Republicans where that party governs. New York Catholics are Tammany men at present, because Tammany is in the saddle, but apparently they were Republicans in 1890, when New York went for McKinley. In his own vicinage the Catholic prelate is a Democrat or a Republican, according to prevailing sentiment. If he takes a hand nowadays in national politics he is an administration Republican, like Archbishop Ireland. Everywhere he is a Catholic before he is anything else—even a man.—Truth Seeker.

OUR PREMIUMS.

There are many Spiritualists who know a good thing when they see it. There are others, however, who do not seem to realize what is going on around them, and therefore miss many chances to enrich their minds and enlarge their understanding. Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World is furnished to our subscribers at less than cost, and should be in every family in the United States, whether Spiritualists or not. Volumes 1, 2 and 3 constitute a wonderful magazine of thought on Death in its multifarious phases; in fact you can not find in all the libraries of the world as valuable information in regard to Death as you will have presented to you in these three volumes. They are nicely printed, neatly and substantially bound, and are an ornament to any library. Volume 3 is furnished at 25 cents, much less than the actual cost to us, and the three volumes, when ordered in connection with a yearly subscription to The Progressive Thinker, only cost $1.10. The aggregate cost of the three books to the trade is $4.50. At this price, these three books ought to be in every Spiritualist family.

The Progressive Thinker is the first Spiritualist paper to inaugurate the Divine Plan—a portion of the profits of the office returning to subscribers in valuable books.

FOR a moment stop and consider. The Progressive Thinker is the one original dollar Spiritualist paper. It introduced a new era in the ranks of Spiritualism. Its success financially has been all that could be desired. Notwithstanding the rise in the price of print paper, it has still maintained its status as the only one dollar Spiritualist paper. Not only that, but it introduced the Divine Plan in its business with its subscribers—a portion of the profits of the office returning to them. Just think of the Seven Premium Books being sent out to our subscribers for $2.35. After paying the postage of these seven books, and the expense of mailing them, all that we have left is $1.50. You can readily see that we are furnishing them for less, by far, than the actual cost to us. We do this work in accordance with The Divine Plan, in order to assist in forming the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home. Read carefully our premium list, and you will certainly want to become a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker, if not so already, and obtain the books we announce.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"After Her Death. The Story of a Summer." By Lilian Whiting. No mind that loves spiritual thought can fail to be fed and delighted with this book. Beautiful spiritual thought, combining advanced ideas on the finer and ethereal phases of Spiritualism, leading the mind onward into the purer atmosphere of exalted spiritual truth. A book for the higher life. For sale at this office. Price, cloth, $1.

"Arcana of Spiritualism: A Manual of Spiritual Science and Philosophy." By Hudson Tuttle. A spiritual text-book of rich and inspired thought. An excellent work. Finely bound in scarlet and gold. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Fourteen beautiful, soul-inspiring songs, with music, by C. Payson Longley. Price by mail, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Longley's Beautiful Songs." Vol. 2. Sweet songs and music for home and social meetings. For sale at this office. Price 15 cents.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail." By Chas. B. Newcomb. Excellent in spiritual suggestiveness. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

"The World Beautiful." By Lilian Whiting. Most excellent in their high and elevating spirituality of thought. Series 1, 2, and 3, each complete in itself. Price, cloth, $1 per volume. For sale at this office.

THE WORLD BEAUTIFUL

SERIES ONE TWO AND THREE.

BY LILIAN WHITING.

Three choice volumes, each complete in itself, in which spirituality is related to everyday life in such a way as to make the world beautiful. Price $1 each. For sale at this office.

Cultivation of Personal Magnetism

A Treatise on

HUMAN CULTURE.

By Leroy Berrier, Anthropologist and Author. A very suggestive and instructive book. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Psychopathy, or Spirit Healing

A series of lessons on the relations of the spirit to its own organism, and the inter-relation of human beings with reference to health, disease and healing. By the spirit of Dr. Benjamin Rush, through the mediumship of Mrs. Cora L. V. Richmond. A book that every healer, physician and Spiritualist should read. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

PSYCHE

Is the invention of a practical medium, under spirit guidance, and is designed to develop mediumship. Many, by its use, have received long communications from spirit friends, and express great satisfaction. Price, $1, and 20 cents extra for expressage. For sale at the office of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

Out of the Depths Into the Light.

By Samuel Bowles; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, medium. This is a very interesting little book, and will be appreciated from start to finish by all who wish to gain spiritual information. Price 25 cts. For sale at this office.

OUTSIDE THE GATES

and other tales and sketches. By a band of spirit intelligences, through the mediumship of Mary Theresa Shelhamer. An excellent work. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA

According to Old Records.

By Dr. Paul Carus. A translation made from Japanese, under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyen, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was published in Japan. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

Views of Our Heavenly Home.

By Andrew Jackson Davis. A highly interesting work. Price 75 cents. Postage 5 cents. For sale at this office.

The Religion of Spiritualism,

Its Phenomena and Philosophy. By Rev. Samuel Watson. This ork was written by a modern Savior, a grand and noble man. Price $1.00.

DEATH AND THE AFTER LIFE

By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something you should read. Price 60 cents. For sale at this office.

TWO IN ONE.

A COMBINATION OF

"The Question Settled" and "The Contrast" Into one Volume.

BY MOSES HULL.

This highly instructive and interesting work is a combination into one volume of two of Mr. Hull's splendid works. By this arrangement the cost is such that the reader is enabled to secure the two books complete at the same price as was formerly asked for them separately. This volume contains 462 pages and is handsomely bound in cloth, and contains an excellent portrait of the author.

THE QUESTION SETTLED

is a candid comparison of Biblical and Modern Spiritualism. No book of the century has made so many converts to Modern Spiritualism as this. The author's aim, faithfully to compare the Bible with modern phenomena and philosophy, has been accomplished. The adaptation of Spiritualism to the wants of humanity; its moral tendency; the Bible Doctrine of angel ministry; the spiritual nature of man, and the objections offered to Spiritualism, are all considered in the light of the Bible, nature, history, reason and common sense, and expressed clearly and forcibly.

THE CONTRAST

consists of a critical comparison of Evangelicalism and Spiritualism. It is a most able production, and is a perfect storehouse of facts for those who wish to defend Spiritualism, or find arguments against the assumptions of Orthodoxy.

PRICE $1. FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

MAN THE MICROCOSM.

His Infinite and Divine Relations. Intuition—The Light Within. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

KAREZZA.

ETHICS OF MARRIAGE.

By Alice B. Stockham, M. D.

Karezza makes a plea for a better birthright for children, and aims to lead individuals to seek a higher development of themselves through most sacred relations. It is pure in tone and aim, and should be widely circulated. Price, cloth, $1.

ASTRAL WORSHIP.

By J. H. Hill, M. D. A valuable contribution to the current discussion of religious problems. The author by illustrations and a planisphere (a representation of the celestial sphere upon a plane with adjustable circles), traces most of the myths which lie at the base of Christianity to their origin in sun and star worship. The astronomical facts given possess great value, the illustrations rare and curious. The book is bound in only one style—heavy boards. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Superstition in all Ages

Or "Le Bon Sens,"

By JEAN MESLIER,

A Roman Catholic priest, who, after a pastoral service of thirty years in France, wholly abjured religious dogmas, and asked God's pardon for having taught the Christian religion. He left this volume as his last will and testament to his parishioners and to the world. Translated from the French original by Miss Anna Knoop.

Post 8vo., 399 pages, with portrait. Cloth, $1.00; postage, 14 cents.

"The work of the honest pastor is the most curious and the most powerful thing of the kind that the last century produced. . . . Paine and Voltaire had reserves, but Jean Meslier had none. He keeps nothing back; and yet, after all, the wonder is not that there should have been one priest who left that testimony at his death, but that all priests do not."—James Parton.

EVOLUTIONISM.

A Series of Illustrated Lectures Upon the

EVOLUTION OF ALL THINGS IN THE UNIVERSE.

BY OLNEY H. RICHMOND,

Price, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL ALPS

And How We Ascend Them.

How to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. By Moses Hull. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper 25 cts. For sale at this office.

Apocryphal New Testament

Being all the Gospels, Epistles, and other pieces now extant, attributed in the first four centuries to Jesus Christ, his apostles and their companions, and not included in the New Testament by its compilers. Cloth, $1.50. For sale at this office.

VOLTAIRE'S ROMANCES.

A New Edition, Profusely Illustrated.

"I choose that a story should be founded on probability, and not always resemble a dream. I desire to find nothing in it trivial or extravagant; and I desire above all, that under the appearances of fable, there may appear some latent truth, obvious to the discerning eye, though to escape the observation of the vulgar."—VOLTAIRE.

CONTENTS: "The White Bull," a Satirical Romance; "Zadig, or Fate," an Oriental History; "The Sage and the Atheist;" "The Princess of Babylon;" "The Man of Forty Crowns;" "The Huron, or Pupil of Nature;" "Micromegas," a Satire on Mankind; "The World as it Goes;" "The Black and the White;" "Memnon, the Philosopher;" "Andre Des Touches at Siam;" "Bababec;" "The Study of Nature;" "A Conversation With a Chinese;" "Plato's Dream;" "A Pleasure in Having no Pleasure;" "An Adventure in India;" "Jeannot and Colin;" "Travels of Scarmentado;" "The Good Brahmin;" "The Two Comforters;" "Ancient Faith and Fable."

One volume, post 8vo, 480 pages, with portrait and 84 illustrations. Extra vellum cloth, $1.50 postage, 15 cents.

"Voltaire's satire was keen and fine-pointed as a rapier."—Magazine of Am. History.

"A delightful reproduction, unique and refreshing."—Boston Commonwealth.

PERFECT MOTHERHOOD,

Or Mabel Raymond's Resolve,

By Lois Waisbrooker. This is a novel written with a purpose to improve the human race; to mold the future offspring with reason, health and inspiration. No one need be afraid of this book. Price $1, postpaid. For sale at this office.

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year	$1.00
Six months	50c
Thirteen weeks	25 cts
Single copy	5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Progressive Thinker is furnished in the United States at $1.00 per year, the postage thereon being but nominal, but when it is sent to foreign countries we are compelled to charge 50 cents extra, making the yearly subscription $1.50. Please bear that in mind.

SATURDAY, JULY 28, 1900.

The Missionary, Then War.

Lord Salisbury is reported to have lately said: "Too often the army follows the missionary."

The Chinese have a proverb: "First comes the missionary, then the consul, and then the general." They could have added with truth: "And in the trail of the general comes all the munitions of war, with destruction of cities, desolated homes and a slaughtered people."

The New York Times says: "The missionary is disliked, especially in China, not as a Christian, but as a 'drummer,' as an advance agent of a Manchester firm, to force goods at the cannon's mouth, if need be, on the native population."

It is in the disguise of "traders" the missionary gained access under the treaty to China. It was that fraud practiced on the Chinese authorities which made their presence so very obnoxious. Then they gained by later treaties favors which the native population did not share, and this inspired the formation of secret societies, known to us as Boxers, which are threatening the overthrow of the Chinese empire, first shown in a racial war on all foreigners.

The indiscriminate slaughter of foreign legations to China, and possibly of all foreigners, if true, is a terrible calamity which shocks all of us, but if present advices can be trusted, it was not the work of the Chinese government as such, but that of an organized mob, otherwise a revolt, threatening the overthrow of the constituted government. It was an event which is liable to occur in any country during periods of great excitement.

When we see the violence our own labor strikers exhibit on some occasions we dare not write that the United States is not in danger of being subject for a time to mob rule.

A whole people may become temporarily insane, as do individuals, under grievous afflictions, as has been shown repeatedly in the acts of Southern mobs, liable to duplication at any moment in our own North under like provocation.

Then let us moderate our hatred of the Chinese mob, however numerous it may be, until we learn the extent of their grievances, real or imagined.

Churches Draw Lightning.

So many church buildings have been struck by lightning during the last few months the wiseacres ministering in them have set out to ascertain the cause. They have finally come to the conclusion that "churches draw lightning," probably because of the sacredness of the structure, and the great moral worth of those who worshiped in them. It was only a few days ago a bolt of Jove crushed through the walls of a church, entered the head of the preacher as he had just engaged in prayer, and left him a blackened corse, the spirit fled.

The old theology maintained that God employed the elements as the messengers of his will, and executors of his judgments. The priest killed at his devotions, in the presence of his awe-stricken parishioners, in their philosophy, had been guilty of some secret sin which deserved public punishment, as an awful example to other offenders. It is hoped the lesson will have a salutary influence in the direction suggested.

As drinking saloons rarely suffer by cyclones, or electric storms, on the hypothesis that churches attract these messengers of evil, because of their virtues, so we suppose the saloons repulse them because of their vices.

Were we to advise in the premises, both church and saloon are good places to shun in a storm, and the greatest safety will be found in keeping outside of them on all occasions.

Made a God by Royal Decree.

In Hungary, so early as 1598, Unitarianism—the worship of one God only—was legalized in the province of Transylvania as one of the four great religions. Trinitarianism was established by vote, according to generally received history, at the Council of Nicea in 325, when Jesus was deified and declared equal in power and glory with the Father, yea, that Father himself. The Emperor Constantine, Supreme Pontiff of Roman Paganism, by royal decree, confirmed this action of the overseers of heathen temples, known in our vernacular as Bishops, and there has been no sovereign with power or inclination since that date to undo the great wrong, so all the self-styled civilized races now worship the son of a Jewish maiden, save the few people who have intelligence and independence to discard such silly idolatry.

Who Will Answer Prayer?

The inquiry heading this article was the subject of the morning discourse lately preached by Rev. Wm. T. Brown, in the Plymouth Congregational Church. The Progressive Thinker has maintained for years that prayers are but idle wishes, to which no response comes outside of himself or his fellows. It did not hesitate to ridicule the claim of Evangelist Moody that the winds and waves were arrested in their movements, and that the great ship in which he was crossing the ocean was saved, with all its cargo of humanity, in obedience to his agonizing request. But extreme as were and are our views on this subject, we own to delight while reading this discourse. That our readers may share with us in this joy and know how the world of thought moves we extract some of the preacher's strongest points. Quoting:

"This is a world of prayer. Our hymns are all prayer. Our Sundays are days of prayer. At least once every seven days millions of voices are mingled together in prayer for almost every conceivable thing.

"* * At this very moment, while we are under this roof where hundreds of prayers have been uttered, all over our world are men and women of all races and religions pouring out their souls in an agony of prayer; the millions of starving people in India praying for food; the Boers praying for their independence; the Filipinos praying for deliverance from what they regard as oppression; fathers and mothers with streaming eyes and breaking hearts beseeching God to spare the lives of their dying loved ones. * * Prayer rests, as we all know, upon a pure superstition. No amount of prayer will make the slightest difference in the lot of the starving people in India. There is no judge of all the earth to do justice for them. They will echo this cry in vain. Millions of them are dying, and many millions more in the years to come are going to die of famine, and their prayers are no more effective than the blowing of the wind. No God can do anything for them. If they are ever to find relief, if they are ever to find the fulfillment of their hopes and prayers that fulfillment must come by human hands. To many millions of them such fulfillment can never come. No God has so far put in an appearance who can hear the cry of starving India. No God exists who can do anthing for them.

"The prayers of the Boers are also vain. Had they not perfected themselves in the use of the rifle, they would have been reduced to subjugation long ago. All their praying is of no avail. Their nationality is a thing of the past. No such thing as a Boer republic will ever again be heard of. A few years hence not a hundred men will be found outside the survivors of the two African republics to regret their extinction. The faith of those men is a delusion. No one questions its sincerity. No one will dispute the depth and earnestness of their religion. But it has no foundation laid deep in eternal truth. The God to whom they have prayed does not exist.

"Here are men and women praying for rain, beseeching the Almighty to save them from drought! And they still remain outside our asylums for the insane! Does anyone believe their prayers will have the slightest effect on the weather? Certainly not. And yet, it lies within the power of the nation, in the power of organized society and nowhere else, to determine that question, to answer those prayers. We are only reaping what we have sown. In pursuit of gain we have not hesitated to denude our land of its great forests, and we are slowly coming to see that by that process we are making disastrous changes in the distribution of moisture over this continent. So have flood and drought and cyclone followed in the footsteps of our national avarice, until we find ourselves face to face with many grave problems. But we are also discovering that it is perfectly possible for us to remedy this condition of things and solve our problems.

"We are discovering slowly, and it is entirely probable that we shall in the future make far greater progress in that respect, that man is the real master of nature, that Nature has been waiting for man to assume his rightful place before responding with her greatest resources. No sensible person believes that we have gone beyond the kindergarten stage in the discovery of the forces of this world and in the mastery of those forces. The coming centuries are no doubt to witness the operation of a vaster chemistry than any that has so far been dreamed of. It is a mistake to say that we are the servants of Nature. Such a position is contrary to all reason. And we shall sometime know that it is truer that men make climate than that climate makes men. The science of forestry is in the near future to answer our prayers for protection against at least two great calamities. A knowledge of the laws of health and of the laws of sanitation and the establishment of normal and just conditions of labor and recreation and leisure will, beyond all question, solve many another problem over which men and women in other days were accustomed to pray.

"What this world needs to-day, and what each individual in it needs, is sanity and light. We need to put it far from our minds that we are violating some divine law when we affirm the supremacy of man. We are simply asserting the divinest law the human mind can conceive of. We men and women can make the sovereignty of love and the reign of justice a reality. Within ourselves and not elsewhere does that sublimest possibility lie. Not in the skies, nor in the life to come, not in any deputed representative of Jehovah, for no such representative exists or ever did exist, but in humanity. We men and women have it in our power to determine and establish what is right. We men and women are clothed with the only divine attributes that exist or ever can exist. We men and women are in our corporate capacity as the people, as humanity, as a nation, as society, the manifestation in time and on the earth of Omnipotence and infinite benevolence. In our hands, on our souls, rests all that tremendous responsibility which we have been wont to invest the being of a God with. To human association, and to that alone, are we to look for the accomplishment of any just or loving purpose in this world."

The War Spirit Rampant.

An Arkansas paper before us mentions the enlistment into the United States army of two braves from that region, whose ambition and hope prompted the act, "because they were sure they would be sent to China." Their greatest desire is "to wipe out the heathen Chinee," as one of them expressed it.

Great wars are the agencies the Fool killer employs to keep his subjects in subordination, and prevent their multiplication so peaceful people can occupy this earth. Given complete control, and power equal to their will, no person would be allowed to think, act or demean himself other than as the Boss Fool demands.

Mohammedism as a Civilizer.

As the mind is enlarged by a wider knowledge of the world, and of the persons in it, the early conceptions of childhood disappear, and we grow more tolerant of opposing thought. The more we know, the less selfish we are—the more ready we are to concede others have rights which must be respected, if we do not wish ours to be infringed upon.

At the time of the Protestant revolt from Romanism there was but one Christian church, and that church was supreme. Governments and peoples were its vassals, and prelates and priests, professing to be vicegerents of heaven, lorded it over everything. The masses accepted the priestly claim as law, taught it to their children, and the whole Christian world was virtually enslaved.

Outside the church all was evil. There was no good. It was Christian on the one hand, and heathen on the other. Every other system of religion was of the devil, and was to be destroyed, and God, it was claimed, had commissioned his ministers to bend all their energies for the complete destruction of those who denied the church authority.

The African slave trade was specially sanctioned by the Pope, because the inhabitants were heathen, and he cited Bible authority as justifying the act. And the texts were conclusive in the premises. No attempt was made to Christianize the negro; but Protestants, when they sprang up, accepted the Pope's opinion, and all joined in converting the black man into brutes, and compelling him to toil as such.

Fifty years ago the press, not under church control, showed up with all its horrors the African slave trade, as it formerly existed.

Until prohibited by law ships were fitted out in open port with rum, and manacles, and Christian officers, and Christian seamen, and under direction of a Christian trader they steered for the western coast of Africa. Arriving at their destination they would incite native chieftains to war on neighboring tribes. The captives taken by either party, without regard to age or sex, were bought for a trifle, and shipped to the American colonies. Here they were bought by Christian planters and converted into slaves, they and their posterity, for all time.

In a late issue of Ainslee's Magazine, there was an interesting article which recalled with great force this Christian method of Christianizing "Darkest Africa." In the course of it, reference was made to the brutalizing part rum and gin played in the slave trade as practiced by professedly Christian traders, and then:

"It is pleasing to turn from the revolting spectacle of some of the West African tribes who had been bestialized by their devotion to trade gin, to the picture which travelers draw of the great Hausa states of the Soudan [embracing some 15,000,000 of people] under Mohammedan dominion for a century, where such a thing as a bottle of spirits is never seen. For 100 years the Mohammedans of North Africa have been pushing across the Sahara and the Soudan, bringing all the barbarous peoples they have met under the influence of Islam. Mohammedanism has thus far more profoundly affected the lives of many millions of black Africans than the Christian influences, which are only just beginning to make large headway. It cannot be said that this influence of Islam is wholly salutary, though many observers, like the learned Dr. Blyden, of Liberia, regard Islam as the greatest civilizing agency yet introduced into Africa; but these Moslem proselytes have made the natives better than they found them, and have stimulated foreign trade with 'Darkest Africa' to a remarkable extent."

Dr. Blyden, of Liberia, in a position and location to have full information on the subject, thus recognizes Mohammedism as "the greatest civilizing agent yet introduced into Africa."

Think of it, good reader. There went the slave trader, intriguing with the barbarous kings for captives, and there went the Christian missionary, with rum and gin and the slave driver's lash in his trail, and here comes a regular Doctor of Divinity, a Christian teacher, resident in the American colony of Liberia, on the coast of Africa, recognizing Islam as "the greatest, best, civilizing agent yet introduced into Africa."

With such facts respect increases for the cannibals, provided they will limit their meat diet to roasted missionary.

Seeming Truth from China.

If what seems authentic advices as we write from China can be trusted, the foreign legations at Pekin were unharmed so late as July 1; possibly so late as July 6. When information reached the Boxers, who were in revolt against the established government, that the allied powers had bombarded Taku, destroyed the fortress, and killed hundreds of natives, the anger of the mob was aroused, then the terrible slaughter followed.

Suppose the condition had been reversed, and the great war ships of China had bombarded an American port, with results similar to those accompanying the bombarding of Taku; is it possible a single Chinaman, in any part of the country, even those so humble as laundrymen, would have escaped with his life? We think not. Admiral Kempff, of the American navy, wisely abstained from participating in the war on China, hence Chinese blood is not on our hands. But it is probable the American minister to China suffered a common fate with the other allied powers, simply because he was found in bad company.

It seems, and we hope it is true, the slaughter of missionaries was not so general as was apprehended, but they have had a big scare and would show good sense—a thing many of them do not possess—if they would withdraw from the disturbed country.

New Fields for the Missionary.

Advices from Victoria, British Columbia, tell of the action of a body of cannibals on the coast of New Britain—two mountainous islands in the Pacific—who captured and dragged alive to the scene of the feast a boat's crew who visited the shore for trading purposes. They were clubbed into insensibility, then baked or roasted and eaten. There, certainly, is a fine field for missionary effort, and there would be no danger of national complications, however numerous the missionaries or multitudinous the converts.

Explanation Satisfactory.

It has been discovered that the reason there are no marriages in heaven is because there are no priests in that locality to perform the ceremony. They have all gone to the other place.

THE WORLD'S HOROSCOPE.

Thomas Lake Harris, poet and seer, during his active life, wrote many startling things. The following, said to have been penned by him over forty years ago, will be read with deep interest:

The reappearance of spiritual manifestations, after an obscuration and seeming recession of centuries, has produced throughout the world a mingled feeling of astonishment, delight, terror, and incredulity. No branch of the Christian church is now exempt from such visitations. The two extremes of Evangelical and Unitarian Protestantism alike are influenced, and Rome is shaken in the midst of her compact, well-guarded citadels.

But while the footsteps of spirits thus reappear, not alone upon the fossil beds of history, but in the luminous ether of the thought-world of to-day, the church, through its accredited ministers, with few exceptions, scoffs at the doctrines presumptuous, or repels the approach of the Immortals as an impious intrusion. The buccaneers and the filibusters of the Spanish Main, the forces of Morgan, and the brigantines of Drake, sacking wealthy cities and plundering the galleys of the plate fleet, could not have excited a more bitter hate among the Spaniards of Panama and Lima, than is aroused by the approximation of spiritual phenomena to most of the religious organizations of the age.

While we have the confessions of eminent divines, that all religious parties, except the party of Spiritualism, are numerically either on the wane or stationary, the influx of numbers to the standard of a faith in spiritual communication, is unparalleled. In spite of the cavils of the secular press against the intellectual value of literary productions emanating from spirits, some mediums who suppress the origin of the writings which they receive from spirits, and care to use them as their own, find a ready market among the venders of literary wares. Sermons are preached in the most aristocratic churches which are actually written out from the dictation of spirits, and prayers, which have the same origin, are memorized, and spoken by clergymen of the first distinction. It is true that the eminent divines to whom we refer conceal from their audiences the true sources of their efforts, but their ability remains unquestioned, and their popularity suffers no diminution. Spiritual visitations take place in the library of the clergyman no less than in the parlor of the parishioner. The church of the day is like a Swiss village shaken by the tremor which announces the first tremor of the avalanche.

A hundred years ago the most eminent European thinker of that day, one of the most calm, temperate, cool-blooded and best balanced in the world's list of heroes of the pen, withal a devout, conscientious, thoroughly just man, beheld in a spiritual vision what he styled "the last judgment."

He saw Christ encompassed by an innumerable multitude of angels, making his appearance in the midst of the spiritual world inhabited by the departed nations of Christendom. Minds but partially free from the superstitious fancies with which the middle ages had overlaid the essential truth of Christianity, priests and congregations of all sects of Christendom, living in that partial twilight of the spirit life, beheld the long-expected reappearance of the Son of Man. Marshalled in societies, according to the predominance of good affections or impure lusts, they were divided into two great, yet opposite congregations, the wheat being winnowed from the chaff, and the sheep separated from the goats.

Wrapped together as a fiery scroll, the broad realm of the apparent but fictitious heaven of spirits, who, without the Christian element, usurped the Christian name, the evil doers of every grade and caste of crime were drawn into one association and assigned to a locality in the world of shadows corresponding to their own insanity. There was heard a sound of universal thanksgiving from all men of good affections. There was a descent of spiritual spheres to purity and peace and deliverance. The world was open in its interior significance, and Christians, who on earth had been divided through the varied interpretations of the letter, were united in the reconciling truth of the divine spirit. This was just a century ago. Now it is a remarkable fact that ever since, a corresponding change has been taking place in the natural world, as if the events beheld by the seer were throwing out their waves of influence, and reproducing among us the same phenomena. As when a man's soul is delivered from avarice and hate, and lust, and all the deadly passions, the body feels it, and changes to a new expression, so the advent of a new life into the great spiritual family or collective soul, made up of the separate souls of Christendom, has signalized its incoming by throwing out to the surfaces of our terrestrial human brotherhood a correspondential myriad of thoughts and facts. As the obtuse boulder may be uplifted by the tidal-wave, so the most sensual intellect, however fixed in old superstitions, is rolled up gradually to a new level by this great ocean of incoming light.

Within that hundred years, cotton has entered to clothe the world, and steam and its giant successors to lift the Atlas burden from the shoulders of the giant Industry. As the sculptor of old proposed to Alexander to carve Mount Athos into a statue with a city in its plain, so Christ has come to shape the rocky den, the bleak summit, the desert solitude of earth into a glorious image of a Maternal State, holding in her right hand the New Jerusalem. Similes apart, the epoch of the Coronation of Labor has broken upon the world. God himself has come to every hut in Christendom in the guise of a beneficent material providence. There is more bread, more clothing, more fuel, more physical comfort of every sort, than the world has known since Eden faded from its traditions. Men live longer; hygienic laws, of which the best men of the past century did not dream, are not only discovered, but begin, through the press, to instruct and save the millions of the lowly. The physical renovation of the race has evidently began; for truth comes as the herald of reform; and there is a material John the Baptist, who baptizes the outward, and announces the coming of the Spiritual Christ.

There is a richer moral vegetation, an outgrowth of humane ideas covering the heartsoil of Christendom, so long ice-bound is bigotry, as with a sweet perennial verdure of charity. War is less barbaric. Ancient battles were sanguinary from the inflamed passions of the individual. It was a scene of conflict between men fighting from the love of blood, and delighting in ripping up the bowels of old men, and cutting off the breasts of women, and dashing out the brains of infants upon the hearthstones. Now mark the contrast. During the recent wars men have fought from public direction, and, as in the Crimea, have improved the hours of truce to interchange humane personal courtesies. The soldier is outgrowing his trade. Before many years have elapsed, the material interests of men will have become so inter-united that instead of seeking greatness through the destruction of life and property, the rulers of the world, in self-defense, will be forced to change the entire system of foreign policy. The railroad is a great civilizer. Children are now born who will live to see, in all probability, Asia intersected by railroads, and the standard of civilization carried back to the primeval garden of the race.

During the century which has passed, the civil institutions of the world, broken up in their old forms, have been undergoing universal transformation. Our own Republic is a monument which rises like ancient Ararat, above the subsiding waters of despotism. The new air of liberty fills the lungs of the world. Already the federation of all the people in one cosmopolitan republic, looms up gradually among the possibilities of the future. Already it is firmly believed that vice and want, moral and intellectual depravity, have no permanent foothold upon the planet. And again, sweetly as dawns the May morning after a night of storms, amidst the singing of birds and the blossoming of orchards, a Spiritual Spring breathes rejuvenating breath upon the human soul. The spiritual laws, hidden from the wisest of uninspired men, are rediscovered and legitimatize the wildest hope of the idealist. The heavens and the earth commune together. The spirit world is bared for human introspection. The law of the elimination of the divine truth of the Scriptures from its spiritual sense, has been made known. Christianity henceforth is made the crowning science. Regeneration is brought within the domain of accredited and established principles. The faith of the Christian, and the truth of the philosopher are one. With what wonder we behold the world returning to sanity. It shall awake in the coming future, and discover itself sitting clothed and in its right mind, at the feet of Christ, the Lord.

A spiritual crisis evidently has taken place in the interior world of the planet, the ultimations of which are fast merging into light. The vision of the seer was not hallucination but a sublime reality. The old Heavens and the old Earth have passed away, and we look for a new Heaven and a new Earth where dwelleth righteousness.

Is He a Prophet?

A gentleman of large observation and experience, for many years a representative of the American government in the extreme East, wrote us soon after the destruction of the Maine, in Havana, that that event marked the beginning of a long series of disturbances which would follow, and result in changing national boundaries, and the formation of new social conditions all over the world. The same writer has just called our attention to that letter, and now adds:

"The present disturbance in China will lead to national complications which will astonish those who have been hugging the delusion that religious tolerance is one of the most firmly fixed features of the Occidental social system. An issue will arise between the professed Christian and non-Christian nations growing out of the present turbulence, which will result in the fiercest war the world has ever known. The aggressions of Christian missionaries, leading to the revolt of the Boxers, are but straws showing which way the wind blows in the East. The fires of righteous indignation, long smouldering, will burst into flame when patience ceases to be a virtue."

We hope our friend will prove a false prophet, but we place him on record, and shall watch with great earnestness the general trend of events. The whole Christian world united against China will give rise to insurrections at home which will be difficult to suppress. And then strifes and heart burnings, with conflicting nations temporarily united in a common cause, will inevitably lead to discord instead of harmony. We tremble for the outcome.

Living Without Nourishment.

Nikola Tesla, the great inventor and rival of Edison in electrical discoveries, in a late article in the Century Magazine, gives indication that he is in sympathy with Spiritualism. We quote:

"There seems to be no philosophical necessity for food. We can conceive of organized beings living without nourishment and deriving all the energy they need for the performance of their life functions from the ambient medium. In a crystal we have the clear evidence of the existence of a formative life principle, and, though we cannot understand the life of a crystal, it is none the less a living being. There may be, besides crystals, other such individualized, material systems of beings, perhaps of gaseous constitution or composed of substance still more tenuous. In view of this possibility—nay, probability—we cannot apodictically deny the existence of organized beings on a planet merely because the conditions on the same are unsuitable for the existence of life as we conceive it. We cannot even with positive assurance assert that some of them might not be present here, in this our world, in the very midst of us, for their constitution and life manifestation may be such that we are unable to perceive them."

They Multiply.

A new Christian sect, with the Bible for its guide, has sprung up in Georgia. It is known as the Fire Baptized Association. Its object, of course, is to escape the flames of hell, a good thing to do. H. L. Irwin, of Lincoln, Neb., is the reported progenitor of this latest candidate for immortal glory. The organization claims five distinct and essential works of Grace, first, Conversion; second, Santification; third, Baptism with the Holy Ghost; fourth, Baptism by fire; fifth, The heavenly Dynamite, whatever that may be. The sect is also known as the "Holy Roller Dancers."

Sects come as the waves come
When navies are stranded;
They'll go as the tides go
When their mission is ended—
The gaining of pelf for their founder.

Located at Last.

A Rev. John Gibson, down there in Memphis, has now located hell for sure. It lies just two miles below the surface of the earth, occupying all the intermediate space to the other side of the globe. The divine says "the gospel and g'romotry" confirms him in his location, and that "there is no foolishin' about it."

Hell being so near it is hoped the clergy will be on the constant lookout for danger and escape the eternal roast.

"Talmagean Inanities, Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies; a Review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism." By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price ten cents.

Valuable Information About China.

The probabilities are a long contest of arms between the Western nations and China has commenced. It may last for years, and ultimate in changing the boundaries of a great empire, perhaps cause its destruction. As this war has its foundation in an attempt to Christianize China, it is well for all our readers to understand the situation, that they may not be misled by any faction, whether religious or political.

Gen. Julius Stahl was for ten years officially connected with China. He visited that country in the capacity of American Consul-General for China and Japan. In a letter over his own signature, published in a late issue of the Washington Post, he makes the following statement, which we copy to the exclusion of less important matter, omitting his introductory:

"The young emperor and his tutor are in sympathy with the reform movement; in fact, they might be said to lead it. The better element stands for reform and progress, and I found among the merchants of Shanghai and other places I visited a full spirit of sympathy in this effort. The other element is headed by Tuan and his son; with them, I see, are the Boxers and a strong following of the lower element. The dowager empress has been an anti-reformer, and, while I do not think she would have been willing to go as far as Tuan, she has contributed by her influence to the present situation. Should anything have happened to the present emperor, she would, I think, have been perfectly willing to see Tuan's son on the throne. Li Hung Chang and at least one other of the viceroys are with the reformers, but I am unable to say how many, with their armies, are to be found on either side.

"With these differences inside the imperial family, it was an easy matter for Tuan to take advantage of the feeling existing against the missionaries. I do not mean that this feeling is against the individuals, but among every people interference with religion is a sore point, and the people of China do not like the effort to convert the people. A Buddhist is particularly sensitive on this point.

"I am, therefore, distinctly of the opinion that this religious interference is the chief contributing cause to the uneasiness, and the organization of the secret society known as the 'Boxers.' Tuan is the head of the organization. He has used the influence of the religious feeling with great effect, because by this means he brought to his side and his ambitions a tremendous influence, both in point of numbers and sentiment, in this way increasing his own power, by which he hoped to gain his own ends in the administration of the affairs of the government.

"When this 'Boxer' society had spread, without the knowledge of anyone, except the promoters of the organization, until it involved, let us say, millions of people, it was impossible to prevent outbreaks. Mobs are disorderly things, and the people had been purposely inflamed against the religious influence working in the country from the outside—against the foreigners.

"Then came the next terrible mistake, the bombardment of the forts at Taku. It was a fatal error. Admiral Kempff showed wisdom and good judgment in not taking part in that bombardment. It was a mistake, because the forts of Taku were not in the hands of the Boxers, but of the government of the country, and what greater lever could Tuan and his leaders have than to point out that these foreigners had not only interfered with their religion and tried to control their country, but had actually commenced the war themselves by open hostility against the government of their country. You can readily understand, then, how these smouldering embers of revolution suddenly burst into a flame.

"I cannot speak authoritatively as to the strength of the two forces. The federal army is comparatively small. I do not know its numbers. Each viceroy has his own army, and I do not think anyone can tell the number of soldiers in any or all of these.

"I do not know how many of these viceroys stand with the reformers as against Tuan, the 'Boxers,' and the disaffected troops. No one knows. China is a sealed book to everyone. Everything now depends upon the strength of these two factions. Everything in Peking depends upon what force has stood for the protection of the foreigners and what is opposed to them.

"When the relief comes to these people in Peking, I do hope with all my heart the cry for vengeance will not prevail. Why wreak vengeance upon an ignorant mass of people, misled and influenced by unwise leaders?

"It is a mistake to say that the Chinese will not fight. They are brave soldiers when they are well led. They are intensely imbued with a love of country and their religious rites. The armies of the viceroys are well armed. Many guns have been manufactured in China and immense numbers have been imported. Plenty of the people are well armed and know how to use their weapons. It is a mistake to underestimate that fact.

"I do not think there is any serious idea on the part of the powers to disrupt China. Why should they do so? Disrupt a nation and you ruin it. Let us of the United States leave Russia out of the question as an ally. In what regard would the civilized world be benefited by the acquisition by Russia of territory in China? Why, Russia herself is not civilized, and in what regard would she advance these people? It is a question of the Slav against the Anglo-Saxon, and the latter must control.

"It would be impossible to make an effectual and wise partition of China. You cannot make a Chinaman anything but a Chinaman. After a lifetime spent in this country—he may have been born here—a Chinaman is a Chinaman still. Part the country and you will have nothing but 400,000,000 Chinamen. They will hold to their religion, of course, and I doubt if any country or any people have the right to interfere with their religion."

"Launched in Life."

Many readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that Mr. Victor Vogel, who is well known among the Spiritualists of Chicago, has been devoting a part of his time to the publication of his musical compositions. We have now before us a copy of his latest composition, a wedding march entitled "Launched in Life." The music as well as the title page is very unique in character. The title page is very handsomely engraved and printed in three colors, representing the most important event of one's life in three scenes: The central figures representing a courtship scene, and the others the wedding ceremony and the happy home. The music is very pleasing and attractive. Mr. Vogel has kindly dedicated this composition to the officers and members of the "League of Eligibles" of Chicago. Copies for sale at Lyon & Healy's.

"Astral Worship." By J. H. Hill, M. D. For sale at this office. Price, $1.

WHAT IS SPIRITUALISM?

Dr. Geo. A. Bacon Answers the Question.

A clever correspondent in the issue of May 12, asks "What is Spiritualism?" though evidently with no intention of answering his own query.

He makes use of it, in the first place, to exploit his orthodoxy with reference to the Bible; and in the second place, to exploit his heterodoxy as to Spiritualism.

In the latter case, however, he simply displays such a lack of any real knowledge of the subject as to render what he says wholly ineffective.

Every intelligent observer knows that the majority of Bible believers are so because of the bias given to their early instruction in Biblical teachings, and not from personal or independent examination. The impressions made on the mind in childhood or in early youth, because of the impressibility of the child nature, are most enduring and difficult to efface. Hence their hold, even while the very teachings are seen and felt and known to be apocryphal.

The correspondent evidently belongs to that large and respectable class who take their theology with a spoon. To digest it requires such extreme doses of pepsinolds, in the form of superstition, as to destroy the power of assimilation.

Instead of doing a little original investigation and thinking for himself, he has accepted indiscriminately the offerings of interested parties.

To traverse his opening sentence, it is known that men and women who are too skeptical to accept the evidence of their own senses, in matters occurring in the sanctity of their own homes, through members of their own family and under circumstances fatal to deception even if such a motive existed—often exhibit the greatest credulity in a wholesale acceptance of analagous events, alleged to have occurred nobody knows when, recorded or witnessed by nobody knows who, under circumstances totally unknown, with each and every step incapable of verification.

One who "strains at a gnat and swallows a camel," becomes dignified by comparison.

He is indeed a bold contestant who in the light of to-day, having "all eyes and no sight," seeks to defend the Biblical account of creation; the origin and destiny of man; who upholds its astronomy and geology of the cosmos; or its horology, necrology, chronology and the theology of the scriptures. Science has shown these to be but religious fables, the conceptions of primitive men in the infancy of the race.

While the Bible is freely acknowledged to be a wonderful compilation of religious writings, it was never intended to be what some are disposed to make it, an object of fetich worship.

When ecclesiastically representative men throughout the world both in Catholic and Protestant churches; men like Prof. St. George Mivart, the eminent Roman Catholic scientist, Prof. Briggs, Prof. Phelps, Dr. Lyman Abbott, Rev. Doctors Smith and McGiffert, Rabbi Fleischer of Boston, Rabbi Wise of Cincinnati, Rev. Dr. Hillis, Dr. Parkhurst and many another—whose utterances to-day are as essentially radical as were those of Paine a hundred years ago; when good men and religious men, yet in the churches, publicly assail certain portions of the Bible and deny the authenticity and inspiration of other parts; when a prominent pastor of the great Methodist Church, Rev. Dr. Cadman, before an assembly of 400 clergymen, including bishops of that body, can assert that "The inerrancy and infallibility of the Bible are no longer possible of belief among reasoning men," and be applauded for it—ordinary laymen may be pardoned if they question the verity of not a few Biblical statements.

If as Milton says:

"Creation feels through each minutest pore
The genial influence of the season"—

so similarly do leading minds in all the churches respond to the progressive spirit of the age; to the demands of the Higher Criticism; to the spirit of truth; to the knowledge which science reveals.

The term "infidel," which our friend uses so contemptuously, has long since lost its power to frighten intelligent men and women into believing or claiming to believe, any story inconsistent and improbable—however contrary to every principle of natural reason and justice! When in the mouth of any half-informed, narrow-minded person it is applied to those who refuse, at the dictation of every bigoted churchman, to believe that the moon is made of green cheese—it becomes a badge of honor.

When in the sacred name of religion, self-respecting men and women refuse to accept fancies for facts, or ecclesiastical assumption, childish conception and unreasonable speculation, for the demonstrations of exact and verified knowledge—the term stands for loyalty to truth.

But answering his enquiry, "What is Spiritualism?" we respond that it is demonstration to-day, under circumstances that can be easily established, of the truth of Angel Ministration, a doctrine clearly taught in the Bible and accepted by the Church for centuries.

Indeed, the belief in immortality, in the nearness of the spirit world, and in some form of conscious intercommunion between the two worlds or states of existence—are beliefs as old as man. Modern Spiritualism gives proof of these realities through its various phenomena. The manifestations occurring in the past, not being now subject to verification, have to be accepted, if at all, solely upon faith. To-day, however, tens of thousands upon thousands of honest investigators, of every shade of religious belief, and many of no belief, are glad witnesses of the glorious fact of a present demonstrated immortality.

These include many of the most renowned and scientific men known to the world. Space alone forbids their enumeration here.

Recently the Psychical Research Society of England and America, composed of eminent clergymen, and scientists, and independent investigators, have published some of the results of their work. Despite the prejudice of these men, such was the overwhelming evidence, presented in numberless instances, that original opponents like Prof. Hodgson and Prof. Hyslop, the latter of Columbia College, and others like unto these, have publicly acknowledged their conversion.

When the highest scientific authority in England, and in the world for that matter, declares that the facts of Spiritualism are as clearly established as are the facts of any science—he who seeks to deny or decry these facts, only shows his own failure to enter into a comprehension of their stupendous significance.

Apart from the evidence furnished through spiritual phenomena, what solid and accepted proof have we of a continued life beyond the grave?

Washington, D. C.

"Cultivation of Personal Magnetism. A Treatise on Human Culture." By Leroy Berrier. For sale at this office. Price $1.

Ego in Nature's Kindergarten.

By Charles Dawbarn,
San Leandro, Cal.

There are attempted changes in the meaning of words that grieve the soul of an old-fashioned thinker, like myself. I had always supposed that an "atom" was matter divided innumerable times till it could not, even in thought be divided any more. That, to me, was the ultimate of matter. And it made no difference whether this speck was a whirl of ether having a good time all to himself, or just a chip of the old block in which life around me is everywhere embedded. Now I find certain scientists of to-day talking about splitting and splintering atoms and calling the new fragment "corpuscle." So I want it distinctly understood that when these mind-disturbers get all through, and have chipped their last corpuscle to its ultimate, that is what I mean, every time and everywhere, by the word "atom." They may bore holes through their atoms, and smash them into smithereens to their hearts' content, but my atoms won't stand any such usage. They cannot be tampered with. They are the foundation fact of creation, and always a compound of intelligence, energy and what we call "matter." I have never calculated how many such atoms could dance on the point of a needle, for my atom stands on the very verge of the unthinkable, albeit it is the foundation fact of existence, on which the student reader and I will now take our stand, regardless of size.

The atom has a most remarkable and inherent quality. It delights in addition, subtraction, multiplication and division, thus infusing itself into every problem of the universe. As I have said, the atom itself is all but unthinkable, but the moment it clasps hands with another atom we have "form." It is a case of matrimony. The twain have become one molecule. Of course this is followed by bigamy innumerable. In fact molecular existence is a series of domestic rows, frequent separations, and renewed loving embraces pervaded by a flavor as of first love. As "form" it becomes quite thinkable, and not much more mysterious than poor human nature itself. We can discern the intense individuality of the atom. It is perpetually trying experiments. It thinks it is in love with another atom, and it forthwith blends into form. More and more loving atoms join the group, till the scientist becomes intensely interested, and grows learned in what he calls biology.

We have seen in our last article something of the process out of which the genus and the species are born, for the monerula of humanity was only a type of the monad that is the ultimate of every living being. But the student reader will find herein a key to some of the so-called problems of life. They are problems only because the scientist is so terribly afraid of getting too close to First Cause. He knows that Infinite Energy may destroy form in an instant. The lightning's bolt that springs from earth, or flashes from heaven, has taught him that. But blending his own intelligence with that of the electric mass, he gathers and subdues to his will and his need, facing the risk with a courage born of experience. He has crept as close to First Cause as the nursing child to its mother's breast, every time he compels infinite energy to his service. As he grows he toddles into a selfhood that can do much more than harness lightning and compel electricity. But he must keep close to First Cause. Herein is the fundamental thought on which our success as explorers depends. Every atom is an Ego. The total aggregation of atoms is First Cause, or if you please, God Senior. There is nothing more, and no less is possible to Deity than the whole of intelligence, energy and matter. If we keep this in mind we break every theological fetter, and stand absolutely free to explore through all eternity.

We now, once again, repeat the thought already expressed, and declare that every atom is an Ego, divinely gifted because himself a fragment of the divine, but with personal limitations because he is only a finite fragment of the whole. As Ego he is not only an atom but remains absolutely without form or size that mortal mind can grasp. He has, however, an individuality that can compel heaven and earth to his service. Some of my readers may have seen a steam hammer deliver a blow of a thousand tons, and the next moment gently crack the shell of an egg. So man may spend his whole career as a race in cracking egg shells, if he so choose, but the potentiality of the mightiest power is always present.

We must now make a little study of the powers of Ego in this realm which we call "below man." It is a question of form. We have said that an atom knows nothing either of size or of form, and that it is absolutely indestructible. It is Ego, always and everywhere. Ego is thus a formless, sizeless entity, containing in his own right matter, energy and intelligence. Energy in activity is vibration, so Ego's field of action has no limit save the utmost outreach of his own vibratory force. We are not now concerned with what may be his highest limit, but propose to descend into the lowest depths at which life becomes conceivable to scientific imagination, and there watch some of Ego's experiences in Nature's vast kindergarten.

It is a feature of Ego's life history that while standing alone he makes no record of which mortal man can conceive. He must mate, and thus assume "form" by blending with another atom, before we can even picture him as an entity. Yet it is Ego, who, as a solitary individual atom, is really God Junior. All that is outwrought by form is the result of individual atoms combining their forces to produce effects impossible to one alone. Science deals only with forms. It can usually tear them apart. When it fails it calls the form an element. But all life history, from our side of life, is a struggle with form. If we keep in mind the indestructibility and unchangeableness of the atom we will perceive some of the illusion which halos earth history.

Life appears to us to have lived upon life from the very beginning. But if we can imagine a realm where atoms rule in unblended individuality we can see them smiling at our pictures of life. All that takes place is that one form unblends another form. The atomic form that has conquered and swallowed another form attracts to itself certain of the atoms by a process which we call nutritive assimilation. The rest of the atoms fled away absolutely unharmed. Everything in life of which we can conceive is an output of the growth or destruction of form. Love is a blending, and hate an unblending of form. Cruelty and suffering can only unblend form. Love and wisdom magnify form. We only perceive mind at work in form. Whether Ego acts by intuition or reason he is alike manifesting in and through form. And his manifestation is the united will power of a number of Egos acting together through forms we call bodies and organs. Whatever tears apart and destroys form is simply an episode for Ego, who has thereby harvested an experience, but is just the same eternal, indestructible atom he was when flashed into intelligent individuality.

In that Ego realm of which we have spoken, what pitying smiles, and hearty but unparticled laughter there must be among its citizens as they discern mortal attempts to save forms from eternal destruction by theological dogmas and faith. The orthodox God and the savage's fetish are founded on fear of form. The miser's greed, the politician's lust are expressions of form impossible to Ego as a divine atom. Man's sorrow, joy, remorse are nothing but form experiences. Unblend form and they are gone. Nothing remains save Ego the atom, whose divinity is untainted and untouched by such experiences. The reader must remember it is no part of our task to hunt for motives or object in the existence of Ego. The theological dream that a form man was created for the glory of a form God is a large-sized sample of the nonsense that would befog us if we made such an attempt. The one fact that Ego exists, and is necessarily an individual atom is our fundamental point, and, so far as we may, we will try to discover what Ego may have to gain or to lose by his adventures in form life. But at every step we must keep hand in hand with science, which is really the orderly arrangement, and common sense use of accumulated facts.

Ego while alone is unthinkable and unwatchable by mortal eye. So is his father God Senior. We are forms, and can only think of forms. God Junior wields the creative power in finite degree. He wills, and his potential energy becomes kinetic or active. To use an everyday word he "vibrates," and instantly attracts or repels according to the rate of his vibration, and his own positive and negative will. A moment before he was just a cosmic speck—a homeless old bachelor. He had no wants, no desires, neither likes nor dislikes, but just idled in the unparticled mass we are taught to call "ether."

God Senior himself has vibrated. It was then that a speck came out from the ether, and Ego was born. The point I want to emphasize is that the only children of the Infinite are these speck atoms. Everything else in the universe, of which we can conceive, is in form, and therefore nothing but a gathering of speck atoms into molecule and mass. I know this is sadly untheological, for inspiration, working through Holy Writ and ordained priest, has been saving and damning form. And form has seemed to ignorant man as the ultimate of soul life. And why not? If God created man—who is form; and if, to save that form from hell, a divine form died on the cross, then form is the all important fact in human existence. But the reader must remember we are walking hand in hand with science—together exploring new fields and science asserts and proves that form tumbles into pieces. Nothing remains but indestructible atoms. Those atoms are united exactly as couples mate into married life. Two human beings are said to become one, and sometimes a dozen, but, all the same, the forms remain absolutely distinct, and are separable by legal process and death. There is not a form in the whole universe which is not composed of speck atoms, each with an individuality of its own, proclaiming its freedom to come and go.

The later evidences of life beyond death have been framed in this same ignorance of this fact in natural law. The mortal has loved form. It is form he worships, and his whole fear has been that death took the loved form from him forever. And when form has actually reappeared this man of ignorance immediately bubbled into a form of ecstasy called Modern Spiritualism. The mortal looks at himself (or herself) in mirror or photograph, and thinking of himself as form watches anxiously the changes that mark the passing years. At last he (or she) evolves a system, called New Thought, which is really directed at, and confined to form. It consists of an effort to compel, or induce, Ego to keep form in repair without drugs, or even hygiene.

The one biological record that must ever remain unstudied is the life history of Ego and his father First Cause. Our studies must begin and end with the atom blended into form. But since that atom is always an Ego therein is the truth we are seeking, and the key to many of life's mysteries. Surely the student reader will now realize that he has a solid foothold for his climb to a higher manhood.

Ego is a reflection of First Cause. The student is a reflection of Ego. Or we may put it another way. God Senior, being all there is, is too large for human comprehension. Ego being an atom of the divine, and therefore, God Junior, is too small, and is beyond our powers in the other direction. So we must, perforce, leave the unblended Ego and his sire and direct our thoughts and investigations to the multiples of Ego we have been taught to call "form."

When intelligence becomes active something happens. The unparticled ether becomes particled. How many, or how few of these particled Egos are individualized at any one time is beyond our arithmetic. If we call ether "substance" then each of these particles is an expression of intelligence and energy in that substance, and science tells us that energy is showing itself in the form of motion. This motion is believed by leading scientists to manifest itself as a hollow whirling ring, and so small that millions must blend before the human mind can grasp the fact and call it "matter." No cutting, splitting or smashing is possible to that whirling speck. It is the first manifestation of movement in the otherwise immovable ether, and is born without surgeon or midwife. Nay so far as mortal intellect can grasp such a fact, we may assume, if we choose, that it has been an eternal and particled expression of the Infinite Whole. Or we may logically go yet further, and picture to ourselves, without scientific protest, the universal ether as itself composed of these minute whirls, each alive with intelligence and energy, and each with a separate individuality. So much being assumed we now find ourselves in the midst of a universe of Egos, each a fragment or fraction of the Infinite Ego.

At the very first glance we perceive a marvelous exhibition of intelligence. It is life itself, varying only in degree from atom Ego up to First Cause. We must not, however, think of Ego as a speck who is to grow in size and power, all by himself, as he gathers experience. For as we pass outward from the atom we find intelligence selecting companions from the crowd around him, and driving off unacceptable company. In these humble beginnings this faculty of selection is called "negative or positive," or the principle of attraction and repulsion out of which form is born. The astronomer tells us he is watching in yonder nebulae the birth of a universe. That means that Egos innumerable are there in active association, and with their united intelligence all directed to one end. In that association is what we call "life," for life is the expression of intelligence amid the conditions of Ego's surroundings.

If matter be the result of the gathering of Ego atoms into the groups called molecules then "dead matter" is an impossibility. Every atom being alive every molecule is necessarily permeated by that life. The molecule being composed of individual atoms becomes itself an expression of individual attraction and repulsion. It has likes and dislikes, the same as the Ego atom, for they are the expression of its intelligence. And this intelligence having, in untold eons, passed through the conditions of creative process the scientist finds it now manifesting as gas, liquid and solid.

Attraction and repulsion are themselves evidence of life, manifesting as conditions may permit. Molecules are only combinations of Ego atoms, with intelligence always present, because intelligence inheres to every separate Ego. In the rock Ego has selected his companions, and to each grouping the scientist gives a name. This choice of associates may at first only manifest as "attraction of cohesion," but it is life. It is the life of God Senior and God Junior expressing itself just as conditions demand and compel. When the crystal has been born there is an outlet for a further display of intelligence. Form now sparkles with beauty, while intelligence is also manifesting law, order, and a creative power which can even repair injury to form. Life is present, because life is the essence of divinity, of which every single atom is a fractional manifestation. Ego is always himself. He has neither brain nor any other organ. They are as unnecessary to Ego as they are to God Senior. Presently, by association with others he achieves form. He has discovered that by association with others he can do things impossible to him while alone. He was alive and had power as an atom. As a molecule he shares in the united life and the combined power. There is, as we now discover, no step in the process of world creation at which life appears. It was always present; and the scientific hunt for the beginning of life on our planet has thus been ever a ludicrous attempt to discover the impossible. This discovery that every form contains life, and is the expression of living Egos, will presently be found to give us a foothold by which to reach other truths in the manifestations of life out of which manhood has been evolved.

We want to keep in mind that the live atom, being ultra microscopic, that is to say, far beyond mortal ken or instrument, will never become an object for study. Yet it remains as an eternal fact. It is life, always and everywhere, and always ready with its creative power to multiply when conditions will permit. It is perpetually ready to attract or repel, and conditions will determine the form its intelligence must assume. If crystal be the highest possible at one era then crystal will be the then ultimate of intelligence and life. The planet itself is but a molecule of the universe, and, in its turn, dominating by its conditions its own little groups of atoms. So the time comes when these conditions permit some molecule to exhibit a new form, which at once becomes a fact in nature. It may be, yes must be, microscopic, but the life Ego is almost infinitely smaller. But Ego is its creative father all the same. Or rather a group of Egos combined their intelligence and power into the new form. It is born with and from intelligence, matter and energy, and brings with it the all essential feature of life which is the power to attract to itself other Egos, and thus reproduce the new born form.

Just here comes in the essence of this special study of Ego in kindergarten life. We see that life not only does but must multiply its forms according to prevailing conditions. And the life so born will be in harmony or discord with other life forms according to those conditions, and must take new shape when conditions demand. Herein is certainly the key to the mysterious forms our scientists are chasing with their microscopes, declaring they are deadly foes of humanity. The microbe and bacillus are certainly facts, and may be identified among their fellows by an individuality as marked as that of any other form life. But such microbe is only a half-way house between Ego and poor Homo dying of plague or cholera. That form is as much the child of Ego as every other form of life. Of course it propagates its own, as does every other living thing born of Ego and blended into form. It may have been centuries or ages before it reached even microscopic size, and it will die away as surely as mammoth or cave hyena when conditions change, and not before. Homo is waking to his power. He has discovered that amongst other wonderful faculties he can change conditions within his own organism.

I am not proposing to discuss what is called "treatment" whether by drugs, hygiene or active mental energy. The point I want to emphasize is that Ego in his degree, and Homo in his degree, are each wielders of creative force. Their emanations which we call "thoughts" are alive, and take form as ultra microscopic specks like Ego himself. Such specks are of little might for good or ill until they have blended like to like. There was a time when the planet's whole expression of life was that of monsters whose fossil forms now decorate our museums. Life was fed by life into such forms under the then existing conditions. And so life must be fed by life till it has evolved from the atom into these microscopic foes before the form of Homo can be made to writhe amid plague fury, and presently dissolve into its unharmed Egos.

Let your Ego and mine, reader, think thoughts of love, peace, justice, truth, each and all become form specks amid which an inharmonious microbe could find no mates out of which to develop that tiny form. There will always be microscopic life seeking mates and finding them, but most of them become creations that not merely harmonize earth life but presently evolve into forms too refined and spiritual to express pain, suffering and death. The effect of this change we must trace or our study of Ego's experiences will remain imperfect, and of very little real value.

557

The above is the number of the present issue of The Progressive Thinker, as printed at the top of the first page, right hand corner. If this number corresponds with the figures on your wrapper, then the time you have paid for has expired, and you are requested to renew your subscription. This number at the right hand corner of the first page is advanced each week, showing the number of Progressive Thinkers issued up to date. Keep watch of the number on the tag of your wrapper.

VEDANTA PHILOSOPHY.

Lectures by the Swami Vivekananda, on Raja Yoga; or Conquering the Internal Nature, and other subjects; also, Patanjali's Yoga Aphorisms, with commentaries and a copious glossary of Sanskrit terms. Revised and enlarged, 12mo., Cloth, $1.50. Raja Yoga is an ancient system of Indian Philosophy, and one of the four chief methods that the Vedanta Philosophy offers to obtain freedom and perfection. Swami Vivekananda became a familiar figure in several American cities during the three years following the Parliament of Religions at Chicago; he was cordially received in America, where the breadth and depth of his teachings were soon recognized. His teachings are universal in their application. The book is cheap at $1.50. For sale at this office.

Woman, Church and State.

A Historical Account of the Status of Woman Through the Christian Ages, with Reminiscences of the Matriarchate.

BY MATILDA JOSLYN GAGE.

*THE AMOUNT OF VALUABLE IN*formation succinctly and clearly stated in this volume of 554 pages is amazing. The title, as above given, fails to convey an idea of the fulness and completeness with which the subjects are treated. The Matriarchate, or Mother-rule, is the theme of the first chapter, in which much lore, quaint, queer and curious, is brought to view in elucidation of the subject. This is followed by chapters on Celibacy, Canon Law, Marquette, Witchcraft, Wives, Polygamy, Woman and Work, The Church of To-day, Past, Present, Future; and there is not a chapter in the book that is not handled in a masterly manner, and that for quantity and quality of information, is not worth the full price of the volume. It is packed with knowledge well-arranged, and intensely interesting from beginning to end. No one can possibly regret buying it; it is a valuable addition to the library of any free and truth-loving mind.

Price, $2.00. For sale at this office.

AUTOMATIC WRITING

[SO-CALLED] WITH OTHER

PSYCHIC EXPERIENCES

—BY—

SARA A. UNDERWOOD,

With Half-tone Portrait and Specimen Pages of the Writing.

Handsomely bound in cloth. Price $1. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE SPIRITUAL BIRTH,

OR DEATH AND ITS TO-MORROW.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By Moses Hull. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents. For sale at this office.

THE REAL ISSUE.

By Moses Hull. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have. For sale at this office.

God in the Constitution.

By Robert G. Ingersoll. One of the best papers Colonel Ingersoll ever wrote. In paper cover, with likeness of the author. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

ORIGIN OF LIFE

and How the Spirit Body Grows. By M. Faraday. Price, 10c. For sale at this office.

The Development of the Spirit

After Transition. By M. Faraday. Transcribed at the request of a band of ancient philosophers. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Spiritual Body Real.

Views of Paul, Wesley and others. Valuable testimonies of modern clairvoyants. Witnesses of the separation of the spiritual body from the dying physical form. By Giles B. Stebbins. Price, 10c.

CHURCH AND STATE

The Bible in the Public Schools; the New "American" Party. By "Jefferson." Third edition. 28 pages. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

The Science of Spirit Return.

By Charles Dawbarn. A scientific rehearsal that is truly interesting. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

Seers of the Ages,

EMBRACING

Spiritualism, Past and Present.

DOCTRINES STATED AND MORAL TENDENCIES DEFINED.

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D.

An exceedingly interesting and instructive book. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

Your Ruling Planet Discovered by Astrology.

By Prof. G. W. Cunningham. Devoted to the study of Astrology and its laws. Price, 25c.

Appeals to Methodists.

A short discourse by spirit Bishop Haven, given automatically through the hand of Carrie E. S. Twing. Price 20c. For sale at this office.

RIGHT LIVING

— BY —

SUSAN H. WIXON,

Author of "Apples of Gold," "All in a Lifetime," "The Story Hour," "Summer Days at Onset," "Sunday Observance," etc., etc.

"Living is an art, a method of expressing great conceptions; in fact, the highest method, the noblest of the arts."—Thomas Starr King.

This book gives an admirable course of study in ethics, and supplies a long-felt want of an ethical text-book especially adapted to the comprehension of children, as well as older persons whom it is wisely and appropriately designed to interest while teaching them valuable ethical lessons.

The author shows a wise practicality in her method of teaching the principles of ethics. She illustrates her subject with many brief narratives and anecdotes, which render the book more interesting and more easily comprehended. It is especially adapted for use in children's lyceums. In the hands of mothers and teachers it may be made very useful. Young and old will be benefited by it. It is a most excellent book and should be widely circulated.

CONTENTS:

Right Living. What Is Morality? What is Ignorance? Knowledge the Great Treasure. Concerning Education. Conduct; or Right Doing. Virtue, the Illuminator of Life. Prudence, an Economy of Life. What Know Ye of Justice? Fortitude a Noble Possession. Temperance and Intemperance. Is the Use of Tobacco Dangerous? Cultivation of Individuality. Character, a Jewel of Great Price. Idleness, Another Name for Loss. Industry, the Staff of Life. Value of a Trade. Recreation a Necessity. Games of Chance. Truth and Falsehood. What is an Oath? or the Worth of a Promise. Fraud a Crime. The Poison of Slander. What Is Hypocrisy? Conscience, or Moral Sense. Selfishness, the Menace of Society. Gratitude, a Fragrant Flower of Life. Is Reverence a Duty? Self-Reliance. Self-Control. Self-Respect. Foolish Pride and Silly Prejudice. Anger, the Distorter. The Angel of Forgiveness. Observation a Great Faculty. Perseverance, the Friend of Man. Punctuality, a Promoter of Success. The Difficulties of Life. Temptation, the Demon on the Highway. Habit, Second Nature. Power of Will. Courage, a Necessity to Right Living. In Regard to Concealed Vice. Beautiful Charity. Fidelity, the Giver of Strength and Honor. Value of Wealth. Avarice, Not a Means to Life's Best End. Good Nature, One of Life's Best Blossoms. Reason and Free Inquiry. Free Speech. A Free Press. Rights of Animals. Rights of Children. Human Rights; or the Equality of Man. Moral Cleanliness. Politeness—The Gentleman. Politeness—Continued—The Gentlewoman. Best Society. Progress; or Enlightenment. Wisdom.

Price, Cloth, $1. Sold at this Office.

GHOST DANCING.

Coming of the Messiah—Its Underlying Idea.

CIRCUMSTANCES THAT LED THE NORTH AMERICAN INDIAN TO ADOPT THIS CURIOUS CUSTOM.

Ghost dancing among the Sioux Indians is a thing of the past. The Messiah craze, which led to fierce battlings with the whites in the years gone by, has died out. Such was the unanimous opinion of the ranchmen and former Indian fighters who were among the delegates to the recent Nebraska Republican State Convention. Among these delegates was one who was neither a ranchman nor an old Indian fighter, and yet he knows more perhaps of the history of the senseless craze that lured to death many of the braves of the Northwest tribes than does any of the ranchmen. This man is Gen. L. W. Colby, for five years Brigadier General of the Nebraska militia, but now a lawyer of Beatrice. It was Colby who led the State militia to the frontier in the winter of 1890-91, when ghost dancing was at its worst, and his connection with that campaign prompted him to investigate the reason for the Indian outbreak and the basis of the queer illusions that prevailed in the tribes.

Ghost dancing, according to Gen. Colby, was nothing more nor less than an adaptation of the frenzy dances of the whirling dervishes of Turkey and Egypt, an exercise undertaken for the purpose of placing the physical being in a state of exaltation wherein the spirit gains intimate communion with the dead and with the Messiah. It is a curious fact, attested by the better educated Indians, that this idea of an Indian Messiah was an adoption of the Christian idea of the Savior, doubtless traceable to the teachings of the early missionaries. The expected advent of an Indian Messiah has been among the traditions of the Indians of North America almost from the beginning of their contact with the whites, and when the failure of crops in 1889 and 1890 left the Indians without the subsistence upon which they depended—the government failing to furnish all of the supplies demanded—their minds naturally turned to thoughts of the Messiah's advent. In the summer of 1890 the idea became widespread and was followed soon after by the announcement that the Messiah had actually come. Medicine men from the Shoshones, the Sioux, principally Brules, the Cheyennes and the Arapahoes journeyed into the desert of Nevada and there claimed to have seen the Indian Christ. When they returned they told to great tribal meetings what they had seen—a man with head bowed in sorrow and with scars on wrists, feet and face. He told them of his coming to redeem the whiter race from sin and suffering, of the cruelty that race had practiced upon him, of his crucifixion, suffering and death. He instructed them in morality and taught them certain religious dances and songs, the ghost dance among them. The medicine man told them that they had been punished by the white races for evil deeds done by their forbears, but that their time of travail was about ended. They said that he had told them that all the dead Indians should return to life; that the great herds of buffalo, antelope, elk and wild horses were to be reincarnated; that thereafter the white man would be unable to manufacture gunpowder or bullets that would penetrate the dress they were to assume; that he would cover the earth with thirty feet of additional soil, well sodded and timbered, under which the whites would be suffocated, and that any white man who escaped would be turned into small fishes in the rivers of the land. All that was asked of the Indians was that they believe and organize.

These medicine men described the Christ as a man of forty years of age. They said he gave them certain signs wherewith to work miracles and these they had tested and found effective. One chief professed to have seen and talked with his son, killed years before in war.

The men and women began to make holy shirts and dresses. White muslin was used. Blue and yellow stripes were placed on the back and front. On many were rude pictures, some of eagles and some of buffalo. Eagle feathers were worn on the shoulders, sleeves and head. Nothing made of metal was permitted except guns. First a man stood in the circle of dancers, then a woman, until a large circle was formed. They danced round and round till, one by one, the dancers grew tired and dizzy. They fell to the ground and foamed at the mouth, then lay as dead. When they returned to consciousness they told of wonderful things they had seen and heard. The song they sang while dancing was in the nature of a chant, with some variations from a monotone. Emphasis was given at about every second beat of common time. The refrain was at times a wail, which, once heard, the old-timers say, was never forgotten. At times the song would be an incoherent, disconnected conversation between the Great Spirit and the ghost dancer, supposed to take place after the latter, having fainted from exhaustion and mental excitement, had mounted upon wings and entered into the realms of the sun.

Twenty miles from the Pine Ridge agency about 2,000 Indians gathered, many of them belonging to the band of the famous old medicine man, Sitting Bull. They believed the Indian millennium would come with the next spring when the new grass appeared. Soldiers were hurried from all parts of the country. They herded the Indians into the agencies, and pursued the wandering bands of fanatics into the Bad Lands, and there proved to them that their ghost shirt was only painted muslin and incapable of turning the bullet of the white man. The ghost dance was held for six days and nights at the beginning of every new moon, by command of the Messiah. Month after month in 1890 the dance was kept up.

By the influence of the agents and the Indian police, backed by the soldiers, all of the Indians except the Sioux were brought under control. The Sioux were numerous and defiant. They refused to quit dancing and treated the agents' orders with contempt. The collision came at Wounded Knee Creek, on December 29. Several companies of soldiers had surprised and captured Big Foot's band, the leaders in the devilry of the times. They were lined up while a search of their tepees was made for arms. This proved fruitless and a personal search was ordered. The first detachment of searchers was shot down by the Indians, who had their guns concealed beneath their blankets and ghost shirts. There were 140 bucks, and 250 women and children in the band. The signal for hostilities was given by the medicine man grabbing a handful of earth and flinging it above his head. The soldiers were of Custer's old command and soon rallied. The Indians retreated to their tepees after they had lost fifty-two men. Before the battle ended 116 Indians, including Big Foot and sixty or seventy women and children, hiding in the tepees, were killed. The soldiers had twenty-five killed.

This demonstration of the worthlessness of the ghost shirt as armor had a powerful effect upon the other dancing Indians, and they sullenly submitted, after weeks of protest. The ghost dance belief died hard, however. So alluringly did the Messiah idea present the future to the simple-minded braves that they were loth to give it up. The following year ghost dancing was again started, but was soon stopped by the Indian police. Periodically since then have the followers of the craze sought to revive this dance, but each time it was sternly repressed. The end came last year when only a score of believers in all the Sioux could be got together. Then, and then only, was it finally abandoned.—New York Sun.

THE WHITE ROSE GRAVE.

A snow-white rose upon a grave—
Long may its blossoms bow!
The sweetest flower God ever gave
To deck a saintly brow.
Its purity is like your face,
Its golden heart your hair;
And in its perfume I can trace
A symbol of your prayer.

Dear friend, count every leaf that grows
A loving thought of you;
And every snowy bud that blows
A memory wet with dew;
And every root that rests in gloom
A heart-string twining dust;
But all the rising sweet perfume
As higher hope and trust.

I'd envy this fair plant its place
So near your folded hands,
Did I not feel your angel face
Looks down and understands.
Each time you seek these green retreats,
O count my spirit near;
For in a rose's heart there beats
The heart that placed it here.

Fair rose, thro' summer's drouth be brave,
And through the winter's strife;
The dearest dust sleeps in this grave—
O garland it with life!
Make fragrant all the summer air,
And with your dying breath
A message unto heaven bear,
Of love that knows no death.

CALLA HARCOURT.

Chesnut, Ill.

"From Soul to Soul." By Emma Rood Tuttle. Lovers of poetry will find gems of thought in poetic diction in this handsome volume, wherewith to sweeten hours of leisure and enjoyment. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"Our Bible: Who Wrote It? When? Where? How? Is It Infallible? A Voice from The Higher Criticism. A few thoughts on other Bibles." By Moses Hull. Of especial value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.

KINDLY CRITICISM.

Loveland on the Influence of Christianity.

To the Editor:—After five months of illness caused by a serious accident, I am again able to read and write a little. To-day when The Progressive Thinker was handed to me, I read it with great interest until I came to J. S. Loveland's article on "The Influence of Christianity," the perusal of which pained me. I fail to see the use or good to any cause or individual, in continuously trying to berate and belittle the works and workers of other spiritual eras or of our own. Sensitive as I am, I felt the Professor's bitterness, especially toward Jesus of Nazareth, etc., and that he wished for yet stronger language, if it were possible, with which to express himself.

I remember to have read a similar article from his pen, in the Banner of Light, some time ago. I mused over this in this wise: "Why does a man who claims to be intelligent, put his intelligence to such ill use?" when suddenly one of my spirit teachers became visible to me and said: "Why marvelest thou concerning the expressions of this man? His language demonstrates his status in progression. He has been a student on many lines of thought and has mounted some summits, but lacks true spiritual unfoldment and growth to give him the necessary counterpoise, true light and understanding of things spiritual. However, he fills a niche in God's plan with man. His point of view for some time past and at present is egotistical and rendered oblique through the selfish shades of which his personal aura is composed. However it will soon be disturbed and changed, then he will see the same things of which he now speaks so ill, from another point of view and behold of a truth what his part of service in the past and present should have been to the progress of the world and the weal of the people. He is gifted with talents for the use of which he must give an account."

Then a sad expression came over the face of the angel, and he continued: "It were well if all mortals did consider more seriously their own duties as factors of the whole human family and expected contributors to the progress of the world and the weal of all its people. Alas! too many clog the wheels of Progression's car and are dead weights to it."

He disappeared, and again I mused like this: What have I been contributing and what am I now, to the progression of the world and the weal of the people? True, I have always done everything I could in my humble way to comfort those in distress, and aid those in need whom I could reach—to the limit of my strength and means. Still perhaps more could have been done sometimes, yet I see not how. When we send out none but good thoughts and wishes and do in word and deed what our strength and means permit, we certainly contribute our share to the great cause of humanity.

I have long since learned under the tutorship of angels, that our divinity must prove itself by our humanity, and too often my ardent desires and efforts to do good and help others have brought me very sorrowful experiences, which have taught me that services of love for the weal of others, unselfishly bestowed, are, as a rule, not appreciated at the time by those so aided, which condition then makes it hard for the benefactor, whoever he may be, for the reason that there are no reciprocal currents established to bring back expended energy. It is a give all and receive nothing service; but I have also learned by observation and experience that all comes right in time.

We pass through afflictions to triumphs, we journey through the shadows to the light. Our spiritual sight and discerning powers are quickened to behold and to gather treasures of great price in places that seem barren to the physical sight.

In contemplating what we owe to the world, we should place before us this motto, viz.: "The world is my home; to do good my religion," and in the effort to live that religion we will have no chance to go wrong, for we will be too busy to search for the faults of others while looking only for the good in all and striving to promote it.

MRS. M. KLEIN.

Van Wert, Ohio.

"Mind and Body: Suggestions and Hypnotism Applied in Medicine and Education." By A. C. Halphide. President Chicago Society of Anthropology. For sale at this office. Price $1.

"Origin of Life, or Where Man Comes From." "The Evolution of the Spirit from Matter Through Organic Processes, or How the Spirit Body Grows." By Michael Faraday. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

CONTRIBUTORS.—Each contributor is alone responsible for any assertions or statements he may make. The editor allows this freedom of expression, believing that the cause of truth can be best subserved thereby. Many of the sentiments uttered in an article may be diametrically opposed to his belief, yet that is no reason why they should be suppressed; yet we wish it distinctly understood that our space is inadequate to publish everything that comes to hand, however much we might desire to do so. That must account for the non-appearance of YOUR article.

WRITE PLAINLY.—We would like to impress upon the minds of our correspondents that The Progressive Thinker is set up on a Linotype machine that must make speed equal to about four compositors. That means rapid work, and it is essential that all copy, to insure insertion in the paper, all other requirements being favorable, should be written plainly with ink on white paper, or with a typewriter, and only on one side of the paper.

ITEMS.—Bear in mind that items for the General Survey will all cases be adjusted to the space we have to occupy, and in order to do that they will generally have to be abridged more or less; otherwise many items would be crowded out. Sometimes a thirty-line item is cut down to ten lines, and ten lines to two lines, as occasion may require. Every item sent to us for publication, should contain the full name and address of the writer. We desire to know the source of every item that appears. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

Ferdinand Fox Jencken writes from New York: "Will you kindly grant me space to thank the friends of the Advanced Spiritual Conference of Brooklyn, especially Mrs. M. Robinson and her little band of 'Willing Workers,' for their kind assistance to my family during my recent illness in Seney Hospital. To each and all we are truly grateful."

Virginie Barrett writes: "I am at Lake Brady for a few weeks of rest. I have open dates for winter and camps on reasonable terms. Please address all letters to Lake Brady, Ohio, by way of Kent, care of hotel."

J. Martin writes: "I have just completed reading that wonderful work, 'The Arcana of Spiritualism,' and it has been nothing short of a revelation to me, and a source of information little dreamed of. It is truly a marvelous rendition, and bespeaks its angelic authority in every line."

Cornelius Van Buren writes: "I wish to correspond with some good, honest psychometric reader or test medium, who has at heart the work of an evangelistic nature, and who can give readings or tests in public after lectures. I wish to have such a person accompany me in a new evangelistic work in the Western states. Steady employment. Address at Waterloo, Iowa."

Harry Moore writes from 2979 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.: "As my wife will take charge of the Avenue Spiritualist Society the ensuing fall and winter, I will be open for engagements with societies after the month of August, and anyone addressing me at the above address will find out my terms and the nature of my work."

The New York Press says: "A man and his wife, Christian Scientists, have been arrested in West Virginia on a charge of murder. The Humane Society ordered them to provide medical attention for their sick child. They refused to do so. The child died. This capital charge is the logical outcome of these conditions, and the trial will be interesting as defining the point to which the law will redress wrongs committed under the stress of religious mania. The parents did not intend to kill their child. There is, however, such a thing as accessory to a crime after the fact, where the criminality is not direct, but is limited to mere concealment. In this case there was an actual command which was disobeyed. The strangeness and unreasonableness of such cases lie in the fact that the use of medicines under pressure is not incompatible with a belief in the nonentity of disease. Faith might be supposed to exist and be supreme and a physician's treatment taken also. But never do you find a Christian Scientist who is willing to take a soupcon of medicine with his overmastering faith. And the pity of it is that he is not content with enforcing his theories when he is sick himself, but his helpless children must suffer for his error."

The New York Times says: "Christian Science was arraigned in strong terms yesterday by William A. Purrington in a lecture delivered before the class for the discussion of present day problems at the Broadway Tabernacle. Speaking on 'The Sophistries and Dangers of Christian Science,' he characterized the so-called faith as a product 'of ignorance, irreverence, vanity, vulgarity, inconsequence, incoherence, and greed,' and charged that its textbook, 'Science and Health, With a Key to the Scriptures,' was written in a jargon at once irritating and comical in the eyes of intelligent and educated persons not under the spell of the delusion."

E. W. Church writes from Harveyville, Kas.: "Having a small inheritance in land, and feeling the need as a worker for the public, of some retreat for quiet rest, I decided to found such for all who should prove congenial to myself and to each other. My desire is to hold public meetings where addresses upon advanced lines of thought will be presented free to the people. We began with Spiritualist meetings. One such meeting was arranged last fall, and the Town Hall engaged, but the directors learning the purpose of its use, utterly refused to allow the exercises to take place there, as they declared them unfit for a place which was sometimes used as a church. Application was then made for the M. E. Church without success. There have been thus far two meetings held this summer with fair attendance. Our next meeting will be Saturday, July 28, and the subject 'Good Roads.' These have been grove meetings, and the others have been held on Sunday. The desire is to establish Sunday grove meetings during the warm months. The effort might well be copied elsewhere, since the 'groves were God's first temples,'"

S. H. West writes: "On the 21st ult. I was in Chicago, and went to see the Bangs Sisters, and had a reading. I wrote questions to four friends in spirit life, folded them with four sheets of blank paper, in a plain envelope, sealed it up and placed it between two slates, holding them in my hands while the medium sat away. In due time she removed the slates, and I opened the envelope and found the four sheets of blank paper were covered with seven pages of closely written answers, in ink, to my questions."

Take due notice, that all items for this page must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer. It will not do to say that Secretary or Correspondent writes so and so, without giving the full name and address of the writer. The items of those who do not comply with this request will be cast into the waste basket.

Occult Temple, Detroit, Michigan: Speakers—Rev. B. F. Austin, of Toronto, July 23; Lyman C. Howe, August 2. August 21 and 22, dedication of newly rebuilt temple, by Rev. Moses Hull, of Buffalo."

A Band of Harmony benefit will be given at the home of Mrs. Slosson, No. 19 Elizabeth street, Thursday, July 26, afternoon and evening. The ladies are requested to bring lunch, and Mrs. Slosson will serve tea and coffee at six o'clock. Social in the afternoon, and a progressive euchre party in the evening. A cordial invitation is extended to all their friends.

A late dispatch from Baltimore, Md., says: "A score or more women of this city are now mourning the loss of gold watches, diamond rings, and other valuables which they handed over to Spiritualistic sharps to have their troubles removed. Detectives are looking for the two 'mediums' or 'professors,' who went by the names of Milton Ellis and Harry Leroy. They are charged with obtaining money under false pretenses." We advise Spiritualists everywhere to look out for Spiritualistic "sharps." They can be found in all our large cities, and they are well patronized, showing how easy it is to deceive a certain class.

Mrs. LeSieur writes: "The Band of Harmony holds its sessions every first and third Thursday of the months the whole year around. We are not having vacation as many suppose, because Mrs. Richmond is away for the summer. We are having very pleasant meetings and the good work is going on. Our place of meeting is No. 40 Randolph street, room 608, Handel Hall Building. We begin at 3:30 o'clock for afternoon session. The ladies bring refreshments, and we serve tea and coffee at six o'clock. Evening session begins at eight o'clock."

The following is going the rounds of the press: "A movement against Spiritualism has been started in Germany by the court preacher, Stoecker, the great Christian social reformer. It is said there are no less than six hundred mediums in Berlin, the most of whom are bodily defective. They carry on frauds and humbugs in the name of ghosts. They are reported to have 60,000 followers in that city, who show great variety of character. Some are serious; some seek spirits for sport; some let weak nerves lead them to seances and visions; while most regard Spiritualism as a new way of calling up the dead to teach the living."

Mrs. Hamilton Gill, the well-known test medium, will visit the following Michigan camp-meetings: Island Lake, Briggs Park and Vicksburg. She will also attend Clinton and Marshalltown camps, Iowa. The friends will please note that the usual Thursday evening circles have been discontinued, as Mrs. Gill will not be in Chicago until after September 15.

The Muncie (Ind.) Herald says: "The Mediums' Protective Association of Indiana has been organized wit a membership of over 100. The purpose is for mutual protection against so-called unjust discrimination by the directory of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists, who have issued an order that no medium will be permitted to do business in the Chesterfield camp unless invited by the board. Heretofore the mediums were wholly unrestrained." We can not see wherein honest mediumship is injured in any way by the Chesterfield camp board. The speakers are invited, and why not extend the same privilege to mediums? True mediumship never suffers in such a case as this.

Wm. Scheth writes from Kansas: "Brother Mathis' suggestion in the last Progressive Thinker is a very good one, and I hope that every subscriber to The Progressive Thinker will take notice and carry out his plan. I have been practicing Brother Mathis' suggestion ever since I was a subscriber to The Progressive Thinker. I never allow one to go to waste with me, but I send them all out to do missionary work wherever I think they will do the most good with people who are as hungry for truth and knowledge as I am, but less able to pay for the same. By practicing this method we are enabled to bring light and knowledge (at very little cost) to a large number of people who would other wise remain in darkness. Let us put aside selfishness, and be liberal with our papers when we are through with them."

Joseph E. Benjamin writes from Bennington, Vt.: "The books and papers received, with many thanks and much gratification. They constitute an immense amount of good reading matter for the sum invested. Of course it is surprising until one stops and thinks and sees that you are doing it on the Divine Plan with the help of kindred spirits, all for the betterment of humanity. May the strength of all good and true spiritual power abide with you forever. I am something of a Pantheist; I fail to find any God but man. The more I read and think and reason, the more I find out that I don't know, and I know that I don't know. Self-creation and self-destruction is what I find uppermost."

Prof. J. Madison Allen is at Mineral Wells, Texas, a famous watering place and health resort. He was the principal speaker at the grove meeting at Caddo, Tex., held on the 4th and 5th of July, in celebration of American independence and in behalf of universal mental liberty and true civilization. His next points will be Fort Worth and Dallas, Dennison, and Indian Territory.

The Westminster Review says: "There is no doubt that a person may apparently see objects and hear words which another person close by cannot see and hear. Such impressions are to be referred not to actually existing objects, but to the action of the subject's mind. Dr. Abercromby tells us of one patient who could, by directing his attention to an idea, call up to sight the appropriate image or scene, though the thing called up were an object he had never seen, but had merely imagined. When meeting a friend in the street he could not be sure whether the appearance was his friend or a spectral illusion till he had tried to touch it and heard the voice. Goethe saw an exact counterpart of himself advancing toward him, an experience repeated by Wilkie Collins. Sir Walter Scott relates that soon after the death of Lord Byron he read an account of the deceased poet. On stepping into the hall immediately after he saw right before him in a standing posture the exact representation of his departed friend, whose recollection had been so strongly brought to his imagination. After stopping a moment to note the extraordinary resemblance, he advanced toward it and the figure gradually disappeared."

M. E. Kelley writes from Williamsport, Pa.: "The First Church of Spiritualism has for its pastor, Mrs. Helen Taylor, of Philadelphia. Mrs. Taylor has served the society for nearly two months, and has been successful in proving her worth. Her lectures are interesting and instructive, and her test work is very fine."

Mrs. L. N. Claman writes from Shelby, Mich.: "I have completed a very successful seven weeks' engagement with the Englewood Spiritual Union, 63rd street, Chicago. My stay among the dear old friends was a pleasure. Our audiences were large and appreciative. The lectures and messages were very kindly received, and it is my desire to express her good speed in all their work in the Union. I was at the camp meeting at Grand Rapids yesterday, July 15, and in the morning I listened to one of the most scientific lectures I ever heard delivered, by A. E. Tisdale, the blind medium. In the afternoon Frank T. Ripley ordained our sister and co-worker, Mrs. Emma Blake. Following this Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter took the meeting in charge, and that great audience of hundreds of people sang, and dear Mrs. Carpenter's guides did the rest. Oh! it was a glorious day, full of love and spirituality. Much harmony is exercised on the ground among mediums, and all seem to be glad of this camp, and we are sure of success in every particular. I have National day in charge, aside from my week's engagement. We from Grand Rapids send greeting to all other camps, and hope you are getting along as well as we are in Grand Rapids."

Londoners (England) fought their way to Christ church, Westminster, lately, to hear the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kans., but only three thousand persons were able to wedge themselves in, and so the preacher-editor was compelled to address an overflow meeting in the adjoining hall, and still another that congregated in the the streets. The vast audience forgot the sacred surroundings and burst into frequent applause at his arraignment of the liquor traffic and the trusts and his optimistic prophecy for the world's religious future. Mr. Sheldon startled his hearers by the statement that he had seen more drunken men and women in England and Scotland in a month than in Topeka in twelve years. He followed his home thrust with an expression of horror at his discovery that many ministers of the Gospel and church dignitaries in Great Britain were stockholders in British breweries. Speaking of the dawn of religious brotherhood, Mr. Sheldon announced that a great evangelistic propaganda would soon be undertaken in the United States by Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, of Brooklyn, and other prominent American divines. To the Christian Endeavorers of the world, whose convention Mr. Sheldon had come to attend, he suggested that politics was one of the most inviting fields of activity that lay open. He said that the present mayor of Topeka was elected by the Christian Endeavor vote, and declared that organization was all that was needed to make the society a political power.

Henrietta Straub writes: "The following message and prophecy by spirit Fred Straub may seem preposterous, but I promised to send off what I received, to be recorded, if possible, in The Progressive Thinker, even should it all be erroneous. It was received July 7, 1900: "Dear mother, once more I was in China, to make sure that I was not mistaken in my yesterday's observations. Alas! it is the clear truth, and not one of our poor boys left to tell the sad news or bury his comrades. It is a weird, it is an ominous sight. War will now be precipitated. China will succumb and be divided, and our States will be a prominent factor in these events. It will receive a large share and become one of the foremost powers in the affairs of the world and stay so until defeated in a war with Russia. Then the United States will be wiped out in her turn, as she wiped out China, but the climax will be put upon her fate by Japan, who, after defeating Russia with the help of the English, will make the best of what she finds in the United States. Japan will carry commerce and culture much farther than the United States, and her empire will even last longer than China's. Those future wars will be less bloody than the present one, as Japanese are milder and not as cruel as the Chinese. Average people will then become better and also more friendly to the higher world. They will then listen to our advice and information, and the two worlds will draw nearer together and work in unison to the common benefit of the human race. And so, good will come out of evil, and this present cruel war will after all be the first step towards a final blessing to all humanity.'" It is exceedingly easy to "predict;" and some spirits seem to indulge in it freely—too freely, perhaps. Amid these innumerable prophecies some can not fail of hitting the mark, just as ordinary guessing on a horse race—some one is bound to predict correctly.

Mary C. Von Kanzler writes: "To the friends who read 'The Progressive Thinker and have been writing me to learn which of our state camp-meetings I will visit, I desire to inform them through the columns of The Progressive Thinker that I now intend to be in Freeville (N. Y.) as long as that camp is open; after that go immediately to Lily Dale. I will be at my country residence near Fulton, N. Y., during the intermediate time, where all correspondents desiring to engage my services either for platform work as speaker and test medium, or to officiate at funerals can address me."

"Minister Conger, his family, and lady guests are safe. They are confined with other foreigners in a subterranean passage between the imperial palace and the British legation. They are suffering somewhat from lack of food, but no bodily harm has come to any of them." This is the communication sent to the President's mansion, Washington, D. C., by Dr. J. C. Ellis, a physician in good standing, and claimed to have been received by him direct from Pekin through a secret but entirely authentic source. "I am not yet prepared to announce the source of my news," said Dr. Ellis at his residence in K street "but it can be depended upon as entirely trustworthy. I expect another message soon, and will take pains to inform the authorities and the public." When asked how it was that he could receive messages from Pekin when the government could not succeed in receiving official communications, Dr. Ellis replied: "That will be explained in time. My informant is an American lady residing in Peking." According to Dr. Ellis, the present is the third message received by him from his informant. He said he knew positively that Minister Conger and his family were absolutely safe up to 6 o'clock July 21, and were under the protection of the dowager empress. The latter, the doctor says, desires it to be known that, though she is powerless to prevent the revolution in the capital, she will protect the foreigners at all hazards.

Geo. W. Matthews writes from Vancouver, B. C.: "I am pleased to inform you that on the 22d of June, George Campbell, of Nanaimo, B. C., organized a society in this place to be known as the Vancouver Psychical Research Society. We now have twenty-two members on the roll, and expect to double in the next six weeks. We are going to try and get Mr. Hull to speak here when he comes to Nanaimo in September, if he can find the time. We expect to have Mrs. Reese, of Nanaimo with us next Sunday."

The Religio-Philosophical Journal says: "The liberal press of this country moralizes over the death-bed confession of Rev. Geo. Gibson, of San Francisco, Who, they say, was guilty of the murder of the two girls in Emmanuel Church of this city, for which crimes Theodore Durrant was hanged. Save your energy and your ink, friends. Mr. Gibson is alive and well, and is still the respected pastor of the Bartlett street church, where the crimes were committed. 'Be sure you're right; then go ahead.'"

J. K. Bubb writes: "I need The Progressive Thinker in my business. In its columns I find facts explained. I find truths therein, grand and sublime, which children and older ones should know."

An exchange says: "A remarkable attribute of the psychologically-developed soul is the art of acquiring knowledge by what might be termed interior penetration; that is, the nature of the thing resolves itself into one's inner consciousness without any apparent effort of the mind. Thus a letter may be held unopened in the hand or laid on the breast and yet read with perfect clearness by the mental vision of an adept. Even more strange is the art of transferring the body, yet it is asserted that those who have delved deeply into the secrets of nature can and do project their astral bodies to any point they wish. A person in Madrid wishing to communicate in New York can thus throw out not only mind, but his astral body, which can be seen as one would perceive a magnetic aura. This, it is said, is done by the adepts of the East at any time, and from the interior of Thibet—a land in which no white man has penetrated—there comes wonderful stories of the science of the Mahatmas, or men learned in Brahminical lore."

Willard J. Hull will open the Clinton Camp with a stirring address.

Mrs. S. Augusta Armstrong writes from Lake Villa, Ill.: "I left my California home with its sunshine and flowers, and my dear soldier boys, for my eastern home, two weeks ago and am stopping off en route to fill an engagement at Deep Lake camp. This is a most delightful site for a camp-meeting. Nature has been bountiful in her gifts, and with the will power and the determination to succeed of our co-worker, Mr. G. V. Cordingley, the other camps about the country—north, east south and west—will have to look to their laurels. I lectured to an appreciative audience last Sunday afternoon, and shall again occupy the rostrum, Sunday, July 22. Mrs. H. Downing's home tent seems to be the magnetic center of the camp ground. She welcomes all with a sweet smile and a cordial grasp of the hand. Her strong healing powers have already been felt here and the wonderful water that her guides prepare is a balm for suffering humanity. I shall be at Central New York Camp, the first of August. I bring greeting from the golden state to all eastern friends."

S. M. Tucker writes: "The Arkansas Valley Spiritual Association held its annual camp-meeting in Island Park, Winfield, Kansas, commencing July 7, and closing July 16, 1900. While the attendance was not as large as it might have been, we had a good time and paid all expenses. Our speakers were Mrs. Hinsdale, of Fort Worth, Texas; Mrs. Mabee, of Topeka, Kans.; Mrs. Bessie Bellman, of Howard, Kans, and S. M. Tucker, of Wichita, Kans. Their lectures were well received. Our platform test mediums were Mrs. Steward, of Kansas City, Mo.; and Mrs. W. W. Aber, of Spring Hill, Kansas. W. W. Aber, materializing medium, held several seances. All manifestations were well received. At the election of officers for the ensuing year, the following were elected: President, S. M. Tucker, Wichita, Kans.; vice-president, Mrs. Bessie Bellman, Howard, Kansas; secretary, Chas. O. Bethel, Winfield, Kans.; treasurer, Mrs. Harriet Eastman, Winfield, Kans.; trustee, Dr. A. S. Martin, Cedar Vale, Kans. The association is in a prosperous condition and determined to continue in the good work."

Pon-she-wa-ing, Mich.

Sunday, July 8, was closing day of Pon-she-wa-ing Camp-meeting. The day being cold and rainy, the audience was not so large as on former Sundays, but those who were in attendance enjoyed two grand and soul-inspiring lectures. The address by Mr. O. A. Edgerly in the forenoon was highly appreciated by all present, and in the afternoon Mr. A. E. Tisdale held the audience spellbound with his profound lecture. Miss Gladа Kellam sang in a pleasing manner "Whatever is is Best," a poem by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, with music by Mr. Maxham, and with her permission, dedicated to Mr. Tisdale.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. Martha Root she could not be with us on Woman's Day. Dr. Rosamond Conger, of Chicago, addressed the meeting in the afternoon. Dr. Conger's talk was very impressive and shows to us that she has worked and thought on this subject for many years. Drs. M. E. and Rosamond Conger were with us two weeks, delivering lectures and teaching a class in practical medicine. They are genial and pleasing people and were greatly missed by all after their departure. All regret very much the absence of Mrs. Root and hope at some future time to have her with us.

IDA CORA FULLER.

Hell on Earth.

It has been said that "whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad." I was reminded of this while reading "The Opinion of a Distinguished Chinaman," on page 4 of The Progressive Thinker, July 14th.

Are the so-called Christian nations mad and likely to have their religion destroyed by the Chinese for trying to kill some of them to make others pretend to believe what they know by many thousand years experience before Christianity was born, is a false religion, not in harmony with the Golden Rule.

Is John Bull mad in trying to kill the Boers, Chinese, Hindoos, Egyptians, Irish and others? Is Uncle Sam mad in killing Philippinos and Chinese?

William Penn had great success with savages without an army, or force. He only used common sense, as Mr. Gladstone said. General Sherman said that war is hell—he knew it by experience to be a fact. General Grant said, "Let us have peace"—which is pure Christianity.

The authors of war make hell on earth, and purgatory for themselves in spirit life, if there is any truth in the New Testament.

B. FRANKLIN CLARK, M. D.
Belvidere Seminary, N. J.

A QUESTION.

Is Man Mortal, or Immortal?

Hope of immortality is not a conception of race infancy. The idea is an after thought of his more adult age.

Aeons of ages rolled away during which abnormal man frisked from bush to tree, disporting and utilizing his caudal appendage, giving no thought of immortality.

Primitive man believed that the visible body constituted the man; and seeing the body become lifeless, decay and ultimately vanish, he logically concluded that extinction was the finality of all animates.

But there came a time when apparitions were seen and recognized as old acquaintances who had formerly lived in flesh bodies, whereupon man jumped to the conclusion that he was immortal. This original idea was not a case wherein the wish was parent to the thought. The idea was wholly suggested by apparitions; by the reappearance of those supposed to be extinct.

In discussing any controverted question, the essential factors leading to reliable conclusions, are sound premises, otherwise false conclusions are ineyitable. In this practical age of analytic and sympathetic methods of procedure the true scientist first makes sure of his premises, after which, if he is careful of the logic of his premises and doesn't use ambiguous terms and ambiguous forms of speech, his deductions and conclusions may equal demonstration. Hence, in discussing the mooted question of man's immortality, the paramount factor is to ascertain exactly what constitutes man? What, if any, are the peculiar traits of character that distinguish him from other animates?

Now, in viewing animates collectively we fail to find in man one trait not possessed by others. Man excels in some traits and is excelled in others. Man, however, possesses a greater number in a higher degree than any other animated being but his excellence is wholly a result of fortuitous environments whereby greater evolution is obtained; not from any original design or impress.

Fossil thinkers claim that man alone is endowed with reason, and yet it is well known that many species of animates forecast, and store food for future use, thus clearly evidencing a high standard of reason, implying memory, sensation, consciousness and deliberation.

Instinct is not applicable in such cases, inasmuch as animates accustomed to store food for future use where nature fails, as in frigid and temperate zones, if removed to the tropics cease to store food after a short experience.

Again, it is claimed that man alone has hope of immortality. This, too, is wholly conjectural. We have seen that immortality is wholly a suggestion of apparitions. It is well known that the dog, horse and donkey recognize apparitions. Each of these animates have long memories. Hence it is highly probable that in apparitions they recognize old friends, suggesting continued existence. The fear they often manifest on such occasions is evidence that they discern apparitions to be different from ordinary animates.

Thus we learn that the difference in the higher species of animates is so little that it is safe to assume that if any are immortal, all are.

It is an axiom conceded by all, that any phenomenon that had a beginning must have an ending; that all animates have been and are being evolved from primal elements of crass matter, by the reciprocal and antagonistic action of cosmic forces; that the primal condition and primal form of matter is gaseous, consisting of hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen and carbon. These are the potential elements of matter. Subordinate gases—argon, for example—may not be considered in this connection.

The cosmic forces inherent in matter are gravity, heat, electricity, magnetism and life.

These premises are so absolutely sound, they may not be controverted. However, as electricity, magnetism and life never manifest except when heat is present, it is possible that each are only differentiated forms or properties of heat, thence it would follow that gravity and heat are the dominant factors by which all phenomena are evolved. Heat and gravity are antagonistic forces, originate and perpetuate all motion, without which all motion would cease. Motion from gravitation is always centripetal; motion from heat is never centripetal. Vital motion (from heat and life combined) may be in any direction. Sensation is present only in vital motion; all others are insensate, without design or purpose, hence disastrous, destructive phenomena equal the beneficial productive. Destruction and production go hand in hand adown the eternal ages. Therefore as crass matter alone—including its cosmic forces—is eternal, it follows that all evolved phenomena, differentiated, must ultimately be resolved back to primal elements, whereby extinction of distinct phenomena becomes absolute. No other conclusion is possible.

In a previous paper it was shown that mind, in which individuality is manifested, could only evolve from its latent, quiescent state when matter was undergoing evolution; that when matter was undergoing dissolution back to primal conditions, all special phenomena previously evolved therefrom must also be disintegrated, whereby individuality is extinguished; that any number of apparitions and communications, however obtained from those invisibles who have obtained the second birth is no evidence of immortality. The second birth is wondrously mysterious, still apparitions and communications prove that they remain in the earth's material sphere of cosmic forces and are subject thereto, consequently possess material bodies, without which no individual manifestation could ever occur. Now, as mind was evolved into action by cosmic forces, it follows that a reaction of these forces would cause dissolution. Worlds evolve and dissolve with the same certainty as the frailest flower. Surely puny man may not hope to escape.

When speaking of man, mind is always included as one attribute of his evolution and constitution. Prior to which mind had no recognition. Mind is an expression of life through evolving matter. When evolution ceases, mental expression ceases.

If mind was not thus subordinate our intense love of abode in flesh would never submit to eviction. If matter was subordinate to mind immortality would be assured. All nature, however, shows that mind is the toy of insensate forces, otherwise everything would be lovely and lightning would kill (evict) nobody.

Now then, if it is true(?) that Prof. Loeb has produced animates from unfertilized eggs; also twins and triplets from the single egg at will, by varied proportions of various salinous solutions, it must be conceded that manifestations of life, including mind, result from chemical action of cosmic forces and virtually exist only in chemical combinations that are evanescent.

However, in conclusion, we may not forget that as something never comes from nothing, it follows that mind must inhere in matter even when not capable of expression, but when the essential forces (heat and life) are no longer co-related with matter in the requisite combinations wherein man is involved and whereby man is evolved and finally resolved, each and all again becomes subject to evolution. But as dissolution of phenomena extinguishes every trait of individuality, subsequent evolution is in no logical sense a reincarnation.

Prayers and tears, my dears, will not change it. GEO. M. RAMSEY.
Washington, Pa.

IN EVIDENCE.

Reasonableness of Immortal Life.

To the Editor:—With this I send you a copy of a communication I received through the agency of some occult intelligence. The original was found among my private papers where, to me, it seems it could not be placed by human hands. Therefore to me is in evidence of immortal life. To others I think the reasoning and sense to be of value. Respectfully your,
Topeka, Kan. J. N. ADAMS.

One of the strongest arguments for a future life is a necessity for it, to supplement the imperfections of this one. We see the wicked flourish and the good languish in poverty; the selfish win success, riches, honor, and the leadership among men; while the generous altruist fails in business and is universally execrated; the useless and vicious vagabond who cumbers the earth, and whose only possible claim to filling a useful purpose is that he may serve as a frightful example, lives to a green old age; while the widow's son, the only support of a family, dies; or the woman who walks the earth a being too noble to be classed among her kin, is cut down in the flower of her days, her career of usefulness cut short. If there were no hereafter we must needs create one, to even matters up and make of such things a harmonious comprehension.

The economy of nature teaches the same lesson, nothing is wasted; every dead leaf, every surplus seed, the decaying bodies of plants and animals are utilized, to the ultimate particle.

Nothing rests; but from the moment when death occurs the process begins by which the dead material is worked up into new forms of life. But would it not be an anomaly if everything is preserved and utilized and the spirit wasted? The noble qualities, the possibilities for usefulness, developed in man or woman by education or thought, are these lost when the owner dies? What is there in the universe of so much value as moral worth combined with mental strength? In all ages this has been admitted by all men of all religions. The stars swerve from their course; the sun stands still; yes, even the Son of God comes down from heaven and dies to teach men the way to moral rectitude. Admitting the eternity, the indestructibility of matter, we must admit no less for that which alone renders matter valuable, "the spirit."

Here as elsewhere, the soul which deserts its material domicile, continues its conscious individual existence; else the cosmos is chaos and blind, chance uselessly rules a purposeless aggregation of matters and forces. In the Garrisonian philosophy death is but an accident, and not a very momentous one. Every action in life has its influence necessarily upon the future. There is no heaven and no hell in the sense that the "saved" are indiscriminately sent to swim in never-ending bliss, and the "damned" are plunged into eternal torment. For "there is no God dares wrong a worm." Justice demands what observation teaches, that every good or bad deed must receive its due recompense, must be followed by its inevitable consequences. This is the inexorable decree of the "Father," whom even the gods themselves could not influence.

And so by pure reasons, apart from the authority of revelation or inspiration, we are led to the conclusion that the being who inhabits the body of every man or woman, is eternal and must continue to live after separation from the material envelope, and to live as an individual; for life without consciousness is nothing but annihilation.

But this compels still further admissions, for such a life would be of little value were the associations formed in this world not continuous in the next. The faith that sees in death the way to rejoin the loved ones gone before, is too beautiful, too precious a thing to be baseless. What would Paradise be worth without it? Nothing in the imagination of man is worth as much. No scheme of happiness can be conceived that would not be valueless if this feature were omitted; this thought alone soothes the grief of the mourner and robs the grave of its terrors. What are all your golden crowns and harps, your houris and happy hunting grounds, your elysian fields and your Valhalla, beside the privilege of once more clasping the hands of her who for a quarter century walked the earth by your side?

VOLUME 1 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World treats of the "Mythical Origin of Death;" "A Magdalen's Passage to Spirit Life;" "Impressive Communications from the Spirit Side of Life;" "Death Considered by the Spirit Lucretius;" "Oddities in Reference to the Dead;" "Death from a Vibratory Force;" "The Day After Death Beautifully Illustrated;" "Sensations of the Dying;" "A Birth Out of Dark Conditions;" "After Death Experiences of an Avaricious Man;" "A Special Visit to the Spirit World;" "Fragrance at a Child's Death Bed;" "The Varied Experiences of a Humanitarian Spirit;" "The Impressive Testimony of an Exalted Spirit;" "Indications of the Process of Dying;" "The Idiosyncrasies of Death;" "Life and Death Thoughtfully Analyzed;" "Signs in the Process of Dying," etc., etc. In fact this volume is a mine of valuable information, and every person should have access to it. It should be in every home. Read the premium terms carefully, and then send for the Three Volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death.

"Social Upbuilding, Including Co-operative Systems and the Happiness and Ennoblement of Humanity." By E. D. Babbitt, LL. D., M. D. This comprises the last part of Human Culture and Cure. Paper cover, 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"The Infidelity of Ecclesiasticism. A Menace to American Civilization." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood, lecturer upon physical, physiological and psychic science. Demonstrator of the molecular or spiritual hypothesis of nature. Scholarly, masterly, trenchant. Price 25 cents. For sale at this office.

"A Few Words About the Devil, and Other Essays." By Charles Bradlaugh. Paper, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

"A Plea for the New Woman." By May Collins. An address delivered before the Ohio Liberal Society. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

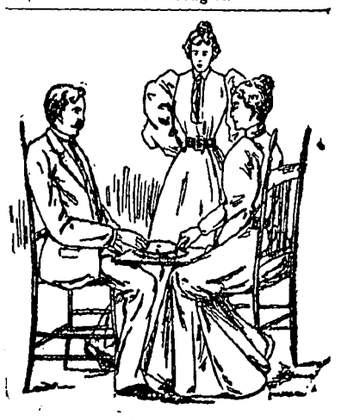
MAN'S INFLUENCE OVER MAN.

Remarkable Words on Personal Magnetism From An Eminent Divine.

No subject has excited so much interest or awakened so much discussion among thinking people of late as that of Personal Magnetism. It is worthy of note that clergymen, doctors, college presidents and men of science everywhere are giving it deep thought. Many of them have openly certified to its wonderful powers. The outspoken words of the Rev. Paul Weller, of Gorham, N. Y., in this connection will call forth no little additional comment.

REV. PAUL WELLER.

In answer to a personal letter from an intimate friend, asking if it was true that he (Rev. Weller) had become a firm believer in Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism, Rev. Weller wrote:



"The facts are: The subject of Personal Magnetism or Hypnotism, to which I have devoted many years of study, was recently more forcibly than ever called to my attention through reading a scientific work on the subject, now being circulated by the New York Institute of Science, Rochester, N. Y.

"I am a minister of the gospel, but I do not hesitate to say that the reading of that book and the subsequent study of its contents have worked an all-powerful, important and good influence over me. My recommendation of Personal Magnetism, a subject which every man and woman may study with profit, is made after thorough investigation and with complete knowledge of its great value. I make this statement deliberately. The study of Personal Magnetism, as set forth in the admirable books I have mentioned above, should be next to the study of the Holy Bible.

"Personal Magnetism embodies all the laws governing man's influence over man. It is the power that makes men mold the minds of men. It turns life's failures into successes. It develops the latent powers of the will and makes one capable of the accomplishment of great deeds. I have received many letters on the subject, and to all writers I have answered: 'Write to the New York Institute of Science, Rochester, N. Y., asking for their scientific work on Personal Magnetism and Hypnotism. It will be sent to you free of charge. If its perusal does as much for you as it did for me, you will thank me the longest day you live for having called your attention to the book.' Yours truly,

(REV.) "PAUL WELLER."

It will only be necessary for you to send your request to the New York Institute of Science, Dept. N. B. 18, Rochester, N. Y., and you will receive the volume Rev. Paul Weller recommends by return mail. IT IS FREE. A postal card will bring it.

THE PSYCHOGRAPH
—OR— DIAL PLANCHETTE.

This instrument is substantially the same as that employed by Prof. Hare in his early investigations. In its improved form it has been before the public for more than seven years, and in the hands of thousands of persons has proved its superiority over the Planchette, and all other instruments which have been brought out in imitation, both in regard to certainty and correctness of the communications received by its aid, and as a means or developing mediumship.

Do you wish to investigate Spiritualism?
Do you wish to develop Mediumship?
Do you desire to receive Communications?

The Psychograph is an invaluable assistant. A pamphlet with full directions for the Formation of Circles and Cultivation of Mediumship

with every instrument. Many who were not aware of their mediumistic gift, have, after a few sittings, been able to receive delightful messages. A volume might be filled with commendatory letters. Many who began with it as an amusing toy, found that the intelligence controlling it knew more than themselves, and became converts to Spiritualism.

Capt. D. B. Edwards, Orient, N. Y., writes: "I had communications (by the Psychograph) from many other friends, even from old settlers whose gravestones are moss-grown in the old yard. They have been highly satisfactory, and proved to me that Spiritualism is indeed true, and the communications have given my heart the greatest comfort in the severest loss I have had of son, daughter, and their mother."

Dr. Eugene Crowell, whose writings have made his name familiar to those interested in psychic matters, writes as follows: "I am much pleased with the Psychograph. It is very simple in principle and construction, and I am sure must be far more sensitive to spiritual power than the one now in use. I believe it will generally supersede the latter when its superior merits become known."

Securely packed, and sent postage paid from the manufacturer, for $1.00. Address:

HUDSON TUTTLE,
Berlin Heights, Ohio.

Studies in the Outlying Fields of Psychic Science.

To which is added Spiritual Phenomena: How to investigate their various phases; how to form circles and develop mediumship; an absolute test of genuine mediumship. By Hudson Tuttle.

A most excellent work. Every Spiritualist should have it. Price, cloth, 75c.

MISS JUDSON'S BOOKS.

WHY SHE BECAME A SPIRITUALIST.

264 pages. One copy, $1; six copies, $5.

FROM NIGHT TO MORN;
Or, An Appeal to the Baptist Church.

82 pages. One copy, 15 cents; ten copies, $1.

THE BRIDGE BETWEEN TWO WORLDS.

209 pages. One copy, bound in cloth, $1; paper, 50 cents.

For Sale at this Office, 40 Lasalle Street.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

This department is under the management of

Hudson Tuttle.

Address him at Berlin, Heights, Ohio.

NOTE.—The Questions and Answers have called forth such a host of respondents, that to give all equal hearing compels the answers to be made in the most condensed form, and often clearness is perhaps sacrificed to this forced brevity. Proofs have to be omitted, and the style becomes thereby assertive, which of all things is to be deprecated. Correspondents often weary with waiting for the appearance of their questions and write letters of inquiry. The supply of matter is always several weeks ahead of the space given, and hence there is unavoidable delay. Every one has to wait his time and place, and all are treated with equal favor.

NOTICE—No attention will be given anonymous letters. Full name and address must be given, or the letters will not be read. If the request be made, the name will not be published. The correspondence of this department has become excessively large, especially letters of inquiry requesting private answers, and while I freely give whatever information I am able, the ordinary courtesy of correspondents is expected. HUDSON TUTTLE.

Mrs. C. G.: Q. Can a person by concentrating the mind on others, influence them—as to be well or ill, or act as they desire?

A. As a general expression the answer is No. That it is possible has been widely taught by those who pretend to teach the art and these claim to give the occult means whereby anyone can hypnotize whomsoever they please. It is utterly false, and they who pay for such lessons are defrauded of their money and doomed to disappointment. It is true that certain ones can influence certain others who are in accord with them. There is just this molety of truth in the so-called "absent treatment," which in the main, benefits by suggestion. It is possible for a person who is harmoniously related to another, by concentration of mind to transfer not only ideas, but strength and life. As such intimate connection cannot exist where the thoughts and purposes are evil, the tremendous power which might be placed with irresponsible persons, is confined to exceedingly narrow limits.

The "evil eye," and the influence of incantations, charms, and the dreaded "hoodoo," which like a spiritual vampire absorbs life at its source, are from suggestion, and self-hypnotism.

In the few cases which may be classed as genuine, direct contact between the operator and recipient exists or has existed in the past.

S. A. Aykroyd, D. D. S., Kingston: Q. A warm friend who has given a great deal of attention to the study of Spiritualism, became insane, and was removed to an asylum about two miles from us. My wife, writing automatically received this message from him: "Oh, God! what an experience I am going through, partly in the body and partly out. Oh, if the physical body could only die and let me loose, what a a relief it would be. What would you think of me if I should do something desperate? Not much! I will not. I have strength to control myself.

"Go to my wife. Help her if she will accept it. If she will not take from you, send it unknown, and I will return it to you ten fold. POOR JACK."

How can such phenomena be accounted for? Does the spirit actually leave the body, or is it by telepathy.

Can the spirit leave the body and appear at a distance?

A. The great number of instances of "double appearance" which have been recorded, leave no doubt that the spirit can leave the body, and appear at a distance.

With all the conditions favorable, and an intense desire to communicate, it would appear the most plausible and reasonable explanation of the method by which the foregoing message was received, to accept it just as it purports; although the walls of the asylum confined the tortured body, the spirit went out to communicate with those to whom he was most strongly drawn.

R. R. C. Mack: Q. In case of a person buried alive, and signs of great struggle are apparent when the casket is opened, can you say as a medium that the persons thus buried revived sufficiently to realize their condition; or was it the final death struggle?

A. While there are many cases of premature interment, the displacement of the body often taken as evidence that the coffined dead had revived to life is not trustworthy. The escape of gases by the decomposition, may throw the head aside and change the position of the body. Hence conclusions should be carefully reached from such evidence.

A person in the stupor or trance which simulates death, does not require an appreciable quantity of air for the oxygenation of the blood, for all processes are at a stand-still. Even a hermetically sealed casket contains sufficient air to preserve life. But when the awakening comes, there is instant call for air, as all processes in the body are resumed, and life cannot be sustained beyond a few minutes.

As those who have passed through the dreadful ordeal of having been supposed to be dead by their friends, almost invariably say that they were fully conscious of everything occurring around them, should they fail to arouse before being consigned to the grave, they would be still conscious, and if they awoke they would know exactly where they were and their awful fate. Yet the torture could only endure for a brief moment.

M. C. G., Hartford, Mich.: Growth in mediumship may be assisted by sitting in a carefully selected circle, or sitting apart an hour for communion, by one's self.

Mrs. M. A. S.: The "explosion of a ball" in your circle is not a rare occurrence. Similar phenomena have been presented in a great many circles. It is imply one form of manifestation, and a very convincing one. It would be much better for you if you could induce one or two others to join you in your seances.

G. W. Post: Q. What became of the body of Christ after it was buried in the sepulchre?

A. If the strict meaning and interpretation of the text of the New Testament as it is given us be taken, then the body of Christ was resurrected. He simply came to life, and he is said to have showed his wounds to prove his identity. In fact the literal resurrection of his physical body is considered an astounding miracle, the purpose of which is to prove the resurrection of all believers! Until the story of the sepulchre is proved to have historic authenticity, speculation as to the body placed therein is not demanded.

Subscriber: Q. I wish you to answer first in regard to my family: How many of us are dead? Am I married or single; how many brothers and sisters have I? How many dead, how many living. How about my health? What is the matter with me, and what will cure me? I loaned some money to a medium, and I don't know where this medium now is. Can you tell me how I can get the money? If you can I will divide with you.

A. This is an example of a very great number of letters received, differing only in the fact that it contained 12 two-cent stamps, and the promise of a division of the spoils. Should all these questions of family be answered it would be no test beyond mind-reading, at least it might plausibly be so-called, and as for the process of getting his honest pay from ——, this department has had many difficult questions, but none as inexplicable. It is better for "Subscriber" not to know where this "medium" is, for it saves him the worry of the attempt "to get blood out of a turnip."

To all these letters, of interest only to their writers, we have given as far as possible personal reply as a matter of courtesy, as only questions having a general interest are admissible to the columns of The Progressive Thinker.

Mrs. M. D. Peterson: Q. Why do my spirit friends appear in different ways; sometimes luminous, at others just as they did while in earth-life?

A. A spirit by the well-known laws of magnetic control can appear in any form it desires. Such appearance is subjective, depending on mental impressions so vivid that they are received by the mind as objective. Surely such unexpected and characteristic appearances, are valuable in evidence of the genuineness of their source.

Nora Batchelor: Q. Will you kindly suggest some book, or books, containing short essays or articles on the philosophy of Spiritualism, which would be suitable to read at the meetings of a small society which is not able to employ a lecturer? The Spiritualist journals are taken and read by most of the members, hence articles in these cannot be used with profit.

A. One of the best books for your purpose is A. B. French's Lectures and Addresses. Write him at Clyde, Ohio. Price $1. If you wish something to read and discuss, you will find Religion of Man and Ethics of Science valuable. The Arcana of Spiritualism may possibly fill both places.

No Creedism for Me.

"When Freedom from her mountain height
Unfurled her standard to the air,
She tore the azure robes of night,
And set the stars of glory there."

Let us be free, rightfully, religiously, altogether gloriously free, bound only to the truth that maketh free. I believe in a free, changing, progressive religion, just as I believe in a free, progressive man. I disbelieve in creedism, just as I disbelieve in slavery. I cannot concede the right of any former age to make a religion for this. I prefer a meal cooked to-day, rather than one prepared four thousand, or two thousand years ago. My appetite affects me now, and calls for the truth and best thoughts of our time, dished up in improved vessels, all burnished and bright with the light of the present.

I believe that every one should think and live their own free thought, independent of any creed or set religion. The advancing mind must of necessity change in its conceptions and belief; otherwise there could be no progress, and life would be without advantage or purpose. So surely as life is a school we must change as fast as we learn; and perfect liberty to think is essential to the best activity and development of mind. Hard and fast creeds are chains to the wheels of progress, and hold them down in the time-worn ruts of unreasoning superstition. It is our privilege to be free, easy, and happy in conversational exchange of thought, and so entertain and profit one another; but sectarianism is a hindrance in the way of free communion, and can find no place in the great true heart of Liberty. Why restrain and fear to give me your religious thought? And why must I be guarded lest I offend? Whence the discordant vibrations that disturb the love, joy, and peace of the soul? It is creedism, my friends, not truth, that hinders reciprocation and cramps expression. Let us be free in the truth, and then we may grow and be happy; inviting the sunshine, while sowing flowers for ourselves and others, in the great free garden of the world:—

Be free and progressive, in the light of
to-day;
In the shine of the present, is the time to make hay.

WILLIAM J. HILL, M. D.
Petoskey, Mich.

SOUL QUESTIONS.

Oh, my friends in earthly temples,
Can you hear what spirits say,
From the realms of life eternal,
From their homes in endless day?

Can you catch the gleam of sunlight
As our thought-waves outward roll?
Can you grasp the thoughts, the blessings,
As they flash from soul to soul?

Can you read by intuition
That grand truth from heaven above,
Teaching mortals that 'tis given
For each other here to love?

Can you search the endless record
Of the light and love divine,
As throughout the rhythms of nature
It, from sun to sun, doth shine?

Can you bring to mortal dwellers
On this earth, that truth sublime,
Teaching that the souls of mortals
Will exist through endless time?

Oh, ye noblest ones of earth life,
Oh, ye true and kind of heart,
Teach all mortals here and with you,
From the truth ne'er to depart.

Guide the erring, bring this blessing
To all others, to each youth,
Let them know that justice, honor,
Are but records of the truth.

Help them gain the blessed knowledge
That by pure platonic love,
They will gain the best reward
In the summer land above.

And, oh, let all earthly mortals
Read and learn the lesson grand:
Earthly purity and kindness
Bring true joy in summer land.

May the blessings of the angels
Now fall fast on every head;
Let not one in all creation
Think a single soul is dead.

H. L. CHAPMAN.
Marcellus, Mich.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

THE CAMP-MEETINGS.

Ashley Camp, O.

This camp begins July 29, and ends August 19, 1900. For programmes address H. Baxter, Ashley, Ohio.

Maple Dell Camp, O.

The National Spiritual and Religious Camp Association will hold its twelfth annual session, commencing July 22, ending September. For full particulars and programme, enclose stamp and address Lucy King, corresponding secretary, Mantua, Ohio.

Lake Pleasant Camp, Mass.

This camp opens July 29. The circulars are now ready and can be had upon application. In writing for them please enclose stamp for return postage. Address Albert P. Blinn, Clerk, 603 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.

Columbus Camp, O.

This camp will open July 1, and close August 27. Send for programmes to Dr. W. D. Noyes, secretary, 189, N. Cleveland avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

Chesterfield Camp, Ind.

The camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will open at Chesterfield, Ind., July 19, and close August 26, 1900. For programmes and further information address Flora Hardin, secretary, Anderson, Indiana.

Delphos Camp.

The twenty-second annual camp-meeting of the First Society of State Spiritualists and Liberals will be held at Delphos, Kans., from August 10 to August 26 inclusive. For further particulars or information write to President J. N. Blanchard, Delphos, Kansas; M. J. Main, vice-president, Simpson, Kansas, or E. S. Bishop, secretary, Glasco, Kansas.

Cassadaga Camp, N. Y.

This favorite place of resort offers an attractive programme the coming season. The camp opens July 13 and closes August 26. Write to the secretary, A. E. Gaston, Meadville, Pa., for programmes.

Onset Camp-Meeting.

Commences July 15, and closes August 26, 1900. For further particulars address Secretary, Onset, Mass.

Vicksburg Camp.

The seventeenth annual camp-meeting of Vicksburg, Mich., will be held in Fraser's Grove, commencing August 3, and closing August 26, 1900. For further information address Jeannette Fraser, Manager, Vicksburg, Kalamazoo county, Mich.

Lake Brady.

The camp grounds will be open for picnics June 1, extending through the summer. The camp-meeting opens July 1, closing September 1. Anyone wishing a Lake Brady program will please write Geo. N. Abbott, Lake Brady, via Kent, Ohio, or E. R. Kidd, Canton, Ohio.

Mount Pleasant Park, Ia.

The eighteenth annual camp-meeting of the Mississippi Valley Spiritualists' Association will be held at Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa, from July 29 to August 26, 1900. All wishing circulars should write to the secretary, Stella A. Fisk, 18 N. 11th street, Keokuk, Iowa. Those wishing to rent tents, etc., should write to John Nelson, Mt. Pleasant Park, Clinton, Iowa.

The Ottawa Camp.

The Ottawa, Kansas, Spiritualist camp-meeting, from August 8 to August 13 inclusive. H. W. Henderson, president, Lawrence, Kans.; Ezra Carpenter, secretary, Wellsville, Kans.

Freeville Camp, N. Y.

Opens July 29 and closes August 12. B. L. Robinson, president, Freeville, N. Y.

Grand Ledge, Mich.

Grand Ledge Spiritualist Camp-Meeting commences July 29 and closes August 26. For further particulars and full programmes, write to M. F. Phares or Geo. H. Sheets, Grand Ledge, Mich.

Briggs Park, Mich.

Briggs Park Camp opens July 1 and closes August 19, 1900, at Grand Rapids, Mich. Program cheerfully mailed to any address received on postal card to Thos J. Haynes, secretary, 389 Western avenue, Muskegon, Mich.

Camp-Meeting at Deep Lake.

The Illinois State Spiritualist Camp-meeting opens its second season at Deep Lake, 1½ miles from Lake Villa, Ill., on Wisconsin Central railroad, commencing July 19 and closing September 1. Those who intend to camp with us please let us know in time so that we can make preparations for you. Address G. V. Cordingley, President, 3300 Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Island Lake, Mich.

Island Lake Camp, Island Lake, Michigan, commences Thursday, July 19, and closes September 3. For further information address the secretary, Ella B. Brown, 266 Twenty-first street, Detroit, Mich.

Verona Park Camp.

Opens June 15 and closes August 26. For programmes address Albert F. Smith, president, Bangor, Maine.

Lake Helen, Fla.

The Southern Cassadaga Camp, Lake Helen, Florida, will open the first Sunday, in February, 1901. Emma J. Huff, corresponding secretary.

Niantic Camp.

The Connecticut Spiritualist Camp-Meeting Association, at Niantic camp-grounds, Niantic, Conn; season of 1900, commencing June 25 and continuing until September 8, inclusive. For programmes address Mary A. Hatch, secretary, South Windham, Conn.

Los Angeles, Cal., Camp.

Arrangements have been made to hold a camp-meeting at Sycamore Grove, Los Angeles, Cali, September 2 to 20, inclusive. Address Elton T. Brown, secretary, 341½ So. Spring street, Los Angeles, Cal.

Franklin (Neb.) Camp.

The Northwest Kansas and Southwest Nebraska Spiritualist Association will hold their fifth annual camp-meeting at Franklin, Neb., from July 20 to August 6 inclusive. No pains will be spared to make it a success. For announcement, circulars and other information, address the secretary, C. H. Simpson, Franklin, Neb.

Colorado Camp.

Canyon Camp, opens in South Boulder Canyon, July 1, and continues through July, August, and possibly September. Any information desired in regard to this new and interesting movement may be obtained by writing May Taylor, Box 780, Denver, Colo.

Lake Sunapee, N. H.

The twenty-third annual Lake Sunapee Spiritualist Camp-meeting will be held at Blodgett's Landing, N. H., for four weeks, commencing Sunday, July 29, and closing Sunday, August 26, 1900. For programmes address the secretary, W. H. Wilkins, Claremont, N. H.

Marshalltown, Iowa.

The Central Iowa Spiritualist Association will hold its annual camp at Marshalltown, Iowa, September 2 to September 16 inclusive. Grounds open to campers after August 27. For information or programs address W. H. Wilson, 301 N. Center street, Marshalltown, Iowa.

Haslett Park, Mich.

Eighteenth annual assembly of Spiritualists at Haslett Park, Mich, August 2 to September 4, 1900, inclusive. For programmes address J. D. Richmond, secretary, St. Johns, Mich., or G. F. Ottmar, Riley, Mich.

Lake Brady, O.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Renner, materializing mediums here from Pittsburg, have given several interesting seances on the grounds. In one just witnessed, the writer was permitted to examine the cabinet and every article of clothing worn by the medium. Not a shred of white could be detected anywhere. The cabinet was merely a curtain hung across one corner of the room. Mr. Renner, who was managing the seance, did not reach the cabinet until three white forms had appeared. Then "Fly," the Indian cabinet control, announced himself. He claimed the name of Fly had been given to him by his tribe because he was their swift-footed medicine man. He called each person in the circle some appropriate fanciful name, such as "Black Locks," "Bright Eyes," and even "Pumpkin Skin," to one of sallow complexion.

Another grotesque cabinet spirit was "Bowery Bob," who graphically described his earthly life in which he had supported his widowed mother and little sister by selling papers.

French, German and Spanish were all spoken by the ethereal visitors. A gentleman in the circle at the spirits' request sung a German song and she danced the accompaniment. Another gave a Spanish skirt and sleeve dance, the long, wide "angel" sleeves" of her white robe in the semi-darkness resembling wings as she waved them over and around her head. Part of the time the room was comparatively light, when the color of eyes and hair could be easily distinguished, and several claimed to recognize familiar faces in the cabinet visitor and exchanged loving kisses with them. One lady recognized "Mother Sadie," of the Sun Order Angels of Light. The writer was greeted with one who claimed to be a former pupil. When the lights were lowered the spirit robes sent forth a soft illumination that made them very plainly seen. One form coming out, passed all in the circle, asking one after another, "Where is my baby? Oh, give me my baby," stretching her arms out to each. She then stooped beneath the writer's chair. There was a sound as though a child suddenly cried out, and she retreated into the cabinet, hugging something to her bosom.

Mr. Renner explained that this was an earth-bound spirit who had once been the nurse of a little child which she killed by letting it fall accidentally. From this she became insane and had died in that condition.

Spirit lace was produced in the following manner. A white illuminated figure came out and stooping, appeared to pull something from the shoe of a young lady in the circle, saying, "What makes you keep lace in your shoe?" This she pulled and tossed about and it seemed to grow in size under her manipulations until the size of a lace window curtain. She then called a lady and gentleman forward and throwing it over their heads, covering them almost completely, declared they were "bride and groom." MRS. M'CASLIN.

Lily Dale Camp.

The session of 1900 was opened by President Gaston, in a few well-chosen remarks, at the close of which he turned the meeting over to the chairman, Mr. Brooks, who in his happy manner assumed the duties of his position. Carrie Twing was the first speaker on the programme, and gave a racy talk on "Temperance in all Things."

The usual camp routine has begun, consisting of conferences, lectures, thought exchange in the evening, dances Wednesday and Saturday evenings, and last but not least, the classes par excellence conducted by J. Clegg Wright.

The Hull training school has closed, and we hear much praise of the work done, and talk of its continuance another year. Too much cannot be said in support of such school and classes as an adjunct to the usual routine of camp work.

The lyceum starts out under the auspices of Miss Austin, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Miss Peterson. Miss Austin has been engaged here in this work before, and her coming this season bespeaks for the lyceum, beforehand, success.

There are excellent bathrooms under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Winchester, now ready. These rooms are neat and clean, and every way conducive to the comfort of the public.

The bowling alley under the management of Mr. Reed is an attraction to young and old, and helps develop the muscles while resting the brain. The management at Lily Dale deserve great credit for their painstaking efforts to secure comfort and pleasure for their guests.

The Marian Skidmore Library under the care of Mrs. Cowan, is another feature not to be overlooked.

The Northwestern orchestra comes back with even greater power of attraction than heretofore; and all in all, this camp never opened with larger attendance or greater attractions—on the rostrum and off—than it has to offer this year. There are mediums of every phase, and to many no doubt, this is the chief attraction; but there is food for all given here in abundance, and no one need turn away hungry.

MARY WEBB-BAKER.

"Death Defeated; or the Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young." By J. M. Peebles, M. D., M. A., Ph. D. Price $1. For sale at this office.

THE THOUGHT GARDEN.

The Promotion of the Weal of Humanity.

The promotion of the weal of humanity at large, is a theme which has heretofore been relegated to the philanthropist, whose quiet work was placed in the form of a quiet book and quietly laid away, where as a rule it was sure to do the least possible harm to the enemy whose power we are seking to overthrow; to wit, the wrongs which are now so rapidly increasing the woes of mankind. The time has now come when each one concerned must be his own philanthropist. If the essence of philanthropy consists in seeking to promote the weal of the race at large, then to become a philanthropist on general principles, is but to carry out the most primitive dictates of common sense. That is to say, since the wrongs we are seeking to right, affect the great mass of humanity in the same way and almost in the same degree, it is necessary in correcting these wrongs, that the suffering masses shall see the exact character of the evils that are to be dealt with; to see that the removal of these wrongs means the relief, not of one nor of a few of the sufferers, but of all of them.

What has heretofore been merely dreamed of as a beautiful theory, enforces itself upon our common sense as the most practical of all practical problems in this practical age in which we live: namely, that each individual of the suffering masses—the great body of humanity—must know that to make it the supreme object of life to throw off the great burden of injustice from his neighbor, is the only possible salvation for himself; that the external conditions of life throughout the civilized world to-day are such that the same process in general which tends to the relief of one, tends in like manner to the relief of all.

The principle of self-protection is brought to bear. The necessity for the speedy relief of the race at large, instead of being merely the utterance of an occasional dreamer (elept philanthropist (as in the past), becomes the demand of every man and woman in this vast army of suffering ones. We seek the good of all, in order to our own individual self. Thus as it were per force we become philanthropists, whether we are aware of it or not.

We reason the case with our neighbors. We conclude that it is time for this frightful injustice to step down and out. We become philosophers, without suspecting the fact. We are gradually approximating that degree of development in character that is sure to triumph in the end.

WHAT LACK WE YET?

Let me whisper in your ear, my good brother, my gentle sister. The habit of lazy indifference in the realm of thought has been the great curse of the world throughout the past. The convenience of paying some one to do our thinking for us, has been the bane of civilization in all ages until now. One of the first things for each one to do, therefore, is to wake up and be sure we are awake to the exigencies of the case in which the welfare of so many millions is involved. Reform, which was once the uncertain task of an occasional enthusiast, has now become the business of the hour, in which every thinking man and woman is concerned. This includes the uncounted millions of sufferers in general; it includes you and me as Spiritualists, in particular. If indifference heretofore has been a crime, it is henceforth the bloody dagger with poisoned edges, which is to cut short our career in speedy self-destruction.

Let me whisper in your ear again. Let me say to you that there yet remains which menaces our individual peace, as well as our fraternal welfare, both present and prospective. That foe is jealousy. We must learn to size up this foe, which with skulking step has trod the earth both night and day, and when least suspected, has done his most deadly work. Life is too short to permit this monster to longer lord it over the peace of so many millions unresisted. Jealousy in the heart of man, is as the worm at the apple's core. However fair and smooth may be that apple on the exterior, it is yet being constantly destroyed by the devouring ravages of that malignant canker worm at the core. Jealousy demands a thousand times more of serious attention from earnest thinking men and women than it has ever received. Jealousy is as universal as life itself upon this planet. It did not originate with the dawn of written history, but millions of years previous to that time. Jealousy has for its causes, all the springs of action that the human imagination can conceive of. Jealousy has been the occasion of more mischief, inharmony, unhappiness, war, bloodshed, and pandemonium generally, than all other causes combined since time began. The most important thing yet remains to be said about jealousy. The real victim of this destructive passion is ever the individual who exercises it. It crushes the soul: squeezes it into a compass, as it were, as small as a grain of wheat; destroys its happiness for this life, and unfits it for the enjoyment of that home of the soul in the sweet by and by, the elysian dream of every genuine Spiritualist, and of every so-called Spiritualist as well.

ANOTHER FOE,

THESE TWO

mortal foes of the human race—Indifference and Jealousy—must be weeded out of the garden of our future prosperity: not merely crippled with the scythe of organic regulation in the enforcement of constitutional power. Organization, however, in its place, is the great essential factor which is to win for us material success, and place us ultimately on a basis of financial independence of our present masters, the great monopolies, which to-day are robbing us at will. But the two foes I have named must be dug out, root and branch, from the constitution of each individual, by the power of self-discipline. Each one must do it for himself. Another cannot do it for him.

"Greater is he that ruleth his own spirit, than he that taketh a city." Put this proverb in one end of the scales of thought value, and all other proverbs combined (bearing upon development of character) in the other end of the same scales, and this one will outweigh them all. Herein lies the foundation upon which alone the superstructure of perfect character can ever be built.

Yours for the speedy triumph of right.

THOMAS H. B. COTTON.
San Francisco, Cal.

WE are trying our best to establish libraries in every Spiritualist family of the United States, hence we are offering Seven valuable books as a premium. Those seven books have been sold for $10.75. A single one has sold as high as $25. The first edition of Art Magic sold for $5 per copy. As high as $15 has been paid for a single copy of Ghost Land; yet we furnish these seven books to our subscribers for $2.35, when ordered in connection with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. Read our premium announcement carefully.

Great Work by a Great Author.

"THE UNKNOWN"

—BY—

CAMILLE FLAMMARION.

"The Unknown" created a marked sensation in France when first published and can scarcely fail to arouse the greatest interest in this country. It is an eminent scientist's study of the phenomena of the spirit world. In touching upon the various physical manifestations the author cites many absolutely authenticated instances, and chapters of his book are as weirdly fascinating as the most fantastic of Poe's tales. It treats on incredulity, credulity, hallucinations, psychic action of one mind upon another, transmission of thought, suggestion, the world of dreams, cerebral physiology, psychic dreams, distinct sight in dreams, actual facts, premonitory dreams and divination of the future, etc. 487 pages, cloth bound. Price $2.00.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

DEATH DEFEATED,

—OR—

The Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young,

BY J. M. PEEBLES, M. D., M. A., Ph. D.

It certainly is just what is needed as here always, they should know how to a book of good suggestions and instructions along the line of health. He treats the subject in his own matter-of-fact style. The book comprises a practical subject handled in a practical manner by a practical man. Even if people do not wish or expect to live always, they should know how to live right and enjoy the life that belongs to them. This is undoubtedly the most useful book for the masses the Doctor has ever published, for it strikes at the root or cause of disease, and tells how to avoid it. 212 pages, cloth bound. Price, $1. For sale at this office.

Three Remarkable Books!

"The Divine Pedigree of Man."
"The Law of Psychic Phenomena."
"A Scientific Demonstration of the Future."

The Divine Pedigree of Man, or the Testimony of Evolution and Psychology to the Fatherhood of God. By Thomson Jay Hudson, LL. D. This is a most remarkable work, demonstrating the existence of the Soul and Future Life. It is scientific throughout. Price $1.50. Dr. Hudson's work on "The Law of Psychic Phenomena," is also valuable. Price, $1.50. His "Scientific Demonstration of the Future Life" should be read by all. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

LIFE BEYOND DEATH

Being a Review of

The World's Beliefs on the Subject, a Consideration of Present Conditions of Thought and Feeling,

Leading to the Question as to Whether It Can Be Demonstrated as a Fact.—To Which Is Added an Appendix Containing Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

BY MINOT J. SAVAGE, D. D.

8vo, Cloth, 342 Pages.

After a review of the beliefs held in the past concerning life beyond death, Dr. Savage takes up the present conditions of belief and considers the agnostic reaction from the extreme "other-worldliness" which it replaced, which was in turn followed by the Spiritualistic reaction against agnosticism. He points out the doubts concerning the doctrine of immortality held by the churches and the weakness of the traditional creeds and the loosening of their hold upon the people. He then considers the probabilities of a future life, probabilities which, as he admits, fall short of demonstration. The volume includes a consideration of the work of the Society for Psychical Research and also an appendix giving some of the author's own personal experiences in this line. Dr. Savage holds, as a provisional hypothesis, that continued existence is demonstrated, and that there have been at least some well authenticated communications from persons in the other life. The chief contents of the volume are as follows:

Primitive Ideas—Ethnic Beliefs—The Old Testament and Immortality—Paul's Doctrine of Death and the Other Life—Jesus and Immortality—The Other World and the Middle Ages—Protestant Belief Concerning Death and the Life Beyond—The Agnostic Reaction—The Spiritualistic Reaction—The World's Condition and Needs as to Belief in Immortality—Probabilities Which Fall Short of Demonstration—The Society for Psychical Research and the Immortal Life—Possible Conditions of Another Life—Some Hints as to Personal Experiences and Opinions.

For Sale at this Office. Price $1.50. Postage 10c.

OUR BIBLE:

WHO WROTE IT? WHEN? WHERE? HOW?

Is It Infallible?

A Voice from the Higher Criticism.

A Few Thoughts on Other Bibles.

BY MOSES HULL.

Excellent as an exposition of the Higher Criticism and an analysis of the Bible from that standpoint. Of special value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.00.

"THE LANGUAGE OF THE STARS."

A Primary Course of Lessons in Celestial Dynamics.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THE LIGHT OF EGYPT."

This important primary work is the first practical exposition of the Astro-Magnetic forces of Nature—in their relation to man—that has yet been issued by the American press. It contains fourteen special lessons, embracing each department of human life, in such plain, simple language that a child can understand the elementary principles laid down. And in addition to these lessons is an Appendix, containing a full explanation of all technical and scientific terms in general use upon the subject, thus forming a brief, yet practical Astro Dictionary. This work is illustrated with special plates.

For Sale at This Office. Price, Fifty Cents.

THE WOMAN'S BIBLE. PART II.

Judges, Kings, Prophets and Apostles. Comments on the Old and New Testaments, from Joshua to Revelation. The comments are keen, bright, spicy, full of wit, the work of radical thinkers, who are not ignorant of the higher criticism. There is not a dull page. Paper, 50c.

Bible and Church Degrade Woman

By Elizabeth Cady Stanton. Comprises three essays on The Effect of Woman Suffrage on Questions of Morals and Religion. Price 10 cents. For sale at this office.

FORCE AND MATTER.

By Ludwig Buechner. A celebrated book. Cloth.

THE FOUNTAIN OF LIFE,

Or The Three-fold Power of Sex. By Edis Walsbrooker. Price, 50 cents. For sale at this office.

MYTH AND MIRACLE.

One of Col. Robt. G. Ingersoll's best lectures. Price 5c. For sale at this office.

Woman: A Lecture Delivered to Ladies Only.

By Mrs. Dr. Huiburt. On the present status of woman, physically, mentally, morally and spiritually. The divine law of true harmonial marriage, etc. Price, 10c.

The Law of Correspondence Applied to Healing.

A course of seven practical lessons. By W. J. Colville. Limp cloth, 50c.

Zelma the Mystic, or White Magic Versus Black.

By Alwyn M. Thurber. Occult philosophy clothed in story form; aims to give a better understanding of magic, black and white. 330 large pages. Cloth, $1.25.

PROGRESSION,

Or How a Spirit Advances in Spirit-Life. The evolution of man. By Michael Faraday. Price 15c. For sale at this office.

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

THE

NATURAL PHYSICIAN.

The Physician can only be the servant or handmaid of Nature in the cure of Disease.

In reality we can do nothing; we can only remove the offending cause while

Nature

Performs the cure, and therefore we lay it down as a fundamental maxim in medicine that all a Physician can do is to act as a Servant to Nature.

If you believe that the above statement is true, and believe that this method is the right one, then write to-day to

DR. G. E. WATKINS,

Sending age, sex and leading symptom,

DR. G. E. WATKINS, Ayer, Mass.

TRUTH

The only way to find out who is the "Greatest Psychic Physician living" is to read what their patients say.

DR. G. E. WATKINS

never claims that he is the greatest physician living, or that he is the

GREATEST PSYCHIC.

He believes that there are hundreds of healers who are just as successful as he is, and he never yet has claimed that he is or was the best psychic, although twenty years before the public as the independent slate-writer with the record of not one person who ever accused him of fraud, ought to make the public THINK when they compare his claims to other so-called psychics.

DR. C. E. WATKINS

only desires those who are sick to remember that for over twenty years he has been before the public as a psychic, and over twelve years as a physician, and he never claims greater powers than others; but we believe he has a right to think he has as great gifts as those who claim so much.

Kindly read the following

TESTIMONIALS:

Dear Sir:—You diagnosed my case correctly, and I thank you for your kind attention. Yours respectfully,
Hartford, Conn. MRS. FOX.

Dear Doctor:—I am feeling so much better now that I do not think I need any more medicine. I feel very grateful to you for the benefit I have received from your treatment after suffering as much as I did from my complaints. I have recommended you to all who need medical assistance. Wishing you success, I remain, yours truly,
SIMON GELIS.
Torrington, Conn.

Dear Doctor Watkins:—Your very kind favor of the 6th is received. I feel that the diagnose is very correct, and promise you right here and now that you shall treat my case as soon as I can remit you the money, which will be in the near future. Earnestly thanking you for so much kind attention and pleasantly anticipating your professional services, I am, yours fraternally,
WALLACE MERRILL.
Acampo, Cal.

Mrs. E. Casper, 215 University avenue S. E., Minneapolis, Minn, writes: "I received your ever kind and welcome letter, and think your diagnose was very correct."

Dear Sir:—Am getting very negligent about writing, but I expect it is because I am feeling so much better. Kindly yours. T. F. CARTER.
Newport, R. I.

Dear Sir:—Your letter, also the tablets for my cold came all right. The medicine was very good, and within two days stopped my coughing, which had been very bad. I think you have done more for me than any doctor I have had, and hope you may continue to help me, so I may soon be able to go without taking medicine. Respectfully,
BELLE SMITH.
No. Prospect St., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Dear Doctor:—Inclosed you will find $5 in payment for the third month's treatment; I am much better, in fact am getting along nicely now. With my best wishes I remain, respectfully,
MRS. R. L. WOOD.
310 N. Bellinger St., Herkimer, N. Y.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 7th inst received and I consider your diagnose of my case exceedingly correct. Yours, truly, HENRY A SKINNER.
College Place, Wash.

TESTIMONIAL.

B. F. Poole:—
43 Evanston Ave., Chicago, Ill.:
Your melted pebble spectacles are wonderful. I can see to thread a fine needle and can read with comfort, and my eyes are getting stronger. Your clairvoyant system of fitting is perfection. I am, your friend,
MRS. L. E. MARTIN.
Blairsville, Pa.

For ten cents we will send by mail, a 4-oz package of my Magnetized Compound, for sore or weak eyes. Once used you will not be without it. Address B. F. POOLE & CO.,
43 Evanston avenue, Chicago, Ill.

"Human Culture and Cure. Part First. The Philosophy of Cure. (Including Methods and Instruments). By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A very instructive and valuable work. It should have a wide circulation, as it well fulfills the promise of its title. For sale at this office. Price 75 cents.

ROBERT OWEN.

"Book of the New Moral World."

(Continued from No. 554.)

"After man shall have attained all the requisites to ensure the health, unity, knowledge, charity, kindness, and general prosperity of his race, seeing or knowing that all that man can do for man has been done over the extent of the globe, his mind will be expanded, his sympathies will be increased, his knowledge of nature will be enlarged, and his desire to promote happiness will be unlimited as long as means shall offer to add to it all that have life or conscious sensation.

"Man will not then wantonly destroy the life of any animal, or give unnecessary pain to any conscious being that nature has produced by her, at present, mysterious means, and for her, at present, mysterious purposes.

"By the previous appliances explained in this book, man must become intelligent, charitable, and kind to man; and when he shall have been made intelligent, charitable and kind to all of his own species, he will become truly good, and he will not merely ardently desire to remove pain and suffering from all that have life, but he will earnestly exert himself to secure for all animal creation as much enjoyment as his existence and this will at the same time admit.

"Man does not yet know how much his ill-formed habits contribute to create animal misery and produce sufferings to beings as sensitive to pain as himself, or in some cases, perhaps, more so, while in others it may be less. He has been trained in principles and practices which have made him cruel to his own species and to the animal creation generally. To be made rational he will be trained in principles and practices so different that he will be always kind and charitable to his own species, and, so far as is consistent with the progress and well-being of the human race, to all that has conscious existence. His desire will be made to be to withdraw the causes of misery from all that is conscious of pain, and to be an active agent upon earth to produce the most happines to all that have life.

"A rational being can never have pleasure in seeing or knowing that any other being is unhappy, and much less can such a being be a willing agent to cause the misery. Nor can man, while he knows there is pain experienced which he can remove or assist in removing, or pleasure unenjoyed which he can give or assist in giving, ever enjoy the full extent of the pleasureable sensations which he is capable of receiving. Man has been expecially formed with powers, when he shall be made rational, capable of giving and receiving, on a most extended scale, compared with his present position and proceedings, a high degree of happiness and enjoyment to his own and to other species; as in his irrational state of existence he has been equally well adapted to create and inflict misery on his own and other species.

"The difference between man being an active agent to produce misery or to produce happiness, is the difference between a most inferior and a most superior being, or, in the language of superstition, between a terrestrial demon and an angel.

"As soon as man shall be made rational, his pleasures, his happiness, his highest and most exquisite enjoyments, will arise from his active agency to produce happiness upon earth, not only without considering of what class, sect, or party, country, or color, his own species may be, but without considering of what species the living existences may be, so that the greatest amount of earthly enjoyment may be obtained for all that have life.

"To effect this result, high intelligence and sound judgment will be required, as well as a spirit of universal benevolence. But the training and education to accomplish all that can be expected upon our globe will be secured to all by the superior acquirements and rational minds that will be given to every infant from birth. 'There shall be none to hurt or destroy throughout the whole earth.'

"And assuredly man cannot enjoy the full extent of the happiness of which human nature is susceptible, until he shall be so trained, educated, and placed, that he shall both besire, and be actively engaged in promoting the happiness of all that have life."

(To be continued.)
C. H. MATHEWS.
New Philadelphia, O.

Note.—To those persons who have expressed a desire to obtain a copy of this book, I will remark, that it was printed 55 years ago and given to an unappreciative world; and, so far as I know, not another copy is in existence.
C. H. M.

PASSED TO SPIRIT LIFE.

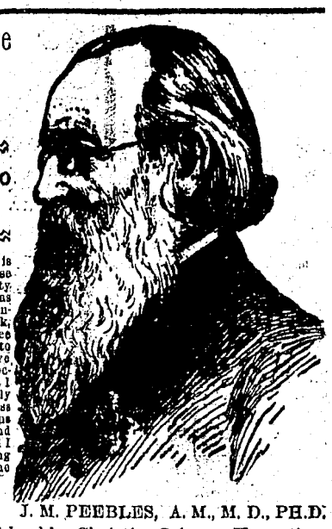
[Obituaries to the extent of ten lines only will be inserted free. All in excess of ten lines will be charged at the rate of fifteen cents per line. About seven words constitute one line.]

Passed to higher life, from her home at Matteson, Mich., Feb. 3, 1900, Mrs. Celinda Cushman, aged 95 years. The funeral services were conducted by the Congregational minister of Matteson, and Mrs. Emily D. King, of Butler. Mrs. Cushman has been a Spiritualist for many years. She was a medium, and has written many beautiful poems.
MYRTLE D. KING.

Passed to higher life, from her home at Jonesville, Mich., June 19, 1900, Mrs. Electa Culver, aged 76 years. The deceased has been an avowed Spiritualist for many years. The funeral services were conducted by Mrs. Emily D. King, of Butler, Mich. M. D. KING.

On the 14th inst., the infant child, Emma, daughter of Dr. E. I. Jacobson, 2654 Eberly avenue, Chicago, passed to spirit life, whither her mother had gone only three months previously. As on the previous occasion, Mrs. M. Summers conducted the public services. Many children present tenderly strewed evergreens upon the casket, in token of their sorrow. The remains were laid at rest in Forest Home cemetery.
E. SUMMERS.

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.



"The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail, $1. For sale at this office.

"Spiritual Songs for the Use of Circles, Camp-meetings and Other Spiritualistic Gatherings." By Mattie E. Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

A GREAT HEALER

Dr. Peebles' Wonderful Cures Have Made His Name Famous the World Over.

Read His Generous Offer to the Sick.

J. M. PEEBLES, A. M., M. D., PH.D.

THERE is probably no physician or healer living who is curing more cases of Chronic and obstinate disease than is Dr. Peebles. During an experience of over fifty years this THREE AND GREAT HEALER has cured thousands of those who had been pronounced "incurable" by the best local physicians. Mrs. Alfonso Buck, of Mechanicsville, O., says: "It is now about three months since I began your treatment and I am happy to say that I am free from those dreadful pains and have gained 15 pounds and am still gaining rapidly. My doctor had given me up as "incurable." Being sure that I owe my life to your skill I most cheerfully and heartily recommend you to all those in search of health." Miss Maggie Polson, of Guthrie, Oklahoma, says: "Six months ago I suffered with terrible headaches, heart trouble and female weakness. My friends despaired of my life and I was so weak I could do nothing. Now I am well, strong and hearty. I can never forget the good you have done me."

Remember that Dr. Peebles does not heal by Christian Science, Hypnotism or any other "ism" but employs MILD and POTENT medicines, combined with his PSYCHIC POWERS. These Psychic treatments are the greatest power known for relieving pain and suffering and curing disease. One of his patients recently said, "these treatments seem as a breath of higher life. It seems as if they alone would almost raise the dead." Besides being the greatest Psychic Physician living he is an authority in Europe and America on Psychic Phenomena and the Psychic Science. He has written an essay "The Psychic Science in the Cure of Disease," which he will send free to any sufferer asking for it. The Doctor's diagnoses are equally as astonishing as his cures. His Psychic Gifts enable him to accurately locate the diseased and weakened tissues, thus he never has to experiment for weeks to discover the real trouble. No disease is really incurable if perfectly understood, for every effect or diseased condition has its cause, and if this is seen and removed by the aid of natural forces, health will be restored. What is your condition and its cause? It is within your power to know. No two cases are exactly alike so do not spend precious time in taking patent medicines which are prepared a "text-book" case, or risk your life in the hands of a physician who does not understand your condition. Write to-day for a FREE DIAGNOSIS and special advice in your case. This will cost you nothing. The Doctor will also send you his essay on this wonderful science and other valuable literature FREE. Thousands of so-called "incurable" cases are cured by this method. So do not despair, if your physician has failed to cure you. Just write the doctor a plain, truthful letter, giving him your name, age, sex and leading symptom, in your own handwriting and receive a complete diagnosis of your case by return mail.

G. D. Younge, of Wimor, Ore., who is a Fellow of the Royal College of Physicians, says:—"I consider it my sacred duty to extend to you my heartiest thanks for the perfect cure your medicines and advice have effected in my case. I was very skeptical when I began the use of your medicines and treatment, but I am free to say that I now have a confirmed belief in their almost miraculous efficacy. Three months ago I bore about my body the hideous spectacle of my disease. Now I am a mentally and physically robust man."

Mrs. Lydia Mason, of Boyd, Oregon, who had not walked without crutches for a long time, after a few weeks of our treatment says:—"I can now walk without my crutches for almost half a day. I am gaining rapidly and expect to soon be in perfect health again."

Mabel Keyes, of Iron Creek, S. D., who had suffered for a long time from eczema, says:—"The roughness of the skin has entirely disappeared. I am very thankful indeed for the great good you have done me. I talked with our family physician and he thinks my cure is remarkable. I doctored with him before I called on you and he said he did not think there was any help for me and he is one of the best doctors around here."

Address Dr. J. M. Peebles, Battle Creek, Mich

Sunday Spiritualist Meetings in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins' spiritual meetings, 40 E. Randolph street, Handel Hall, Fourth floor, Sunday evening, 7:45. Wednesday evening, 675 Larrabee street, corner Garfield avenue.

The Progressive Spiritual Church, G. V. Cordingley, pastor, room 409 Handel Hall, 40 Randolph street. Services at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m.

Band of Harmony, auxiliary to the Church of the Soul, meets at Room 608 Handel Hall Building, 40 Randolph St., every first and third Thursday of the month, beginning afternoons at three o'clock. The ladies bring refreshments; supper served at six o'clock. Evening session commences at a quarter to eight. Questions invited from the audience, and answered by the guides of Mrs. S. J. Ashton. Always an interesting programme. All are welcome.

Church of the Spirit Communion will hold meetings in Kenwood Hall, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, each Sunday. 3 p. m., conference and tests; 8 p. m., lecture by J. K. Hallowell; tests by H. F. Coates and others. All are invited. Good music and seats free.

There will be a Spiritual meeting at 2:30 each Sunday, at Smith Hall, Wisconsin and Larrabee streets. German and English speaking by Mrs. W. Hilbert and Mr. Bernhart.

Spiritualistic services will be held every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 p. m., 1453 N. Springfield avenue. Tests at 4 o'clock prompt. Wm. Fitch Ruffle, medium.

Garden City Spiritual Alliance holds regular meetings at Mackinaw Hall, No. 294 and 296 East 43d street, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock. Spirit messages, Tests in telepathy or thought transference, good music. Seats free. May Goodrich, pastor.

The Gross Park Spiritual Society meets at 1785 N. Hoyne avenue, every Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The South Chicago True Spiritualist Society meets every Sunday evening at 7:30 at 8927 Exchange avenue, instead of Eigenman's Hall.

The Englewood Spiritual Union Society meets every Sunday at Forbes' Hall, 420 W. 63d street. Competent leaders of spiritual thought and mediums of note in charge.

Church of the Star of Truth, Wicker Park hall, No. 501 West North avenue. Services at 7:45 p. m., conducted by Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsey.

Truth Seekers meet at the Teutonia Hall, corner of 53rd and Ashland avenue, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The Chicago Liberal Society is a non-sectarian association for the encouragement of morality, the promotion of education, the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, and the inculcation of truth in the place and stead of error and superstition. The Temple services of the society are held every Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in Corinthian Hall, Masonic Temple, 17th floor, and are in charge of Thomas B. Gregory. You are cordially invited to attend the same.

The Avenue Spiritualists Society will meet at 2979 Wabash avenue, corner 30th street, every Sunday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. Harry J. Moore, pastor.

Send in notice of meetings held on Sunday at public halls.

Bear in mind that only meetings held in public halls will be announced under the above head. We have not space to keep standing notices of meetings held at private residences.

VOLUMES 1, 2 and 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Art Magic, Ghost Land, The Next World Interviewed, and the Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate) constitute our premium list. Those seven books have been on sale, costing the buyer in the aggregate, $10.75. We, after paying the postage and expense of mailing, realize only $1.50 for the seven—far less than cost to us. We desire to form the nucleus of a library in every Spiritualist home, hence this remarkable offer. By subscribing for The Progressive Thinker, you then have the privilege of purchasing these books at the premium prices. See terms on another page.

"The Bridge Between Two Worlds." By Abby A. Judson. This book is dedicated to all earnest souls who desire, by harmonizing their physical and their psychical bodies with universal nature and their souls with the higher intelligences, to come into closer connection with the purer realms of the spirit world. It is written in the sweet spiritual tone that characterizes all of Miss Judson's literary works. Price, cloth, $1; paper, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

"Principles of Light and Color." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL. D. A truly great work of a master mind, and one whom Spiritualists should delight to honor. The result of years of deep thought and patient research into Nature's finer forces are here gathered and made amenable to the well-being of humanity. Medical men especially, and scientists, general readers and students of occult forces will find instruction of great value and interest. A large, four-pound book, strongly bound, and containing beautiful illustrative plates. For sale at this office. Price, postpaid, $5. It is a wonderful work and you will be delighted with it.

CLUBS!

CLUBS

We want ten thousand clubs formed in every part of the United States, for which we present inducements never before offered by any Spiritualist paper. These clubs must consist of ten subscribers, and each one will get Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death; or if they would prefer it, they can have the Next World Interviewed. They can have their choice of the two. Each subscriber in order to avail himself of this offer must pay $1.15. The fifteen cents is to pay expense of postage and mailing, and the books sent out are practically a gift. They are not cheap affairs; they are nicely and substantially bound in cloth, neatly printed in clear type and are ornaments to any center table. The contents are indeed valuable, such as every Spiritualist family should have. The aggregate price of these two books to the trade is $2.75. To each of our club subscribers one of these books is a gift, and when they receive the one of their choice they will be delighted with it, and will wonder how we can afford to do so much for them. The one who gets up the club will be entitled to The Progressive Thinker for one year, and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit Spirit World, and also the Next World Interviewed. He will not only get The Progressive Thinker for one year, but both books. He gets what is equivalent to $3.75 for his trouble. There should be no difficulty whatever in getting up hundreds of clubs.

Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World will not only interest Spiritualists, but church members will be attracted to it. The Rev. M. J. Savage, a leading liberal divine of New York, leads off with several of his masterly productions, treating Death in from an advanced standpoint. He is followed by leading Spiritualists who treat of Death in a philosophical and fascinating manner.

The Next World Interviewed is also a very excellent work. The plates of this book were donated to the office of The Progressive Thinker by Henry J. Horn. It consists of communications from the spirit side of life from leading minds there. Fifty-five communications are given by prominent personages, among them Prince Albert, Harriet Martineau, Judge Edmonds, Horace Greeley, Lord Lytton, Fanny Fern, Dr. Livingstone and the Czar of Russia.

Now is the time to get up

CLUBS.

OUR MOTTO

To Do All the Good We Can.

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Who is so widely known as one of the many

SPIRITUAL HEALERS,

SHE HAS

Successfully Treated

And Cured

Thousands of Patients.

Will Diagnose Your Case

FREE

REQUIREMENTS:

Lock of hair, age, sex, one leading symptom, full name, three 2-cent stamps and plain full address.

SEND TO

Mrs. Dr. Dobson-Barker,

Box 132. SAN JOSE, CAL.

MRS. MAGGIE WAITE

Reading by mail, $1.06. Business advice a specialty. 304 S. Crouse ave., Syracuse, N. Y. 556tf

DON'T READ THIS.

Frances L. Loucks, the only psychic wonder living, that uses the spiritual X-ray without any leading symptom to direct, and locates all internal diseases. A trial will convince you. Nervous exhaustion and lost vigor of both sexes successfully treated, as hundreds can testify. Send name, age, sex, complexion and ten cents in stamps, and receive a correct diagnosis of your case free, worth dollars to you. Address,

FRANCES L. LOUCKS,
Lock Box 7, Stoneham, Mass.

NEW DREAM BOOK.

1,000 Dreams and their interpretation; price, 25 cents; sent by mail on receipt of price, in coin or stamps. Address DR. R. GREER, Maywood, Ill. 556

Challoner Worm Powders

Effectually destroy any living thing in the human alimentary canal and stomach. 624 Sedgwick st., Chicago, Ill. 557

Card from Annie Lord Chamberlain.

Dear friends, you can greatly help me care for my blind sister. Jennie L. Webb, one of the earliest mediums now in the form, by writing a letter to a spirit friend. Send it to me with $1, and I will try and get reply by independent writing or whispers. Address Annie Lord Chamberlain, Milford, Mass. 531tf

A. JANE, PSYCHOLOGIST AND ASTROLOGER. Trial reading, 10 cents and stamp. By mail only. Give date of birth. 52 So. Broadway, Aurora, Ill. 559

MAGNETISM.

Diseases cured by Magnetism, without use of medicines, at patient's homes, Sundays and evenings. W. H. BATES, 3724 Lake ave. 557

Reed City Sanitarium and Private Hospital. A. B. Spinney, M. D., Prop.

Staff of eight consulting physicians and surgeons; professional nurses, steam heat, electric light. Cheapest sanitarium for the accommodations in the world. Board, medical attendance, nursing, baths, massage electrical treatment all for $10 A WEEK. Cases diagnosed free and treated at a distance by correspondence. Prices reasonable. Send your name and address with stamp to REED CITY SANITARIUM, Reed City, Michigan.

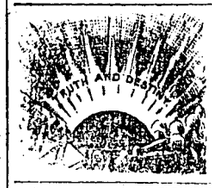
COLLEGE OF FINE FORCES

The students of this College represent four continents, and many of them are physicians, medical professors, or clergymen. Hudson Tuttle, the well-known author, calls this college "An institute of refined therapeutics, which is fast becoming of world-wide fame, and attracting students from many countries. It builds on exact science, and includes the magnetic, electric, chemical, solar, and spiritual forces which underlie everything. Its course can be taken at home, and a diploma conferring the title of D. M. (Doctor of Magnetics) granted." Send stamp for catalogue.

A cheaper and simpler ACADEMIC COURSE has been established for those who do not wish to take the more elaborate COLLEGE COURSE. It covers new and beautiful methods of Nature, which are powerful to heal and upbuild. Address E. D. BABBITT, M. D., LL. D., Dean, 58 North Third St., San Jose, California. 555

DR. J. S. LOUCKS

For thirty years has treated and cured the sick in all parts of the United States and Canada. Thousands have been cured after being given up to die. His psychic powers are unequaled, as his cures prove. Talk doesn't prove anything. Facts are proof. He also cures diseases of men, such as loss of manhood, debilitating losses causing nervous exhaustion. Send name, age, sex, lock of hair, 6 cts in stamps, for a diagnosis. Address,



DR. J. S. LOUCKS, M. D.,
25 Warren st., Stoneham, Mass.

See the unsolicited testimonials of cures that tell a true story that needs no more proof. Judge a physician only by what cures he makes, not by what he may say.

RIVERHEAD, N. Y.—Dr. J. S. Loucks—Dear Sir:—After ten months of severe suffering from excessive irritation of the stomach, bowels and bladder, and other complications, unable to eat except a raw egg, followed by great distress. In the last stage of dyspepsia, I was advised to try a clairvoyant and sent to you a lock of hair. You described the case perfectly. On taking the pleasant remedies I began immediately to pick up and can now eat a hearty meal and attend to business. It is considered a wonderful cure.
Yours very sincerely, JAMES B. SLADE.

Kind Dr. Loucks:—Mrs. Eckhart wished me to write you that she was gaining in strength rapidly. She grew better immediately after receiving your remedies. As for myself, I think I am getting along well. I expect to grow strong mentally as well as physically, as time goes on. When I first wrote you I was a physical wreck, and suffering the most intenese pains from various chronic diseases of many years' standing. I was so bad that life had become a burden to me; but your magnetic remedies did good work, and I grew better from the first application, and after one month's treatment from you, I had gained ten pounds more in flesh, and the change in my general appearance was so great that it was a matter of remark among my friends. And I will say that I had employed the best medical aid I could get here, but they gave me no relief whatever, and I was growing worse under their treatment, and I have no doubt that if I could not have received your aid I would not to-day be in the land of mortals. I consider your magnetic remedies a dead shot. You can make such use of this letter as you choose. It may be of benefit to some suffering mortal. Most sincerely yours, JOHN W. LYON.
Decatur, Ill., Lock Box 226.

Dr. J. S. Loucks—Dear Sir:—I feel encouraged to send for treatment for my daughter, as I met a Mrs. Allen W. Lamb, of Garland, N. C. She told me that you cured her after five other doctors tried and failed, and gave up her case as incurable.
Dunn, N. C. J. B. FARRAR.

AN INTERESTING treatise on

The Hidden Forces of Mind and Life

Price 25 cents. Circulars free. URIEL BUCHANAN, Dept. P. T. Box 210, Chicago, Ill. 557

YOUR LIFE AND DESTINY REVEALED BY THE STARS.

F. F. NEITZEL,

"Prophetic Seer," Scientific and Psychic Astrologer.

Send 30 cents (three dimes) and Date of your Birth, for a short reading, with prospects of the coming year. Full readings $1.00. Address

F. F. NEITZEL, Box 988, Spokane, Washington. 557

Myself cured, I will gladly inform any one addicted to

Morphine, Opium, Laudanum, or Cocaine, of a never-failing harmless Home Cure.

MRS. M. E. BALDWIN, P. O. Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

G. WALTER LYNN

THE EMINENT

Mental Physician AND Gifted Psychic.

Obsession Cured.

Special Attention Given to

Nervous Ailments.

Astonishing Cures of Disease, Physical and Mental, Through

Magnetized Remedies and Psychic Science.

Readings and business advice, by mail, $1.00 and two stamps.

For correct diagnosis of disease send five two-cent stamps, age, name, sex and own handwriting.

I have never known a more competent, reliable and truthful medium for the Spirit-world than Chas. Walter Lynn. JOS. RODES BUCHANAN.

Address, 1017 Castro st., Oakland, Cal.

BETTER THAN GOLD.

Elixir of Life Nos. One and Two

Cures all forms of stomach, liver and kidney disease; also constipation. A sure cure for that tired, worn-out feeling. Guaranteed to assist your system to health with pure, rich blood. Sufficient quantity for one month sent for $1.00.

One package of our Magnetized Compound for sore eyes or poor eyesight. Has been used and praised by thousands in all parts of the world. Sent for 60 cents, or all three sent postpaid for $1.00, with Yarma's photo and instructions how to live 100 years.

Melted Pebble Spectacles

Restore lost vision. Write for Illustrated Circulars showing styles and prices and photo of Spirit Yarma, who developed this clairvoyant power that can adjust my Melted Pebble Spectacles as perfectly to your eyes in your own home as if you were in my office, as thousands can testify. Send stamp for photo. B. F. POOLE & CO., 43 Evanston av., Chicago, Ill.

YOUR FUTURE accurately calculated by Astrologer WALROND, 87 Opera House Block, Denver, Col. From $1.00.

$2—TRUMPETS—$2

ALUMINUM TRUMPETS in two and three sections 36 in. high—magnetized when desired—$2 on receipt of price. Address WM. A. MURRAY, 509 E. 2nd St., Newport, Ky. 554

Geo. F. Perkins, Emaline Perkins,

Platform and Private Test Mediums. 3558 Cottage Grove ave., flat 14, Chicago. Circles Friday. Readings daily. 559tf

Discovery of a Lost Trail

BY CHARLES B. NEWCOMB,

Author of "All's Right with the World." Cloth 270 pages. Mr. Newcomb made a distinct success with "All's Right with the World," which continues in the front rank of the Metaphysical books that are now so popular. The great number who have been cheered and strengthened by him will welcome another book by this wise teacher whose words of help are doing so much to make the world better by making men and women better able to understand and enjoy it.

"Discovery of a Lost Trail"

Is a simple study of that strange and beautiful thing called life, but grand in its scholarly simplicity. It will be in demand by many who have not previously read metaphysical writings. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

The Soul of Things;

Or Psychometric Researches and Discoveries. By Wm. and Elizabeth M. F. Denton. A marvelous work. Though concise as a text book it is as fascinating as a work of fiction. The reader will be amazed to see the curious facts here combined in support of this power of the human mind, which will resolve a thousand doubts and difficulties, make geology plain as day, and throw light on all subjects now obscured by time. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.
In three volumes, cloth bound, $1.50 each.

The Christ Question Settled

JESUS, MAN, Medium, Martyr.

A Symposium by W. E. Coleman, J. S. Loveland, Hudson Tuttle, Moses Hull, J. R. Buchanan, B. B. Hill, Rabbi I. M. Wise, Col. Ingersoll—and what the spirits say about it. By

J. M. PEEBLES, M. D.

Whether this book settles the question or not, it will be found eminently entertaining, and brings together a mass of evidence to establish the historical character of Jesus. A large volume, cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

TALLEYRAND'S LETTER TO THE POPE.

This work will be found especially interesting to all who would desire to make a study of Romanism and the Bible. The historic facts stated, and the keen, scathing review of Romish ideas and practices should be read by all. Price, 25c. Sold at this office.

WOMAN: FOUR CENTURIES OF PROGRESS.

A Lecture delivered at the Freethinker's International Congress, Chicago, Ill., October, 1893. By Susan H. Wixon. Price, 10c.

STARNOS.

By Dr. Delia E. Davis. A rosary of pearls, culled from the works of Andrew Jackson Davis. Intended for the light and solace of every sorrowing and stricken heart. Price 50 cents. For sale at this office.

STRIKE OF A SEX.

By George N. Miller. Dealing with the population question. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

MAN

—IN THE—

PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

A POPULAR ACCOUNT OF

Results of recent scientific research regarding the origin, position and prospects of mankind.
From the German of

DR. LUDWIG BÜCHNER,

Author of "Force and Matter," Essays on Nature and Science," "Physiological Pictures," "Six Lectures on Darwin," Etc.

"The great mystery of existence consists in perpetual and uninterrupted change. Everything is immortal and indestructible—the smallest worm as well as the most enormous of the celestial bodies,—the sand grain or the water drop as well as the highest being in creation, man and his thoughts. Only the forms in which being manifests itself are changing; but Being itself remains eternally the same and imperishable. When we die we do not lose ourselves, but only our personal consciousness. We live on in nature, in our race, in our children, in our deeds, in our thoughts—in short, in the entire material and physical contribution, which, during our short personal existence, we have furnished to the subsistence of mankind and of future in general."—Buechner.

One vol., post 8vo., about 300 pages, vellum cloth, $1.

TO CAMP-MEETING GOERS

And Spiritualists Generally Who Take no Spiritualist Papers, Greeting:

If you are a Spiritualist and read no Spiritualist paper, then, of course, you cannot know what is going on in our movement. To you it is midnight darkness in that one respect, however wise you may be in other directions. The Progressive Thinker, being the largest Spiritualist paper published, combining cheapness and excellence, it will be a splendid agent to keep you apprised of what is transpiring in the great Spiritualistic Cause. Thousands of Spiritualists who attend our camp meetings, take no Spiritualist paper. They will go there to have a spiritual feast, and then return home to remain in utter darkness and ignorance as to what is going on in our ranks throughout the world. We ask this class particularly to subscribe for The Progressive Thinker, and thus have their homes illuminated throughout the year.

We don't believe that more than one Spiritualist in ten who visits the camp-meetings takes a Spiritualist paper. We greatly desire to reach this class. We are sure The Progressive Thinker will be a benefit to them while they will be a benefit to us. The benefit derived will be reciprocal.

TALMAGEAN INANITIES.

Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies.

A review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism. By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

Children's Progressive Lyceum.

A manual, with directions for the organization and management of Sunday schools. By Andrew Jackson Davis. Something indispensable. Price 50 cents.

THE GOD IDEA OF THE ANCIENTS,

Or Sex in Religion. By Eliza Burt Gamble. "It is a sensible, quiet, logical statement of opinion, deduced at times curiously from statistics which might be open to doubt; and never for a moment sensationalsior revolutionary.—Chicago Herald. 329 pages, large type, cloth bound. Price $2.25. For sale at this office

MEDIUMSHIP,

A chapter of experiences, by Mrs. Maria M. King. Price 10c. For sale at this office.

RELIGION OF THE FUTURE.

BY S. WEIL.

Cloth, $1.25. Paper, 50 cents.

This is a work of great value, written by one of the keenest, most powerful and most truly religious minds of the day. It is particularly a work which suspends a pivot in the hands of those who have freed themselves from the dogmas of orthodoxy and from the dogmas of materialistic science, for it will strengthen the conviction of the free mind that mind and senses are not the whole of life.

The chapters reveal a new method in psychic and spiritual research. They show vivid glimpses of a stupendous general comfort that will supersede moral confusion; that only veritable tenets can survive, and the childhood period of faith and fancy will be superseded by knowledge and facts. For sale at this office.

Old Testament Stories Comically Illustrated.

By Watson Heston. Price, boards, $1; cloth, $1.50. Heston is inimitable.

A Few Words About the Devil, And Other Essays.

By Charles Bradlaugh. With the story of his life as told by himself, and the history of his parliamentary struggle. With portrait. Paper, 50c.

The Other World and This.

A Compendium of Spiritual Laws. No. 1, New White Cross Literature.

BY AUGUSTA W. FLETCHER, M. D.

In this volume the author, in the thirty-nine chapters, discusses a wide variety of subjects pertaining to Spiritualism, from a spiritualistic standpoint. She evinces the powers of a trained thinker, both in matter of thought and fine literary style, and capability of thought expression. The subjects are well-handled with confidence and yet with clearness. It will prove a rich addition to any Spiritualist's library, and a most excellent book for any one seeking information concerning Spiritualism and its teachings.

For Sale at this Office. Price, $1.50

ZUGASSENT'S DISCOVERY.

Sequel to The Strike of a Sex. By George N. Miller. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

THE RELATION

Of the Spiritual to the Material Universe, and the Law of Contact. New edition, enlarged and revised. By M. Faraday. Price 15 cents.

SCIENCE, SUPPLEMENTED BY AN EXALTED MORALITY, THE BIBLE OF THE FUTURE.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER.

SPIRITUALISM—Progress, the Universal Law of Nature; Thought, the Solvent of Her Problems.—SPIRITUALISM

VOL. 22 CHICAGO, ILLINOIS, SATURDAY, AUGUST 4, 1900. NO. 558

THE RESURRECTION

A Lecture by G. W. Kates, Giving a Spiritual View of the Subject.

Text: "God is not the God of the dead, but of the living."—Matt. xxii:32.

I use the Gospels to-day in order to show that they teach much that is contrary to the accepted ideas regarding the resurrection of the dead.

It is necessary to the people to-day that light be thrown upon the Scriptures for so many accept them without thinking, or accept the interpretations of their ministers. All interpretation of the Testaments is human—hence every intelligent person has as much right to decide upon the meaning, as have the clergy. Scholars are learning what the theologians have covered and thus new truth is dawning. You may say that the Spiritualists do not care whether the ancient record is true or false; but I say we need to prove that the spirits' teaching is sustained by the Bible, in order to reach the minds of them who are controlled by the book. You may not accept what the Bible says, in order to believe that the dead are resurrected unto life, but many others do so believe and would accept the facts in proof if reconciled by the apostolic history. To reach Bible worshipers, and thus liberate them from faith by adding knowledge is truly a necessary word. We must try to unfold humanity from the plane where we find it, instead of upon the highest possible unfoldment. We teach progression in life as the mode of nature—nothing goes quickly from the lower to the higher; all growth is accomplished by slow processes. We cannot force people from ignorance, bigotry and intolerance into knowledge, reason and liberality. We should not hold meetings for Spiritualists alone, but for all possible people to hear what the spirits and reason have taught. We owe a duty to the public. If we have a truth it belongs not to us alone, but to the world. Let us meet people upon their planes of thought and endeavor to lead them to the higher truths, which are always provable and not the result of dogmatic teaching.

The Bible is not an infallible book so far as I can determine—it is to me only a history written by men who could not possibly have literally recorded, much has been interpolated and is inaccurate—but, whether false or true, it stands as record influencing human life and accepted by many millions of people. We cannot pass it by with the assertion that it is not true, or is incompetent. It is not possible to prove it all erroneous—but parts in error destroy the value of the whole. I am criticised for using the Bible critically, and accepting only what proves our claim for spirit life and communion. If it will not stand critical analysis, then it is far from infallible.

Every creed or sect based upon the Bible is sustained only by parts of the record—and contradicted in other parts. Every theologian quotes what sustains the subject being considered. Most anything can be proven by the Bible. We do not accept Spiritualism because the Messianic and apostolic records sustain it—but we are glad to have it so sustained. We do not misquote the Bible like many devotees do, nor stretch a scene by the power of imagination, as Talmage lately did in describing the appearance of Samuel, materialized before Saul through the mediumship of the woman of Endor. Literal quotation is good enough for us, because it serves us so well. The Bible is full of Spiritualism—and the balance is a horrible history.

Being so recorded and accepted, let us take whatever comfort and help we can from its pages; and let us reject what is bad or erroneous.

To-day is the beginning of the week that commemorates the anniversary of scenes preceding the crucifixion. It is one week early to preach the annual sermon about "The Resurrection," but I want to get ahead of the rest and to prepare you for the sermons of Easter Sunday. Talmage is likely to again tell of the day of judgment to come, when the graves will give up the dead, and parts of bodies will float through the air to join their natural parts, whilst the spirits flutter on immortal wings ready to pop into their old bodies, then to be rehabilitated. Out upon such ideas of the child-life of humanity! A physical resurrection is impossible, and every force and form in nature proves it so. Matter is indestructible. Earthly forms are destroyed, but spiritual forms are evolved. All matter possesses spirit, hence such elements are liberated by the destroying processes of fire or decay, or any possible mode.

Dogmatism builds upon assertions and not from facts.

Jesus said: "I am the resurrection and the life." (John 11:25) Does his saying so make it so? Perhaps he meant differently than the words in English convey to our understanding. Possibly in his intent he used the personal pronoun as many speakers do, in order to convey a universal truth. Thus he may have intended to say we are all the resurrection and the life. At least, we think this to be a truth. Every person partakes of the life and the resurrection. Because of similar dogmatic statements preached by Jesus, the apostles preached of a resurrection through him.

The apostles preached a physical resurrection of the faithful at their Lord's coming, which they expected in their time. See I. Thess. 4:14-18 and 5:23. Read also verses 15 to 22 in the latter chapter and see what good acts are necessary for the expectant of the Lord's coming. They are worthy of our acceptance, and would likely help our spiritual growth. The appearance of Jesus was fulfilled, as he materialized unto his disciples, according to the record. No further coming is necessary, nor probable. He demonstrated his claim of ability to reappear; and it was in the time and life of those who were contemporaneous with him. Possibly he now lacks the earthly force to do so, having progressed into the higher spiritual spheres after this long lapse of time. What folly, then, to look for the Lord's coming! Without doubt Jesus taught a spiritual resurrection as he proclaimed his mission to be to develop a spiritual kingdom. The ideas of death were with reference to a spiritual and not physical death—they were comparative and not literal. The statement, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive," I. Cor. 15:22, was probably intended to convey a spiritual death by sin and renewal of life by repentance and good works. It certainly does not warrant the idea of salvation only by the vicarious atonement through Jesus; for, Adam lived to develop and become wise and useful. Thus Adamic ignorance dies and the Christ-life (light, truth and purity) is ushered in. They are typical because they illustrate the same plan and process for unfoldment. The statement evidently means the similarity and direct relationship of Adamic death and the Christ life. Remember that Christ is a condition and not a person. It is applied to Jesus as an attribute and title instead of as a proper name. It is an attribute possible for all people. Thus we are beginning to see meanings that hitherto were not conveyed to our dull understanding. "And to them which sat in the region and shadow of death, light is sprung up," (Matt. 4:16) applies to us to-day as well they of the olden time. They rejoiced in the "light" of truth with regard to death and the resurrection. The age was materialistic, and the idea of heavenly bliss in the after-life came as joyful news to a people heavily burdened with earthly trials and miseries. The teaching of "that wonderful city" was specially inviting to the multitudes of over-burdened people. No wonder they gave life as a sacrifice to such expectancy! But many would not then accept the truth even when demonstrated, as now in this materialistic era, they are like the Athenians: "And when they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some mocked." (Acts 17:32.)

We are told much about the impossibility of a personal resurrection in a spiritual embodiment. "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you, that God should raise the dead?" (Paul to Agrippa, Acts 26:8). This applies to-day as well as then. We are considered by some to be "fanatics" because we teach, and, we think, prove an immediate resurrection. There is no lying in the grave waiting for the Lord's coming. Nature knows no vacuum, and never stops her work waiting for a future epoch; but always goes forward to achieve the best she can. There is never an absolute rest period for nature. She is tireless! Progressive life is the condition of futurity, and the predicate of all the primordial past

The day of resurrection is the day of physical death (dissolution only). How do we know? Because clairvoyance has proven it! Modern mediums (perhaps hundreds of them) have seen the birth of the spirit. The testimony of many is collateral and convincing; and they are present day witnesses. We do not need to be sure that some one or more long ago saw Jesus ascend into heaven. There are living witnesses of spirit birth. A. J. Davis records such evidence of personal sight. Mrs. Kates is on this platform to-day and will verify my saying that she has seen the birth of a spirit man immediately at the time of dissolution, or death. This flower is to have a birth in spirit realms. How do I know? By evidence of the fact. Proof can be brought, but I produce only one witness: Mrs. Kates is controlled by a certain spirit frequently who loves flowers; and whenever the medium wears one when this spirit controls, the flower immediately withers. Is that only the result of magnetic contact with the medium? I think not; because I am sure the spirit controls her, and she says that she "takes the spirit flower." This is evidence to me. And it shows to my convincement that the material planes of the spirit world are builded from the spiritual elements of this and other crude material worlds. It is materiality in evolution, and is the predicate for human continuity in a positive and natural sphere or habitat beyond the period of death. There cannot be continuity for some, unless it is so for all. Paul said, "And have hope that there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust." (Acts 24:15). That is good Spiritualism! It is exactly as the spirits teach to-day, except to hope they add evidence. But every one, the just and unjust, rich or poor, are resurrected into the spirit life.

"For he that is dead is freed from sin," (Romans 6:7) is a statement born out of the apostolic idea of supreme bliss and positive salvation for the resurrected. We have learned its error; for sin entails its positive consequences. There is no escape from the natural results of our thoughts and acts. We must pay our debts to the uttermost. Law is eternal and ever potent. Nature works from cause to effect. We have heard much about "natural law in the spiritual world," and there is much truth in it; but there is also "spiritual law in the natural world." The latter we should try to discover first, and then the former will need no argument.

I will quote a few passages from the 15th chapter of I. Corinthians, for your consideration. They are startling statements! Paul certainly had ideas of his own, or else was controlled by spirits; and if the latter, then the evidence is of great importance. As Paul is the acknowledged high authority of the Christian churches, his words are of great value.

"But if there be no resurrection of the dead, then is Christ not risen."

If I rise to say that in my own words, I would be called a blasphemer; but Paul said it, hence it is a gospel truth. It is somewhat opposed to the idea that through Jesus the Christ, there was brought to humanity the power of the resurrection.

Again: "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised; and if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain." That Jesus was raised from the dead was accepted by the people who believed the apostle's say so; but Paul could not reconcile it unless all of the dead should rise.

"If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable." The comma after the word life is not in the book and it makes a vastly different reading. Who authorized the punctuation? It makes a great difference in the rendering. With the comma there it makes a bad case for us if we have hope only in Christ. May it not have been the apostle's idea that we have also added evidence by spirit communion and by a knowledge of natural law? Who knows with what accent and punctuation the apostle uttered these remarkable words? If there were a comma after "only," the meaning would be vastly different; but would then only express ignorance of the truth and not a positive affirmation of an idea or fact. Without the comma the sentence means about as I quote it with the above punctuation point. So it becomes startlingly convincing that Paul had other proof than the resurrection of Jesus, and it seems that his sentiments prove he possessed evidence positive of spirit-life. He further adds: "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead." This clinches the argument and proves his meaning of the statement regarding misery by hope in Christ only.

"The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." This seems to apply now, for death is yet held as an enemy. Our spirit friends are constantly trying to destroy our fear of death, and are telling of its joys, beauty and beneficence. "I protest * * * I die daily." So do we. This is decidedly the evidence of matter—and the means of all growth from the molecule to the human ego.

"That which thou sowest is not quickened, except it die." This is scientifically proven to be true. "There is a natural body and there is a spiritual body." The spirit body is not "to be," but "is." Upon that Spiritualism throws much light. We have discovered that spirit is the reality and matter the expression. Thus our spirit bodies are in process of development. Our duality is well proven. And the self-hood is continually evolving a better body. We will not obtain a spiritual body as a "gift," but by inheritance. We are creating it. We now have a spirit body.

"We are confident, I say, and willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord," (II. Cor. 5:8). That shows how Paul knew the possibility of spirit projection, or leaving the body temporarily. We have considerable evidence of this fact occurring in our day and time. Hence it shows the dual self is true, and that the spirit self is a reality. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; (not necessarily of Jesus, but of your own Christ-self) that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." (II. Cor. 5:10).

And that is Spiritualism as the spirits teach it. It is the result of that resurrection which all shall know. Be then careful to do such things as shall surely bring good results to your souls.

It is commonly supposed that Jesus ascended bodily into heaven. The proof is not to be found. The gospels do not supply positive information upon this subject. Two of the gospels, only, refer to it. The other two are silent. Surely such an important thing should have been witnessed by those who relate the life incidents of their Master. Who wrote the Gospels will likely always be a mystery—but the fourth gospel is in dispute as authentic—even by the theologians. They find it is impossible to be reconciled with the others, and may become very necessary to be eliminated before long. Theology stretches only as knowledge and truth elongates. Mark records with regard to the ascension of Jesus: "He was received up into heaven." Luke: "He was parted from them, and carried up into heaven." This is not convincing. They do not say "we saw him go," but he was "received" and "carried." They could not see him received in heaven—nor possibly could they see him carried very far toward such a destiny. We speak thus of our spirit friends leaving our circle, and particularly of the materialized spirit. They often say: "Now I must go to heaven." Jesus did not, then, bring immortality to light by his physical ascension into heaven, nor do we suppose he did so go. We think it to have then been, as it now is, a physical impossibility for flesh and blood to enter the kingdom of heaven," or in other words the spirit spheres or habitat. We are no longer left with the hope born of this unsatisfactory revelation of spirit power or Messianic power. We need better evidence than the record furnishes, and it is forthcoming from the spirit realm by positive communication, and revelation. We are proving the continuity of life and the power of nature to resurrect us into a grander existence than the earth gives us. Why do the churches of to-day refuse what Paul was surprised that the churches and nations derided and deemed incredible in his time? It is history repeating itself. It is a non-Christian church that does not "do the works" that Jesus did. They lack faith. They who believe not the truth and have "not the love of truth," are they who "for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie." The anti-Christ are they who refuse to do "the works" of Christ. Thus we are beginning to see the needs of the church. We hope to press forward in bringing "immortality to light," so that all peoples shall have positive knowledge. Then only will faith pass away—for "to know" is our birthright.

Then Easter will not only typify the resurrecting power of nature and we celebrate its life-giving and life-proving forces, but from revelations made by the spirits of once mortal man we shall realize the spring solstice is indeed the fructifying season, for there was brought to us at this time, fifty-two years ago, the true knowledge with regard to life, death and the resurrection.

CANADA.

Rev. Dr. Austin's Work for the Cause.

You will be pleased to learn that during the past few months the cause of Spiritualism in Toronto, Can., and I might add all over the Province, has received such an impetus that it will be difficult for those who are opposed to the movement to stem the rising tide that has set in its favor. Continuous meetings which have been fairly well attended throughout have been kept up in two large halls, in different parts of the city. One of these, seating about four hundred people, has been well filled nearly every Sunday evening with earnest listeners, into whose minds seeds have been sown which will cause them to think and eventually bear fruit for the cause of Spiritualism, if it is not apparent now, the Rev. Dr. Austin having been instrumental in doing good work on that line.

I presume the old time Methodists little thought of the good they were doing to the cause of Spiritualism when by their action in conference, about a year ago, they expelled from that body one of their ablest teachers and professors, for preaching what ought to be considered one of the most sublime truths that can be uttered, but which they deemed to be "heresy." Those creed-bound sectarians probably had no idea that by expelling Dr. Austin they were aiding the cause of Spiritualism by adding to its ranks such a scholarly and earnest worker as he has proved to be; and the supporters of the movement must feel highly gratified with the result of his labors during the short time he has been spreading the truth abroad among the people. Nor will the frantic efforts of the editor of the "Christian Guardian," the organ of Methodism in Canada, avail to prevent a spread of the knowledge of a life beyond the grave, such as Spiritualism affords—by allowing the columns of the Guardian to be used by a fakir medium to expose Spiritualism with his "experiences," which was done recently in two issues of that journal, and paid for at the rate of two dollars and a half per column, wherein the writer attempted to prove by implication, if not explicitly stated, that all mediums were frauds, for he asserted that after ten years of investigation he has yet to meet with a genuine medium. Had the editor of the Guardian taken the precaution he ought to have done to find out who the correspondent was, that had such ready access to his columns, he might have saved himself the humiliation of being the accomplice and the dupe of one of those "frauds" he was so anxious apparently to warn his readers against. Had he done this he might have also discovered that this same Mr. Scott, whose portrait the Guardian published, was the very man who three years ago was advertising himself under an assumed name as a Spiritualistic medium and professing to do what he says in the Guardian was only fraud and trickery, and because he practiced it wants the people to take his word and believe all mediums do the same thing.

I mention this to show the fairness or rather unfairness of the attitude of the editor of the Guardian on this subject, in accepting the "experiences" of this man whom in justice to the editor we must assume he could not have known his real character, though he would prefer and pay for his communications, and reject the experiences of one who presents another side of the question, though this writer has had continuous business relations for the past ten years with the Methodist publishing book room where the Guardian is issued. And still those experiences, which was the simple truth, and like the Gospel which the Guardian is supposed to be the exponent of, though offered without money and without price, is refused with the explanation that it was not available for their columns. But it was always thus—

"Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne,
Yet that scaffold sways the future, and behind the dim unknown,
Standeth God within the shadow, keeping watch above his own."

Toronto, Canada. W. H. EVANS.

WE call special attention to The Next World Interviewed, one of our special premiums. We are enabled to furnish it to our readers at the price announced in our premium list, from the simple fact that Mr. Horn donated the plates of the book to us. We have sent out thousands of copies of this book, and it has been well received everywhere. It should be circulated by the millions among all classes of Spiritualists. The seven books that we are offering to Spiritualists as premiums contain a large storehouse of useful knowledge on Spiritual and Occult subjects. You should have them on the shelves of your library where you can have access to them at any time. Read carefully our premium announcement.

"Harmonics of Evolution. The Philosophy of Individual Life. Based Upon Natural Science, as Taught by Modern Masters of the Law." By Florence Huntley. A work of deep thought, carrying the principles of evolution into new fields. Cloth, $2. For sale at this office.

"The Molecular Hypothesis of Nature." By Prof. Wm. M. Lockwood. Prof. Lockwood is recognized as one of the ablest lecturers on the spiritual rostrum. In this little volume he presents in succinct form the substance of his lectures on the Molecular Hypothesis of Nature; and presents his views as demonstrating a scientific basis of Spiritualism. The book is commended to all who love to study and think. For sale at this office. Price, 50 cents.

In Darkest England.

Illustrating the Grandeur of Philanthropic Work.

His Religious Belief All Wrong; but His Humanitarianism All Right.

BY GENERAL WILLIAM BOOTH.

WHATEVER THE RELIGION PHILANTHROPIC ACTS ALWAYS STAND FOREMOST WITH THE ANGEL WORLD—A DIVINE LESSON FOR SPIRITUALISTS TO CONSIDER.

When first announced, "The Darkest England Scheme" certainly made a mild sensation, says the Chicago Times-Herald. It had not only the recommendation of being a somewhat novel departure from the prevailing methods of dealing with some of our social problems, but it promised some little relief to the conscience of the community on a subject which could not fail to trouble it whenever its attention was turned in that direction.

It was pretty well known that there was a "Darkest England," the helpless and miserable condition of which made it almost, if not altogether, as deserving of benevolent consideration as the "Darkest Africa," about which there was a considerable amount of talk at the time. Such unfortunates as paupers, criminals, drunkards and other helpless slaves of vice were known to exist, but the announcement that something like 3,000,000 of men and women were down in this horrible pit or were on the way thither created a genuine commotion in the public mind. And when in addition it was boldly affirmed that many of these "miserables" might be assisted, nay, delivered from their wretched condition, and that without any great trouble or ruinous expense, the announcement was very agreeably received. Some who had hitherto hardly ever raised a hand to help these perishing multitudes gave my proposals a hearty welcome and breathed a little more freely in consequence.

What then has been the outcome of the experiment? How far has it realized my own anticipations? How do we stand in the matter of practical application to the actual needs of the case?

FORTRESSES OF HOPE AND MERCY.

First, let us look at the outcome by way of established institutions. By an institution I mean efforts regularly organized at some given center for the accomplishment of one of the objects contemplated by the scheme. Such institutions are usually situated in the very haunt of destitution and vice; they are, in fact, fortresses of hope and mercy planted in the devil's darkest dominions. When the plan was first published my eyes were fixed all but exclusively on the United Kingdom. But a closer examination of the social conditions prevailing in other parts of the world, made during my more extended travels, revealed the painful fact that there was no nation under the sun, whether Christian or heathen, to which the principles, and in a large measure the methods, devised for this country, would not apply, although no "Darkest England" funds were sent from England.

Taught, therefore, by the early description of the scheme, and encouraged by the first stages of the experiment in the home country, the leaders of the Salvation Army set themselves, with my approval and under my direction, to work in other lands for the attainment, as far as possible, of the merciful objects we are aiming at and accomplishing at home. The whole of the operations realized up and down the world, growing and expanding as they are every day, are thus the outcome of the original conception. To convey an adequate idea of the results as a whole by any statistics is, I fear, impossible, still some approximate notion may perhaps be gained from the following summary:

We have now 158 shelters and food depots for homeless men and women, 121 slum posts, each with its own slum sisters; thirty-seven labor bureaus, sixty labor factories for the unemployed, eleven land colonies, ninety-one rescue homes for women, eleven labor homes for ex-criminals, several nursing institutions, two maternity hospitals for deserted women, an institution with branches in forty-five countries and colonies for finding lost and missing persons, together with a host of allied and minor agencies, which I am not able here to enumerate.

The total number of institutions named above is now 545 under the care of more than 2,000 trained officers, and others wholly employed, all working in harmony with the principles I have laid down for helping the poorest and most unfortunate of their fellows, and all more or less experts at their work.

Nearly 20,000 destitute men and women are in some way or other touched by the operations of the scheme every day.

No less than 15,000 wretched and otherwise homeless people are housed under our roofs every night, having their needs met, at least in part, with sympathy and prayer, and the opportunity for friendly counsel.

More than 300 ex-criminals are to-day in our homes of reformation, having before them another chance for this life, and in many cases the first they have ever had for preparing for the life to come.

More than 5,000 women taken from lives of shame and darkness are safely sheltered in our homes each year, on the way—as we have abundantly proved in the case of others, in respect of a large proportion of them—to a future of virtue, goodness and religion.

Over 1,000 men are employed on the land colonies. Many of them are working out their own deliverance, and at the same time helping to solve one of the most difficult problems of modern times, and proving that many of the helpless loafers of the great cities can be made useful producers on the soil.

Over the gates of every one of these homes, elevators, labor factories and colonies, there might be written: "No man or woman need starve or beg, pauperize or steal, or commit suicide. If willing to work, apply within. Here there is hope for all."

APPRECIATED BY THE POOR.

It is all but impossible to estimate the extent to which this network of benevolent agencies, controlled by Godly and unselfish men and women, is, day after day and night after night, alleviating the miseries of the poor. There are few, if any, reflections more calculated to give real consolation or afford me truer joys as I turn my eyes to the approaching horizon than the recollection of the sorrows and loneliness and misery which these efforts have at least softened, if they have not healed. In a London shelter the other night a number of homeless women, finding a temporary covering from the blast and a bit of warmth and pleasant association and some kind words, sent me a touching message of gratitude, accompanied by a small collection of farthings and half-pennies to aid in providing another like harbor of refuge for their less favored sisters. Ah, believe me, gratitude has often her home in the midst of the deepest penury. And when a very little effort will go so far—will produce and reproduce so much in the way of comforting the despairing and the outcast—it is a sad, sad pity, that so few embark upon the business.

In our rescue homes there are always about 2,000 women. Instead of idleness and drinking and blasphemy and imprisonment and unnamable impurities and passions, there is the sound of song, of prayer, of wholesome labor, of industry—above all, there are the marks of confidence and love. If there was nothing but this in their lives it would be something to rejoice over—just that six months' vacation from wretchedness and vice.

Take the shelters. Think of the torture that must be endured by any poor creature driven to sleep in the open air in this climate for half, you might say three-quarters, of the year, and yet ten years ago, in this city alone, there were many hundreds of men and women, and alas, not a few children, who were condemned to this fate. This terrible state of things has been considerably alleviated.

RESCUE WORK HIGHLY PRIZED.

But what I prize most highly of the Darkest England scheme is the actual benefit it has bestowed in the way of rescue. To mitigate the suffering and improve the general tone of the sick man is good, but to cure his disease and send him home "every whit made whole," must be more desirable still. That is, of course, the highest aim of the Darkest England scheme. Our dealing with the submerged has all been directed to the end of making him willing and able to relieve himself, and so render future relief unnecessary. Indeed, some of our plans of alleviation are, so to speak, only a kind of ruse to catch the unwary sufferer, affording us the opportunity to open his eyes to see better things, to draw out his desire after them, and so familiarize him with some one of our methods of escape that he shall embrace it and find deliverance. This is how it works:

A few months ago one of my officers was accosted in the street, some 200 yards from the mansion house, by a well-dressed man, who raised his hat and said: "Mr. ——, I believe?" "Yes," was the reply. "You don't know me, but I occupy such and such a position"—mentioning a post of trust in a commercial house in the city. "I had fallen," he went on to explain, "through misfortune and my own misconduct, to the very lowest depths of penury and want. In my extremity—I had never heard of the Salvation Army before—I went into one of your shelters; I had only 2 pence in the world, which I paid for that night's lodging, and while I was preparing myself for rest one of your officers came up and put his hand on my shoulder and spoke to me. He drew from me my story, told me there was hope for me, and next morning obtained employment for me temporarily, and although I have never been in the Salvation Army building since, and I only went to the shelter one night, it was my golden chance. I took it and have been climbing up the ladder ever since."

But many who are down in these depths need no coaxing. Show them the ghost of a hope of deliverance and they spring at it with an energy that is delightful to behold. To such in thousands the scheme has already proved a way of salvation. Up this stairway they can climb not only to good citizenship but higher still—to the golden pavement of the celestial city.

PATHETIC STORY OF BETSY.

In a certain city in this country, highly respectable and crowded with churches, was a woman who was a horror to the inhabitants and a terror to the police. Justice, so-called, had done for her all that lay within its ability. Forty-nine times she had been in prison, and forty-nine times she had come out a little worse than she went in. On the fiftieth occasion, to which my story refers, it required the services of six stalwart policemen to take her into custody, and they only accomplished the work by strapping her onto a stretcher and carrying her off like some wild animal.

Deposited in her cell, as the door shut on her, mad with rage at being mastered by these limbs of the law, and having no other way to manifest her frenzy, she took the rags off her bare bones, tore them in pieces and scattered them over the floor. Poor Betsy, for that was her name, however did she come to this pass? Well, her father was twenty-nine times in prison; her mother was a drunkard, and died when drunk; at 16 Betsy was introduced by her elder sister to a life of shame as an easy means of earning a livelihood.

In their despair the police turned to the Salvation Army, the superintendent sending for an officer, and asking him if he would undertake the case. Of course he would. To deal with such cases was his delight. Accordingly his wife hastened to the prison, entered the cell with a bundle of clothes, put her arms around poor Betsy's naked shoulders, and with lips of love assured her that she had come to be her friend. Betsy was speechless with astonishment. But the first battle was won and she surrendered unconditionally. The next morning the magistrate handed her over to the Salvation Army, and the officers marched off with her as though they had found some great treasure. They took her in hand. They told her of One who could forgive the black past and change the habits of a lifetime, and help her to live a good, sober and virtuous life. Betsy believed the good news and cast herself on the mercy of God, and he who 2,000 years ago cast out the devils from the soul of the Magdalene did the same for her. Since then, which was several years ago, Betsy has been living an industrious and godly life.

IMPORTANCE OF WORK HABIT.

The Darkest England scheme has also proved the genuineness of the principles on which we affirmed at the outset that work for the outcast poor should be carried on. I am not sure that this is not after all the most valuable result of the experiment. What are these principles?

Character must be changed in order to assure a change of conduct. It is folly to expect that any alterations in the environment of the individual will affect any abiding improvement in his moral condition. It is the man you want to alter.

Every man must work out his own salvation, or it will not be worked out at all. The drunkard, the loafer, the unfortunate, must be a co-worker in effecting the deliverance desired.

Industry is necessary to reformation. Where there has been the ability we have acted on the apostolic injunction, "If a man will not work neither shall he eat." "Nothing for nothing" is the rule vigorously carried out through every branch of our operations. Where idleness has been the cause of their misery industry is the cure.

Then, also, without discipline little can be done with these classes. To take hold of men and women who have from their childhood been Ishmaelites, whose very ruin has come about because they would not be subject to any decent rules of living or working, and make them not only willing but cheerfully obedient to orders and regulations, has been one of our most difficult tasks. But it was a necessity and we have accomplished it with multitudes.

UNDER GENERAL BOOTH'S WING.

Hope must be restored. "I wish I was dead," comes with dismal frequency to the hearts and lips in those moments of reflection that intrude themselves unasked in the intervals of their dreary lives.

Instances by the thousand have come under our notice in which the tidings of what had been done for others had revived the dying hope of better things in the hearts of the lost. The subject of the following little story is now in a position of trust in the world.

A man comfortably brought up, decently educated, happily married, and blessed with several children, fell in trouble. I don't know what it was, but it drove him to drink for consolation, and he gradually became a drunkard. By degrees business, friends, home, and everything worth having were sacrificed; last of all, his wife left him and he went down as low as human nature can fall this side of the grave.

He wandered about the country picking up a coin here and there, existing on charity and his wits in the most miserable fashion.

In this condition and clothed in rags, he happened one day, in the north of England, to hear a man tell how he, too, had been down in these depths, and how, through General Booth's social wing, he had been rescued and made a man once more.

Stimulated by what he heard, the man started to walk to London, 300 miles, without a penny in his pocket. Begging his way up, sleeping in stables, outhouses or on the shady side of haystacks and the like, he was three times arrested and taken before the magistrates charged with being a vagrant, and on each occasion, when asked what he was doing and whither he was bound, he answered that he was "going to London to get under General Booth's wing." He finished the journey, found the shelter, was taken in, bathed, clothed, taught a business, reunited to his family, and is now doing well. He has got under General Booth's wing.

ENLISTED IN A NOBLE WORK.

That over 2,000 men and women have already consecrated themselves to this humane and Christlike business, actuated by that tender pity and burning enthusiasm which keeps them going amid all discouragement, is, taken alone, worthy the great example they seek to follow, and calls for our deepest gratitude. Most of them are children of the poor. Some have themselves been restored by the work they now engage in, while many are the sons and daughters of good families, born and bred in ease, if not in luxury, who have exchanged the pleasant surroundings of abundance for the service of the lowest, and for association with the vilest of the vile. All alike live the life of the crucified Son of Man for the sake of the unwashed, unblessed, unloved for whom he died.

With my closing words I want to say how deeply grateful I am for the practical sympathy shown me in connection with the origination and working out of the scheme.

LIFE AND EXPERIENCE IN SPIRIT LAND

A Series of Letters from Spirit Franz Petersilea to His Son, Carlyle Petersilea.

LETTER NUMBER THIRTY-TWO—Continued.

Now, what we want to know first is, what is a city? And we do not think that any will disagree with us when we say that a city is an extremely large collection of buildings, and you are all well aware what kind of buildings make up an earthly city. But our friend saw a spiritual city, if he saw a city—which he certainly did, for we have taken great pains to inform ourselves correctly on this important subject—he saw a large collection of buildings, he does not say what kind of buildings they were, he merely tells us that they were shining—shining buildings or a shining city of buildings. Now we all know that a city is made up of houses or homes, public buildings and schools, institutions of learning, and so forth; halls, temples, in fact, everything that is needed for the welfare of its inhabitants, consequently, this shining city seen by our friend, must be made up by all that we have mentioned; and we do not believe that he can deny this great truth himself.

He says it was a shining city, and he certainly tells the truth as we can vouch, for all our cities here are shining and very splendid indeed, much more so than those of earth. Now, in order to be shining, nearly all the buildings must be constructed from precious and shining materials—there must be something to shine, you know, else it would not shine—so our friend is all right there. We all know that a shining city, or extremely large collection of buildings, must necessarily have something to stand upon, else it would be an extremely shaky shining city, or, perhaps, a mirage of the imagination.

Our friend did not say what it stood upon, but we all know that a large city cannot, in the nature of things, stand on ether, it must have something a little more substantial than ether, it must and does necessarily have spiritual earth or ground to stand upon, and that spiritual earth or ground must be as substantial, correspondingly, to the shining spiritual city as the material city, which does not always shine. We don't believe our friend can gainsay this point.

Now if the city stands on spiritual ground—as it certainly does and must—no one can think for a moment that the ground does not extend beyond the city limits. We don't believe even our friend could cherish that thought for any length of time. It certainly would be a very peculiar-looking city, perched up in ether, on a plat of ground just large enough to hold it. Oh, no. There must be in the very nature of things an extensive surrounding country, and this is true. Of course we have all heard about spheres upon spheres—spiritual spheres surrounding your globe—and this also is true, but we will try to confine ourselves to the shining city of which our friend speaks, and the surrounding country. Now, if our friend were in that city and looking out over the surrounding country, he would not expect to see the end of it. he really would expect that it would extend as far as the spiritual eye could reach and he would not think it ended there, either. We have now got a great extent of country, together with the shining city, spread out before us, of firm, spiritual ground, on which stands a large and shining city unshaken. Now our friend certainly does not mean that this is all in his imagination, or that he sees and enjoys it as crazy or insane people of earth do, simply in the imagination; no, oh, no. These are real spiritual things. We can vouch for it. Friends, it is as true as heaven is true.

Now we want to know something about this large extent of country, firm and substantial enough to hold a large and shining city. Is it a barren plain without trees, shrubs or flowers—a dreary, endless nothingness? Tell us, my evolutionist friend. You believe heaven to be far more beautiful than earth. Would a barren nothingness be more beautiful than earth? Or even if—as is the case—this extensive surrounding country, or spiritual ground, was dotted over with little villages and sequestered homes, you would not like to see them standing upon a barren desert, without a tree, vine, flower, or shrub anywhere throughout the whole expanse? No, your eye would grow sick and weary of such a sight—and this throughout eternity! Oh, how you would long for the green old earth. You would be, methinks, like a nun who had been confined in a dungeon for twenty years or more, on escaping she threw herself down on the grass, kissing it again and again, hugging the ground and bathing it with her tears; but, my friend, although you did not say so, this vast extent of country, dotted over with villages and lovely sequestered homes, is as green and beautiful as possible, covered with trees, shrubs, flowers, groves and forests, as much more beautiful than earth as the shining city is than a city of earth. It is all sublimated and spiritual, to be sure, and therein lies its beauty. It has left all coarseness, disorder and grossness behind.

Now your shining city has led us directly into this most beautiful surrounding country, and from your own lips we have proved every word as we went. In order to give this up, you must necessarily give up the shining city, and call yourself a falsifier, and that you are not, as we shall still continue to prove. Now we have grass, trees, vines, and flowers, a shining city, villages and sequestered homes, for without them you can have no shining city.

Now over this endless expanse of country, is there not a drop of water? Can a green and beautiful country exist without a drop of water? Oh! my friend, how you would long to quaff a little of the sparkling nectar—how you would long to bathe your face in its cool limpidness. Why, we think that to be without water would make us quite insane, indeed. Our imagination would become so heated we fear that we should see fire instead of the truth as it is, pure, sparkling, clear, cool, limpid water. Well, now, nature is ever bountiful and we are not confined to a few drops, but this vast extent of country is intersected with pools, ponds, rivulets, rivers, and far out there in the distance a large lake, and farther on still rolls a restless ocean. The water is ethereal and spiritual, corresponding to the spiritual earth, grass, flowers, villages, homes and shining cities. See where your shining city leads, and you cannot gainsay it without giving up the city? You said the city was in the spiritual spheres, or one of them, and the surrounding country is a little part of one of them.

You told us that within the city dwelt man the immortal, and that he came from the earth, or that his spirit rose up from the earth. You did not say that the sublimated spiritual spheres also rose up from the earth, and you did not tell us who builded the shining city, or how it was built. There are only two ways that a city can be built; either God must build it with his own hands, alone, or it must be built by those who inhabit it. You, my friend, will surely repudiate the idea that God builded the shining city with his own hands, personally, for you do not believe in a personal God; and herein you are right.

We have been here twenty years or more and we are as far away from a personal God as ever we were, and we have never met an angel who knows anything about a personal God. Then this city was builded by those who inhabit it, and the villages and sequestered homes were builded by those who inhabit them; otherwise, the angels and spirits built their own homes and houses, schools, colleges, halls, and temples of learning, and being a shining city, they builded them of beautiful and shining material—so we will pass on.

We have also told how by the great law of involution, all things were evolved—the involuting of spiritual germs of that which was to be evolved.

Now, man was involved as the germ of a man, and then evolved as a man—the germ developed and perfected within matter—from thence evolved into the celestial spheres. The shining city, the villages and sequestered homes are works of art, existing within man, which he clothes with sublimated or spiritual matter, but not the spiritual ground, nor the grass, the trees, the flowers, the water; these were evolved from the earth as was man, first by involution and then by evolution.

Now we are here in this vast expanse of country which has been evolved from the earth, together with man. Did nature, when she evoluted these forests, trees, shrubs, flowers, grass—and man evoluted cities, towns, villages, sequestered homes, and so forth—did nature, we ask, make such a sad blunder as to leave out all other living creatures except man? Did she strike out the intermediate link between the vegetable and floral kingdoms and man? You say distinctly and emphatically, that she did. If so, it is the first and most awful blunder she ever made. The vegetable, floral and grassy kingdoms are, as you well know, below the living and breathing animal kingdoms. How did it happen that the lower was brought up and the higher left? That, surely, was the strangest freak that nature ever performed.

Look over the vast expanse of country; according to what you say, there is not a living or breathing thing in all this enormous expanse but man; and this is only the smallest little portion of one of the spiritual spheres, holding only one city and a few villages and homes; and throughout the spheres are millions upon millions of similar cities, towns and villages, and they are but dots in the limitless expanse of the spheres, mere, simple dots, According to you, not a bird sings, not an insect chirps, not a particle of life anywhere, for bacillus and scarlet fever germs might exist if anything were to be admitted here in the form of an insect or animal. The carnivorous would feed upon the herbivorous, and yet it is well understood that spirits do no gross feeding. If that were the case the spirit of man when he had no animal here to kill and feed upon might be obliged to eat grass, for he is exceedingly carnivorous as well as herbivorous. If no life can be taken within the spiritual spheres, no animal can take life any more than man. If man cannot slay his brother here, he cannot slay an animal. Life is life, whether in man or animal, and if man cannot slay an animal, animals cannot slay each other, neither do they desire to. It is simply hunger that causes them to slay each other on earth, and, yet, even there, they slay nothing but the gross body, the sublimated spirit lives as does man's—the life, the form.

But, my friend, although you have made a great mistake, nature has not. Thanks to the grand old dame, she has brought them all here without a single break. Bless her dear old soul! She never forgot one, but gathered them all up like a wise and bountiful mother. She knew beforehand that to leave out a vast link would spoil the whole chain.

As for the bacillus and scarlet fever germs, given a chance and they would be as active as ever, but having no longer matter to feed upon, and being too minute to think about, they do no harm whatever. As for fleas, they can be found here as upon earth—but the dogs are not troubled, and their feeding days are over. We have not the slightest objection to anything that nature has seen fit to involve and evolve, and if we had, nature would certainly overrule our objections. You seem to get along very well on earth without the insect and animal life being left out, and as you come up higher they can do you no harm whatever.

Nature loves a toad just as well as she loves a man. She does not stop to ask whether one has a little more intelligence than another. She loves intelligence, but she loves form and beauty and life, whether in man or animal, flower or tree. She never stops to ask the tree whether it is intelligent or not, or the flower, or the shrub, or man; but she makes the best use possible of them all. The smallest thing that lives has a certain amount of reason. There never lived an animal that had not its share of reason—not a bird that flies nor an insect that chirps.

Man is the crown, you say, but nature does not think so. Man thinks that of himself. But whether he is the crown or not, he is no more immortal than the rest of living and created things. Nature is as careful of her lowest treasures as she is of man.

And now, my friends—together with my particular friend, who by telling us of the shining city, without knowing it, admitted all the rest—cast your eyes over the large expanse of spiritual territory and let us see what we see: Singing birds are flying about among the trees—beautiful, exquisitely beautiful! Their songs are far sweeter than they were on the earth. Look at those homes. Do you not perceive that there is, as usual about such homes of earth, cats and dogs, rabbits, poultry, horses, cows and so forth? But these are all pets, and they are not numerous. The spiritual realms are exceedingly spacious, not cramped for room at all. Now glance into those waters—fish? Yes, fish. Now let us enter the forest—wild animals? Yes, wild animals. Not wild now, however, but exceedingly beautiful. As nothing propagates within all the great realm of spirit, the earths can give no more than is needed to give life and beauty to its great fields, forests, oceans, seas, rivers, and so on—to give life and beauty, pets and living companionship to men, women and children.

Old Mother Nature is far wiser than man, and knew best what was for his good, better far than he knows himself.

Now we hope that we have amply proved, from the very utterances of one who does not believe in the immortality of anything but man, that he has made a mistake, as all men are liable to; for if there were no mistakes or errors there could be no progress. The very fact that man is a progressive being, is evidence within itself, that there is something to progress toward, that truth is veiled like a coy maiden or a modest woman, likewise that she forever flies onward leading the way to higher ground; man follows after but never quite overtakes her. She often turns her radiant face and form toward him, presses a few jewels into his hands, then flies onward with beckoning hand. Don't stop, O man! but follow her as closely as possible.

Nature has never asked man whether he would have serpents, reptiles, noxious weeds, bacillus, scarlet fever germs, yellow fever germs, small-pox germs, carnivorous animals, birds of prey, sharks, whales, sea-serpents, crocodiles, asps, cobras, or anything else which he considers obnoxious. She never consulted him about it but placed his life in the midst of all other teeming lives. Their lives are just as sweet to them as his life is to him. Their lives are just as necessary in the great ocean of life as his is. The animals that man slays and feeds upon, object strongly to being murdered and eaten by him, as he objects strongly to being eaten by some of them. Man objects to being stung by a cobra. The cobra objects to the man's crushing heel and has nothing but a poisonous fang to protect herself with, together with her young. The cobra and the man are antagonistic, that is all. Mother Nature sees to it that her most helpless ones shall have some means of defending themselves.

Man talks of wild animals while he goes to war with cannon, shell and gatling-guns, slaying his fellow-men by the thousands. He talks of himself as being the only creature worthy immortality, while he invents the most horrible tortures, such as no animal ever did or could inflict upon him.

Ah! the egotism of it!

People wish to be settled. Only as far as they are unsettled is there any hope for them.—Emerson.

Natural religion today means what the most enlightened reason reads in nature.—E. P. Powell.

I know of no great men but those who have rendered great services to humanity.—Voltaire.

It is well to consider a little whether in our zeal to suppress one form of immorality we may not be forging chains which may in time be fastened upon the neck of some great but unpopular truth.—Loring Moody.

The order and energy of the universe I hold to be inherent, and not imposed from without; the expression of fixed laws, and not of arbitrary will exercised by what Carlyle would call an almighty clock-maker.—John Tyndall.

IMPORTANT MATTER FROM OUR FOREIGN EXCHANGES

LIGHT, LONDON, ENG.

THE EVOLUTION OF THE SPIRIT.

The special need of the hour is clear thinking concerning the genesis of the human spirit, and in the light of the fundamental fact that Evolution has produced mind as well as body by a process of modification through experience and environment. This alone will enable us to escape the grip of Materialism and to thread our way amid the entanglements of Theosophy. Science, we are told, is the handmaid of Religion; and Science may be and one day will be the best friend of the Spiritualist. Through a right understanding of the doctrine of Evolution, we shall arrive at an understanding of the way in which God is creating man a living soul.

Now there are, of course, various planes or stages of mind—from the stage occupied by the sensitive plant to the stage occupied by a Plato, a Mozart or a Tennyson. Man has been rather egotistical and arbitrary as to mind. The human animal has long hesitated to grant the possession of mind to his poor relations, "the lower animals," as he is fond of calling them. He has consented to attribute to them "instinct"; and, because he could never attach any particular meaning to the word, he made a present of it to these "lower animals." But does he know what reason is, or mind, or spirit, or soul? Our wisest and most logical course might be to make these words very flexible, and, for instance, to recognize mind wherever we perceive receptivity and responsiveness. From the insectivorous plants which seem to display many of the characteristics of mind, and of a curiously subtile mind, up and on through countless grades to our great philosophers, musicians and poets, we may trace the marvelous unfoldings of this mystic power. Who or what it is that starts the process we do not know. We call Him or It, "God," or "Nature," or "Father," or "The Power, not ourselves." What does it matter? What matters is that, behind all this seeming tangle of antagonistic forces and semi-tragic experiences, there is a seeming Purpose and a Will—and a Purpose and a Will which seem to be quite adequate for all that "Evolution" means.

The soul has not pre-existed, but all the powers it possesses, and all the vital experiences of which it is the embodiment, have. If anyone chooses to say that the soul proceeds from God, no fault can be found with that so long as God is identified with that infinite ocean of life-forces from which all modes of manifestation of life proceed. "The soul, as such," says a modern thinker, "does truly arise for the first time in man. But its elements have pre-existed, originally as simple mind-stuff, and at a later stage as lower mind-structures: and finally, so long as we bear in mind the material character of mind-stuff, we may in this sense correctly speak of the soul as a product of universal spirit." In that sense, God is a necessary inference; but Evolution is his instrument, and the unbroken earthly order indicates his method; and reincarnation is only the return of, or the persistence of, fresh complexities of character, acquired by heredity, by means of which God slowly secures the creation and education of the race.

This view was most significantly set forth some time ago at the University of Glasgow by Dr. John Cleland, Professor of Anatomy, as the following very original passage will show:

"The largest feature in the evolution of both plants and animals consisted in that which was simple passing into the manifold, and the manifold being compacted together in a higher unity. And, however imperfectly zoologists might yet agree as to the evolutions in detail in different parts of the animal kingdom, it is plain that in the human form an organism has at last appeared constituting an abode of intelligence such as existed in no other, and that in man alone intelligence reached the capability of ascending beyond the wants of the physical organism in the contemplation of abstract truth. That organism has not improved with the progress of discovery in modern science, but is at least as complete in the heroes of antiquity as in those of recent times. It is surely, then, an assumption to suppose that evolution as distinguished from variation in animal forms must go on unchecked till astronomic change shall have ended the capability of this world to support life. It is far more probable that the evolutions of the future are to be sought in realms with which the zoologist acknowledges that he has nothing to do."

But this notable passage takes us at once farther afield, for it pictures not only the emergence of the soul on the earth-plane but its evolution out of and beyond the body into a more congenial sphere. And is not this eminently reasonable? On any theory of Nature or God, the laws of Evolution and Continuity come out as the certainties of the Universe; and these, anyway, are unspeakably grand as unfolding the successive acts of a stupendous progressive Drama. But what a ridiculous absurdity the whole fizzles into when we conclude that as the whole began without plan so the whole will end without purpose—alike beginning and ending in mindlessness! It has been well said: "In Schopenhauer's quasi-Buddhistic philosophy we find an apparent breach of continuity in the chain which begins with the unconscious, and which goes on, evolvingly, until quite suddenly the flash of conscious intellect lights up the universe. Schopenhauer's ethics are sublime and pure, but dogmatically his system is like most forms of Buddhistic philosophy, not only atheistic, but also akosmic. If the unconscious is the beginning, and the nirvanic unconsciousness the end, what is the use of going through the farce of this evolutionary waltz, which ends where it began, and which ought not to have begun at all, and which can only be pardoned in consideration of the unconscious not being accountable for its primordial fidgets?

Surely the only rational conclusion one can come to is that "human consciousness is an unfolding in response to a brooding consciousness higher than itself, and creative, towards which it ever tends, and up to which it is destined to climb."

So then, the whole of the intellectual, ethical and spiritual self has been evolved, and the immortal spirit is as much a product of evolution as the mortal eye. But, just as the evolving of the eye came as the result of stimulus from without—a world of wonder appealing to be seen—so the evolving of the spirit came as the result of stimulus from without and from within—the heaven of God appealing to be desired and loved. And just as the eye, in being evolved, and in trying to see, was a constant prophecy of the world awaiting it, so the spirit, in being evolved, and in trying to aspire, is a constant prophecy of the God and heaven awaiting it. This is not poetry and rhapsody; it is science and common sense.

Heaven is never deaf, but when a man's heart is dumb.—Quarles.

THE SPIRITUAL REVIEW, LONDON, ENG.

Power and authority are

NOT ALWAYS IN THE RIGHT,

they are often to be found on the side of privilege. The strong arm may crush the individual, and may suppress the truth for a time, but like the fabled phoenix it arises from its own ashes, and ultimately forces the world to a due recognition of its claims.

Thus the pantheon of the Greeks is now resolved into the laws of nature, stripped of all personality. The teachings of Copernicus and Galileo are taught in our day schools, and are generally accepted as true, despite their disturbing the old traditions of the Bible. The heresies for which Bruno and others died are accepted by modern thinkers. The discovery of Harvey revolutionized the teachings of surgery. While the printing press has proved itself to be the greatest civilizer of mankind, and the science of geology has given us a newer and grander history of the earth than dreamed of in the Bible.

These facts should cause the people of to-day to pause before condemning any discovery of latent forces and powers inherent in the physical and psychological constitution of man. Silence on the subject of Spiritualism is eloquent until they have tested the claims of the same. But who should essay its investigation? Those who have already condemned it as fraud, or of the devil, and who shut their eyes and hearts to all that does not tend to confirm their preconceptions. We have already shown that such bigots have strewn the pages of history with martyrs. No; the frame of mind that is essential to the attainment of truth is the one that has an earnest desire to know the truth for its own sake and worth.

THE DIVIDING LINE.

The dividing line comes in at the point where we must conform in our work to the methods proper to the world we live in, when from believers we become propagandists, or when we attempt to organize our forces for active work, either for ourselves, or to present our facts and philosophy to others. If we undertake to create a "movement" designed to affect our fellows, then we must organize, and present some clear statements of our aims, and objects, and say how we propose to accomplish them. If Spiritualism is not a public movement, but merely a private study, then organization may be deemed unnecessary, societies, lecturers, a press, and a propaganda, can be dispensed with. Many say that Spiritualism will propagate itself, but experience contradicts the statement, otherwise our public work will be but wasted effort. Concerted action on practical lines, the necessary machinery to ensure the proper direction of such action, with the raising of the needful financial backing, do not imply any sacrifice of spiritual principles, but, when duly safeguarded, secure us a position in the world, compel the respect of those outside our work, and eventually make for the triumph of the cause at large. To ignore the need of organization is to repudiate the teachings of history and experience, for no permanent success can be secured without it.

A PSYCHIC HOSPITAL.

The disciples of Mental Science will assuredly be gladdened if the suggestion of "An Anglican Clergyman," as made in Light, should become an accomplished fact. To establish an institution for the treatment of disease by psychic methods would conceivably be a blessing, but at the same time it could possibly be turned into something quite the opposite. That there are forms of mental and nervous trouble that can be successfully treated by psychic processes no one will deny, but the question arises what is meant by psychic processes? Some letters subsequently appeared in our esteemed contemporary upon the matter, and to judge by their tenor the said processes may include Magnetic healing and mental science. Healing mediumship will also, surely, have a place?

N. S. A. CONVENTION.

Eighth Annual Convention of National Spiritualists Association.

The eighth annual convention of the National Spiritualists Association of the United States of America and Canada, will be held at Cleveland, Ohio—Chamber of Commerce Hall. Business sessions October 16, 17, 18, 19, 1900, at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m.

Important business of interest to every Spiritualist will be presented for action before these gatherings.

At 7:30 each evening grand public meetings with addresses, spirit communications, music, etc.

A large number of the most gifted lecturers and mediums will be present and participate in these exercises. Among them may be mentioned Dr. Peebles, Moses Hull, Prof. W. F. Peck, Mrs. Helen Palmer Ressegue, Carrie E. S. Twing, May S. Pepper, Mrs. Zaida Brown Kates and Maggie Gaule. Other mediums and speakers of foremost rank are also making arrangements to attend and participate in the programme. Mrs. Z. L. Eise, the talented musician will have charge of music.

Further announcements will be made in the Spiritual papers.

Reduced rates on railroads from large cities. Ask for certificate tickets to National Spiritualists Convention. These tickets must be endorsed by the secretary at the convention to entitle you to one-third fare for return trip.

All attending the convention who travel to Cleveland by rail are specially requested to purchase certificate tickets, that we may be sure of meeting the requirements of the roads.

The Forest City House, a large and handsome hotel of Cleveland, at which the best of service and attention will be secured for our delegates and visitors, at two dollars per day each person, special rate, will be the headquarters of the convention. Reception in the parlor of the Forest City House to all will be held on Monday, October 15, at 8 p. m.

Information of convention can be obtained of the N. S. A. secretary, at 600 Penna avenue S. E., Washington, D. C.

MARY T. LONGLEY, Secretary.

HARRISON D. BARRETT, Pres.

"Buddhism and Its Christian Critics." By Dr. Paul Carus. An excellent study of Buddhism; compact yet comprehensive. Paper, 50 cents. Cloth, $1.25. For sale at this office.

"The Truth Seeker Collection of Forms and Ceremonies for the Use of Liberals." For sale at this office. Price 25 cents.

"Nature Cure." By Drs. M. E. and Rose O. Conger. Excellent for every family. Cloth, $1.50 and $2.

KEEP YOUR

ON OUR MAIN PREMIUMS.

The Progressive Thinker one year and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, an intensely interesting, instructive and fascinating work, $1.25. The twenty-five cents only pays a little more than the postage and the expense of mailing. The price of this work to the trade is $1.50. This book will constitute our main premium for the remainder of 1900, and up to May 30, 1901. It is very valuable. It will hold your attention throughout, and will teach you a much needed lesson. The postage on the above book, which we prepay, is ten cents, hence it is almost a gift to our subscribers. It is furnished at considerable less than actual cost to us.

Offer Number Two.

Vol. 1, Vol. 2 and Vol. 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, will be sent out when accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker, for $1.10. The paper one year, and the three volumes, $2.10. You can add to this order any of the other books, at 40 cents each. You can make only one order for three books for $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Three.

Any three of the books in our premium list that you may select will be sent to you for $1.10. You are at liberty to select any other books in the list that you desire in connection with this order, at 40 cents each. You can only make one order for three books at $1.10.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

Offer Number Four.

Our regular premium, The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, is only 25 cents. If you wish to add thereto one of the other premium books only, the same will cost you 50 cents. If you wish two additional books, the cost of the three will be $1.10. You can add thereto any other books you desire at 40 cents each.

Offer Number Five.

If you wish to order only one book in connection with a year's subscription, and that one not our regular yearly premium, the price will be 50 cents.

An order for one or more of the premium books must always be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. No other books except the SEVEN mentioned here, will be sent out as premiums.

OFFER NUMBER SIX.

SEVEN REMARKABLE BOOKS FOR $2.35.

Offered at Far Less Than Actual Cost.

The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol 1, Price.....$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 2, Price.....$ 1.50
The Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World, Vol. 3, Price.....$ 1.50
Art Magic, or Mundane, Sub-Mundane and Super-Mundane Spiritism. Price.....$ 1.50
Ghost Land, Spiritualism, Occultism. Price.....$ 1.50
The Next World Interviewed. Price.....$ 1.25
The Occult Life of Jesus (including the Hull-Covert Debate). Price.....$ 2.00

Total price to the trade.....$10.75
Total price to our subscribers..$ 2.35
The Progressive Thinker one year and the seven premium books..$ 3.35

These seven books, substantially and elegantly bound, and printed in the neatest style of the printer's art will be furnished to our subscribers alone for $2.35. But bear in mind that in order to secure these SEVEN valuable premium books for $2.35, the order must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker. The paper one year, $1.00; the seven books, $2.35. Total, $3.35.

The aggregate price of these seven books to the trade is $10.75. In order to assist in forming a Spiritual and Occult Library in every Spiritualist's home, these seven valuable books are furnished to our subscribers for $2.35, which is less by far than their actual cost. The authors make no charge for the vast amount of labor bestowed on these works, and which extended over many years. The publisher receives not a single cent for the great expense he was to, hundreds of dollars being paid out in putting them in type, and electrotyping the pages, and making them ready for the printer. That is why you are getting these intensely interesting books for almost nothing. We are only carrying out the Divine Plan, inaugurated only by The Progressive Thinker. There are thousands of Spiritualists who take no Spiritualist paper, and this inducement is offered, in order that they may commence forming at once a Spiritual and Occult Library, and thus keep in line with the advancing procession. The postage on the above books and expense of mailing is about 85 cents, hence you are almost receiving them as an absolute gift.

By taking 85 cents from $2.35, you will find that all we have left us for those seven books is only $1.50.

Postmasters.

We have been swindled out of a large amount of money by postmasters, who knowing a person desires The Progressive Thinker, sends his money, deducting a large commission. The Progressive Thinker is one dollar per year. The great rise in print paper renders it utterly impossible for us to give any commission to news agents or postmasters. Any person with ordinary common sense can see that it is impossible for us at present to furnish the paper at 75 cents per year. Our patrons are requested to always deal directly with this office. Any subscription received from whatever source will only be entered on our list for the amount sent. Please take notice of this fact.

Dr. Peebles' Most Important Books.

Reduced Prices.

Three Journeys Around the World

A large handsomely bound octavo volume, 500 pages, finely illustrated, describing the Pacific Islands, New Zealand and Australia, India and her magic, Egypt and her pyramids, Persia, Ceylon, Palestine, etc., with the religious manners, customs, laws and habits of all foreign countries. Price, $1.50.

Immortality.

And the employments of spirits good and evil in the spirit-world. What a hundred spirits say about their dwelling-places, their locomotion, their social relations, infants, idiots, suicides, etc. Price reduced from $1.50 to $1. Postage 12 cents. Paper, 50 cents.

Seers of the Ages.

This large volume of 400 pages (9th edition), treats exhaustively of the seers, sages, prophets and inspired men of the past, with records of their visions, trances and intercourse with the spirit world. This is considered a standard work, treating of God, heaven, hell, faith, repentance, prayer, baptism, judgment, demoniac spirits, etc. Price reduced from $2 to $1.25. Postage 15 c.

Spiritual Harp.

A book of 300 pages, containing songs, hymns and anthems for Spiritualist societies and circles. The words are afire with progress. It contains the choicest songs and music by James G. Clark and other reformers. Reduced from $2 to $1.25.

India and Her Magic.

A lecture delivered by Dr. Peebles before the medical students of the College of Science in San Francisco, January, 1895. Astounding wonders that he witnessed during his journeys around the world. Price 10 cents.

Who Are These Spiritualists and What Is Spiritualism?

This pamphlet of over 40 pages proves that the greatest and brainest men in the world to-day, such as Sir Wm. Crookes and hundreds of others are Spiritualists. Price 15 cents.

Did Jesus Christ Exist?

A pamphlet of 65 pages. Did Jesus Christ exist? What the spirits say about it. What the Jews say about it. What Thomas Paine said about it. What Renan said about it. What Franklin said about it. What Emerson said about it. What Rabbi Wise, A. J. Davis, W. E. Coleman and others say about it. Price 15 cents.

Dr. Peebles' Three Jubilee Lectures.

A most elegantly bound pamphlet of 122 pages, giving Dr. Peebles' lectures delivered in Hydesville, March 31, 1898, in Rochester, and later in London at the International Congress of Spiritualists. These lectures, illustrated, are racy, meaty and scholarly. Price 35 cents.

The Christ Question Settled.

A symposium by Hudson Tuttle, W. E. Coleman, Rabbi Wise, Col. Ingersoll, J. S. Loveland, B. B. Hill, J. R. Buchanan and Dr. Peebles. This is a handsome volume of nearly 400 pages, and treats of Jesus, Mahomet and the gnostics. What the Talmud says about Jesus. Antiquity unveiled. Child marriage in India. Col. Ingersoll's agnosticism. What the spirits through W. J. Colville, J. J. Morse, Mrs. Longley, Mrs. Everitt, Mrs. Hagan-Jackson and other mediums say about Jesus, etc. Price $1.25.

A Critical and Crushing Review.

By Dr. Peebles of the Rev. Dr. Kipp's five lectures against Spiritualism. This crisp and critical reply of the Doctor, while repudiating spiritism, and all frauds connected with the subject, sustains Spiritualism, considering it the complement of primitive Christianity. Price 25 cents.

Hell Revised, Modernized.

And made more comfortable. A scathing review of the Rev. Dr. Kipp's sermon delivered in the Presbyterian church, upon "What Is Hell?" By Dr. J. M. Peebles. A pamphlet of 25 pages. Price 10 cents.

The Soul—Did It Pre-exist?

Did it begin to exist with the body? Is it evolved from the body? Did it ascend up through all the lower orders of creation, or is it a potentialized portion of God? Has it been re-incarnated, or re-embodied? Price 15 cents.

Pro and Con of Spiritualism.

This pamphlet is a re-print of the essays in "The Arena" on Spiritualism in which Rev. H. A. Hart endeavored to prove Spiritualism dangerous and allied to witchcraft. The reply printed in "The Arena" written by Dr. Peebles excited extensive comment, and is absolutely crushing. Price reduced to 5 cents.

Fiftieth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism.

An elegant pamphlet containing an account of the exercises at Rochester and Hydesville, N. Y., at the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Modern Spiritualism. It contains the addresses of some of the most noted speakers present. It contains the picture of the Hydesville cottage, wreath, etc., Price 15 cents.

DR. PEEBLES' Pamphlets and Books

FOR SALE BY

The Progressive Thinker.

BOOKS by Carlyle Petersilea.

Given by automatic writing through the author's mediumship.

The Discovered Country—$1.

A narrative of the personal experiences in spirit-life of the author's father, who had been a natural philosopher and a materialist.

Mary-Anne Carew—Cloth, $1.

Experiences of the author's mother in spirit-life.

Philip Carlisle—Cloth, $1.

A deep philosophical romance by the hand of guides, the subject of the title being a scientific young philosopher, who is a medium; his chief opponents being a clergyman and a materialist.

Oceanides—Paper Cover, 50 cts.

A scientific novel based on the philosophy of life, as seen from the spirit side. For sale at office of The Progressive Thinker.

The Influence of the Zodiac UPON HUMAN LIFE.

BY ELEANOR KIRK.

This is the only book which states the simple principles of the Zodiac in simple terms, making the entire matter clear to the average understanding.

This volume indicates the location, characteristics and influence of each sign of the Zodiac, giving the days which each sign governs, and the gems and astral colors associated with each.

The diseases of the body, how to cure them, and the fruits of character incidental to the different domains.

The methods of growth for each human being.

The domains from which companions, husbands and wives be selected.

The characteristics of children born in different domains, and the conditions to be observed in their care and education.

The personal ability and talent of the individual with reference to domestic, social and business success.

This work is the result of profound research, and in its preparation the author has been largely assisted by J. C. Street, A. B. H.

Bound in Special Cloth. - - Price, $1.

For Sale at This Office.

BRIEF NOTES

From the Pen of Busy Moses Hull.

It is the same old story. I have had too much to do; could not find time to write. Even now I probably would not write were it not that the following is going the rounds of the press; in fact it has been sent out as an associated press dispatch. It has come to me in the last twelve hours in something less than a dozen papers. Here it is:

"Harrison D. Barrett, of Boston, president of the National Spiritualists' association, lectured yesterday afternoon at the Spiritualist camp at Chesterfield. He has been president of the National Association for nine years, and for the past four the editor of the association's paper, the Banner of Light. Moses Hull said yesterday that forty-nine out of fifty mediums connected with Spirfitualism are frauds, but President Barrett went even further and said that ninety-nine out of every hundred are frauds."

This dispatch goes on to give much more of similar stuff to the above. Now I am free to admit that there are frauds playing mediumship. Perhaps one great reason of it is that there is not just now room for any more liars in the editorial and reportorial profession. The number of fauds who have found their way among mediums compared with those connected with daily and weekly journals is indeed infinitesimal.

Somehow or other, by some unaccountable mistake the writer of the above got two lonesome truths mixed into his article. One is, that Brother Barrett had delivered a discourse at Chesterfield, Ind. The other is that I had delivered a lecture at the same place. That either of us made any statements whatever as to the proportion of frauds acting as mediums is absolutely false.

I did not hear Mr. Barrett, but I have talked with more than a dozen persons who did hear him, including the president, secretary and treasurer of the association; they unite with all the others in saying that Mr. Barrett said nothing at all about frauds. He urged a higher Spiritualism and purer lives, that we might have a higher and purer mediumship. His address was said to have been eloquent, rhetorical and logical. It contained no denunciation of frauds. This is not because Brother Barrett is unwilling to tell the truth about frauds, but because it did not happen to come up in his discourse. It is, of course, the duty of every speaker to lift up his voice against the charlatans who are trying to run Spiritualism. In doing this duty Mr. Barrett is never deficient.

As for me, my subject was, "Joan of Arc, the Mediumistic Heroine of Orleans." I talked an hour and forty-five minutes. Even then I had to greatly abridge my discourse or leave it unfinished; I had no time to say a word against fraudulent mediums. The fact is, the average newspapers are like the Yankee peddler's razors—"they are made to sell." With many newspaper owners the question is not what is truth? but what will sell the newspapers?

The same Associated Press dispatch informs its readers that Mr. Barrett has been president of the National Spiritualists for nine years; that is three years before it existed. It also imparts the information that he is now editor of the Association's paper, the Banner of Light. Won't the Association be startled to learn that it owns a paper? And will not the grand old Banner be surprised to learn that it has become an organ for any association? The average newsmonger not only gathers all the news, but when there is a paucity of news he actually manufactures the article to order. I will conclude on this this subject by individually offering a chromo to anyone who will find a fraud in Spiritualism that will beat the editorial or reportorial fraud who manufactured the items of news in the above clipping.

The first session of the Spiritualists' Training School at Lily Dale has met and done its work, and is numbered with things that are past. The school was not, in point of numbers, and in some other respects, all we could have wished; yet it was a comparative success, in so much that we have decided to run it on nearly the same lines at least one more year. While the school has paid very small wages to its teachers, each teacher has felt repaid in something more valuable than dollars and cents. Mrs. Hull and I fell so in love with Lily Dale—its location, surroundings and inhabitants that we went up on "Mount Pisgah," nearly the centre of the grounds, and the highest point we could find and purchased one of the neatest cottages on the grounds. Our son heard of it in Cleveland, and came on and dressed it up in two nice coats of white paint. Wherever we may chance to be, we expect after next May to call Lily Dale our home. We say this because it is now our intention as soon as camps are over next year to take a trip to England. We can store our household goods in our cottage and feel that we have a place to which to return when hard labor has worn us out.

Of course I took part in the opening of the Cassadaga camp. It never before opened with so many people on the grounds as this year; nor was there ever more interest manifested in what was going on at the rostrum.

At the present time I am at the camp-meeting of the Indiana State Spiritualist Association, at Chesterfield. They never before had half so many people on the grounds at the opening of their services as this year. The Association has made many improvements in the shape of new buildings, alterations in old ones, etc. The auditorium has been greatly improved and somewhat enlarged.

This year the Indiana Association treats speakers and mediums alike in one respect at least; that is, they invite those they think they need; if others come they come on their own hook, and the association does nothing for them. They think that if all associations would do that, no one camp would ever be overrun with mediums while others would be almost without them. The association secures no medium that it cannot endorse, and that it thinks the people do not need.

None now deny that there are frauds in our ranks playing medium and speaker; those known to be such are not among those invited at Chesterfield. By this means they hope to decrease the number of unworthy persons, who attend camp for what they can make out of it.

From here I go to assist Willard J. Hull and Mattie E. Hull in opening and conducting the camp at Ashley, O. It opens next Saturday and closes August 19. I am booked for a speech nearly or quite every day during that time. After that I have two Sundays and the interim between them without appointments; that is August 26 and September 2.

After September 2 I start for Nanaimo, B. C., for the purpose of holding a public discussion with a Methodist clergyman by the name of Baer. Nanaimo is, as near as I can figure, about three hundred miles north-west of Seattle, Wash. I had no idea of the length of the journey when I agreed to go. I shall, perhaps go via Chicago and St. Paul, and thence via Canadian Pacific railroad, and return by the Northern Pacific. I shall pay more than the regular rate of railroad fare, for the express purpose of stopping off at such places as may want to hear one or more of my lectures.

Those who wish my services on the way going or coming should let me know immediately so that I can arrange a string of appointments. If the discussion comes off, it is to begin about September 14, and there will be four nights of it in all. It now seems exceedingly doubtful whether there is to be any discussion. The man, it appears, has been misrepresenting and abusing Spiritualism and Spiritualists for something more than a year; though he has challenged Spiritualists to bring on someone to debate with him, now that they have their man he is disposed to throw in so many impossible conditions that perhaps the debating will all be on one side.

I write my friends to accept none of his unfair conditions; we will either have a fair and honorable debate or none at all. We had much better put the time in in lectures than to give him half of our time unless we can have something to say as to conditions. Our friends have gone to a great expense, and our work must be well managed in that part of British Columbia.

On this matter I will post the readers of The Progressive Thinker from time to time.

Mr. Figuers, a test medium, from Cleveland, Ohio, is to officiate in the First Spiritual Church in Buffalo in September. I resume my work in October; the last half of the month F. Corden White will give messages from the spirit world. He remains, I believe, through November.

MOSES HULL.

UNIVERSAL UNITY.

The Religion of Humanity.

Were I in position to do so, I would devote my time and energy toward unionizing mankind in the simple principles of love, justice and charity, freed from superstition and useless and unnatural hopes.

I would use my influence toward effacing from the world forever Christianity, Buddhism, Mormonism and all other isms which have a tendency to develop prejudice and fanaticism, they engender hate and heartlessness, and entail woe and misery. In many cases when their fiendish claws are extended, they sever cords of love and affection, they destroy peace and kill happiness, because they are founded on falsehood and ignorance.

In their place I would establish the religion of Humanity pure and simple, unfettered by "faith" or "belief" except such as would be the natural outcome from a religion based on natural laws and common experience.

The religion of Humanity would instill in the minds of mankind an enduring faith in natural laws, in right thinking and right doing, based upon those things which bring the greatest amount of peace and happiness to man.

It is the fragments of this humanitarianism that has kept other religions in existence so long as they have been; take from them these universal principles and none of them would have anything left worth considering; take from all everything except these universal principles and they would grow as they have never grown before.

The Church of Humanity would invite, and welcome into its fold all mankind regardless of what they believed or disbelieved, it would worship God, whatever God may be, by love and tenderness one toward another; it would hold in loving remembrance all the great teachers by promulgating their lofty and humane sentiments.

Hope for happiness beyond the grave would be based entirely upon man's actions on earth. Efforts would be made to bring into each individual life more knowledge of natural laws, thus enabling man to be of more use to others as well as to himself; this would also assist in preventing injurious results which are now caused because of the lack of this knowledge.

The religion of Humanity would urge a higher and nobler development in art, literature and scientific knowledge based upon humanitarianism; it would use all knowledge attained, for good.

All through the ages it has been a noticeable fact that in the search for truth—rational truth—there have been differences of opinion, but the only blood that has been shed was shed by the followers of fanaticism and superstition in fighting against the possible discovery of truth which might interfere with their illusions—ignorant dupes were used as tools by those who feared loss of temporal power.

The religion of Humanity would not favor a war of conquest, but would urge a peaceful arbitration of all disputes. It would advocate absolute personal liberty of each individual so long as the rights of others were respected and held sacred; it would defend the oppressed and assist the suffering; it would go out of the God-and-Savior-making business and devote its entire time and attention to the needs of humanity. J. C. BELL.

Glenville, Ohio.

OUR DARLINGS.

Oh, I feel their angel presence,
And I hear their voices too,
Like the purest spirit essence
From the land beyond the blue;
And I stand and watch the doggy
And the dollies and the drum,
And my eyes grow wet and foggy
As those blessed angels come.

As I gaze upon the dishes
And the little stove and things,
I can hear them lisp their wishes,
And their lisping pleasure brings;
For I know their darling faces
Are about us, though unseen,
And their playthings in their places
Brush away the clouds between.

Sweetest treasures, sweetest flowers
Shall adorn your playthings her,
And will shorten weary hours
When your faces shall appear;
Weary, waiting in our sadness
Just to feel again your hands
We will try to sense your gladness
Where your cabinet here stands.

You may have a home up yonder
That is fairer far than this,
Where your little feet oft wander,
But you'll come for mother's kiss.
Yes, our darlings, come quite often
To the home you held so dear,
And your mother's anguish soften
With your presence and good cheer.

DR. T. WILKINS.

"Arcana of Spiritualism: A Manual of Spiritual Science and Philosophy." By Hudson Tuttle. A spiritual text-book of rich and inspired thought. An excellent work. Finely bound in scarlet and gold. Price $1.50. For sale at this office.

"The World Beautiful." By Lilian Whiting. Most excellent in their high and elevating spirituality of thought. Series 1, 2, and 3, each complete in itself. Price, cloth, $1 per volume. For sale at this office.

THEOLOGY.

A Well Spiced Dish of Salmagundi.

Men are but children of a larger growth, and Professor Loveland reminds one of the street Arab who joined Sunday school. The first day he admired a little boy who answered pat to every question. On the following Sunday he noticed the absence of this good boy. The clergyman looked in that day, and attracted to the ragamuffin, asked, "Who made you?"

"I don't know."

Rolling his eyes in "a fine frenzy," the D. D. said, "I am astonished that such a bright looking youth does not know that God made him."

"Say, mister, you think I am some one else; the boy God made is not here to-day."

With admiration of much and abhorrence of much more personified in the various gods evolved as man worked his way back to a fearless consideration of spiritual problems, I make way for the dispensation under which people would look within to find the divine law written on their minds and hearts, and should cease to teach every man his brother theology. Either logic or theology must give way, and we need only guess once which it shall be. Perhaps it will not be long until some Fennimore Cooper shall write a story of "The Last of the Theologians."

I will not debate whether the invention of the personal localized god was a necessity. Crutches are a necessity to the broken-legged, but we rejoice when he is able to dispense with them. Like every invention it has been used to wise and unwise purpose. The potency for evil lies in the ease with which we can endow this factitious character with inhuman traits, and compel his sanction of our desire to enslave our fellow man and gratify our lust for revenge when he asserts a right to independent thought or action.

With fluctuations the general trend of all effort is toward the light, and I admit a steady improvement in the gods, but the most significant phase of the matter is that such improvement only came as they were endowed with attributes simply human and robbed of the melodramatic and unnatural. And as man advanced the gods receded until of an immense galaxy there remained but one. Now we come to the "jumping-off place" and must cease progressing, or dispense with that one. He belongs to the subjective, or world of shadows, and can not exist in the noonday light. We are at last driven by logic and revelation both to acknowledge him the personification of an abstraction.

Religions have displayed side by side with the most lovely that which is most repulsive. In every creed and ritual we find Beauty and the Beast, the vulture and the dove, the hyena and the lamb. In close association with the most adorable we find the utterly monstrous, and seeing that after all the best in human nature comes uppermost it is hard to persuade people that advancement is not due as much to the one as the other. The sophist impressively points to the tares among the wheat and "darkening counsel with words" convinces the simple that wheat will not grow unless supported by tares and that bread lacking a mixture of ground tares is unwholesome.

You can point on every side to religious people of every sect who exemplify the most lovely characters and argue that it springs from the God concept they publicly worship. This proves too much, as we can select non-worshipers and even atheists who compare favorably. I was raised in a Calvinistic community. In my youth they had not yet learned to equivocate, and it was a certain fact that my father having turned after Campbell and his children not being "sprinkled" in case of dying must go with other heathen direct to the pit. But if you knew those kind people you need not be told that they believed nothing of the sort and the Calvinistic god was never enthroned in their hearts. Their theology was of their life a thing apart, and the dear old women when I would go on an errand in a humane and natural protest against the "decrees of God" would put more jam on my cake than on that given to the children of the elect. The "god within" fought against the creedal god without; the god of love against the god of hate and "there is no discharge in that war."

But it would be great error to conclude that it makes little difference what religion or dogma you accept, since beautiful flowers grow in every bog and the divinity inherent in human nature is too strong to be restrained by any invention.

"Most subject is the fattest soil to weed," and after paying every honest compliment to those good people they were saved from much by their dullness—by being so well intrenched behind the flesh. It means another thing for you a sensitive to take the viper into your bosom. You cannot, because of that sensitiveness, make of your religion a thing apart. The serpent's egg that remained dormant in the colder atmosphere and which the sophist declared the egg of a bird of paradise, will hatch in the warmer brain. I recall that when quite young I once cornered one of these amiable people "not a whit behind the chiefest apostle." He confessed that according to the one and only "word of God" most of his friends, some of his own children, and probably his wife, would suffer through all eternity such pain as no mortal could conceive. Yet in five minutes after he burst into a joyful song as free from anxiety as that of a bob o' link. Can you do this? If so you are not spiritual, no matter how you boast of your virtues.

It is a great temptation for Spiritualists, seeing that it is so easy to invent a god, to fall back into the old habit. If this were only from a desire of one to lean upon the strong in his distress, I would be silent, but often it arises from another cause. We aspire to control the life of our brother. We are ambitious to run the universe and cannot do it without dazzling the eyes of the simple. To them it seems far more impressive to write "Infinite Intelligence" or "Mother Nature" says so, than to state the simple fact that Bill Smith says so, but it means the same thing, for this new god personified nature being an artificial creature pompously repeats such words as her creator and worshiper Bill Smith puts in her mouth.

But the worst of it is that personified nature is generally represented as a cold and heartless schemer who in pursuit of an assumed purpose modified by the imagination of Smith or Jones, juggernaut-like swerves not an inch from her course though she break the heart of the last of her own children, and has no bowels of compassion though all the worlds be wet with tears and red with blood. Her maker and chief priest endows her with an intellect but without emotion, with infinite craft and strength but without sympathy and tenderness, and any personification of this sort must be a demon. It is another thing viewing nature in the impersonal or scientific sense to discover coarseness and violence, for there we find beings who are not yet finely organized and so unresponsive to gentler methods. The wind is tempered to the shorn lamb. We assert our superiority and by right of our advancement demand and receive other treatment. But like an old man of the sea on our back, these theological impersonations hold us down to an unnatural and unhappy level, awing us into a recognition of arbitrary rules and artificial moral laws. They are used to compel the elephant to race with the deer, to harness the rhinoceros and the horse in a team, to obscure the fact that the operations of nature vary without guilt on every plane, and that the requirements of a harmonious life are modified by the environment and the peculiar traits of every individualized being; that the true moral law is no inflexible code engraved on tablets of stone, but a generous one written on sensitive human brains, with variations for constitution and environment.

With apologies to all the muses let me papaphrase Kipling:

Make ye no truce with Adam Zad
The Spiritualist that talks like a theologian.

J. T. MACDONALD.

Vancouver, B. C.

Spiritualism and the Lutherans.

To the Editor of the Sentinel:—I noticed in several recent issues of your fair, impartial and instructive paper that the Lutheran synod very recently held a meeting in your city, and that one Mr. Pieper, at that gathering, took upon himself the task to confront Spiritism, while from his compilation of authors on that subject, he agrees in a measure with the advanced scientists and scholars that their phenomena cannot be explained in any other logical way than by occult science. He then goes further and from his Biblical deductions attributes it to witchcraft and claims it all to be the work of demons. It is a sad thing, indeed, that we find in this advanced stage of civilization and enlightenment, individuals who attribute to demons more power than they allow the Almighty Supreme Ruler of the universe in Spiritualistic philosophy. It appears to me such a weak and superficial argument that any thinking man could only look upon it with derision and scorn. I am, I must confess, amazed to find it budding forth in an institution that has given the world so many progressive thoughts in the past, and will, I doubt not, continue to do so in the future, as the great Lutheran Church, and I no doubt would continue to be puzzled and surprised at the conclusion drawn by one of its members, were it not for the knowledge I possess regarding spirit return; but knowing as I do, that spirits that pass out in ignorance and vice do not make rapid progression and are in an earth-bound condition (some for generations), I naturally conclude that one of those spirits (perhaps one who assisted at burning some poor mortal at the stake in ages gone, for witchcraft) is now exercising such influences over my Brother Pieper that has led him to his erroneous deductions.

I have wished while writing this communication that I possessed occult science and its phenomena sufficiently strong to materialize Martin Luther in their midst, so that he might speak to them from his intellectual heights and advanced educational attainments and describe to them the ever grand and glorious precepts of continued progression beyond the grave; in the land where each and all must take their place from actual merit; but could I only accomplish this feat, I feel certain there would be many doubting Thomases that would still insist it was the work of the devil, and even Martin Luther thus materialized was his latest production.

I am very corry that superstition has so far permeated the human race and will be exceedingly happy when the time arrives (as it must arrive) when dogmas and superstition will be things of the past; when reason asserts its throne and mankind does its own individual thinking. The writer of this article must confess that not very long ago, he was bigoted as the blackest and sought by every honest means to successfully confute their philosophy, even thinking it might be the work of demons, before he let his reason get the better of his superstition; and might even now believe this nonsense had he not derived so many benefits from the sainted instructors from the higher realms and received so many evidences of their noble characters, and he now asks their forgiveness and makes this public apology before the reading world, in the hope that others may investigate and become familiar with this beautiful philosophy.

Now, Mr. Editor, I would suggest that my Brother Pieper take a peep out from under his canopy of superstition into the clear sky of honest, impartial investigation, so that he may become conscious of continued existence, receiving absolute knowledge of mankind's environments beyond the grave. Let him attract to himself as teachers some of the eminent scholars and professors that have passed beyond earthly conditions, who would be only too anxious to assist him to lead a life of charity and brotherly love. Let him look higher into the mysterious developments of human progression and assist the sainted eminent scientists in giving to the world a fuller knowledge of Spiritualism. It is an old adage and a true one "that a stream can never rise higher than its source," and it is plainly evident that the fount from which my Brother Pieper derives his knowledge is not located upon an eminence; indeed, far, far below the source from which Martin Luther's spirit derived its inspiration. Now therefore let him seek by his own enlightenment again to raise it out of the marshes, bogs and quagmires of superstition and ignorance to a higher standard, so that it may flow serenely on through fertile fields of unbiased investigation, on through lands productive of higher civilization and enlightenment, on and on through beautiful cultivated fields, ever golden with the ripened fruitage of absolute knowledge, in the border land of eternity, that the stream may be worthy of its source. Let him come out from under the shadow of ignorance, superstition and bigotry, into the sun-kissed sky of universal intellectual religious liberty and breathe the pure atmosphere so productive of inspirational growth and development, so that in coming years not only himself but the people who look to him to-day for their guidance may be properly led to the goal of continued existence, fully educated in Spiritualistic philosophy, and they and future generations will have every reason to praise and bless him for having grown out of the narrow, contracted channel of creedal prejudices and entered the broad fields of progressive scholarly manhood all embodied in the simple precept, "the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man," all guided by the Golden Rule. HIGHER LIGHT.

Fond du Lac, Wis.

"Human Culture and Cure, Marriage, Sexual Development, and Social Upbuilding." By E. D. Babbitt, M. D., LL.D. A most excellent and very valuable work, by the Dean of the College of Fine Forces, and author of other important volumes on Health, Social Science, Religion, etc. Price, cloth, 75 cents. For sale at this office.

OUR PERSONAL IDENTITY

Views of a Prominent Physician.

To the Editor:—In the Medical Brief for July I find an article with the above heading which is at once so able, scientific, philosophical and spiritual that I am strongly impressed that your readers would enjoy and be instructed by it. The author, J. L. Wolfe, M. D., of Cedar Falls, Iowa, is a prominent physician and medical writer, and the fact of such a paper appearing in the most popular medical journal in the world, is a significant fact, indicating the progress of Spiritualistic thought among scientists. Fraternally,

Chicago, Ill. T. A. BLAND, M. D.

To my mind the inception and progressive development of worlds and organisms is absolutely upon the same general plan. It is the blending of atoms of the different polarities, thus forming a nucleus with power to attract single atoms, and grow and increase. In the beginning the central attraction is always greater than the repulsion, and will continue until these forces are equal, when increase will necessarily stop. In the inception of organisms, vegetable or animal, this plan is apparent. A germinal atom of the male positive blends with one of the female negative; thus they form a nucleus, with power to attract single atoms from their concomitants or their environments, and grow and continue to grow until attraction and repulsion are equal, when the maturity for the organism is attained, of whatever kind it may be.

Every adult person requires, on an average, about six hundred and fifty pounds of semi-solid, and the same amount of fluid matter, and about seven hundred pounds of oxygen annually, to maintain the organism in a normal state, while the annual waste of semi-solid and fluid matter is only about six hundred and fifty pounds; but all of the two thousand pounds consumed by the individual is thrown in a chemically changed state by being differently compounded—the elements that form never lose their peculiar characteristics, their properties only change, as above stated.

It will be noticed that the thirteen hundred and fifty of the two thousand pounds annually consumed of semi-solid fluids and gaseous matter, is in an extremely attenuated form. That which is applied to mental operations is in an etherealized state, and may be called thought matter, by way of distinction. That thoughts are composed of the material consumed, is a fact made manifest in persons who live in localities where the elements that are known to be necessary to true intellection are wanting, as in some of the valleys of the Alps where cretinism prevails. Scientists have proven that iodine and phosphorus are wanting in these localities. The brain of the idiot contains only one and a half per cent of phosphorus, while that of some persons contain two and a half, and in decidedly eccentric persons, it is often three per cent.

Ordinary adult persons do not gain in weight, notwithstanding they consume two thousand pounds of matter annually; it is thrown off after having supplied the wants of the organism, whose chemistry has changed six hundred and fifty of the thirteen hundred pounds of visible into invisible matter. That this fine matter is constantly thrown off, and that it retains its distinct personality, is well demonstrated by the acute olfaction of the dog, enabling him to follow his master hours after he has left a certain place for another.

Now, as there are annually taken into the adult organism two thousand pounds of matter, which amount is necessary to maintain it in normal working order, of course the same amount is thrown off in various forms, as stated. Here the question that presents itself to the inquiring mind is this: Has this vast amount of matter that has passed through each of us been part of our identity? If we answer this question affirmatively, then at sixty we would have our identity impressed upon sixty tons of matter, because that amount has passed through our organisms in the time mentioned; but if this amount is only necessary to represent our identity in our present environments, then the withdrawal of it would not destroy our identity, but would simply put us in different environments, which would require different means to sustain our identity. It is a well-known fact that anesthetics and hypnotism will, for the time being, annihilate all the developed phenomena of the nerves of sensation and of voluntary motion; only the organic nervous system remains uninfluenced and prevents the organism from reverting to its cosmic origin. Yet while in the hypnotic state, when all the ordinary senses are in absolute abeyance, there is a train of mental manifestations often appearing which seems to be latent in individuals, and only becomes manifest in extraordinary states of the organisms; but they exist and must be intended for use somewhere and at some time.

I have seen persons in the hypnotic state who could not hear a loud report close to the ears, but would readily answer mental questions proposed by any one present, and always give a correct answer. Others who could not see with their eyes in the usual way, but could read a book or write correctly in absolute darkness, with their eyes bandaged in addition, neither could they feel. I once had a dentist extract a decayed and aching tooth for a person while hypnotized; the operation was entirely painless. These are the most puzzling phenomena that confront the student of living organism. Is there a finer organism in this that will survive the wreck of this through which we now manifest our identity? This is, at least, a philosophic and scientific possibility, if not yet a proved certainty. I have endeavored in this to demonstrate that this refining process of matter is constantly going on through the various organisms, and in whatever state we may find it, it is simply cosmic matter progressed, refined, and more etherealized.

THE DIVINE PLAN has been carried out successfully by The Progressive Thinker, one continual current of the profits returning to our subscribers. Volume 3 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World only costs our subscribers 25 cents—far less than its actual cost to us. Its regular price to the trade is $1.50. This work should be in every family in the United States. It is elegantly and substantially bound, neatly printed and is an ornament to any library One million copies of this work should be distributed throughout the country. The Progressive Thinker one year and this book will be sent for $1.25.

"The Spiritualism of Nature." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. Price 15 cents. For sale at this office.

"Death Defeated; or the Psychic Secret of How to Keep Young." By J. M. Peebles, M. D., M. A., Ph. D. Price $1. For sale at this office.

Lake Brady, O.

Will C. Hodge, of Chicago, has been the platform speaker here for several days. One of his best discourses was given in answer to questions propounded by the audience. In answer to the question, "Will we recognize our friends in the spirit world?" he said: "Yes, surely. Heaven would not be heaven to me without my dear mother. I would rather see her face than that of the Gods. They can take care of themselves but I want my own."

Question.—Do ancient spirits come back to earth?

Not always when mediums see them. The guides frequently make a picture of the spirit which may be now in a higher sphere.

Are mediums ever controlled by the higher spirits?

Granted that Jesus Christ ever had an earthly existence, no matter what mediums may claim, I do not believe he has ever controlled one of them; for with his exalted life, he is now too far away.

Do spirits ever lie?

Yes, spirits are like mortals; they do not always tell the truth.

How can we produce harmony at Lake Brady?

By harmonizing yourselves. However, there is never complete harmony, except in a graveyard.

What is the judgment day?

Every day, and each is his own judge, for we cannot judge another unless we are sinless. I want everyone who has committed no sin, to hold up the hand. (No hands!)

Is there punishment after death?

Yes, reformatory. No man would punish unnecessarily, and no decent God would, either.

Mr. E. W. Sprague, who is employed here for the season, has made a number of eloquent appeals from the platform in behalf of Lake Brady, that has resulted in adding considerable to the treasury for the running expenses and also for the purchase of the grounds to be used wholly as a spiritual encampment. Several hundred dollars are pledged and the management feel greatly encouraged.

To-day between thirty-five and forty young people took advantage of the Lyceum's free bathing school. Mr. Ebertshauser, of Sandusky, a scientific, experienced swimmer, has charge of the bath-house and is an apt teacher. Mrs. and Miss McCaslin give personal instructions and other good swimmers are always ready to assist. Yesterday the whole school, pupils and teachers, were photographed in various graceful attitudes in the limpid waters.

The best entertainment of the season was one just witnessed under the management of Chairman D. A. Herrick and Mrs. Genevera Haines, manager of the Haines orchestra. The readings of James McFadden and the violin solo by Prof. Frederick Fabricand were both repeatedly encored.

Pretty things are in process of construction for the Woman's Fair which takes place on Thursday and promises an elaborate entertainment with a dance in the evening.

The various phenomenal mediums on the grounds report good business and everybody is happy.

Mrs. Virginie Barrett, psychometric reader and inspirational painter, is now on the grounds.

MRS. M. M'CASLIN.

OUR PREMIUM BOOKS.

The Views of a Denver Lady.

To the Editor:—The Progressive Thinker and three volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World arrived some time ago, and they are more than satisfactory in every way. I expected something cheap, but was more than surprised when I received them. I have partly read Vol. 3, and I am more than pleased with it. It contains some grand and noble thoughts. The three volumes should be in the home of every progressive mind. MRS. MATTIE SMITH.

Denver, Colo.

The above is only one of hundreds of letters being constantly received. We wish we could impress upon the mind of every Spiritualist the necessity of having these three books in the family circle. They contain more information in regard to Death probably than all the libraries of the world combined, inasmuch as a great deal of the information imparted has been obtained from sources independent of them. The aggregate price of these three books to the trade is $4.50. They are furnished to our subscribers for $1.10, far below cost. Remember, please, that your order for any of the premium books must be accompanied with a year's subscription for The Progressive Thinker.

The Spiritualist Training School.

The fourth session of the Spiritualist Training School, which was conducted on the grounds at Lily Dale, N. Y., terminated on the 13th ult., after a successful term of eight weeks.

The election of officers took place at the annual business meeting as follows: President, Moses Hull; vice-president, Mrs. Sarah Comstock Ellis; secretary, Mattie E. Hull; treasurer, A. J. Weaver. The board of directors is as follows: E. W. Sprague was elected for two years; Mrs. Carrie E. S. Twing, for two years; Mrs. Elizabeth Aiken, one year.

It was decided that the school term open early in May, 1901, and hold a session of eight weeks. Particulars will be published later. For information address MATTIE E. HULL, Secretary S. T. S.

"Historical, Logical and Philosophical Objections to the Dogmas of Reincarnation and Re-Embodiment." By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A keen and masterly treatise. Paper, 25 cents. For sale at this office.

BLINDNESS

PREVENTED AND CURED.

THE BLIND SEE...  THE DEAF HEAR.

BY THE GREAT EYE RESTORER AND ONLY CATARRH CURE

ACTINA is a marvel of the nineteenth century, for by its use the Blind See, the Deaf Hear and Catarrh is impossible. Actina is an absolute certainty in the cure of Cataracts, Pterygiums, Granulated Lids, Glaucoma, Amaurosis, Myopia, Presbyopia, Common Sore Eyes or Weakened Vision from any cause. No animal except man wears spectacles. There need not be a spectacle used on the streets of the world and rarely to read with. Street glasses abandoned. Actina also cures Neuralgia, Headache, Colds, Sore Throat, Brochitis and Weak Lungs. Actina is not a snuff or lotion, but a Perfect Electric Pocket Battery, usable at all times and in all places by young or old. The one instrument will cure a whole family of any of the above forms of disease.

PROF. WILSON'S MAGNETO-CONSERVATIVE .....APPLIANCES.....

Cure Paralysis, Rheumatism and all Chronic Forms of Disease. These appliances are as puzzling to the physicians as is the wonder working Actina.

A Valuable Book Free on application. Contains treatise on the human system, its diseases and cure and hundreds of references and testimonials.

AGENTS WANTED. WRITE FOR TERMS.

New York and London Electric Ass'n,

939 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

MOSES HULL'S BOOKS.

A List of His Noted Works.

For Sale at the Office of The Progressive Thinker.

Wayside Jottings.

Gathered from the Highways, By-ways and Hedges of Life. By MATTIE E. HULL. This is a marvelously neat book of selections from Mrs. Hull's best poems, sermons and essays, and contains a splendid Portrait of the author, also a portrait of Moses Hull. Price, neatly bound in English cloth, $1.

The Spiritual Alps and How We Ascend Them.

Or a few thoughts on how to reach that altitude where spirit is supreme and all things are subject to it. With portrait. By MOSES HULL. Just the book to teach you that you are a spiritual being, and to show you how to educate your spiritual faculties. Price, bound in cloth, 40 cents; in paper cover, 25 cents.

New Thought.

Volume I. Nicely bound in cloth, 570 large, beautifully printed pages. Portraits of several of the best speakers and mediums. The matter all original and presenting in an attractive form the highest phase of the Spiritual Philosophy. Price, only $1.50.

New Thought.

Volume II. 884 pages, beautifully printed and nicely bound. Original matter. Six portraits. Cloth bound, 75 cents.

Joan, the Medium.

Or, the Inspired Heroine of Orleans. Spiritualism as a Leader of Armies. By MOSES HULL. This is at once the most truthful history of Joan of Arc, and one of the most convincing arguments on Spiritualism ever written. No novel was ever more thrillingly interesting; no history more true. Price in cloth, 40 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

The Real Issue.

By MOSES HULL. A compound of the two pamphlets, "The Irrepressible Conflict," and "Your Answer or Your Life;" with important additions, making a book of 160 pages all for 25 cents. This book contains statistics, facts and documents, on the tendencies of the times, that every one should have.

All About Devils.

Or, an Inquiry as to whether Modern Spiritualism and other Great Reforms come from His Satanic Majesty and His Subordinates in the Kingdom of Darkness. 60 pages. By MOSES HULL. Price, 15 cents.

Jesus and the Mediums, or Christ and Mediumship.

Careful comparison of some of the Spiritualism and Mediumship of the Bible with that of to-day. By MOSES HULL. An invincible argument proving that Jesus was only a medium, subject to all the conditions of modern mediumship. It also shows that all the manifestations throughout the Old and New Testament were under the same conditions that mediums require to-day; and that the coming of Christ is the return of it[illegible]mship to the world. 48 pages. Price, 10 cents.

The Spiritual Birth, or Death and Its To-Morrow.

The Spiritual Idea of Death, Heaven and Hell. By MOSES HULL. This pamphlet besides giving the Spiritualistic interpretation of many things in the Bible—interpretations never before given, explains the heavens and hells believed in by Spiritualists. Price, 10 cents.

The Quarantine Raised.

Or the Twenty Years Battle Against a Worker Ended. Price 10 cents.

Spiritual Songster.

By MATTIE E. HULL. Thirty-eight of Mrs. Hull's sweetest songs, adapted to popular music, for the use of congregations, circles and families. Price, 10 cts., or $6 per hundred.

PSYCHOGRAPHY.

Marvelous Manifestations of Psychic Power Given Through the Mediumship of

FRED. P. EVANS.

"A book you ought to read. Absorbingly interesting, and should be in the hands of every thoughtful man and woman. No one can read its pages without being convinced of the existence of a future life. The book is of great value, not only to Spiritualists, but to those interested in the problem of man's future life, as well as to those interested in phenomenal research."—J. J. Owen.

This volume is superroyal octavo in size, beautifully bound in cloth and gold, and profusely illustrated. Price $2, postpaid. For sale at this office.

The Infidelity of Ecclesiasticism,

A Menace to American Civilization. By Prof. W. M. Lockwood. A trenchant and masterly treatise. Price 25 cents.

THE PROPHETS OF ISRAEL.

By Prof. C. F. Cornill. Consisting of popular sketches from Old Testament History. Price 25c. For sale at this office.

The Everlasting Gospel.

This volume consists of a series of lectures, messages and poems written and delivered in public through the mental organism of Mrs. Magdalena Kline, a trance, clairvoyant and inspirational medium. The book contains 488 large pages, and will be sent postpaid for $1.50. For sale at this office.

Healing, Causes and Effects.

By W. F. Phelon, M. D. Deals with the finer mental and spiritual forces as applied to healing. Price, 50c.

THE GOSPEL OF BUDDHA

According to Old Records.

By Dr. Paul Carus. A translation made from Japanese, under the auspices of the Rev. Shaku Soyer, delegate to the Parliament of Religions. Was published in Japan. Price, $1.00. For sale at this office.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH RATE! 250,000 People Killed Annually

500,000 Cases of TYPHOID, MALARIA FEVERS, and kindred diseases all caused by drinking Raw Water from Hydrants, Wells, Cisterns and Streams which are polluted by Sewerage, City Slops, Cesspools, Rotten Animal and Vegetable Matter, etc.

LOOK IN YOUR TEA-KETTLE—SEE WHAT YOU DRINK Mud, Lime, Filth, Poisons, Polliwogs, Microbes. Filters are dangerous, simply germ breeders—we'll prove it. Boiled Water is flat, insipid, full of dead germs, cooked corruption. Simply a graveyard. Send your address for valuable booklet FREE

PURE DISTILLED WATER AT YOUR HOME WITHOUT COST. NEW PROCESS—SANITARY—AUTOMATIC

PURITAN PURE WATER-STILL

Makes the foulest water pure.—A New Wonderful Invention. Enormous demand. Not a Filter. SIMPLY SET THE STILL ON YOUR COOK STOVE, fill with any kind of water and without cost it FURNISHES A BOUNTIFUL SUPPLY OF WATER, DISTILLED, ABSOLUTELY PURE, Free from Mud, Lime, Minerals, Sewerage, Poisons, Microbes. Clear as Crystal, Soft, Sparkling and Delicious to the Taste. IF PURITAN DISTILLED WATER IS PURE STEAM, CONDENSED, AERATED, REVITALIZED. Our Still makes it automatically—in one operation—leaves Impurities behind.

Ready for use when received. No Plumbing. Can't boil dry. Child can operate. Lasts a lifetime. Should be in every home, store, school, office; used by Families, Druggists, Doctors, Chemists, Surgeons and ALL REALSTONITES. Invaluable for Tourists, Camping and Boating Parties. Only safe Water for Families, Infants, Children, Invalids, Athletes—Endorsed by best Physicians and the Famous Ralston Health Club of America (11,000,000 members)—Used exclusively in the U. S. Navy. "Puritan" Distilled water is nature's greatest solvent, washes out the poisons in the blood and system. Prevents fevers, epidemics, infectious diseases; beautifies complexion, prevents old age. POSITIVELY CURES Dyspepsia, Stomach Affections, Rheumatism, Gout, Bowel Trouble, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Kidney Troubles, Skin Diseases, Female Ills, Malaria, Constipation, Piles, Dropsy, Diabetes, Asthma, Hay Fever, Neuralgia. DESCRIPTION: Our Still is handsomely and durably made, best materials, lined with pure tin. Price, Complete, $5.00. Sent anywhere promptly on receipt of Money Order, Draft or Cert. Check

The Progressive Thinker.

Published every Saturday at 40 Loomis Street

J. R. FRANCIS, Editor and Publisher.

Entered at Chicago Postoffice as second-class matter.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER will be furnished until further notice, at the following terms, invariably in advance:

One year	$1.00
Six months	50c
Thirteen weeks	25 cts
Single copy	5 cts

REMITTANCES.

Remit by Postoffice Money Order, Registered Letter, or draft on Chicago or New York. It costs from 10 to 15 cents to get checks cashed on local banks, so don't send them unless you wish that amount deducted from the amount sent. Direct all letters to J. R. Francis, No. 40 Loomis Street, Chicago, Ill.

CLUBS! IMPORTANT SUGGESTION!

As there are thousands who will at first venture only twenty-five cents for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks, we would suggest to those who receive a sample copy, to solicit several others to unite with them, and thus be able to remit from $1 to $10, or even more than the latter sum. A large number of little amounts will make a large sum total, and thus extend the field of our labor and usefulness. The same suggestion will apply in all cases of renewal of subscriptions—solicit others to aid in the good work. You will experience no difficulty whatever in inducing Spiritualists to subscribe for THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER, for not one of them can afford to be without the valuable information imparted therein each week, and at the price of only about two cents per week.

A Bountiful Harvest for 25 Cents.

Do you want a more bountiful harvest than we can give you for 25 cents? Just pause and think for a moment what an intellectual feast that small investment will furnish you. The subscription price of THE PROGRESSIVE THINKER thirteen weeks is only twenty-five cents! For that amount you obtain one hundred and four pages of solid, substantial, soul-elevating and mind-refreshing reading matter, equivalent to a medium-sized book!

TAKE NOTICE!

☞ At expiration of subscription, if not renewed, the paper is discontinued. No bills will be sent for extra numbers.

☞ If you do not receive your paper promptly, write to us, and errors in address will be promptly corrected, and missing numbers supplied gratis.

☞ Whenever you desire the address of your paper changed, always give the address of the place to which it is then sent, or the change cannot be made.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

The Progressive Thinker is furnished in the United States at $1.00 per year, the postage thereon being but nominal, but when it is sent to foreign countries we are compelled to charge 50 cents extra, making the yearly subscription $1.50. Please bear that in mind.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 4, 1900.

Who Are the Barbarians?

A mob rises in New Orleans, and under the excitement of the moment slaughters a dozen, more or less, of Italians. The civil authorities gain the ascendency, suppress the disorder, and the general government does all it can to quiet the distant nation of which the murdered people were subjects.

Another mob gains control and shoots down a large number of Chinese in the Rocky mountain region. Their offence: They cheapened labor, by working for smaller wages than Americans. China complains of the outrage, and in due time we atone as far as possible, by paying in dollars and cents for the unfortunate victims of mob violence and Christian hate.

Behold the contrast:

The Western nations sent a body of men to China to undermine and supplant the established religion. They plant colonies all over the empire, and erect fortresses in which they entrench themselves for fear of violence from the people whose "souls" they are anxious to save.

Those people feel outraged. When they can endure the insult no longer they organize and determine to abate the nuisance. The foreign representatives attempt to protect the missionaries, and draw upon themselves the hate which, originally, was incited against those who would destroy their religion. The end is havoc and bloodshed. The mob, too powerful to be suppressed by the civil authorities, finally determine to overthrow the government, and it becomes a rebellion.

Now Christian civilization:

The emperor of Germany declares the German flag shall wave over the Chinese capital, and dispatches his fleets and soldiers to make good the threat.

The Cologne Gazette urges a war of vengeance, and the razing of Pekin to the ground.

A Paris journalist asks the powers to rush on the Chinese capital, hang the dowager, and destroy the graves of the ruling classes of China.

And right here in Chicago, an influential public journal borrows from the Bible the language of barbarism: "Vengeance is mine; I will repay saith the Lord," and quotes it as authority, and wants the Western nations to become the scourge of God to the great Chinese empire, with its vast domain, its dense population, its older, and so far as its influence is reflected on the people, a better religion.

The beginning we have seen. The end no man can know.

Let the Church Push.

The New York Observer, Presbyterian, an organ of the church militant, voices the war spirit in a late issue, from which we extract the following:

"The world will only believe in an aggressive type of Christianity. If the churches desire to win respect for themselves and so for the cause of their founder and Master, they must evince a vital interest in the extension of the kingdom which he came to establish. Men are apt to believe in the things which have go in them. This is a pushing age, therefore let the church push, too, if it would obtain custom for its spiritual wares.'

The church has been "pushing" its spiritual wares on China, and exhibiting its "aggressive" character for a series of years. Since the late disturbances, resulting in great loss of life, it is stated the Presbyterian Missionary Board, instead of relaxing the "push" forwarded eighteen additional missionaries to take up the work their late associates have laid down.

If persons wish to become martyrs to a cause, and go out to gain a martyr's crown, we have no right to interfere. If they fall, like the fellow who places his head in a lion's mouth, he takes the risk; and if found a little later minus that useful appendage, it is his misfortune, and we shall not weep on that account. We did not invite him to put his head in danger. Let those shed tears who did.

It has been known for years that there was great hostility in China against the missionaries. That hostility has been gaining in intensity, and threats of a general rupture have followed. Under the protection of the great powers, their ministers and consuls, they made Pekin the center of their movement, and there were congregated the heads and teachers of the Christian propaganda for the empire. The list of those from Chicago alone was reckoned by hundreds. Scarcely an American city but was represented at this Chinese capital.

Were they all slaughtered? If so, who are responsible after eliminating the instruments of that slaughter?

Harmony To-day, Discord To-morrow.

Most of us have witnessed union movements of the churches to gain recruits for heaven. While bound together by a common purpose, and inspired by hope of gaining the principal share of new converts they work in harmony, and frequently with great success. Their protracted proselyting labors ended, then comes the strife in dividing the spoils. Each leader is intent on swelling his own church list of newly made saints at the expense of rival claimants. Then comes the caterwauling and the acrimonious bitterness of rivals whose own church doors open heavenward. These things—divisions and discords—are incidents almost universal to the dividing of the trophies won in "contests with the devil," as the godly designate revival services.

And discord among criminals in the division of plunder frequently leads to exposure with conviction and punishment as the outcome. In this honest men frequently get justice, and crime is punished.

For a long time the press has been telling its readers that there is a determination among the Christian powers of the West to subdue and divide between themselves the great Chinese empire, with nearly a third of the population of the entire globe, alleging in substance that they are heathen, with no rights Christians should respect. Each power has indicated the share desired in the grand division. Russia is ambitious to possess Manchura on the north; for that will open to them a highway to the ocean, with open ports for winter commerce. Great Britain, having already a footing at Hong Kong, would like more northerly ports, so as to extend her railway system through Farther India to the Pacific, and complete her mastery of Southern Asia. Germany, Austria and Italy are of course ambitious to share in the division. While Japan and the United States, more modest, silently look on, each sure of a lion's share.

Parties are said to make strange bedfellows. Discordant nations, united for public plunder, present the same anomaly.

With the exception of Japan there seems at first glance a common bond to hold the aggressive nations together, and that bond the Christian religion, all desirous to extend that faith as widely as possible. But this element is a sure harbinger of contention and strife. Russia and the Greek church cannot fellowship Latin Christianity. And Great Britain has no fellowship for either.

Should the Western nations succeed in a war of conquest against China, a war in which millions of lives will be sacrificed, and the wealth of the world will be wasted, the contest, like the wrangle of the churches to gain converts, will then commence, and the end will come when the people, weary of the strife, abandon their ambition for conquest, change their policy and their rulers, allow China to regulate her own institutions, including her religion, in her own way, and each usurping nation shall set itself to the task of rebuilding her own dilapidated ruins; just as Spain is now attempting for herself after four hundred years of folly, in trying to make her empire coextensive with the globe; an experience Great Britain will soon share; as will Russia in due time; and every other country that attempts to gain empire by the usurpation of another.

As a Heathen Sees It.

The Chinese Minister to the United States, Wu Ting-Fang, has lately contributed to the press of England his views of Christianity. The Western World has been flooded for centuries with the opinion Christians held of the heathen. Now for the other side. He wrote:

"It is difficult for a man of education and reflection to give credence to all the Bible stories. The account of the creation of the world and the story of Adam and Eve and the Garden of Eden seem to me funny. I see, too, that in these days of enlightenment many thinkers in Europe and America take a similar view. I must acknowledge that the teachings of Jesus Christ seem to establish a standard of conduct as highly ethical as that established by Confucius. Jesus Christ, in fact, goes a little farther than Confucius. If your enemy smites you on one cheek, he bids you to turn the other also. Confucius is more practical. He says: "Requite justice with justice, favors with favors." If we requite our enemy with kindness, how, indeed, can we reward our friend...

"I have no quarrel with any religion that is based on a foundation of virtue. If they all bid one to do good and deter one from doing evil, I say let them all go on. If there is a reward in some future life for the good deeds done on earth, if there is a heaven for the righteous, there surely must be many ladders leading up to it, just as there may be many staircases in a house. To say there is only one ladder is too narrow for me. If there is reward for any, I believe it will be for all good people. Some Christians say, unless you believe in Christ you cannot be saved. I am broader than that doctrine. My religion comprehends all.

"I have read the history of Europe during the Middle Ages, and the account there given of persecutions caused by difference of belief fills me with horror. We have no such records in China. Jews, Mohammedans, Buddhists have lived there peaceably side by side. It is only when indiscreet Christian missionaries go to extremes and excite the people that they have any trouble. Christianity owes most of its converts in China to the fact that it is more alluring than any religion we have there. The idea of a future life and rewards for the righteous is tempting to many. Confucius taught no such doctrine. He was once asked if he believed in a future life, and he answered: "If I don't know what will take place tomorrow how can I know anything about a more remote future." Confucius exhorted men to do their best to-day with no thought of reward. That seems to me the higher view."

Such is the heathen side of the story, and it doesn't sound very bad.

The True Source of Help.

For the spectacle of a people, entirely able to help themselves, appealing to the Almighty for assistance, is one step removed from the sublime; and we know where that one step leads to. —Chicago Journal.

The spectacle of a people appealing to God for anything, whether they can help themselves or not, is only a "superstition," according to the Plymouth church orator, and all experience shows he is correct. "Jupiter helps those who help themselves," said the Roman maxim, and that is the only way he was ever known to help. Sambo was right. His prayers to God brought him no chickens; but when he went for them himself he always had them for breakfast.

Where Are We Drifting?

A Republic is a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

A Hierarchy, as defined by Webster, is "A government administered by the priesthood and the clergy."

The Progressive Thinker had innocently supposed the United States a Republic; that sovereignty is in the people; and that we are subordinate to no king or potentate. Such, certainly, was the kind of government the fathers of the Revolution designed to frame, as has been repeatedly shown in these columns, and is confirmed by all the state papers which have descended to us. The national flag we all love so well, was designed to emphasize our independence of church rule, and self-reliance in periods of peril.

The Union Signal, an organ of the Woman's Temperance Publishing Association, in a late issue with the head of "Under Two Flags," makes the following statement:

"It may not be generally known that on Sunday morning on our ships of war, as the hour of worship approaches, the national flag is lowered from its place at the top of the mast and the church pennant—a blue cross on white ground—is raised to the peak, remaining there until the close of the service, when 'Old Glory' is again hoisted to the top. Thus is proclaimed in the language of flags the subordination of our nation to the king of kings."

Is this statement true? If so by what authority is our national emblem lowered, and a church pennant raised in its place? When and where was this government first diverted from its purpose of protecting the people to the upbuilding of the church.

Are the mis-representatives of this government attempting to do in detail what they cannot do as a whole? On our national coin was inscribed the false legend, "In God we Trust," without authority of law. Invasion after invasion of our chartered rights has been made from time to time, and those guilty of such trespasses have not been rebuked. The first false step was the pensioning of an army of chaplains. With really nothing else to do they have joined with their fellows outside, to subject the government, and convert it into a kingdom subordinate to a supernatural myth.

The editor of the Union Signal, in the article from which we quote, says:

"We are imperialists working for a federation of nations under the flag of the cross."

That cross was originally an instrument of torture. After Alexander had battered at the walls of Tyre for seven weary months, and finally gained control over the city, he selected 2,000 of her leading citizens, who had resisted his authority, and hung them on crosses. Since that event, 332 years before our era, the cross had been an emblem of authority. It has virtually denoted that death on its extended arms await those who resist its rule. In all the Middle Ages it was faithful to its mission, and now it rises above the Stars and Stripes on our national holiday and on Sundays, if the paper from which we quote can be credited, and it is to float until "all the world becomes a kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, and he shall reign forever."

Is this the feast to which we are invited? Instead of continuing to make America the home of a great, prosperous, contented, happy and free people, leading all others in the pursuit of peace, are we to change front, belie our entire past, and become willing tools of an ambitious priesthood whose motto is "Rule or ruin?"

Worthy Enterprise.

A grand project to preserve the languages of the world, and perpetuate the voices of statesmen, philosophers and scientists, is now being agitated by the Academy of Sciences at Vienna, by means of the phonograph. A committee of scientists has been engaged for some time in elaborating details, the design being to make the phonograph tablets, which can be preserved for all time, a record of life at the close of the 19th century for the benefit of coming generations.

The world has lost much, everything, for the want of such a record. Just imagine the seductive language of the serpent to Eve, preserved by the phonograph to the present time; the inquiry of the Lord God to Adam, "Where art thou?" the wheedling words of the faithful Jacob, begging a blessing from his father which was designed for his brother; Moses' father-in-law, Jethro, the priest of Midian, instructing the deliverer of Israel how to play boss, while the Lord himself told him to be to Aaron as God. Several tablets would be required to preserve the story of our Savior, commencing with the address of the angel of the Lord to Joseph to quiet his jealousy. It is regretable the words of that "mighty angel who came down from heaven" in the vision of the revelator, who, with uplifted hand, swore, "Time shall be no longer," cannot figure in the tablets.

Defective as these tablets may be in past history, we do hope the words of Rev. Hillis will be preserved, in which he threatened to "shake his fist in the face of the Eternal, and fling every vile epithet toward the stainless throne," before indorsing the Presbyterian creed with its damnation of infants.

A Puzzled Jap.

The editor of the Tokyo Orient has been posting up on Christianity, says the Chicago Journal. Japan doesn't go in for much of that sort of thing, yet Japan finds herself an active member of the International Dismemberment league, which is composed of Christian nations. The Tokyo editor is quite sure that the respect accorded to his country is not shown because Japan has made wonderful progress in the arts of peace, but because of the achievements, not long ago, of the Japanese army and navy.

What puzzles the ingenious Tokyo gentleman is this: Why should non-Christian Japan receive the respect of Christian nations because of her military prowess, when the New Testament, the basis of the Christian religion, contains precepts against war, and against according honor to any nation or man on the mere grounds of success in the exercise of brute force, much less of success in slaughtering enemies." "We can," he says, "very well understand the old Hebrews respecting us for success in war, for the old Hebrew god was a god of battles." But he confesses himself puzzled that Christians should respect the benighted heathen of Japan, who have earned that respect by success in slaughtering enemies, and by that alone.

The Tokyo editor would like Christians to explain the puzzle, and there are many of them that can explain it in a jiffy. They will say that the Japanese gentleman is mistaken in his premises; that Christ came not to bring peace, but a sword, as is set down in Holy Writ. As the Orient's editor, however, has diligently searched the Scriptures, and has found therein many ideas of peace and good will, he will be more puzzled than ever by the explanation. We of the west have become so accustomed to reconciling black with white that we can easily explain things that bring the simple and logical oriental mind up standing.

Mrs. Freitag in Iowa.

The Ottumwa (Iowa) Courier says:

"Spiritualism though advanced to pronounced stages of success has always been received with more or less skepticism, due, perhaps to the fact that frequent exposals of the schemes of so-called mediums, have established a well-founded precedence that there is much fraud in the practice of a great many persons who claim to possess superhuman ability in that direction.

"Conversing with spirits and the various seances in which so-called spirits are made to appear either in person or by rappings, to a great many are taken as being what the medium claims for them, reality. Spiritualism is a religion adopted by many, and to those the mysterious performances of mediums is considered as a direct relation with the spirits that are supposed to inhabit the other world.

"During the past few weeks the citizens of Ottumwa have been entertained from time to time by the remarkably clever work of Mrs. Von Freitag, of Los Angeles, Cal. Mrs. von Freitag has lectured to crowded houses every night she has announced her seances. Following her lecture each evening she has given what she terms an exhibition of her ability to call up and converse with the spirits of departed persons, the spirits replying by rappings, just where or in what manner, has not been fully explained. Mrs. von Freitag has, on every occasion on which she has given such exhibitions, requested anyone in the audience to take a position on the platform where she stands, and to skeptics or unbelievers was this invitation especially extended.

"Last Sunday evening it is claimed that she was detected in her method of so-called communion with the spirits, and the persons who have interested themselves in what they term an exposition of the same, are willing to proceed with the same if Mrs. von Freitag will consent. The persons above referred to believe that the deception as they term it has been practiced on the people of Ottumwa long enough, and publicly challenge Mrs. von Freitag to prove that they are not correct in their theory of the solution of her methods of operation.

"At the beginning of each seance Mrs. von Freitag requests anyone in the audience to write upon a piece of paper the name of some departed friend with whom they desire to communicate. The little slips of paper are carefully folded and placed on a stand on the platform, and from them she is supposed to extract a particular name, and deliver a message from the person supposed to inhabit the spirit world, being directed in all her movements by the mysterious rappings.

"These notes sometimes contain only a name and in others questions are asked. The fact that Mrs. von Freitag repeats word for word what is written on these notes without opening them is what makes her doings seem wonderful. That is she makes a solemn vow that she is honest and does not open the notes.

"This fact, the committee asserts, can and will be proved false. They say she does open and read the notes on the table by extracting one at a time from the table and when read replaces the note and then proceeds to tell her audience that she has a spirit present by name as appears in the note.

"This committee states that it will put up a forfeit of $25 to be donated to the Ottumwa hospital if they fail to expose the deception practiced by the supposed medium. An answer to this office will receive attention by the committee."

While we have unbounded faith in the genuineness of Mrs. Freitag's mediumship, we hope she will take special pains to convince these skeptics that she is honest throughout. She has been long before the public and is highly esteemed as a lady.

Denies the Statement.

The Pittsburg Dispatch lately published a statement that an exposure of a medium lately occurred at Avalon, Pa. A letter from there states the account is false throughout—a base fabrication. As no name was mentioned by the Dispatch no particular harm has been done. The secular papers would do well to confine themselves to the truth when reporting a seance.

WOULD YOU? WOULD I?

When we are full of ignorance,
And time's occasions misapply,
Can we expect to learn by chance—
Would you? Would I?

If we are full of slander's bane,
And speed the wrong of every lie,
Should we expect unsullied name?
Would you? Would I?

When we are full of spite and hate,
And pass our brothers frowning by,
May we expect a peaceful fate?
Would you? Would I?

When we are full of selfishness,
And others' efforts fain decry,
Can we expect the world to bless?
Would you? Would I?

If we are full of worldly greed
And clutch at all that cometh nigh,
Should we retain the toiler's meed?
Would you? Would I?

When we are tempted sore with gold,
And worship it in song and sigh,
May we withhold from poor and old?
Would you? Would I?

If we are full of vice and sin,
When comes the time for us to die,
May we expect a heaven to win?
Would you? Would I?

If we have lived a life of shame,
And spurned the good, and truth deny,
Could we ask Christ to bear the blame?
Would you? Would I?

B. F. SLITER.
Grand Rapids, Mich.

GUARDIAN ANGELS.

With us in our wanderings;
With us when we rest;
Ever waking thought most holy,
Purified and best.

Roaming where'er we may,
O'er the sea or land;
Ever strengthened, led and guided
By a helping hand.

Ministering angels now
Are the glorified;
Heavenly comforters are those
Whom we say have died.

Watchful care they give us now,
Tender love bestow,
Drawing nearer, nearer heaven,
Helping us to go. —Selected.

A Fruitful Field of Work.

That our Spiritualists should awake and work is one of the things no thoughtful, observant mind will deny. There is at hand a work that should be done, done with alert, active, persistent energy and tactful "push," and firm endeavor to effect noble and generous results. It is a work in which all Spiritualists should feel ardently interested. Lack of interest therein must and will prove a hurtful source of spiritual languishment and retardation, in any locality.

Our cause cannot grow and prosper as it might and should unless our people take hold of the lyceum, our Spiritualist Sunday-school, and "work" the same to purposeful result.

The orthodox Sunday-schools are the fruitful nurseries of the orthodox churches. Without these active nurseries, constantly molding plastic minds to the orthodox pattern and standard, the churches would soon dwindle and mostly disappear. Within the lapse of one generation, with the passing away of their present membership, the churches, but for their Sunday-schools, would lapse into nonentity. The training and culture received in the Sunday-schools mold the minds of the young into orthodox grooves of thought and very naturally as a result they "join the church."

In these Sunday-schools, too, it is too often the case that children of Spiritualists learn to despise and contemn Spiritualism, and they, too, drift into the church on the orthodox tide that bears them along. They become infected with the prejudices engendered by their orthodox surroundings, their minds become steeled against the proofs and reasons, in favor of the spiritual philosophy, and they are lost to our cause, in the foggy miasm of orthodoxy.

What the Sunday-schools are to the orthodox churches, the lyceum should be, and may be made to be, to Spiritualist societies. They may be made successful recruiting stations and training schools to induct the young into the knowledge of the facts and the philosophy of Spiritualism. By proper instruction along the lines marked out and exemplified in Tuttle's Lyceum Guide, which is full and comprehensive in its elucidations and instructions to teachers, the children may be thoroughly imbued with Spiritualism as other children are imbued with orthodox notions and beliefs in the Sunday-school. And the work may be as lasting and permanent along Spiritualistic lines, as in the other, and even more so, as being more consonant with mature reason and judgment.

As the facts and philosophy of Spiritualism are more reasonable and more in concord with enlightened common sense and ethical principles, more in harmonious accord with pure and natural human affection and love—so will instruction in these things that distinguish Spiritualism from orthodox teachings and beliefs, be more lasting, more fixed and permanent in the mentality of those blessed with lyceum privileges and training. Not many children trained in Spiritualistic thought in the progressive lyceum will ever become perverts to the horrible, unnatural dogmas of orthodoxy.

To become thoroughly orthodox, one must traverse human nature and humanitarian sentiment, must dehumanize his thought and his belief, and set aside that knowledge of truth that may be gained by careful experiment and honest investigation.

The work of the progressive lyceum directly tends to cultivate humanitarian sentiment and strengthen thoughts and feelings in accord therewith; it trains the moral sense to keener perceptions and conceptions of right; and it enlarges rather than smothers the natural human scope and fullness of the affections planted by Nature in the constitution and being of humanity. Spiritualism does not ask of human beings that they be willing to consent, either in this world or the next, to the damnation in endless hell misery, of parents, children or friends, who may chance not to have been "converted" and "saved" before passing into the Beyond. Nor does it require that we become so dehumanized as to forget the "lost" ones, or have no unhappy thought or feeling for them—which we must do in order to be happy in "heaven."

The spiritual philosophy accords with nature, with reason, with highest, purest and noblest human thought and hope and aspiration.

Herein lies the scope of the work of the progressive lyceum—to inculcate the spirit of our philosophy in its purity and beneficent potency, thus molding the minds of the young and fixing in them the pure saving ideals that shall fit them for pure and noble lives here and in the hereafter. Are not these things sufficient reason for Spiritualists to awake and work?

What Is the Trouble in China?

Doesn't she have enough religion? Are not her maxims and philosophy equal to the best? Out of some three dozen saviors, sixteen of whom were crucified, she had in Buddha a savior born of a virgin some six hundred years before Christ; one who, in his life and teachings, was the equal of any.

It is said of him: "Rejoice at the glad tidings! Buddha, our Lord, has found the root of all evil. He has shown us the way of salvation. Buddha dispels the illusions of our minds and redeems us from the terrors of death. Buddha, our Lord, brings comfort to the weary and sorrow laden; he restores peace to those who are broken down under the burden of life. He gives courage to the weak when they would fain give up self-reliance and hope. Ye that suffer from the tribulations of life, ye that have to struggle and endure, ye that yearn for a life of truth, rejoice at the glad tidings! There is balm for the wounded, and there is bread for the hungry; there is water for the thirsty, and there is hope for the despairing; there is light for those in darkness, and there is inexhaustible blessings for the upright."

Stop and think! What more could a savior promise, or in what way could he bring greater comfort to his followers? Buddha himself said: "Ignorance only can make men prepare festivals and vast meetings for sacrifices. Far better to revere the truth than try to appease the gods by the shedding of blood.

What love can a man possess who believes that the destruction of life will atone for evil deeds? Can a new wrong expiate old wrongs? And can the slaughter of an innocent victim take away the sins of mankind? Purify your hearts and cease to kill; that is the true religion. * * * But to abandon covetousness and lust, to become free from evil passions, and to give up all hatred and ill-will, that is the right sacrifice and true worship."

Why force upon the Chinese a religion of doubtful origin and more doubtful quality, taken as a whole? Why force upon them a civilization that makes mankind greedy and heartless? Why goad them on to a state of frenzy which urges them into doing acts of violence? Going beneath the surface and taking into account all the wrongs, are the Chinese altogether to blame for the affairs in China? Would you submit to the wrongs and injustice heaped upon them? Is the gratification of greed and fanaticism of more importance than life and happiness? Think a moment! Are you a Christian? Read your Bible: "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord."—Romans 12:19. (See Matt. 10:23, Mark xvi:15-18); also, "Forgive thine enemies." This ought to be doubly true, where by our greed, our injustice, our folly and our fanaticism, we have made them enemies, preparing conditions for what is taking place in China.

No one regrets more than the writer the suffering and the death of the innocent. It is because nations are not civilized that a great wrong has been done.

"Man's inhumanity to man Makes countless millions mourn."

Cleveland, Ohio. FAIR PLAY.

CHESTERFIELD CAMP.

Explanation of Some Difficulties.

The Chesterfield camp-meeting of the Indiana Association of Spiritualists began its annual session on July 10. The attendance and general interests thus far exceeded that of any camp-meeting held here since the birth of its organization, and the prospects for a highly successful meeting financially and otherwise are promising.

President Barrett of the N. S. A., who had been called to Anderson, Ind., to conduct the funeral services of Mrs. Dr. G. N. Hilligoss, was here on the opening day of the camp, and by request delivered the opening address for the association.

As will be seen from the associated press reports, all has not been sunshine in Chesterfield camp, but now that the executive board has assumed to manage the camp in a way it deems necessary to secure the best results to the association and to the general public as well, it will be in order to explain the origin of the difficulty which has given rise to a number of sensational reports published in the papers concerning the action of the executive board during the past few days.

In the first place there has never been any restriction placed upon persons who come here to practice mediumship.

The result was that at some of the camp-meetings in the past, many persons claiming to be mediums put in an appearance, and attempted to give seances. Some came under assumed names, others who had never been heard of by any of the Spiritualists in this section called themselves mediums. The result was that fraud was practiced. The people were swindled out of their money. In one instance the conduct of one or two of these scamps was such that it became necessary to drive them out of the camp.

Now to regulate the practice of mediumship upon these grounds, and to protect the public against these frauds and other disreputable persons, and at the same time to limit the number of mediums to the requirements of the camp, the executive board adopted a rule to accomplish this end. The sum and substance of this rule is that no medium shall be permitted to practice his or her mediumship upon these grounds without the consent of the executive board. Accordingly invitations were sent out to such mediums as the board deemed proper to present the phenomena at the session of the Chesterfield camp-meeting. Now it appears that the board did not invite certain mediums who had previously practiced on these camp grounds. Some of them were regarded as honest mediums, but it was deemed best to limit the number, and hence they were not invited. The board desired it to be distinctly understood that because a medium did not receive an invitation that he or she should not feel that they had been branded as dishonest. But it appears that a good many mediums took the other view of the case. There were two of whom special note will be taken. They are Austin D. Koch and his wife, Mrs. Lizzie Koch. The latter is a trumpet medium. The former has recently engaged in the practice of magnetic healing. They were here last season, and were voted a few days ago members of this association. At the opening of the meeting, Mrs. Koch opened a seance room upon the camp-grounds and engaged in the practice of mediumship. This was in violation of the rule above named. She was notified to desist, but paid no attention to the request of the board. At length charges were preferred against both Mr. and Mrs. Koch, and they were accordingly expelled from membership in the association without a dissenting voice of the members of the board. Now, this is the whole matter in a nutshell.

The board desired it to be understood that it will enforce all of its rules and regulations—in a word, it proposes to supervise its own affairs—that physical mediums are to be under its supervision the same as lecturers or other persons who may be employed in any capacity. The State Association is not at war with the National Association of Mediums or any other organization. In fact a number of mediums belonging to the association were invited to attend the camp-meeting. But there is one thing that may be counted upon, and that is that the Indiana Association of Spiritualists will manage its affairs in a way which it believes will be for its best interests, for the best interests of Spiritualists, and for the best interests of the public in general.

The attendance last Sunday exceeded 3,000, which marks the highest figures ever known here on the first Sunday of a camp-meeting. The electric cars are running from Anderson direct to the grounds.

Moses Hull has just closed his engagement, and goes to Onset Bay. E. A. Tisdale begins his engagement Saturday, and Swami Abhedenanda is the next on the program, and begins his engagement Sunday, August 6. Ignatius Donnelly speaks Sunday, August 12.

Chesterfield, Ind. J. A. WERTZ.

WE are trying our best to establish libraries in every Spiritualist family of the United States, hence we are offering Seven valuable books as a premium. Those seven books have been sold for $10.75. A single one has sold as high as $25. The first edition of Art Magic sold for $5 per copy. As high as $15 has been paid for a single copy of Ghost Land; yet we furnish these seven books to our subscribers for $2.35, when ordered in connection with a year's subscription to The Progressive Thinker. Read our premium announcement carefully.

"Our Bible: Who Wrote It? When? Where? How? Is It Infallible? A Voice from The Higher Criticism. A few thoughts on other Bibles." By Moses Hull. Of especial value and interest to Spiritualists. For sale at this office. Price $1.

"Astral Worship." By J. H. Hill, M. D. For sale at this office. Price $1.

THE CAUSE OF WARS.

From the Standpoint of Elder Myrick.

HE PRESENTS SOME IMPRESSIVE FACTS TO SUSTAIN HIS POSITION.

Occasionally a writer is moved to arise, "with righteous indignation filled," and say to us that "religion has been, and is now, the cause of all the wars, bloodshed, etc., that humanity is heir to." See, as an example of this kind of writing, an article by Dr. William Cleveland in The Progressive Thinker, No. 556. I supposed, the first time I read this charge, that some person of limited attainments, with a very meagre knowledge of history, had slipped into public print through some strange oversight of the editor. But as the assertion has been so often repeated I conclude there are people actually possessing a fair degree of intelligence who believe it. Let us kindly lessen the tension upon their susceptible nerves and sympathetic hearts.

The Revolutionary War. What about that event, brother? Try to imagine (and you evidently have a very robust imagination)—try to imagine Fiske or Bancroft in their immortal historical works gravely asserting that the mighty struggle which established the republic of the United States was a religious war (?) Most everybody has been led to believe that our respected forefathers found the casus belli in "taxation without representation," the "Stamp Act," or some other worldly consideration. We have heretofore held it to be a fact that the patriots of 1776 were striving to achieve national independence and political liberty. I have carefully re-read the Declaration of Independence and by some inexplicable oversight those sages failed to set forth the fact that 'religion" was causing all the trouble. They talked of "life, liberty and pursuit of happiness," but said not a word about foreordination or the inspiration of the Bible.

And when the war was ended those same fighters, statesmen all, fell to work and made a constitution. Strange to relate, they "left God out" of that immortal document, and all the ingenuity of Rev. Wilbur F. Crafts and his puissant hordes of pious sectaries has been unable to get him in. They never said one word about religion—not one. Worse still, the very first amendment to the Constitution forbids congress to "establish" religion or have anything to do with it. A curious war caused by religion! The "Declaration" that produced it and the Constitution that embalms its results both silent as the grave concerning religion. Somebody owes the shades of Washington, Jefferson, Putnam and Patrick Henry an apology. And Thomas Paine, arch-infidel, with his "Crisis" and "Rights of Man," who played so great a part in the Revolution! Say, brother, the greatest wars of the world, those that have elevated the race and made freedom possible, have not been "religious" wars at all. Honestly, would you blot out the record? Did Washington fight in vain? Was anything secured for humanity at Bunker Hill, Trenton and Yorktown? Is there an eye so full of the film of prejudice, so bleared with anti-religious sentiments, as not to see in the great historic struggles of the world something greater than mere religious imbroglios? Freedom, love of home, education and commerce, these are the magic words that lead men to war, and the extension and establishment of these things have followed and justified the "wars, bloodshed," etc of which we hear such a wail. And a man who can gaze upon the battle-fields of the world and read no greater message in their gory workings than "religious wars and bloodshed" is an object of commiseration.

And our tilt with Spain. War declared because of the divinity of Christ I suppose? The destruction of Cervera's fleet an incident in the development of infant baptism! Roosevelt's charge up San Juan hill a piece of "higher criticism!" Dewey's triumph at Manila established the Mosaic authorship of the Pentateuch?

For shame! Let those who say religion—Christianity—causes the wars hide their diminutive heads in the presence of a nation's glory. Let them seek in humility for the spirit of human liberty, for the sense of justice, for the feeling of resentment against wrong, for the glorious ideals which have carried forward the race to present civilization. In these things, or rather the opposition to these things, may be found the roots of the world's greatest wars.

H. W. B. MYRICK.

Gentryville, Mo.

THE BEAUTIFUL GARDEN.

(With apologies to the author of the song with that title.)

They lived in the beautiful garden,
The children of high degree;
The one was the wife of the other,
The "she" was a rib of the "he."
Up above, with his face at the window,
Was their heavenly father, J.;
He wanted to catch them tripping,
So he watched them day by day.

He'd planted some trees in the garden,
And loaded the boughs with fruit,
And said: "You can gather from that one
And that one, and that one, to boot;
But the tree that you see over yonder
I shouldn't advise you to climb;
It is bearing some capital apples,
But to eat them's a capital crime."

"Old Harry" came into the garden,
In the form of an upright snake;
He'd instructions to try and induce them
To pluck of the fruit and partake.
He offered them some, and they took it,
And the Lord at his window spied,
For the ways of the Lord are "narrow,"
And his range of vision wide.

As soon as they'd eaten the apple
It opened the eyes of the pair;
Each one of them looked at the other,
And they saw that they both were bare.
"The voice of the Lord they heard walking
In the cool of the day"—so they "guyed";
For those that he loveth he spanketh,
And the palm of his hand is wide.

* * * * * * * * *

They were "chucked" from that beautiful garden,
And the gate of the garden was slammed;
And you're all well aware of the sequel—
We are most of us doomed to be damned.
A few will be "crowned" and "feathered,"
But the rest will all be "fried";
For the gates of heaven are narrow,
And the mouth of hell is wide!

—Ess Jay Bee, in London Freethinker.

"Talmagean Inanities, Incongruities, Inconsistencies and Blasphemies; a Review of Rev. T. DeWitt and Rev. Frank DeWitt Talmage's oft-repeated attacks upon Spiritualism." By Moses Hull. For sale at this office. Price ten cents.

Spiritualism and Science. = = By Sar'gis.

To the Editor:—It is some time since The Progressive Thinker has had anything from the subscriber, for one reason at least—there being no need for addition to its many-sided contents. Nor is there now, but habit sometimes asserts itself regardless of necessity or fitness.

But being all the time a close reader the fact induces compliment so far as to say that The Progressive Thinker is distinctively the one Spiritualist newspaper, with emphasis on the first syllable. In this line it has no rival and cannot have until others get new editors. There is of course a personality about a book, a magazine or a newspaper, but one trouble is, there is often too much of it. It requires a more than average amount of egotism for a person to put forth individual opinions as guides for others equally intelligent, hence as a rule we find authors and literary folk tinged with vanity. But when one learns the printer's trade as a means to a living by laboring at it, publishing a newspaper is relieved from this disability—and he may be as hard-headed as a rock-crusher, and yet make a readable paper by judiciously printing the productions of the self-inspired writing guild. Begging pardon for the liberty of speech involved, this may account for the excellence of The Progressive Thinker—in part.

But though each of the many has its excellence, The Thinker has many, each number being a symposium of opinion, thought and all good things. Its chief merit in a representative sense is its freedom from dogmatism, fault-finding, scolding and pessimistic utterance as to the future of "the cause." Neither does it indulge in partisan politics as do some of its contemporaries. Above all its editor does not seem to disagree with his hatter.

It is amusing to see so many of these writers alarmed over the decay and downfall of Spiritualism. One class says it is doomed because of the tendency to make a sect of the movement. Another bemoans its decline from the fact that the mass does not rally around a formulated creed—or to declare "what we stand for." Next the tendency to make and run organization and levy tithes is regarded as signs of degeneracy, while on the other hand we are scolded because funds are not supplied to secure real estate, and to furnish, after ecclesiastical methods, a fund for the propaganda of our truths. And just by way of parenthesis: Every time these scoldings appear officially, there comes up before the memory the picture of a noble edifice at the corner of Exeter and Newberry, costing in the coin of the realm ten times the sum for which these objurgations are given, dedicated to "the cause," and maintained by personal liberality—yet its open doors are never alluded to, and these scolders of their fellows never darken them. The fact is there and that is all that need be said. Has it never occurred to some people that things open to observation can be seen even if they do ignore them?

Yet despite all these prognostics as to the moribund condition of the good cause, on both sides, the fact exists that never has Spiritualism among the people more than it is doing to-day. Only twenty years ago there was but one camp in America—Lake Pleasant. In The Progressive Thinker before me are notices of twenty-seven, and a dozen more not noticed occurs to the memory. And it may be pleasant to these despondent mourners to be assured that never before has it been so favorably regarded by "respectable" people—of all shades of opinion.

SPREAD ABROAD

Again, has it never occurred to one class of these augurs of ill-omen that the decline of the churches about which so much is said, has been from this very "money" policy and greed that has taken possession of them to the deterioration of what they call the evangelist spirit that in the beginning built them up. To-day the converts made by this so persistently quoted liberality of the churches to their cause are being killed by the zealous adherents of another religion—another sect. It is the universal fact in all human history, that a propaganda of religion, backed by the has resulted in disaster, decay and ultimate collapse. If Spiritualism has an apparent mission, so far as the civic or temporal conditions of the race are involved, it is to demonstrate that a propaganda of beliefs, doctrines or dogmas pertaining to a future life, is hindered, retarded, or destroyed by such methods as have been employed by most of the religious organizations of mankind—from the very beginnings of history until now.

POWER OF MONEY

Christianity began as a protest against organized religion and flourished until it became itself an organization. Protestantism was so until it too became a thing of enforced authority, and then its sects were protests until strong enough to collect revenue. And to-day the effort that built them up has degenerated into ways and means for the support of a by an idle priesthood. The old time Methodist camp-meeting is a tradition and the itinerancy, a feature that encircled the world with its zeal, has given way to the size of the purse that can command the best pulpit orator, and the love-feast is fast being superseded by the innovations of religious club life. And, too, baptism by immersion, instead of being performed before witnessing thousands in the Jordans of every neighborhood is now seen in the retired aquariums under the pulpits of palatial churches, while the dove of consecration is symbolized by the image on stained glass windows. How long, Mr. Editor, would it be before Spiritualist organization would follow in the wake of these did it prefer fat contributions, a "permanent pastorship" and official conferences to declare "where we stand" on—what?

TOP-HEAVY STRUCTURE

Aye, there is the rub: On what? On an Infinite Intelligence on the one side, or on a Know Nothingism on the other? To the clear progressive thinker one is as much a thing as another. What is the difference, practically, between the infinite and the unknowable? Yet the world has been cutting each other's throats over this impractical thing for ages—collecting money to keep it up.

Now, Mr. Editor, do not put all this down to the credit of fault-finding, for at bottom it is only philosophic. It is not from a God, Jr., nor from a devotee of San Leandro vibrations, only an effort to look at two sides of the situation. There is no alarm for the outcome of "the cause," as these things under consideration are all matters of personal idiosyncrasy and previous education. For ages we have seen people making their bread and butter out of their beliefs, or out of other people's beliefs. Theology has grown into the largest in our civilization—neither railroads, steamships or banks can overmatch its aggregated wealth. The Roman Catholic church once dominated the revenues of the Western world. As soon as Luther, Henry VIII., Calvin, Knox, Wesley or Joseph Smith succeeded in getting enough followers, they began to organize and collect revenue, and there they are—at it yet.

SINGLE INDUSTRY

Now the ranks of Spiritualism have been and are being partly recruited from the church educated people, and with most of them the force of tradition and habit impels them to attempt its cultivation by familiar methods—with some to make a living from it. Hence all this friction, this levying of contributions and this scolding at the stinginess of us folks who earn the means to contribute by planting corn, or some other pursuit that brings in marketable things. It is all right for us to quit the churches but wrong to quit the church habit of paying people for telling us what we know, or talking about what they do not understand. If our "leaders" who fret the quiet of our mental waters with their arguments and disputations about creeds, vibrations, organization, money, real estate, frauds and half-fares, would take a vacation and run over the doings of the common world and people with the spirit world, they might get an inkling of the wonderful field before them. In the season of quiet referred to in the opening of this screed the reading has extended over both the spiritual and material fields, and the impression more than ever grows as to the coming together of spirit prediction or forecast and scientific demonstration.

For example: In chemistry the close of the century witnesses almost a new science and the laboratory is on the eve of a forward step that bids fair to recognize the equivalent at least of what we avow as spirit in the evolution of life forms. The or equivalence, has revolutionized the science of chemistry and brought it to the borders of spirit. In common parlance it is the discovery that substance, atoms, molecules or elements, as you can best grasp the idea, when they meet in proper proportions instantly unite in the new or different form. In this way all substances, and forms of the planet in all its so-called kingdoms are "created"—even atoms are the results of this law of equivalence. It is a tremendous step in advance when the intensely materialistic concept of the atom as the primal form has to be abandoned by physical science. Yet it is no longer the gate keeper at the door of our laboratories. The laboratory is creative when this "valence" can be commanded.

DOCTRINE OF "VALENCE,"

Apply this "law" as the chemists call it to the materialization of spirit forms, faces, hands, etc. All that is required is that the spirit chemist understands this and give it conditions and instantly the form is present. That this is the process painstaking students have witnessed in the rapid spiral movement of the column of smoke-like substance, as if the laboratory power was in action, followed by its instant transposition into a form. Those who have not witnessed this phenomenon should refrain from urging opinions on materialization. If our primary predicate is true—that the spirit state is per se superior to ours, and their knowledge of forces beyond what we can attain, why not know how to so manipulate the elements as to produce these equivalents, that with our crude acids, alkalies, blow-pipe and electro-magnetism we have found to be the conditions precedent in the realm of form production? Is there anything unreasonable in this proposition?

LAW OF EQUIVALENCE

In a masterly review of the progress of biologic science a disciple of the great Haeckel, who declares the missing link in the evolution of man has been found, closes his paper with a remarkable declaration, which as an admission of science at the close of this wonderful century, ought to challenge the attention of all thoughtful Spiritualists. Speaking of the great achievments of the eminent German, he says: "But may there not be other factors, as yet unrecognized, that supplement the Lamarckian and Darwinian principles in bringing about this marvelous evolution of beings. That, it would seem, is the most vital question that the philosophical zoology of our generation must hand on to the twentieth century. For to-day not even Professor Haeckel himself can give it answer."

Thus we see how the latest discoveries of the great masters and students of physical science are nearing the border where by the logical demand of their own conditions, a force, a power, a constructive intelligence must answer the question asked by their own instruments. And there is only one force recognizable by human intelligence that responds to that demand—spirit. So much for the position of science at this writing. And it really seems to be that while our Jeremiahs are crying out for a Spiritualism made respectable by scientific recognition, the real science of the closing century is reaching out spiritward for its help in the solution of its problems as to perfected systems of cosmic conditions. It has exhausted the knowledge of its earth professors and hands over to the near-by century to arrange the coming together of the professors of the two schools.

Among the reading in the interval of writing has been the new work published in England, "The Arcana of Spiritualism," by our own countryman, Hudson Tuttle. It is a book an intelligent, thinking Spiritualist cannot afford to be without. One great excellence of Hudson Tuttle as a writer is his human common sense. Possessing the immense advantage over the mass of us of personal mediumship, he doesn't assume the role of the oracle, but keeps closely in touch with every-day thought and people. He seems to realize that while there is a spirit world, yet we must accept that knowledge and utilize it under the conditions of the life we are here living. That though we may talk with Moses and Elias, yet must have our supper before we go to bed. I shall not here attempt a review of this standard work, only to note one or two things: One is to ask the student to read carefully chapters VI and XIII. If the author had never written anything else this would have justified his reputation as a thinking Spiritualist—living on the earth.

But what was in mind in referring to the book in this connection is the suggestion of the meeting ground between the physical and spiritual scientist, and where the want of one is to be met by the other. As long as we deal with angels and in the rhapsody of the emotional, so long will the cold, cynical man of the laboratory give us a wide berth—and so long will we be at sixes and sevens over the limitations of mediumship and the mixed methods of intercommunication and imperfections of the messages given. All this comes from the traditions of theology—that we came from somewhere and lit here from our "eternal home" or some other body's home.

But when we can realize that we are the children of the planet we are on, that mother earth is not a poetic fancy, but a fact, the primal fact; then we are at the starting point for physical science to seek us out, or rather the meeting ground for the two schools of thought, out of which some new Darwin will be enabled to evolve a true story of life, here and hereafter—or at least a working hypothesis that will answer all questions we are capable of asking. As has been more than once said in these screeds: This material planet had to be from which spirits could go, before it could have a spirit world to send them to. And a well authenticated immigrant from any spirit world than the one inhabited by human beings from this earth has never yet been presented for naturalization.

Two quotations from the book is all that will now be given: "If man exists for the purpose of the evolution of the immortal spirit, the contemporary birth and development of body and spirit is a self-evident truth. * * The physical body evolves the spiritual being. In individualized spirit, creative nature culminates. Individualization of spirit can take place in no other manner. The most exalted angel was once clothed in flesh; and through the flesh only can such existence be obtained."—pp 102 and 106.

Again: "The ideal of creative energy through all the vicissitudes of the past from the chaos of the beginning has been the evolution of the perfect man; that through him in a direct line might be evolved an immortal spirit. Evolved from and by the forces of nature, being their concentration, or rather centrestantiation, man is an integral part of the universe. In him the history of the past is written. He is capable of comprehending all, because a part of all. In his mind are laid the orbits of solar systems and galvetic universes."—p 288.

But this talk is long enough—only this suggestion will not down: Would it not be well for those who are day in and day out—research societies included—exhorting for a scientific Spiritualism, to turn their faces toward real science and meet its masters on their own ground—nature? All this wrist and ankle shackling, eye bandaging, ear and nose stuffing, mask-wearing and giving false names to mediums, and hearing about little brown knives and initialed canes, is the very tragedy of the farcical. And to call it scientific Spiritualism is to invite the tears of both mirth and sadness. Science is really knocking at the door of Spiritualism for light on its ultimate problems, and are we to offer it these? No, no, real spiritual science is not there, but it will answer for us in good time—it is already responding.

SAR'GIS.

Cruelty, like every other vice, requires no motive outside of itself; it requires only opportunity.—George Eliot.

Our lives are universally shortened by our ignorance. In attaining complete knowledge of our own natures and of the natures of surrounding things—in ascertaining the conditions of existence to which we must conform, and in discovering the means of conforming to them under all variations of seasons and circumstances—we have abundant scope for intellectual progress.—Herbert Spencer.

WOMAN'S ABILITY.

A Woman's Keen Reply to Hon. J. W. Bailey.

"Women fail as parliamentarians because they have no legislative business of sufficient importance to compel them to master the methods of parliamentary procedure.

"Women fail as parliamentarians because, generally speaking, they lack the mental calibre necessary to perfectly comprehend the technicalities of parliamentary law.

"Women fail as parliamentarians because, assuming their knowledge of abstract parliamentary law, they have not the opportunity to acquire the skill only to be had from much experience in parliamentary practice.

"Women fail as parliamentarians because the feminine temperament is constitutionally opposed to the perfect mental poise absolutely indispensable to succeed in governing a deliberate body.

"Finally, women fail as parliamentarians because parliamentary practice is wholly outside of woman's sphere."
—J. W. Bailey in Harpers' Bazar of February 24, 1900.

We do not deny the truth of the gentleman's first statement, at least as regards the past history of woman, but it is only a matter of time when such an assertion will stand without a foundation and for the very reason that proclaims the falsity of his second statement, that the recognition of her own mental power or compass has more than any one thing pushed her out into the world as a champion of the rights of humanity; and while his third statement is true of women as a class it is not true in many individual cases, and the same charge may be laid to men as a class, though in a less degree of course, remembering, as we do, that men have had centuries of study and practical application, while it is only the present generation of women who have attempted to become parliamentarians. In answering the fourth proposition I say decidedly it is untrue, for very many women have clearly proven their "mental poise" to be equal to that of their fellow-men under many other conditions as severely trying as governing a deliberative body. His fifth proposition prompts me to read from the pen of Dr. Anna H. Shaw:

WOMAN'S SPHERE.

"There is nothing," said Rev. Anna Howard Shaw a few evenings before she left to attend the council meeting in Washington, "which I like so much as the phrase 'woman's sphere' when applied to intellectual women by the average man, but I cannot understand why he does not endeavor to protect that sphere. Thirty years ago thousands of poor women made a good living by 'day's washing.' It is a very humble work and requires but little intelligence. Yet to-day we find the business monopolized by men. They have even organized a national association of American laundrymen, not male washer-women, mark you, and glory in their success at driving women out of the field.

"Dressmakers and seamstresses were formerly all women, but now a man does the sewing in a filthy tenement, a man takes your measure and a man sells wear and underwear to you across the counter. To cap the climax, if you want to be stylish you must patronize some man tailor. In fashionable society not a pretty maid, but a coarse, ignorant man opens the door to you and serves you at dinner. In the kitchen a masculine chef replaces the good old woman cook. Men make mittens, socks, and comforters on the knitting machine, and have driven the old lady and her needles out of the market. In flats and apartments the male janitor brings up your coal and wood, scrubs your halls and windows, feeds the dog, and does two-thirds of the menial work.

"Everywhere men are usurping the place of the waitress, the chambermaid, the scrub woman, the shop girl, the dairy maid, the governess, the music teacher, the singing teacher, the ladies' hair dresser, the dishwasher, the preserve maker, and the maker of homemade bread. It really requires a magnifying glass to find a part of woman's sphere which is not occupied by a lot of superior male beings. The average man is certainly a coward, as well as a simpleton, to glibly descant upon our sphere and deprecate our leaving it for a second, while at the same time he calmly permits it to be parceled out and appropriated by his own sex."

Evidently the Constitution of the United States is open to variableness of construction or interpretation, since the suffragists claim a right and the anti-suffragists deny a right under the same instrument. And the charge he brings of an "illogical mind," because woman accepts and uses for the betterment of the race the rights granted by some of the states in their statutes, is untenable for the very reason that she sees that all evolution comes step by step. And while she feels the injustice of the lack of general recognition of her rights, unlike man she is willing to labor and patiently wait for complete results. Perhaps the gentleman does not know that woman is not working for her "glory," but for her just rights, and she does not exhibit any signs of embarrassment where she does exercise those rights, but a womanliness and dignity in discharging them that proves her loyalty to her country and the human race. When he speaks of woman as "losing her character as wife or mother in primaries, at the polls, sitting in common councils and in congress, becoming thus mere sexless political factors," etc., the gentleman forgets that we cannot be women and be sexless. We may be genderless on the creative physical plane, in that the enlarged minds and intellects of women who work for all of humanity may cease to create physical bodies for babes and create mind products that will become monuments in the history of the race that shall reflect more glory upon their creator than badly fathered children ever can.

There is no case known of any woman who has purified or elevated any man or condition being thereby coarsened or degraded in any degree. It is a well-known fact that she has never fallen without a masculine companion in guilt. The prime motive that guides the noble women who lead in this movement is not a desire for a "political preferment and squabbling for spoils of office," and if the Creator did not create them for such ignoble strife, did He create men for it either? And if parliamentary privileges can be distorted into a travesty upon one sex, then why not upon the other also? "Broad charity" bids woman show man where his error lies, and many strong-souled women are bending all the energies of their being to the task. They perceive the great needs of humanity, the gross injustice under existing laws that have oppressed woman and enslaved her for ages, the dreadful results to the children they have borne, both male and female, by this "travesty" on manhood that has enacted laws that militate against the one and promote and cultivate brutality and criminality in the other.

It has been my pleasure to note in my observation of the discussion of this subject, that the man who is fair and just to woman, who sees her rights and grants them as such, is the son of a determined, independent, self-respecting mother, who truckled neither to husband nor any other authority; a mother who demanded her rights as far as she saw them because her inherent principles commanded them. Thank God for every such mother. It is usually the narrow, ignorant mind that opposes equal suffrage. The apathy of the American women themselves has been one of the potent factors that have hindered the movement, and I am glad to have such a benefactor as Mr. Bailey, and a few more well directed blows like this will will at least awaken many of our sleeping Southern women. This has stung them to the quick, but they assume the pedestal of womanly dignity and say nothing, because they have no recognized rights which such as he must respect. When the women of Texas become a part of Mr. Bailey's constituency, then his tune will change, and where he dares to criticise and insult now, he will be cringing and servile and his acrimonious tongue will become smooth and oily.

I am glad he is a young man. The time will come when woman's ability to "comprehend the technicalities of parliamentary law" will remind him of this article, but it will be too late then for him to try the chivalry dodge. There has been so much prating about the decline of man's chivalry to woman that I cannot refrain from mentioning it right here. It is a pretty word, but it means very little to a thinker. Taken literally, it simply refers to deeds of valor that belonged to the days of knight-errantry; courtesy and empty homage that mean absolutely nothing to thoughtful women. There are many men who are chivalrous in public to women who are their abject slaves in private. It is a notable fact that with the decline of chivalry man's respect for woman has gained steadily. Why has chivalry decreased? Simply because men of sense perceive that women of brains see through the shallow pretense, and in proportion as their perceptions grow to wider range in contemplating woman's character they become more honest with themselves and with her; and when woman sees that man has found a lever wherewith to lift himself, she gladly stands ready to place block or stone to prevent a slipping back till he finds other vantage ground at a still higher point on which to rest the lever again.

The gentleman's attempt at facetiousness in referring to the lack of seriousness, or viciousness, in the organized proceedings of women, and the substitution of the club for the "quilting-bee and tea-party," and the "wielding of a pretty gavel" and "administering parliamentary law," etc., shows that he has not his fingers upon the mental pulse of American women. He but proves his utter inability to perceive that this outer movement on the part of the women of the nation and race is but the surface ripple of a deep undercurrent of unrest that is the result of the accumulated forces generated by a lofty altruism, that is but another name for the maternal instinct of woman. He shows clearly that he is incapable of sensing the mental hunger of women, and the deep-seated desire to bring better conditions for all of humanity that is rooted within the heart of every true woman. Women have at last awakened to the fact that while they have frittered away their valuable time in "tea-parties and quilting-bees" the ship of state has been manned by incompetent men who have cared little for the precious freight with which she has been burdened.

In referring to the experience of a man who becomes a member of a legislative body and the practical needs "that compel him to master not alone the theory of parliamentary law, but the history and rules of the particular body," etc., and his reference to "rocking cradles and reading Ibsen," and woman's "losing her temper and her head," all tend to show his very limited acquaintance with the real women of real life. History and the experience of many intelligent people in private life are replete with noble examples of grand women who have throughout a lifetime exhibited far greater generalship extending over a much broader area than that of a legislative body, and that, too, without losing either temper or head. Women, far more than men, have trained in the school of self-repression and control of the belittling destructive emotions. What of some of the women of the early days of America? What of noble Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Frances Willard, Susan B. Anthony, and many of their earnest coworkers in a field that had not even one furrow ploughed until they with their strong, brave hearts—with all the world against them—dared to prepare the way for the coming of woman. Dared to plough and harrow and sow that all of humanity might reap—for the interests of both men and women are inextricably the same.

There are many excellent parliamentarians among women to-day; notably, Mrs. Zara A. Wilson, of Nebraska; Mrs. Stoddard, of Texas; Mrs. Ellen Ferguson, of Salt Lake City; Helen Gougar, Lillian Cole Bethel, Mrs. A. S. Benjamin, Mrs. Lillian Hollister, Mary E. Lease, Anna L. Diggs, and many others who might be named, but space forbids.

As to what woman's club work leads to, the records of our country are beginning to show in better conditions already wherever they have insisted on being recognized in municipal affairs.

When it comes to the practical bread and butter question, the last census shows that there are 2,647,157 wage-earning women in the United States, and there are in New York City alone 50,000 women who support their husbands! Think of Chicago, who never allows New York to excel her in anything; she must have at least 50,000 more.

Then all the other cities will contribute their quota, and this man of limited vision, who is too short-sighted even to perceive that possibly he has laid the ax at the root of his own political career by this act, dares to insult the women of this state and nation.

I dare appeal to the women of Texas. Though you have not the privilege of voting, you can, by united effort, through your federation of clubs, open Mr. Bailey's eyes to the fact that, while there is no "viciousness," there is seriousness, and power too, behind your play at administering parliamentary law, and that though you may be strongly stirred by a just indignation at such unwarranted and unmerited insult from a man who molds public opinion, you will retain such control over your heads that he shall feel the seriousness and power when election day arrives.

To the women of the United States at large; every woman who is laboring for better conditions for all humanity; I say, make it your business to defeat Mr. Bailey. You can do it. He is unworthy to represent the interests of the wives and mothers of Texas, for our interests are identical with the interests of sons and husbands. Make him feel the weight of a "woman's club," the instrument which he so derides and belittles.

VIRGINIA F. H. PHELPS.
Houston, Texas.

VOLUME 1 of the Encyclopedia of Death, and Life in the Spirit World treats of the "Mythical Origin of Death;" "A Magdalen's Passage to Spirit Life;" "Impressive Communications from the Spirit Side of Life;" "Death Considered by the Spirit Lucretius;" "Oddities in Reference to the Dead;" "Death from a Vibratory Force;" "The Day After Death Beautifully Illustrated;" "Sensations of the Dying;" "A Birth Out of Dark Conditions;" "After Death Experiences of an Avaricious Man;" "A Special Visit to the Spirit World;" "Fragrance at a Child's Death Bed;" "The Varied Experiences of a Humanitarian Spirit;" "The Impressive Testimony of an Exalted Spirit;" "Indications of the Process of Dying;" "The Idiosyncrasies of Death;" "Life and Death Thoughtfully Analyzed;" "Signs in the Process of Dying," etc., etc. In fact this volume is a mine of valuable information, and every person should have access to it. It should be in every home. Read the premium terms carefully, and then send for the Three Volumes of the Encyclopedia of Death.

Wales' Faith in Science.

One of the most honored and conspicuous figures in the public life of Great Britain during the lost half-century was Lord Playfair, of whom a sketch appears in the North American Review. The vast sanitary improvements which have taken place in England within 30 years and the evolution of the whole sytem of scientific and technical instruction are due to Playfair more than to any other man. He originally suggested the adoption of open half-penny letters, now known as "post cards," and he was largely instrumental in suggesting the basis of an equitable agreement between Great Britain and America when President Cleveland's Venezuelan message had brought the two countries into dangerous antagonism. Among Playfair's students at the university of Edinburgh was the prince of Wales, of whom a curious anecdote is told:

"It was while the Prince of Wales was living in Edinburgh, as Playfair's pupil in the application of science to industry, that an interesting incident occurred. The two were standing near a cauldron containing lead, which was boiling at white heat.

"'Has your royal highness," asked Playfair, "any faith in science?"

"'Certainly,' was the reply.

"Playfair then carefully washed the prince's hands with ammonia to get rid of any grease that might be on them.

"'Will you now place your hand in this boiling metal and ladle out a portion of it?' said Playfair.

"'Do you tell me to do this?' asked the prince.

"'I do,' was the answer.

"The prince instantly put his hand into the cauldron and ladled out some of the boiling lead without sustaining any injury. It is a well-known scientific fact that the human hand, if perfectly clean, may be placed uninjured in lead boiling at a white heat, the moisture of the skin protecting it, under these conditions, from any injury. Should the lead be at a temperature perceptibly lower the effect would be, of course, very different."

"The Gospel of Buddha, According to Old Records." Told by Paul Carus. This book is heartily commended to students of the science of religions, and to all who would gain a fair conception of Buddhism in its spirit and living principles. Spiritualist or Christian can scarcely read it without spiritual profit. Price $1. For sale at this office.

"The Priest, the Woman and the Confessional." This book, by the well known Father Chiniquy, reveals the degrading, impure influences and results of the Romish confessional, as proved by the sad experience of many wrecked lives. Price, by mail, $1. For sale at this office.

"Spiritual Songs for the Use of Circles, Camp-meetings and Other Spiritualistic Gatherings." By Mattie E. Hull. For sale at this office. Price 10 cents.

"Never-Ending Life Assured by Science." By Daniel Kent Tenney. A strong and conclusive argument from the basis of science. For sale at this office. Price 6 cents.

558

The above is the number of the present issue of The Progressive Thinker, as printed at the top of the first page, right hand corner. If this number corresponds with the figures on your wrapper, then the time you have paid for has expired, and you are requested to renew your subscription. This number at the right hand corner of the first page is advanced each week, showing the number of Progressive Thinkers issued up to date. Keep watch of the number on the tag of your wrapper.

YOU MAKE $5.00 A DAY EASY
Gold, Silver, Nickel and Metal Plating. At home or travelling; taking orders, using, selling Prof. Gray's Machines. Plates Watches, Jewelry, Tableware, Bicycles, all metal goods. NO EXPERIENCE. Heavy plate. Modern methods. No toys. We do plating, make outfits, all sizes. Complete, all tools, lathes, materials, etc., ready for work. The Royal, new dipping process, quick, easy. We teach you the art, furnish secrets, formulas free. Write today. Pamphlet, samples, etc. FREE. P. GRAY & CO., Plating Works, CINCINNATI, O.

EPILEPSY OR FITS

I wish every person in the U. S. suffering with EPILEPSY or FITS to send for one of my large-sized bottle (16 full ounces) FREE. I guarantee to permanently cure every case that will take my treatment. Where others fail I cure.

DR. F. E. GRANT,
Dept. 33, Kansas City, Mo.

FREE ASTHMA REMEDY.

Free Trial Bottle to Everyone Who Suffers from Asthma.

A physician who suffered many years from violent attacks of asthma, has discovered a sure cure for the disease, and is now entirely recovered. He has written letters to the leading newspapers of the country, requesting that their readers be informed of this new remedy, and that he will mail, free, a trial bottle to anyone who writes for it. It has cured quite a number of people who obtained the free trial: is an absolute cure, perfectly safe and harmless, and so fortifies the system that the cure is permanent. Write to W. K. Walrath, Box 613, Adams, N. Y., and he will forward at once by mail, prepaid, a trial bottle, so that you can test it and see what it will do in your case. An offer like this ought to be taken advantage of by every reader. Write to-day without fail. Don't wait.

EYESIGHT RESTORED

Failing Eyesight, Cataracts or Blindness Cured without the use of the knife.

Dr. W. O. Coffee, the noted eye specialist of Des Moines, Iowa, has perfected a mild treatment by which anyone suffering from failing eyesight, cataracts, blindness or any disease of the eyes can cure themselves at home. 13,000 sufferers in all parts of the country were cured last year by his wonderful absorption method. Judge George Edmunds, a leading attorney of Carthage, Ills., 70 years old, was cured of cataracts on both eyes. Mrs. Lucinda Hammond, Aurora, Neb., 77 years old, had cataracts on both eyes and Dr. Coffee's remedies restored her to perfect eyesight. If you are afflicted with any eye trouble write to Dr. Coffee and tell him all about it. He will then tell you just what he can do. He will also send you Free of charge his 80 page book, "The New System of Treating Diseases of the Eye." It is full of interesting and valuable information. All cures are permanent. Write to-day for yourself or friend to W. O. COFFEE, M. D., 812 Good Block, Des Moines, Ia.

W. O. COFFEE, M. D.

SCIENCE OF THE SOUL
BY
LOREN ALBERT SHERMAN.

Sets forth the Philosophy of Existence, with detailed evidence. It appeals to Christians and Spiritualists alike, as it demonstrates the truth of the spirit manifestations of Jesus Christ, upon which the Christian religion is based, as well as the actuality of modern spirit manifestations. Its title page claims that the book is

A SCIENTIFIC DEMONSTRATION of the Existence of the soul of man as his conscious individuality independently of the physical organism; of the CONTINUITY OF LIFE and the ACTUALITY OF SPIRIT RETURN.

The first eleven chapters are devoted entirely to manifestations of the soul incarnate, with a clear exposition of the psychic philosophy.
The succeeding four chapters set forth the philosophy of the Infinite.
The last twenty chapters are devoted to an exposition of spiritual philosophy, with evidence in detail, much of it being personal experiences of the author.

The price of the book is $1. For sale at the office of The Progressive Thinker.

BIBLE OF BIBLES,
—OR—
TWENTY-SEVEN
"DIVINE REVELATIONS"
BY KERSEY GRAVES.

Containing a description of twenty-seven bibles, and an exposition of two thousand biblical errors in science, history, morals, religion, etc. Price, cloth, $1.75. For sale at this office.

THE World's Sixteen Saviors,
—OR—
CHRISTIANITY BEFORE CHRIST.
BY KERSEY GRAVES.

New and startling revelations in religious history which disclose the Oriental origin of all the doctrines, principles precepts and miracles of the Christian New Testament, and furnishing a key for unlocking many of its sacred mysteries, besides comprising the History of Sixteen Oriental Crucified Gods. This wonderful and exhaustive volume will, we are certain, take high rank as a book of reference in the field which the author has chosen for it. The amount of mental labor necessary to collate and compile the varied information contained in it must have been severe and arduous indeed, and now that it is in such convenient shape, the student of free thought will not willingly allow it to go out of print. But the book is by no means a mere collation of views or statistics; throughout its entire course the author—as will be seen by his title-page and chapter heads—follows a definite line of research and argument to the close, and his conclusions go, like sure arrows to the mark. Printed on fine white paper, 330 pages. New edition, revised and corrected, with portrait of author.

Price $1.50. Postage 10 cents. For sale at this office.

RELIGION OF THE STARS
By O. H. RICHMOND,
G. M. of the Order of the Magi, Chicago.

BOUND IN CLOTH WITH GOLD side, and containing 320 pages. This splendid book, just issued, contains nineteen full Temple lectures upon occult subjects, together with other articles from various newspapers, relating to the great work. It contains all the old Temple lectures issued in 1892, and three others on the HUMAN SOUL, which are alone worth the price of the book. This wonderful book is unique as an Evangelist of Science and Truth. Price $1.23, postpaid, to any address. For sale at this office.

THREE SEVENS.

A Story of Ancient Initiations. By the Pheloms. Illustrating the Hermetic Philosophy. Price, cloth, $1.25.

The Blue Laws of Connecticut.

Taken from the Code of 1650, and the public records of the colony of Connecticut previous to 1655, as printed in a compilation of the earliest laws and orders of the general court of Connecticut; also an account of the persecution of witches and Quakers in New England. Some extracts from the Blue Laws of Virginia. Price 25 cts. For sale at this office.

..GENERAL SURVEY..

THE SPIRITUALISTIC FIELD—ITS WORKERS, DOINGS, ETC., THE WORLD OVER.

CONTRIBUTORS.—Each contributor is alone responsible for any assertions or statements he may make. The editor allows this freedom of expression, believing that the cause of truth can be best subserved thereby. Many of the sentiments uttered in an article may be diametrically opposed to his belief, yet that is no reason why they should be suppressed; yet we wish it distinctly understood that our space is inadequate to publish everything that comes to hand, however much we might desire to do so. That must account for the non-appearance of YOUR article.

WRITE PLAINLY.—We would like to impress upon the minds of our correspondents that The Progressive Thinker is set up on a Linotype machine that must make speed equal to about four compositors. That means rapid work, and it is essential that all copy, to insure insertion in the paper, all other requirements being favorable, should be written plainly with ink on white paper, or with a typewriter, and only on one side of the paper.

ITEMS.—Bear in mind that items for the General Survey will all cases be adjusted to the space we have to occupy, and in order to do that they will generally have to be abridged more or less; otherwise many items would be crowded out. Sometimes a thirty-line item is cut down to ten lines, and ten lines to two lines, as occasion may require. Every item sent to us for publication, should contain the full name and address of the writer. We desire to know the source of every item that appears. This rule will be strictly adhered to.

The Progressive Thinker goes to press early Monday morning of each week. Camp-meeting reports should always reach the office on the previous Friday or Saturday at the very latest. Bear that in mind.

J. W. Dennis, of Buffalo, N. Y., is engaged at the Freeville camp for the season.

Dr. Charles Butt of 43 Bryan place, Chicago, attempted to commit suicide lately by taking four ounces of laudanum in Battery Park, New York. He was taken to the Hudson street hospital, where he died. Dr. Butt gave his age as 80 years. The only reason that could be found for desiring to take his own life was that he was discouraged. Dr. Butt was a well-known Spiritualist in this city, and at one time an excellent healer. Probably extreme poverty drove him to the rash act.

The Messenger of St. Albans, Vt., says: "The ghost still walks at the round house of the Montpelier & Wells River railroad in Barre. Night Watchman Sicard saw the dim outline of a spirit form there one night last week, fired three revolver shots at the phantom and then ran for his life."

W. H. Apperly writes the following to Bishop A Beals: "I thank you for the many beautiful and soul-inspiring poems with which you have delighted the readers of The Progressive Thinker so long. It would give me much pleasure to subscribe in advance for your poems if you could publish them in book form. I thank you again for the beautiful gems of thought you are giving to the world. May your days be filled with happy thoughts, and the silent hours of the night bring you the sweetest repose."

J. W. Dennis writes from Buffalo, N. Y.: "The Buffalo Spiritual Church society holding meetings at corner Mohawk and Main streets, Buffalo, N. Y., are having good attendance at all their meetings. E. J. Chase president; J. W. Dennis, speaker; Mrs. Catherine Chase, test medium. Mrs. Chase deserves more than a passing notice, for she is an excellent platform test medium, and crowds come to hear her give the truest of tests of spirit presence."

Dr. J. M. Peebles writes under date of July 26: "I leave to-day to attend the camp-meeting at Island Lake, Mich.; then to Freeville, Camp, N. Y.; then to Maple Dell Camp, Ohio. These will occupy nearly three weeks, but I return a day or two at a time to consult and prescribe for the most complex diseases."

Mamie Selleck writes from Santa Ana, Cal.: "We were entertained by two lectures this week from the guides of Allen Franklin Brown, who is to be chairman of our camp at Los Angeles, in September. The people were well pleased both with his lectures and psychometric work."

The Democrat of Anderson, Ind., says: "Spiritual mediums are beginning to roll into Anderson with gripsacks and other paraphernalia peculiar to their calling. They are the advance guard of the crowd which is coming to attend the annual meeting of the State Spiritual Association. The camp ground is filling up at a lively rate, many cottages being occupied by Spiritualists from all parts of the state. President Millspaugh has gone to the grounds to take up his residence during the meeting."

Mattie E. Hull is engaged for the entire session of the Ashley, Ohio, camp. In connection with her lecture work, she has been engaged to take charge of the lyceum. If desired, she will form classes for psychic study, also for instruction and drill in physical culture. She will resume the lyceum work in the Spiritual Temple, Buffalo, N. Y., the first Sunday of October. She is at liberty to make engagements either for lyceum work or lectures during the month of September.

J. S. Harrington writes: "The Church of the Spirit Communion, 4308 Cottage Grove avenue, will continue to hold services through the summer. The conference meetings at 3 p. m. are very interesting. Professor Hallowell gives a very able scientific and interesting lecture every second week, in the evening, and each alternate Sunday he answers all questions on Spiritual subjects. The services are followed by spirit messages through H. F. Coates and others, which are so convincing as to leave no ground for the skeptic to stand on. The picnic held July 21, in Jackson Park, was a very enjoyable affair. The Ladies' Auxiliary will give an ice cream social on the evening of August 4, at the home of Mrs. La Mont, 233 Thirty-second street. Admission 15 cents. All are invited."

Lillie A. Keepers writes from New Mexico: "I took The Progressive Thinker for six months on trial, and like it so well that I want to continue taking it. My mother and I have just returned from Spring Hill, Kansas, where we went to attend the Aber Intellectual Circle, after reading the book, 'Rending the Vail.' The manifestations which we witnessed there were wonderful. We went there perfect strangers. A number of our dear ones in spirit life materialized. I received a beautiful crayon picture of a sister on the other side, which I saw the spirit artist draw with both hands, he having called me up to where he was standing."

Take due notice, that all items for this page must be accompanied by the full name and address of the writer. It will not do to say that Secretary or Correspondent writes so and so, without giving the full name and address of the writer. The items of those who do not comply with this request will be cast into the waste basket.

Mrs. G. H. Morris writes: "I so dearly love the beautiful truth of Spiritualism I wish to let the outside world know how I became a Spiritualist; it was through a magnetic healer, A. L. Drumm; I was healed by him and I then saw the light; my eyes were opened with spiritual truth."

J. Osborne Lunt writes: "Will you please mail me ten copies of The Progressive Thinker of July 21. The first page of that issue is a wonder. That article, 'Some Excellent Thoughts,' is worthy of being published in a pamphlet for circulation."

